Mr. Donohue: Oh, I object, if your Honor pleases. When we [3406] examined this man, we didn't attempt to get every detail of his life 24 hours a day. And I think that the impression or the inference that Mr. MacInnis is attempting to draw by this line of questioning is unfair. I object to the question.

The Court: Objection is overruled.

A. What is the question?

Mr. MacInnis: Will you read him the question?

(Record read.)

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, on the ground he hasn't been asked the question. The record will so show.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to bring out whether it is entirely the fault of the witness or the fault of the witness plus yours.

Mr. Donohue: Well, I will take the responsibility for not asking him the question, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: Can you answer the question now?

The Witness: What is the question, sir?

Mr. MacInnis: Will you read it for the third time, please?

(Record read.)

A. I wasn't asked it.

Mr. MacInnis: Before you answer the preceding question, about whether or not you joined the Communist Party in August of 1927, you paused for several seconds before saying that you think that you made out an application. Is that something that you don't remember? [3407]

Mr. McMillan: Now, I don't know that he did pause, may it please your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, how many of these gentlemen are to be permitted to make the objections at the same tim ? I am in the middle of a question, and I think I should be allowed to complete the question, however odious the answer may be to the government representatives.

A. Mr. MacInnis, I may have paused. I don't know. But the pause wasn't significant, except for this, that my work for the Communist Party at that time was largely a composition of perhaps adventure and idealism, and I dropped out of the party very shortly thereafter and the thing was very unimportant to me.

Q. In other words, as you sit there as a witness, you pick and choose and offer us the details that you think are important, but discard those which you think may not be?

Mr. Donohue: That is argumentative and I object to it.

The Court: It is argumentative, but I will allow it.

A. No, sir, that isn't so.

Q. Will you say that the reason you didn't offer us those details, if I understand you correctly, was that you joined the Communist Party in 1927 in New York as an adventure or as a form of idealism, and that it wasn't important?

A. The reason is that it was very unimportant in my life.

Q. Well, didn't you tell us that in January of 1932 when you [3408] joined the Communist Party in Los Angeles, according to the text offered on your direct testimony, that you did it for humanitarian or idealistic reasons?

A. Right, sir. I made out an application card at that time.

Q. Well, actually, didn't you stay in the Communist Party in New York until the year 1929?

A. Were you asking me a question? I am sorry.

Q. Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Do you mind rereading it to the witness, please?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

(Record read.)

A. Possibly for a year. I am not sure. 1928, part of 1929. I don't recall. It was a short period.

Q. Now, two minutes ago, Mr. Ross, you told the Court and jury under oath that you made out an application blank, but did nothing about it. Now, you say you remained in for a year or more?

A. That was a technical statement, Mr. MacInnis. I was in the party technically. It meant nothing much to me, I didn't take the active part I took when I joined here, after having dropped out for several years, in 1932.

Q. You say that your membership in the Communist Party between 1927 and 1929 was only technical?

A. It made no impression on me, it was a lar[illegible] more or less.

Q. Something you didn't think about? [3409]

A. That's right.

Q. Something that had nothing to do with your ordinary life?

A. Well, now, evidently it did have something to do with my life because I was in it and I wrote stories for the Daily Worker.

Q. Why, you were paid by the Communist Party, weren't you?

A. Paid by the Daily Worker, which in essence was by the Communist Party.

Q. What else did you do for the Communist Party in that period of time?

A. I don't recall anything else.

Q. What was the circumstance under which, in

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

January of 1929, you left the Communist Party?

A. I just sort of oozed out. I sort of oozed out. I lost interest in it and oozed out.

Q. Is that what you did, then, in 1937, ooze out also?

A. Well, that was a little slower process, sort of an eye opening process.

Q. Your eyes weren't opened when you oozed out in 1929? A. I am afraid not.

Q. Well, two days ago when you were on the witness stand under direct examination, didn't you remember that you oozed out of the Communist Party in 1929?

A. That had made no impression on me. I was in it for more or less of an adventure, and I went back to newspapering and it [3408] made no distinct impression upon me.

Q. When the prosecutor, who represents the Government of the United States in this case, asked you under oath to tell about your newspaper work in New York, why didn't you tell about your work on the Daily Worker in New York?

A. Well, for one thing the Daily Worker is not a legitimate newspaper job, as I saw it.

Q. It is a daily paper, isn't it?

A. It is a daily paper, but——

Q. And you made the distinction in your own mind when you were asked that question, that you would decide at that time that the Daily Worker was no a legitimate paper, and hence you would omit that and draw down that same blind that covers other things? A. No, sir, I wouldn't say that.

Q. In any event, you didn't offer the information to the Court and jury, did you?

A. No, I don't believe I gave them information of other newspapers on which I worked at that time.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I don't believe I gave Mr. Donohue the names of all the newspapers on which I worked at that time.

Q. Had you told Mr. Donohue or the men representing the Government that you had been employed by the Communist Party on the Daily Worker in 1928?

Mr. McMillan: That has already been asked and answered, may it please your Honor.

The Court: You might answer it again.

A. If I had recalled it at that time that I conferred with Mr. Donohue, I certainly would have told him, I don't now recall whether I did or did not.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You say that the principal reason to explain your answers would be that you didn't give the names of any newspapers that you worked on at that time?

A. I say all of the newspapers. I gave those that I recalled.

Q. Now, Mr. Donohue asked you this question under oath, after talking to you, I suppose, about the experiences——

Mr. Donohue: I am not interested in his supposition, if your Honor please, and he ought not to make those statements.

Mr. MacInnis: I know you are not. [3412]

Mr. Donohue: I am personally not, no.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Ross, had you talked to this prosecutor before you took the stand?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had you talked generally about the testimony which you were to give?

Mr. McMillan: That has already been asked and answered, may it please your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: If the answer is a benign one, it will not hurt you gentlemen, I think.

Mr. Donohue: Oh, no.

Mr. Paisley: We have other things to do, Mr. MacInnis; so has the jury. Don't take up too much time.

Mr. MacInnis: Oh, don't be hurt.

Mr. Paisley: We want to get rid of this case sometime.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read the question, please.

The Court: You have it in mind, Mr. Ross.

A. I think the question was did I talk to the prosecutor about the generally—was the question if I talked to the prosecutor about the testimony I was to give?. Is that the question? The answer is yes.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): So then you were asked the question by the chief prosecutor, "Can you recall now the newspaper or newspapers by which you were employed?" You understood that question, didn't you? [3413] A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And you understood you were under oath here? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And you understood that that phase of your life in which you engaged in deceit was a thing of the past, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You understood, as you told the jury under oath, that you were the same Lawrence Ross in flesh as you were in the 1930s, but that you had a different spirit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You understood that you were no longer deceiving anybody? A. No longer what?

Q. Deceiving anybody. A. Yes, sir.

Q. So then you answered under oath, "The New York Graphic; the Newark Ledger—the Newark, New Jersey Ledger; the Newark Bulletin, I believe was the name of the paper; the Newark Free Press; then on the Bridgeport Post—Bridgeport, Connecticut Post." That was the answer you gave under oath? A. I think so, yes, sir.

Q. You didn't offer the information that in that period of time in your life before you went to California you had been employed on the Daily Worker, a newspaper in New York, by the Communist Party?

Mr. McMillan: He already answered that question, your [3414] Honor.

The Court: Overruled. He may answer.

A. No, that paper slipped my mind. I think I can think of another one I worked on that I hadn't thought of at the time the question was asked.

Q. (By The Court): Another newspaper?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. What was the newspaper?

A. The Bulletin over in Newark.

Q. (Mr. MacInnis): I know about the Bulletin. You didn't think that those experiences formed the background for your employment immediately as a paid functionary for the Communist Party when you say you rejoined in Los Angeles?

A. No, sir, because my first work was writing propaganda leaflets; and it was my newspaper experience that was the deciding factor.

Q. And you had had the experience of being sent down to Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, as a newspaper reporter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what paper?

A. The Daily Worker.

Q. Didn't you tell us about three minutes ago that you didn't consider the Daily Worker a legitimate paper? A. I still don't.

Q. But what was your intention, what did you want the Court and [3415] jury to believe a moment ago when you said you were sent down to Wilkes-Barre as a newspaper reporter?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question as argumentative, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I wanted the Court and jury, Mr. MacInnis, to believe the fa[illegible]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Which facts?

A. The truth, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. The facts behind the blind?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. All facts.

Q. Didn't you think that that formed part of the background for your employment as a paid functionary for the Communist Party?

A. I think not. I think my newspaper experience primarily, and secondarily the fact that the personnel of the Communist Party at that time in Los Angeles was largely foreign-born, they wanted someone who could front for the Party openly.

Q. Now, in these discussions that you say you had either with Mr. Donohue or the other men representing the Government, did you tell them that you had joined the Communist Party in New York in August of 1927?

A. You asked me that before, Mr. MacInnis. If I thought about it at the time, I could have told them; if not, I am sure I didn't. There was no desire on my part to conceal it from the [3416] Government or conceal it from you.

Q. Well, when Mr. Barber came to see you in Memphis, Tennessee in March or April of 1949 and wrote out in his handwriting a statement which you later signed, did you tell him that you had joined the Communist Party in August 1927?

A. I would have to look at the statement, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Did he tell you that he knew you had?

A. I don't recall that, sir. I don't recall that he did.

Q. Do you recall one way or the other?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Well, in any event, to come to another question, you understood when the prosecutor asked you, "When did you join the Communist Party and where?"—you understood exactly what he meant, didn't you?

A. Yes, I was sure he had reference to my membership in California.

Q. Why? Had he told you that?

A. No, sir; because the issues in this case are all in California as far as my connection with them are concerned.

Q. And you were assured by that question of the prosecutor that he intended that you should not tell of the New York membership but that you should restrict your answer to California?

A. No, sir. I didn't read the prosecutor's mind; I have no intention of doing so or of even attempting to do it.

Q. When you were asked that question you had reached again a [3417] point in your life where you were no longer trying to deceive anybody, is that true?

A. Yes, sir. My period of membership in the Party in California was a period that really meant something to me. I thought at that time—I was convinced, in fact, that I was doing the right thing; that I was engaged in a noble cause. The period back in New York was more of a lark, irresponsible for the most part.

Q. Well, Mr. Ross, do you mean by that that the period of your membership in the Communist Party in California was the period that really meant something in your life?

A. Yes, at that time it did.

Q. And that is why you remember it so well?

A. That is why I remember having been a member of the Communist Party here.

Q. That is the period of your life concerning which you told the jury yesterday you pulled down the blind? A. I tried very hard to.

Q. What did you pull down over the period of your life in 1926, '27, '28 and '29 in New York?

A. No attempt to pull anything down. That was twenty years ago, and facts and events faded from memory.

Q. So that when you were asked the question very directly, "When did you join the Communist Party and where?" by Mr. Donohue, who had talked to you, you answered, "In Los Angeles, in probably January, 1932, or February, 1932." That was your answer, wasn't it?

A. I expect that is so.

Q. And yet at that time you had been for more than a year a member of the Communist Party in the city of New York and you had been employed by the Communist Party on the Daily Worker?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor pleases. That is obviously argumentative. He has already so stated.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I had been for some years past, yes, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What was your father's name? A. My what?

Q. Your father's name.

A. Sedon—S-e-d-o-n.

Q. Sedon what? A. Ross.

Q. Where did he live?

A. He isn't living now, sir.

Q. Where did he live? A. In Bell County.

Q. What was his occupation?

Mr. McMillan: Oh, may it please your Honor——

Mr. MacInnis: I have a purpose in this.

Mr. McMillan: Haven't we gone far enough in cross-examination? [3419]

Mr. MacInnis: I am not sure who this man is.

The Court: I think, not only with respect to this witness, but many of the witnesses who have been produced in this case, have been subjected to probably the most searching cross-examination of any case in which I have ever participated.

Mr. McMillan: Yes.

The Court: And I think that having gone this far, we might just as well go to the extent of finding out who his father was and his occupation. I will overrule the objection.

Mr. McMillan: May it please your Honor, the other day, very respectfully I asked your Honor to lay some limitation upon the extent of this cross-examination, and really, as I said then, with becoming diffidence on my own judgment and out of all respect, it has really begun to get interminable, and I really don't want to personally sit here until the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder is in the shock.

Mr. MacInnis: Nor I.

The Court: I am content to remain, Mr. McMillan, and I am satisfied the jury is. There is no reflection on you at all. It is my duty to try this case as I see it and in accordance with my dictates. I have allowed the latitude of cross-examination for the purpose that I do not want any complaint registered hereafter or at any time that there was any curtailment of any examination of any witness either by the prosecution or by the defense. I will say for the record to counsel and to the jury that I have [3420] permitted cross-examination in this case to an extent far beyond any I have ever indulged so far as a trial court is concerned, but I am doing it avowedly, purposely, and I think judicially. I thank you for your observation. Proceed.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read the question, please, to the witness.

(Question read.)

A. He was a small planter, farmer, for a while,—most of the time.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): When you joined the Communist Party in 1927 in New York, didn't you state that your father worked in a clothing factory?

A. I don't recall that, no, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether you did or did not?

A. He didn't.

Q. Was your father a member of the ILGWU—the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union?

A. No, sir.

Q. You are positive of that? A. Oh, yes.

Q. What was the date of your first marriage, Mr. Ross?

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor please, that there are some personal privacies in a man's life to which he is entitled to guard even as a witness. [3421]

Mr. MacInnis: This is coming to a point upon which he gave testimony at the instance of the prosecutor.

Mr. Donohue: Every objectionable question Mr. MacInnis covers by telling your Honor he has a point. I haven't seen the point of any of them yet. Object to the question, if your Honor please. It obviously has no bearing on any issue before this Court.

The Court: It is true that there are matters intensely private to an individual, be he a witness or otherwise, and one of the most private, sacred, guarded matters are those involving family life or married life. Unless there be some definite purpose, Mr. MacInnis, unless you can disclose to me a very definite reason, I will sustain the objection. This man is not on trial for anything in his domestic life, nor should his domestic matters be dragged through the court or before the public.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say that your observation is very well taken about the sacredness of a man's private life. I have not endeavored to ask any questions of this man about his present marriage; that has nothing to do with this case. He has told us that he is separated from this other lady, he is divorced. It is no longer a sacred, family matter. It is no longer a matter protected by your Honor's observation. It has to do with another statement he made here under oath. I won't make any—— [3422]

The Court: Counsel, there are matters wherein I must rest some confidence in a lawyer. A lawyer is an officer of this court. We have discussed these matters before. And if you can state to me that you have some definite, objective purpose and will not transcend my observation, I will permit you to go ahead; but I don't want to run into blind alleys as has sometimes happened in the past.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't either. I don't want to be in the position of making some assurance and having you think later I took advantage of you.

The Court: Unfortunately. I have had to conclude in several instances that that situation prevailed, but I am still content to go along with sort of an abiding faith, and if you assure me, I will go along with you, that there is a definite, fixed purpose. If you haven't any——

Mr. MacInnis: I have.

The Court: If you haven't any, then I warn you, suggest to you not to launch into this field.

Mr. MacInnis: I have a very fixed purpose, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: May I say, your Honor, that this witness testified on direct examination with respect to many matters directly concerning these defendants. He has been under cross-examination now for a day, and the cross-examination consists of repeated efforts to pry into this man's personal life. Now, whether this man was married before and divorced, and the [3423] circumstances of that marriage and divorce, can only be a purely collateral matter, and any answer which this witness has made to any question asked by Mr. MacInnis on that collateral matter, he is bound by it, he may not seek to impeach him on that question. And therefore I most respectfully say to your Honor that there can be no legitimate purpose in attempting to break down the testimony of this witness against these defendants by attempting to pry into his personal and private life.

The Court: We are approaching the recess period and you might disclose to me during the recess your purpose.

Mr. MacInnis: I would be glad to.

The Court: Then there will be no question——

Mr. MacInnis: However, I would rather disclose it to you. Possibly if I make this statement, I will be accused of something prejudicial to the prosecution.

The Court: Let us do it in private.

Mr. MacInnis: I would rather not allow opportunity for communication with the witness.

The Court: The inference, I think, is hardly well taken with respect to any observation of that kind. I will instruct the jury to disregard that remark.

However, my chambers are open and I shall indulge myself in conference with you.

Mr. MacInnis: I will visit you.

I am sorry; I thought your Honor was suggesting a recess. [3424]

The Court: All right; we will take the recess. It is a little early.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the morning recess, and again I admonish you not to discuss this case with any person nor form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [3424A]

(The following occurred in chamber, outside the presence of the jury:)

The Court: Let the record show that counsel representing the prosecution, as well as the defendant or defendants, are before the Court in chambers, as a result of the colloquy between Mr. James MacInnis and the Court with respect to the purpose or purposes of the questions concerning the first marriage of the witness, Mr. Ross.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, purely——

The Clerk: Just a moment. May I add, if Your Honor please, that I have asked Mr. Hallinan to come in, and he said that Mr. MacInnis could fully represent him.

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: Purely to enlighten the Court

upon the underlying bases of the question to which an objection was made, so that the Court may perceive that there is a legitimate purpose to the question, and that the question does not entail merely a desire to explore the past personal life of the witness, I want to make this statement. The witness now on the stand was produced by the Government and gave testimony under oath. Of course, upon that testimony an inquiry is allowed on cross-examination. The Court has indicated on this occasion, as he has on several other occasions, that he will allow complete latitude in cross-examination. The witness was allowed over objection from the defense to answer a question similar to [3425] questions posed to the previous government witnesses. That question was, in effect, "What was your reason for leaving the Communist Party?" or "What were the circumstances under which you left?" The witness answered, under oath, that the reasons were either his eyes were opened or that he gradually dropped out, that he saw that the Communist Party was led by selfish men who had their own ends at stake, and so forth.

Now, the purpose of the line of questioning into which I now embark is to show that that wasn't the man's reason at all, that that wasn't his reason for leaving the Communist Party. The matter of his leaving the Communist Party is inextricably tied up with the matter of his first wife and that is the purport of the questioning. If the questions make the witness look bad, I can't help it, and I can't apologize for it; but I wanted to tell His Honor in advance that the reason is completely tied up with the leaving of the Communist Party by this man. The circumstances of it——

The Court: Pardon me, Mr. MacInnis. The leaving in 1937 or 1936?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, Your Honor. The time that he said that he was transferred from San Francisco to New York.

The Court: Yes, to New York.

Mr. MacInnis: And that he then just dropped out of the Communist Party.

The Court: And you say that part in San Francisco is [3426] inextricably woven in with his domestic life? Is that right?

Mr. MacInnis: I do.

Mr. Donohue: I think, if Your Honor pleases, Mr. MacInnis should make an offer of proof. What does he expect to prove by questioning this witness with respect to the circumstances? I assume that is in his mind.

The Court: There was some reference made the other day to matters of relief in New York City, and that the witness—and this appeared by inference, I think, from a question rather than by direct answer—that the witness caused himself to be transferred there by reason of someone being on relief and the importunities present were such that he decided to go back there. Is that about your position?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, that is not the direct purpose of this question. I take it that is ~~true.~~

Mr. Donohue: I think he should make an offer of proof.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't see why I should tell these gentlemen.

Mr. Donohue: Well, if Your Honor please, I want to say for the record that I am an officer of this court and I am sure that Your Honor has, with respect to every lawyer who is an officer of the court, a confidence in his integrity.

The Court: I have to have.

Mr. MacInnis: I am not trying to criticize them for that, Judge. [3427]

Mr. Donohue: It is not my purpose to brief or advise anyone of the substance of this conference.

Mr. Paisley: I have never had another lawyer on the other side of the case state directly—not insinuate—that I would run and prime a witness.

Mr. Donohue: And state it in front of the jury.

Mr. Paisley: I am not used to that kind of practice, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: I have not had experience with lawyers like you who come out here from Washington and start insulting local attorneys, accusing them of misconduct. Mr. Donohue the other day complained to the Court that he wasn't receiving the ordinary courtesy from counsel. I can remember the start of this case, when we were exchanging the ordinary amenities and all of a sudden to my dismay I saw Donohue on his feet yelling that Mr. Hallinan had been ranting like a mad dog. And I can't forget those things.

Mr. Donohue: I don't want you to.

The Court: Well, gentlemen, I think probably we have gone a little bit afield.

Mr. McMillan: May I make this observation, may it please Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. McMillan: Counsel has just stated he sees no reason for making an offer of proof and advising counsel for the [3428] Government of the nature of this proposed proof. Yet Your Honor will recall that he started to put the question in the presence of the jury, and the next step that was taken, he stated, was such a matter that he wanted to take it up with Your Honor. Now to me it is a most extraordinary situation, one of the most I ever saw, that counsel in a courtroom starts to ask a question before a jury, and upon objection being made, states to the Court that it is such a matter that he first wants to take it up with you, and you as a Court, and then steps in here and says he doesn't care to reveal the matter to counsel for the Government; when he was ready to put the question to the witness on the stand in the presence of the jury.

Mr. MacInnis: Right. That is not the point at all. I am asked a question and Your Honor indicated that he would overrule the objection. Your Honor then turned to me and said that in cases of this sort as well as in all cases the Court would have to repose some faith in the assurances made by counsel. I made the suggestion that I make a disclosure to Your Honor, having nothing to do with the propriety of the question as a matter of evidence because I know the question is proper, but only to assure Your Honor that my purpose was a direct one in connection with cross-examination—and not merely a purpose to intrude into the private life of the witness.

Now, there is the extraordinary thing. I could have gone right on, but I was willing to tell Your Honor exactly what I [3429] was going to ask. Now, these gentlemen come in here and they say, "How extraordinary!" They say, "Why doesn't he make an offer of proof?"

Mr. McMillan: May I interrupt to say: Is there anything extraordinary in making an offer of proof in writing or outside the presence of the jury? That is all counsel is asking here. You are asking to make an offer of proof.

Mr. MacInnis: That is what you do when an objection is sustained.

Mr. McMillan: Outside the presence of the jury.

Mr. MacInnis: Well,——

Mr. McMillan: Put it down in writing.

Mr. Paisley: What do you want to ask, Mr. MacInnis? Do you want——

Mr. MacInnis: May I attempt to proceed? Now, I asked for this meeting only to assure His Honor, not for any other purpose.

Mr. Paisley: You interrupted me before I could ask you the question.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I am not interested in what you were going to say.

Mr. Paisley: I might not as well be here.

Mr. MacInnis: That's right.

Mr. Paisley: You not only interrupt the lawyers, but you interrupt the Court and the witnesses as well. You run roughshod [3430] over anybody.

Mr. MacInnis: Mr. Paisley, I will be here many years after you depart, and I get along very well in this community and I hope to get along with everybody. I don't intend to insult His Honor, Judge Harris, for whom I have had a great regard for years. I don't intend to do that. But I don't intend to have you telling the Judge that I am insulting him or interrupting him. I don't intend to do that.

Mr. Paisley: Well, do you admit that you have constantly interrupted the Court when the Court was talking?

The Court: Well, I think, gentlemen,——

Mr. MacInnis: I am not here to be interrogated by you.

Mr. Paisley: The record will show.

The Court: I don't think there is any need for any interrogation at this time. I say that very respectfully to you, as well as to counsel. The purpose of this meeting is to determine a single, solitary point at issue; and I have already indicated to the jury that any reflection by inference made through the statement of Mr. MacInnis that he would not make any disclosure that would provide an opportunity for government counsel to then bolster up their witness, of course, was not well taken, and I so instructed the jury.

Now, the Court has been placed in a position on several occasions, by reason of representations made by Mr. Hallinan as well as by Mr. MacInnis, wherein the Court found after being [3431] assured that certain matters would eventuate, that it appeared to the contrary, that the position taken by counsel was not sound, to the extent that is illustrated by—well, we will not illustrate it, the record will show the several instances.

Now, I feel that in a matter so delicate as the interrogation of a man's private life and the intrusion of ourselves into this man's private life, that we should have a showing, Mr. MacInnis, as to what eventually you intend to prove. I shall not foreclose you, if I believe it to be material. Admittedly, this man has placed himself on the stand to expose himself to a sweeping cross-examination. I am going to allow it. But I shall not intrude this case into the man's private life to his detriment or to his sorrow, unless it be a very material matter. Now, if you care to disclose it, I will rule.

Mr. MacInnis: I had intended fully to disclose the matter to Your Honor. I had intended actually to do that.

The Court: Well, have you any objection in the presence of counsel?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I have. Of course, I will do it if Your Honor insists upon it, but I certainly would object.

The Court: What would be your reason, that you feel they would convey the information to Mr. Ross? Is that the feeling you have?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, Judge, I don't want to be accused of saying that. [3432]

The Court: Well, then, I will withdraw the question.

Mr. Donohue: Perhaps I may relieve the situation.

The Court: I am not intending to interrogate you or embarrass you, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: I am not embarrassed by your Honor's question. I am perfectly willing——

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, speaking for the Government, I shall be perfectly willing to ask the Government counsel to withdraw and ask your Honor personally to determine, in your own good judgment, as to whether the offer of proof which Mr. MacInnis makes to your Honor is such as would permit him to ask the question and the answer to be allowed.

The Court: You are willing to withdraw, without prejudice? And you waive any error or claimed error?

Mr. Donohue: I waive any claimed error.

The Court: In connection with my interrogating Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. McMillan: I wish to leave the thought, when I retire, may it please your Honor: As the Supreme Court has said, a witness upon the stand is unable to protect himself and it is necessary that the witness on the stand be protected, as the Supreme Court said, from any humiliation, from any harassment, and, as it is provided in the laws of the State of California, that he can not be asked degrading questions or questions that [3433] tend to degrade him. I wish to leave that thought.

Mr. Paisley: May I say this, your Honor: Mr.

MacInnis probably doesn't believe it, but I was somewhat impressed with his argument to you that since the witness gave him reasons for leaving the Communist Party, I think he should have the right to say, "Now," in effect, "that was not your reason; your real reason was because your wife wanted you to leave; for instance?" I think that would be a proper question.

Mr. MacInnis: I think he sees the point.

Mr. Paisley: I leave that thought with your Honor. I know your Honor knows the law.

(Whereupon counsel for the Government retired from the chambers.)

The Court: The Clerk of the Court may remain. Otherwise——

Mr. MacInnis: Of course,——

The Court: Mr. Goldsmith, you can excuse yourself, too.

(Whereupon law clerk Goldsmith retired from chambers.)

Mr. MacInnis: Is this for the record, your Honor?

The Court: There will have to be a record. Otherwise—May the record show that Government counsel has now been excused, Mr. Mitchell is here as Clerk of the Court.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, your Honor, I will be very glad to tell you exactly what I had in mind. Your Honor may have followed, and I am sure you did, with attention, the questions [3434] put to the witness during the last session. The disclosures that certain matters in his life had not been developed by him when he was questioned by the government counsel, that is. The source of that information is not a devious one; at the time of the divorce of Mr. Ross from his first wife, I am informed the wife went to the Hearst papers in New York, and I have been given what purports to be a summary of the contents of those papers. It may even have been in the American Weekly. And I am informed, and I intend to ask the witness, if this was not the situation—which apparently upon information was the situation—that Ross was living here in San Francisco, as he said, separated from his wife, as the editor of the Western Worker, a paid job; that he at that time abandoned his wife and children, by inference, and that his wife had gone to the Communist Party in New York and made the complaint; and that upon her complaint, Ross was called to New York and his job taken away from him in the Communist Party because he had wilfully deserted and refused to support his children; that the Communist Party members apparently told Ross——

The Court: Now the dates? Pardon me, Mr. MacInnis. The date or dates? Is that '36?

Mr. MacInnis: '37, your Honor.

The Court: '37.

Mr. MacInnis: Directly he left San Francisco for New York, directly when he left the Communist Party. And that the [3435] Communist Party people apparently told Ross that unless he would support his wife and children, he could no longer work for the Communist Party; and that at that time his job was taken away from him by the Communist Party and that he then drifted out; that his leaving the Communist Party was not due to any weakening, but due to his job being taken away upon the wife's complaint.

The Court: Pardon me. What is the source of your information?

Mr. MacInnis: Supposedly,—I am trying to get the clippings airmailed out here—articles I suppose based upon interviews. His wife went to the Hearst papers at the time of their divorce. This man was apparently well known in some circles at the time, and there was some big expose in the Hearst papers at the time of his divorce, and the wife apparently said these things.

Now, I certainly would have a right to ask him if those are not true.

The Court: Now, this is to demonstrate that these declared purposes in leaving the Party were not enlightenment, nor that the dawn came, but rather that through these internal affairs and discord and lack of harmony in his marital life with his wife that——

Mr. MacInnis: No, merely being ordered to support his children. [3436]

The Court: Ordered to support the children.

Mr. MacInnis: And that the reason he gave here under oath, like some of the other things he has said, are not the fact.

The Court: All right, I think I will allow it. I think I will allow that.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you for your time, Your Honor. I appreciate that.

The Court: That is all right.

(Whereupon the hearing in chambers was concluded, a brief recess was taken.) [3437]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Ross, concerning the matters I asked you about in the last session, the things that you didn't tell the jury on direct examination, don't you know that at the time of your divorce from your first wife all of these matters were published in the New York Hearst papers?

A. No, sir.

Q. Don't you know that your wife went to the Hearst papers in New York and that her story and the story of your past life was published?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor pleases. I don't see how this witness could possibly be bound by an allegation made by Mr. MacInnis that someone other than himself made a statement which was reported in the Hearst papers. It is hearsay three times removed.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis is asking for the fact of publication, not as to what the facts may have been. Do you recall the fact of such publication?

The Witness: No, sir, I never saw it.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Didn't you make an answer? A. No, sir.

Q. Weren't you quoted in the papers yourself?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where were you living at the time of that divorce, Mr. Ross?

A. In North Carolina. [3438]

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And the divorce was obtained where?

A. North Carolina.

Q. What city? A. High Point.

Q. High Point. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any publication of the facts of your life in High Point, North Carolina, at that time?

Mr. Donohue: Object, if your Honor please.

A. No, sir. I'm sorry.

The Court: The witness has answered.

The Witness: I'm sorry.

The Court: That is all right.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Ross, when asked by the prosecutor as to the date of your leaving San Francisco and the giving up of your post as editor of the Western Worker, what was your answer?

A. About the middle of 1937, to the best of my recollection.

Q. Could you recall for us the approximate date on which you ceased to be the editor of the Western Worker?

A. I'm afraid I can't place it any more exactly than the summer of 1937.

Q. Did you tell the Court and jury that you left because you were transferred by the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir. [3439]

Q. And you were transferred to what other city?

A. New York City.

Q. Transferred to what post?

A. No post within the Party.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Your post was taken away from you then, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir, I suppose so.

Q. In other words, up to the time that you had left San Francsico as editor of the Western Worker, you were a paid functionary of the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On salary from the Communist Party?

A. A pittance, yes, sir.

Q. And when you got to New York that salary ceased, did it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were no longer a paid functionary of the Communist Party? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any discussion in New York about the reason for your being removed as editor of the Western Worker?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. Discussion with whom?

The Court: You might establish a foundation as to the person with whom he might have had a conference or conversation.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Let me ask you this, in deference to his Honor's suggestion: Who were your superiors in the [3440] Communist Party at that time? Who called you back to New York?

A. The superiors in the Communist Party were always the Central Committee—members of the Central Committee.

Q. Who called you back to New York and took you away from your post as editor of the Western Worker?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I couldn't say that, sir. I was informed of the transfer through Mr. Schneidermann.

Q. Were you informed that you should go to New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you given passage to New York?

A. I can't recall that.

Q. Did you go promptly to New York from San Francisco? A. You say "promptly"?

Q. Yes. A. I assume so.

Q. Pardon me? A. I assume I did.

Q. When you got to New York did you have a meeting with your superiors as to the cause of your transfer?

A. No, sir, I don't recall any such meeting.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I don't recall any such meeting.

Q. What were you transferred to? What did the transfer mean? You were taken out of the job as editor of the Western Worker [3441] and placed in what position?

A. A transfer is not from a certain job to another within the Communist Party; it is a transfer from one unit to another.

Q. Could you tell us what job you took when you reached New York?

A. Shortly after I left New York, as I recall, I became an organizer for the United Furniture Workers Union, and that post was obtained for me through the Communist Party.

Q. You no longer received any salary or pittance, as you call it, from the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I don't believe I did, no, sir.

Q. And after you were taken away from your post as editor of the Western Worker, you never thereafter were a paid functionary of the Communist Party?

A. I don't believe I was, no, sir.

(Mr. MacInnis exhibited a newspaper to the witness.)

Mr. Donohue: I object. This is the first time in my life I have ever seen a case tried by newspapers. Certainly a newspaper account is not admissible in evidence, and it should not be permitted to Mr. MacInnis as a subject matter of cross-examination.

The Court: He asked a question as to the fact of publication. He is entitled to ask that.

The Witness: Was your question did I see any such publication? The answer is no.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): After your post as editor of the Western [3442] Worker was taken away from you, did you thereafter make an application to the Communist Party to be restored to a post of responsibility? A. No, sir.

Q. Never did? A. No, sir.

Q. You never asked that you be used again in a post of responsibility? A. No, sir.

Q. And if such information was promulgated, that would be false information? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, to continue, if the Court please, on the matter that engaged us as we recessed last night, I am going to find another page of this newspaper.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Let me ask you this: When you went back to New York from San Francisco after having the job as editor of the Western Worker taken away from you, did you have any discussion with the Communist Party leaders about the non-support of your children?

A. I don't recall any, no, sir.

Q. You have no recollection one way or the other?

A. No, sir. I do recall that I did send money to my family.

Q. When?

A. Well, I don't know the specific occasions; every time I was able to. [3443]

Q. Didn't your wife demonstrate to you in New York that she had been on county relief with the children because you failed to support her?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question as highly improper.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. MacInnis: Called for only by the witness' last volunteer statement, your Honor.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. I don't recall that, no, sir.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You have no recollection? A. None.

Q. I will ask, please, if you will look, on the matter of the agenda on the 1936 National Convention of the Communist Party, at the issue of the Western Worker, of which you were then editor, for Thursday, June 25, 1936, page 2, in the column that I have marked in red. Do you want to read that carefully?

A. Yes, sir, I will. This is the continued part of the story you are referring to?

Q. Yes. You had looked at the first part yesterday.

A. No objection to my referring back to the first part?

Q. None.

Mr. McMillan: May it please your Honor, is there any objection to counsel for the Government reading that article [3444] before a question is put to the witness?

Mr. MacInnis: No.

Mr. McMillan: I think it will expedite the matter.

Mr. MacInnis: If that request is made I can't see any ground to oppose it.

The Court: Would you like to look at it?

Mr. Donohue: May I see it, if your Honor pleases?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr MacInnis): Now, isn't this true, Mr. Ross, that in order—I mean by that, in numerical order—the main points on the agenda of the convention of 1936 were as follows:

> "First, the fight against reaction, Fascism, war; the united front; the presidential elec> tions and the Farmer-Labor Party—reported by Earl Browder as General Secretary of the Communist Party" and that the second matter on the agenda was: "Party organization, reported by F. Brown; the Problem of Forces, reported by Charles Krumbein"; that the next matter on the agenda was "Organizing the Toiling Youth," the reporter Gil Green; that the fourth item was "The Struggle for Peace and the Peace Policy of the Soviet Union"; that the reporter was a man named Robert Minor; and that the fifth and second to the last item was the election of the Central Committee, and the last item, nominations of presidential ticket?

A. I followed your reading on these, Mr. MacInnis. You list [3445] them correctly as they are listed here in numerical order, but not necessarily chronological order as to the proceedings of the convention.

Q. There wouldn't have been any reason to report that numerical order falsely in the Western Worker, would there?

A. Is this report the post-convention report?

Q. That appears not to be. It is prospective.

A. This list of items on the order of business which you read is preceded by a paragraph which says, "Main points on the agenda for the convention are as follows."

Q. Yes.

A. I assume, then, that that is the list of the agenda in order of importance of events, possibly, not in chronological order of their occurrence.

Q. Yes, you are perfectly right that it is prospective. Now, with that as a foundation, I want you to turn to the reports of the events that did take place. I would like you to look at the issue of that paper of June 29, which is marked, and turn, if you will, to page 2.

A. These are clipped off. Do you mind helping me? I don't want to pry into anything I shouldn't look at. This is the 25th here.

Q. Yes. Do you want to read carefully—Pardon me; the 29th.

A. Would you turn to it yourself? You have these pages clipped together. [3446]

Q. I thought you wanted me to remove the clip.

A. If you will. I would rather not do it myself.

Q. Would you read the material that is marked in red on page 2 of the issue of June 29?

A. You mean from the subhead "Opened by Foster" on down through, is that correct?

Q. Yes.

A. May I refer back to the first? [3446-A]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as you observed, the first item to which your attention was directed in the issue of June 25th was prospective; that is, it spoke of things which had not yet taken place, and it listed them in a certain order.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask, if your Honor please, is the witness allowed to read this for the purpose of refreshing his recollection or for some other purpose?

The Court: That is what I assumed; that has been the basis of the examination thus far.

Did you examine it?

Mr. Donohue: No, your Honor.

The Court: You may do so.

(Document examined by Mr. Donohue.)

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read the last question and answer, please?

(Record read.)

A. That seems apparent, yes, sir.

5 Q. Now, you have been referred to the issue of June 29th which you say you have read. Let me ask you if this is not what happened, day by day——

Mr. Donohue: No, that is not a proper question, if your Honor pleases. As your Honor suggested a minute ago, the witness was permitted to read this article for the purpose, and the only purpose for which it could be permitted, to refresh [3447] his recollection as to the incidents which are noted therein. For Mr. MacInnis to attempt to state what is in the article is to put in evidence something that hasn't even been identified or offered in evidence.

The Court: Are you coming to the chronology now? Is that what you have in mind?

Mr. MacInnis: I am asking if certain things happened, your Honor. I don't think that the objection has anything to do with that request.

The Court: All right, proceed.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. McMillan: Well, may it please your Honor, wouldn't an appropriate question be whether or not if, after reading that, it refreshes his recollection?

The Court: That may be true, Mr. McMillan, but I feel we are going all right now at the moment. Let us proceed.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Ross, isn't this what happened, that on Wednesday morning the convention was opened by William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist Party and that on Wednesday afternoon there was the report of the outgoing Central Committee of the party which was delivered by Earl Browder, the general secretary of the Communist Party; and that Browder laid down the five fundamental aims of the masses in his speech and spoke about the United Labor Front? Isn't that true, that that happened on Wednesday, the opening day of the convention, the 24th of June? [3448]

A. I can't say that of my own recollection, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. And that on the same day, Wednesday, Gil Green—and you recall him mentioned in the prospective article that you have looked at before in the same order that the prospectus shows—that Gil Green made a report upon the fight of youth under the American Youth Congress; and that a man named Charles Krumbein made his report upon the American working class. That is true, isn't it?

A. According to this account, yes, sir; it is not my own recollection.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And isn't it true that on Thursday there was a discussion of the reports of all the various committees, the discussion taken part in by miners, steel workers, Negro sharecroppers from the South and farmers from the Middle West?

A. I don't know, sir.

Q. That was the engagement of Thursday. And was Friday a day also devoted to full discussion?

A. I don't know that of my own recollection.

Q. It appears that way in your paper, doesn't it?

A. It said—I think I recall it saying that Friday was devoted to full discussion. That is the phrase. I don't recall the Thursday being mentioned here.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I don't recall Thursday being mentioned here.

Q. Yes, if you look about an inch [3449] above——

A. Pardon?

Q. If you look about an inch above the word "Friday," you will find a discussion of Thursday in the sentence beginning, "A report of Charles Krumbein . . ." the second sentence in that paragraph. You will find the engagement of Thursday.

A. Yes, I see the reference.

Q. Yes. You can see that it is there, as I suggest? A. It is there, yes.

Q. Yes. Now, all of those events, Wednesday, June the 24th, Thursday, June the 25th, and Friday, June the 26th, are reported as events which already took place? A. They are.

Q. Yes. Then having only two days left, Saturday left, Saturday, June the 27th, and Sunday, the

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

28th, why, then, the article turns to the prospective or future tense, doesn't it?

A. Yes, it talks about the highlights of the——

Q. Yes. And it says that then all events up to Friday having been concluded, it says the highlight of the Saturday session was to be the report by Robert Miner on the fight for peace, and that the final session of the Ninth Convention on Sunday was to be held at Madison Square Garden and that on that day a new National Committee of the party was to be democratically elected?

A. That is what this says. [3450]

Q. Yes. And as you say, there would have been no reason to distort the chronology of events in the paper, would there?

A. I don't believe I sent that account in. I don't—in other words, I don't assume responsibility for the writing of that story.

Q. You were the editor of that paper at that time?

A. Yes, but not functioning in that capacity at that time.

Q. And you were present at the convention?

A. As a delegate, not as an editor of the paper.

Mr. MacInnis: On that basis, if the Court please, we ask leave to introduce both of the articles to which reference has just now been made to the witness, and I mean by that, the article of June 25th in reference to the national convention of the Communist Party in the paper of which this man was the editor, the Western Worker, and the article of June 29th, 1936, which has just now been referred to. And with your Honor's permission, we would like to bring in a photostatic copy of those two articles and allow those to remain in evidence.

Mr. Donohue: I object, of course, if your Honor pleases, upon the same well recognized theory, that you might just as well try to prove that A murdered B because the C newspaper published the statement that he did. In my experience I have only known of one instance in which a newspaper was admitted by a court in evidence, and the limited purpose for which the newspaper was admitted in evidence was to prove that a certain fact was [3451] publicly known. Now, for the purpose of attempting to prove the agenda of the Communist Party convention in 1936, obviously a newspaper account, one in prospect and one in retrospect, carried by the Western Worker here in California is not evidence. And I think I should invite your Honor's attention to the fact, the basis of the original objection of the first question asked by Mr. MacInnis of the witness, Mr. Ross, with respect to this paper; because, while the usual rules of procedure are to first ask a witness whether or not he has an independent recollection as to a series of events, and then should he say he has not, to hand him just such a paper and ask him, "Having read it and having refreshed your recollection, are you now able to state, with a refreshed recollection, as to the series of events?" On that purpose, or for that purpose, I assume these questions were being asked. But as I stated to your Honor at the outset, the purpose of Mr. MacInnis, as is now demonstrated, was an attempt to get into evidence by asking questions which he has apparently copied from this newspaper of the witness, a document which is neither identified nor at that time offered in evidence. If he had made his offer in evidence before he asked the series of questions, we would simply object to it, but now I think we should not only object, but ask your Honor to strike from the record every question and every response thereto with respect to the subject matter of these two newspaper accounts, on the ground that they were not offered to the [3452] witness for the purpose of refreshing the witness' recollection, but were offered for the obvious and patent purpose of introducing in evidence before this Court and jury document neither identified nor properly introduced in evidence, in addition to which I now object to their introduction in evidence.

Mr. MacInnis: I confess, your Honor, that I cannot follow the reasoning of the prosecutor in this objection. The questions were put to the witness in the first instance to see if his memory would be refreshed. But that being done, those questions having been asked, there is now an additional purpose. This is not merely a newspaper: according to this witness, he says it is the official organ of the Communist Party as of that time on the West Coast. It appears without any contradiction of the witness on the stand, although this was not mentioned by the prosecutor in the argument upon the legal point to your Honor, was the editor of the paper. His name was on the masthead of the paper as the editor of the paper. The editor of the paper himself is on the stand. He is being cross-examined. And he is being shown editorial material appearing in a paper under his direction and control. Now, I can't think of anything more direct to support the admission into evidence of those particular articles.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, the witness has said that he went to the convention in New York as a delegate, not as a newspaper man. He has said that he has not, or was not, [3453] the author of either one of those two articles. Had he been the author, or had these articles contained statements which tended to contradict any statement he may have made on the witness stand, I would now offer objection to their admission. On that theory, and on the other theory which I suggested to your Honor alone, would they be admissible. And again, I resume my objection to their admission in evidence.

The Court: You may produce photostatic copies and have them marked for identification at this stage of the proceedings only for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. Shall we take the recess, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

The Clerk: Those exhibits your Honor, may they be marked Defendant's A——

The Court: Photostatic copies to be offered in lieu of the newspaper accounts and to be marked for identification only next in order.

The Clerk: Yes, your Honor. May they be marked Defendant's A-1 for identification?

(Whereupon newspaper accounts, photostats of which are to be substituted, were marked Defendant's Exhibit A-1 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: Would your Honor remain for just half a moment after the jury is excused, so I may ask your Honor a [3454] question?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. McMillan: Your Honor is about to adjourn?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. McMillan: I wanted to be excused, if I may, this afternoon.

The Court: Yes, certainly.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the noon recess and resume at 2:00 o'clock. And may I again admonish you, as I have in the past, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion thereon until the matter is finally submitted to you. I again admonish you not to consult the newspaper articles bearing upon this trial; I mean, newspaper articles current and published in connection with the trial of this case, and to refrain from listening to radio accounts. I have given you that admonition from time to time, without recurrent notice to you, but I want you to realize that the emphasis that I place upon that instruction is not greater nor less than the instruction I give you from day to day, the routine instruction. I know that you will abide by my wishes. You may retire.

(Whereupon the jury retired from the courtroom.)

(The following occurred outside the presence of the jury:)

The Court: There is a matter you have, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: I haven't. [3455]

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, in order that we may——

The Court: Pardon me. Would you close the door, please?

(Door to the courtroom closed.)

Mr. Donohue: In order that we may not be put in a position where we may have to ask for delay, and that we may be ready with another witness when the cross-examination of this witness is concluded, I wonder if your Honor might inquire of counsel about how much longer they expect to have this witness on cross-examination.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I am in this position: I have some further questions of this witness. I am expecting some material from the East Coast, and if that has not arrived, I might be in the position of having to ask your Honor to have the witness return Monday for the conclusion of his cross-examination. Now, if the material is in my hands by 2:00 o'clock, I would be some considerable time with the witness. If not, I might be only half an hour with the witness, at this time.

Now, I would like, your Honor, to ask a reciprocal question of the prosecution in this case, solely on the matters of time, so that we may be able to prepare ourselves for the presentation of evidence in the case We would like to inquire how many more government witnesses we may expect upon the stand.

Mr. Donohue: I am afraid I am not able to answer that question at the moment, if your Honor pleases. It is a little different question than the question I just asked. I have a [3456] number of witnesses who are available. I have not yet determined how many of that number I shall actually call. When I am in that position to make that statement, I shall make it to your Honor, and your Honor may then determine, in his own judgment, whether that information should be imparted to the counsel.

The Court: All right; we will resume at 2:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon a recess was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [3457]

Afternoon Session, 2:00 P.M.

The Clerk: United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lawrence Ross, heretofore sworn.

LAWRENCE S. ROSS

resumed.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Ross, while you were a member of the Communist Party and a paid functionary here in San Francisco, did you know a member of the Communist Party named Henry Schrimpf?

A. Slightly.

Q. In what periods of time did you know him?

A. Approximately the same period of time in which I knew Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt.

Q. In other words, you knew Henry Schrimpf when you came here in 1935?

A. I had seen him in 1934 and made his acquaintance early in 1935, yes.

Q. And you knew him to be a member of the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew him through '35, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And through '36? [3458] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And through '37, that is, until you left San Francisco?

A. Until I left San Francisco, yes.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And he was a member along with other people known to you of the Communist Party during this time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Ross, you told the Court and jury under oath on your direct examination that you were born in Bell County, Kentucky, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what town in that county were you born?

A. Not far from Middlesboro.

Q. Not far from Middlesboro?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say that you went to the University of Kentucky? A. Two years.

Q. And those years were what?

A. '22 and '23, I believe.

Q. Where is the University of Kentucky?

A. Lexington.

Q. And under what name did you go to that school? A. The same name, sir.

Q. Lawrence Sedon Ross. And you are quite sure you went to that school?

A. Yes, sir. [3459]

Q. Can you remember anybody in your class at that school? A. I'm afraid not.

Q. Can you remember one person who was a college classmate of yours at that school?

A. No, sir; I took special courses and——

Q. Yes. You didn't go there at all, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you? Where did you go to high school, Mr. Ross? A. Middlesboro.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You didn't go to Morris High School in New York? A. No, sir.

Q. Never? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever use the name Robbins?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or Robinson? A. No, sir.

Q. Or Ballard? A. No, sir.

Q. Pardon me. You hestitated a little bit before answering the question about the name Ballard. Was there some name similar to that that you used?

A. No, sir.

Q. You are positive and you affirm now that you went to the University of Kentucky in the years that you have mentioned [3460] under the name of Lawrence Sedon Ross? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, coming back to the matter that we were discussing this morning when we had the noon recess, we were talking about this national convention of the Communist Party. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Held in New York City in 1936. You told us, I think, that you had a very vivid memory to the effect that when the election of the Central or National Committee of the Communist Party was had, those participating left the general hall of the Manhattan Opera House and went somewhere else?

A. No, sir.

Q. What did you say?

A. The last session of the convention was held at the Madison Square Garden, I believe.

Q. I am speaking now of the election of the

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross:)

Central or National Committee of the Communist Party.

A. No, sir, I believe the election of the Central or National Committee was held in the convention hall.

Q. At the Manhattan Opera House?

A. That is the best of my recollection, yes.

Q. Your best memory, which I suppose is fairly clear, is that that particular session took place at the Manhattan Opera House itself?

A. Yes, sir. [3461]

Q. Did you sit at the convention with the so-called members of the California delegation?

A. Yes, sir, to the best of my recollection I did.

Q. Did you sit in somewhat of a group?

A. We sat grouped around a round table, I think, and there was more than one table for the delegation, as I recall it.

Q. There were about 15 people, you say?

A. Possibly 12, 10; possibly a little more; I don't recall the exact number.

Q. Representing the California delegation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were a member of that delegation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say that Anita Whitney was a member? A. I believe so.

Q. Schneidermann was a member?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who else?

A. I recollect Dave Saunders, John Leech—

Q. And you say John Schomaker may or may not have been a member of that delegation?

A. I don't know; I just don't know. He may have been; he may not have been.

Q. All of the delegates appearing from California were known to you at that time? [3462]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And naturally you saw Harry Bridges during the course of that convention? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't see him? A. No, sir.

Q. Not at any time?

A. Not during that convention, I don't believe I did. I think if I had I would have recalled it.

Q. You were present at the election of the National or Central Committee, were you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't see Harry Bridges then?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Ross, have you been advised that two witnesses who appeared here before at the instance of the Government, a Mr. Manning Johnson and a Mr. Paul Crouch, placed Harry Bridges there at a date when public records showed that Bridges was in Stockton, California?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, to the question. It calls for a conclusion of fact which is not before this jury.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Have you been asked to change your testimony? [3463]

A. Do you mind starting again?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. In order to benefit Manning Johnson and Paul Crouch?

A. I will have to ask you to repeat that. Someone coughed and I didn't get the first part of your question.

Q. Have you been asked to change your testimony because of the testimony of Johnson and Crouch? A. Oh, no, sir.

Q. Didn't you testify before the Grand Jury in this case that you saw Harry Bridges at the 1936 convention? A. I did not.

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, because that is a statement which is, in the first place, untrue; in the second place, that is a statement which Mr. MacInnis would like the jury to believe is true, and it is an improper question.

The Court: Sustained. [3464]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): How about your written statement that you made to Mr. Barber of the Immigration Service? Didn't you tell him that you saw Harry Bridges at the 1936 convention?

A. I don't see how I could have, Mr. MacInnis. I don't recall having seen Mr. Bridges at that convention at all.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, may it please the Court, in view of the whole of this man's testimony, I want to make a formal request at this time that the minutes or transcript of the grand jury testimony of this witness be made available to the defense for his further cross-examination; and I want to add to that request a further request, that your Honor instruct the prosecution forces to provide us with a written statement that this man made to the Government. I think that there could be no situation more classical in support of the exercise of the Court's discretion upon those two features of the case.

Mr. Donohue: If it pleases your Honor, of course there is no basis for this question. It is another one of Mr. MacInnis' blind fishing expeditions. But in the light of the fact that he has made this statement, I now say to your Honor that I ask your Honor personally to permit me to give to your Honor personally the transcript of the testimony of this witness before the grand jury, for the purpose of showing your Honor that he made no such statement before the grand jury and for the further purpose of convincing your Honor that this is an improper [3465] question. And I shall send for that transcript forthwith.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I think it could be provided probably in a matter of seconds.

Mr. Donohue: I hope it can.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, it would appear to me that of the instances in our federal procedure wherein the secrecy of the grand jury in a matter of this kind is involved, and that of the transcript may be set aside, this is peculiarly set forth in this testimony.

The Court: I cannot agree with you, Mr. MacInnis. The motions, and each of them, are denied; first, with respect to the production of the transcript of the grand jury proceedings affecting the testimony of this witness, and secondly, the production of the statement or statements he may have given to the prosecution staff in advance of trial. There is no basis for the request or either of the requests made. Accordingly, they are and each of them is denied.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. MacInnis: I wonder if we may reserve the right to renew that motion with citation of authority?

The Court: You may, yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Because we would like to do that.

The Court: That is without prejudice to a renewal thereof.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, if the orders of your Honor may be without prejudice so we can take those steps.

The Court: Very well. You may renew the motions. [3466]

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Now, in respect of the further cross-examination of this witness, I have, as I indicated to your Honor this morning, some anticipated material. I cannot say what its length will be. I am sure I will have it by Monday morning. If Your Honor would order this witness held over, we would appreciate it.

Mr. Donohue: On that question, if your Honor pleases, this witness has stated that he came here by automobile with his wife and family. He has stated that he is the editor of a trade journal. He has been here available to the defense now for three days. The per diem which our government allows witnesses will not maintain himself and his family. His children have to return to school. He has to go back to his work. And I most respectfully say to your Honor that on other occasions counsel for the defense have asked that witnesses be held over until they get from some far distant place some possible information which is pertinent, and it never seems to be. Now, I thoroughly agree with your Honor that witnesses should be subjected to a full and complete cross-examination, and as your Honor indicated this morning, that is a privilege which you have allowed to the defense and one which your Honor stated would be permitted to us at the proper time. In the light of that fact, and not attempting to be obstinate or stubborn about it, but in appreciation of the fact that even under the California code, a [3467] witness is entitled to his discharge when reasonable opportunity has been afforded to examine him, and yet at the same time not to preclude any right which the defense may have to examine this witness further on some particular subject, I ask your Honor in the absence of the jury to ask Mr. MacInnis to state to your Honor exactly what he expects to prove on the material which he hopes he may get: And if your Honor in his sound judgment then feels that it is pertinent, proper cross-examination, at whatever sacrifice—and it will be great—I am sure the witness will remain. But otherwise, I don't think that a witness under the circumstances he is here should be asked to remain here from now until Monday morning on a statement of Mr. MacInnis that he hopes to get some material from some far distant place without your Honor knowing or without counsel for the Government knowing what he expects to prove, if anything, by that material.

The Court: We might take that up at the recess and find out.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to say this:——

The Court: I might surmise or conjecture as to one phase which you possibly have in mind, which I will not mention now; but we will take it up at the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, however, the remarks about expense to the Government and inconvenience to the witness have come in a particularly bad light from Mr. Donohue. Let's——

The Court: Well, we may pass it at the moment.

Mr. MacInnis: That man was brought out by plane in November and returned by plane.

The Court: He is driving, as I understand.

Mr. MacInnis: He was out by plane before.

The Court: You have your family with you?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Your children?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: When do they return to school?

The Witness: Supposed to be back Monday.

The Court: This next Monday?

The Witness: No, they were supposed to have been back by the day after New Year's, but we left and gave notice to the school authorities that they would be back on Monday morning.

The Court: And they are in the grammar grades now?

The Witness: One in junior high and the other grammar.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, it would appear to me in reference to the school engagements of the children of this witness, that the witness came here deliberately upon the 31st of December, and he could scarcely have expected to have his children back in school two days later, since we didn't convene until the 3rd.

The Witness: No, sir, they were expected back in school next Monday. I got that extension from the school authorities. [3469]

The Court: Next Monday?

The Witness: Yes, I expected to be out of here by Wednesday Then there is the pressure of my job, a special edition coming up. It is an annual forecast edition, which we are way behind on. It would be terribly inconvenient to stay over until Monday, almost would demand a suspension of the publication. But it would amount to a monetary loss for the paper if that edition didn't come out on time.

The Court: And this matter of a special edition goes under your control?

The Witness: Yes, sir, under my direction.

The Court: Have you written editorial comment and so forth?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Witness: I have written some, but a lot of it is gathered by contributions from other people, and it is my job to compile it, edit it, place it in the proper place in the paper. And the paper, incidentally, has already committed itself to a publication date—and advertising material, and has solicited advertising matter on the strength of that publication date.

Mr. MacInnis: Why, Judge, I know that your Honor has to exercise discretion in this matter.

The Court: Well, it is a question of balancing all of the conveniences pro and con. It is a matter that involves perhaps a little more information than I have at hand. I will take it up at the recess time, however, with counsel on both sides. Are there any other matters that you would like to point [3470] out to the Court concerning your particular situation? How long does it take to drive?

The Witness: I can't drive day and night, because of the family, couldn't do it anyway. I expect it would take me five driving days on the basis of driving, oh, about between four and five hundred miles a day. I think the driving distance is approximately 2200 miles.

The Court: Does your wife drive a car?

The Witness: Not on the road very well, sir. She does some city driving.

The Court: I thought you might as a matter of expediency have her drive back and you stay here.

The Witness: No, sir, I couldn't ask her to do that. I might never see her again.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, he testified, of course, that he brought his family here on kind of a holiday and I just cannot see that the exigencies of which he now speaks should override the interests of developing all of the facts of the case. Now, I don't know what I could say because——

The Court: Perhaps you have some information here that may be—Pardon me just a moment.

(Telegram handed to Mr. MacInnis by Mr. Hallinan.)

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, your Honor. I would be glad to show your Honor what I have.

(Telegram handed to Court through [3471] Clerk.)

Mr. MacInnis: I might say this, your Honor.

The Court: Well, are there any other matters?

Mr. MacInnis: Additional from this?

The Court: Independent from that.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. I might say to your Honor without mentioning, of course, the contents of this telegram, that just as the passage of the night developed some matters that were brought out this morning, I anticipate that the passage of another day will bring out further things of relevancy to the case. And I say that without commenting upon what was brought out this morning.

The Court: Well, let me take it up at recess, counsel, with counsel on both sides, in the light of these matters, and I will attempt to exercise a sound discretion in the matter.

The Witness: May I say one more thing?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: Yes, sir.

The Witness: I spoke to my employer in Memphis on the telephone Wednesday night. I told him then I had been on the stand for that day and probably would be off the next day. That was yesterday. He said, "Take care of yourself. We need you here very badly. I am having to send out wires in order to get some material in that only you can get. I doubt if I can get it. And please start back as soon as you can, we need you here very badly."

The Court: Yes. Could you do this? Could you, as a [3472] matter of a request coming from the Court, return to your place of business with your family and then return here again for further cross-examination at a later date?

The Witness: Well, that would be very difficult, for this reason, that beginning with this month, January, we have a series of special convention numbers. This month we have an annual forecast edition which is a rather bulky edition, which we get out every January. That is the edition I am referring to now. Then early in February we start a series of special convention numbers dealing with various segments of the trade, the cotton trade and industry. And from now until, I should say, June or May 30th, I think is the last one, these are published periodically. They require my presence there.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, you will recall with me that when this witness testified upon the subject of this coming year to appear as a witness, he said affirmatively that he had the blessing of his employer, and I am just as dubious of the statements which he now makes to your Honor as I am of some of the other matters that have already passed in the record.

The Witness: A telephone call to my employer will settle your doubt, Mr. MacInnis.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, may I ask you, have you another witness available?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Within five or ten minutes? [3473]

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Well, I suggest we take a short recess in the light of this situation. The jurors may be excused. We may have our next witness in readiness?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, sir.

The Court: And if you will proceed to chambers, I will discuss this matter in the light of the question.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take a short recess, awaiting the next witness, and may I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion thereon until it is submitted to you.

(Whereupon the jurors retired from the courtroom in recess, and the following occurred in chambers, outside the presence of the [3474] jury:)

(The following proceedings were had in chambers out of the presence of the jury:)

The Court: We have here a situation—I am only thinking out loud on the thing; I haven't committed myself to any policy—here is a case wherein the witnesses have not been disclosed to the prosecution in advance, and they have had to meet the conditions confronting them in the emergencies of the examination in the light of necessities——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Your Honor means "defense."

The Court: Defense, rather. I have had a cold in my head and I am pretty well stopped up.

Mr. MacInnis: Me, too.

The Court: Maybe I am not articulating as well as I should. I do not know when the identity of these witnesses was disclosed to the defense; it may have been a week; it may have been two weeks in advance of trial, it may have been a day in advance. At least it wasn't an extended period of time. Now, placing myself in the same position as defense counsel for the moment, translating my own personality off the bench into their position, I am familiar with the burdens that are cast upon men engaged in defending a cause when it covers the sweep of the years as this case has. At the same time there has to be some limitation on cross-examination. There has to be some limitation in balancing conveniences. Manning Johnson I kept here a period of time that might be regarded as inordinate, but [3475] the circumstances here, I believe, full well justified my detention of him. Similarly with Crouch.

The telegram shown to me by Mr. MacInnis, without disclosing the contents, would seem to justify this Court in granting the request. True enough, we have had telegrams in the past that sort of bounced back on the Court, at least to the extent that I placed credence in the telegram. There is a telegram wherein representation was made to the lawyer, and apparently based upon a communication theretofore sent by the lawyer to a destination undisclosed by the Court, I think that would justify—the contents of the telegram would justify a reasonable continuance for the examination of this witness. My thought was to have the jurors return tomorrow, if possible, and get this man under way. Have you any thought, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: That is a problem only your Honor can wrestle with. I said I don't want to preclude counsel from every opportunity of cross-examination, and if, as I said to your Honor, the purpose which they have in mind in holding the witness is to establish something which is important, which tends to impeach or contradict the testimony of this witness, then I am in no position, of course, to urge your Honor——

The Court: I can only say that prima facie, from the context of the telegram, that there may well be—I don't know what may eventuate, nor am I predicting, nor can counsel predict, but I would say from its contents that there may be [3476] matter affecting this man's credibility.

Mr. Donohue: We had a long time before to get the record in the Eisler case, which so far as I can——

The Court: What have you to say, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: I have this to say. The information which was displayed to your Honor in the telegram was information which I received over the telephone this morning, so that the telegram was sent out here, I suppose, as promptly as possible. Now we are making——

Mr. Donohue: This witness has been here since Wednesday.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me.

Mr. Donohue: This witness has been on the stand three days.

Mr. MacInnis: We are making the most prompt arrangement possible to follow through on the information. That isn't the only item of information.

Mr. Donohue: You just said a few minutes ago that every day brings some new matter. Maybe tomorrow may bring some new matter.

Mr. MacInnis: Who knows?

Mr. Donohue: Obviously we can't ask a witness to stay here in the hope that tomorrow may bring some opportunity to cross-examine which isn't in existence today.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to say this, your Honor——

Mr. Donohue: Maybe we can stipulate to what they are talking about; I don't know. [3477]

The Court: This is true—I am not going to discuss the matter, because it was submitted to me in confidence.

Mr. Donohue: I understand. But I must say this is the first time in my experience I ever saw counsel unwilling even to make an offer of proof, which is generally made outside the presence of the jury, frequently in writing, but always in the presence of counsel on both sides.

The Court: I am not going to try to solve or reconcile the differences existing between you.

Mr. Donohue: I know you aren't.

The Court: It is something that transcends my obligation as a judge. I have enough difficulty trying to try this case.

Mr. MacInnis: May I say this, your Honor: Your Honor, as you pointed out, has exercised latitude in the use of discretion in granting our request that certain witnesses stay over, and of course we concur with your Honor that those were proper instances.

Now, the Government rather zealously, and certainly stubbornly, is urging that the witness now on the stand at 2:30 p.m. on a Friday afternoon should not be forced to remain here until Monday.

Mr. Donohue: You have another hour and a half to cross-examine him.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you please——

Mr. Donohue: I am sorry. [3478]

Mr. MacInnis: Now, when we look upon the past history of the witnesses in this case—and I say this not with any intent to use inflammatory words—Manning Johnson was brought here, I think, if my memory upon the evidence is correct, on Sunday the 13th day of November of this year, and he was held here for several weeks before the trial. Other witnesses have been held here for varied periods of time.

I am informed from matters of semi-public record that your Honor's holding Manning Johnson in this jurisdiction did not operate either to his detriment or to the detriment of the Government, because I am informed that as of yesterday he was testifying on behalf of the Government in an immigration case in Los Angeles. So I assume that no prejudice could result there.

Now, here we have a man on the stand who is in a little different position than Manning Johnson, but probably has uncovered graver defects to my mind in the facade of the prosecution's case for this reason: He has testified under oath to certain affirmative facts, and the immediate cross-examination upon those facts brings out that other and further matters were, to say the least, concealed and not told to the Court and jury.

I don't know who Lawrence Ross may be, and I say that advisedly, because from the information in my possession——

The Court: Pardon me, Mr. MacInnis, I want to interrupt [3479] you. Are you willing to concede Mr. Donohue's request to the extent of making a cursory or general offer of the subject matter of that which you intend to prove?

Mr. Donohue: We may be willing to stipulate it, if your Honor please.

The Court: I of course cannot guide defense counsel in the present view of the case or in the long view of the trial procedure, technical as this case is.

Mr. MacInnis: If your Honor wants me to, I would.

The Court: I think this: I told you I am willing to grant a reasonable time allotted to you. I am trying to translate myself into a position where I am situated in your role here to the extent that I want to be fair. Now, if Mr. Ross has placed himself in a position of being impeached or discredited upon material or immaterial matters, that is Mr. Ross' problem. He has presented himself as a witness, and I shall grant every reasonable oportunity to the defense to provide themselves the ammunition of war. Having that in mind, that I will grant it, I think you might well point out to counsel generally what you have in mind. That may be the subject matter of a stipulation, I don't know.

Mr. MacInnis: Additional to the matter I showed your Honor, there are other matters I think which may bear even upon the identity of the man who is on the stand, matters of which I am not yet in full possession. [3480]

Secondly, I have information, informal information, that I haven't had time to confer upon entirely, which I received only this morning, that this man has testified upon either one or two occasions before one of the traveling Congressional committees on Un-American Activities.

Mr. Donohue: You could have found that out Wednesday.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to examine, if I can, any transcript of his testimony. Matters like that would seem to be very important.

I also have a series of materials which were mailed to me, airmailed last night, I believe, from New York City upon the background of this man, containing newspaper accounts of his past, among other things. I don't mean by that I am going to try to put newspaper accounts into evidence nakedly, but the information I obtain out of reading those semi-public disclosures will abet the matter which I showed your Honor.

The Court: When you speak of his identity, do you mean to say—I will withdraw that. Strike it.

Mr. MacInnis: I know what you were going to say. I do mean that.

Mr. Donohue: Everything he has said so far in this matter, except the documents, the contents of which we don't know, indicate that he simply wants time to go fishing, if he said——

Mr. MacInnis: If I do, your Honor, that isn't bad.

Mr. Donohue: He isn't entitled to it, and ought not to [3481] interrupt the normal, ordinary processes of a trial for that purpose. If he has some definite objective, some valid reason for believing that if he were allowed time, he would impeach this witness, and would designate the point and tell us whether the point was, we wouldn't be in a position to say to your Honor not to keep him here.

The Court: I am disposed, Mr. Donohue—tomorrow is Saturday. I can't ask this jury to come in Saturday morning——

Mr. Donohue: Probably not, your Honor.

The Court: I have a slight cold that isn't bothering me too much. Counsel, I think, probably have colds also at this time of the year.

Mr. Donohue: I doubt very much if your Honor ought to permit the case to go ahead with the next witness, interrupting the regular course of the trial. I think we ought to finish with one witness before we start another. Mr. MacInnis cannot complain that he does not know who the next witness is, because the witness' name has appeared in the newspapers for the last two or three days. We just don't think we ought to stop with Ross and start with someone else and come back to Ross again.

The Court: All right; I will have the witness Ross then stand over until Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock for further cross-examination on condition that you dispose of and dispense with him on Monday.

Mr. MacInnis: I will do my best, your [3482] Honor.

The Court: All right; that will be the order. That will give you the entire time over the weekend to clarify whatever matters need clarification.

Will you advise Mr. Ross accordingly, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: That he can definitely, under my order, expect to leave here Monday evening.

(Recess.) [3482-A]

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, during the brief recess period I have had the benefit of a conference with counsel on both sides, that is, counsel representing the Government and counsel representing the defendants. And in the light of the conference and statements made, the Court, in the exercise of a discretion which I hope is sound, has concluded that the witness on the stand, Mr. Ross, remain in attendance until Monday next. I have ordered counsel to complete his examination both as to the Government and as to the defendants and each of them not later than Monday at four o'clock, thus to permit the witness to return to his home and to his duties on the newspaper.

The problem presented is one of balancing conveniences, and I trust in balancing the same I have not prejudiced Mr. Ross in his business.

Mr. Donohue has indicated that they have an additional witness in attendance. The hour is late, at least it is close to three o'clock. Rather than start a new witness at this hour and then on Monday to allow Mr. Ross to resume the stand, I have decided to recess and adjourn until Monday at ten o'clock. The week has been a long one, and I think that a rest period may afford a revival of our energies.

Accordingly, I again instruct you not to discuss the case with any person and not to converse with any person or persons on any subject of the trial, and not to form or express an [3483] opinion until this matter is finally submitted to you. You may now retire. Monday morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken until Monday, January 9, 1950, at 10:00 [3483-A] a.m.)

Monday, January 9, 1950—10 o'Clock

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. Donohue: Pardon me, Mr. MacInnis, just a moment. If Your Honor pleases, on Friday at noon Mr. McMillan asked Your Honor to be excused. I ask Your Honor again this morning to excuse him further. Unfortunately, he is quite ill and we are uncertain at the moment as to when he may return. So for that reason, if Your Honor pleases, may I ask Your Honor to excuse him until such time as he may be able to again attend the session?

The Court: I regret that announcement very much. I was concerned with his condition Friday.

Mr. Donohue: He is quite ill, if Your Honor pleases.

And now, if Your Honor pleases, since the adjournment of court on Friday, I have conferred with the witness Lawrence Ross,——

Mr. MacInnis: Now pardon me, Your Honor. This witness is under cross-examination, and I don't propose that the matters which I have in mind be brought out in advance because we have a perfect right to show the untruths that this witness is telling by cross-examination and not to be forestalled by the prosecutor, who now perceives the direction of the questions.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, may I first hear from Mr. Donohue? [3484] I do not know what he has in mind.

Mr. MacInnis: I do, Your Honor.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: With respect to your contention that you are prepared to show untruths, the jury is admonished to disregard that statement. Let us proceed now, and may I hear from Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, Your Honor. As I was saying to Your Honor, since the adjournment of court on Friday last, I have conferred with the witness Lawrence Ross, quite contrary to my usual practice, with respect to a witness who is still under examination. My reason for so doing is to be found in the series of questions asked of the witness by cross-examining counsel, questions obviously purposed to show either that the witness Lawrence Ross is not the same Lawrence Ross who for some period of time was the editor of the Western Worker and a prominent active member of the Communist Party in San Francisco, or that be he the same Lawrence Ross, he was at some time during his lifetime known by some name other than that of Lawrence Ross. I feel it is my duty to call to the attention of this Court and jury the information which I have received since we last adjourned. However, rather than making the information available to the Court and jury by a statement of my own, I ask Your Honor at this time to permit the witness to make a statement now by way of correction and in explanation of certain testimony heretofore given by him—not with respect to any statement he [3485] has made in support of the allegations contained in the indictment, but only testimony he has given with respect to his name, his origin and his education. I think by every rule of law, if Your Honor pleases, a witness still on the stand is entitled to the right to make any explanation or change in his testimony which he feels proper, and on that basis I ask Your Honor that he be awarded, or afforded, that opportunity at this time. [3486]

Mr. MacInnis: May it please your Honor, the situation as I perceive it now, from the statement just made to you, is this: The witness now being exposed, the prosecutor has arranged that the witness will take the blame himself and not link the prosecution with the fabrication of his story.

The Court: One moment, Mr. MacInnis. We are dealing with extremely delicate situations here with respect to ascribing——

Mr. MacInnis: I am fully prepared with the information I have this morning.

The Court: Would you permit me, Mr. MacInnis, to make a statement?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. I am sorry.

The Court: I might say to you in examining the transcript of the other day I noticed in several particulars wherein I attempted to make a statement and I was interrupted either by you or by opposing counsel. I am not charging you about it, but I do, particularly in this instance, desire to be accorded the courtesy that is accorded any court of permitting me to make a statement.

Mr. MacInnis: I am sorry.

The Court: That is all right. There is no reflection on you.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. MacInnis: I was over-anxious.

The Court: These are very delicate matters apparently that we are approaching. I can only conjecture on that, by [3487] and as a result of Mr. Donohue's statement. By reason of the delicacy and by reason of a rule that is time-worn and traditional in these courts, and I think there is abundant authority on the proposition, a witness may at any stage of the proceeding, in the light of the testimony given theretofore, amend, clarify or change the same. Now, whether or not it comes at this stage or upon your cross-examination I do not know. I am not passing upon the credibility of this witness, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, nor am I assuming in the light of this statement to declare with respect to his credibility. That in the final analysis is yours. My purpose now is to determine in point of procedure when he should be permitted to make that statement or statements. Mr. Donohue, there is authority in this jurisdiction, in my recollection, because I have had these matters arise on a number of occasions (the decision has escaped my recollection) on this very proposition.

Mr. MacInnis: I would confess, your Honor, that you would have discretion to adopt any procedure. Your Honor would have discretion to permit the witness to make a statement, or your Honor would have the discretion to permit the cross-examination to continue. But what I was trying to point out to your Honor, and I do appreciate I did interrupt the Court——

Mr. MacInnis: I did not mean to do it in the fashion I adopted.

The Court: There is no reflection on you.

Mr. MacInnis: What I endeavored to point out to the Court was this: I was going to ask your Honor to compare in his mind the demeanor of the prosecutor in the statement he made today and the efforts made on Friday last to prevent the retention of this witness for further examination, and I was about to say that I have information showing that the prosecutor—and I mean specifically Mr. Barber and Mr. Donohue—knew or had full reason to know of the majority of these revelations on Friday last. I have such information, your Honor, and if this is an effort to abstract the position of the witness from the position of those who vouched for him, those who produced him in this court and said, "We are the United States Government, this is our witness, we depend upon his veracity in this case"—if that is their position I say, your Honor, it is a spurious position, not because I argue that that is so, but because of their own conduct as demonstrated in your presence on Friday last. Now, I will concede that whatever your Honor believes to be the proper procedure in this revelation that we are now to expect would be correct. Your Honor would have the discretion either to tell this witness to make a statement or to permit the cross-examination to continue.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, may I just briefly say [3489] that any inference that may be drawn from the statement made by Mr. MacInnis to the effect that the prosecution, and particularly myself, had any information on Friday concerning the subject which I have asked your Honor to permit the witness, Mr. Ross, to testify about this morning is a false statement. I give your Honor my assurance, and I am perfectly willing that I be sworn, when I say to your Honor that until I talked with Mr. Ross on Saturday morning I had not the slightest intimation of the substance of what Mr. Ross wants to say to your Honor this morning, and I pledge that to your Honor on my honor as a lawyer.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, we decline to accept this pledge. The trend that this case has taken makes it rather obvious that we would not wish to put ourselves in the position of accepting that statement, and we think that the counsel cannot make that representation to the Court at this time as to what he knew. I will be glad to demonstrate to your Honor the nature of the information I have had.

The Court: Without foreclosing the defense from cross-examining this witness upon the particulars that may be disclosed by Mr. Ross at the present time, I shall allow Mr. Ross to make a statement in the light of the former testimony given in this court. You may then cross-examine on any phase of the matter at hand. You may make the statement, Mr. Ross.

The Witness: Thank you. [3490]

The Court: As prefatory to the statement I should like you to state to this Court and to this jury whether or not the representation made by Mr. Donohue as to his meeting ~~with~~ you Saturday is correct or is not correct.

The Witness: That is correct, sir.

Q. (By the Court): Is it a fact that on Saturday these disclosures were first made to Mr. Donohue? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Thank you. Now you may proceed.

The Witness: Your Honor, this is not a rehearsed statement. I may have to pause to collect my thoughts a moment or two.

Mr. MacInnis: Will your Honor instruct the jury to disregard the ingenuous preamble that is now offered?

The Court: Well,——

The Witness: Both on direct and cross-examination I made several misstatements. Those misstatements refer to my origin, my education, my name, my father's occupation and name. First of all, I was not born in Kentucky. I was born in western Poland and came to this country I believe it was 1910, at the age of seven, in company with my mother, her sister, my brother. My father already was here at that time. I am a citizen. I think the technical term for it is a derivative citizen, based upon my father's naturalization papers, which I have asked Mr. Barber to check. I did not recall on Saturday, and do not of my own memory recall now, the date of that [3491] naturalization. I am informed, however, that it was sometime in 1915 and that both my father and I then became derivative citizens. I have never had any certificate of derivative citizenship, although I understand my brother has had for some years.

My education next. I never attended school in Kentucky. I attended grammar school in New York, high school in the Bronx, New York.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Pardon me. The name of the high school?

A. Morris High School in the Bronx, New York. I took a number of courses at Columbia University. The year of those courses, to the best of my recollection, is '23 or '24. I have only a hazy memory of the work I did there, but do recall one teacher I had in creative writing, a Miss Helen Hull, who was then a rather well known novelist. So much for the education part of it. [3492]

Now, as to the name. I am 46 years old. For approximately 30 years of those 46 I have used no name other than Lawrence Ross. I did not change my name, if it please Your Honor, because of a wish to hide any particular incident in my career——

Mr. MacInnis: I think, Your Honor,——

The Witness (Continuing): ——but I changed it——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Your Honor. I think that self-serving and gratuitous statements as to reasons can not form any part of this confession of the previous false testimony.

The Court: That objection is overruled.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Witness (Continuing): As a matter of fact, I didn't change my name at all. I Americanized it. The name originally was Rosenstein. I Americanized it to Ross at the time I was approximately 16, possibly 17 years old, and since that time have not been known under any other name. So that for 30 years of my 46 years of life—perhaps 29—I was known to everyone as Lawrence Ross. The reason for the change, of course, was an attempt at Americanization. That also was the reason for my adoption of Kentucky as my native state.

Now, as to my father. His name was, and still is, Rosenstein. He was perhaps—maybe still, although I don't know—he is probably up in years—a member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. When you were asked that question the other day, you [3493] laughed.

The Witness: I beg your pardon, sir?

Mr. MacInnis: When I asked that question——

The Court: May I ask you to permit the witness to make his full statement? You are permitted to cross-examine on any phase of the case or any other matters.

Mr. MacInnis: All right, Your Honor.

The Witness (Continuing): To my knowledge, he has never been in Kentucky. He was a clothing worker, I know.

I also state that these facts which I am now telling the Court have not ever been told to anyone else, either the prosecution in this case, government counsel, or any other person of my acquaintance, probably for the past 29 or 30 years that I can recall. The only persons who are in full knowledge of all the facts were the members of my immediate family and my first wife. I built a complete, new identity for myself, and that identity became me, and it is I. My reasons for not telling the government counsel or the Court and the misstatements made to government counsel were made to Mr. Barber when he saw me first in Memphis, the misstatements were made to the other government agents with whom I have since conferred, and were not cleared up until Saturday. The reason I did not state the entire truth to them, and the reason I withheld the entire truth from this Court, both upon direct and cross-examination, was twofold. Keeping in mind the fact that I had established an entirely new identity for myself, my first wish was to protect my present [3494] marriage. My wife does not know the facts and won't know the facts until they are published. Secondly, I wished to protect my standing in the community, the southern community. Those, I think, are the two reasons.

Now, when I went to bed Friday night, I had a problem before me. I knew I had lied to the Court, I had lied to the Government. I knew, and still know, of course, that every statement I have made upon this——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, pardon me. May it please the Court, this is hardly an answer——

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: He is entitled to make a full and complete disclosure.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

The Witness (Continuing): I knew, of course, and still assert that every statement I have made here with respect to my activities in the Communist Party here, with respect to my knowledge of Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt as members of the Communist Party, with respect to my activities as editor of the Western Worker, with respect to my activities at the 1936 convention of the Communist Party, with respect to those four specific meetings at which I recall seeing Mr. Bridges were true. Those I don't at all modify, and stand upon. The problem I was faced with, Your Honor and the Court, was a very serious one in my life, perhaps the most serious I have ever faced. I had two alternatives, as I say it, as I wrestled with myself in the [3495] wee small hours of the morning: Shall I still keep these facts from the Government and from the Court, brazen it out, stick to my lies in an effort to save my marriage and my standing in the community, or shall I purge myself once and for all, altogether, and place a clean breast of it? And this I have elected to do. It was to me a great decision, a very difficult decision. I believe, I am sure, I have made the correct decision. I asked for help in this decision, help of a higher judge than sits in this court, and I was struck by one proberb I read: "Commit thy works unto the Lord and he shall establish thy thoughts." I have done my best to do that. That is the statement.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall I proceed, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And you say, Mr. Ross, that when you went to bed on Friday night you were alone with your conscience?

The Court: Pardon me one moment, Mr. MacInnis. I notice that some members of the press are desirous of relieving themselves and preparing copy.

Mr. MacInnis: I appreciate that.

The Court: Accordingly they may be recessed now, certain members of the press.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall we wait, Your Honor?

The Court: Well, no; but I can't hear. You see, it is rather difficult for me.

Mr. MacInnis: I appreciate that, Your [3496] Honor.

The Court: It is difficult to hear you and to acquaint myself with all of the noises. Now again, I balance conveniences, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, I am not criticizing you a bit. I was perfectly willing to wait a few minutes, if Your Honor suggested that.

The Court: It is quite all right. Now you go ahead.

Mr. MacInnis: All right, Judge.

Q. Now, Mr. Ross, did you mean to imply to the Court and the jury that when you went to bed on Friday night you were alone with your conscience and you decided that you would expose yourself in this deception?

A. That was a statement, not an implication.

Q. And you came to that decision voluntarily?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Without anyone speaking to you about the contents of your previous testimony?

A. Correct.

Q. Mr. Ross, did you think that I did not know that you were the son of Bernard Rosenstein, who came from Poland in 1903?

A. You see, the reason for the wrestling with my conscience, Mr. MacInnis, is because I suspected you did know. In other words, when I came here to testify,——

Q. You answer the question.

A. May I please expand upon the answer, sir? When I came here [3497] to testify, I came here to testify upon certain events which occurred long, long, long after I adopted the name of Ross, changing it from Rosenstein. I was fully sure, I was certain in my own mind, that the questions to be asked would not go back to 1918 or '17 or '19. I was prepared to testify to the truth and the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so far as I could recall it, with respect to Harry Bridges. Now, when you asked those questions on Friday afternoon, that posed a problem to me. Here it was: What am I going to do with it, brazen it out or tell the truth? That is your answer, sir.

Q. Well, let me ask you this, then, Mr. Ross:

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

When you importuned His Honor on last Friday afternoon to permit you to go home because the two children of your present marriage had to be back in school, and when you heard the government counsel insist that His Honor ought to allow you to go home, you knew then that these questions were being posed to you, didn't you?

A. I certainly strongly suspected it.

Q. And you were quite ready to go back to Memphis, Tennessee, leaving this jury deceived, weren't you?

A. No, sir; I was uncertain as to what I should do. I wrestled with the problem, and I found my answer.

Q. Well, now, let's go into your finding of the answer over the weekend. From the time we adjourned at about 35 minutes past 2:00 o'clock, maybe a few minutes after that, on last Friday, you have talked to more than one of these men who represent our [3498] Government in this case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Talked to Mr. Barber?

A. Between then and now? Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first talk to him?

A, I will put it at Saturday morning, possibly 10:00 o'clock, around 10:00. I didn't make my disclosure to Mr. Barber first, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. And when you left this courtroom, the room in which we now find ourselves, on Friday afternoon, were you then taken to some other room in this building, or did you go your way?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. The usual procedure was followed; I went to another room in this building and waited until the convenience of a government agent. We left together.

Q. How long did you wait here in this building?

A. I don't recall. Possibly 30 minutes 45, I am sure I don't know.

Q. Did you have any talk about the contents of the testimony that you had given?

A. No, sir, not a word.

Q. Well, with respect to your motives on this so called volunteer statement or disclosure, Mr. Ross, Mr. Barber told you, didn't he, that he had information, gotten around noon on Friday, that you had never attended any school in Middlesboro?

A. No, sir. [3499]

Q. Isn't that right?

A. That is not correct.

Q. Didn't Mr. Barber tell you that he had received a telegram from Mr. Lasseter, the principal of Middlesboro's high school, to the effect that the records in Middlesboro showed you hadn't attended any school, either high school or grammar school, in that area?

A. That was told me this morning at approximately—9:20 or 9:30.

Q. No one told you that until this morning?

A. Yes. And we made light of it because the name of the principal coincides with a name in the family.

Q. You made light of it?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Yes, because he already had known it from my disclosure to him on Saturday. It was no surprise to him.

Q. You mean that when you talked to Mr. Barber on Saturday that he hadn't known of the fact that you were not registered in any Middlesboro school? A. No, sir.

Q. You mean you don't mean that? Tell us, please, what you mean.

A. I mean that as far as I know, he did not know, because I certainly had not told him at that time.

Q. Now, what was the first conversation that you had with any agent of the federal government after you left here Friday afternoon? [3500]

A. Do I understand you to mean the first conversation relating to my testimony here or conversation about the weather or any other conversation? You mean relating to my testimony here? Is that what you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. Possibly 9:15, certainly between 9:00 and 9:30 on Saturday morning.

Q. No one spoke to you on Friday night?

A. No, sir.

Q. And so on Saturday morning, who were the participants in this conversation?

A. There were two of us; besides myself there was Mr. William Kaiser. He is the first one to whom I revealed the facts.

Q. And where did that revelation take place?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. In his room, as I recall it, of the hotel at which he is staying.

Q. What hotel is that?

A. The Marines Memorial Club.

Q. And you met him there, did you, by prearrangement? A. Yes.

Q. Or had you been there?

A. I had been there before. I had met them there by prearrangement there every day during my testimony here.

Q. Now, you told him these facts early Saturday morning?

A. That's correct, between 9:00 and 9:30. [3501]

Q. And then what did you and he do so far as interviewing any other persons might be concerned?

A. He made several telephone calls.

Q. To whom?

A. Mr. Barber, Mr. Donohue, I know; I don't recall whether he called Mr. Boyd. It was either the two of these or the three of these gentlemen he called. I took no particular notice of the conversation. I was very much immersed in my own thoughts at the time. But he said something to the effect that he had some very important news and would they get together right away.

Q. And did you get together with them?

A. I did.

Q. Where did that get-together take place?

A. When?

Q. Where did that get-together——

A. The same hotel, probably a half hour later. I should say around 10:00, possibly a little after 10:00.

Q. And the participants in that conversation were whom?

A. Mr. Barber, Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Donohue, Mr. Boyd. I'm trying to recall whether Mr. Paisley was there, and I can't do it. You see, I have talked to Mr. Paisley, either on that occasion or since then. But whether he was in the room at that moment I can't recall.

Q. You talked to him on Saturday also?

A. I think so. I rather think he was there. [3502]

Q. And how long did that conversation persist?

A. My estimation would be about 45 minutes, probably an hour.

Q. And you discussed, then, the fact that you had lied under oath about your origin?

A. I discussed all the mistatements, disclosed all the misstatements I had made and rectified them.

Q. Well, now, you gave some thought, I suppose, to the preparation of this statement that you made to His Honor and to the jury this morning?

A. Not as to the wording of it, only as to those points. I wanted to fix in my mind those points about which I had made misstatements in previous testimony.

Q. When you were thinking about making this statement, did you recall that you had told this jury under oath that you had stopped deceiving people years ago?

A. Yes, politically; that statement was made with reference to political deception.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. In other words, you had ceased political deception years ago, but you hadn't stopped general deception?

A. No, I have led that new identity for a long, long time, much greater than half my life. It became my real identity, Mr. MacInnis. I don't feel that I have practiced deception.

Q. You don't feel that that was a deception at all?

A. I feel like a misstatement here, or the misstatements here, based upon the reasons I gave, were not a wise course of action, [3503] but self-justification is so easy.

Q. And you knew, Mr. Ross, when you were asking to be excused from further attendance here on last Friday—you knew that your testimony was directed at the liberty of three men who were charged with crime in this court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And if His Honor allowed you to go, you would have gone your way, wouldn't you?

A. I am afraid so, but my testimony with reference to two of those three men was accurate in all respects. [3504]

Q. We will come to that, too. You say your father, Mr. Bernard Rosenstein, is a man probably advanced in years.

A. I should say he is possibly seventy, possibly in his early seventies.

Q. You have not seen him for some time, have you? A. No, sir.

Q. You abandoned your parents just as you abandoned the two children of your first marriage, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I do not want to interfere with this cross-examination, your Honor——

Mr. MacInnis: Don't.

Mr. Donohue: I have not, if your Honor please, but I think the suggestion in the question that this gentleman has abandoned his children or abandoned his father is a presumption of fact on the part of Mr. MacInnis which is improper.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Witness—for I do not know what other names you may have adopted in the course of your life—let me ask you if this is true: When your children, the two children of your first marriage, left California they were taken in and aided and cared for for a time by the parents whom you have renounced?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. Isn't it about time Mr. MacInnis cross-examined this witness about his [3505] testimony against these defendants and left his personal life alone?

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And the courses that you took after the two years which you spent at Morris High School were night courses in journalism at Columbia?

A. I believe they were night courses. I do not know whether they were called journalism. I recall the one course I took in creative writing. There were others, but I can't recall what they were.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Mr. Witness, when you were asked the question by me on Friday last as to whether you attended Morris High School in New York you replied "No," didn't you? A. I did.

Q. And when I asked you if your father was a needle worker or a man in that particular trade with the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, you laughed and said, "No," didn't you?

A. I don't recall the laugh, Mr. MacInnis. The answer was in the negative. If it was a laugh, it certainly was a sickly one.

Q. Yes, it was. A. I don't doubt it.

Q. Mr. Witness, when you were questioned about whether or not you ever attended the University of Kentucky and were forced to reply that you could not remember a single classmate at that [3506] school, you knew then that the investigation into your past would, if continued for a day, reveal the truth, didn't you?

A. I certainly strongly suspected it.

Q. That was your notivation when you told his Honor that you had to get back to your job in Memphis, Tennessee?

Q. That was your motivation when you told his others were the facts I stated to the Court.

Q. And that was the occasion when you asked his Honor to be released back to your job, and when the prosecutor strongly urged his Honor to comply with your request?

A. That should be a matter of record.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You recall it, don't you?

A. It makes sense. It sounds logical.

Q. After, Mr. Witness, having made this confession, which you say you had not composed before coming here, including the scriptural quotation at its end, you say that in all other particulars you have spoken the truth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you were placed first upon the witness stand by the man who was appointed to prosecute this case by our Government, you were asked by him the question, "When and where did you join the Communist Party?" and your reply was, "In Los Angeles in January of 1932 or February of 1932."

A. That is correct, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Was that the truth or was that false? [3507]

A. That was the truth, because before the joining in January, 1932, I had not been even a card-carrying member of the Communist Party for quite some time.

Q. So that was the truth. Then when cross-examination of you was undertaken by myself you were asked this question by me, "You joined the Communist Party in August of 1927 in New York, didn't you?" and your reply, after some hestitation, was, "I think I may have applied or signed an application card at that time, yes." Is that your testimony?

A. I think the record will show. I do not recall the words I used, Mr. Counsel.

Q. Was that true?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Is what true? Whether I made that statement?

Q. Yes.

A. I will have to refer to the testimony.

Q. Was that a true statement?

A. That I did make an application?

Q. That all you did was sign an application card in August of 1927.

A. Yes. You see, as I explained before, I didn't consider myself a Communist. I was not a card-carrying member of the Party. I wrote publicity for the Party in the election campaign. I covered a situation in Wilkes-Barre for the Daily Worker as a newspaperman. The thing had no grip on me; it had no hold on me. I did not believe its ideology. I didn't [3508] understand it. It was a lark. In 1932 when I joined the Communist Party I became a Communist.

Q. That previous occasion was the time when you had, to paraphrase your words, oozed out of the Communist Party? A. That sounds familiar.

Q. And then after being probed a little bit as to whether your activities in the Communist Party in 1927 and 1928 around New York and on the East Coast were Communist activities, you then said, "Yes, I was in the Communist Party for a year or more." Was that the truth? A. Yes.

Q. And was it the truth when you were asked to delineate for the jury the employment phases of your life by this prosecutor, your reply being, "Select newspaper endeavors after the year 1929." Was that the truth?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. No, I think it was before 1929. I am not certain of the dates. It was around that period, 1927, '28 or '29, or '26.

Q. What deception did you have in mind when you failed to inform the Court and jury as to your work in the employment of the Communist Party itself—not merely membership but employment in the years 1927 and 1928?

A. There was no attempt to deceive. That period is very unimportant. It was a job. It was an adventure. I am quite sure, although I can't say without looking at the statement—I am quite sure I did not inform Mr. Barber of that when he [3509] asked me questions in Memphis early last year.

Q. Mr. Witness, has it always been your point of view with reference to your Communist Party activities that you never really joined the Communist Party until 1932 in Los Angeles?

A. It has always been my point of view that I never became a convinced Communist, that is, a member of the Party who thought he knew what it was all about and agreed with its principles and policies, until after I joined the Party in 1932 in Los Angeles.

Q. And you never considered that you were a Communist continuously from 1927 right through the 30's until you removed yourself from the Communist Party?

A. I believe that when I rejoined the Communist Party in January, 1932, I may have tried to claim such continuous membership because of a reason of possibly pride in having been in it so much longer than I actually was continuously.

Q. You did not tell that to the Court and jury last week, did you?

A. No, sir, I wasn't asked. There was no occasion upon which to tell it.

Q. You told the Court and jury that almost immediately after you joined the Communist Party in January, 1932, you were employed by that organization and given a responsible job, didn't you?

A. My first employment, I thought, was for the International [3510] Labor Defense in writing propaganda leaflets, and then sometime thereafter—I do not know how soon, whether it was two months, three months or four months—I became a paid functionary in the Communist Party, director of agitation and propaganda—educational work—that is correct.

Q. Are you the same Lawrence Ross that testified in the month of December, 1934, before a branch of our national House of Representatives, one of the Un-American Activities committees?

A. Yes, sir, I testified—I do not know the year, but it was before I came to San Francisco, before the Kramer Sub-Committee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities that was in Los Angeles.

Q. That was called the McCormick-Dickstein Committee, wasn't it? A. I don't know.

Q. Were you administered an oath to give testimony in that proceeding?

A. I must have been.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And you understood that an oath was being administered to you at that time, didn't you?

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. And you gave testimony under oath before that sub-committee that you were a Communist, didn't you?

A. Yes, if the oath was administered I certainly did. [3511]

Q. Now, you were asked questions by the member of Congress who conducted that hearing, weren't you? A. I believe so.

Q. Or by the counsel of the congressional committee, whichever it was? A. I suppose so.

Q. And the questions began, as is often the case, with a question as to your origin? A. Right.

Q. You were asked, "Are you a native-born citizen, Mr. Ross?" and your answer, "Yes."

"Where were you born?"

"A. Kentucky."

Is that what you said?

A. If that is a true record, I do not dispute that I said it.

Q. Had you forgotten that you were born in Poland?

A. It meant nothing to me. I had established this new identity for so long, it meant nothing to me.

Q. Had you drawn a blind over that part of your life?

A. What part of my life, Mr. MacInnis?

Q. Your early days.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I suppose so. I think it was an automatic blind. There was no effort to draw it. It drew itself down.

Q. In other words, concerning that part of your life in which you were brought over from the country of Poland to the [3512] United States, an automatic blind within your memory had been drawn?

A. Let me tell you this: When I did come here, I believe I was six or seven years old. All the formative years of my life, all the years in which decided impressions were made, were made here, so that that origin never stayed with me very long.

Q. Do you remember whether you were asked these questions and gave these answers before the Congressional committee in 1934 under oath:

> "Q. In what capacity did you say that you acted for the Communist Party?
> "A. Secretary of the Communist Party in Los Angeles.
> "Q. How long have you been so acting?
> "A. As secretary for about six months.
> "Q. Were you a member of the Communist Party prior to that time?
> "A. Yes.
> "Q. For how long?
> "A. I have been a member of the Party since 1927."

A. As I said before, I tried to claim continuous membership because at that time I was convinced that to be a Communist was to be something upright, honorable and decent, and I tried to claim that continuous membership for that reason.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You lied under oath then? [3513]

A. I was a Communist at that time.

Q. And you did lie under oath?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The other day, Friday, which would have been, I guess, the 6th of January of this year, you told this jury that your reason for switching dates upon your membership in the Communist Party was that when you went in first it was just an adventure, and that is why you neglected to mention those early years, just an adventure that did not impress itself upon your mind. Isn't that what you told us Friday?

A. That is correct, and it still stands good.

Q. But in 1934, so many years nearer in point of time to these events, you answered without hesitation, "I have been a member of the Party since 1927."

A. That speaks for itself, for the reason explained by me before.

Q. That was the truth, wasn't it, that you had been a member of the Communist Party since 1927?

A. No, sir.

Q. In other words, the lie in that instance was a lie told not here in court but before the sub-committee of our Congress?

A. That is right. Mr. MacInnis, you no doubt have some form of information. You probably have reference to the Communist Party records. I am sure they will show I was not a continuous member since 1927. That can be checked most easily. [3514]

Q. We would be most delighted to find such records in this case. If we could get records of that kind, we would not have had to ask for a recess from Friday to Monday. Let me ask you this: You gave some testimony, Mr. Witness, about the purposes of the Communist Party and about a statement you had made in that paper called the Western Worker, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You gave some statements here as to whether or not you had been deceiving the readers of that paper; do your remember that?

A. I remember testimony with reference to my work on the Western Worker generally.

Q. Let me ask you if before the committee of Congress in 1934 you were asked these questions and gave these answers:

> "Q. Well, then, as an officer of the Communist Party may I ask you the purposes and objects of the Communist Party?"

And your answer:

> "Yes, the object of the Communist Party is to organize the working classes for a struggle to better living conditions, and also when the Communist Party has succeeded in winning the majority among the population in America, to establish the right of that majority to rule itself with a working class government.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

"Q. Do you advocate a change in the United States? [3515]

"A. I do.

"Q. And what changes do you advocate?

"A. I advocate that the government be a working class government, that the parties of the government be run by agents of the working class for the good of the working class.

"Q. Do you advocate bringing about these changes by the use of force, if necessary?

"A. Only if the organized minority opposes the will of the majority.

"Q. And do you feel that that condition exists at the present time?

"A. No, sir, it does not.

"Q. You do not then advocate at the present time the use of force or violence?

"A. No.

"Q. What steps does your organization advocate to accomplish its purpose then if you do not advocate the use of force?

"A. Dissension among the working classes. That is one thing. Another thing is organization of the working classes to struggle for better conditions. In the course of that struggle the facts are revealed that the forces of the present government apparatus are used in the interests of a minority of the population against the interests [3516] of the working classes. In other words, when the anti-working-class of the present government apparatus is revealed to a > majority of the population, they will either join the Communist Party or support it without joining it."

Was that your statement?

A. I think so; something along these lines.

Q. Were you telling the truth then or were you telling the truth here in this court?

A. I was not telling the truth then. I did not reveal the entire program, purpose, belief and philosophy of the Communist Party.

Q. You were lying under oath?

A. May I finish my answer, please? I regarded that committee as a hostile committee, hostile to the Communist Party.

Q. The committee members treated you as such?

A. They treated me with the utmost courtesy, and I think I was also courteous to them.

Q. They did not treat you like a hostile witness, did they?

A. No, sir, it was a matter of political opinion.

Q. They showed you every courtesy, didn't they?

A. Of course.

Q. They were not accusing you of any violation of the law, were they?

A. They couldn't have, so far as any crime is concerned. [3517]

Q. Pardon me?

A. I say, so far as any violation of law as to crime is concerned.

Q. You were not violating any law then?

A. I didn't think I was. I was certainly violating decencies.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: We might take the morning recess, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well, your Honor.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the morning recess. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [3518]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Witness, you knew that while excerpts from your testimony before a Congressional committee were being read to you in the last hour, that the chief prosecutor, Mr. Donohue, was reading along with me out of the same volume, did you not?

A. I saw him reach across the table for a volume. I drew the conclusion it was the same material; I didn't know for a fact.

Q. Well, now, did you ever discuss with Mr. Donohue the matter of your testimony in that particular hearing?

A. At the Kramer Subcommittee hearing?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I didn't discuss it with him.

Q. Did you discuss with him the reason for the failure to include those statements in the direct testimony that you and he offered the jury?

A. No, sir. The only reason I ever gave him for that was one made in the open courtroom here.

Q. Did you discuss with him the difference in your statements about the time you had been in the Communist Party? A. No, sir.

Q. I mean by that the statements he elicited from you under oath before this jury, and the statement that you had made before, under oath, in 1934?

A. No, I did not.

Q. You never discussed that with him? [3519]

A. No, I did not.

Q. Never at any time? A. No.

Q. Now, at the outset of questions put to you by me the other day, Thursday of last week, you were asked where you were living here in San Francisco, and you begged to be excused from answering that question. A. That's correct.

Q. You took the same position in 1934 when you were a Communist leader, and the McCormick-Dickstein Committee asked you questions about where you lived?

A. I probably did, for the reason that at that time the police of Los Angeles were engaged in a campaign of breaking up Communist meetings. I was afraid at that time of police action.

Q. Did you give these answers to these questions?

> By the Chairman: "Do I understand you to say you live in Pasadena?"
> Answer: "No, I referred to the case of a Communist sympathizer living there."
> Question: "What is your address?"
> Answer: "I would rather not give that, because of experience."

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Question: "It is a matter of public record, if I understand; you are running for office."

Answer: "It is a matter of public record, the place where [3520] I sleep two or three times a week, but not always."

Question: "Where are you registered from?"

Answer: "4371 West 10th Street. I do not sleep there every night."

Is that the answer you gave?

A. I assume so; I am not questioning it.

Q. What was that address on 10th Street in Los Angeles? Was that your home?

A. I am afraid I can't remember.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I can't recall that.

Q. Well, don't you remember if you had a home there or the address or not?

A. Well, I assume I did, but the address itself means nothing to me now—it is merely a collection of figures.

Q. Don't you remember the street in Los Angeles on which you lived? A. No, I don't.

Q. Where was the other place that you stayed on other nights in the week?

A. I don't know that, either.

Q. You don't know what street that was on either? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you discuss that with Mr. Donohue?

A. Certainly not. [3521]

Q. How about Mr. Kaiser? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Did you discuss that with him?

A. No, sir.

Q. Is Mr. Kaiser the man who calls for you in the mornings before coming to court?

A. I would say I call for him.

Q. You call for him. And do you come here to court together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Kaiser has revealed to you that he has a copy of the transcript in this case, given him daily, has he not?

A. Yes, sir, I asked him to see it.

Q. Now, coming back to this Saturday morning meeting that you say you had with the prosecutor, Mr. Donohue, Mr. Boyd, Mr. Barber and Mr. Kaiser, just tell us what the discussion was at that time.

A. I told them in effect the same things I revealed this morning in my statement to the Court.

Q. Didn't Mr. Barber tell you at that time that he had in his possession a telegram from the Registrar of the University of Kentucky showing that you had never attended that school?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't Mr. Barber tell you in the presence of Mr. Donohue and the others that at noon on Friday he had talked by telephone to the University of Kentucky and had found out that you had [3522] never gone to that school?

A. No, sir, he withheld that from me.

Q. How many conversations after that conversation on Saturday morning did you have with any of those men?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Did you mean conversations relating to this matter, to the matter of my testimony? Do you? There was another meeting at which Mr. Donohue, Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Paisley were present.

Q. Where was that?

A. That was at the Marines Memorial Club on Sunday, yesterday, approximately 5:00 o'clock.

Q. 5:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon?

A. That's correct.

Q. How long did that meeting persist?

A. 30 to 45 minutes, I would judge.

Q. And you didn't see them thereafter?

A. Yes, I saw——

Q. Before this morning?

A. No. I saw Mr. Kaiser this morning.

Q. How about last night? A. Pardon?

Q. Did you see any of those men last night?

A. I saw Mr. Kaiser last night, yes.

Q. Where was that?

A. That was at the office of the United States Appraisers Building downtown. [3523]

Q. You were there last night?

A. Pardon?

Q. You were down there last night?

A. I was down there last night.

Q. And whom did you see there, besides Mr. Kaiser? A. Just Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Just the two of you?

A. Just the two of us. He was in one room and I was in another.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. What were you doing down there?

A. I had asked Mr. Kaiser to let me see a copy of the transcript on all points affecting my testimony given here previously as to my origin, my education, my name.

Q. And he kept that transcript down at the Appraisers Building rather than in his hotel?

A. I saw it at the Appraisers Building, yes, sir.

Q. And no one was with you in that room, is that true?

A. Just myself. Mr. Kaiser was in another room.

Q. How about Saturday morning when this meeting terminated between you, Donohue, Boyd, Barber and Kaiser? Where did you go then?

A. I went to the room in the hotel and waited around. Mr. Kaiser was busy and had something to do.

Q. With whom did you have lunch?

A. That would require an effort of [3524] recollection.

Q. Yes, I know—two days have passed.

A. That's right, but lunches aren't important to me, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. You pull down a blind on your lunches, do you?

A. I don't think that calls for an answer. Let me think, though. I will give you the answer, to the best of my recollection. Saturday—Mr. Kaiser was there, I know.

Q. You had lunch with Mr. Kaiser?

A. Yes. I am trying to recall whether anyone else was with us at the time. I can't recall it. I believe it was with Mr. Kaiser alone, to the best of my recollection.

Q. Then you say you went to your room and waited for Mr. Kaiser in the afternoon?

A. Yes, that's right. That is Saturday, right, you are talking about?

Q. Yes. A. Yes. [3525]

Q. And you waited how long?

A. Between—I was a great deal alone with my thoughts and felt a lot better than I had. I know I enjoyed my lunch for the first time—several hours.

Q. You waited alone for several hours?

A. That is correct.

Q. Where did you see Mr. Kaiser after that?

A. I had supper with him and with one other person—I believe the name is Kidder, although I have never heard it pronounced to my satisfaction. It is either Kidder, Kinner, or something with a K.

Q. Where did you eat dinner with those men?

A. Bay City Grill.

Q. And then what did you do afterwards? Did you see those men?

A. I went back to the hotel and stayed there.

Q. Alone?

A. No, I was in the company of Mr. Kaiser, possibly Mr. Kidder, too. Mr. Kidder, yes.

Q. They went back to the hotel room with you, did they? A. That is correct.

Q. What discussion did you then have?

A. Nothing that I can recall of any pertinence.

Q. Did these conversations concern themselves with the lies that you had told on the witness [3526] stand?

A. With the misstatements that I had made. I called them white lies.

Q. You call them white lies?

A. Yes. I think a lie is a statement made with the intent both of deception and winning something for yourself to advance your own position. I had nothing to advance in concealing those facts.

Q. What do you call the lies that you told in 1934 when you misstated the date that you had entered the Communist Party, or when you lied about the use of force and violence, according to your present mood on that score?

A. I should call those typical exemplary Communist lies.

Q. What do you call the lie that you told this jury last week when you said that you used to deceive when you were a member of the Communist Party, but that you had turned off that part of your life and you were no longer deciving anybody?

A. Political deception. I was no longer deceiving anybody. The new identity I had made for myself was intrinsically a correct and true one.

Q. How about Sunday morning? What men did you see that morning?

A. Mr. Kidder and Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Is Mr. Kidder in the courtroom now?

A. I don't see him. He isn't at the counsel table and I don't [3527] see him in the audience.

Q. You see Mr. Kaiser, of course, in his usual seat? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. What about Sunday morning in your interviews with these men?

A. We had no formal interviews.

Q. Where did you meet?

A. I believe I either called for Mr. Kaiser or he called for me. I can't recall. And we went out and had a late breakfast, possibly 9, 9:30, 10—it was rather late—9:30, I would say.

Q. Then where did you go?

A. I don't know what we discussed.

Q. Where did you go?

A. Went back to the hotel.

Q. With them? A. Yes.

Q. Stayed there together?

A. This is Sunday? I am sorry. May I make a correction? Mr. Kidder was not with us at breakfast on Sunday. It was Mr. Kaiser and myself only. He left and went on his own business.

Q. Who left?

A. Mr. Kidder did. Mr. Kaiser and I had breakfast together.

Q. When did Mr. Kidder leave?

A. Earlier that morning. I don't know the exact time. [3528]

Q. You had an interview before you went to breakfast?

A. No interview, no, sir. We probably talked about the San Francisco rain and the Chamber of Commerce statements.

Q. What was the interest of these men in talking to you? It was not to get your notions about the San Francisco rain, was it?

A. I had already before Sunday morning told them all the facts. There was nothing further to reveal.

Q. They both came to you on Sunday morning?

A. I saw Mr. Kaiser Sunday morning; Mr. Kidder possibly 15 minutes or so, I recall.

Q. After breakfast what did you and Mr. Kaiser do?

A. I reckon we went back to our hotel. I don't recall going anywhere right away.

Q. Was he with you?

A. Mr. Kaiser was, yes.

Q. Can't you tell us where you went?

A. Back to the hotel.

Q. And stayed there together?

A. Stayed there together, yes.

Q. Until what time?

A. I would say 1:15 or 1:30.

Q. And then you went where?

A. Then we had lunch.

Q. You and Mr. Kaiser? [3529]

A. Another gentleman with us had lunch. We ate at Foster's place on Market Street, somewhere downtown Market Street.

Q. Who was the other man? This is yesterday now, Mr. Witness.

A. Yes, yesterday. If I knew his name, and I suppose I did—I know I was introduced to him—

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

I don't recall it. I can describe him to you if you would like.

Q. Do you see him here? A. No, I do not.

Q. You had lunch with this man, but you cannot recall his name, is that right?

A. That is correct. I would know him if I would see him again.

Q. After you left Foster's at some place on Market Street, where did you then go?

A. We got into an automobile and drove across the Oakland Bay Bridge.

Q. And you went where?

A. We went to Berkeley.

Q. You and what others?

A. Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Anybody else? A. That is all.

Q. Where did you go in Berkeley?

A. We went to an address that I can't recall. I would say it was about a 15-minute drive from the other end of the bridge, [3530] the Oakland end of the bridge.

Q. In what city was this? A. Berkeley.

Q. What street?

A. It started with an F, I know, because we tried to find it on the street posts, signposts.

Q. You tried to find it?

A. I mean as we drove past I looked at the signposts and tried to see if this was the street we were looking for. It started with an F.

Q. Was the rest of it obscured so all you could see was the F?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. It is obscured in my mind. If you give me thirty seconds I will try to think of it.

Q. Whose house was it?

A. Fulton Street was the name of the street.

Q. Pardon me? A. Fulton Street.

Q. Fulton Street? A. That is correct.

Q. Whose house was it?

A. The house of a former member of the Communist Party here.

Q. Named what?

A. Miles G. Umphrey.

Q. Umphrey? A. Yes, sir. [3531]

Q. How long did you stay at that house?

A. I think 45 minutes is a fair estimate of it.

Q. You, Mr. Kaiser and this man Miles G. Umphrey?

A. Yes, sir. I went in alone and asked Mr. Umphrey if it would be all right to have Mr. Kaiser come in, and he said certainly, and so we both met with him.

Q. When you left that house where did you go?

A. We came back to San Francisco, to the Marines Memorial.

Q. Kaiser still with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And went where in that building?

A. May I amend a statement I made just five minutes ago about Sunday morning, please?

Q. You have amended a great many. I suppose you can do that, too.

A. Thank you for your courtesy. On Sunday morning I went to church. I had forgotten that when you asked me. I was trying to place my activities with reference to this case. Sunday morning I went to church.

Q. Who told you to say that?

A. No one. It can be checked, I believe. I was seen there; I was recognized there.

Q. You mean you went so you could be seen, is that it?

A. No, sir, I went for a far more serious reason; I hope for the same reason you go, Mr. [3532] MacInnis.

Q. What did you do Sunday afternoon?

A. The events of Sunday afternoon are correctly described.

Q. When you got back to this Marines Memorial what did you do?

A. After a short while we had supper. I think you call it dinner here.

Q. With whom? A. With Mr. Kaiser.

Q. About what time?

A. Possibly 7:30 or 8.

Q. And you did not see anybody else from the time you got back from Berkeley until the time that you went to dinner?

A. No, at 5 o'clock on Sunday before supper I had this meeting with Mr. Donohue, Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Paisley—I do not think Mr. Boyd was there. In fact, I know he wasn't there.

Q. After you left that meeting you went to supper with Kaiser?

A. Possibly a half hour later or an hour later.

Q. Where did you have supper?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. The dining room of the Marines Memorial Club.

Q. Then you went where after?

A. I went down to the Appraisers Building, where I asked to be shown a copy of the transcript for the purpose of seeing upon what points I had made misstatements to this Court.

Q. Then what did you do?

A. Well, we went back to the Marines Memorial Club and I went [3533] to bed.

Q. You say "we went to bed"?

A. I went to bed, I said.

Q. Has any agent of the Immigration Service been sharing a room with you at that place?

A. At the Marines Memorial Club Saturday night and Sunday night.

Q. Who?

A. I don't know that he is an agent of the Immigration Service. I know he is connected with it, possibly in a legal capacity—Mr. Kidder.

Q. You say this Mr. Kidder whom you mentioned before stayed with you on Saturday night and Sunday night in the same room?

A. Slept in the same room, yes, sir.

Q. There was some change made in whatever custody has been exerted over you, is that right?

A. There hasn't been any custody, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Were you taken from the place where you had been staying and given quarters at the Marines Memorial Saturday night?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Saturday—Friday night when I came to the conclusion that I had to face the facts and get it all out of my system, when I decided that it might be the wisest thing for me to tell the Government counsel all the facts about my long-ago past, we will say, up to the time I was 15 years old or 16, I didn't want to do so with my wife and family present. I wanted to save them that embarrassment for the time being, so [3534] I asked her to start driving slowly south. I asked her to call me tonight, five o'clock, and I would try to get a plane to meet her. The reason I gave her was a sound one. It was not the entire reason, "It is going to be late getting back to Memphis. I want you to drive slowly. I don't care how much time you make, but just so you can get started, and then I will try to get a plane and meet you and we will carry on from wherever we meet on Monday night."

Of course, besides this I wanted her out of town when I made these disclosures. I didn't want to be distracted by her presence. So I no longer stayed at the Hotel Harcourt after Friday night with my wife and family. Then from that time on, Saturday night and last night, I stayed at the Marines Memorial Club in Mr. Kidder's room as his guest.

Q. You told us this morning there was some discussion between you and the others, including Mr. Barber, about a telegram from the principal of the Middlesboro High School in Kentucky.

A. Mr. Kaiser told me that Mr. Barber had received a telegram from the principal of the Middles-boro High School saying there is no record of anyone by the name of Lawrence Ross, or something to that effect, ever having attended that school.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. When did he tell you that?

A. Let me think. We had breakfast about eight—8:30, possibly, or 8:20—I would say 9:30 or 9:15 this morning.

Q. This morning? [3535]

A. This morning.

Q. You were not told that yesterday?

A. No, sir.

Q. None of the men connected with the Government told you that Mr. Barber, at Friday noon, had telephoned the registrar of the University of Kentucky? A. No, sir.

Q. Or that he had telephoned the principal of the Middlesboro High School, Mr. Laster?

A. No, sir.

Q. And you saw these men at five o'clock yesterday at Marines Memorial, right?

A. The men I mentioned having met there, yes.

Q. Did they tell you that when an investigator for the defense yesterday afternoon in New York went to the home of your father, there was an immigration agent already there?

A. No, sir, they said nothing about an investigator for the defense.

Q. They did not tell you that? A. No, sir.

Q. You heard the prepared statement that the prosecutor, Mr. Donohue, made at the start of this morning, didn't you? A. Yes, sir, I heard it.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Did you help him compose that?

A. No, sir. [3536]

Q. Was it made in your presence?

A. No, sir, I do not think Mr. Donohue needs any help in composing statements.

Q. How about the statement that you made?

A. What about it?

Q. Did you write that out? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have a copy of that?

A. I haven't written it out.

Q. Did you give any further written statement to these men for the Government?

A. No, sir. The last written statement that I remember making was made to Mr. Barber in I think early March of 1949.

Q. They didn't ask you to make any further statement when these revelations of this last week-end came to their attention?

A. No, sir. I made my statement to them orally.

Q. When was it determined that you were going to make a statement yourself?

A. That happened in a rather peculiar way, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Just tell us when that was determined.

A. I shall have to ask your leave to word it in my own way, please. You will get the facts.

Q. Just tell us the time. That is all I want to know. A. I can't fix the time.

Q. What day was it? [3537]

A. Because the conviction that I should make a statement of that kind came upon me sometime Saturday afternoon. I hadn't discussed it at that time with any of the Government counsel.

Q. Let me ask you this: Did it come upon you at a time when Mr. Donohue said to you, "It is impossible to continue with this examination; you may as well admit the facts"?

A. He made no such statement, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: May we take the recess?

The Court: We will take the noon adjournment and recess, ladies and gentlemen, and resume at two o'clock this afternon. The same admonition to you, particularly at this time and stage of the proceeding, not to discuss the case under any conditions, with any person, and not to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [3538]

Monday, January 9, 1949, 2:00 o'Clock

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lawrence Ross, heretofore sworn.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. When was it that you first saw a copy of your testimony before the Congressional Committee in the hands of one of the government prosecutors?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. To the best of my recollection, it was Saturday morning.

Q. Saturday morning before the matter had ever been mentioned in this court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And which one of these men had the copy of your testimony in his hand? A. Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Before you appeared here as a witness, had you had any discussion with any of those men about the contents of this previous testimony?

A. I believe there was some reference made to my having testified before the Kramer Subcommittee in Los Angeles, but I don't recall any extended discussion of it.

Q. Whom do you remember as having referred to that matter?

A. I believe it was Mr. Kaiser.

Q. And about when, in reference to your appearing here as a [3539] witness?

A. I don't recall whether it was in November when I was here or last May.

Q. It was either one? A. I think so.

Q. So that at least you were conscious from that one conversation that the government prosecutors knew that you had given this previous testimony about your work in the Communist Party and the period of time that work covered?

A. I know Mr. Kaiser knew it, and that is the extent to which I could testify from my own knowledge.

Q. Had you made some agreement with any of these men that you were to say January, 1932, in Los Angeles? A. Certainly not.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I said, "Certainly not."

Q. You recall the questions and the answers that were put to you the day you first took this stand as a witness, do you not?

A. In a general way; I don't recall them specifically.

Q. And when you were asked, "When and where did you join the Communist Party,?" and replied, "January, 1932." A. I believe so.

Q. In Los Angeles. Had there been some arrangement that the prosecutor was not then to inform you that you were mistaken?

A. No, sir. [3540]

Q. There was no such information given you at that time, though, was there?

A. Do you mind repeating that question? I want to understand you properly.

Q. Let me put it this way. If the matter of your previous testimony had not been brought to your attention, the record in this case would still show your original answer? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Without change? A. That's correct.

Q. So that it was your intention, and the intention of the persons preparing the questions which were put to you, that this record should show January, 1932?

The Court: One moment.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: One moment. I am reluctant to permit that question to be answered by the witness, for it embraces in it asking a reflection upon the proposer or propounder of the question. To that extent it is subject to an objection. Accordingly the objection will be sustained on the Court's own motion.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask this question, then.

Do you remember the recess had at the conclusion of your direct testimony?

A. There is one word you said I didn't quite get. [3541]

Q. Recess. A. Recess?

Q. Yes, that the Court recess. A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did any one of the government prosecutors during that recess, before questions were asked of you by me, say to you, "Weren't you mistaken on the dates and places that you gave about your work in the Communist Party?"

A. As I recall that testimony, Mr. MacInnis, I think that after the recess I was still under direct examination for probably five or ten minutes. During that recess I held no conversation with Mr. Donohue or any other government attorney.

Q. And did any one of the government prosecutors in that recess say to you, "You have left out some of the periods of your employment. You haven't told the jury that you were working for the Communist Party in the Pennsylvania coal mines, and you haven't told the jury that you were employed on the Daily Worker, the official paper of the Communist Party." Anybody say that to you?

A. I had no discussion with any of the government attorneys during that recess period.

Q. To go a little further into the same testimony that you gave in 1934 before the Congressional committee, let me ask you this, if this question was put to you and this answer given:

> The question: "Have you received any instructions from the [3542] national headquarters any time advocating the use of force in the overthrow of the government?"

and your answer:

> "No, I am quite familiar with the program of the Communist Party—not from direct instructions, but from my general thoughts, or from the general reading and study of the party program and the party literature."

Was that your answer?

A. That very well may have been.

Q. Was that the truth?

A. It was an evasion of the truth.

Q. Was it perjury? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor pleases; perjury is a question of law, not a question of fact.

The Court: Objection sustained. [3543]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Let me ask you if you gave these answers in response to questions at that time:

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

“Q. Have you ever seen any placards displayed in your meetings carrying the exact words ‘To Hell With America’?

“A. No, of course not.

“Q. Would you state you have never seen any placards similar to that?

“A. Of course.

“Q. In other words, you enjoy living in America, do you not, Mr. Ross?

“A. Certainly.

“Q. If you had any such statement to make, you would mean ~~to~~ hell with present policies rather than to hell with the whole country itself?

“A. I would mean I advocate a change in governmental policies. The country is all right.

“Q. Naturally, you do not want the whole country to go to hell?

“A. We want to build it up.

“Q. Did you ever see any such placard as that——”

and I am referring to Exhibit No. 1, which was the placard I have described—and your answer:

“No, it is absolutely un-Communistic.”

Did you give those answers?

A. I will take your word for it that I did. I don’t see the [3544] record, but they sound like the answers I would have given at that time.

Q. Were those answers the truth?

A. In fact, yes.

Q. And did you give these answers:

"Q. Do you advocate the arming of any of your men? A. No.

"Q. Are any of your men armed?

"A. Oh, no.

"Q. Officially, I mean. You have no organization in the Communist Party of armed men?

"A. Not at all. As a matter of fact, we can't use our own judgment and exercise our right as citizens, which allows a citizen to have a gun in his house for protection and I wouldn't do it because if found there it would be construed to be for revolutionary purposes, and so none of us arm ourselves."

Did you give that testimony?

A. Quite probably.

Q. Was that the truth? A. Yes.

Q. And did you give these answers in response to questions put at the same time:

"Q. There is no secret about that?

"A. No, it is published, published in our documents. [3545]

"Q. I can say for the purpose of the records, too, Mr. Ross, the Communist Party has at all times followed that procedure as far as this committee is concerned, in that all the information you have has been a matter of public knowledge. I would like to state that for your information. The reason for asking the question is throughout the country there seems to be an inference this information is most difficult to obtain, and we were just wondering about it.

"A. Well, as a matter of fact, the party leadership, whether national or district, uses ~~the ut~~most frankness about its own organization.

"Q. And that has been the policy of Mr. Foster and has been the policy of Mr. Browder and has been the policy of Mr. Hathaway?

"A. That is correct."

Did you give that testimony?

A. I did, I believe.

Q. Was that testimony true?

A. To the best of my knowledge at that time, I was. I was a dupe at that time, Mr. MacInnis. I believe those to be the true answers.

Q. You were a dupe. You had drawn a blind over your early years in the Communist Party because then you were a lark, as you say, and then in 1934 you were a dupe when you gave this [3546] testimony because you really didn't know the true facts.

Mr. Donohue: Is that a true question, if Your Honor please? If so, I object to it.

The Court: Sustained. It is argumentative.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, now, in respect of that question, let me ask you if you gave this testimony:

"Q. (By Mr. Mooney—who is named here): Has any other organization other than the ones just mentioned made any effort or overtures to your organization to get the facts regarding your organization?

"A. I don't think I understand you.

"Q. What I mean is, has any agency in this locality come to your officers in an open attempt to solicit the facts as we are trying to bring them out today?

"A. No, they usually work through what is known as stool pigeons.

"Q. You have such a thing in your organization? A. Inevitably."

Did you give that testimony?

A. I am not disputing it. I don't recall the exact testimony, but if you are reading from the record, I do not dispute it.

Q. What is a stool pigeon, Mr. Ross?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please. Mr. MacInnis certainly should know by now the meaning of that term. He has used it for eight weeks and he should have looked it up by [3547] this time.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe, Your Honor, we have the right to know what the witness meant by this phrase when he used it.

Mr. Donohue: It was not his phrase. He was asked the question as he is now. He was not asked then to define the term and I do not believe he should be asked now to define it.

Mr. MacInnis: It was his phrase. He is the one invoking the phrase in this questioning:

> "Q. What I mean is, has any agency in this locality come to your officers in an open attempt to solicit the facts as we are trying to bring them out today?"
> His answer: "No, they usually work through what is known as stool pigeons."

The Court: All right; you may answer.

The Witness: Will you please repeat the question?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What is a stool pigeon?

A. A stool pigeon is a term as then used within the Communist Party to designate a person sent into the ranks of the Communist Party by a hostile organization for the purpose of ferreting out information and reporting it to his employer or his source.

Q. In other words, a stool pigeon was the name applied to a person who joined such a group in order to gain information and then pass that information on to others?

A. That is correct.

Q. What would be the name of a person who not only passed on [3548] the information to the authorities, but passed on information that was invented and untrue? Would he be a stool pigeon or would he be something else?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

I do not know to what end this inquiry is directed. Certainly this question and this line of questioning is not for the purpose of contradicting any statement this witness has made on the stand. I object to the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you give these answers to the questions which I will now read you:

"Q. Do these stool pigeons, as you call them, get any other information than you have given the committee this morning?

"A. They couldn't except information on details such as perhaps the place a meeting was going to be held.

"Q. If we asked you that, would you tell us where the meeting was going to be held or would you know?

"A. No, I certainly would not because we have had experience that would make the meeting suicide, if we have meetings at public gathering places voted.

"Q. Aside from that, if the people here in attendance on this committee merely wanted to attend without any purpose of breaking up the meeting or arresting you, would you tell them so that they could come and [3549] hear it?

"A. Open meetings are openly advertised, excepting the meetings of the party members of a community or the state organization of a party.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

> "The Chairman: Do you mean your executive meetings?
> "A. Not necessarily executive."

Mr. Donohue: I object to these questions, if Your Honor please. As I understand the law, if one has testified at some other proceeding contrary to the testimony he is offering in the instant proceeding, that fact may be established by asking him if he did not make the responses to the questions suggested. Patently none of these questions can be offered for the purpose of indicating that the witness has testified here contrary to his testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee. On no other basis could this line of questioning be admissible, and since it does not conform to that standard I object to it, if Your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, here is a witness who has told the Court and jury that he used to practice deceit, that he used to fool the rank and file of the Communist Party as to its true ends, but he has changed his life, overcome all of that, and he is not deceiving this Court and jury. Today he makes the disclosures which I suppose are still ringing in Your Honor's ears, and we certainly have a right to show, in view of his statement that that was the only deceit that he practiced, a number of other deceits, too. I have just a few more [3550] quotations from this.

The Court: Proceed.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you make these answers to these questions:

"Q. Would you care to estimate, if you know, how many of these are loyal and faithful to your ideas and ideals?

"A. In other words, how many stool pigeons we have in the party?

"Q. That is right.

"A. No, of course not. If I knew how many there were or who they were, they wouldn't be there at all."

Did you give that testimony?

A. I assume I did.

Q. Did you give these answers—this is the question:

"Q. Do you think any of your members or subordinates or you—do you approve of them making any attack or commit any violence upon any individual or any officer or any law-abiding member? A. No, not at all."

Q. Did you give that testimony?

A. I assume I did, yes, sir.

Q. Was that the truth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer:

"Q. Did your organization advocate the destruction of [3551] food?

"A. No, no, we don't advocate the destruction of anything because we hope to use those things for the good of the working class."

Did you give that answer?

A. That sounds about right, yes.

Q. Is that true?

A. To the best of my knowledge at the time.

Q. Did you engage in this colloquy:

"The Witness: May I make a statement?

"Mr. Mooney: Certainly.

"The Witness; Yes, sir, a very short one. I understand this is a committee to investigate un-American activities. My definite opinion from my connection with the activities of the Community Party it is thoroughly American."

Did you give that testimony?

A. I probably did, yes, sir.

Q. Was that true?

A. I thought it was at the time. That was why I was in the Party.

Q. You were an official of the Communist Party at that time?

A. An official of a section of the Party.

Q. And you believed that answer to be a true one at that time?

A. I did at that time, yes.

"Q. The Chairman: You say [3552] American?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

"The Witness: Yes. In so far as our activities and principles are concerned, they are to better the condition of the vast majority of the workers of this country.

"Mr. Mooney: May I say we have investigated organizations in this hearing that have convinced us of the fact that they are not un-American. We do not impute that by calling you anything.

"The Witness: Yes.

"Mr. Mooney: We are just investigating anything turned in to us, and it is not up to me to determine what is or what is not American. It is up to the Committee.

"The Chairman: May I say also this idea that there may be in your mind or in the organization or some other organization that there is a great deal of money being spent by the Government on these investigations is all erroneous. The amount of money being spent on this is very small. The work is all being done as a patriotic duty, and we feel obligated to do so.

"The Witness: Likewise we Communists feel we are doing a patriotic duty."

Is that what you said? A. That is correct.

Q. Were the statements there attributed to you true statements?

A. They were true statements to the best of my knowledge and understanding of the Party at that time. [3553]

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. So that at this time in December of 1934, you had already been employed several years by the Communist Party itself?

A. About two and a half years, I should think.

Q. In the Los Angeles part of your life, and you had been employed in New York on the earlier occasion?

A. As a correspondent for the Western Worker, and a newspaper publicity writer for the election campaign.

Q. And you were not speaking when you gave this testimony as one of the rank and file of the Communist Party who might read the official papers, but you were speaking as a leader and officer of the Party, weren't you?

A. I was speaking as an officer of a lesser unit of the Party.

Q. You were asked to appear before this congressional committee in your capacity as an officer of the Communist Party?

A. As an officer of a small section of the Communist Party, yes, sir.

Q. And it was the following year, 1935, in which you began to engage in your duties as editor and co-editor of the Western Worker?

A. Yes, sir. [3554]

Q. During which time it was you who committed the deceptions upon the rank and file of the Communist Party?

A. I wouldn't call it a deception. It was not revealing the entire truth.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Well, were you still a dupe when you came to San Francisco and became co-editor of that paper? A. I am afraid so, yes.

Q. In other words, you were a dupe, but you were passing out information to lead astray members of the rank and file?

A. That isn't the way I would put it, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. All right. Now, to go back to some of these matters that you told us about this morning, did you tell us that was when you were age 15 that you wanted to start a new life?

A. I think I said that around the age of 16 or 17, I Americanized my name. That's right, sir. That is the best of my recollection.

Q. When did you first choose the State of Kentucky as being the supposed place of your birth?

A. That is hard for me to say. I would say it was a relatively short period of time after that. How short I don't know.

Q. You made some investigation, I suppose?

A. No, sir.

Q. And found out that the State of Kentucky had no birth records prior to 1911, didn't you?

A. No, sir, I didn't. [3555]

Q. You just chose the state at random without protecting yourself from inquiry by any interested person?

A. No, sir, I had no reason to seek protection.

Q. Did you ever find that out, that the State of Kentucky had no birth records?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Yes, sir, from you this very minute.

Q. Didn't you know that Mr. Donohue made a public statement to that effect on Friday which was printed in some of the newspapers?

A. No, sir, I didn't read it.

Q. And that we wouldn't be able to prove that you were not born in Kentucky?

A. I didn't read any such thing.

Q. Because Kentucky had no birth records?

A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't know that?

A. I learned it from you the first time this minute, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. He didn't tell you that he had made such a statement? A. No, sir.

Q. When you decided, as you put it today, to begin a new life, where did your parents live?

A. In The Bronx, New York City.

Q. And their names were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rosenstein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you living with them at the [3556] time?

A. For a short period, I think so; I think I left home when I was about, possibly, 20, possibly 21. I can't be sure.

Q. You told your parents about your decision?

A. I told them I was changing my name, Americanizing my name, yes, sir.

Q. And how many times had you seen your parents since you left home?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. Donohue: May I object, if Your Honor pleases? I don't know, unless Mr. MacInnis will again say to Your Honor that he is about to get to an important point which this is a part——

Mr. MacInnis: I will.

Mr. Donohue: Certainly on its face the question is objectionable.

The Court: I can not presently see the materiality, counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, without repeating the same reasons I offered Your Honor a few moments ago concerning the declarations of this man, it would be apparent immediately that we are not bound by this disclosure; we are not bound to accept the fact that these are all the instances in which he has told lies under oath. We certainly are bound and entitled to look further. Now, I am leading up to a point in some of the events of this man's life.

The Court: Well, it may well be that disclosures concerning his family background and marital status, the number of [3557] children and the like, may be regarded as collateral matters. To that extent you may well be bound by the witness' answer given thereto.

Mr. MacInnis: These are matters contained in his statement to the Court and the jury this morning, and I would assume that that kind of a statement would be in the same position as direct testimony; it would not be matters given on cross-examination. The testimony, or the statement that he made, was solicited by the prosecutor.

The Court: For the moment I will allow it, then; but——

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read him the question, please?

(Record read.)

A. I would visit them quite regularly, possibly once a week, for a number of years.

Q. When did you see your father last?

A. My best recollection is about 11 or 12 years ago. I should say 1938, possibly 1939. I am not sure.

Q. Although you lived in the East after that time, didn't you? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. You lived in the East after that period of years 1938 and 1939?

A. I lived in North Carolina, Virginia for a while, Arkansas——

Q. That is a relatively short time out of New York, isn't it? A. Pardon?

Q. That is a short distance out of New [3558] York?

A. Well, it is a pretty good drive; I would say it is about 600 miles south.

Q. When did you last see your mother?

A. Same time.

Q. Now, did you tell us this morning under oath that after you made this change of your whole life, you never thereafter admitted your origin, that you always thereafter—— A. Yes.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Pardon me?

A. To the best of my recollection, that is so.

Q. So that after that time you adopted the story that you had been born in the State of Kentucky? A. That's correct.

Q. And when I use the words after that time I mean after the time you decided to change your identity.

A. I did not change my identity, Mr. MacInnis; I Americanized my name. My identity has always been the same.

Q. Why, this morning you told the jury under oath that you truly had changed your identity, that you had become in fact a different person.

A. A new identity, to that extent.

Q. Yes?

A. To the extent of Americanizing myself and adopting Kentucky as my birthplace.

Q. And as you say, after the time you came to that decision, [3559] you continuously referred to Kentucky as the state of your birth?

A. Yes, to the best of my recollection. With one exception, Mr. MacInnis. My first wife knew the truth; I told her about it.

Q. And— You mean you told her?

A. Pardon?

Q. You told her about where you were born?

A. I am not sure whether I did. I may have. I know this, that I told her the name I was born under because she met my parents. But whether or not I spoke to her about the place of birth I can't say.

Q. Would she be the only person?

A. Yes.

Q. To whom you thereafter admitted that you were not born in Kentucky?

A. I believe so, yes, sir.

Q. On the 18th day of December of 1926, didn't you take an oath in the office of the City Clerk of New York City that you were born in New York City? A. I don't recall.

Q. Wasn't that the date that you applied for a marriage license?

A. Somewhere around that time, yes, sir.

Q. And that application was made under oath, wasn't it? [3560]

A. I believe so; if applications are made under oath, that one must have been.

Q. And you swore to tell the truth about all of the questions put to you in that application, didn't you?

A. I filled out a blank. There were no oral questions put.

Q. Didn't you——

A. No oath administered.

Q. Pardon me?

A. No oath administered, I don't believe, and no oral questions asked. I believe I filled out a blank.

Q. If it were shown you that the public records showed an acknowledgement under oath by you in the presence of the Deputy City Clerk, would you dispute that statement?

Mr. Donohue: Why doesn't he show it to him, if your Honor pleases? Instead of just talking about it. I have never seen it, maybe the witness hasn't seen it since 1926.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I think I am entitled to pursue this matter without the assistance of this man, who says he now knows nothing about the background of this man——

Mr. Donohue: I am not offering any assistance.

Mr. MacInnis: ——which he vouched for the other day.

Mr. Donohue: I am asking the Court to instruct you to conform to the principles of trial technique.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask, then, that the Clerk, Mr. [3561] Mitchell, hand to the witness this piece of paper.

Mr. Donohue: I would like to take a look at it some time, if your Honor pleases.

(Paper handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you state——

Mr. Donohue: Just a moment. I insist on my right to see the document, if your Honor pleases, and I insist——.

The Court: I thought you had looked at that.

Mr. Donohue: No, your Honor, and I insist it be marked for identification before any questions be asked the witness concerning it.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: It may be marked.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, this seems to be an office memorandum of a phone conversation from a man named Glazier. Would you mark it for identification? I object to any question being asked of the witness concerning a memorandum of a phone conversation by Mr. MacInnis or his office with respect to some other person or persons.

Mr. MacInnis: The copy will be on its way, your Honor. We can hardly be put on the horns of this dilemma where the prosecutor will not allow us to ask the witness questions which we based upon information received over the phone, and at the same time refuse to allow the witness to wait here until the official document is produced.

The Court: The document may be used to refresh his [3562] recollection; if he has any independent recollection in the light of a document, he may testify.

(To the witness): Do you have any independent recollection?

The Witness: I don't have, no, sir.

The Court: All right.

The Clerk: The paper is marked, if Your Honor pleases, Defendant's B-1 for identification.

(Whereupon memorandum of telephonic conversation referred to above was marked Defendant's Exhibit B-1 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: Now I will offer to be marked for identification a letter received by me from the Bell County Department of Health in Kentucky, showing that there were no birth records filed in Kentucky prior to 1911.

The Court: It may be marked for identification.

(Whereupon letter from Department of Health, Bell County, Kentucky, referred to, was marked Defendant's Exhibit C-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): When you applied for a license to marry your first wife, were you living at No. 40 Perry Street?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor pleases. What possible bearing can that have with the witness' testimony that he knew Harry Bridges to be a member of the Communist Party and attended Communist meetings with him?

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this objection is the same objection that was made when this counsel was zealously importuning [3563] your Honor to permit this witness to go home on Friday last, leaving the impression that his original testimony was true. He told Your Honor then, "What possible bearing can this have upon the case? This is a time consuming device." And one of the other gentlemen said, "We will be here until the frost is on the pumpkin," or words to that effect. Can he in good faith, Your Honor, in the light of the disclosures of this morning say now that this is an examination that may not reveal a further deception? A deception practiced, if not in this court, upon a public agency in another agency under oath?

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, I make the same suggestion I made the other day. If we are going to examine every witness as counsel have examined other witnesses, we will be here until the frost is on the pumpkin.

Now, this witness came here and gave testimony on the subject matter of this indictment, and as yet no one has asked him on cross-examination a single question about his testimony in support of the allegations in the indictment.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, that isn't true at all; I cross-examined him for about an hour on that.

Mr. Donohue: Mr. MacInnis insists on trying to find out, "When did you see your father last?", and it is typical, if Your Honor pleases, what has happened here time and time again. Mr. MacInnis said, "I have an object in asking this man how many times did he see his father and when did he see him last," [3564] when it is apparent that he didn't have any objective and that his only objective is the one purpose for which the question may not be asked. Mr. MacInnis asked that question for the sole purpose of degrading this witness before this jury. The law says such a question may not be asked. Mr. MacInnis is presumed to know the law. And I again say, if Your Honor pleases, that if we are going to try now his marriage application, we will be here until next fall. Object to it.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I would like to say this. A deception or a lie or a piece of perjury is just as much a deception, just as much a lie and just as much perjury whether it is disclosed or not. So that when this witness lied last week and was willing to go away and found that willingness sponsored by the prosecution lawyers, the deception was complete at that time. And the awful thing is if we hadn't asked for him to be kept here, you would have had no disclosure such as we had this morning.

Mr. Donohue: Twice——

Mr. MacInnis: The deception was complete. Now, this counsel wants to keep us from developing other lies which I promise to show that he told.

Mr. Donohue: Twice, if Your Honor pleases, counsel has said that he would show that we were a party to a deception upon this Court and jury. He said this morning that he would show Your Honor and this jury that at 12:00 o'clock noon on Friday [3565] last, we knew that Mr. Lawrence Ross had not told the truth on the stand about his identity. I challenge him now to offer that proof.

Mr. MacInnis: It will come.

Mr. Donohue: Let it come now. You have always said it would come; it never does.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I think we have reached a point wherein, notwithstanding the statement made by Mr. Ross on the stand, where he has recanted with respect to certain of his prior testimony, that it behooves the Court in the exercise of a discretion to sustain objections with respect to a family relationship. That is, thus far. Let us assume, only for the purpose of our discussion now,. and without reflecting on the witness,—because what I say is not evidence any more than what you say may not be evidence—that he failed or neglected to support his father; or let us assume that he failed or neglected to support any member of his family. To what extent would that be material, one? Secondly, to what extent would that afford the basis of a perjury indictment or any other action to be taken with respect to the witness Ross? It would be considered as immaterial matter, not having a bearing upon the cause and having no evidentiary or persuasive effect in the final determination. Now, that is the bent of your questioning, and I therefore sustain the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Neither of those matters has [1566] anything to do with the question. I have no further purpose of speaking about this man's relationship in the support of his children or in the support of his father.

The Court: All right, then, if your purpose be otherwise, I will allow the question.

Mr. MacInnis: It is not that purpose at all. The credibility of a witness is never a collateral matter, it is always a direct matter. I want to show he lies under oath.

The Court: That is a matter we may have a lot to say about at some future stage of the case.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

Q. Now, did you state in the office of the City

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Clerk of New York that you had been born in New York City itself?

A. I have no recollection of statements made there, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Will you make any statement one way or the other?

A. I just have no recollection; I can't.

Q. Did you make a statement at that time that your father's birthplace was Germany?

A. I can't recall any such statement, no, sir.

Q. Did you make a statement that your father's first name was Barney?

A. Probably, yes; he was known as Barney.

Q. In other words, you didn't offer the clerk in New York a story about your father being a small planter in Kentucky known [3567] as Sedon Ross, did you call him? Or Lawrence Sedon Ross?

A. I don't recall what statements I made there. I must have said his name was Barney, because that is what he was known as. But even that is not a matter of my own recollection.

Q. Well, where were you born?

A. Somewhere in western Poland, I believe.

Q. And you were born in 1903?

A. That's right.

Q. Well, Poland at that time was a part of the Russian empire; you were born in Russia?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. You don't know that to be a fact?

A. No, my history is not as good as it should be, I suppose.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. It is like your recollection?

A. It was known as Poland to me.

Q. Your father was not born in Germany, was he?

A. I don't know whether he was born in the eastern part of Germany or the western part of Poland. I can't say. I have a distinct recollection of hearing that my origin was somewhere near the German-Polish frontier.

Q. Well, whatever it was, you decided to conceal it? A. That's correct.

Q. And when you told the Court and jury a few moments ago that the only change in your identity was the Americanization of your name, that was not a true statement, was it? [3568]

A. Americanization, and following that, Americanization of place of origin. When you adopt one lie, inevitably you have got to adopt others to justify and support that lie. That is a lesson I have learned.

Q. So we find. And so that you didn't merely Americanize your name, you changed your whole identity and wiped out the fact that you had been born in a country other than the United States?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you stuck to that over the years?

A. That's correct.

Q. What statement did you make as to your name and your origin in Memphis, Tennessee?

A. Same statement.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You swore in your voting records in Memphis, Tennessee that you were born in Kentucky, did you? A. There was no oath taken.

Q. Did you make such a statement taken for the public records of Memphis?

A. For the registrar's record, I believe so, when I voted, yes.

Q. Didn't Mr. Kaiser tell you in one of these conversations that you had over the weekend that your friend, Mr. Sam Darcy, was indicted for and convicted of perjury here in San Francisco because he had falsely stated to the registrar of voters here that he was born in New York and not in some foreign country? [3569]

A. No, sir, we didn't discuss Mr. Darcy.

Q. He didn't tell you about it. How about in your draft registration throughout the war? Where did you swear you were born at that time?

A. I don't recall taking any oath at that time, Mr. MacInnis, but I believe I filled out a form.

Q. You don't recall that every paper in the draft carried a statement that all of its contents were within the purview of perjury?

A. I don't recall anything like that. I don't believe I read all the statement. I saw the blanks and filled them in.

Q. Didn't Mr. Kaiser tell you in your discussions over this weekend that there was no statute of limitations for a perjury prosecution on a draft board lie?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. We didn't discuss perjury at all, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. What statement did you make in your draft board information concerning your origin?

A. Probably the same—probably Kentucky, I think. [3570]

Q. And that your name was Lawrence Sedon Ross? A. That is right.

Q. And what name did you say your father had? A. Pardon?

Q. What name did you say your father had?

A. I can't recall. I can tell you where I registered, however, and it can be seen very easily.

Q. Where?

A. Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Q. You do not have your draft card in your pocket?

A. I probably have. I usually carry it and it may be there.

Q. May we see it?

A. I have no objection (handing document to Mr. MacInnis). You will return it to me, I hope?

Mr. MacInnis: Let the record show that a draft card——

Mr. Donohue: Is this in evidence, if your Honor please?

Mr. MacInnis: If I am to return it to this man I want to keep a record of the contents of this document.

Mr. Donohue: I am just asking him if this is in evidence, and if so, for what purpose?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, he stated in all probability he told the same lie to the Government authorities at the time of his registration for the draft.

Mr. Donohue: He is bound by his answer, your Honor, on a collateral matter. He said he registered under the name of [3571] Lawrence Ross. He is bound by the answer. He does not have to put the draft card in evidence to prove it.

Mr. MacInnis: I am content to do that, but I want to preserve this record.

Mr. Donohue: I object to the record showing anything unless your Honor says this may be properly read into the record.

The Court: The photostat may be marked for identification for whatever record it may serve.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well.

The Court: The original to be returned to Mr. Ross.

(The draft card referred to was marked Defendants' Exhibit D-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you tell the Court and jury this morning that nobody except your first wife know your identity?

A. That is the best of my recollection, yes, sir.

Q. That you had not told anybody?

A. Not that I can recall, no, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named V. J. Jerome?

A. V. J. Jerome—yes, I think he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Where did you know him?

A. In New York, I believe, perhaps '28, '29, '27—I can't fix the date.

Q. Did you tell him about your identity?

A. No, sir, not that I can recall. [3572]

Q. Did you know a man named A. B. Magil?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you know him?

A. Over a period of years.

Q. Beginning about when?

A. Perhaps '24.

Q. '24? A. Possibly.

Q. Did you tell him about your identity?

A. I don't believe so. I can't recall that, no sir.

Q. Did you know a man, a schoolmate of yours in Morris High School, by the name of Sol Berlud?

A. That name does not sound familiar, no, sir.

Q. Anyone who went to Morris High School in New York with you would have known you under a different name than Lawrence Ross?

A. That is right, up to the age of 15, I believe, or 16.

Q. What name would that have been?

A. Rosenstein.

Q. Lawrence Rosenstein?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you tell us whether or not you had any brothers? A. One brother.

Q. Where does he live?

A. The last I heard of him he lived in [3573] Connecticut.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. In the city of Moosup?

A. I don't know that for a fact. He lived in Connecticut the last time I heard of him. It is only a small town.

Q. When did you last hear from him?

A. I believe I received a letter from him in either 1940 or 1941. That is the last I heard from him.

Q. You haven't had any contact with this brother of yours since 1940 or '41?

A. No personal contact, I would say, since 1938; no contact by mail since 1940 or 1941.

Q. Did you ever disclose to your brother that you had changed your identity to the extent that you were claiming your birthplace to be the State of Kentucky?

A. I don't recall doing that. I don't believe I discussed it with him. Incidentally, he too adopted the name of Ross at the time of the naturalization.

Q. Did you tell him the identity change would be complete if he accepted Kentucky as his birthplace?

A. I don't believe I ever discussed it with him.

Q. By the way, you told us this morning under oath that Mr. Bruce Barber of the Immigration Service was in the act of checking the immigration records on your father?

A. I don't believe I made that statement, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Did you tell us somebody was checking those records?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I referred to no one checking them this morning that I [3574] recall.

Mr. MacInnis: I will find that place in the testimony, your Honor.

Q. Your testimony now is you made no such reference?

A. My testimony now is to the best of my recollection I made no statement that Mr. Barber or anyone else connected with the Government was checking the naturalization records.

Q. Have you been given any information this morning about the status of your father's immigration record? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who gave you that information?

A. Mr. Barber. There was no reference to a check having been made. I assume he found out through the usual channels.

Q. When did he give you that information?

A. This morning.

Q. About what time? A. Possibly 9:30.

Q. What did he tell you?

A. He told me that—the facts of the birth in Poland, the arrival in this country, the fact that I was known as derivative citizen based on my father's naturalization papers. He told me my brother out here has a deriviative citizenship certificate and advised me to get the same sometime soon.

Mr. MacInnis: May we take the recess, your Honor.

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and [3575] gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions or to form or express an opinion until the matter is finally submitted to you.

(Recess.) [3575-A]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Do you know, Mr. Witness, what the date was of your father's arrival here in the United States?

A. I would say 1906 or 1907 or 1908.

Q. Do you know into what port he came?

A. Not of my own knowledge, no, sir; I wasn't here at the time.

Q. Were you told? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he come into New York?

A. That sounds logical, but I don't know of my own knowledge.

Q. And you don't know the name of the ship either? A. That he arrived on? No, sir.

Q. How about yourself? Have you been told the name of the ship that you came over on?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What ship.

A. Kroonland, K-r-o-o-n-l-a-n-d.

Q. And you came into what port?

A. New York, I believe, yes, sir.

Q. And can you give us the approximate date?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I believe I can give you the year, but not the date.

Q. What is the year? A. 1910.

Q. And what was your first name at that time?

A. I don't know. It has been Lawrence certainly ever since I arrived here, I know. Arrived in this country, and that was at [3576] the age of 7. Now I assume that Lawrence is an Americanization of another name, but I don't know what that was.

Q. You don't remember what name you were given in those years of your life?

A. I know when I went to public school, first started public school, it was under the name of Lawrence. I am sure of that.

Q. Well, you were seven when you left Poland and came to the United States?

A. I would think so, if 1910 is correct, and I believe it is.

Q. And were you able to talk at that time?

A. I suppose so.

Q. Well, what was the name given you in Poland? It wasn't Lawrence, was it?

A. I wouldn't think so. It was Lawrence soon after my arrival here, I am positive.

Q. Well, what was it up to the time you were seven years of age and came across the ocean?

A. I believe I have it. It started with an L. I believe it was L-i-p-m-a-n, possibly L-i-p-m-a-n-n, I think. The name of Lawrence was given to me upon my arrival. Under that name I attended public school and have used it ever since.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Well, in respect of the disclosures that you made to the Court and jury this morning about the false answers that you had given both on direct examination and on cross-examination in this case, did you give the same false answers when you appeared before [3577] the grand jury?

A. If those questions were asked, I am sure the same answers were given. I don't recall.

Q. Well, don't you remember whether or not you were asked as to your name and your origin?

A. I am sure I was. My name I gave as Lawrence Ross, as I always have for the past 30 years. I believe I gave my origin as the state of Kentucky.

Q. So that you lied when you were brought before the grand jury last May?

A. I carried forward that same deception, yes.

Q. About how many questions in all were asked of you when you were taken before the grand jury?

A. I am afraid I can't answer that, Mr. MacInnis. I don't know.

Q. Could you tell us how many false answers you made under oath at that time?

A. I would say as to my origin, education.

Q. You wouldn't be able to give us the number of false answers, though, would you?

A. I would say two.

Q. Just two? You weren't asked more than two questions on that?

A. If I was asked two questions, one with reference to my origin and place of birth, another with reference to my education, those were the two false answers.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, upon that basis we renew our request [3578] that we be furnished with a copy of the testimony given by this man before the grand jury. Now, certainly if his testimony there was consistent with what he has told us here, there can be no possible prejudice result. On the other hand, in view of the disclosures today, there is a strong likelihood that there will be some difference. Now, we ask that Your Honor in his discretion now allow us the inspection of the transcript of the testimony given by this man before the grand jury.

Mr. Donohue: I wish, if Your Honor pleases, I had the power and the law permitted me to carry out the request of counsel. But as I stated to Your Honor on the same occasion the other day, and as I again state to Your Honor now, that as to the matter of minutes, I will be happy to produce them to Your Honor for Your Honor's inspection the minutes of the testimony of this witness before the grand jury, for the purpose of assuring Your Honor that the answers he has just made to the questions asked of him by Mr. MacInnis are the truth. I renew that offer to Your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, Your Honor, counsel now says he wishes the law would permit him to do that. Now, it is my understanding that a request of this kind falls within the discretion of the Court and that if the Court feels that there is a conflict in the testimony, that the request should be granted. Now here we have the bald admission of a double identity on the part of this witness. We have the bald admission of innumerable [3579] lies. I won't say "innumerable" because they could be counted and they will be counted. But with that background, I think, Your Honor, that by your exercise of discretion you can solve whatever difficulty there may be on the law.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, in 1939 the very eminent jurist named Learned Hand, in the case of Gottfried v. United States, said:

> "I said in 1906 and I say again in 1939 that no judge of this district has ever made available the minutes of a grand jury on request of counsel for a defendant, and I hope none ever will."

I think that is a pretty good statement——

The Court: With only one correction, counsel; it was not the Gottfried case: it was the Garson case. With that exception I will take your statement.

Mr. MacInnis: That is undoubtedly a statement of what that jurist said. But the grand jury transcript has been allowed in many of our recent federal cases.

The Court: The request is denied, counsel.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you make the same false statements in the written statement that you made to Mr. Bruce Barber in Memphis, Tennessee?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Yes, sir, the same false statement as to birth, education.

Q. How many?

A. I assume there were two, since there were two questions [3580] asked.

Mr. MacInnis: On that basis, we renew our request that we be furnished with a copy of the written statement which the witness says he gave to Bruce Barber.

Mr. Donohue: May I make the same offer to Your Honor: I will be only too happy to provide it for Your Honor's perusal, to determine that the answer made by the witness to the question just asked by Mr. MacInnis is the truth.

The Court: The request is denied.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say, Your Honor, that it would be obvious that the defense, of course, would not be bound by the degree of falsity that this witness ascribes to himself. In other words, he can't take the stand and by this disclosure say, "I was only false in half of the things I said, but as to the others, I was telling the truth." We have the right to doubt that he has told the truth as to anything, and that is one of the bases upon which we make this request of the Court.

Well, I take it, then, that Your Honor's ruling is still without prejudice on that subject and that if authority is produced to Your Honor's satisfaction, the ruling may undergo an amendment?

The Court: Certainly.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, on Friday afternoon, which would have been the sixth day of January between the hours of 2:00 and 2:30, do you recall the conversations had between the lawyers, [3581] yourself and the Court about whether or not you should be compelled to stay here over the weekend?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before you took the witness stand Friday afternoon, had you had any discussion with the prosecutor as to your reasons for wishing to return promptly to Memphis, Tennessee?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When had you had that conversation with him?

A. I suppose on Thursday. It was some time prior to that day.

Q. You told him that you were in great haste to go back to Tennessee?

A. I told him that I had talked with my employer on Wednesday night, the night previous, that I had told him, told my employer I would probably be off the stand on Thursday; and as soon as I was off the stand, I would make haste to get back. He asked me to hurry, as soon as I can, because my presence was badly needed there. And that is what I discussed with Mr. Donohue.

Q. Now, do you remember that in his efforts to decide the matter of whether you should be made to stay here or not, His Honor asked you some questions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you deceive the Court in any answer that you gave? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You understand that you were under oath when you answered the questions put to you by the Judge, don't you? [3582] A. That's correct.

Q. You told His Honor under oath on last Friday afternoon when he suggested that your wife go on ahead with the children that your wife couldn't drive the car on the road?

A. Not very well. I said I wouldn't trust her to.

Q. You said, "I wouldn't ask her to do that. I might never see her again."

A. That is probably so.

Q. You said she didn't drive on the road at all, didn't you?

A. No, I said I wouldn't trust her to drive that length of time and that amount of miles, between here and Memphis, on the road herself; and I will tell you why.

Q. Well, pardon me. I am talking about what you said to the Court.

A. Yes, and there is a reason for what I said.

Q. I don't care what your reasons are now, as you can see them. Didn't you tell His Honor that your wife did some city driving but that she did not drive on the road?

A. That's right; not much, except when I am with her. [3583]

Q. Well, let's see what you said. The Court said this to you:

"Does your wife drive a car?"

And your answer was:

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

"Not on the road very well, sir. She does some city driving.

"The Court: I thought you might as a matter of expediency have her drive back and you stay here.

"The Witness: No, sir. I couldn't ask her to do that. I might never see her again."

The Witness: That is correct.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): But you nevertheless told us today that you decided, despite those apprehensions, to send her on?

A. Yes, but she is not driving, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Oh, you told us this morning that your wife was driving.

A. She is being driven. Let us put it that way.

Q. Who is driving her?

A. Perhaps the word should have been "being driven" instead of "driving."

Q. What is the name of the immigration agent who is driving her?

A. There is no immigration agent driving her, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Who is driving her?

A. There is a young woman driving her.

Q. Who is that?

A. I believe her name is Drum or Drumm, D-r-u-m-m.

Q. You say you believe her name is [3584] Drum? A. I think so.

Q. Have you met her? A. Pardon?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. Have you met this person? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Where? A. In San Francisco.

Q. Who is she?

A. She works in either a stenographic or clerical capacity at the office of the Immigration Service, I believe, or some Government service.

Q. When did you make that arrangement, Mr. Ross, for surveillance over your wife?

A. On Friday when I was wrestling with this problem, when I thought I would like to have her out of town before this disclosure. So as not to embarrass her I asked Mr. Kaiser whether some arrangement could be made, because I didn't trust her to drive that car alone for any considerable distance. You see, once she blanked out driving a car on the road.

Q. Like your memory here?

A. Blanked out and lost control of the car and ran into a ditch and narrowly escaped hitting a bus. Since that time I have not allowed her to do any driving on the road for any period except when I was with her.

Q. So this was an arrangement with respect to this lady, Mrs. [3585] Drum, made by you on your wife's behalf.

A. That is right. My wife knew about it.

Q. It was not an arrangement suggested by Mr. Kaiser? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you met this Mrs. Drum before?

A. I had met her, yes.

Q. Where?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. In the offices of the Immigration Service, at the U. S. Appraisers Building here in San Francisco.

Q. Under what circumstances?

A. An introduction, a hello, exchange of petty gossip, chatting. Never discussed the case.

Q. Was she a person who took down statements the witnesses made?

A. I wouldn't know. She never took down any statement that I made.

Q. She never took down any conversation that you had with these other men? A. No, sir.

Q. But Mr. Kaiser recommended her to you—put it that way? A. As a good driver.

Q. So that the Immigration Service has this lady driving the car with your wife?

A. I think the answer is evident.

Q. You did not offer us that information this morning, did you? [3586]

A. I wasn't asked. I have attempted to offer information and I have been stopped, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. You offered the information only that you told her to drive on ahead, didn't you?

A. That I arranged for my wife to drive on ahead, that is right.

Q. You said that as part of this voluntary disclosure? A. That is correct.

Q. That you wanted to make to the Court. So it was not a matter of your not being asked the question; it was a matter that you wished the Court and jury to believe that your wife had merely driven on ahead?

Mr. Donohue: That is argumentative, if your Honor please. If Mr. MacInnis by his question leads himself into a trap, I do not think he should be permitted subsequently to argue with the witness about it.

Mr. MacInnis: I do not conceive I am in the same trap as the prosecutor. I have not put any witnesses on the stand with whom I am now stuck and for whom I must vouch. I am not in a trap, Your Honor. I asked this man if he said a certain thing, and he said No, he wasn't asked. It now develops it was part of his voluntary statement.

Q. In any event, Mr. Witness, you decided not to include that information in this volunteer disclosure that you made about your double life. [3587]

A. I deny the implication of a double life, Mr. MacInnis. I was never at one time Lawrence Ross and at another time somebody else, at one and the same time. There was no double life. May I finish my answer? I didn't include many details I might have thought of in connection with the statement I made. I made the statement as to pertinent facts relating to evidence I have given. There was no evidence heretofore given as to whether or not my wife is going to do any of the driving, part of the driving, or none of the driving. As a matter of fact, I assume she did some, but under the supervision of a good safe driver.

Q. From the Immigration Service?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. When I say she drove down to the south, I don't think it was a misstatement. I don't know how much of the driving she did. I merely didn't wish to trust her on the road alone since that unhappy incident when she blacked out at one time.

Q. How old are the children who accompany your wife?

A. Fourteen—just past fourteen, and just past twelve. Neither of them drives.

Q. And you tell us that since Saturday you have been staying in a room at the Marines Memorial Hotel or Club with an agent of the Immigration Service, a Mr. Kidder; correct?

A. I don't know whether I designated him an agent of the Immigration Service. He is connected with the Government case in some capacity, I think in a legal capacity. [3588]

Q. You have not asked him? A. Pardon?

Q. You have not asked him?

A. No, I have not.

Q. You say in legal capacity. You mean he is one of the lawyers prosecuting this case?

A. He may be on the legal staff. I don't know of my own knowledge. That is just a general impression.

Q. His activities, so far as you are concerned, legal though they may be, have to do with sleeping in the same room with you so that you are under surveillance?

A. I don't consider myself as having been under surveillance at any time since I was here. I came here voluntarily and I am here to give testimony voluntarily as to Mr. Bridges.

Q. You told his Honor that before you drove out here with your family, for what you termed a holiday, that you got an extension from the school authorities so far as the children were concerned?

A. That is correct.

Q. Could you tell us from whom you got that extension?

A. A Mr. Orr, who is principal of Belleview Junior High School in Memphis. I talked with him on the telephone, and the principal of Idlewild Grammar School, whose name I cannot recall. It is Stanwyck or Standard—Stan-something, I believe—Stanton—excuse me—Stanton. [3589]

Q. Let me ask you this: Where are the children of your first marriage, Mr. Ross?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. Isn't there some limitation?

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, in view of these disclosures it seems to me that we have a right to probe into the memory of this witness on any matter. As I told your Honor, I do not intend to raise again the inference about support or nonsupport. That has no point in the questions which I now put to the witness.

Mr. Donohue: It had no point at the time he asked those questions, if your Honor please, though he said he was going to connect it with something important, which he has as yet failed to do.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you appear in court in High Point, North Carolina, on April 23, 1941, in the Superior Court?

A. That is where my divorce was.

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, unless he appeared there to testify against the defendant Harry Bridges. What possible pertinence could his appearance in court——

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: May it please the Court, if this man gave other false statements in that proceeding they would throw some light upon his credibility here. [3590]

Mr. Donohue: Even if he did it would not be admissible here, if your Honor please. As I understand the law, a prior false statement is only admissible if it is pertinent to the subject matter under question here.

The Court: Sustained:

Mr. MacInnis: It would also go to his memory, your Honor.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask only this one question on a related matter:

Q. Didn't you testify under oath in the divorce proceeding between you and your first wife on April 23, 1941, in High Point, Carolina, that there were no children the issue of the first marriage?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please, and again the danger of a persistent line of inquiry by Mr. MacInnis. If he had a certified copy of the transcript of the testimony of this witness before that body and followed the rule and let him see it first, that would be one thing; but he reads from some note which he obtained from some unknown source only for the purpose of prejudicing this witness and not for the purpose of eliciting the truth. I object to it.

Mr. MacInnis: I have the transcript on the way, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: Everything is on the way with you. It will never get here. [3591]

Mr. MacInnis: Counsel objected to this witness being held here the other day——

The Court: I will sustain the objection, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, you told his Honor and the jury this morning that you had directed your wife to go ahead by very slow stages, didn't you? A. That is correct.

Q. When you said that you had told her to drive very slowly, you intended to convey the information that your wife was driving the car, and that hence the driving would have to be slow?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question as argumentative to what he intended, if your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: I think not, your Honor.

The Court: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I talked to my wife before she left and I said, "If you do any driving, please drive slowly. We aren't in any great rush. I want you to be very careful and let Mrs. Drum do all the driving possible, and as I say, there is no rush, no hurry. Just take it easy and I will be happier about the whole thing." a

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And you did not include that statement about Mrs. Drum in the voluntary disclosure that you made this morning to the Court and jury, but you repeated only what you say you told your wife? [3592]

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. That is equally argumentative.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Where was it that you last telephoned or contacted your wife? That is, at what point was she?

A. I haven't seen her or heard from her since she left here on Saturday morning approximately nine o'clock.

Q. She left at nine o'clock Saturday morning?

A. That is correct.

Q. When was it that you made the arrangement with Mr. Kaiser to engage the services of this Miss Drum to drive with her?

A. You see, I didn't make the arrangement with Mr. Kaiser to have the services of Miss Drum. I did ask Mr. Kaiser whether he could get someone to accompany her because of her driving. I didn't want her to take the road alone.

Q. But you told the Court and jury this morning that you did not have any discussion about this disclosure, and the true facts that you would now have to divulge until Saturday morning?

A. That is correct, Mr. MacInnis. I didn't tell Mr. Kaiser why I made the request except for this reason, that I told him that if they drive ahead and I could join them somewhere Monday evening, we could be that much ahead on our schedule and save time. I didn't give him any other reason until Saturday morning.

Q. And he didn't require any other reason?

A. He certainly didn't ask.

Q. In other words, some time before Saturday morning you asked [3593] Mr. Kaiser to obtain the services of this lady or some other person from the Immigration Service to drive with your wife, but you did not tell him why you wanted her out of town?

A. I told him I wanted her to leave because of the time-saving element. I did not care whether it was an agent of the Immigration Service or perhaps a member of the family or who, as long as it was a person who was qualified to drive a car.

Q. When did you tell him that?

A. Friday.

Q. What time?

A. Oh, possibly five or six. I don't remember.

Q. You did not tell him that until five or six Friday afternoon? A. That is correct.

Q. After you had been asked to remain here for further questioning? A. That is correct.

Q. Between five and six on the afternoon of Friday and the next morning he was able to arrange for this lady to leave promptly with your wife?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. Apparently.

Q. You told us, didn't you, that you did not see Mr. Kaiser on Friday?

A. No, I believe I told you that I went to an upstairs room on Friday and certainly saw Mr. Kaiser there.

Q. When were you informed that he had succeeded in making the [3594] arrangement with this lady, Miss Drum?

A. Possibly 8:30 or 9 o'clock—9:30. I don't recall. It was sometime that evening.

Q. On Friday night? A. That is correct.

Q. Then you told your wife to go on ahead?

A. I asked her to go on ahead, yes.

Q. At what point on the road are you to communicate with her this afternoon?

A. I don't know where she is or how far along she is. I hope to have her call me sometime between four and five.

Q. Where is she to call you?

A. Well, I assume she will call me upstairs here after four o'clock, or else possibly at the U. S. Appraisers Building office at five o'clock. I am not sure.

Q. You have given her those two addresses?

A. That is right.

Q. The United States Attorney's office or the Appraisers Building?

A. That is the only addresses I could give. I know I would be there on hand; there would be a telephone handy..

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. And you of course will be with those gentlemen after court at that time?

A. I of course will what?

Q. You will be with those gentlemen either in the United States [3595] Attorney's office or down in the Appraiser's office? A. I expect to.

Q. You made a little after-statement this morning about this disclosure and about some of your own activities. You say, "I forgot to mention I went to chuch this Sunday." A. That is correct.

Q. To what church did you go?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please.

The Court: The objection is sustained, Mr. MacInnis. I see no reason——

Mr. MacInnis: For this reason, your Honor: This gentleman, if one may use that word——

The Witness: Thank you.

Mr. MacInnis: ——has said that he went to church and that he could prove he went to church. Now, I strongly suspect that if he went to church that he was taken to a place where some person would see him, and I want to know just what that may be. I want to know who took him there and I want to know who saw him.

Mr. Donohue: If Mr. MacInnis will state to your Honor he will show he did not attend church, I will withdraw my objection.

Mr. MacInnis: I have no such knowledge, your Honor. I assume if he went to church to be seen by some person, that that was some prearranged plan, and that is what I want to find out [3596]. If you think it is not proper, I will go on to something else. I will return to that, your Honor.

The Court: I will allow it.

Q. Where did you go?

A. I went to Mr. Kaiser's church. I asked him Saturday to arrange for me to attend church service with him.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You made a request of Mr. Kaiser to arrange to take you to church with him? A. That is right, his church.

Q. What was that church?

A. The Ninth Church of Christ, Scientist.

Q. Is that the faith to which you belong?

A. I am not a member of the church, no, sir. I asked to attend some service with him.

Q. In other words, what you mean to imply is as part of this disclosure that you were going to make, you asked Mr. Kaiser to take you with him to a church of which you were not a member?

A. No, sir, it was not part of the disclosure. I felt the need for church services.

Q. And who was the person who saw you in church?

A. I asked to attend a church service with him.

Q. Did you see anybody else in that church service?

A. Oh, there were several hundred there.

Q. Anybody else connected with this case?

A. No, sir. [3597]

Q. No person whatsoever? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. You said as part of your further activities on that day you were driven over to the city of Berkeley, that you drove along a street whose name began with F, and which you finally said was Fulton Street? A. That is correct.

Q. And that you went to the home of a man named—you called him Humphrey, didn't you?

A. Humphrey, yes.

Q. By the way, what was that hotel that you said you were staying with your family?

A. Give me a minute. Harcourt.

Q. The Harcourt Hotel. And you went over to Berkeley to see a Mr. Humphrey?

A. Correct.

Q. How do you spell that?

A. H-u-m-p-h-r-e-y.

Q. While you have been here in San Francisco have you made any other visits with Mr. Kaiser or any other agent to these so-called ex-Communists?

A. No, sir. He is the only ex-Communist I have seen.

Q. And you told us that you went into the house first, is that right? A. That is correct. [3598]

Q. And you asked the occupant if it would be all right if you and your companion came in?

A. I was in, and because of the fact that he had contacted me and asked that I come to see him, because he said he wanted to help me in the case, because of that fact I went in just not knowing whether he would make whatever disclosure or speeches he was going to make in the presence of the Government witness. Therefore I went in first and asked him whether it would be all right if Mr. Kaiser, whom I introduced as an immigration official, came in also, and he said he had no objection.

Q. Had Mr. Kaiser ever met the man before?

A. I don't believe so, no, because he introduced himself and they shook hands. I am sure if they had met before there would have been some admission of that fact or some recognition of each other.

Q. When you drove over from San Francisco to Berkeley, Mr. Kaiser told you, didn't he, that this man named Miles G. Humphrey had been one of the witnesses for the Immigration Department against Harry Bridges in the first case against him here in 1939?

A. He told me he had been a prior witness against Harry Bridges. I don't know whether it was the first case or not.

Q. And he told you, didn't he, that Judge Landis presiding in that case——

Mr. Donohue: Haven't we been through Judge Landis enough [3599] times for all of us to know who he was, if your Honor please?

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, I should be permitted to finish the question.

Q. My question was this: Mr. Kaiser told you, didn't he, on the way over to Berkeley that Judge Landis had made a specific finding that Humphrey was a perjurer and a psychopathic liar; did he tell you that? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: It is inconceivable that Mr.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)
Kaiser made the statement in the first place. Obviously Mr. MacInnis knows that he did not make the statement. He asks the question only for the purpose of getting Judge Landis to testify before this jury, and I suggest to him to invite Mr. Landis to come out here under subpoena so we can examine him about what he said.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say we have the record, which I will show to your Honor, to bear out exactly what I said, in case there is an inference that the record does not show that.

The Court: The objection is sustained, counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: When did you say was the first time after we recessed here Friday that you saw the prosecutor, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. He has asked this question so many times we will be here ad infinitum, if we do not get down to some cross-examination about the evidence in this [3600] matter.

Mr. MacInnis: I can see the zeal of counsel in this case.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the objection, as long as he is asking about me.

The Witness: When you say "saw him" do you mean speak to him?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Either one—speak with him?

A. I saw him in the corridors here after the trial,

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

after the court recessed that day, and I spoke with him for the first time on Saturday morning?

Q. On Saturday morning?

A. Possibly 9:30, 10 o'clock.

Q. Did Mr. Donohue tell you on Friday afternoon after we left this court that he had issued a public statement defying me to show that you had not gone to the University of Kentucky, that the record of special students would not show, and that too many years had passed to allow for any human proof?

Mr. Donohue: May I arise to thank Mr. MacInnis for proving positively that I did not know he was not such a student until Saturday?

Mr. MacInnis: We will see about that in just a moment.

A. He made no such statement.

Q. He made no such statement?

A. He made no such statement, that is, he made no statement to me that he had made such an assertion. This is the first I [3601] have heard of it.

Mr. MacInnis: If the prosecutor's sole interest is in protecting himself and not the witness for whom he vouches, I have a few other questions on that score.

Q. Let me ask you this: In the early conversations that you had either with Mr. Donohue, before you appeared before the Grand Jury in this case, or with Barber down in Memphis, Tennessee, or with any of his other agents, did they discuss with you the source from which they had obtained your name as a possible witness? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't they tell you that the records of the Dies Committee, the Un-American Activities Committee of Congress for the month of July, 1941, had mentioned your name?

A. I told them that. I told them there, at the time of my dismissal as an organizer for the United Furniture Workers, at about that time, the reason given was the Dies Committee had disclosed I was a CIO organizer and also a Communist.

Q. The Dies Committee in its printed report and in the findings it made concerning you upon July 31, 1941, carried a statement that you did not come from Kentucky at all but from the Bronx?

A. I don't know that. I have never seen such a statement by the Dies Committee or anyone else.

Q. You have never discussed such a statement?

A. I have never seen it or discussed it. [3602]

Q. Did you ever write an open and public letter to a man named Steelman with reference to the language concerning you before the Dies Committee?

A. I certainly don't think so. I don't recall it.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask that the witness look at this piece of paper that I will now show him, and see if it refreshes his memory. It contains his letter in full.

The Witness: You mean this story which says, "Ross Denies Being Member of Communist Party. Severed Party Relations in 1937"?

Mr. MacInnis: Read it all.

The Witness: No, I don't care to.

Q. (By the Court): Do you recall that, Mr. Witness?

A. I read enough of the first two paragraphs to recall the incidents but not the letter.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): I will ask you whether or not in July of 1941 you wrote a letter, not to a man named Steelman—I was in error as to that name—a man named Stripling, R. E. Stripling, secretary of the special Dies Committee on Un-American Activities, reading as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"I have read a dispatch dated Washington, July 28, and published broadcast throughout the country to the effect that I am a Communist and a radical of long standing. In fairness to myself, and incidentally as an aid to the [3603] Committee's reputation for accuracy, I ask that you give equal publicity to this communication. The report of Investigator Steelman"—that is where that name comes from—"is a compound of truth and fiction. It is true I was a member of the Communist Party on the West Coast from 1933 to 1937, but it is emphatically untrue that I am now or have been since 1937 a member of that Party. It is true that I ran on the Communist ticket for public office and that I was editor of a newspaper, the Western Worker, but the statement that I was ever involved with the Communist Party or any other organization or individual over shortage of funds is scurrilous and without foundation. The story itself implies that since the report of Mr. Steelman declared I was involved with the Party over a shortage of funds and then promoted—promoted, mind you, to the editorship of the newspaper—rather funny treatment for anyone involved over a shortage of funds, don't you think? This is just one of those fanciful touches that have made the Dies Committee, the name of the Dies Committee detestable to many non-Communist labor people. Another such fanciful and fantastic touch put in to make the report more disagreeable, I assume, is that my real name is Rosenfeld and that I was born in the Bronx. How much more savory would the reputation of the Dies Committee be mind of the labor union official if it [3604] restrained itself to reporting ascertainable and investigated fact, rather than trimming that precious commodity with fanciful and lurid trimmings. However, I am not much perturbed at this barter since I recall reading some anti-Roosevelt campaign publicity in the 1936 election, in which the accusation was made that Roosevelt's real name was Rosenfeld. That at least is putting me in distinguished company. It is also fanciful that I ever acted as an organizer for the CIO or any other organization in New Jersey, another fanciful touch. This should be easily ascertained from the CIO files. As a matter of fact, my final and absolute break with the Communist Party came long before I was ever put on the CIO payroll. My present political belief is that whatever modifications may be needed in the economic structure of this country to allow the working man and his family a fuller life can be accomplished through the channels of regular action within the structure of the Constitution of the United States. Further amplification of my views for some time past may be found by your Committee in a book called 'Two Frontiers of Freedom,'' written by John Corbin. I have indeed corresponded with Mr. Corbin on this matter last year, and incidentally wrote him that I had been a member of the Communist Party years ago. I do not know what redress I have for the misstatements made in the published report, [3605] probably none. At least in the interest of being fair-minded I expect this communication shall be given to the press through the same channels which carried Mr. Steelman's report throughout the country.

"Very truly yours;

"LAWRENCE SEDON ROSS."

Do you remember writing that letter?

A. Vaguely, yes, I do. Rather a good letter, isn't it?

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I said, rather a good letter?

Q. If you are giving yourself some further plaudits for being deceitful, it was a good letter. It was reprinted in the High Point, the paper of High Point, North Carolina, "Enterprise," July 31, 1941?

A. Yes, I reckon so.

Q. The Dies Committee, whose investigators had made the report that you criticized, had made a finding that you were a Communist in 1941?

A. Correct.

Q. And you were attacking that finding as well as other contents of the Dies Committee report?

A. Correct, as well as some other contents.

Q. In writing the part of the letter that I suppose you called "rather a good letter," you took great pains to point out that the Dies Committee was in error in saying that you [3606] were a man named Rosenfeld from the Bronx, that that was fantastic? A. That is in error.

Q. You did not think it would be the proper thing to point out that the error was only in the last phrase of that last name, and that it was not the Bronx but Poland?

A. No, sir. I was then living under the name of Lawrence Ross and under the new identity. [3607]

Mr. MacInnis: We ask that this paper be received into evidence and marked.

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: It may be marked as Defendant's exhibit next in order.

(Whereupon document referred to was marked Defendant's Exhibit E-1 in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): But to come back now to the matter of the knowledge of the prosecutors in this case, did you tell the jury a few moments ago that you pointed out to them that the Dies Committee had much such a finding concerning you?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I pointed out to them the Dies Committee—that I had been dismissed from my position as organizer of the CIO at that time because of the finding that I was then a Communist, but I was not at that time a Communist.

Q. Now, the reports of the Dies Committee were available to the Government, according to what Mr. Kaiser told you, isn't that a fact?

A. I assume the reports of any government committee are always available to the Government. I was never told that in a direct statement, but it sounds logical to assume.

Q. So that you knew that the Government prosecutors had the information that there was some controversy as to your real name?

A. I assume he could have. He could have had it if he wanted [3608] it, I am sure.

Q. The report of the Dies Committee existed in printed form in the archives of our Government since July 31st, 1941, carrying the accusations again you that I have read? A. I assume so.

Q. Did you have any conversation with any of these men about your identity, based upon the Dies Committee findings? A. No, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: May we take the recess, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, it is a quarter past.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, is this examination still going to be examination unlimited?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, times have changed since Friday last.

Mr. Donohue: If so, in this way they have changed, if your Honor pleases: Instead of requiring an extended cross-examination by the defense to develop certain matters, we made the disclosure forthwith this morning. Now, certainly in the light of that fact and in the light of the type of questions that have been asked here all day long, I again ask your Honor to impose a limitation on this cross-examination.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, counsel, without passing any opinion now about whether or not he had knowledge—we will come to that later—counsel at least——

The Court: Well, let us at this juncture release the jury, [3609] in any event. It is now 4:20. And may I address myself to the material that you may have at hand in the absence of the jury, to determine further with respect to this witness?

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, it is now 4:20, and we have had a rather lengthy day. Accordingly we will take our recess and adjournment until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock and may I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial; you are not to form or express an opinion hereon until the matter is submitted to you.

You may now retire, as I have some matters to take up with counsel.

(Whereupon the jury retired from the courtroom, and the following occurred outside the presence of the jury:)

The Court: May I ask you, Mr. MacInnis,—(To the Witness) You might step down, please.

The Court: ——the extent of the additional examination you have at hand, without binding yourself to ultimate details, but just generally the extent?

Mr. MacInnis: You mean in point of time?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: I would think less than an hour, but possibly, if further information is in my hand tonight, it might be more extensive. I have a legal matter in connection with [3610] this witness that may develop out of some of the questioning.

Now, the objection has been made repeatedly today that I should not be permitted to examine this witness upon information received by wire or telephone. Now, in each instance in which I have had that kind of material today, I have made a request for a certified transcript to be sent. Now, I have every reason to expect that there will be further showings of falsehoods told in the past by this witness. Because of the very nature of his disclosures here, we doubt everything merely because of the fact that he says it, and we certainly are not bound, as I said before, by the degree of falsehood that he credits himself with. We have the right to show that he is lying a hundred per cent and not merely fifty per cent.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, on last Friday Mr. MacInnis told your Honor that he would require until today to get certain material upon which to cross-examine this witness. At that time, departing from the usual courtesies, he exhibited to your Honor a telegram, apparently, upon the basis of which your Honor concluded and, with that conclusion I find no fault, that the witness should be required to remain here until today. When your Honor returned to court you said to counsel, "I have ordered counsel to complete his examination,——" —you were talking to both of us— "——both as to the Government and as to the defendants, and each of them, not later than Monday at 4:00 o'clock and thus permit the witness to return to his home and to [3611] his duties on his newspaper."

Now, a minute ago Mr. MacInnis said his cross-examination would take, normally, less than an hour. He has been at it for four hours and twenty minutes today. There is nothing upon the basis of information now in his possession which he might not have asked the witness during the examination of today. But instead, he persisted in asking questions about when the man was married and how many children he had, and when he last saw his father. If he can't allocate his time, it is neither my responsibility nor the responsibility of the Court to show him how to do it. But the true reason for his not confining himself in his cross-examination today to the order of your Honor on Friday is apparent from the last statement which he made, that "If we can get further information here by tomorrow, then we may have still further questions." And at the end of tomorrow, it will be the same—"If we can only have one more day, we may find out something else." Now, I respectfully say to your Honor that this witness came here on Tuesday of last week, and he has been here now eight days, and certainly if we are ever going to get to an issue of fact in this case, we must circumscribe the cross-examination of these witnesses within some definite limitation. I think your Honor on Friday when he said to counsel, "We will give you——" —and it was in the middle of the afternoon on Friday— "——until 4:00 o'clock on Monday for counsel on both sides to conclude the examination of this witness," that both [3612] of us ought to be bound by your Honor's determination. Because after all, if your Honor pleases, this witness does have some rights. This witness does have some responsibility. And I think he ought to be permitted to take care of those responsibilities and not to be kept here while Mr. MacInnis sends his agents all over the United States on fishing expeditions. I most respectfully say, if your Honor pleases, he should be required to conform to the order of your Honor on Friday.

Mr. MacInnis: May it please the Court, I think I won't answer the pompous observations of the prosecutor as to whether or not he is going to teach me something about procedure, because I think he is in a rather poor light to make these observations. He is the prosecutor who rose before you this morning and said, "I have a statement to make," and who read off a carefully prepared statement exculpating himself in advance from any complicity, and then announced that he had interviewed his witness over the weekend and that his witness was going to divulge some misstatement that he had made upon the stand. True enough, when we were in chambers at your Honor's behest on last Friday, I had in mind the information which the witness disclosed himself on the stand today; and I said that it would take until today to gain it. I had it in my possession when we came here today; knowing that I had it in my possession, the other side made the disclosure that followed. Now, from what has been said now, I have no way of saying whether or not there will be some [3613] other disclosure tomorrow when these people learn as to what efforts I may have engaged in between noon today and the beginning of court tomorrow, because there are other things about this witness, and I certainly think that if your Honor were to put himself in the place of either counsel, your Honor would say first to himself that never in his experience in any court of law, outside of the moving pictures, has there been a disclosure such as we listened to today, where a witness produced by the Government of the United States, a witness concerning whom this prosecutor had said, "I will vouch personally for this witness," concerning whom the same man had said in a public statement, "If the defense knew who our next witness would be, they would go crazy,"—those are the, that is the situation today. The man who came here and confessed that he was a liar. Now, the prosecutor gets up again, unabashed by what has taken place here, and says, "Your Honor, I suggest that this witness has some rights to get back to his job." In this carefully prepared statement things were left out which have now been brought to the attention of the Court. I suppose he has in mind the family of this witness and the other incidents that were mentioned to your Honor. Well, let me say this, in all friendliness to the Court. If we are to concern ourselves with the families of persons who come here, let's remember the families of the three men who are on trial here, who didn't ask to be brought here at all—the family of Bridges, Schmidt and Robertson. The prosecutor [3614] doesn't have any concern like that for their families in this case. He is not even embarrassed that he has brought here a man who told deliberate and wilful lies not only to the jury but to you, when you asked him as to his reasons for his haste in going home.

All I can say is that everything that this man has testified to, as revealed by his cross-examination on the matters concerning Bridges, to which he made reference, reveals but that there is nothing but a fabric of lies, an opening here and there in his web by which he pretends to remember something out of an incursion into the past, a hole which he quickly closes on cross-examination by saying, "I don't remember," "I have no recollection," "I don't know where I lived at that time," "No, I am sorry I can not help you; I do not know who was there." Well, now, your Honor knows the import of this statement, and I know that your Honor can put a limit upon cross-examination. I suggest respectfully that your Honor does not think that I have intruded upon the good nature of the Court by the examinations here. I will finish the examination of this witness as promptly as I can in the morning.

The Court: What are the legal matters that you have in mind, counsel? You said you have some legal matters in mind.

Mr. MacInnis: I have. Well, your Honor, it certainly would be parading the obvious for me to tell your Honor now that it is our intention to ask the Court in his discretion to hold this [3615] witness for wilful perjury committed in the presence of the Court, admitted here. I have here this morning prepared to do this at the conclusion of his testimony, to argue to the Court, to represent, that I had in my possession definite information which would be based upon sworn testimony in the future concerning the absolute lies told under oath; and I find that my labors have been shortened. A witness does not purge himself of a charge of wilful perjury by a confession, particularly when that confession is only made upon the threshold of his exposure.

As I said a little while before, your Honor, a deception is complete—

The Court: On that score both sides should examine Norris v. The United States. You have that in mind?

Mr. MacInnis: I don't by name, your Honor.

The Court: Examine that case.

Mr. MacInnis: Does your Honor have the citation?

Mr. Donohue: 300 U. S. Reports.

The Court: Supreme Court decision, Justice

Roberts. I had it in connection with other matters —U. S. v. Norris, on that phase of it.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: And may I also suggest, if your Honor pleases, on this question of law: Since this is now the second time that counsel has asked the Court to hold a witness for [3616] perjury——

The Court: One moment, please, Mr. Donohue. May I hear Mr. MacInnis out? I interrupted him there.

Mr. Donohue: Simply was going to cite an authority, that is all, if your Honor please.

The Court: I would like to hear him out.

Mr. MacInnis: I was going to add only this, if your Honor pleases, that I think this observation is one not made out of partisan spirit, with which we represent one side of the case, but it is an observation that would apply to any case. A lie is just as much a lie when it is uttered; and when that lie is exposed, that is merely something that is added to the whole picture. If we hadn't been able to expose this man, his lie would have been just as complete, his falsehood under oath would have been in this record in the same way, it would have been a lie, an absolute lie, about who he is,—this person who steps forward as one of the accusers of three men who sit here as defendants in this trial. By a fortunate circumstance, by diligence, by looking into the background of the witness, the lie is now exposed. But, your Honor, what would have been the circumstance here if your Honor, as you might have done without any error, without any bad faith,— what if your Honor on last Friday had said, "Well this man has been here long enough, I am going to decide that his family and his job must be given some consideration. No, these people have had sufficient time to [3617] examine him, and without any malice toward anyone I am going to say that the man should be allowed to go home"? What if your Honor had done that and the Court and jury would then be deprived of the exposure that came into the record today? But the exposure is here, and he is a liar, a liar under oath and by his own confession. Now, I just don't know what more I could say than to recall to your Honor the almost fevered efforts which were made on behalf of the witness by those who produced him, the prosecutors in this case, to exhort you to let him go home, to go his way last Friday, so that this total exposure would not come upon our ears. Now, that is all I can say at the moment. I might say this, too, if you will forgive me for keeping you a moment longer,—on whether or not this is an instance in which the Court should act.

A few weeks ago, as the prosecutor blandly reminds you now, a similar accusation was based upon irrefutable evidence against two other witnesses for the prosecution, the two professional witnesses, Manning Johnson and Paul Crouch. The matter was referred, at least by letter, to the foreman of the grand jury. As yet nothing has been done. In the same period of time, if you please, two young women went down to some place down the Peninsula and contacted the sacred personage of Mr. Mervyn Rathborne, supposedly a prospective witness for the Government, and asked him what he was going to say. Why, in a moment Mr. Donohue was upon them. He was before the grand jury with Mervyn Rathborne [3618] and on the unsupported testimony of Mervyn Rathborne, a convicted felon—for he was convicted of burglary in 1924 in the city of Los Angeles—two young women have been bound over for trial before this court, indicted because they dared to speak to this man. Now, here we have a situation that doesn't admit of argument. It doesn't admit of discussion, it doesn't admit of the changings of human memory. It doesn't admit of motive, it doesn't admit of intention, it doesn't admit of argument in any way. This man tells us that with the intention of deceiving he has lived a lie for many years of his life, and that he brought that lie into the courtroom and jeopardized the liberty of three men who are the defendants in this case. What more can I say?

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor pleases, it is undoubtedly, as a matter of law, a question for the jury to decide, whether Lawrence Ross correctly identified Harry Bridges as a member of the Communist Party in San Francisco, California, when he so stated, and whether they are to believe the testimony of Lawrence Ross,—though at one time his name may have been Lipman Rosenstein. Mr. MacInnis, who now for the second time,—if we add the accusation by his associate on the first occasion—has made a statement that a witness has committed perjury,—I don't know the purpose of his making the statement at this time before your Honor. It was apparent why Mr. Hallinan made it on the first instance, because he had the advantage of a jury being in the box. But Mr. MacInnis should read the case of [3619] United States v. Brokaw, B-r-o-k-a-w, which is cited at 60 Fed. Sup. at page 100. It is a case from the Southern District of Illinois, in which the Court said this:

"That the United States District——"

The Court: 60 Fed. Sup.?

Mr. Donohue: 60 Fed. Sup. at page 100, and I am reading from page 101, if your Honor pleases:

> "That the United States District Attorney in his capacity as the public prosecutor in his district is clothed with the power and charged with the duties of the Attorney General in England under the common law is generally recognized and supported by the Federal Courts."

Citing United States v. Thompson, 251 U. S. Supreme Court Reports, page 407:

> "In this connection, the federal prosecutor acts in an administrative capacity. He is the representative of the public, in whom is lodged a discretion to be exercised for the general public welfare, a discretion which is not to be controlled by the courts or by any interested individual or by a group of interested individuals who seek redress for alleged wrongs committed against them by use of the criminal process. In United States v. Thompson the Supreme Court held that the federal courts have no power to control the initiation of criminal proceedings, that being the prerogative and duty of the United States District Attorney."

And concluding, the Court says:

> "If he, from a corrupt motive, prosecutes or refuses to prosecute, he is subject to removal from office and criminal prosecution, and that is the only remedy given to this Court."

And so I most respectfully say, if Your Honor pleases, that there seems to be no point in counsel for the defendant raising before Your Honor a suggestion of perjury on the part of any witness. He is in the wrong forum. The forum is the office of the United States Attorney Mr. Frank Hennessy. Of course I won't even dignify the accusation of perjury on the part of this witness with a legal reply, because I think Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis know that the statute under which a perjury indictment must be drawn uses the word "material," and that word they have carefully avoided discussing.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Your Honor, what he means, I suppose, by that last statement is that in him reposes the power to pick and choose, and in him reposes the power to decide whether one person will be accused of perjury and another not. I would like to add one thought, Your Honor. If anyone were looking for a pattern in this case in the production of witnesses for the prosecution, he would be impelled to say this to the Court. Manning Johnson and Paul Crouch came here and gave testimony which we know to be false on a material matter in the case. They placed the chief defendant in this case at a meeting place on [3621] virtually a specific date, when we know that it can be established without question that he was elsewhere. Now, during all of the Christmas recess the prosecutors, who were appointed by our Government to present evidence in this case knew of that situation and knew of the evidence surrounding it. And in the face of that, they thereupon brought here another man, this bogus character, Lawrence Ross, the man of straw, the person who created a new identity for himself. And how did they aid the Court and the jury in its journey for the ascertainment of the truth? Ask yourself that for one moment. We had two witnesses who said they attended the Communist Party convention in New York in 1936; they saw Harry Bridges there. Their word was in jeopardy by the accusation previously made. So they brought this so-called Lawrence Ross to the stand, asked him about the convention, and what did they ask him about whether or not Harry Bridges was there? The record eloquently shows that they asked him nothing. They left it blank. They didn't even take the jury and the Court in on the secret of what they thought to be the changing intendments of his memory.

The Court: Did he not testify that Mr. Bridges was elected to the Central Committee?

Mr. MacInnis: Exactly. He testified that he was at a meeting, and concerning which same meeting the other witnesses testified they saw Bridges—Manning Johnson testified so. The witness Ross says he was there and he did not see Bridges. But [3622] the point is——

Mr. Donohue: Not so.

Mr. MacInnis: But the point is, Your Honor, this: that they failed to ask him the question at all. They left it for the defense—possibly in the hope that the defense wouldn't even explore that and would leave the matter blank. So the defense has to ask the witness whether or not he saw Harry Bridges at that convention.

Now, if there could be conduct on the part of persons charged under our law with a literally sacred duty of protecting the rights of defendants, if you could ever put your finger on conduct amounting to concealment, this would be the classic instance.

The Court: Of course, I am reminded, Mr. MacInnis, of your reference to the Darcy case. People vs. Darcy.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: And my recollection of the Darcy case was and is that Darcy, under the indictment, was charged with swearing falsely with respect to his place of birth. He was in truth and in fact born in Russia. And also with respect to his name and identity.

Mr. MacInnis: Exactly.

The Court: Now, in the Darcy case which was tried in the Hall of Justice by Judge Schoenfeld, it appeared in the indictment that Darcy was charged with false swearing or perjury before [3623] a registrar of voters. He was convicted, Darcy was. The judge suspended sentence and granted unto Darcy probation. I remember, there was considerable comment at the time.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: And thereafter Mr. Darcy prosecuted an appeal. He was then represented by Andersen, Resner, Gladstein and others. And the District Court of Appeals, speaking through Justice Nourse, as I recall, affirmed the conviction. There was a very strong dissenting opinion by Mr. Justice Peters. Thereafter the matter went to the Supreme Court and there was a split on the hearing, whether or not there should be a hearing by the Supreme Court of the State of California. Justice Peters raised serious doubt with respect to whether or not such false swearing was of sufficient materiality to justify a prosecution, even before a registrar of voters.

I have not examined the law in this Circuit, nor have I had an opportunity to examine it. I assume at some stage of the proceeding, probably, defense or prosecution will. But there is a question that ultimately will be reached with respect to the testimony of Mr. Ross on any intended prosecution for perjury or alleged perjury, and that is the materiality of the question. You are thoroughly mindful of that, naturally. And under the Norris case, which you will examine, no doubt, over the nightfall, you will observe that the mere recanting on the stand would not serve to absolve or exculpate a witness from alleged perjurious [3624] statements; that the point of penitence, so to speak, is one that can't be observed if it is given and then capitalized upon by recanting. But those are matters not immediately before the Court. I wanted to determine the extent of your legal position.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say, Your Honor, that there is another——

The Court: The question involved here is, here is a man, Mr. Ross, who testifies that his early years he clothes in another identity. He states that his education was in New York, now, rather than in Kentucky. He states that he studied in Columbia for several years on special courses. The quantum of his education is not at stake, certainly. The matter of his identity changes it. He reaffirms in toto all of the evidence given, other than and independent of his statement or statements in connection with his recanting. He reaffirms that Mr. Bridges was elected to the all-important Central Committee. He reaffirms that Mr. Bridges was at these various places. Now, of course, you will answer me by saying a witness false in one part of his testimony is to be distrusted in others. I am not debating the point with you, Mr. MacInnis. But at some stage of the proceeding, if it is your intention to seek out a prosecution for the alleged perjurious statement, there will have to be demonstrated to the Court and the jury that the statements were material. What have you to say about the materiality? [3625]

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I believe with Your Honor, of course, that some study might well be given to that point. But I would suggest that without any study, there is another crime that is revealed by the testimony of the witness. He gave false statements to his draft board. Now it is fundamental law that all of the statements made upon draft registration are under oath and that they all carry the penalties similar to penalties to perjury and that there is no statute of limitations upon them. They take place in wartime.

The Court: That may well be. But to what extent would that be considered as material in the controversy presently before this Court between the United States of America and Messrs. Bridges, Robertson and Schmidt with respect to his alleged perjurious statements before a draft board?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, of course, the fact that in this prepared statement of this morning he carefully says that he doesn't take back his testimony about the defendants, I would have this comment. If we didn't have any of this material about the identity of Ross, if we had no occasion to suspect he was somebody else and that he lived a lie in some phases of his life, changed his identity, refused to admit that he came here as an alien and so forth, we would have, I think, serious doubts as to his credibility upon the case in chief, because he was examined and showed nothing but vagueness of memory about any of the matters to which he gave lip service on the stand. Now, on the [3626] matter of materiality, I would be glad to accept Your Honor's suggestion and do some research upon it.

Mr. Hallinan: Could I make a suggestion on that, if Your Honor please?

The Court: Yes, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: Here is a thing that is extremely material. This man is an alien, and he would be subject to deportation by the Government and all sorts of things. In addition to that, he is liable for prosecution under the Draft Act and half a dozen other things. They have a handle on him. They have a whip over him. And we feel convinced that that whip has been exercised purposely, vigorously, by this gentleman here who isn't a United States official at all, but who has just come into the case purposely in order to get a conviction in this one case and that this is the means they use to hammer this wretch into getting up here and testifying falsely on the other things. Now, whether or not they have a handle upon him, whether or not they are able to exercise that, is emphatically material.

Mr. Donohue: Of course, if Your Honor pleases, with his usual capabilities for misstatement, Mr. Hallinah has referred to the witness as an alien. He is not an alien; he is a citizen of the United States.

The Court: He is a citizen by derivative citizenship?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, sir.

Mr. Hallinan: What evidence have we on that? The evidence [3627] of a man who admits he is a liar?

The Court: Pardon me. That is a contention, derivative citizenship.

Mr. Donohue: It is evidence which satisfies the United States that he is a citizen of the United States.

Mr. Hallinan: It will satisfy Mr. Donohue.

Mr. Donohue: May I say to Your Honor that we are a little bit off the real purpose, I thought, of this discussion because I think without question the only person who can determine whether or not a prosecution for perjury should be initiated is Mr. Frank Hennessy, the United States Attorney for this District.

The Court: Well, to some extent, Mr. Donohue, one discussion begets the other. You observe that?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, I quite agree, Your Honor. And I am not going to comment about the misstatement of Mr. MacInnis at any great length, that the witness Ross attended the same meeting at which the witnesses Crouch and Johnson said Harry Bridges was present, because the witness Ross said he did not attend the meeting of the Central Committee of the Communist Party in 1936, because he was not a member. I thought we began this discussion for the purpose of determining whether counsel was to be bound by Your Honor's order on Friday with respect to the duration of the cross examination of that witness, or if we were to go over to tomorrow with the statement made by Mr. MacInnis, that "We will do the best we can to get through some time tomorrow." [3628] I think there should be a fixed time within which this cross examination should end, and I respectfully say it should end at the time Your Honor ordered last Friday.

The Court: Well, the matter will go over until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. The witness Ross to be in attendance at that time.

We will stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

Mr. MacInnis: May I hold Your Honor for one moment? We would like to request, if the Court please, that Mr. Barber be asked to be in attendance tomorrow.

The Court: Mr. Barber—is he in court?

Mr. Donohue: No, he is not. ~~I shall have him here.~~

Mr. MacInnis: He has been strangely absent here today.

Mr. Donohue: I shall have him here tomorrow.

The Court: We will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, January 10, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [3629]

January 10, 1950, 10:30 o'Clock

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lawrence Ross, heretofore sworn.

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Witness, when you testified before the Congressional Committee in December 1934, in Los Angeles, you testified that stool pigeons were put into your organization by hostile organizations, is that right?

A. Yes, sir, I believe so.

Q. What were those hostile organizations?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor pleases; has no bearing on the issue here what they may have done.

Mr. MacInnis: Goes to credibility, Your Honor, and memory.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You told this Court and jury under oath in your early testimony that you were chosen to an office in the Communist Party because you were an American and so many of the members in Southern California were aliens, didn't you? A. That's correct.

Q. Who were you trying to deceive at that time?

A. No one.

Q. That wasn't the fact, though, was it?

A. It certainly was. [3630]

Q. You were just as much foreign-born as any of the members of the Communist Party in Los Angeles, weren't you?

A. But yet an American, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Pardon me? A. But yet an American.

Q. By your change an identity, you mean?

A. No, sir.

Q. Coming back to this meeting that you said you attended, where you saw Harry Bridges at a place called Sokol Hall, is that the place where you say the man named Schneidermann made a speech?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He made a speech and told about his trip to Russia?

A. He made a speech in which he told not about his trip to Russia, but about the proceedings of the

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Seventh World Congress of the Communist International.

Q. And who was the chairman of that meeting?

A. Of my own recollection, I don't know.

Q. Of your own recollection you don't know?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Kaiser tell you that the witness John Schomaker had testified that you, under the name of Lawrence Ross, were the chairman of that particular meeting?

A. I believe Mr. Kaiser told me that someone had said, whether in court or not I don't know, that I was the chairman of that [3631] meeting; but I had to tell Mr. Kaiser that I had no recollection of being the chairman. I wish I could have. I didn't and don't now.

Q. Now, you told us yesterday that Mr. Barber gave you information about your father's immigration record. A. That's correct.

Q. And that he told you the facts of your birth in Poland, your arrival in this country, the fact that you were a derivative citizen and that that was based on your father's naturalization papers.

A. Correct.

Q. Now, what did he tell you about your father's naturalization? When did he tell you it took place and where?

A. I don't recall that he told me where. I think he said the year 1915 or possibly 1914—somewhere around there.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Q. When was it that he conveyed this information to you?

A. Yesterday morning before I came to court.

Q. Where did you see Mr. Barber yesterday?

A. Yesterday morning? At his office I assume, at the United States Appraisers Building.

Q. What time were you down there yesterday morning?

A. Possibly 9:15, 9:20 or 9:30; I would say between 9:15 and 9:30.

Q. And although he gave you that information yesterday morning, you can't tell us now the date or the place of your father's [3632] naturalization?

A. I don't recall that he gave me the place. I believe the date he mentioned was 1914 or 1915.

Q. Did you tell the jury under oath yesterday that your brother changed his name at the time of the naturalization? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't?

A. I told the jury I believed that shortly after I changed my name,—how soon after I don't know—my brother adopted the Americanization as to his name. But that statement was not made in connection with any naturalization proceedings.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe I can find that, Your Honor, if Your Honor will bear with me a [3633] minute.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Referring to page 3574 of the transcript your Honor—referring to your testimony under oath yesterday,

"Q. Did you ever disclose to your brother that you had changed your identity to the extent that you were claiming your birthplace to be the State of Kentucky? A. I don't recall doing that. I don't believe I discussed it with him. Incidentally, he too adopted the name of Ross at the time of the naturalization."

A. No, sir, I do not recall making that statement. I really don't. He couldn't have adopted the name at the time of the naturalization because I had not yet adopted that name.

Q. You suggest the official court reporter was in error?

A. I am afraid so. I adopted the name or Americanized the name from Rosenstein to Ross when I was approximately 16 or 17 years old. That would put it in 1919 or 1920. The naturalization was either in 1914 or 1915. So there was an error there obviously.

Q. We are to assume, where your testimony is concerned, that a reading of the record itself may not even reveal what you really said?

A. I think there was an error as to that, Mr. MacInnis. The time element, I think, shows that it obviously must have been an error.

Q. Now, as to whether or not the Government made any investigation into your past, you say that at one time, either last [3634] November or in May of 1949 when you appeared before the grand jury in this district, you had some discussion with some of the prosecutors in this case about the Dies Committee report concerning you?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. At one time—not the Dies Committee report. Let me refresh my memory if I can. We discussed my testimony before the Kramer Sub-committee, I think it was referred to, and attention was called to the fact, I believe, from some report that was in their possession that a Dies Committee or someone connected with the Dies Committee had said that at one time my name was Rosenfeld and I was born in the Bronx. That is the best of my recollection.

Q. They told you that, however?

A. Pardon?

Q. The prosecutors told you that they had such a report?

A. It was not the prosecutor. It was possibly Mr. Kaiser, possibly Mr. Barber. I can't recall which one.

Q. One of those men told you about the existence of their knowledge of it——

A. It was referred to.

Q. It was not you who told them about it?

A. That is correct. I had no recollection of it at that time.

Q. Yesterday didn't you say this under oath: Question by me to you:

> "Q. Didn't they tell you that the records of the Dies [3635] Committee, the Un-American Activities Committee of Congress for the month of July 1941 had mentioned your name?
> "A. I told them that."

A. That is correct; I told them, Mr. MacInnis, that I knew—May I please finish my question?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Dramatics mean nothing at this point. I told them I knew after 1941——

Q. You are correct. After what you said, nothing means anything.

The Court: Counsel, let us give him an opportunity to answer the question.

The Witness: I told either Mr. Kaiser or Mr. Barber—I rather believe it was Mr. Kaiser—that in the summer of 1941 the reason for my dismissal as an organizer of the CIO, as stated in the press, was that a Dies Committee investigator had made the statement that I was a member of the Communist Party, that at that time the CIO was attempting to purge itself of known Communists; that thinking I was then a Communist I was then dismissed from my position.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): So both of those answers are true, that they told you about it and you were the one that called it to their attention?

A. Yes, they occurred at different times.

Q. Going a little further into the same realm of research, didn't Mr. Kaiser tell you that your fingerprints were on file [3636] with the FBI?

A. No, sir.

Q. You had been fingerprinted, hadn't you?

A. Oh, yes, in connection with my Communist activities, yes, sir.

Q. And from your knowledge of matters of that kind you know and you have been told that the national headquarters of the FBI keeps a vast fingerprint collection, probably the largest in the world?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. Donohue: May I object, if your Honor please? What has that possibly to do with the subject at issue?

The Court: I assume counsel will come to it. I will allow it.

A. That was not referred to in any conversation I had with any Government agency.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You have been fingerprinted, have you not?

A. In connection with my activities as a Communist.

Q. You were fingerprinted in September of 1936 when you and a man named Dave Sorensen were arrested in Los Angeles?

Mr. Donohue: Just a moment. The man says he has been fingerprinted.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I won't violate your Honor's ruling apparently on these specific questions, but I will ask you this: [3637]

Q. How many times have you been fingerprinted?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this goes to show the obvious knowledge of the Government prosecutors in this case. We have to assume that the ordinary things are done. One organization which has never been accused of lack of diligence is the FBI. Every fingerprint in America is on file.

The Court: Counsel, I would not require an argument at this time on that. The witness has testified he has been fingerprinted on several occasions. I assume. How many occasions do you contend, counsel?

Mr. MacInnis: I would think six or seven, ten, twelve.

Q. (By the Court): Is that approximately correct?

A. I would say five possibly. That is my best recollection; possibly four.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And when you say "fingerprinting," you mean by that the process by which the prints of your fingers were given to a police agency? A. Yes.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, that is so incompetent that I can't keep my seat. Counsel ought to know better than that. Even Mr. MacInnis ought to know better.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): So that to your knowledge, Mr. Witness, for the past fifteen years or more your fingerprints have been in the possession of police agencies? [3638]

A. I know they were taken four or five times when I was an active Communist, yes.

Q. Now, in these conversations that you had this last week-end with Mr. Barber, Mr. Boyd, Mr. Donohue, Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Kidder and Miss Drum, if she was there, and these other people from the Immigration Department, did Mr. Kaiser tell you that a little after noon on last Friday Mr. Barber had telephoned to the registrar of the University of Kentucky and found out by telephone that you had never attended that school? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, I not only object to the question because there is no basis in fact for it, but I would like to state to your Honor that the records of the Immigration Service show that at 4:35 p.m. on Friday afternoon a telegram was sent in the form of a night letter to the registrar of the University of Kentucky over the signature of Bruce G. Barber in this language:

> "Please advise collect Western Union date and name of classes attended during approximate period 1918 to 1924 by Lawrence Seton Ross, born Middlesboro, Kentucky June 24, 1903."

I would like also to call your Honor's attention to the fact that a reply to that telegram was received——

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor——

Mr. Donohue: ——addressed—Will you permit me to [3639] continue?

Mr. MacInnis: I think the time for recitation of evidence is out of the lips of the witness on the stand.

Mr. Donohue: Not when you put statements in a question to the witness which are false.

Mr. MacInnis: We are certainly not going to be bound by any statements from this prosecutor in the light of what has occurred.

The Court: The question itself assumes a state of facts which apparently has not been justified in the light of the offense. I think Mr. Donohue is competent to tell the Court at this time the nature of the telegrams, the time and place.

Mr. Donohue: This telegram, if your Honor please, was delivered to the Western Union office here in the city of San Francisco——,

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me, your Honor. Are we to be bound by what this man says here now? Why should he be allowed to make a statement of that kind? Let him take the stand so we can cross-examine him to show their real interest in this case. We have accused him of being part of this conspiracy, accused him of it in open court, and he gets up here and vouches for another fellow who is just his tool, gets up here and reads a telegram and wants us to take his word for it. [3640]

The Court: Mr. Donohue, reserve your showing, then,——

Mr. Donohue: This, if Your Honor pleases, is with respect to an objection to a question asked of this witness by Mr. MacInnis, in which he states that Mr. Barber made a phone call about noon on Friday to the University of Kentucky registrar.

Mr. Hallinan: We know he did, Your Honor, and let Mr. Barber take the stand and testify he didn't. We will show them whether he did or not. Having this man get up and then testify, talk for one of his co-conspirators; that is a fine state of affairs! He knows what we are accusing him of. We promised that we would show a conspiracy and the roots of it here. They are Barber, Boyd, Donohue, Kaiser, all in it just as deep as this man on the stand. And he is to get up here and make a statement of what is in a telegram, what he says is in a telegram, and clear everybody's skirts. Let him take the stand and testify.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, there is no justification at this stage of the proceeding for the remarks of Mr. Hallinan with respect to a conspiracy between this witness and the government agents. There is no evidence before the Court to sustain or justify that assertion. The assertion is unwarranted by the facts and represents misconduct on Mr. Hallinan's part at this time. I instruct you to disregard the statement.

Mr. Hallinan: Now, Your Honor, I want to enter a very [3641] strong exception to the Court's statement. The jury is entitled——

The Court: You have the exception, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: The jury is entitled to determine whether there is a conspiracy and whether these people are in it, and we assert and will continue to prove it, and I ask Your Honor to withdraw that statement from the jury. I think it was ill advised and I think it wasn't made with sufficient reflection. Here we have shown their efforts to get this man out of the court just as they tried to get Manning Johnson out of the court. We will show Your Honor presently that Mr. Donohue has openly lied to you when he was trying to do this.

The Court: I said, Mr. Hallinan, at this stage of the proceedings there is no evidence before this

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

Court or jury of any asserted action that would justify the charge of conspiracy between the agents of the Government and this witness. I stand on my assertion to the jury, I stand on my conduct.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, we ask an exception be entered.

The Court: You have an exception. Now, you may proceed with the witness. And, Mr. Donohue, I suggest that whatever material you have as to the communications you had with the university, that you take that up at the proper time.

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor pleases, on the ground that it states as a conclusion of fact a fact which is not established before this jury. [3642]

The Court: Will you reframe the question, Mr. MacInnis? There is an assumption of fact in the question as you phrased it. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: I see.

Q. Were you told on Saturday when you talked to Kaiser and to these other men of the government prosecution and made your so-called disclosure that they had already made inquiries about whether or not you went to school in Kentucky?

A. No, sir.

Q. They didn't reveal that to you?

A. They made no reference to it at all.

Q. In fact, as you said yesterday, they withheld that information from you?

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

A. I said if it was done, it was withheld. I don't know that it was done.

Q. Were you told that Mr. Barber either on Friday night or early Saturday morning had sent a wire to Mr. Clyde Lasseter of the Middleboro school?

A. No, sir; my first knowledge of any such action was yesterday morning when I was shown a copy of a telegram signed by Lasseter.

Q. That is Monday morning?

A. That's correct.

Q. So that when you talked to these men on Saturday, taking your own story at its face value, you made a disclosure to them, but they said nothing to you about any knowledge that they either [3643] did or didn't possess? A. That's correct.

Q. You say that that was a revelation that you made voluntarily? A. That's correct.

Q. After you left court here in the middle of Friday afternoon, between that time and the first conference you had with these prosecutors on Saturday morning, Mr. Kaiser, for example, had not said anything to you about the discrepancies in your testimony? A. No, sir.

Q. No government agent discussed with you the questions which you say were going on in your mind? A. No, sir.

Q. No government agent spoke to you, "What is the situation here, Mr. Witness?"

A. No, sir.

Q. No government agent said, "The defense has asked for another day to get information about the witness. What is that information that they are seeking?" A. No, sir.

Q. Nobody asked you that question?

The Court: You had something to say?

The Witness: I was about to add——

The Court: All right, go ahead.

The Witness: I was about to add that on Saturday morning [3644] when I told Mr. Kaiser I wanted to talk to him, that I had a statement to make, he said, "I am not surprised. I knew there was something worrying you, something on your mind." But before that, Saturday morning, there was no discussion between myself or any other government agent, as to the nature of the statement that I did make Saturday morning.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): In other words, nobody said to you on Friday night, "What is this about your attending Morris High School?"

A. No, sir.

Q. Nobody said, "Is that just a smoke screen or is it the truth?" A. No, sir.

Q. And nobody said to you, "What is this about your father not being a Kentucky planter, but being a needle worker in the Bronx?" A. No, sir.

Q. Nobody even raised the suggestion in spite of your testimony here?

A. No, sir, no one connected with the Government discussed it with me at all, or I with them, or any one of them, before Saturday morning.

Q. And then on Saturday when you made what you call this volunteer disclosure to the government

(Testimony of Lawrence S. Ross.)

men, no one of those men who was present told you that they already knew those facts? [3645]

A. No, sir.

Q. You made the statement and they did not supplement it by any further facts?

A. No, sir.

Q. And you talked to them during the afternoon of Saturday, didn't you?

A. No, sir, not to any group of them. I was with Mr. Kaiser.

Q. How about Sunday? You talked on Sunday after the other events of your day to the prosecutors—Mr. Donohue, Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Barber and Mr. Boyd at 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon, didn't you?

A. That's correct. No, I don't think Mr. Boyd was there. I think Mr. Paisley was there.

Q. And when you made your disclosure in that conversation, did those men tell you that they already knew that the facts were not as you had testified?

A. There was no disclosure made at that meeting, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. They didn't say a word to you about what they knew or didn't know?

A. No, sir, I told them all. In the statement the previous day, Saturday morning, I had told them.

Q. They didn't tell you that they had checked themselves and found that you had testified falsely?

A. No, they did not.

Q. So, as far as you know, Mr. Witness, if you hadn't made what [3646] you call this volunteer disclosure, these men were prepared to let you go ahead and stick to your stock? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: Would Your Honor indulge us just a moment, please?

We have no further questions of the witness, if Your Honor pleases. May I suggest a recess now? At the end of the recess we will be prepared with our next witness, if Your Honor pleases.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, may I——

The Court: We will take the morning recess. I will hear your statement out. I think I have in mind what you probably are going to discuss with the Court.

The Witness: Am I excused, Your Honor?

The Court: Remain in Court until I discuss this matter.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the morning recess at this time. May I again admonish you not to discuss this case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you. You may now retire. The Court will take a five minute recess.

The Court: We will take a short recess, gentlemen, and then I will resume. Mr. Mitchell will call you. We will resume in about five or ten minutes.

The Court: You may proceed, counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: May it please the Court, there is little that I could add to those things which were said last night at the conclusion of our afternoon session, except that it appears to me that those accusations which we made based upon the testimony of the man who now calls himself Lawrence Ross are now highlighted with a macabre touch, and I mean this: I call your Honor's attention to the last question and answer put to this man:

> "Mr. Witness, so far as you know, if you had not made this so-called voluntary disclosure, these men were prepared to let you go ahead and stick to your story?"

And he answered, "Yes."

Now, the prosecutor, of course, denies any knowledge of the false statements given by the witness. We have the witness' more recent statement about these conferences had over the week-end, when he says he made voluntary disclosures. They asked him no questions; they told him of no suspicions they had, and not until Monday morning did anyone say to him, after it was agreed he was to make this disclosure and Mr. Donohue was to make his preamble or speech, at last they told him after it was all over that they had some information.

Today in defense of himself and the propriety of his conduct in this case the chief prosecutor rose before you and started to tell you the dates and times of certain telegrams which [3648] he says were received by Mr. Barber. He did not tell you about any telephone calls which might have been placed before the confirming wires were received. Now, I have a wire here dated July 7—this is not the wire I showed you on Friday last—that was the wire from the registrar of the University of Kentucky showing that the man never attended the University of Kentucky. We had telephoned that institution around noon or a little after, our time, and the wire came here in time to be produced in court about twenty minutes after two. On Saturday this wire was received:

> "There is no record showing Lawrence Seton Ross ever attended any schools in Middlesboro, Kentucky. Same information given to Bruce Barber by wire today."

We could go on into our search into the past. We have not been able to find any record of the naturalization of this man's father, but the lies he has told, of course, are ingrained just as clearly in your Honor's mind as they are in ours, and we suggest that the entreaty we made to your Honor yesterday be adopted and that your Honor take appropriate action.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, of course your Honor knows as well as I do that in all these cases where the allegation in an indictment has something to do with Communism or the Communist Party, that the methods of defense are always the same: "Don't try the defendants, try the witnesses," and these men—and I feel I can state this freely now in the absence [3649] of the jury—these men have sunk so low that they have called me this morning a liar. I did not reply at the time, if your Honor pleases, because my reply might not have been with the same measure of dignity with which I now address myself to your Honor. It is a very difficult position in which I find myself, not as Mr. Donohue, a member of the bar, but as a special representative of the Attorney General of the United States, in which capacity it would not be seemly to engage in a brawl with brawlers.

Mr. MacInnis has just stated to your Honor that he made a telephone call to the registrar of the University of Kentucky about noon on Friday, and that he received a telegram and a confirming telegram on Saturday morning which referred to the fact that an inquiry by telegram had been made by Mr. Barber, of that same registrar of that same university. Mr. MacInnis has told this jury, and Mr. Hallinan has told this jury, that he would show that Mr. Barber called the University of Kentucky by telephone on noon of Friday for the purpose of attempting to establish what he has failed and must forever fail to establish, that we of the prosecution knew of the misidentification of himself by the witness, Lawrence Ross, until the witness Lawrence Ross disclosed that fact on Saturday morning. Mr. MacInnis and Mr. Hallinan have said that they would show that Mr. Barber made a telephone call to the registrar of the University of Kentucky on Friday, which they have failed to do, and they must [3650] fail to do so, your Honor, because no such phone call was made.

I attempted this morning to call your Honor's attention to the fact that at 4:35 p.m. on Friday afternoon two telegrams were handed by the Immigration Service to the Western Union office in the Immigration building. The records of the Western Union will show that the telegram which was sent to the registrar of the University of Kentucky, which was delivered to the Western Union by the Immigration Service at 4:35 p.m. on Friday was actually transmitted by the Western Union Telegraph Company from here to Kentucky at 7:33 p.m. Friday night by night letter, and that the reply which was received by the Immigration Service addressed to Mr. Barber as its director bears the date of Saturday morning, 11:25, and the stamp on the back shows that it was received by the Immigration Service on Monday morning at 8:44. The same with respect to a telegram sent at the same time and the answer received at the same time which was sent by Mr. Barber to the principal of the Middlesboro High School at Middlesboro, Kentucky.

Of course, if your Honor pleases, we are not fools, and it was apparent to me when Lawrence Ross on the stand on Friday afternoon was unable to identify a single student in the University of Kentucky, that perhaps he might never have gone there, and for that reason at my direction on Friday afternoon [3651] the telegrams heretofore identified were sent.

The first information, if your Honor pleases, which I had that Mr. Ross was ever known by any other name, was the information which he gave me on Saturday morning. Of course, I knew that the Dies Committee or an investigator of the Dies Committee had sent a telegram and put it in evidence that Lawrence Ross was known by another name. Of course, I saw the letter which he wrote, and which I didn't object to being offered in evidence yesterday, immediately denying the allegation contained in that telegram because Lawrence Ross had consistently and repeatedly denied, until yesterday on the stand, that he ever was known by any other name than Lawrence Ross. Yet, if your Honor pleases, counsel for these defendants, who began by using the word with respect to the first witness—and you can run through the gamut—"hobo, bum, walking boss, Are you crazy?, perjurer, black hyena from hell"—I have always been taught, if your Honor pleases, that the credibility of a witness is to be determined by the jury and is not to be influenced or affected by insinuations and castigations coming from counsel. When the time comes and the issues in this trial are placed in the hands of this jury, Mr. Hallinan will have his opportunity then, and he should reserve his remarks until that time, and he may be sure that he will be well and completely answered.

Now, just a few minutes before this witness completed his [3652] testimony, and after your Honor, after great patience over a long period of time, so properly held that Mr. Hallinan's inflammatory remarks were misconduct, he then, in objecting to your Honor's so holding, referred to me as a liar. I most respectfully say to your Honor that when this jury returns the jury should be explicitly and expressly told that they should disregard, as though not said, that accusation in that language by Mr. Hallinan, who has promised to prove a fact to this jury which he has not established and which he can never establish.

The Court: Pardon my interruption. I thought my admonition covered that phase.

Mr. Donohue: I thought your admonition covered only the matter which was the subject matter of your Honor's holding Mr. Hallinan's conduct as misconduct.

The Court: When did he characterize you as——

Mr. Donohue: He said I had lied to this Court, if your Honor pleases, in his objection to your Honor's holding him or his conduct as misconduct. I assume in the normal processes of this trial that if Mr. Hallinan were able to establish the fact that the prosecution concealed from this Court and jury information concerning the identity of Mr. Ross, that they would in due course produce it. Twice yesterday, and in his usual evasive way, when I asked Mr. MacInnis to let us come to the point, let us prove this conspiracy about which you are [3653] talking, he said, as he has always said, as he said with respect to our attempt to pin him down on a telegram of a conviction against Manning Johnson, and as we tried to pin him down on the alleged question and answer in the so-called record of a proceeding at which the witness Schomaker testified—"We will come to that later." They never want to come to that point, if your Honor pleases, because they know there is no such point. And I most respectfully say to your Honor, though it may be beyond the purview of this trial, it is not beyond the purview of the authority of your Honor. If these men have such evidence, let them produce it now and stop making nasty, vile accusations which are not supported by fact or are not true.

Then in his usual way Mr. MacInnis concludes by saying,

> "I said all that I could say last night about the question of perjury on the part of Lawrence Ross."

I do not establish the law, if your Honor please, but the law is clear. The law is clear when it says that a determination as to the initiation of a criminal prosecution is in the hands of the United States Attorney, to whom these people can make their complaint if they think they have a complaint to make. Of course, they would be delighted if we could abate this trial and try now three perjury indictments. That would serve their immediate and their ultimate purposes. But as I understand the law, we are here for the purpose of trying the issues framed between the United States and Harry Bridges, and yet I read [3654] last night with some measure of shame 154 pages of testimony yesterday and not a single question asked of the witness with respect to his testimony against Harry Bridges, but merely an attempt to find out when he abandoned his daughter, if he did, abandoned his children—no evidence of it except in the insinuation in the question of Mr. MacInnis.

"Did you, when you were in New York, make a false statement when you applied for a marriage license?"

Where is the marriage license? Are we going to believe that what Mr. MacInnis states in a question is a fact? I most respectfully say, if your Honor pleases, that short and quick answer to the suggestion made by Mr. MacInnis with respect to alleged perjurious statements made by the witness Lawrence Ross. It is not your Honor's responsibility nor mine to determine that fact. And with respect to the statement made by Mr. Hallinan that I deliberately lied to this Court, I say, if your Honor pleases, that now is the time if ever for him to establish that by proof. [3655]

Mr. Hallinan: Might I speak briefly on that, Your Honor? Now, we have the remarkable situation of this counsel, this special prosecutor, getting up here and admitting that he knew while the witness was on the stand and the questions were being addressed to him that he had committed some deception concerning his name and his identity; and that after the adjournment of court, he suggested to Mr. Barber that he wire these people. What did he do when he suspected that the witness was deceiving the Court and jury? He fought as vigorously as he could to get him out of that witness chair, out of the court and out of the state. He made a determined and vigorous effort, bolstered by the witness himself, to prevent the Court, the jury and counsel from determining whether or not there was any falsehood or any deception in the witness' testimony. And this man vigorously, actively, almost fiercely, importuned the Court as to the injustice and the wrong that was being done the fellow because he couldn't get out his special edition of the paper, and his children couldn't get back to school, when he stupidly—because I don't think he does it honestly—admits that he knew from the witness' demeanor and answers that he was telling lies on the witness stand. And if that were the first time, Your Honor, then it might be credited to some deficiencies of intellect, but it is the second time, because he worked with more fervor than that to extricate his tool, Mr. Crouch, from a similar position. The argument and the entreaties placed before the [3656] Court not only in the courtroom but in chambers by this man, who tells us how he is a special representative of the United States Government, to get his perjurers out of this court so they couldn't be questioned further, to speed them off to a distant part of the United States, is in itself a condemnation and is one of the reasons why I asked Your Honor not to suggest to the jury that there wasn't evidence of conspiracy here, because there is evidence.

Now, he gets up and makes—he doesn't seem to realize the position he is in. He doesn't seem to realize the implication that everybody who sits in this courtroom entertains as regards him. He thinks that he still has prestige. He gets up here and he vouches for these witnesses, as though it were a sort of moral Morris Plan that he is co-signing; but he is more bankrupt than the witnesses are. He has less credit than they have. He tells how he has been sent here as a special attorney for the United States Government and I submit, Your Honor, that I have not seen inferior merits or inferior qualities better rewarded since Caligula made a consul of his horse and Charles II knighted a beefsteak. I haven't seen the gentleman's equal in legal perspicacity since poor Jimmy Carroll died down in the San Francisco police court.

Now, in all this proof of perjury—complete, unassailable, what is his answer? A criticism of the men who uncover it, an explanation and a justification of the witnesses. Does he get [3657] up and say as an officer of this Government, "I concede and I see that we have been deceived by these people and that they have committed perjury and proper steps should be taken on it"? No, he tries to excuse them, he lies about them; he tries to hide and conceal everything he has.

Your Honor, I said at the origin of this case that we would, that the jury and the Court would, see bloom in this courtroom a rotten, stinking fungus. It is now here. The light has shown upon it a little earlier than I expected, and it is beginning already to wither and fade away. But in that light one can discern the roots and filaments of it. Mr. Boyd, Mr. Barber, collectors, trainers and educators of perjurers and perjury—Mr. Kaiser, herdsman and sleeping companion, and Mr. Donohue, front and hatchet man of a mob. The conspiracy is worse and dirtier than I even suspected it was. This man points up the exact reason why special prosecutors are ordinarily not favored in courts.

We have in this District as fine, as able and as honorable a man as any practicing lawyer in the State of California—in the United States of America, and that is Mr. Frank Hennessy. He has young men in his office that wouldn't give this man a job as office boy as far as ability is concerned. But, no, they are not permitted in the case. We have to have some sort of a special fellow to come in. And the reason, Your Honor, is there isn't anybody in the United States Attorney's office dirty [3658] enough to persist in this case and to defend these witnesses and their conduct.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan,——

Mr. Hallinan: Very well, Your Honor.

The Court: I say to you that there is nothing you have said in your last ten or fifteen minutes that would aid or assist me in making a determination in this matter at hand.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, then, let me close with one sentence.

The Court: Your personal reflections, of course, I ignore, because I consider that that is part and parcel of the pattern that has grown up in this case—unfortunately. I say unfortunately, now.

Mr. Hallinan: And I might say this, Your Honor, as far as the misfortune of that is concerned.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Hallinan: And as far as personal recriminations are concerned. Can you cast your mind back to about the first week in this trial when for, as I suggested before, what at worst could be considered an overzealousness in attempting to protect the rights of my clients—it may be a mistake in matters of procedure—Your Honor found fit to find me guilty of contempt of court. And this fine gentleman stood up and berated and insulted and said every vile and mean thing he could, while a couple of bailiffs held me here and I was in terror of answering him for fear you would put me out of the case and my poor [3659] client would be improperly represented. And instead of finding fault, Your Honor, you then invited the other carpetbagger to get up and add his quota. And after he had exhausted his meanness, then the old banshee that sits in the back and croaks out an objection occasionally got up and added something to it. And I think that might have been a proper time, if the Court please, to be concerned with the niceties and the sensibilities of lawyers practicing in the court. But that has not been done, and as it has not been, I assume that we are all entitled and all requested or authorized by the Court to say what we choose and what we believe. And I say now in closing that anything I have said about Mr. Donohue, any implications or any inferences that I have made as to his dishonesty and his corruption, I double and redouble.

The Court: I have already stated to the jury, and I now repeat for the record, that the evidence thus far does not disclose any conspiracy on the part of either Mr. Donohue or any of the government attorneys or the government agents in and with respect to the conduct of Lawrence Ross. I admonish the jury. If I neglected to admonish the jury to disregard the statement made by Mr. Hallinan that Mr. Donohue is or was a liar, I shall do that promptly upon their return here.

I stated to you, Mr. Hallinan, that your remarks have not convinced me with respect to any immediate order that I may make. I do not believe that the remarks were well taken or in [3660] judicial good taste at this time, or at any other time. However, we have the matter of Lawrence Seton Ross at hand. We discussed rather briefly last evening the matter of the legalistics and materiality and so forth. I do not believe it is the function of this Court to pass upon the matter of materiality at this juncture. That is, with respect to the subject matter of the testimony which Mr. Ross falsified. However, I do believe that the matter of Lawrence Seton Ross should be referred to Mr. Frank Hennessy, the United States Attorney in this district, and to the grand jury for such action as may be taken in the premises. That is my order.

Now, you might call the jury.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, might I make one other suggestion in regard to that? Now, the evidence against Ross consists to a large part in his own admissions. The evidence against Crouch and Johnson is just as conclusive, more conclusive, and the testimony that they gave was more vital. However, Ross loses nerve and recanted. Johnson and Crouch stuck with their story. By his recantation Ross obviously and openly injures the prosecution, and in fact, reflects upon their credit. Crouch and Ross, by staying with their story, preserve some shreds of covering for these gentlemen. I am afraid that if the Court's action only extends to Ross, an inference might be entertained by those who would be willing to entertain it, that Ross is being specially distinguished only because he has [3661] recanted and made an open statement.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I made my statement with respect to Mr. Crouch and the witness Manning Johnson heretofore. I made a full and complete statement for the record; I have nothing to add to it or subtract from it. What I have to say with respect to Mr. Ross carries with it, of course, no recommendation to Mr. Hennessy. I have full faith and confidence that Mr. Hennessy will make a careful study of this record, in the light of five or six days' testimony, and take such action as he may be advised. I do not control Mr. Hennessy's conduct, nor can I assume to control it.

Mr. Hallinan: I only suggested Your Honor include the other two witnesses in the recommendation.

The Court: No, that is my order.

Mr. Hallinan: Very well.

Mr. MacInnis: May I say something? Now, is it part of Your Honor's order that this witness remains under the process of the Court similar to the order that you made in the case of the other two men?

The Court: Not necessarily. I don't see any immediate reason. Whatever action the grand jury may take with Mr. Hennessy in the premises is a matter of their concern.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I would like to say one more thing, if I may. Now, I appreciate Your Honor's comments upon the remarks of Mr. Hallinan. Your Honor is apparently of the [3662] present mind that the characterizations which he made are not presently based on——

The Court: I said——

Mr. MacInnis: Now I have some facts,——

The Court: I said he did not assist me in any wise in making an order or coming to any conclusion in matters of vituperation and that sort of thing—they never assist me.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to add these facts, Your Honor, to those characterizations—advisedly, because I think it is my duty to do so.

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, is there evidence that would support the reflections which have been made about the character and the motives of the men who conduct this prosecution? Now I say there is. Yesterday at the close of our judicial day the chief prosecutor, this specially appointed man, Mr. Donohue, made a public statement that the reason he and his cohorts didn't know anything about the background of Ross was that they depended upon an ordinary FBI check on the background of the witnesses. This morning a man of real integrity, Mr. Harry Kimball, the head of the FBI in San Francisco, made a public statement that the FBI hasn't been brought into this case at all, and that all of the checkups have been made by Barber, Kaiser and the Immigration Department.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, that is a matter of unofficial [3663] concern. I have not been advised as to Mr. Kimball's statement, I haven't read it. I, of course, will accept your statement on the subject. But it doesn't aid or assist me. It is merely—well, you might call the jury.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say this, Your Honor. I made the last suggestion not to attempt to influence Your Honor on his order in respect of Lawrence Ross, but in respect of the request made to you that the jury be asked to disregard certain insinuations made about the prosecution. I think certainly——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I certainly will instruct this jury to disregard the statement made by Mr. Hallinan that Mr. Donohue is or was a liar, and I shall do it with whatever vigor I presently have. That is all.

(Whereupon the jury returned to the courtroom and resumed their respective seats in the jurybox.)

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we have now reached the noon period and we will take the adjournment. I understand from Mr. Donohue that you have a witness at 2:00 o'clock?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: We will proceed with a new witness at 2:00 o'clock. What is his name, please?

Mr. Donohue: Lewis Michener.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. May I make a request?

The Court: Yes, sir. [3664]

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Your Honor, we have had a little procedural difficulty on time with these various witnesses for the prosecution. We have asked for time, and Your Honor has been very generous in the allocation of time. The prosecution has opposed our requests at all times. Now, so that we won't fall into the same difficulty and thus be forced always to importune Your Honor to extend leniency and time to us in looking up these witnesses, I think we should request now that for the balance of this case the names of the future witnesses be furnished to the defense so that there will be no saying on our part that we have only a few hours to look up these men, and so that there won't be any matter of bringing people here and taking them away before adequate preparation can be made. I can see no reason. It is the only prosecution that I have ever heard of in which the names of the witnesses have been kept secret.

The Court: Counsel, counsel! I dislike interrupting you, on any occasion. But I had in mind you were launching into a field that I thought might carry with it some implications. Now, you might take this matter of witnesses up with Mr. Donohue and the prosecution staff during the noon hour. I know from general information, unofficially set forth, that there are several witnesses already named who may or may not appear. They have been referred to during the course of the testimony. And as to that matter or those matters, there is no particular concern. I do not know what Mr. Donohue's attitude is. I can [3665] not direct him, nor control him in the matter of prosecuting the case. I think you should take it up with him at noontime.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, would you instruct the jury that there is no truth in the statement of Mr. MacInnis?

The Court: What?

Mr. Paisley: No truth——

The Court: In what?

Mr. Paisley: In the statement of Mr. MacInnis that it is customary to furnish counsel for the defendants with a list of the witnesses.

The Court: I interrupted Mr. MacInnis. I was about to state there was no custom in that respect.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Your Honor. The man who just spoke, coming as he does from another jurisdiction, may have adopted different habits. But, Your Honor, I can always say that the representatives of the United States Attorney in this court have always been more than courteous in the supplying of names and in the conveniencing of other counsel, and that is true of all of the very able men who represent that office, Mr. Joseph Karesh, Mr. Colvin, all of the men who serve under Frank Hennessy. And that has been the custom in this court, to cooperate; but apparently it is not the custom in this particular prosecution. And I suggest that the remark of the last prosecutor who rose to his feet has no bearing upon the subject at all. [3666]

Mr. Paisley: I don't know of any jurisdiction in the Federal Courts that actually has a statute—Mr. MacInnis ought to be familiar with it—that requires a list of the witnesses be furnished, except in capital cases. But in no other cases. And I have been in lots of jurisdictions and there is no such custom as that. Give them a list of witnesses! They have a right to come in, of course, and ask for a bill of particulars; frequently the court grants it. But the court doesn't give them a list of the witnesses. The jury knows that—I don't imagine Your Honor should even want to tell them that.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the noon recess and I desire to admonish you particularly with respect to an assertion or statement made by Mr. Hallinan that in reference to Mr. Donohue, the government prosecutor, that he, Mr. Donohue, was or is a liar; such statement coming from Mr. Hallinan. I ask you and admonish you to disregard the statement, ignore the same and erase the same from your minds.

Now, with respect to the resumption of the trial, we will take the next witness at 2:00 o'clock. I ask Mr. Donohue to confer with counsel for the defense as to future witnesses to be called. I can not indicate—— Pardon me, Mr. Paisley. I can not indicate to him as to his procedure, nor make any direction in that respect.

I will say to you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, that so far as I know, there is no rule that requires the Government [3667] to make disclosure of their witnesses in a criminal case in advance of the witness taking the stand, other than in capital cases—and the statute so provides.

We will take additional testimony, then, at 2:00 o'clock. I again admonish you not to discuss the case with any person or persons and not to form or express an opinion thereon until the matter is finally submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [3667-A]

Tuesday Afternoon Session
January 10, 1950, 2:05 o'Clock

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. Paisley: Call Mr. Michener.

LEWIS HERBERT MICHENER, JR. called on behalf of the United States; sworn.

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please?

A. Lewis Herbert Michener.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Paisley:

Q. How do you spell that, Mr. Michener?

A. L-e-w-i-s H-e-r-b-e-r-t M-i-c-h-e-n-e-r, Jr.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Michener?

A. Los Angeles, California.

Q. What address?

A. 4654 West 63rd Street.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And what is your present occupation?

A. I am an auto worker at the Ford Long Beach plant.

Q. What type of work do you do?

A. Stock coordinator.

Q. And what is the nature of that work?

A. Well, at the present time I am in the process of coordinating defective stock from one particular location and plant to [3668] another, and mainly that occupies my full time.

Q. Do you belong to a union? A. I do.

Q. Are you active in the union now?

A. I am.

Q. And do you hold any official position in the union? A. I do.

Q. What is the position?

A. At the present time I am the acting secretary of my local union. I am also a delegate to the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council, CIO; also a delegate to the District Auto and Aircraft Council, CIO.

Q. Is that the United Automobile Workers Union? A. That's correct.

Q. Is that the name of it? A. Yes.

Q. How much education were you able to have, Mr. Michener?

A. You mean in the labor movement, or——

Q. No, in your schooling, formal education.

A. I went through the eighth grade and approximately two months to high school.

Q. And have you had any postgraduate work?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, what type of work generally did you do before you went into the automobile work? [3669]

A. Well, it was a rather a variety of occupations I followed. For a time I worked in the Butte mines, I worked in the packing house industry, worked on farms, I worked in logging camps and numerous occupations.

Q. Are you a family man, sir?

A. No, sir, not at the present time.

Q. When did you start to work in the automobile industry? A. In 1933.

Q. And where was that?

A. It was in Richmond, California.

Q. And what company did you go to work for?

A. For the Ford Motor Company.

Q. How long have you been with the Ford Company?

A. Well, off and on ever since late in 1933, up until the present date, with a few years, of course, in between there that I spent my entire time as an official of the labor movement.

Q. How soon after you went to work for the automobile industry did you join the union?

A. Well, at 1933, of course, there was no opportunity or no union available for the auto workers to join, and it wasn't until in 1937, until the CIO started formulating its program for the West Coast that we auto workers were able to join a union, and I was one of the first to join up. [3670]

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. How soon after that did you become an officer of the union?

A. It was only a matter of a very short time until I became an officer of my particular local union.

Q. Did you become a paid employee of the union?

A. Some time later, but not at the very outset I didn't.

Q. Did there come a time when you were wholly employed by the union rather than working for the Ford Motor Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What position did you finally obtain?

A. I have held several positions for the labor movement. My first one was chairman of the District Auto and Aircraft Council, and then later on I became secretary of the same council, and at the same time I was secretary of the CIO Unemployment and Relief Committee, and approximately the same time I was president or chairman of the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council.

Q. What time were you paid by the union rather than by the auomobile company?

A. Approximately from about the middle of 1938 up until December of 1944.

Q. Did there come a time, sir, when you joined the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. May the answer be stricken [3671] pending the objection, if your Honor please? We make the same objection as heretofore made with the other witnesses, that the question is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, that it calls for secondary evidence, when there is no proof that the best evidence is not available and that it calls for the opinion and conclusion of the witness, and further that it calls for acts done or statements done outside the presence of the defendants and hence not binding upon them.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

Mr. MacInnis: May we have the same understanding with the Court that the same objection would be made to all questions of this ilk?

The Court: That will be the order.

Mr. Paisley: Of this what? This ilk?

Mr. MacInnis: Possibly you do not understand the word. Of the same kind, your Honor.

The Court: Counsel, there have been extremely difficult situations that have arisen during the course of this trial that have increased the burdens upon this court to a manifold extent. I ask you to refrain in the future conduct of this trial from any such characterization, reflections upon counsel. I participated in quite a few trials in my career, both on the bench and off the bench. I see no occasion for constant indulgence in personalities. When I say this to you, Mr. MacInnis, I do so not individually nor as a personal reflection upon you, but as a desire on my part to conduct this trial so far as I am [3672] able in a judicial manner. That I intend to do. What I have to say refers to both counsel on both sides. Let us conduct this trial in an orderly way if we can.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: Let me respectfully say this: In view of your remarks I should like that the record be read to you of what was said. If there was any personal reflection in my remarks, it followed a reflection made by counsel for the other side.

The Court: Counsel, I said at the outset that this was no reflection on you. You, counsel addressing the witness, I ask you to refrain from indulging in these constant matters of personality between counsel. What I have to say does not reflect on Mr. MacInnis any more than it does on you. I am going to try this case to the best of my ability. I ask the cooperation of counsel. All right, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: We certainly can do no more than to give you the cooperation that you ask.

The Court: I will appreciate it.

Mr. Paisley: Will you read the last question.

(Question and answer read.)

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): When and where was that?

A. That was in Los Angeles, California, late in 1938.

Q. Did you become an active member of the Party? A. I did.

Q. Did you become an officer, hold any office in this [3673] organization? A. I never did.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. Does the the record now show, in addition to your order as to the continued objection to these questions, the stipulation by the Government?

The Court: Yes, I take it that it does, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: I hadn't heard. There was no audible stipulation.

The Court: I will embody in the order the stipulation of counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): After you became a member of the Communist Party did you continue your activity as a union man? A. I did.

Q. Did you attain to any positions in the union organization after you became a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. These questions are asked and answered. He has already stated the time, period within which he became an official and a paid employee of the union.

The Court: The repetition cannot do any harm, as I see it.

Mr. Paisley: Go ahead.

A. Yes, I did gain further or win further elective offices after I joined the Communist Party in the labor movement.

Q. What offices were they? [3674]

A. First the executive secretary of the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council, and then later on the West Coast Representative for the United Auto Workers. That was a full-time paid job by the union, which covered the seven Western States and the Hawaiian Islands.

Q. How long did you hold that position?

A. I was elected to that position first in April of 1939, and I held that position up until 1944, with the exceptions of one year that I did not hold a job due to certain union propositions within our international union.

Q. When if ever did you leave the Communist Party?

A. I left the Communist Party in 1944.

Q. Were you then holding any position with the union? A. I was not at that time.

Q. What was this Los Angeles Industrial Union Council. What was the function of that organization?

A. The Los Angeles Industrial Union Council was a coordinating central body with representatives from all the locals and international unions to coördinate our work and our activities in that particular locality.

Q. In the course of your employment as a labor leader, organizer or worker, and during the time that you were a member of the Communist Party, did you ever meet Harry Bridges? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall when you first met him? [3675]

A. It was early in 1938, just shortly after a Ford strike was called in the Long Beach plant.

Q. Where was it?

A. It was in the office of the secretary of the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council.

Q. Did you thereafter have occasion to come in contact with Mr. Harry Bridges?

A. Oh, yes, quite often thereafter.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did you attend Communist Party meetings?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. If the Court please, as your Honor has heretofore ruled upon this very matter, the question now——

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Paisley: He can't testify, your Honor, he attended Communist Party meetings? Is that what you ruled?

The Court: Counsel, you have been present in court during the matters that have arisen in connection with other witnesses, and I say to you that there is no foundation laid for the question. It calls for the opinion and conclusion of the witness. You must have some foundation. The bland question cannot be presented to the witness asking for the bland answer. The objection is well taken.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): After you became a member of the Communist Party what did you do?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. That question seems [3676] to be vague, indefinite and not connected with the present prosecution at all. It calls for a recounting of all kinds of events having no probative effect.

Mr. Paisley: Oh, well, I will reframe the question.

Q. Did you attend any meetings at which Harry Bridges was present?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. The objection to that question is that again it is a question without any foundation, calling for the opinion and conclusion of the witness.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: I think the question was, Did you attend any meetings which Harry Bridges attended or at which he was present?

Q. Did you attend any such meetings?

A. Yes, your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Would you enumerate them.

A. It would be rather difficult to enumerate them all, because I attended several of them. The first important meeting that I recall attending where Mr. Bridges was present was our first State CIO convention held in Los Angeles late in 1938.

Q. And his union, I take it, at that time was affiliated with the CIO? A. Definitely.

Q. Did you ever attend a meeting at which Harry Bridges was present here in San Francisco? [3677]

A. I have.

Q. When was that?

A. I have attended several meetings here in San Francisco wherein Mr. Bridges was present. I attended one meeting here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended just by a few members at that time, and later on I was present at the State CIO convention that was held here, where Mr. Bridges was present, and I attended several meetings in his office during the course of my career in the labor movement here in San Francisco with Mr. Bridges.

Q. Mr. Michener, do you know William Schneidermann? A. I do.

Q. Have you been thrown in contact with William Schneidermann when you were a member of the Communist Party? A. I was.

Q. How many times have you been thrown in contact with William Schneidermann while you were a member of the Party?

Mr. MacInnis: I do not know that there is anyone named Schneidermann on trial in this case, your Honor. I cannot see how this question would invite an answer having any probative value. I object upon the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Overruled. You mean William C. Schneidermann?

Mr. Paisley: William Schneidermann, your Honor. I am trying to lay this foundation. [3678]

The Court: You would not lay it by reference to Schneidermann. It might be William Schneidermann, but not Schneidermann.

Mr. Paisley: I said William Schneidermann.

The Court: Did you? I didn't hear you. [3678-A]

Q. How many times while you were a member of the Communist Party were you associated with one William Schneidermann?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. The word "associated"——

Mr. Paisley: Well, attend meetings, then, with William Schneidermann.

A. It would be hard for me to remember the exact number, but I would say I had the occasion to attend several meetings wherein William Schneidermann was present.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge what position he held with the Communist Party, if any?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, the same objection as heretofore made—acts done or statements made outside the presence of the defendants and incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Paisley: I thought we had a stipulation on that, your Honor, that the objections would all run.

Mr. MacInnis: We will accept that stipulation as to this line of questions as well.

Mr. Paisley: All right.

The Court: The objection is overruled, based upon the stipulation. The jury is admonished to disregard the statements made by this witness in so far as the several defendants are concerned, as matters occurring out of the presence of the defendants. I take it the purpose of this examination is to show the familiarity of the witness with the affairs of the Communist Party? [3679]

Mr. Paisley: Oh, yes.

The Court: Intramural activities.

Mr. Paisley: That's right, your Honor.

The Court: All right. And it is admitted for that limited purpose.

Mr. Paisley: Yes, sir. Now, what was the question?

(Record read.)

A. At the time I first became acquainted with him, and to my knowledge at the present time, he was the executive state secretary for the Communist Party.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Was any secret made of that, any effort to conceal it from the public, or was he openly and avowedly in that position?

A. To my knowledge, there was no attempt to hide his identity or his connection with the Communist Party.

Q. How about your own membership in the Communist Party while you were holding these positions down there in the Ford plant with the union? Did you make any effort to conceal your membership in the party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What effort did you make?

A. Well, it was never indicated outwardly that I was a member. In fact, this is practically the first time I have announced to the public that I have been a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Do you know one Paul Kline?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Could that name be repeated? [3680]

Mr. Paisley: Paul Kline, K-l-i-n-e.

Mr. MacInnis: K-l-i-n-e?

Mr. Paisley: Yes. That is the way it is spelled here. I don't know whether it is spelled Klein or not.

Mr. MacInnis: May I look at your script?

Mr. Paisley: No, you know that you have no right to look at a lawyer's notes.

Q. Do you know one Paul Kline? A. I do.

Q. Was he connected with the Communist Party in any way? A. He was.

Q. What position did he hold?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. He was the secretary of the Communist Party for Los Angeles County at the time that I first met him and knew him.

Q. Now, do you recall coming up there to San Francisco with him to attend a meeting?

A. I do.

Q. And when was that, Mr. Michener?

A. That would be late in 1940.

Q. And when you got here, where did you go?

A. Well, I registered at that particular time, I registered, I believe, at the Shaw Hotel on Market Street in San Francisco.

Q. Was there a meeting held there?

A. No, there was no meeting held at the Shaw Hotel.

Q. Well, was there one held at or about [3681] that time?

A. There was one held the same day I arrived here, as I recall.

Q. Did you attend it? A. I did.

Q. And where was it, Mr. Michener?

A. It was out past Golden Gate Park, some place out here in the Sunset Strip. I couldn't give you the address of it. A private residence out there.

Q. Private residence. What was the purpose of having the meeting in a private residence?

A. Well, at that particular time it was the general idea, this being the Communist Party theory, that we——

Mr. MacInnis: Now pardon me just a moment. I perceive, your Honor, that the witness is offering not a factual answer, but an opinion. I think he may tell who was present, and if that be relevant, he may relate his conversation.

The Court: That's right.

The Witness: Your Honor, may I have some advice from the Court on that?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: I mean, it was the general policy of the Communist Party to meet in residences at that time, and I don't know how, really, to answer the question without——

The Court: I will allow the answer to stand as to the general policy.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): The question is, why were you holding the [3682] meeting in a private residence?

Mr. MacInnis: I didn't hear that question asked, your Honor.

The Court: I understood there was a meeting held in the so-called Sunset Strip—that is, in the Sunset District?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: You have heard of the Strip?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: That is more particularly applicable to Hollywood, I think, but we have the Sunset District here, and this meeting was held in the Sunset area, was it?

The Witness: Yes.

The Court: Private home?

The Witness: That's right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Well, I would still like to have the question answered. What was the purpose of holding the meeting in this private residence?

A. Well, the general purpose we had, as I was informed by Paul Kline before I came here, that you refer to, that we were going to discuss a problem pertaining to Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Q. What is Labor's Non-Partisan League?

Mr. MacInnis: Now, just a moment. We ask your Honor that the hearsay be stricken and the jury asked to disregard it.

The Court: Yes, the statement with respect to the purposes or purpose as indicated by Mr. Paul Kline are stricken from the [3683] record and the jury admonished to disregard the same. Bringing yourself on up to the meeting, you attended the meeting?

The Witness: I did, your Honor.

The Court: And what was the discussion, as to the Labor's Non-Partisan League?

The Witness: As—that was part of the discussion.

The Court: State the persons present.

The Witness: I will. To the best of my recollections, there was a man by the name of Walter Lambert, there was William Schneidermann, Lou Goldblatt, Harry Bridges, Philip "Slim" Connolly and myself.

The Court: Do you recall the discussion, if any?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Witness: I do.

The Court: State it.

The Witness: The problem regarding Labor's Non-Partisan League at that time was the allocation of funds between the northern part of the state and the southern part of the state. In view of the fact that I also was an officer of the Labor's Non-Partisan League in the South, Paul Kline—and also a member of the Communist Party at that time—Paul Kline thought it advisable that I attend this meeting to see what arrangements could be worked out regarding the allocating of funds between Northern California and Southern California of the Labor's Non-Partisan League funds.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Your Honor, may we ask that the [3684] hearsay statement be stricken, of what Paul Kline thought and conveyed to this man outside the presence of those at the meeting?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, may I be heard? Counsel can't sit by and listen to a witness testify at length and then ask that something be stricken he doesn't like. That is my understanding of the law and of procedure.

The Court: Will you attempt to confine your statements to what you know, stating what, if anything, Mr. Bridges said or anyone said? By the way, what is the Non-Partisan League?

The Witness: The Labor's Non-Partisan League, your Honor, was the political arm for the CIO during that period of time.

The Court: All right. Now, do you recall anything that Mr. Bridges may have said at that time?

The Witness: Not regarding the Labor's Non-Partisan League. I can't recall anything that he said particularly.

The Court: Well, without interruption on the part of counsel or the Court, could you state in your own words what took place at that meeting?

The Witness: Yes, yes, your Honor, I could. As a result of our, all of us, collectively discussing the problem, including Mr. Bridges, it was finally decided that——

Mr. MacInnis: Now, pardon me. Now, your Honor, you have just now instructed the witness to tell us what took place. By that I would understand that your Honor was meaning to tell [3685] him to state generally what the various people said.

The Court: Well, this is preliminary, I suppose.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, I think, your Honor, that he may not give a naked conclusion about what was decided without telling us what he said, what Bridges said.

The Court: He is coming to that, to the best of his recollection.

The Witness: If your Honor pleases, it would be very difficult for me to remember word by word, verbatim, as to what actually transpired, but the net result of the discussion on Labor's Non-Partisan League, wherein I testified to your Honor that it was conducted by all members present, that I referred to, was that the funds should be equally distributed between the northern and southern division of California, the Labor's Non-Partisan League. And so also, if your Honor pleases, there was another point discussed at this hearing, wherein there seemed to have arisen a little difficulty between Mr. Bridges and Mr. Goldblatt regarding their positions in their particular local union. I wasn't familiar with it, but Mr. Lambert was present and apparently he was familiar with it and——.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, your Honor, this witness is giving us pure opinion and conclusion without making any attempt to tell us what the persons present said. Now, of course, he is not expected to give us word for word what anybody said after the passage of so much time, but he can say [3686] Mr. Bridges said substantially this, Mr. So-and-So said substantially that. That is the ordinary way of receiving a conversation, not by this naked conclusion. I think that the witness should be instructed to that end, or else the entire matter be stricken.

The Court: Well, you are mindful of that suggestion, are you, Mr. Witness?

The Witness: Not entirely, your Honor, but I will try to conform with it. Mr. Lambert said, to the best of my recollection, that he thought that Mr. Goldblatt ought to cooperate a little better with Harry Bridges in their particular dispute that they had at that time, and fundamentally that was agreeable, apparently, to all parties concerned. Your Honor, outside of that, that is the only two points that was discussed at this particular meeting.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Does your Honor have any more questions or may I proceed with the witness?

The Court: No; go ahead.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Now, what did Lambert have to do with this dispute between Bridges and Goldblatt about union activities?

Mr. MacInnis: Now, I think, your Honor, that the witness has now stated everything that he recalls the man Lambert as having said. Now, to ask him to say what he had to do with it would be to invite him to give another opinion and conclusion.

The Court: He may answer. [3687]

A. Mr. Walter Lambert more or less chaired the meeting that I referred to, and Mr. Lambert's position at that time was more or less the industrial section organizer for the Communist Party for the State of California, and it was very apparent to me, being present, that——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me just a moment.

Mr. Paisley: Now, if your Honor please, the witness was there.

Mr. MacInnis: He can't say it was apparent to him.

Mr. Paisley: The defendant Harry Bridges was there. Now, why he can't tell us what went on between Bridges and Goldblatt and this man Lambert I don't know.

The Court: All right, proceed.

Mr. Paisley: I can understand why he didn't want it. Pardon me, I didn't mean to touch you. I can understand why he wouldn't want to hear it. That is always competent testimony.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, your Honor, the witness is now beginning to say, "And it was apparent to me." Now, I can't think of any situation in our law of evidence that permits a witness to offer that kind of opinion, as to what was going on at a meeting. He can say what they said, but he can't say what was apparent to him or what he thought or what he assumed or what he imagined.

The Court: You may proceed. Go ahead.

A. (Continuing): Well, your Honor, in reply to the question, to [3688] complete the question, the net result of the meeting, then, was that Lou Goldblatt was told to work along more harmoniously with Mr. Bridges, and Mr. Lambert was chairing the meeting, and in the capacity he held in the Communist Party, was very familiar with all the inner beefs, so to speak, that went on within the labor movement,——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, I move to strike the phrase, "Mr. Lambert was familiar with all the inner beefs." Now, without going into what this phrase "beef" may mean between the prosecutor and the witness, I think that he can not state what some person now absent from this trial and not a party to it was familiar with. I ask that that be stricken.

The Court: That may be stricken.

Mr. MacInnis: And the jury admonished to disregard that statement.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: They are admonished.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. I am sorry, I didn't hear you.

The Court: Yes, the jury is admonished.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Did I understand you to say, Mr. Michener, that Lambert was chairman of the meeting?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. That has been asked and answered three times.

Mr. Paisley: I think he used the word "chaired," your [3689] Honor, and I just wanted to ask him if that is what he meant.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. Now, the witness first said that Lambert was a kind of chairman, later, emboldened by that line, he said that he was the chairman. And now the question is put to him a third time.

The Court: Well, what is the fact?

The Witness: He was chairman.

The Court: All right.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Now, do I understand, Mr. Michener, that Goldblatt and Bridges entered into some discussion about the affairs of the ILWU there in the presence of Lambert and yourself?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, your Honor, that question——

The Court: Yes, I will sustain the objection. Permit the witness to testify, ask him the questions. He will testify, I assume.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Well, tell us in more detail just exactly what the disagreement was between Bridges and Goldblatt.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, pardon me, your Honor, the witness can give the conversation had between them, but not some understanding that he has now from some other source about any alleged misunderstanding between Bridges and some other man.

Mr. Paisley: On the contrary, your Honor, a person attending a meeting some years ago might well remember generally what the subject of discussion was, what side each two individuals [3690] took, and that argument, but he couldn't possibly remember particular words that individual used in their argument or their discussion. So I think his objection is not well taken at all.

The Court: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor. I indicated earlier in my testimony here, I believe, that I was not too familiar with this controversy between Harry Bridges and Goldblatt, my main purpose of being at the meeting was to participate in the discussion regarding Labor's Non-Partisan League. But this proposition about Mr. Bridges and Mr. Goldblatt came up after the discussion was held, relative to Labor's Non-Partisan League, and not being too familiar with it, I am very sorry, I couldn't give you too much of the details about it or any of the details. I know it seems, apparently——

Mr MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, I think, your Honor, that he is now embarking upon another pure opinion. We ask that that latter fragment be stricken.

The Court: The latter part may go out. [3691]

The Witness: In conclusion, on answering that question, then, I would take it that there was a dispute between Mr. Bridges and Mr. Goldblatt, which was resolved at the meeting by Mr. Lambert.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Did he give any instructions to Goldblatt in the presence of Bridges?

A. He did.

Q. What were the instructions?

A. As I recall it, he told Mr. Goldblatt to work in a little closer harmony with Mr. Bridges.

Q. Did you know what position Walter Lambert held in the Communist Party?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. That has been asked and answered twice, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: I will leave it right there.

A. He was the industrial sectional organizer for the State of California for the Communist Party, as I understood his title at that time.

Q. Did you attend the national convention of the CIO held in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in November, 1943? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you a delegate? A. I was.

Q. Where was the convention held?

A. The convention that year was held in the Bellview-Stratford [3692] Hotel.

Q. I will ask you this: Did you see Harry Bridges there at the convention? A. I did.

Q. Was he a delegate, too?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I am positive he was a delegate there. I saw him on the convention floor.

Q. Did you attend a meeting at which Mr. Bridges was present? A. I did.

Q. Where was that meeting held?

A. That meeting was also held in the Bellview-Stratford Hotel.

Q. What part of the hotel?

A. I don't recall the room number, but it was held in a room in the same hotel where the convention was being held.

Q. Who else was present besides yourself and Bridges?

A. Mr. Bridges was present, Mr. Roy Hudson was present, Ruby Heide was present. As I recall it, Charles Pfeiffer was present, a fellow by the name of Jim Dougherty was present, and there were others present that I don't recall right at the present time.

Q. Were you then a member of the Communist Party? A. I was.

Q. Who was Roy Hudson?

A. Roy Hudson was the national director for the industrial section of the Communist Party. [3693]

Q. Who was Charlie Pfeiffer?

A. Charlie Pfeiffer at that time was secretary for a warehouse local union of the CIO in Southern California, Los Angeles.

Q. Do you know whether or not he was a member of the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. To my knowledge he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Who was Ruby Heide?

A. She at that time was secretary—I believe secretary of the Alameda Industrial Union Council.

Q. Do you know whether or not she was a member of the Communist Party?

A. To my knowledge she was.

Q. And who was Slim Connolly?

A. Slim Connolly was the executive secretary of the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council at that time.

Q. Do you know whether or not he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. To my knowledge he was.

Mr. MacInnis: We will ask that those answers be stricken, your Honor, as given without any foundation. Your Honor has heretofore sustained objections as to whether or not persons were members of the Communist Party where no foundation was shown. Now we have a list of five new people and we have no previous testimony about them, and this witness now answers [3694] without any foundation.

Q. (By the Court): Mr. Witness, what is the basis for that statement that you made with respect to the affiliation or membership of these persons in the Communist Party?

A. Because, your Honor, I have at various times attended Party meetings with the individuals mentioned.

Q. What kind of Party meetings?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Communist Party meetings.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. That is the giving of one conclusion to support a prior conclusion. We ask that that answer be stricken.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, doesn't a man know when he attends his lodge meeting, fraternity meeting or any other kind of organization? Who would be in a better position to say whether a man is your fraternity brother? He has been in meetings with you, a member of your lodge, church, or what not.

Q. (By the Court): Were these general meetings, closed meetings, or what?

A. Closed meetings, your Honor.

Q. What is a closed meeting?

A. A closed meeting, the way I understood it, was where a member or members strictly of the Communist Party were present. In other words, people who did not belong to the Communist Party were not invited, and therefore——

Q. Tell the Court and jury the nature of the invitation that [3695] may have been extended in connection with your attendance at any or all of these meetings. How did that follow? Tell me about it.

A. One in Philadelphia——

Mr. MacInnis: I am sorry, I couldn't hear your Honor.

The Court: I said, Tell the Court and jury the nature of the invitation that was extended to these men to attend any or all of these meetings, the nature of the invitation.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. The first Communist Party meetings that I attended were faction meetings.

Q. Define a fraction meeting.

A. I will, your Honor. A fraction meeting at that time was set up to people who were working in the auto and aircraft industry, for example, belonging to the auto and aircraft faction of the Communist Party. Those people, for example, working in the rubber industry in Southern California belonged to the rubber faction of the Communist Party. Those people working in the steel industry belonged to the steel workers' faction of the Communist Party.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I am a little puzzled now.

Mr. Paisley: May I object to counsel interrupting the witness' answer to the question the Court himself has propounded? It was a perfectly proper question and answer.

Mr. MacInnis: We have been told by other witnesses about fraction meetings. We have a new term now, "faction meetings." [3696]

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: I am wondering if that is one that is peculiar to the witness——

The Court: You reserve that for your cross-examination and ask him the distinction between "fraction" and "faction."

The Witness: Those meetings, which were usually held on a weekly basis, were usually announced by the secretary of the the particular fraction or faction of that particular group that were holding the meeting. The meetings in those days were held in private homes to more or less hide the identity of those members that did attend these meetings. They were closed meetings because they were completely composed of members of the Communist Party and no one else was present, and that was why they were termed "closed." Now, then, with reference to the meeting that was held in the—during the convention that has been referred to in Philadelphia, that I was invited to attend that meeting by Philip "Slim" Connolly, he said there would be a meeting right after the adjournment of the convention for the day, and it would be held in a room within the Bellview-Stratford Hotel. It seems to me, if my memory serves me correctly, it was on the seventh floor. He indicated to me that there would be some important problems discussed there pertaining to the CIO in California, and being a leader of the California labor movement, they wanted me to participate in the meeting. I attended the meeting that evening. I have [3697] indicated to the Court and jury those people to the best of my recollection that were present at the meeting.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): What position, if any, did Slim Connolly hold in the Communist Party, if you know?

Mr. MacInnis: The same objection, your Honor, no foundation with respect to this man Slim Connolly.

The Court: Overruled.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: I might add this, your Honor, that we have this witness stating that on the seventh floor of the Bellview-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia he attended a meeting, and he has named about five people, and he says that there were others present, "but I do not recall now who they were." With that gap in the situation I do not see how any correct question can possibly be put on this meeting or how any foundation can possibly be met to permit this witness to give his opinion and conclusion upon it.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Now, with reference to this faction or fraction meeting, whatever term may apply to them, what type of meeting was that that was held in San Francisco at which Goldblatt and Bridges were present, and Lambert?

A. That was a closed Communist Party meeting.

Q. What kind of a meeting was it that was held in this Bellview-Stratford Hotel when these persons, including yourself and Bridges, were [3698] present?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. The same objection, your Honor. All of the persons present at that meeting have not been disclosed, and we are back to the same question of throwing guilt by association.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Paisley: You will have a chance to cross-examine the witness if you will contain yourself.

The Court: Overruled. Go ahead.

The Witness: That was also a closed Communist Party meeting.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): What position did you say Hudson held?

Mr. MacInnis: That has been asked and answered, your Honor.

The Court: It has been answered.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Can you tell us what was discussed at the meeting? A. I can.

Q. Will you tell us in your own way what was discussed. Was Mr. Bridges present?

A. He was.

Q. Tell us what was discussed.

A. The discussion was opened by Mr. Hudson, who was chairman of the meeting. He raised the point relative to the State CIO in California. It so happened that the State CIO in California had just recently concluded an election of officers [3699] prior to the national CIO convention. At the State CIO convention Mr. Philip "Slim" Connolly defeated a man by the name of Timmus for the presidency of the State CIO. It was therefore the opinion of Mr. Hudson at this meeting that I referred to in Philadelphia——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. He is giving us an opinion.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Did he express it as his opinion?

A. He expressed it as his opinion, as an opinion and also a decision.

Q. Go ahead.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I think counsel cannot by leading and suggestive questions, amounting in this instance to hints, bolster up the testimony of a witness who is giving merely conclusions and not factual statements. We ask that that portion of his answer be stricken.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I was trying to expedite the proceedings, if it is possible to expedite them. I was not trying to suggest any answers to the witness, your Honor.

Q. (By the Court): What he stated was an opinion, was it? A. No.

Q. Or a decision?

A. It was a decision——

Q. State it.

A. The decision was that Mr. Slim Connolly should step aside [3700] as State president of the CIO and that Mr. Thomas should take his place.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Who made the decision?

A. He indicated there again that the decision was made in his presence in New York and was brought to Philadelphia——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Just a moment, if the Court please. It is obvious now that not only is the witness offering us hearsay statements but the counsel who asks the questions knows that the answers are hearsay statements, not even pretended to be made at these gatherings at which the witness says he was present.

Q. (By The Court): Was this statement made at the gathering of the meeting that you spoke of?

A. It was, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, will you instruct the jury to disregard the statement of Mr. MacInnis that I knew or I was about to have some hearsay testimony brought out here? I have talked to the witness. I know what he can testify to. I know it is competent testimony and I am trying to bring it out. Anything that was said in the presence of Mr. Bridges, it is elemental, counsel, can be testified to by the witness, but you do not know that.

The Court: I can't ~~see~~ that an admonition is necessary at this time. Proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Tell us what Mr. Hudson said in the presence [3701] about this matter of Slim Connolly and the other men.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, of course, the question is definitely leading, telling the witness the subject of the conversation to be elicited by an answer.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Mr. Hudson said that it would be advisable for the CIO in the State of California to propose to Philip Murray, who was then president of the national CIO, that this change I refer to take place. There was a lot of discussion on the matter but mainly, to bring it down concretely, Mr. Bridges and myself opposed the proposition made by Mr. Hudson that we should propose to Philip Murray that we should change the presidents of the California State CIO council. After further discussing the matter pro and con, and Mr. Hudson pointed out very clearly that this was a decision from the top of the Party in New York, we agreed—finally agreed with the decision, and it is a matter of record that later on this procedure did take place within the State of California. However, before the meeting adjourned there was a sub-committee set up that was to contact Philip Murray and propose this proposition to Mr. Murray. I served on that committee together with Mr. Bridges. And so on the following day we did contact Mr. Murray and indicated to him the decision of the meeting the night before, and told him—with the theory in mind of working a little bit closer to the national CIO this proposal was advanced for his [3702] consideration. Later on, as I indicated to you, it was accepted by Mr. Murray, and it was finally accepted by the CIO in the State of California and finally became a reality.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Did Hudson indicate at that meeting in the presence of Bridges the name of this top of the Communist Party in New York who had made the decision?

A. No, he did not, sir.

Q. Just what was said in that regard?

A. As I indicated to you, he said that this was discussed with the top people in New York and arrived at that decision.

Q. Were the words "top people in New York" used, or just what was it? A. That is——

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, if the attempt now is to draw from one sentence a multitude of details which apparently did not exist in the witness' mind, these questions are leading and suggestive. The witness gives us one sentence, counsel then repeats the question and gets the same answer, and now he asks it a third time in another leading way. We ask that the question and the answer be stricken.

Mr. Paisley: I just want to make the facts clear to the jury, your Honor. That is all my purpose is.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Do you recall just exactly what was said as to the source of this order? [3703]

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, that is the fourth time this same question is put in different words to the witness, who apparently has not yet given the desired answer. We suggest that the question has been asked and answered.

Q. (By The Court): Have you given the full purport of the conversation?

A. I believe I have your Honor, to the best of my ability.

Mr. MacInnis: I take it, then, the objection is sustained, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, it is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Mr. Michener, was the reason for this decision discussed in the presence of Harry Bridges? A. It was.

Q. And what reason was given by Mr. Hudson as to why that decision had been made?

A. The outstanding reason for it was that in view of the fact that the Communist Party were pretty well in control of the Los Angeles Industrial Union Council, and as such had two or three full-time paid functionaries representing the council that were on the national CIO payroll, indicated that if we made this proposition to Philip Murray there would be a better opportunity of holding onto these people on the national CIO payroll and also at the same time develop a little better working relationship with Philip Murray. That was the general purpose indicated at that meeting to us, and our objections to it, if [3704] you would like to know, I can remember them, too, particularly. Mr. Bridges' objection and my objection was, in view of the fact that the people, delegates, at a convention in the State of California, duly elected Philip "Slim" Connolly as the State president, we felt that the decision of the rank and file should be final and binding in this matter, and that was the objections that we particularly raised, and I recall that point very clearly by Mr. Bridges and myself.

Q. Connolly had just been elected, as I understand it, at that time?

A. Yes, shortly before that time.

Q. Did you and Bridges accede to the decision?

A. We did.

Mr. Paisley: May we have the recess at this time?

The Court: Yes, we will take the afternoon recess. Ladies and gentlemen, the same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you. You may retire.

(Recess.) [3705]

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Mr. Michener, did you

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

pay dues to the Communist Party while you were a member? A. I did.

Q. Did you have a Communist Party card?

A. I never carried a card, or a card was never issued to me.

Q. Did you join in your own name?

A. No, sir.

Q. What name did you use?

A. I was advised to use the name of Lewis Herbert.

Q. Now, with respect to this meeting in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel at which you say Bridges attended, I understood you to say that a subcommittee was appointed to carry the decision to Philip Murray, head of the CIO.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. That has been asked and answered, and a repetition of it is leading and suggestive.

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Paisley: I can only say that we have sat here with great patience——

The Court: Counsel, I overruled the objection; there is no occasion for any argument or discussion. The objection is overruled.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): All right, answer the question.

A. Yes, I indicated that there was a subcommittee established at that meeting to contact Mr. Murray.

Q. And who was on the subcommittee appointed to contact Mr. [3706] Murray?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: Asked and answered, Your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: I don't think so.

The Court: Overruled.

A. On that committee, as I recollect it, was myself, Mr. Slim Connolly, Harry Bridges, and I believe Jim Doherty went with us on that committee.

Q. Did you gentlemen actually go and talk to Philip Murray about it? A. We did.

Q. Who was the spokesman?

A. More or less Harry Bridges was the spokesman of our committee.

Q. What is that?

A. Harry Bridges was the spokesman for our committee when we appeared before Mr. Philip Murray.

Q. Did he tell Philip Murray that that was the Communist Party decision? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, was Mr. "Times"—is that the way you pronounce it? A. Mr. Tim-es.

Q. Tim-es—how do you spell that?

A. T-h-i-m-m-e-n-s, I believe.

Q. How, had he been an opponent of Connolly in the election out here? [3707]

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Your Honor, I would suggest this is leading and suggestive, telling the witness what the answer is to be. May the question be read to Your Honor?

The Court: Yes, the objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Do you know who the candidates had been when Mr. Connolly was elected?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I do.

Q. Who were they?

A. Mr. Thimmens and Mr. Connolly were candidates for the state presidency of the California State CIO.

Q. And for what period of time had Mr. Connolly been elected?

A. Prior to the meeting in Philadelphia?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Oh, approximately two months or thereabouts; somewheres in that neighborhood.

Q. Well, how much time did he have to serve in that particular election?

A. Well, that particular election, there had been a short time, two months or perhaps less.

Q. Yes. But how much more time did his term of office have to run?

A. For approximately a year or eight or nine months from the time of the national-state CIO convention.

Q. Now, do you know whether or not Mr. Thimmens was a member of the Communist Party? [5.08]

A. To my knowledge, he was not a member of the Communist Party.

Q. I understood you to testify that Mr. Connolly was? A. That's correct, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Your Honor, again we ask that the question and the answer be stricken. It is repetitive, leading and suggestive, repeating something whose answer is already in the record.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: Overruled.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Now, did Mr. Hudson, at the meeting before the Subcommittee was appointed to wait on Philip Murray and give him the decision, say why it was that the Communist Party headquarters in New York wanted to supplant a Communist by a non Communist? A. Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Your Honor. At approximately two minutes of three, the same question was put to the witness and it was answered quite fully. The witness said what the reason was and what the disclosure was at the meeting. I don't see why now there should be some amplification by another question.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Go ahead; answer it.

A. The answer was yes.

Q. Well, what reasons did he give as to why the Communist Party headquarters wanted to supplant a Communist who was in a [3709] responsible position out here in the CIO, by a non-Communist?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Your Honor. That same question, again, has been fully answered before the recess.

The Court: Overruled.

A. In order that the California State CIO would have better relationships with Philip Murray and the National CIO, this proposition was proposed.

Q. Well, what do you mean by that, what would that—— A. Well——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Having now elicited——

The Court: Sustained, sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Well, was anything said at that meeting about the expediency of the matter or why it was being done?

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Who would have the power to remove Connolly from the office to which he had just been elected?

Mr. MacInnis: Oh, I think, Your Honor, that would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: May I have it read, please? Who was the——?

(Record read.)

The Court: I assume that is from the party itself?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. This office, Your Honor, is supposedly the State CIO office.

Mr. Paisley: No, Your Honor. Here is a man who has just been elected to a position in the CIO,—— [3710]

The Court: I understand.

Mr. Paisley: Now, at a meeting in the Bellevue-Stratford, this man Hudson, according to the testimony, stated that it was the decision of the Communist Party officials in New York that he should be supplanted. Now, that is an unusual situation.

The Court: All right, you may answer it then.

A. Yes, the one who would have the authority to remove Mr. Connolly at that particular state would be Slim Connolly himself by virtue of resigning his position there and leaving it open to be filled.

Q. Did he resign? A. He did.

Q. Now, had he been elected by the Council or the CIO Council out here or by the rank and file membership?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, that has been asked and answered twice.

Mr. Paisley: Oh, I don't think so, and what if it has?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I can repeat exactly what the witness said on that score before. Now, if it is to get some different answer, it is improper; if it is to get the same answer, it is merely repetitive.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

Mr. Paisley: Read the question.

(Record read.)

A. Indirectly he had been elected by the rank and file membership. [3711] The process that was followed in that connection, and still is and always has been in the CIO, is that the rank and file elect delegates to attend the conventions, and at the convention the delegates elect their officers.

Q. Well, was anything said at this meeting at which Mr. Bridges was present, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, as to why the party desired Connolly removed and Thimmens put in in his place?

Mr. MacInnis: Fourth time, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Well, your Honor, this is a rather unusual situation here. Here is the head of the Communist Party in New York wanting to remove a Communist who had just been elected to an important office in the CIO on the West Coast, and replacing him by a non Communist. Now, that would seem strange to me, when I heard it, your Honor, and it would seem, and I think the jury is entitled to know what the reasons were, what reasons were advanced.

Mr. MacInnis: The fact that it may seem strange, your Honor——

Mr. Paisley: There is an answer to it, and I think the witness ought to be able to tell.

Mr. MacInnis: Or even important to this counsel, your Honor. That would hardly be a reason for allowing the question to be repeated four times, and with the right answer not given, to strive on a fifth occasion. Now, your Honor has permitted him to give these reasons. [3712]

The Court: One moment. Mr. Witness, do you understand the import of the question? Have you given thus far fully and completely answers to the questions propounded to you?

The Witness: I believe I have, your Honor.

The Court: Do you feel that you have covered the subject adequately and fully so far as your knowledge is concerned?

The Witness: That's right.

The Court: Have you omitted anything in connection with it?

The Witness: No I don't believe I have.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Now, what did Connolly say at this meeting about his being supplanted, do you remember?

A. Mr. Connolly had very little to say, in view of the fact that he was the party that was mostly under discussion at that meeting. He had very little to say on the subject. However, I can indicate to you that he did not raise any serious objections to the proposal.

Q. Now, do you see Harry Bridges in the courtroom? A. I do.

Q. Would you point him out to the Court and jury?

A. Sitting over at that table over there (indicating).

Q. At what place?

A. Third from the right, the third person from the right.

Mr. Paisley: You may examine the [3713] witness.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Let me ask you this. Your name is Michener, you say? A. That's right, sir.

Q. Before the recess, which we had a few moments ago, you were asked by the prosecutor who examined you to tell the membership of a subcommittee which was sent to see Philip Murray in relation to one of the matters you told us about, is that correct? A. That's correct.

Q. And your answer at that time, given under oath, was that you remembered that you and Harry Bridges were members of that committee, wasn't it?

A. That's correct.

Q. Then we had a little recess, requested by the prosecutor, and you came back, and within about two minutes the same question was put to you and you were then enabled to give us the names of several persons——

Mr. Paisley: Now, if the Court please, I didn't ask him before the recess what the membership of the subcommittee was at all, and counsel, as is his custom, starts out by telling the witness what he has testified.

The Court: Counsel, let us refrain from argument. The objection is overruled.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Would you answer that question?

A. Your Honor, I am not quite clear on something. [3714] The Court: Mr. MacInnis will rephrase it, I assume.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Before the recess, a little before 3:00 o'clock, you were asked whether or not a subcommittee was formed to visit Philip Murray, the head of the CIO, to carry out some wish, to replace a man named Connolly with a man named Thimmens in the State CIO of California, correct? A. Correct.

Q. And concerning the membership of that committee you replied that you and Harry Bridges were its members?

A. Not exactly; I don't believe I said that.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. You said that under oath, didn't you?

A. No. Your Honor, I wonder if it would be too much trouble to consult the record of just what happened prior to 3:00 o'clock because I don't believe that I indicated the names of the members that served on that committee, and if I did say under oath here that it was just Bridges and I that served on that committee, I was mistaken, because there were others on that.

The Court: All right. If that be the fact, then, you desire to correct your statement?

The Witness: But I do believe I said in the first instance, your Honor——

Mr. Paisley: Well, now——

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, may we be fair? [3715]

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, one at a time.

The Court: It may be difficult to go back in the record of this instance.

Mr. Donohue: I understand that.

The Court: Mr. Reporter, were you here prior to the recess?

The Reporter: No, your Honor, the other reporter was here.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Donohue: I understand that, but if I am not mistaken, I am reasonably certain, if your Honor pleases, that this witness was not asked before the recess by Mr. Paisley who served on that committee; in narrating what happened, he said that he and Bridges served on the committee to wait on Mr.

Murray. That is a fact. He was not asked until after the recess who served on the committee, other than those two. I think the witness——

Mr. Paisley: That is why I objected to the question, which apparently your Honor wasn't listening to—you were talking to somebody else. I didn't ask any such question as that. Mr. MacInnis says I did. I didn't ask as to the membership of the subcommittee before the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: I think his Honor remembers the question.

Mr. Paisley: I didn't ask the question at all, yet he gets up here and testifies and says I did ask it. That is why I objected. [3716]

The Court: All right; proceed.

Mr. MacInnis: Do the prosecutors have any further statements?

Q. Now, you heard Mr. Paisley ask for the recess, did you not? A. I did.

Q. During the recess, to what person or persons did you speak?

A. During the recess I spoke to one person by the name of Larry Kessler, and I spoke to a newspaper reporter by the name of Mr. Keyes, who I used to know years ago in Los Angeles, and I was asked another question by a reporter by the name of Mr. Pierce, regarding how old I was.

Q. Who is Larry Kessler?

A. Larry Kessler is a representative of the Immigration Service.

Q. Is he here in the courtroom?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I wouldn't know at the present time, sir.

Q. Would you look down and see?

A. I—(scanning audience)——

Mr. MacInnis: Well, may we ask that Mr. Kessler stand up if he is in the courtroom?

A. I cannot see him here.

Q. Where did you talk to him?.

A. Right in the hallway about ten feet from this entrance here.

Q. Had you seen him before? A. I have.

Q. When? [3717]

A. On several occasions since I have been in San Francisco.

Q. How long have you been in San Francisco?

A. I arrived here Thursday morning of last week.

Q. And you met this Mr. Kessler after you arrived in San Francisco?

A. No, I met Mr. Kessler prior to that time, when I arrived in San Francisco before the holidays.

Q. Well, you were here in San Francisco before Christmas, were you? A. That's right, sir.

Q. When did you come here then?

A. Thursday of last week, sir.

Q. What do you mean by "last week"?

A. Well, today is Tuesday, is it not? Then I said last week, would have been Thursday of last week, the Thursday of last week.

Q. No, I am speaking—you said you were here before Christmas, didn't you?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I did, before the holiday. [3718]

Q. When did you come here, then?

A. I believe it was on a Tuesday. I am not certain of that. I think it was Tuesday. I was here for one day, expected to be called as a witness, the Court adjourned for the holiday, and it was the last day before court adjourned for the holidays.

Q. That would have been about the 20th day of December of this year?

A. I would have to consult a calendar.

Q. Did you meet this Mr. Keller on this occasion?

A. I did, sir.

Q. You had not met him before?

A. Not to my recollection I hadn't.

Q. He is with the Immigration Service?

A. That is correct.

Q. Where was it that you talked to that man during the last recess?

A. Right in this hallway, about 10 feet from the entrance to this courtroom.

Q. Was he in the courtroom during the last hour?

A. I don't believe he was. He may have been. However, I wouldn't be in a position to tell you.

Q. Had you met a Mr. Kaiser? A. I have.

Q. When did you meet him first?

A. I first met Mr. Kaiser in the latter part of 1948. [3719]

Q. The latter part of 1948? That would be in November or December, would it?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Yes. It could have been earlier than November.

Q. Maybe October?

A. Maybe it could have been.

Q. Where did you meet Mr. Kaiser?

A. Mr. Kaiser came——

Mr. Paisley: What has that got to do with it, your Honor, where he met Mr. Kaiser?

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: Answer?

The Court: Yes.

A. I met Mr. Kaiser at the Ford plant where I worked, in Long Beach or Wilmington, California.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Was he the first person who spoke to you with reference to your coming here as a witness? A. He was.

Q. When he saw you at the Ford plant was he alone or did he have any other person with him?

A. He was alone.

Q. How did he identify himself?

A. With a badge and a card with his picture on it, in a packet that he carried in his pocket, as I recall.

Q. And he revealed to you in about October, 1948, that he was an Immigration Service [3720] agent?

A. That is correct.

Q. And did you then have a conversation with him? A. I did.

Q. Where?

A. In the lobby of the Ford plant in Long Beach, Wilmington.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did he ask you at that time if you would be a witness in the case to be brought against Harry Bridges? A. He did.

Q. What did he say in that connection?

A. He just asked me if I would be willing to testify in the Bridges case on a voluntary basis.

Q. What did he say the Bridges was at that time? A. He didn't say at that time.

Q. But he asked you if you would be willing to testify against Harry Bridges?

A. That is correct.

Q. That was at the meeting you had with him in the lobby of the Ford plant in Southern California in about the month of October, 1948?

A. That is approximately right, sir.

Q. Did he tell you at that time that it was to be a trial involving Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, he did tell me at that time that there was going to be a hearing before a grand jury regarding Bridges. He did not indicate to me about there being a trial being held. [3721]

Q. This again was in October, 1948, that he told you that? A. That is right.

Q. How long had you been discussing this matter with Mr. Kaiser in the lobby that day before he revealed to you that there was going to be a grand jury hearing involving Harry Bridges?

A. It wasn't a very long conversation. I would say perhaps maybe a half hour over the entire meeting.

Q. When he asked you this question, if you were willing to be a witness against Harry Bridges, you said that you were? A. I did not.

Q. What did you say?

A. I said that I would like to think it over.

Q. This man had introduced himself to you showing you his credentials as an officer of the Immigration Department, and when he asked you if you would testify against Harry Bridges, your answer was that you would like to think it over?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you tell him how long a time you would require?

A. No, sir; I just said I would like to give it some thought.

Q. In other words, you wanted to weigh the thing, one factor against another, to see whether you should testify against Harry Bridges?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you then make some arrangement with this Mr. Kaiser [3722] to have another talk?

A. I have had several conversations with Mr. Kaiser since the original one, yes, sir.

Q. He left you then with the understanding that you were going to think the matter over?

A. That is right.

Q. You told him that expressly?

A. Words to that effect, yes, sir.

Q. Did he tell you when he would return to see you?

A. No, he did not at that time. He said he would call me later on.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. That was the only arrangement that you had as he departed? A. That is correct.

Q. Did he ask you any other questions?

A. Not that I can recall at the present time. I can't recall him asking me any other questions than that one I related to you.

Q. In other words, the thing that is most vivid in your memory about the first contact with Mr. Kaiser in October, 1948, in the lobby of the Ford plant is that he asked you if you would be willing to be a witness against Harry Bridges, and you told him you would like some time to think it over?

A. That is in essence the general over-all picture of the first conversation, yes, sir.

Q. And he did tell you in that conversation that there was to [3723] be a hearing involving Harry Bridges before a grand jury? A. That is correct.

Q. And he then went away?

A. That is correct.

Q. When did you next see this Mr. Kaiser?

A. I believe it was sometime about two weeks later Mr. Kaiser called and made an appointment. He came down to the plant again.

Q. Pardon me. When you say he called——?

A. By telephone.

Q. He asked for you? A. That is right.

Q. And made an appointment by telephone to talk to you further? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. That would still be in 1948, wouldn't it?

A. That would be.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Still in October, or would it be in November?

A. I wouldn't say—so far as pinning it down strictly to October, I said approximately October.

Q. But at least it was still the calendar year 1948? A. That would be correct, sir.

Q. What was the conversation you had with him by telephone?

A. Well, whether I would be available, what time would be convenient. He would like to drop down and talk further about the matter we had recently discussed. [3724]

Q. Did he ask you if you had given it any thought? A. Not over the phone, no, sir.

Q. He did not mention the subject matter over the telephone?

A. No, sir, he would just like to have another meeting with me to discuss the matter we discussed prior in our first meeting.

Q. So then he came to see you again?

A. That is correct.

Q. The same place? A. The same place.

Q. Was he alone on that occasion?

A. He was.

Q. Did he ask you then if you had thought the matter over? A. He did.

Q. Had you? A. I had.

Q. What did you tell him?

A. I hadn't made up my mind yet.

Q. You had not made up your mind?

A. That is right.

Q. Did he then go away?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. He did.

Q. Did you have any arrangement with him then as to any further conference?

A. Approximately the same arrangements as was arrived at the [3725] first meeting. He would call me up later on and we could discuss the matter further.

Q. He said that you could let the thing simmer in your mind and think it over some more?

A. I don't recall exactly if he used the word "simmer" or not, but that is generally the idea.

Q. Your state of mind then was that you were going to think it over further?

A. That is correct.

Q. When did you next see Mr. Kaiser and under what circumstances? By the way, before you give your attention to that question, let me withdraw it and ask you another one. On this second meeting was the discussion you had with him confined to whether or not you had made up your mind?

A. Well, generally, yes. I mean that particular point was raised, and as I have indicated to you in the court, I had not arrived at a decision yet on the matter and was still in the process of thinking the situation over.

Q. Did he ask you any other questions on that occasion? A. No, sir, not that I recall.

Q. He came back on the second occasion and asked you if you had made up your mind yet, and you told him that you had not?

A. That is right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. That you wanted more time to think it over, and then he went away; he said he would contact you later? [3726]

A. That is generally what happened.

Q. When did he return again?

A. I believe the next time I saw Mr. Kaiser was in January, 1949.

Q. How do you place that time as being January?

A. I say it was early because it was just prior to our local union elections and we were in the process of campaigning in the plant. The next time I saw Mr. Kaiser I know I was very busy and didn't have much time to spend with him.

Q. Where did he see you then?

A. At the Long Beach Ford plant.

Q. In the same place?

A. In fact, not in the same place. I walked out to the car with him. He had his car parked close to the main entrance to the plant and I walked out to the car with him.

Q. How long did that conversation last?

A. Not very long, because I had some committee work that was pressing inside and I didn't spend very much time with him.

Q. Had you made up your mind on that occasion?

A. No, sir.

Q. You told him that? A. Yes.

Q. You said, "I need more time to think it over"? A. That is correct.

Q. "Hadn't yet made up my mind." [3727]

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Words to that effect.

Q. And he said, "Let me know when you do"?

A. Yes, or he would get in touch with me later on when I wasn't quite so busy.

Q. He said he would get in touch with you?

A. That is right.

Q. He understood you were still going through a mental process of making up your mind?

A. I assume that he did.

Q. On this third conversation that you had with Mr. Kaiser at the door of his automobile down in the Long Beach plant of the Ford Company did he ask you any other questions basically except the question, "Have you yet made up your mind?"

A. No, he asked me no other questions than basically the one had I made up my mind.

Q. So in all three of those conversations the matter was pretty much the same?

A. That is right.

Q. He said, "Have you made up your mind? Are you willing to testify against Harry Bridges?" and you said, "No, I haven't yet made up my mind"? A. That is correct.

Q. You said, "I need a little more time to make up my mind"?

A. I may have said, or I may have said, "I would like to have some more time to think it over." I don't recall just exactly [3728] word by word what was said, but that was in essence the idea.

Q. You said you wanted more time to think it over? A. That is right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. When you told Mr. Kaiser on that third conversation that you wanted some time to think it over, was he alone or was he accompanied by some other person? A. He was alone.

Q. On all three of these occasions?

A. That is right.

Q. Was he alone?

A. I know he was alone every time I discussed the problem with him the first three times. The first two times he may have come down to the plant with someone else. If he did, he left them outside. I didn't see anyone only Mr. Kaiser.

Q. On the second occasion in November, 1948, when he came to see you——

A. I wouldn't say exactly it was November; approximately.

Q. Around that time? A. O.K.

Q. Did he tell you something further then about having a proceeding against Harry Bridges?

A. Only what was more or less indicated in the first meeting, securing that evidence that they wanted to present to the grand jury. That is what he had told me in the first meeting, and [3729] more or less that was implied in the second and third meetings, that they were in the process of securing witnesses for the grand jury hearing.

Q. Did he tell you that he was staying in Southern California and that he would be available for any call from you?

A. No, sir, no, he didn't tell me he was staying in Southern California?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did he give you any address where you could reach him? A. Not at that time, no, sir.

Q. When he left you on this third occasion at the door of his car, you said that you had not yet made up your mind, that you wanted more time to think it over, he said then that he would contact you again?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did he? A. Yes.

Q. When did he contact you next?

A. The next time I recall Mr. Kaiser calling me, I was confined to the hospital for a while, the Seaside Hospital in Long Beach, the latter part of February and March, 1949, and I had received two phone calls from Mr. Kaiser during the period of my stay at the hospital.

Q. He telephoned you twice?

A. That is right.

Q. Did he tell you how he had obtained the information that [3730] you were in the hospital?

A. That was pretty generally known throughout California, Southern California, and pretty well known in Los Angeles and locality.

Q. You are pretty well known down there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He found out you were in Seaside Hospital?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he send you flowers? A. No, sir.

Q. But he telephoned you twice?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he ask you on the telephone if you had made up your mind yet? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. What did he say?

A. He just asked me how I was getting along, how long I was going to be there, sorry to hear I was in the hospital.

Q. Pardon me. This was the first time he telephoned there?

A. The conversation was about the same on both occasions.

Q. He said, "How are you getting along?"

A. Words to that effect—sorry——

Q. What did you say?

A. "Getting along fine, pulled out of it, believe it or not."

Q. The second time he telephoned you was [3731] when?

A. The second time in the hospital would be right around, close to St. Patrick's Day, the 17th of March.

Q. And he said then, "How are you"?

A. How am I getting along, words to that effect. Maybe not exactly "How are you?" but "How is everything coming along with you," and so on.

Q. And then you said, "Fine"?

A. I did.

Q. Did he ask you then, "Have you made up your mind yet"? A. No.

Q. Did he ever come to see you at the hospital?

A. No.

Q. Did he make some arrangement to see you?

A. I told him I would call him when I got out of the hospital. He gave me a number to call. I wrote it down at that time.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. He gave you a number?

A. That is right.

Q. A Southern California number, I suppose?

A. You supposed correctly, sir.

Q. You told him then that you would telephone him? A. I did.

Q. Had you made up your mind by that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you tell him that? A. Sir? [3732]

Q. Did you tell him that?

A. No, I didn't tell him over the phone because I wasn't asked that question. I told him, as I have told you, that when I got out of the hospital I would give him a call and he gave me a phone number and I wrote it down.

Q. On each of those occasions wherein Mr. Kaiser telephoned you at the hospital neither of you mentioned the subject matter of your discussions?

A. No. No, sir.

Q. He said, "How are you? How are you getting along"? and you said "Fine," and then he called you again on St. Patrick's Day?

A. Not on St. Patrick's Day, but approximately St. Patrick's Day, sir.

Q. He said, "How are you? How are you getting along?" and you said, "Fine; I will call you when I get out of the hospital"? A. That is correct.

Q. And then he volunteered a telephone number, which he gave you? A. That is correct.

Q. When did you get out of the hospital?

The Court: It is four o'clock, Mr. MacInnis. We have had a long day. I think we will take an adjournment. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we have reached the recess hour [3733] and adjournment period. We will resume tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you. You may retire.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Wednesday, January 11, 1950, at 10:00 a.m.)

Wednesday, January 11, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr., heretofore sworn.

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Michener, can you tell us what members of the prosecution staff in this case you have spoken to since we adjourned at 4:00 last evening?

A. Your question isn't quite clear. Do you mean just to say hello to or carry on a conversation with, or anyone that I came in contact with, or——

Q. Yes. Tell us first of all of the persons connected with the prosecution with whom you came in contact since 4:00 last evening.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Oh, Your Honor, I think that is frivolous. I don't think that is really material to the issues. I don't see how that can discredit a witness.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: Answer the question, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

A. I said hello to Mr. Donohue right after the —Mr. Boyd, Mr. Paisley——

Q. Pardon me. You said hello to him [3734] when?

A. The question was after the adjournment of the trial.

Q. You said hello to him at the end of the day?

A. At the end of the day, as I was going up the hall.

Q. When you came——

A. Pardon me. May I explain, sir? After I was going up to get—I left my overcoat on the fourth floor. They have their offices up there. I dropped up to get my overcoat and they were there and exchanged greetings, and that was all.

Q. And where did you stay last night?

A. Stayed——

Mr. Paisley: I object to that, Your Honor. Immaterial where the witness stayed last night. We are not trying the witnesses, we are trying the defendants.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Stayed at the Marines Memorial Hotel, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And did you see any agents of the Immigration Service at that place? A. I did, sir.

Q. Who? A. Seen Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Anybody else? A. I saw Mr. Kessler.

Q. Anybody else? A. Mr. Kedder.

Q. Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Kessler and Mr. Kedder, you say? [3735] Not Kidder?

A. Kedder—I am not too well familiar with him. Perhaps you are right.

Q. Are they here in court now?

A. I wouldn't know whether they were or not, without I had an opportunity to examine the audience.

Q. I see.

Mr. MacInnis: Would Mr. Kidder stand up?

Mr. Paisley: I just object to that. What difference does it make if the agents are in the courtroom?

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. MacInnis: Is Mr. Kidder in the room, or Mr. Kessler?

(Whereupon a man arose who was seated in the body of the courtroom.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Is that the man to whom you have referred as Kessler?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Now, you saw last night at the Marines Memorial Club Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Kessler and Mr. Kidder?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Repetitious, if the Court please. The witness said that, counsel repeated it. This is the second time now.

The Court: All right; the witness did answer.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Yes. Now, did you share a room with any of those men? [3736]

A. I did, sir.

Q. With which one? A. With Mr. Kaiser.

Q. You shared a room with Mr. Kaiser, the man who sits on the end of the aisle?

A. I wouldn't say he is sitting on the end of the aisle. I haven't had the occasion to identify whether he is present or not, sir.

Q. Well, didn't you see Mr. Kaiser stand up?

A. I did, sir.

Q. Who is the man next to him?

A. That is Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Well, you saw him when Mr. Kaiser stood up, didn't you?

A. No, I didn't, in particular.

Q. You saw him before the jury came in this morning? A. That's right, sir.

Q. And you knew he was sitting there yesterday in the same place?

A. I am sorry, I will have to deny that. I didn't. I am under oath up here and I am going to tell the truth, sir.

Q. Now, did these other agents stay in adjoining rooms to you?

Mr. Paisley: Now, Your Honor, is that material?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: Well, it might be material with respect to two aspects of this case: Defendants contend on the one hand asserted dominance by government agents. I think that is your [3737] position?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: The prosecution, on the other side, I suppose, will contend or argue hereafter from the evidence or from inferences to be drawn therefrom that there was a necessity for having agents surround these men for security reasons. I assume that is the position taken thus far, and that is the position that may be taken hereafter. And in the light of the defense contention, I believe that all the surrounding facts and circumstances should be gone into with respect to the security taken to protect witnesses from any untoward circumstances, and from the defense viewpoint I shall allow the examination upon the theory that the defense contends that there is domination.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Would you answer that question, please?

A. May I have the question again?

Q. I will repeat it. Did any of these other men stay in adjoining rooms to yours?

A. I couldn't testify to that, sir. I wouldn't know.

Q. You don't know where they stayed?

A. That's right.

Q. Did they stay at the Marines Memorial Club?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Well, I am not in a position to testify to that.

Q. Well, with whom did you eat your dinner last night?

A. I ate dinner with Mr. Kaiser last [3738] night.

Q. And where did that dinner take place?

A. In the Marines Memorial Hotel.

Q. And after dinner did you stay in that building?

A. Oh, no, no, I stayed there later that evening, but I didn't—wasn't confined to the building all evening, sir.

Q. Where did you go in the evening?

A. Oh, I went out to the San Francisco Airport.

Q. Did you go there to meet somebody?

A. No, sir.

Q. About what time in the evening did you go out to the airport?

A. Oh, it was around about 7:00 o'clock or a little bit after.

Q. And who accompanied you there?

A. Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Whom did you see out there?

A. Well, I saw quite a few people, sir. I mean, any one particular individual you had in mind, I will be glad to testify as to that. I mean, who did I see out there—there was quite a few people, sir.

Q. We are to understand that after dinner you and Mr. Kaiser went out to the airport, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. About 7:00 o'clock? A. That's right.

Q. To what particular part of the airport did you go?

A. To the main lobby or station there at the airport. [3739]

Q. You mean the place where passengers congregate or wait for planes?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And what did you do there?

A. Well, I didn't say that Mr. Kaiser and I went out there alone, sir. We took a passenger out to the airport.

Q. Who was that?

A. A man that testified here previous to myself testifying, a Mr. Laurence Ross, Larry Ross.

Q. Oh, you and Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ross drove out to the airport? A. Oh, not alone, sir.

Q. Oh, someone else, was there?

A. That's right.

Q. Who?

A. I can't identify the other man that was with me, but he was also a representative of the Immigration Service.

Q. He was some person other than those men whose names you have given us?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. You were not introduced to him?

A. I was, but the name slips me right now, sir. He drove the automobile.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did you meet him once or more than once?

A. Oh, I met him more than once, sir. [3740]

Q. And so you drove out, this man who is now called Lawrence Ross; you talked to him on the way out? A. Oh, yes.

Q. You rode together in the car?

A. That's right.

Q. And then you bade him a bon voyage at the plane? A. No, I didn't do that, sir.

Q. You went out to the plane and said goodbye to him?

A. In the American language, yes, sir.

Q. I see; I see. And then his plane went off?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And then you came back to town, sir?

A. That's right, sir?

Q. And did you come back then directly to the Marines Memorial Club? A. I did, sir.

Q. With Mr. Kaiser? A. That's right, sir.

Q. And the other unnamed agent?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And what did you do then?

A. Went to bed, sir.

Q. You didn't have any discussion or conference, but you immediately retired for the night?

A. That is practically correct. Immediately retired for bed. I done a little reading last night; the fact of the matter is I did. [3741]

Q. This other unidentified man, did he enter the Marines Memorial Club with you?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Was he the driver of the car?

A. He was.

Q. And I suppose he dropped you and Mr. Kaiser at the Marines Club and then drove away?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, to come back to the matters that you were telling us about last night, about these visits of Mr. Kaiser to you at the Ford plant in Southern California, you told us that he came to you and asked you if you would be a witness against Harry Bridges, and you said you wanted time to think it over, and that was repeated on two occasions; correct?

A. I believe the record is pretty clear on that.

Q. On the first occasion he told you, in addition to asking you that one question, that there was to be another hearing involving Harry Bridges before the grand jury?

A. In substance that was correct. There was a lot of other things, of course, discussed. I believe, if my memory serves me correctly, sir, he asked about the main question. Of course, we didn't sit and talk about Mr. Bridges for a solid half hour in our discussions. Of course, there was a proposition of discussion of the Communist Party involved, too. But I meant as far as the general testimony yesterday [3742] was concerned, that stands as recorded yesterday.

Q. Did someone call your attention to the fact that yesterday you told this jury that the only question asked of you was would you testify against Bridges, and that you ought to amplify that by adding that the subject matter was discussed?

A. I am under oath, sir. No, sir, no one told me to change my testimony, if that is what you are attempting to imply.

Q. You did not talk to Mr. Kaiser about your testimony at all? A. That is right, sir.

Q. In other words, during all the hours that you may have been with him since court adjourned yesterday, he said nothing to you about the testimony that you may have given or the testimony that you were going to give?

A. I will admit frankly there was a discussion naturally upon the Bridges case, but as far as I was involved, about being coached, schooled, or told what to say, sir, no, sir.

Q. You say that you just discussed the Bridges case, sir? A. In generalities, that is right.

Q. And did you come to court here with Mr. Kaiser this morning? A. I did, sir.

Q. Did you read the transcript of the testimony that you gave yesterday? A. No, sir.

Q. You have not been shown that?

A. No, sir. I read the account of it, however, in the [3743] newspapers. I must admit that.

Q. That was the reading that you did last night?

A. No, not altogether, sir. I read the account of it, if you would like to know, the account of it in the People's World, which is the Communist paper. I requested that I be able to get a copy of that last night, which I did.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. You made a special request for that?

A. On our way back from the airport I stopped and I secured a copy of the People's World?

Q. Tell me, after this third visit of Mr. Kaiser, which you say took place at the door of his automobile, you then received two telephone calls from him while you were in the hospital?

A. That is right.

Q. And after you came out of the hospital you telephoned him? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. So that telephone call took place about when?

A. Oh, it would be approximately a week or maybe ten days after—well, it would be around the 24th or 27th of March of 1949, somewheres around that particular time. I place that date in reference, as I have indicated to the Court yesterday, in reference to St. Patrick's Day, on the 17th of March.

Q. You called Mr. Kaiser around March 27?

A. Approximately around that time. It may have been the 24th, [3744] the 23rd—in that particular neighborhood, sir.

Q. Did you make some ~~arrangement then~~ to have a further contact with him?

A. I did, sir.

Q. Had you by that time made up your mind?

A. No, sir.

Q. But you nevertheless called him and made a date to have a talk? A. That is right.

Q. When did that talk take place?

A. It took place—that talk took place down at the Immigration office; made an appointment to meet Mr. Kaiser down there at the Immigration office in Los Angeles on Spring Street, I believe 4th and Spring.

Q. That was how many days after March 27?

A. Oh, not to exceed a week, I don't believe.

Q. So when you telephoned Mr. Kaiser you had not yet made up your mind; you said that you would be willing to talk to him at the Immigration Service office?

A. I didn't exactly say that, I would be willing to talk with him at the Immigration office. That was where we made the appointment as a result of the conversation. I volunteered to go down there and I did, sir.

Q. Whom did you meet on that occasion besides Mr. Kaiser?

A. Just Mr. Kaiser on that occasion. [3745]

Q. Nobody else? A. That is right.

Q. Did you have a talk with him then?

A. I did.

Q. Had you made up your mind at that time?

A. No, sir, not particularly. As a matter of fact, at that particular meeting, sir, we more or less discussed other personalities within the Communist Party, and very little of the discussion was —as far as Mr. Bridges was concerned, was very small as compared to the other discussions we had, but relative to the Communist Party in general.

Q. Were you asked to testify against other people?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. No, sir, just asked to identify them, whether I knew them or not.

Q. How long did that conversation take?

A. I would estimate approximately an hour, approximately an hour.

Q. Was there any record made of that conversation? A. No, sir, not to my knowledge.

Q. No stenographer was there?

A. No, not to my knowledge, sir.

Q. Is it fair to conclude that at the end of that meeting you told Mr. Kaiser you still had not made up your mind whether you would testify against Harry Bridges or not?

A. Well, it is perhaps fair to conclude that. However, it [3746] was not indicated at that particular meeting.

Q. Had you made up your mind?

A. No, sir, I had not.

Q. On the fourth meeting that you had with Mr. Kaiser, which would be in early April, I guess, of 1949, since you telephoned him around March 27, you still had not made up your mind; true?

A. That is correct.

Q. And when you left Mr. Kaiser at the immigration office on that occasion, did you make any further date to meet with him?

A. Not at that particular time, but as a result of my phone conversation later on another appointment was made.

Q. Pardon me. Who called whom?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. At that particular time, when I left, I told Mr. Kaiser that I would call him later on, and I did, sir.

Q. You were coming then a little closer to making up your mind because you telephoned him before this fourth meeting and again before your fifth meeting, did you?

A. If your Honor please, and the Court, I would not like to indicate here under oath I was a little bit closer to making up my mind at that particular time, sir.

Q. You still had not made up your mind?

A. That is right.

Q. You were still weighing various factors one against the other? [3747]

The Court: Do you wish to make any explanation?

The Witness: I would like to make an explanation, if your Honor please, why I took this time.

The Court: Make your explanation.

The Witness: The explanation why I took the time to make up my mind regarding whether I would be a witness in this particular case of Harry Bridges was the fact that I fully realized the character assassinations that flow——

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this is a prepared statement. Your Honor did not invite him to make a gratuitous statement like that. I think we are entitled to bring out these reasons by cross-examination, but not to——

The Court: I thought Mr. MacInnis, that the

witness might be afforded an opportunity to make an explanation in the light of your question addressed to him; in substance, as you stated, "Was it at that time that you were closer to making up your mind," and I thought at that juncture he might make an explanation if one happened to be in order.

Mr. MacInnis: But now he wants, your Honor —and I say respectfully to you—to make a gratuitous statement about character assassinations. I am going to proceed to his reasons and ask him those questions.

The Court (To the Witness): Mr. Witness, I might state to you now that in the light of the cross-examination you are entitled to answer the questions addressed to you, and in [3748] addition to that you are entitled, in deference to a witness, to make an explanation of any answer that you may give in keeping with the terms of the question. Do you understand that?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Paisley: He was trying to make an explanation.

The Court: Counsel, I think the witness understands what I have in mind.

Mr. Paisley: My point was, your Honor, that he was trying to make an explanation and was interrupted by counsel. I make that point.

The Court: Where were we in the record?

Mr. MacInnis: I will repeat the question, your Honor, if that be all right.

Q. Now, Mr. Witness, you say that after this meeting in early April, 1949, in the office of the Immigration Service in Los Angeles with Mr. Kaiser you telephoned him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when did that call take place?

The Court: I thought we were going back to the record to determine what the witness had said at the time he was interrupted by you. He was in the process of making an answer and had used the term "character assassination." That term may go out. You may explain in the absence of such a term what you had in mind in your asserted reluctance to testify. You [3749] may state it.

The Witness: If your Honor please, it is my humble opinion here that counsel is attempting——

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor did not invite him to state his opinion, humble or otherwise.

The Court: I invited you to state for the record why, over this period of three or four calls made by Mr. Kaiser or other agents, you finally made up your mind or were diffident to make up your mind.

The Witness: Yes, your Honor. If the Court please, the reason I was indifferent to make up my mind, I had the opportunity of reviewing the previous Bridges cases, and I understand that by serving as a witness for the Government of the United States that you were apt to be branded as a stool pigeon and other names of that particular ilk, and that is the reason why I delayed in making up my mind, your Honor, in the preliminary discussions I had with Mr. Kaiser.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, you say in response to your request to make an explanation that you reviewed in your own mind the previous Bridges cases? A. That is right, sir.

Q. And by those you had in mind the cases brought against Harry Bridges by the Immigration Service, first in 1939 and later in 1941; is that true? A. That is true. [3750]

Q. And you say you had in mind the characterizations placed upon the people who testified against Harry Bridges?

A. I believe, sir, I attempted to use the phraseology "character assassination."

Q. And you had in mind that the judge who tried the first case, Dean Landis, was the one who called the witnesses perjurers, psychopathic liars, and stool pigeons, didn't you?

Mr. Paisley: I object to counsel testifying.

The Court: You may answer the question. Did you answer it?

The Witness: No, your Honor. I don't believe for the record I did. I had in mind that I am not familiar with his Honor Landis referring to all the witnesses as such, but I am certainly aware of the fact that the Communist Party referred to them as such.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you ever refer to them as such?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I did at one particular stage of the game, your Honor, because——

Q. I am not "your Honor."

A. Pardon me. I withdraw that for the record, sir.

Q. In other words, when you were reviewing in your own mind the characterizations placed upon these people who testified against Harry Bridges, what you were thinking about was the things that you yourself had said about them?

A. Not exactly, sir, because my contribution to the Bridges [3751] trials heretofore have been financially.

Q. You did not do anything else?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. You never referred to the people who testified that Harry Bridges was a Communist before as perjurers and stool pigeons?

A. That was the general policy of the Communist Party, sir. I must plead guilty to that.

Q. You did? A. I did.

Q. You say that? A. That is right.

Q. And that was one of the things that you had in mind? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Did you read the decision of Dean Landis?

A. Not—I didn't.

Q. So far as the 1941 case against Harry Bridges was concerned, you found that on this reflection there was the Supreme Court of the United States, which held that the people were stool pigeons and liars——

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, we are not going into these other proceedings. He is testifying now or attempting to testify what the Supreme Court said.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I may say, your Honor, not attempting to circumvent your ruling, this witness has intruded matter with [3752] respect to the previous Bridges cases into his reflections, and I submit that if the witness has the right to state his reflections and his reasons therefor, we have a right to explore those reflections and the basis for them.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): In any event, you went through these reflections, including reflections on what you had said about other witnesses who had appeared against Harry Bridges, and for that reason you had not yet made up your mind?

A. That is right, sir. In 1941 I was carrying out the Communist Party line.

Q. And you telephoned Mr. Kaiser sometime in April, 1949? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Did you make an appointment with him then? A. That is correct.

Q. To meet him where?

A. Down again at the Immigration Service.

Q. Where did that meeting, which would have been your fifth meeting with him, take place?

A. That was at the immigration headquarters in Los Angeles, California.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. About what date?

A. The date—oh, that would be again about another week later than the previous one you have recorded there.

Q. Would you say about the middle of April?

A. Approximately the middle of April, [3753] sir.

Q. 1949? A. Correct.

Q. Your first contact with Mr. Kaiser, as you say, had been back in about October of 1948?

A. Approximately October, yes.

Q. So that you on your fifth meeting with Mr. Kaiser, in about the middle of April, 1949, you again went down to the Immigration Service office?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And met him there? A. That's right.

Q. Anybody else? A. No, sir.

Q. On this occasion you met Mr. Kaiser and whom else? A. Mr. Barber.

Q. Mr. Barber? A. Right, sir.

Q. Had you met him before? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you see him here in court?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was anybody else present besides Mr. Kaiser, Barber and yourself? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have a discussion with those men on that occasion? [3754] A. I did, sir.

Q. Had you by this juncture made up your mind? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you tell them that?

A. Not exactly. I wasn't asked that pointed question, but exactly that way, sir, whether I made up my mind or not because against that particular meeting we discussed several individuals. Did I know this man, that man, so on and so forth, and the bulk of the meeting, sir, was taken up by a discussion of various individuals in the Communist Party and some people that I didn't know at all, sir.

Q. In other words, the bulk of the conversation did not concern Harry Bridges?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Would you say that nine-tenths of the conversation concerned other people?

A. Yes, I would say easily nine-tenths of it.

Q. Maybe even more than that?

A. Possibly. It could have been possibly, sir, because Bridges wasn't discussed at any great length at any time.

Q. So that on this fifth occasion of interviews between yourself and Kaiser, Barber now being present, you had a talk in which other people than Bridges consumed the bulk of the time?

A. That's right.

Q. And the talk continued about how [3755] long?

A. Well, I imagine about an hour, again, an hour or perhaps an hour and fifteen minutes, sir.

Q. Well, would it be fair to say that on your estimation you talked maybe only five minutes about Bridges and the rest of the approximate hour about the other people?

A. I wouldn't—to be honest—draw the line that fine as to whether it was five minutes or three minutes, but it was only a very short reference made to Bridges during that discussion.

Q. On that discussion did you tell them that you would testify against Harry Bridges?

A. I didn't tell them I would or I wouldn't.

Q. And is it true that on that occasion you still hadn't made up your mind?

A. It is possibly correct.

Q. Now, did you make any arrangement as you left on that occasion for a further meeting?

A. Said I would call later on.

Q. Pardon me. You said you would call?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. So that on the fourth occasion and the fifth occasion you were the one who telephoned and made the date for the call? A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Although you still had not made up your mind? A. That's correct.

Q. Now when did you telephone either of those Immigration men? [3756]

A. A few days later and approximately another meeting, for the record, was held approximately another week or ten days after the one you have just questioned me about, sir.

Q. That wouldn't be the end of April, then, or would it? A. Just about.

Q. You telephoned them first?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And made a date? A. That's right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And went down again to the Immigration office? A. That's right.

Q. And whom did you meet on that occasion?

A. Again Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Barber.

Q. Anybody else?

A. Later on a stenographer.

Q. You talked to those two men first for a while? A. Correct.

Q. About how long?

A. Oh, just a few minutes, 15, 20 minutes.

Q. And then you made up your mind?

A. No, I didn't make up my mind.

Q. You hadn't made up your mind, then?

A. No.

Q. Have you made up your mind yet?

A. No, sir. [3757]

Q. Well, you talked to Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Barber for a few minutes and then they brought a stenographer into the room? A. That's right.

Q. And the things that you said from then on were transcribed by the stenographer, were they?

A. Under oath, sir.

Q. Under oath? A. That's right, sir.

Q. Who administered the oath to you?

A. Mr. Barber.

Q. Mr. Barber? A. I said Mr. Barber, sir.

Q. He administered an oath to you?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And then you made a statement that was transcribed by the stenographer?

A. That's correct, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. How long did the taking of that statement consume in time?

A. Maybe 40 minutes. I wouldn't know exactly. I would say maybe 40 minutes, the best of my recollection.

Q. How many pages was it?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. Did you see it later?

A. No, sir, only part of it, and I never read the whole transcript of the statement I made. [3758]

Q. You never saw it fully thereafter?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you sign it?

A. It seems to me, if my memory serves me correct, I did sign the statment.

Q. You signed it although you never read it?

A. Not all of it, sir.

Q. Well, could you tell me approximately how long the statement was that you didn't read?

A. Oh, maybe it was—it was put in a transcript form; it may have been one or two pages in there, something like that. It wasn't too lengthy a document. I don't want to give the impression with the Court that I have signed something I didn't know what I was signing.

Q. You signed it, however?

A. Yes, I signed it,—full knowledge of the content of it.

Q. You say you didn't read it all?

A. I understood what was all there. Made the statement under oath.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And have you been shown that statement since?

A. After, shortly after the meeting that I referred to now, yes, sir.

Q. About how long after that meeting?

A. Perhaps two or three days, maybe four days afterwards.

Q. Was that the day you signed it? [3759]

A. That's right, sir.

Q. In other words, you didn't sign the day you made it? A. That's right.

Q. Is that right? A. That's correct.

Q. You came back two or three days later?

A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you see this statement?

A. Brought to me out at the Ford plant.

Q. By whom? A. Oh, Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was the occasion when you signed it? A. That is the occasion I signed it.

Q. And that would have been your seventh meeting, would it?

A. I guess you are keeping count there. I will use your judgment on that, sir. I believe that would be the seventh meeting.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Kaiser at that time?

A. I looked the statement over hurriedly. That is why I made reference to the fact I didn't read it slowly. I looked the entire statement over in a hurry and signed it.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did you make any date to see him further on that occasion?

A. I don't believe I did, sir. I don't believe I made any [3760] appointment to see him for a further date, with Mr. Kaiser, at that particular instance.

Q. And up to that point you have given us the names and the occasions upon which you saw any person connected with the Immigration Service?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And when did you see any of those men thereafter?

A. Trying to recollect when the next time—As I have indicated to the Court here, I have had several meetings with Mr. Kaiser. I am trying to place them down, the best of my memory——

Q. What was the next communication you had from anybody connected with the Immigration Service?

A. Never received any communication, sir.

Q. Never thereafter?

A. Letters or—if that is what you are referring to?

Q. Or telephone calls.

A. Oh, yes, certainly I have received several telephone calls. I called the Immigration Service several times after this particular episode. I am trying to recollect the next exact time for the record.

Q. Well, were you brought here to San Francisco? A. And I can't place it. Sir?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Were you brought here to San Francisco to testify before the grand jury?

A. I was, sir. [3761]

Q. About when?

A. Let' see. The grand jury—that was nineteen—that was some, about two months later, I would say, or more than that perhaps. It was in—may have been more than two months. Let me see. We have it up to May, don't we, sir, the last meeting there, I believe, approximately in May?

Q. The end of April or the start of May.

A. The start of May. Approximately, then, about three months later.

Q. How many months?

A. Approximately, oh, no—it must have been approximately two months after that, I would say.

Q. So it would be some time in July?

A. Yes, sir, I believe the record will be clear, from the record, to establish exactly when the grand jury met. I would be willing to testify that I appeared before the grand jury.

Q. But your best memory is that it would be about two months after this interview and hence about in July?

A. Approximately that, yes, sir. I may not be quite exact on that, but for the record we will indicate that; for the record, further, I would like to indicate that I did appear before the grand jury when they held their session here in San Francisco.

Q. And how long did you stay in San Francisco on that visit? A. Two days, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And that was in last year, 1949? [3762]

A. That's correct.

Q. And it was about two months after this last visit that you had with Mr. Kaiser?

A. Approximately.

Q. About July. Now, between the time that you came up to testify before the grand jury and the last meeting with Kaiser, were there any further contacts between you?

A. There possibly could have been, yes, sir.

Q. Would those have been——

A. I remember one meeting. Whether it was after the grand jury testimony or whether it was before, where I met Mr. Kaiser, but as I have indicated to you, sir, there has been several meetings, and it is rather difficult for me to place them all right down the line. I am doing the best I can from my memory.

Q. Pardon me. Were you going to say something else? A. I just said from memory.

Q. Was the written statement that you gave on the occasion you have described the only written statement that you ever made to the Immigration Service or to the prosecutors in this case?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. After the day you signed it, have you seen that statement? A. No, sir.

Q. You have not been shown that statement since? A. The statement that——

Q. The statement that you signed hurriedly without fully [3763] reading it? A. That's correct.

Q. And you did testify before the grand jury?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I did.

Mr. Paisley: He has said that already two or three times.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, when you testified before the grand jury, did you state substantially the same things that you told the Court and jury yesterday, or did you state added or further details?

A. I stated substantially what I have told the Court here, sir.

Q. Nothing further? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Further events and details?

A. That's right.

Q. And of course you weren't subjected to any cross-examination when you appeared before the grand jury? A. That's correct.

Q. And the contents of your testimony before the grand jury would contain other matters that you weren't asked about in your direct examination here? A. That's right.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, may it please the Court, based upon the last series of questions and answers, we request that we be furnished with the transcript of the testimony given by this witness before the grand jury. He himself has indicated a [3764] wide discrepancy in the subject matter covered by him in the narrative of these incidents.

Mr. Paisley: I object to that statement, if the Court please.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Paisley: I move that his statement be stricken.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: The statement with respect to a wide discrepancy in connection with this witness' testimony is stricken from the record and the jury admonished to disregard the same. The request for the grand jury transcript is denied.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, your Honor, I say this respectfully and advisedly: My remark about the wide discrepancy is based only what the witness said himself, because I of course haven't seen the grand jury minutes. He says that he was asked about other events and other details, that he was not asked——

The Court: That might be embellishment rather than discrepancy. There is a distinction.

Mr. MacInnis: That is why we asked as to it.

The Court: That is a distinction, a considerable distinction between embellishment and wide discrepancy.

Mr. MacInnis: That is why we appeal to your discretion and ask——

The Court: The request is denied.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

Mr. Paisley: We again offer, Your Honor, to show the [3765] transcript to the Court, if the Court wants to look at it, to see if there is any discrepancy.

Mr. MacInnis: If there is nothing to conceal, there is no reason why he shouldn't make the same offer as regards the defense, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Well, your Honor, if counsel would study the law on the subject, he wouldn't make a statement like that.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, after you testified before the grand jury, you had other contacts with Mr. Kaiser, say, between that time and the start of this trial?

A. I may have had the occasion to meet Mr. Kaiser once thereafter. The fact of the matter is, I would testify here that I did, the best of my recollection, meet Mr. Kaiser once thereafter.

Q. How about telephone calls?

A. No, sir, I don't recall any telephone calls to Mr. Kaiser.

Q. During the fall of 1949 preceding the start of this trial, did you have any telephone communications with any agents of the Immigration Service?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how frequently?

A. There were matters pertaining to my appearing at the hearings and the matter of, I would say, maybe two or three times thereafter, dealing with my securing a leave of absence from my employment and being available to be a witness here. [3766]

Q. Those would be the only occasions?

A. That's right.

Q. Was there ever an occasion in which you had nightly contact by telephone with some agent of the Immigration Service?

A. By nightly, do you mean 4:00 o'clock in the evening?

Q. Yes, continuously.

A. Well, that 4:00 o'clock in the evening is when I carried on most of my conversations because that is when I was off my regular job at the plant, and if you call that evening, then, yes, sir, I have had two or three conversations relative to transportation in the evening with the Immigration Service officials.

Q. And you would call them on those occasions, would you?

A. No, they would call me on it, saying that after all probably I would be needed for a witness at such and such a time and could I be available and so on and so forth—transportation, et cetera.

Q. And was there ever a period of time in which every night you contacted the Immigration Service by telephone at the close of your working day?

A. No, sir.

Q. There was never such a period?

A. Never such a period, sir.

Q. Now, going back for just one moment to the period of time between October, 1948, when you first saw Kaiser, and the day in [3767] April when you finally made your statement, the end of April of 1949, had you discussed your problem of making up your mind with any other persons?

A. No, I more or less took this outlook upon it, that I had to live with myself and thought that I ought to be in the best position to know what was the right thing to do, and I made up my own mind in that particular instance, sir, without any——

Q. You didn't talk to any——

Mr. Paisley: Now, don't interrupt him. I object to his interrupting the witness.

The Court: Yes, you may continue your statement.

A. (Continuing): Without any pressure from any individual whatsoever. I acted upon my own in this matter. I am under oath here, I want the Court to know that.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. You didn't talk to anybody then?

A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't solicit advice from anybody?

A. No, not as far as being a witness here, sir. But my record down there in fighting the Communist Party since 1945 pretty well speaks for itself, as far as I——

Q. Well, I don't know anthing about your record; I am asking you did you talk to anybody.

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't talk to a single person, or you didn't tell anybody that you were considering whether or not you should testify? [3768]

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, your Honor, beyond this basis upon which your Honor is permitting this now, and we get out of the Immigration Service. He has been contacted by persons or has contacted persons outside the Immigration Service. I thought your Honor was permitting it on the ground it might have some relevancy to possible domination of the witness by the Immigration agents. Now he is asking him about third persons, persons who are not connected with the matter.

The Court: Yes. Have you ever had any conversation, conference or contact with any third person or persons? Do you remember any such person or persons?

The Witness: It might be considered this, a discussion—I would be willing to reveal it here to the Court for what value it has, your Honor, that I have told two or three individuals that I was going to appear here as a witness—while I didn't seek their counsel or advice as to whether I should or should not.

The Court: Those persons were other than government agents or persons affiliated with the United States Government?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What were the names of those persons?

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, I object to that, your Honor. I think that is beyond the basis——

Mr. MacInnis: No, I have a purpose on that, your Honor.

The Court: Overruled. [3769]

A. The names of the individuals that I have indicated to that I was going to be a witness in this particular case? It would be the building chairman of my plant, James Cattom.

Q. Would you say that a little more slowly?

A. Building chairman.

Q. Building chairman? A. That's right.

Q. And his name is James——

A. Cattom—C-a-t-t-o-m. Another man who is familiar with the fact that I would be here is Pat Patterson.

Q. Who is he?

A. President of the Local 406, U.A.W., C.I.O. Another man that is familiar with the fact that I will appear here is S. D. Killough, K-i-l-l-o-u-g-h.

Q. Is it S. T., are his initials?

A S. D. Killough, K-i-l-l-o-u-g-h.

Q. Who is he?

A. He is a plant committeeman, my plant. And another person that knew I was going to be a witness here was Tiny Roebuck.

Q. How do you spell Roebuck?

A. R-o-e-b-u-c-k.

Q. An——?

A. He is a plant committeeman at the same plant.

Q. Yes?

A. Another person that knew I was going to be present, because [3770] it was necessary to secure a leave of absence was the plant personnel—namely, in that connection, Mr. H. D. Anderson, Mr. Ralph Haines and Mr Cotham, C-o-t-h-a-m, I believe is the correct spelling of the name

Q. Cotham?

A. Cotham. They are all of those last three names, are in the personnel and labor relations department of the Ford Motor Company. It is necessary to acquaint them why it is necessary for you to have a leave of absence. And there is others. Would you like other names on there, too, sir?

Q. Yes, tell us.

A. One other name that is familiar with the fact that I was going to testify is Roy Reuther, who is the brother of Walter Reuther, and is employed by the International Union of——

Q. That is the name I was waiting for you to say.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. That was the main one. If you had asked me first, I would have saved you all the trouble.

Q. Oh, no, I have plenty of time. Now, all of the men whose names you have given, except the three men from the personnel division of the Ford Motor Company, are members of the United Auto Workers, aren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the man named Roy Reuther, whose name you gave us last, is indeed the brother of Walter Reuther, who is, I suppose, the national head of your union? [3771]

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And back in 1939 the United Auto Workers, of course, endorsed the position of Harry Bridges entirely, didn't it?

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, Your Honor, are we going to go back to 1939 and go into union matters?

Mr. MacInnis: This is material, Your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: I think it is——

Mr. MacInnis: It will be tied in, Your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Are we concerned with the union squabbles? If that is what he is asking about.

Mr. MacInnis: We will be.

Mr. Paisley: He is asked whether they endorsed Harry Bridges back in that time. Are we concerned with that? I don't think so. 1939.

Mr. MacInnis: I will state the purpose if I may, Your Honor. The purpose is obviously this.

The Court: Pardon me just a moment. The witness testified on direct examination—this may not be verbatim in the record, but it is my recollection that there was a change of policy with respect to Mr. Bridges, the defendant, in the Communist Party itself, and that there was a shift in positions. Now, were there any events in 1939 in connection with the United Auto Workers that may have had some bearing on that matter? That is the only point that I have in mind.

Mr. MacInnis: I think that is a good suggestion, Your Honor. [3772]

The Court: That is the only point I have in mind, as to any possible relevancy. I will hear you out at the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the 11:00 o'clock recess, and may I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Whereupon the jury withdrew from the courtroom and the following occurred outside the presence of the jury:)

The Court: Mr. Reporter, would you read back the last question for me?

(Record read.)

The Court: Yes?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, Your Honor, of course in our effort to explore the motivations for producing this man as a witness, we won't be confined to the visits paid him by Kaiser or the other emissaries of the Immigration Department. If any other person had an interest in procuring this testimony, we have the right to raise that inference, too. Now, it is a matter of public knowledge that almost concurrent with the present prosecution there is a struggle in the national ranks of the CIO, a struggle which places on the one side Philip Murray, the national president of the CIO, formerly the compatriot of Mr. Bridges in most of his endeavors, formerly his sponsor; and by his side, Walter Reuther, the most bitter enemy of Harry [3773] Bridges in the labor movement, whose union, which on two previous occasions, unanimously endorsed the position of Bridges, unanimously denounced the position of the Government in the attempts to claim that Harry Bridges was a Communist. We certainly have the right to show motivation in this case flows from the fact that Philip Murray is engaged in this struggle to oust Harry Bridges and his union from the general CIO, a matter which is of public record in the events of last fall, immediately preceding the start of this trial. But that Walter Reuther is the head of a union which has openly gone on record against the Harry Bridges. Now, we certainly have a right to show that, Your Honor, in reference to this witness, who places himself in the position of having revealed his prospective nature as a witness in this case to the brother of Reuther himself. Now, it is our position, if the Court please,——

The Court: Well, it is a far cry from a revelation to the brother of Mr. Reuther to an assertion that any exertion was made upon the witness to testify.

Mr. MacInnis: It is preliminary, Your Honor.

The Court: It is a far cry. Now, if we are to try the internal affairs and the warfare that have existed, at least from the press accounts, with respect to Mr. Reuther, the physical violence that has been prepetrated upon the Reuthers and all those matters, this case may take some very, very unusual turns. [3774]

Mr. MacInnis: It won't, Your Honor. And——

The Court: There has been mention made in the press of dynamiting and mention made of beatings and the loss of an eye, and so forth, and I think that we might well pass some of those matters concerning the Reuthers because I am reminded of what Mr. Donohue has said often, that this case may never be concluded.

Now, I am not concerned with the period of 1939 and the internal difficulties of this particular union, nor am I concerned with, as I indicated earlier in the trial, the difficulties attendant upon the waterfront, in connection with their several [3775] strikes.

The Court: I have allowed considerable latitude in the past. My present disposition is to sustain the objection. May I hear from the Government, please, on this matter?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, the question to which I objected was, as I remember it; Isn't it a fact that the United Automobile Workers supported Harry Bridges in 1939. I thought, and still think, that that calls for immaterial testimony. All that the witness said, as your Honor indicated, was that he notified these people he was coming.

The Court: He knows Roy Reuther. He said he knows Roy Reuther. If you are going to draw the inference that this background is dependent upon such a disclosure to Roy Reuther——.

Mr. MacInnis: We are not, Judge.

The Court: I sustain the objection. We will take the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, of course we are not bound by a statement. Suppose this man were asked——

The Court: You might ask him what his conversation was with Roy Reuther, what if anything was said.

Mr. MacInnis: I might, but I think, your Honor, the question itself was preliminary to showing something far deeper, and we are not bound, and we will not be bound, by what he said the conversation would be, because we have other evidence in this matter, evidence to show complicity among these people, and we can't bring it out by one question, nor [3776] can we, your Honor, in arguing the propriety of that——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I sustained the objection interposed by the Government to the question with respect to the approbation accorded Harry Bridges in 1939 by the Auto Workers Union. We will take the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: That is the only question.

The Court: The immediate question.

(Recess.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You say among the people whom you told about your plans to come here and testify against Harry Bridges was Roy Reuther, the brother of Walter Reuther, is that correct? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Walter Reuther is the national president of the United Auto Workers, is he?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Weren't you informed that if you did not testify against Harry Bridges that you would be kicked out of the union by Reuther?

A. I was not informed—no such statement was ever made to me, sir, under any circumstances.

Q. The statement was not made to you?

A. That is correct, sir. We don't do things like that in the UAW.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, it has been denied, but he [3777] should have given the witness the time, place and persons present.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You told the Court and jury yesterday when you were questioned by the prosecutor that you went to work for the Ford Company in the city of Richmond in 1933, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. What had been your general employment before that?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Been at varied occupations.

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. Your Honor, shall we go back that far now? The witness' private life? That does not tend to discredit him, impeach him in any way, as to what he was doing back in 1933. How can that be relevant?

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, counsel asked him what his general employment was and his answer was to begin with the year 1933. I think we might like to know what he did before those years.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I believe I did answer yesterday that I had worked in the Butte mines and I had worked for the Hanson Packing Company in Butte, Montana, that I had worked on numerous ranches and farms in Montana, I had worked in the logging camps in Montana and Idaho, and before that I sold newspapers, as a kid, going to school, and numerous jobs. Also a job for a while of selling merchandise from house to house. I have had numerous [3778] jobs, sir, prior to 1933.

Q. Any other job? A. No, sir.

Q. Absolutely none? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you ever work in Missoula, Montana?

A. Not in Missoula proper, sir. I worked out of Missoula, Montana, at the Bitterroot Valley for a logging camp there for a while, and also worked on numerous ranches up at the Bitterroot Valley, which is a short distance from Missoula, Montana.

Q. Who is Thomas Michener?

A. Thomas Michener is a brother of mine.

Thomas E. Michener, are you referring to? Thomas E. Michener? There was a Thomas Michener, an uncle of mine, also.

Q. Did you ever go under the name of Lewis Kelly? A. No, sir.

Q. You were never called that?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was never an alias of yours?

A. Never an alias of mine.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Michener: A little while ago in answer to a question put to you I think by his Honor, who asked you for the reason, the background that you had in mind in not making up your mind to testify for the Government, your reply was that you reflected about the two previous Bridges cases and that you remembered the things that were brought out [3779] about the character of the witnesses who testified against Bridges in those cases, and you said you remembered the things you yourself had said about those witnesses, didn't you?

A. I think the record is very clear on that, sir.

Q. What reflection did you have about your own character? What did you think might be brought out against you if you testified here?

A. What I thought would be brought out is what has already been brought out in the paper that I read last night, wherein it terms me as continuing the parade of stool pigeons that are appearing up here against Mr. Bridges.

Q. Nothing else? A. That is what——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: That was in the People's World?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Nothing else?

A. Nothing else, sir.

Q. You didn't think anything else concerning the background of your life might be brought out here to your discredit?

A. I didn't think so; I really didn't, sir.

Q. And you were never known as Lewis Kelly, Jr.?

A. I am under oath, sir. I say I never was at any time.

Q. Were you named in the District Court of the United States in and for the District of Montana in case No. 6096 as Lewis H. Michener, Jr., also known as Lewis Kelly, Jr.—— [3780]

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, he can ask him if he has even been convicted of a felony, and I think that is as far as he can go. I do not think you can discredit a witness by proving he used another name. The witness said he did not, but even if he had, that does not discredit a witness.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, your Honor, I have some information about this man; not all of it is complete.

The Court: Let us be careful and let us be specific.

Mr. MacInnis: I am going to stick to that one question at the present time as to whether he was named as Lewis Kelly, Jr.

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, your Honor——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: The witness has said that he was never known as William Kelly, Jr.

Mr. MacInnis: Lewis Kelly, Jr.

The Witness: Your Honor, Lewis Kelly, Jr. is what he asked.

The Court: At any time in your career?

A. That is right.

Mr. MacInnis: I will return to that, your Honor, when my information is supplemented.

The Court: You say you have information about this man?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. Merely to show your Honor I did not ask the question idly, and reserving the right to return at a later stage to these questions, I will pass to your Honor the information that I just received. [3781]

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, if he wants to prove that the witness was convicted back in Prohibition days, back in 1932, almost twenty years ago, in a couple of liquor cases, we will stipulate to that. There are a lot of cases holding, your Honor, that type of testimony is not even admissible to discredit a witness.

Mr. MacInnis: These boys get more gracious every day, Judge. Maybe there will be some other things you can stipulate to in a few minutes.

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, I move that that cute remark be stricken.

The Clerk: Counsel, wait until the Court has read the paper.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: What is the extent of this stipulation?

Mr. Paisley: We will stipulate that he was convicted back in Prohibition days, 1932——

Mr. MacInnis: How many times?

Mr. Paisley: ——about twenty years ago, when he was a very young boy, I presume, twice. We have that same record. We will be glad to stipulate what the facts are.

Mr. MacInnis: And went twice to Federal jails. Will you stipulate to that, too?

Mr. Paisley: That is not even proper. He can't even ask him that.

Mr. MacInnis: I am asking you if you will stipulate to [3782] it.

Mr. Paisley: He served about sixty days, I think——

Mr. MacInnis: On the first, and then 45 days the second time, and you will stipulate that on the second occasion he was tried before the Federal Court as Lewis H. Michener, Jr., also known as Lewis Kelly, Jr., won't you?

Mr. Paisley: He plead guilty.

Mr. MacInnis: Will you stipulate——

Mr. Paisley: No, I won't stipulate to some alias that the prosecutor might have thrown into the indictment. I do not remember that. When we get the transcript we will stipulate.

Mr. MacInnis: You mean prosecutors throw things in an indictment?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Yes, they put aliases in there every time a man is named——

Mr. MacInnis: My labors are being expedited greatly, your Honor. I will probably have to jump to other subject matters for the moment.

Q. Mr. Michener, you never were Lewis H. Kelly, were you?

A. No, sir. My name was Lewis H. Michener, as I testified at the opening of this court, born at Bozeman, Montana, in the year 1908. I regret I did not bring my birth certificate along so counsel may have had the opportunity to examine [3783] that.

Q. Now, Mr. Michener, coming back again to these reflections that you made in your own mind, about what might be brought out against you if you testified here, did you reflect about the matters that you represented under oath to your draft board in Southern California at the time of the first registration for the draft?

Mr. Paisley: I object to the question, if your Honor please, a prior statement that a witness might have made. I do not know what he is talking about. Certainly that is immaterial testimony. It is not proper cross-examination.

The Court: Addressing yourself to specific occurrences or instances, I will allow the question, if you will address yourself to a specific occasion.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, the question ordinarily would probably be beyond the scope of the examination, but this witness went out of his way to make the statement about his reflections.

The Court: ~~You may~~ answer.

A. If your Honor please, I am not clear on the question before me at the present time. I am not clear on the last question.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all right. I will return to that in another guise, then.

Q. You say that you were, however, at some time a member of the Communist Party?

A. That is correct, sir. [3784]

Q. Of that you are sure?

A. Of that I am sure.

Q. I wondered a little bit from one of the answers that you made yesterday whether it was just an engagement in speech between you and the prosecutor, Mr. Paisley, I didn't know, but is it a faction meeting or a fraction meeting that these Communists have?

A. Well, to my knowledge, we called them down south faction meetings.

Q. Down south they are faction meetings?

A. That is as I understood them, sir. I believe I testified to that yesterday and was corrected by you that the proper name was "fraction."

Q. No, I was recalling what the other witnesses for the prosecution said here.

A. I misunderstood you, sir.

Q. What is a fraction meeting?

A. A fraction meeting or a faction meeting?

Q. Is there a difference between the two?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. To my knowledge there is not, sir.

Q. In other words, "faction" and "fraction" mean the same? A. In my opinion, yes, sir.

Q. Is that one of the deceptions that the Communist Party carries out?

A. Oh, I couldn't say that that is one of them. There are [3785] deceptions, however, sir, but I wouldn't say that that would be one of them.

Q. Let me ask you, Were you also deceitful while you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. I am not quite clear on that question, sir.

Q. Did you tell lies to people while you were a Communist? Lies, of course, that you were ordered to tell by some top leaders?

A. Well, the only outstanding lie that I could think of that I told the people, I denied my membership in the Communist Party——

Q. When did you do that?

A. On several occasions. Various trade unionists accused me of being a member of the Party and I denied it. [3786]

Q. You lied to those people, did you?

A. Yes, sir, under that, but never under oath, sir.

Q. Were those trade union officials who would ask you those questions? A. That's right.

Q. And I suppose they asked you those questions sometimes on the floor of conventions, did they?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did they ask you those questions in the presence of other trade union leaders?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Oh, yes, yes, sir.

Q. And you lied on those occasions?

A. I did, sir.

Q. And the purpose of your lie would have been to deceive the persons who were your listeners?

A. To conceal my membership in the Communist Party, sir, not to deceive; it was merely to conceal my membership in the Communist Party, sir.

Q. Well, I am a little puzzled about another matter concerning what you call faction or fraction meetings in the Communist Party. Suppose, now, when you were a Communist, as you say, you were to meet with another man in the labor movement who was also a Communist, and the two of you, let us say, just met on the street and, walking down the street together, discussed some matter in the labor union, whether it was a raise in [3786] wages or whether it was some national matter of policy within the union. When you would be having that meeting, would that be a faction meeting, or would that be just a conversation?

A. To clear my matter up again, the other man that I would be with would be a member of the Communist Party: Mr. X would be a member of the Communist Party?

Q. Yes.

A. And I was a member of the Communist Party?

Q. Yes.

A. And we walked down the street together discussing problems; would that be a faction meeting?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Would it be a fraction meeting?

A. No, sir.

Q. Suppose there were three of you, suppose three of you were in the same situation.

A. Under the same circumstances you described?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir, it would not be.

Q. Well, suppose instead of walking down a street you went into a restaurant and you all had a cup of coffee in a booth, where you were by yourselves, and then you discussed some matter affecting your union. Suppose you were all United Automobile [3787] Workers. Would you then be having a faction meeting?

A. Just so I follow your line of thinking, sir, the other two members that would be with me would be members of the Communist Party?

Q. Yes.

A. And also members of the union?

Q. Yes.

A. You indicated perhaps the United Auto Workers or any other union?

Q. Yes.

A. Would I consider that a faction meeting?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Well, let's go a step further. Suppose you were with another member of your union who you thought was a member of the Communist Party, you being a member also, and as you walked down the street you met a third man who was a member of the union and whom you thought to be a member of the Communist Party; and suppose he said to you, "Now, Mr. Michener," or "Mr. Kelly," or whatever name you would be using, "I am interested in what your policy may be on the salary increase that we are asking for. Let's sit down and talk it over." And suppose you then went into a restaurant and had a cup of coffee and the three of you talked about it. Would that be a faction meeting? [3788]

Mr. Paisley: Now, your Honor, we have walked around enough and had enough cups of coffee. He has told us what a fraction meeting, or what he calls a faction meeting, is fully yesterday. It seems like counsel might expedite the trial if he wants to go over that again by just asking him to tell us what a faction meeting or fraction meeting is.

Mr. MacInnis: I am trying to find where the dividing line may be, your Honor.

The Court: You understand the question?

The Witness: Not entirely, your Honor. I would like to have that one repeated.

The Court: Would you repeat it?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You say you didn't understand the question?

A. Not the last one.

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Witness, let me ask you this: During your career in the Communist Party did you ever sit down in meeting with one or more trade union leaders who might not be members of the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did you ever sit down and discuss some labor problem or policy, whether on a national or local scale, with three or four members of the Communist Party and one labor union official concerning whose possible membership in the Communist Party you were in doubt? [3789]

A. Well, your Honor, again, I am in doubt now. That question is confusing. If he would explain just what he wants to know, I would be very happy to inform him.

Q. All right, I will rephrase the question. Well, have you ever had the experience of being in doubt as to whether some person in the labor movement was a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I don't think that is a proper cross-examination. Let him ask about the defendants in this case.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): But you have sat down in meetings in which three or four or five participants were Communist Party members to your knowledge, and one other person present has been a trade union leader, not a Communist?

A. That is practically, your Honor, the same question he asked before, and I am confused as to what he really means by that question.

Mr. Paisley: And I think your Honor sustained an objection to that, on the ground that if he sat in such meetings with other persons, that it has nothing to do with this case. We are trying Bridges, Schmidt and Robertson.

The Court: You might rephrase it. The witness doesn't understand it.

Mr. MacInnis: All right. [3790]

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Before you joined the Communist Party, you were already a labor union official, were you?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Well, before you joined the Communist Party, had you ever sat down and had discussions about labor matters with people who you knew were Communists?

A. I believe I did. In fact, I know I did.

Q. Well, were there any occasions in which you were the only non-Communist present?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. And in those discussions, would you be talking over matters of policy affecting your own union and the men who worked with you?

A. Yes, sir, that would be the general discussion would follow in that particular connection.

Q. And on those occasions you would be the only non-Communist present in the group?

A. To my knowledge. I wouldn't know at that time whether others were non-Communists or not. I knew at the time I was discussing the matter with the individuals you refer to that some of those people were Communists; that I knew. But I couldn't say, as to several meetings, as to whether they were all Communists or whether they weren't.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

I wouldn't have any way of knowing at that particular stage of the game, sir.

Q. Now, as to your joining the Communist Party, did you make [3791] out some application?

A. I did. I made—filled out a card, sir, signed my name there, using a different name than Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr., but using the name of Lewis Herbert, as I testified to here yesterday under oath, sir.

Q. Did the name Michener appear at all, identifying you, in this application card?

A. No, sir.

Q. That didn't appear anywhere?

A. No, sir.

Q. So that any person within the Communist Party who hadn't met you before would not be able to trace your identity even by means of the application card?

A. Well, I couldn't answer that. That would be more or less a conclusion on my part, and I couldn't answer that. Maybe you have got better information on that, sir, than I have.

Q. Who knows? Now, to whom did you give this application card? A. To Mr. Lyons.

Q. Mr. Lyons? A. Lyons, L-y-o-n-s.

Q. And what is his first name?

A. William, I suppose; I know him as Bill Lyons.

Q. Where was that?

A. In Los Angeles, California, in his [3792] home.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And were you issued a membership card in the Communist Party? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever given a membership card?

A. I was not personally given a membership card. My wife took care of my card for me and my stamps.

Q. Your wife took care of it?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Now, did you have a conversation last night with Mr. Kaiser or one of these other men whose names begin with K, Mr. Kidder, Mr. Kessler, Mr. Kaiser, one of those persons in which you were informed that you said something, made some slip yesterday, when you said that you never had a card and that no card was ever issued you?

A. Sir, I am under oath here. I never had any discussion last night whatsoever in that connection. If you have information on that matter, I think you ought to give it to his Honor here. [3793]

Q. Yesterday you told the jury under oath that you never had a Communist card?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Today you tell the jury that there was a Communist card but that your wife kept it for you?

A. I told you, sir, just in your questioning me here, that I did sign my name Lewis Herbert to a card, that Mr. Lyons had. Later on that matter was—the card, my stamps, was turned over to my wife, who took care of them. I wouldn't know my card number or I wouldn't even be able to identify it, sir, if you presented it to me here right now.

Q. Who gave the card to your wife?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Probably Lyons, probably did, or maybe Dorothy Ray or Dorothy Healy or Dorothy Connolly—the same person.

Q. That is all the same person?

A. All the same person.

Q. That person with the three names was the wife of a man named Stanley Hancock?

A. I wouldn't be able to know that. I know she was the wife of several other people that I knew, but I didn't know it was Mr. Hancock was involved.

Q. She was the wife of others of your friends?

A. By stretching the point——

Mr. Paisley: Well, Your Honor, are we going to let Mr. MacInnis go into the matter of some woman this far removed? [3794]

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall we take the recess, Your Honor?

The Court: While I have the subject in mind and while we have this matter of a card before the Court, what is on the card, to the best of your recollection, this so-called application card? Is that what you have in mind?

The Witness: Yes, sir, it is a card——

The Court: This is not the membership card; this is an application card you are speaking of?

The Witness: It is.

The Court: What is on the card, to the best of your recollection?

The Witness: The best of my recollections, I could identify approximately the size of it; it is approximately the size of a regular union card which I would hand to Your Honor (displaying small card), approximately this size here, sir.

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: And on this, on the bottom, was a place for my signature, and "This is to certify that the undersigned"—something to this effect; it may not be the exact wording—"makes application as a member of the Communist Party." Then there is a place also on the card for, like, for example, the man that signed me up, Mr. Lyons, to put his signature on there as more or less a supporting or supporting individual for my membership. [3795]

Mr. MacInnis: May I ask a question on that?

The Court: And to that card you signed the name Lewis Herbert?

The Witness: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: And that was, I assume, your name and your identity in the Communist Party?

The Witness: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: Lewis Herbert?

The Witness: Yes, Your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And wasn't there a place on that card for your real name so that the Communist Party officials would have some correlation between the Lewis Herbert whose name appeared on the card——.

A. Well, sir, if there was, I don't recall it, because—I would like to explain to the Court—of my reluctance in joining the party in the first place.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

And after joining, how they promised to keep my identity pretty well hidden. And it was agreed that this name, Lewis Herbert, would be used, and I certainly know definitely and positively, I am sure, that the name Lewis Herbert Michener or Lew Michener or L. H. Michener was never put upon the card that I signed, sir.

Q. And how about this card that your wife kept?

A. As far as I know, sir, my name in the Communist Party is Lewis Herbert, and no doubt it would have been the same one that she kept, because—— [3796]

Q. You never saw it?

A. Because I paid her the dues; sometimes I gave her the contributions; sometimes I gave them to the section organizer. But I never received any stamps at any time to carry on my person or anything at all that in any way would connect me with the Communist Party because, as I have indicated to you before, sir, my identity was to be pretty well concealed in the party.

Q. And you never saw this membership card of your own?

A. I just saw it—after all, I knew that she had it. I never took it from her hands and read the contents of it or so on. I knew that she did keep the card for me and perhaps she told me—in fact, she told me on several occasions that she was taking care of my card and my stamps and that part of it.

Q. She informed you on several occasions that she had your card? A. That's right, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And she informed you on several occasions that she was taking care of your Communist membership for you?

A. Not my—she wasn't taking care of my Communist membership for me, but she was taking care of my card, sir, and stamps.

Q. But she did inform you on several occasions that she possessed your card?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Was that to reassure you? [3797]

A. Well, was it——

Q. Had you asked her where it was?

A. It wasn't necessary to reassure me. I was continually putting my dough into the party and I suppose she might have become curious, wondering whether I knew she was taking care of it or not and what her reasons were for that I couldn't honestly testify to.

Q. So she told you that not once, but on several occasions, that she was holding your card for you?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: We will take the recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to converse with any person on any subject of this trial. You are not to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjuornment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [2798]

Wednesday, January 11, 1949, 2:00 P.M.

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry

Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr., heretofore sworn.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, as I promised, Your Honor we have some authority in support of the request to inspect the grand jury transcript, and I would like to cite those cases to Your Honor, if I may.

Mr. Donohue: May I first say to Your Honor that it seems to me that last October, before Your Honor in a motion for discovery, which was filed by the then counsel for these defendants, the matter of the right of the defendant to the inspection of the grand jury minutes as well as to a list of the witness, was argued at length, and at that time Your Honor denied the motion filed on behalf of the defendants. I see no reason for the same question being raised again.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, of course, Your Honor scarcely could resolve a previous question of law and then have that ruling made binding on us now.

The Court: May I have the authorities? If you will leave them with Mr. Mitchell, I will examine them at the recess period.

Mr. MacInnis: Be glad to, Your Honor. [3799]

The Court: Thank you.

Mr. MacInnis: If you would rather have the memorandum, or I can read them to you into the record at the recess, whichever you choose.

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: I would probably prefer the latter because I have only the one copy. I can make more copies if they are to be left.

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Now, Mr. Witness, you told the Court and the jury under oath yesterday when you were examined by the prosecutor that a Communist Party card was never issued to you, didn't you?

A. I believe that's correct, sir.

Q. Did you say that under oath?

A. I was on this witness stand and everything I say up here I assume is under oath. I take it that way, sir.

Q. And had you discussed that matter with any of the prosecutors or their agents before you gave that answer? A. No, sir.

Q. To be specific, the prosecutor asked you this question:

"Did you have a Communist Pary card?" and——

Mr. Paisley: What page, Mr. MacInnis, are you reading from?

Mr. MacInnis: I scarcely would have thought you would [3800] remember your own examination. Page 3706.

Mr. Paisley: I just asked him a polite question, Your Honor; I would like a civil answer. What page?

Mr. MacInnis: I told you, 3706.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. "Did you have a Communist Party card?" and your answer:

"I never carried a card or a card was never issued to me."

That was the answer you gave under oath?

A. That would be the same answer I would give under oath today, sir.

Q. With whom did you make the arrangement, then, that this Communist Party card that you told us about this morning be given to your wife?

A. That was made after I married my wife, and we attended these various faction meetings, as I call them, or fraction meetings, as you call them.

Q. You joined the Communist Party, you say, in 1938? A. That's right, sir.

Q. That was the time that you turned in the application card that you described?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And some time after that there came into the possession of your wife a Communist Party membership card? A. That's correct.

Q. Did it never pass through your hands?

A. No, sir. [3801]

Q. Did you make the arrangement for the card to be given directly to her? No, sir.

Q. Was this card reissued annually or was it a permanent card?

A. No. As I understand it, it was issued on an annual basis. Now I may be wrong there, but that is my understanding of the proposition.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Now, the card was issued annually and always given to your wife?

A. That is, after I was married to her.

Q. Was that true right through until the time you left the Communist Party, from 1938 right through until 1944?

A. I couldn't vouch for the last month or two months of '44 because—but up until the last two months of 1944 until the time I married my second wife, that arrangement was in effect, sir.

Q. Now, in 1938 to whom was your card given?

A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. Well, who was your wife then?

A. My wife then was Helen Michener.

Q. Pardon me? A. Helen Michener.

Q. Helen Michener. And how soon after you signed this application card, did you discover that in the possession of your wife was your membership card? [3802]

A. Oh, that was a matter of years.

Q. You didn't discover it for years?

A. That's right.

Q. So during all 1938 you never made the discovery that your wife was holding your Communist Party Card?

A. Of course, we draw the conclusion there,—all through 1938, sir—that was a long length of time. I think the record will indicate to you that I joined the party late in 1938. So for the balance of 1938 my card, my membership card in the Communist Party, was in the possesesion of the Communist Party.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. How about 1939?

A. I would say the same thing held true through the entire period of 1939. [3803]

Q. Now, your wife did not get the card in 1939?

A. No, sir.

Q. This morning, it seems to me, you told us under oath that a membership card was issued and that your wife had it, and that several times she told you she was holding it for you?

A. If my memory serves me correctly, sir, I believe almost those are my exact words.

Q. And you told us this morning that you paid your dues to the Communist Party through your wife?

A. In some instances. In some I paid them direct.

Q. How about the year 1939? Did you pay them through your wife? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you pay them then?

A. I paid them direct.

Q. You did not tell us that this morning; you said you paid them through your wife.

A. I did, sir, but I would like, your Honor, to explain this matter. I think there is an element of confusion here.

The Court: All right.

The Witness: I might indicate to you, sir, I have been married twice. I was living with my first wife through the early stages of my joining the Communist Party. To my knowledge she had no knowledge of my being a member of the Communist Party. My second wife, I had knowledge when I married her that my second wife was a member of the Communist Party. [3804] She took care of my Communist Party book, and that is the second wife that I had reference to this morning.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): When did you marry her? A. That was early in 1941, sir.

Q. So that during the latter part of 1938, during all of 1939, during all of 1940 and during 1941 up to this latter part, the answer that you gave the jury today, this morning, would have no application, the blank statement that your wife kept your Communist card for you?

A. Well, your Honor, I am rather again confused at that answer. I can't answer that yes or no. I told the truth and tried to explain to counsel exactly the circumstances.

Q. With whom did you make the arrangement during 1939, 1940 and most of 1941 that the Communist Party itself would hold your Communist card?

A. Not most of 1941, sir, all through 1938, that particular month or two in 1938, through the entire year of 1939 and through 1940, that was an arrangement worked out and understood by the officials of the Communist Party and various people involved in that.

Q. I am speaking of you.

A. I am speaking of me, too, sir. I was involved in it because they said, "This is one of the ways you will conceal your membership in the Communist Party. You pay your dues and we will keep your card." I can mention here for the record [3805] some names of individuals in the Communist Party that were responsible for that transaction, if you would like to have it for the record.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Let me ask you this: When did you change the arrangement and have the card placed in the possession of your second wife?

A. After a short time, after we were married, my wife and I attended several of the faction meetings, as I knew them, or fraction meetings, as you know them.

Q. And who proposed that she should hold the card for you?

A. I belie.e the secretary—the fact of the matter is I don't believe—I am positive it was the secretary of the unit that we both jointly attended for a while, a unit of the faction meeting.

Q. Was there something that was unsatisfactory to the Communist Party itself holding your card?

A. No, not that I know of. If there was, they never revealed it to me.

Q. But somebody suggested that your wife hold the card for you?

A. An official of the Communist Party.

Q. Suggested that to you?

A. Suggested that as a convenience to both my wife and I.

Q. Suggested that to the two of you together while you were together?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. That is right [3806]

Q. Was it then that this card was given to your wife to hold?

A. Not at that particular instant, but it was later on worked out that she secured my card.

Q. When was it given to her?

A. I couldn't tell you exactly, sir.

Q. You were living with your wife, weren't you?

A. I certainly was, sir.

Q. Wasn't there some occasion then when she came home and said, "Now I have your Communist card"?

A. No, sir; I am sorry; there was never such an occasion.

Q. How did you pay your dues, Mr. Witness, before the occasion when your wife held your card?

A. That was a very simple process: attending a faction meeting and would hand them over to the secretary.

Q. During those years you were, of course, conscious that the membership card issued to you was held in the possession of the Communist Party?

A. I was led to believe that. I was told that by the Communist Party. If someone else held it, sir, I have no knowledge of it.

Q. What did you have in mind when you told the Court and jury yesterday under oath that a Communist Party card was never issued to you?

A. I had in mind perhaps the same thing we have in mind now if the same question was asked me, sir. [3807]

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Were you told that you would have to change that story because some other witnesses had testified that a card had to be issued to a Communist Party member?

A. Your Honor, I am not quite clear on that question.

Mr. MacInnis: All right. I will pass on to another one.

Q. (By the Court): You mean the question is not clear to you? A. Not quite clear to me.

The Court: You might rephrase it.

Mr. MacInnis: I can't think of any other way to rephrase it.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I do not remember that there was any such testimony that the card had to be issued. Again he is testifying and putting his own characterization upon the testimony.

Mr. MacInnis: I withdraw the question, then, your Honor.

The Court: The question is withdrawn.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Michener, you said that the lady named Helen Michener, who was your first wife, never had possession of your Communist Party card? A. That is correct.

Q. By the year 1941, and its beginning, you were no longer living with that lady, were you?

A. Earlier than that. [3808]

Q. When did you separate from her?

A. In the early part of 1940.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. In 1941 with whom were you living?

A. With my second wife.

Q. During all of that year?

A. The year 1941? No, not quite all of 1941, but the majority, the biggest part of that year.

Q. During what part of the year?

A. At least ten months, sir.

Q. When were you married to her?

A. In the early part of 1941.

Q. About what date?

A. I couldn't tell you exactly. Married in Las Vegas, Nevada, for the record. I suppose you could secure it there. My memory fails me as to the exact date on that.

Q. But that would be about the date that the Communist Party card came into the possession of your wife after that?

A. It would be sometime after that, yes, sir.

Q. That was the period of time that you had reference to this morning when you told the jury that your wife held your Communist Party card for you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did not make the distinction to the jury this morning that the person who held your Communist Party card as your wife did not engage in that activity until the year 1941, [3809] did you?

A. I didn't have occasion to, sir.

Q. You mean the question did not permit you to give that answer?

A. That is my interpretation of the proposition.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Did you discuss the matter of who held your Communist Party card with any of these men throughout the noon recess? A. No, sir.

Q. With whom did you have lunch?

A. I had lunch today with a Mr. Larry Kessler.

Q. The same immigration agent?

A. What same immigration agent?

Q. Whom you mentioned before.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your second wife's name is what?

A. Mary Michener.

Q. She kept your Communist Party card during all of the times that you were married to her?

A. Not all of the time, but shortly after our marriage. I wouldn't know exactly how long it was.

Q. That is about a month after the date you married her at Las Vegas?

A. Say approximately a month, and I think we will be pretty correct on that.

Q. She kept that card, I suppose, until you separated? [3810] A. I imagine she did.

Q. What was done with the card then?

A. I am sorry, I couldn't answer that question for you. I don't know.

Q. I suppose you divided it up as part of the community property?

A. No, you will have to ask counsel, my counsel about that, that handled the divorce case.

Q. He would probably have it?

A. He probably would. I am sure he would be interested in it.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. He would probably have your card?

A. He probably would. I could furnish you his name if you like.

Q. I can find his name without your assistance. At these two meetings where you say you met Harry Bridges, the two you talked about, one here in San Francisco and one back in Philadelphia in the course of the national convention, under what name did you know Harry Bridges?

A. By exactly the name of Harry Bridges. That is the only name I have ever known Harry Bridges by.

Q. You did not know him by the name of Rossi?

A. No, I didn't know him by the name of Rossi.

Q. Didn't you know him by the name of Dorgan?

A. I never knew him by the name of Dorgan.

Q. What is your mother's maiden name? [3811]

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I do not think that is competent cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): During those years, Mr. Michener, that you say you had these contacts with Harry Bridges, you knew that he was under fire, under accusation by the immigration authorities, didn't you?

A. I am not quite clear on that question as to what counsel means by "under fire." [3811-A]

Q. I will rephrase that. In 1940, when you said you attended a meeting with Harry Bridges at some residence here in San Francisco when you knew him only under the name of Harry Bridges, you knew that the man had been the target in a deportation proceeding the year before, 1939, didn't you?

A. We didn't discuss that at the meeting, sir.

Q. You knew it, though, didn't you?

A. I did.

Q. And in 1943 when you were with this man at the national convention in Philadelphia, the national CIO convention, is that what it was?

A. That's correct.

Q. Again knowing him only under the name of Harry Bridges, you knew that in 1941 his deportation had again been sought?

A. That was the matter of public record, sir.

Q. You knew both of those things, didn't you?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, to proceed into some of the other matters that you told the jury yesterday,— Pardon me. Do you want to take off your coat?

A. No, thank you. If I did, I would indicate it to His Honor. Thank you.

Q. You told the Court and jury yesterday under the questions put to you by the prosecutor that you were a paid official in the your union, the United Auto Workers, over a considerable period [3812] of time, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From 1938 to 1944?

A. 1938 to 1944, with the exact statement being made yesterday under oath in this courtroom, that with the exception of one year.

Q. Yes. And again, to refer to your exact statement under oath, you said that there was one year in which you did not hold office, due to some internal affairs in the union. A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Will you tell the Court and jury what that circumstance was?

Mr. Paisley: Well, I object to it, Your Honor. I can't see any materiality to that.

Mr. MacInnis: Brought out on direct, Your Honor.

The Court: What was that, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: I say, it was brought out on direct examination. He said yesterday under oath, in effect, "I held office in the union from 1938 to 1944, with the exception of one year, in which I did not hold office due to some internal affairs within the union."

The Witness: Your Honor, may I correct counsel's statement? I think the record will indicate 1939, in the Auto Workers.

The Court: All right. You might answer the question. There is a correction there, the witness makes the correction in [3813] the record. He says from 1939, is that right?

The Witness: That's right, with the Auto Workers. I believe that was the direction question placed to me, and I think I was a paid functionary in the United Auto Workers from 1939, April of 1939 up until December, 1944, with the exception of one year, that being the year 1941, counsel.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, what was that circumstance?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Was that the question you wanted me to explain to the Court, counsel?

Mr. Paisley: That is the one I objected to, Your Honor. I don't see that that has anything to do with the real issue in this case.

The Court: I will overrule the objection.

The Witness: May I answer the question?

The Court: Yes.

A. That particular time we held a convention of the United Auto Workers in Buffalo. That convention fell some time after the North America strike in Inglewood, California. That has been indicated in the papers, and I would like to make this statement here now, that I was involved in the North America Aviation strike. I wasn't the leader of the strike, but I assumed responsibility for the strike after it was called. This created a controversy within the International Union of which I was a member then and am a member now. And we ironed out our differences at the convention. It was decided in Buffalo at the [3814] convention in 1941 that I should not be eligible to hold an office as regional director or be eligible to run for regional director of the West Coast in the seven western states for a period of one year, and so I was replaced by another man whom the delegates from the West Coast elected. However, during that period of 1941 up until the next convention, I was immediately placed upon the national CIO payroll and continued to conduct my organization activities from the West Coast in practically the same capacity I had while I was regional director.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Witness, the so-called North American strike of which you speak was one that was called in the middle of the defense effort and toward which President Roosevelt was forced to call out the troops, isn't that correct?

Mr. Paisley: Now, Your Honor, just a minute. The witness has fully answered the question to which objection was made, and we find, as I thought we would find, that it is immaterial to the issues in this case. Now, he wants to go further and go into all the details of the strike.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, now, have you given to His Honor and the jury a correct narrative of what happened with respect to you and your right to hold office in the union at the Buffalo convention?

A. Well, Mr. Counsel, I can probably elaborate that somewhat and give the true facts surrounding the North American strike. [3815] It will take me perhaps an hour if I am at liberty to do so. I would gladly relate a blow-by-blow description of that situation. But I think I summarized it as briefly and as quickly as I could, for a matter of cooperation with the Court here.

Q. Well, now, you were present at the convention in Buffalo, New York, beginning August 4th, 1941, were you not?

A. I wouldn't say as to exactly August 4th, but

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

I would say it was early in August, and I was present.

Q. And you were present on the convention floor when the proceedings were had concerning you?

A. I was, sir.

Q. And you took part in those proceedings and in the discussion which evolved?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it was Mr. Walter Reuther himself who accused you of being solely responsible for the unauthorized North American strike; isn't that correct?

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. I object to that, Your Honor—wholly and utterly immaterial to the issues in this case.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, we are not bound by the witness' answer to this question, which came upon direct examination.

Mr. Paisley: I am not saying anything about his being bound. Certainly he is; it is a collateral issue. That is fundamental, Your Honor. But the point I make is that it is immaterial and [3816] irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, in your presence, Mr. Michener, a discussion was had about the North American strike, in which Walter Reuther said that you got on a soapbox and urged the workers to have an unauthorized strike.

Mr. Paisley: Pardon me. Mr. Counsel, it seems to me the Court has just ruled on this question and he is asking the same question in other language, Your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: May I respectfully be heard, Your Honor? Now here is the situation. The counsel who yesterday told Your Honor that he was familiar with the subject matter, that he had gone over it with the witness, asked the witness questions about his holding office in the union, and he said, "Now, over what period of years were you a paid functionary or office holder in the union?"; the witness replied, advisedly, "I held office from 1939 to 1944, with the exception of the year 1941 in which I did not hold office because of some internal affairs of the union." Direct examination. So I then asked him what that circumstance was and over objection Your Honor permitted him to answer. But he gives a false answer, Your Honor. I have the record of what was said; I have the record of what this man said. Now, counsel says now that I may not inquire into it. This man gives a report to the Court that there was some little discussion and it was agreed by everyone that he shouldn't hold office as regional director for the year. Why, one of the focal [3817] points of the convention was this notorious North America strike, which was called by this man alone, in defiance of the United States Government, in defiance of Philip Murray, in defiance of Reuther himself.

The Court: The objection is sustained, counsel.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, to come to this meeting, the first one of the two in which you described Harry Bridges as being present, you say that you came up from Southern California with a man named Kline, is that true?

A. That's correct. Paul Kline.

Q. Paul Kline. And how did you get up here? Did you drive or take the plane or what?

A. I drove my automobile.

Q. And then you and Mr. Kline, I suppose, stayed together while you were here in San Francisco?

A. Didn't stay together here, but we did stay together on the way up, as a result of some motor trouble I had. We stayed together at a motel down the line.

Q. And you went to the Shaw Hotel?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Did you stay there alone or with any other person? A. Stayed there alone.

Q. You were entirely alone. And you say that this meeting was in 1940 and that you later attended the convention here?

A. I don't recall whether I just exactly said that, but to make [3818] the record clear, why, certainly I have a—it would be convenient for counsel to read exactly what I said?

Q. It will. A. I would appreciate it.

Q. Yes. You said, on page 3678, "I attended one meeting here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended just by a few members at that time, and later on I was present at the State CIO convention that was held here, where Mr. Bridges was present . . ." A. That's correct.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And that is the answer you gave under oath in part?

A. Well, if there is more to it, I would like to hear it, sir.

Q. Well, the other, the rest of it doesn't have relation to this fact. It says, ". . . and I attended several meetings in his office during the course of my career in the labor movement here in San Francisco with Mr. Bridges." A. Yes.

Q. But you did say the things that I just read?

A. Well, if that is an exact transcript of yesterday that I would testify to that again, it is the truth. I don't know whether I said in that exact language or not, but if that is what is true; why, that is what I said.

Q. Is that substantially the truth?

A. Substantially; let's put it that way.

Q. It is substantially the truth that you attended one meeting here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended by just a few [3819] members and that later on you were present at the State CIO convention that was held here? A. That's correct.

Q. When was the State CIO convention held here?

A. I believe—I would like to enumerate the State CIO conventions for the record to the best of my memory, if that could be or would be agreeable with you, counsel, first.

Q. Well, let me ask you this question first: Do you know where the State CIO convention of 1940 was held? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Where? A. Of nineteen what?

Q. Forty.

A. Not exactly without I could enumerate the conventions in sequence.

Q. Well, I will tell you. It was held in San Diego, Mr. Witness.

A. I was going to indicate to you I thought the one in 1939 was held in San Francisco. If I could have cooperated with you a little bit longer, I think I could have established that fact.

Q. Well, let me ask you this. In 1940 the CIO convention, the State CIO convention, was held not here but in San Diego, wasn't it?

A. I am taking your word for that.

Q. Well, if I showed you the documents, would you have any [3820] doubt?

A. No, sir, if you would show me the documents, I wouldn't have any doubt.

Q. Where was the CIO convention for the state held in 1941?

A. I believe in Hollywood, California, at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Q. No, that was held in Oakland.

A. It was held in Oakland.

Q. Now, where was the State CIO convention held in 1942?

A. Your Honor, may I have a moment here to put these conventions in order in my own mind?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: I think I can give an intelligent answer.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. (Continuing): I would say that the '42 convention was held in Hollywood.

Q. Yes. And the '43 convention was held where? Fresno? A. No.

Q. Not Fresno? Pardon me. Are you positive of that?

A. No, I am not, sir. I might indicate to you right here and now that it is rather difficult for me to place the exact meetings in a catalogue fashion year in and year out, as to where the State CIO conventions were held. I am not trying to hold back anything from counsel on it, but I really am not in a position to give you an accurate answer on it. I am sorry I can't cooperate more fully.

Q. Haven't you been a labor leader all these years, sir? [3821] A. I have, sir.

Q. And you have been a delegate at every one of those conventions?

A. I have, sir. I can prove that, sir.

Q. And in 1944 where was the State CIO convention held?

Mr. Paisley: I don't see that this is material, Your Honor. The witness said, page 3678, "I attended one meeting . . ."

Mr. MacInnis: I don't think we need any rescuing, Your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Oh, I am not trying to rescue him, Your Honor, I am trying to save this trial from interminability.

Mr. MacInnis: I see.

Mr. Paisley: He stated he attended one meeting

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended just by a few members at that time, and later on, "I was present at the State CIO convention that was held here, where Mr. Bridges was present . . ."; he didn't say it was in 1940. I assume he is trying to cross-examine him to prove that he didn't attend a meeting in San Francisco—that is, a convention in 1940 [3822]

Q. I suppose by reading that with a comma or semicolon we can get an entirely different meaning. What did you mean, Mr. Michener, when you said to the jury under oath yesterday, when you were about to embark upon this narrative of a meeting that you say you attended with Harry Bridges, "I attended a meeting late in '40 with just a few members present and later on I attended the CIO convention here"?

Mr. Paisley: No, he did not say that, your Honor. On page 3678 the question was, "When was that?"

He said, "I have attended several meetings here in San Francisco wherein Mr. Bridges was present. I attended one meeting here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended just by a few members at that time, and later on I was present at the State CIO convention held here where Mr. Bridges was present, and I attended several meetings in his office during the course of my career in the labor movement here in San Francisco with Mr. Bridges."

I submit that the witness did not say that the CIO convention here in San Francisco was held in

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

1940. Even if he did, it would be an inconsequential matter.

Mr. MacInnis: I guess all these things are inconsequential, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q. Weren't you told, Mr. Witness, that the only time following 1940 that the State CIO convention was held in San Francisco was five years later in 1945? [3823]

A. Will you just repeat that question, please, or have it read back to me?

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read that question back to him.

(Question read.)

A. I most positively and definitely was not told.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): When you said that you attended a meeting here in 1940 here in San Francisco with just a few members present, and that later on you attended the CIO convention here at which Bridges was present, you meant by that, of course, a date following the first meeting, didn't you?

A. I meant, sir, that at every State CIO convention Bridges has been present and I have been present with the exception of one or two.

Q. You meant that when you mentioned 1940, in your mind's eye you were jumping up to 1945 as to the time of the CIO convention in San Francisco?

A. Thanks a lot for the help, counsel, but that was not in my mind's eye.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. What did you mean when you said later on?

A. It could have been meant that I have attended meetings here with Harry Bridges other than that Communist Party meeting I referred to in the latter part of 1940. Trade union meetings—I have had several meetings with Mr. Harry Bridges in the labor movement.

Q. Now, look, Mr. Witness, you said a State CIO convention [3824] later on. What did you mean by that?

A. Later on. I guess I meant exactly what I said.

Q. When?

A. I am trying to cooperate here with the Court and tell the truth, and later on, if that is what I said, that is what I said.

Q. Did you mean by that a State CIO convention held in some other city?

A. Could have. I have attended State CIO conventions in other cities where Mr. Bridges was present.

Q. You could have meant that?

A. I could have, but I didn't.

Q. But you said that was held here, referring to San Francisco, didn't you?

A. I might possibly have, if that is what the record indicates.

Q. What did you mean, Mr. Witness, when you said that under oath?

A. I meant that I attended the labor union convention.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. "And I attended one meeting here in San Francisco in '40 that was attended just by a few members at that time, and later on I was present at the State CIO convention that was held here where Mr. Bridges was present." Now, by "here" you meant San Francisco, didn't you?

A. You might draw that conclusion.

Q. Before you took the stand as a witness, and confining [3825] ourselves now to the only point that we have reached in this interrogation of you, you made some effort to recall accurately the events about which you were going to give testimony, didn't you?

A. No, Mr. Counsel, if you are referring that I have attempted to school myself for this—my appearance here as a witness, certainly I could have done a better job of it if I had refreshed and memorized the dates of all meetings, and so on. I didn't attempt to do that at all.

Q. You did not make any attempt to make an honest attempt to refresh your memory as to the dates when these events presumably took place?

A. There is a few outstanding dates that are very important in my mind that I would be willing to indicate to you. Outside of that, the others I would have to say approximately.

Q. You wanted the Court and jury to believe yesterday when you gave your testimony under oath that you had in fact attended a meeting in 1940 in San Francisco when there were just a few members present, to use your words, and that later on you attended the CIO convention here with Harry Bridges?

A. I wanted to, at the questioning yesterday, Mr. Counsel, leave the impression, a true impression, that I did attend a closed Communist Party meeting in San Francisco in the latter part of 1940 wherein Mr. Harry Bridges was present. I said that yesterday. That was the truth yesterday. It is the [3826] truth today, and it will be the truth tomorrow, and from then on out, because I am telling the truth to you, sir.

Q. It will also be the truth that you attended a CIO State convention here with Harry Bridges later on? A. That could be correct, sir.

Q. But you say you were out of the Communist Party in 1945, didn't you? A. I said in 1944.

Q. Yes. 1945 is the date of the only CIO convention held in San Francisco after 1939?

A. If my memory serves me correctly, I thought it was held down at Santa Cruz in 1945, just reminiscing a little bit, Mr. Counsel, but it may have been in San Francisco.

Q. You are in error again. The Santa Cruz convention was in 1946.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I object to counsel testifying. Again I say I can't see any inconsistency. The witness said later on he attended a CIO convention in San Francisco at which Bridges was present. Well, if there was one in San Francisco in 1945, it certainly was later on. He was just talking about meetings that he was at in San Francisco at which Bridges was present. He said that he conferred with him frequently in his office about union matters and so on. It seems to me we are wasting time on trivial, unimportant matters that Mr. MacInnis thinks are inconsistent. As a matter of fact, it [3827] is not at all.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Witness, did you often stay at the Hotel Shaw?

A. No, not often, sir.

Q. How about in the year 1940? Would that have been about the only time you came here?

A. No, sir.

Q. You would have stayed more times at the Hotel Shaw?

A. No. As far as my staying in San Francisco is concerned, I would have stayed more times at the Hotel Whitcomb than I would at the Hotel Shaw, counsel. I believe that is correct.

Q. Can you remember any other occasion on which you stayed at the Hotel Shaw?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. When?

A. I can recall I stayed at the Shaw Hotel one time with a man by the name of Noah Tauscher, who was working for me as an international representative of the UAW, CIO.

Q. What year was that?

A. That was approximately—let's see——

Mr. Paisley: I do not see its importance, your Honor. What does that have to do with it? Some other time when he was at a hotel on a wholly different matter, I presume. He testified he attended a closed Communist meeting with Bridges here in San Francisco in 1940—— [3828]

Mr. MacInnis: I do not think we need these speeches.

Mr. Paisley: ——the next material testimony he gave was about a meeting in Philadelphia. Now he is asking about when he registered at the Shaw Hotel on some entirely different occasion. I think it is immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: I couldn't tell you offhand at the present time.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Could you tell us the year?

A. I imagine it could have been within the same year of 1940. Being under oath, here I wouldn't want to say for sure, because I did stay on several occasions at the Shaw Hotel, on several occasions at the Whitcomb Hotel, but mostly when I came to the Bay area here for my work I stayed at the St. Mark's Hotel in Oakland, California. Those three hotels—and I am not trying to conceal anything—it may be possible for us to get the record of that hotel.

Q. It might be? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Witness, when you came up with Paul Kline in 1940, before you had this meeting with Harry Bridges, under what name did you register at the Shaw Hotel?

A. Under the name of Lew Michener, or L. H.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Michener, or possibly L. H. Michener or Lewis H. Michener, or Lew H. Michener.

Q. Mr. Michener, I am going to show you an original registration [3829] card of the Hotel Shaw bearing date of February 9, 1940——

A. What was the date again, sir?

Q. February 9, 1940, showing that you and a man named Noah Tauscher registered at the Shaw Hotel, and I am going to ask you if that is not the only time in that entire calendar year that you registered at the Shaw Hotel. I am going to represent to you further that the hotel keeps numbered records and that is the only occasion when any name——

Mr. Paisley: I object to counsel testifying. He is not under oath and subject to cross-examination. He is talking about documents that are not in evidence.

The Court: Show him the document.

Mr. Paisley: Is that a photostat, counsel, of the same document?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

Mr. Paisley: May I look at it? It will save a little time.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Does that registration appear to be yours?

A. On the surface, yes, sir.

Q. On the surface?

A. By "on the surface," that looks like my handwriting and has all the appearance of being a regular registration card. I don't know about the figures on the back, but I am sure that that handwriting, "L. H. Michener, 212 West 3rd Street" on the [3830] front certainly resembles my handwriting.

Mr. MacInnis: We will ask that in lieu of the original, which I promised to return to the hotel, the photostatic copies of the front and back of the card be received in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: I certainly object to them, your Honor, on the ground that they are utterly incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. It shows a registration at the Shaw Hotel February 9, 1940. I do not see any purpose that that could serve. He might have stopped there a half dozen times in 1940.

Mr. MacInnis: We will show that is the only registration of L. H. Michener or Lewis Michener in 1940 at the Shaw Hotel.

Mr. Paisley: That is not the way to prove that, your Honor. He should bring somebody from the hotel, put him on the witness stand, have him take an oath, and have him produce the records showing that is the only record that the hotel has.

The Court: The objection is sustained. Mark it for identification.

(The registration card was marked Defendants' Exhibit F-1 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: Have you finished conferring?

Mr. Paisley: Did we disturb you?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Michener, do you still affirm under [3831] oath that you stopped at the Shaw Hotel here in San Francisco on some other date than that shown by the card?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I do, sir.

Q. You still claim you stayed there on another date? A. That is right.

Q. 812 West 3rd Street, I suppose, was the CIO office? A. It was my office, sir.

Q. In Los Angeles?

A. In Los Angeles at that time.

Q. What was your residence address at that time?

A. I believe my residence address at that time was 13—do you want to write it down?—1330 West 11th Street, the Marshall Apartments. I forget the number of the apartment. It has been several years. 1330 West 11th Street.

Q. It was in 1940, you say, that you went to this meeting at a residence on what you would call the Sunset Strip?

A. On which I was corrected by reference to the Sunset District. That was the district in which I attended the meeting. I did in my original statement make the reference to the Sunset Strip but was later on corrected and agreed with the correction that it should indicate Sunset District.

Q. What you mean by that is merely when you said "Sunset Strip" yesterday, his Honor, naturally being surprised at the use of such a phrase, suggested the Sunset Strip was a Los Angeles district. [3832]

A. I couldn't vouch for the fact that he was surprised, sir.

The Court: Nor I.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. So that you used the phrase "Sunset Strip" the first time you made a statement to Kaiser and Barber, this statement that you signed hurriedly in the latter part of April, 1949, at the Ford plant?

A. No, I didn't go over that script fast enough to indicate I had signed it "Strip." I said Sunset District, and the two gentlemen are present in the courtroom, and I am sure you can ask them the question as to whether—what really is contained in there. But certainly I had no intent to confuse any issue on it. It was certainly a slip of the tongue yesterday, and I take this opportunity to apologize to the Court for making the statement "Sunset Strip" when I should have said "Sunset District."

Q. Let me ask you this: Was it a residence district or a district that was partially stores, or what kind of district?

A. I would say 99.9 residential district.

Q. 99.9 residential? A. Yes.

Q. Who was the owner or occupant of the house?

A. I really couldn't tell you honestly.

Q. I thought not. You can't tell us the owner or occupant?

Mr. Paisley: I move that Mr. MacInnis' remark, "I [3833] thought not," be stricken from the record.

Mr. MacInnis: That is what I thought, Judge. I can't help it.

Mr. Paisley: You do not need to make remarks like that.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: It may be stricken from the record.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): This house in the Sunset district or Strip was one in which you have no memory concerning the owner or the occupant?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Was the house occupied by a man, by a woman, or by a family?

A. I would say it was at least occupied by a lady, because I saw her leave just as we came in. As I said to you earlier, honestly I cannot tell you who owned the home or who occupied the home, whether there was a family there or not. I can't help you out on that much, counsel, because I don't really honestly know.

Q. This lady left the house as you entered?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. And of course didn't show her face.

Mr. Paisley: What does he mean by that?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Were you introduced to the lady?

A. No, sir. I am in the dark about what you mean by showing her face. She didn't wear a veil or anything that would hide her face. Certainly I saw her face. Maybe someone else [3834] didn't.

Q. You didn't inquire of anybody present at this little gathering as to whose house it was?

A. I would have no occasion under those set of circumstances to inquire as to who owns this place. I mean, after all, I was invited out to that meeting. That was somebody else's headache who owned it, not mine.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. It was a headache?

A. I will say that if you are going to make an issue out of it, somebody else can answer that, not me.

Q. You made no inquiry as to whose house it was and nobody told you? A. Sir?

Q. Nobody told you whose house it was?

A. That is correct.

Q. As you told us yesterday, the subject of the discussion that you had out in this mysterious house was the disposition of funds from Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. That was the major issue that I was invited to attend the meeting on. There was another problem discussed, but I was invited to discuss the issue of the Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Q. Who was the head of the Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. At that time it was John L. Lewis.

Q. John L. Lewis? [3855]

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Was he a member of the Communist Party at that time?

A. No, not to my knowledge, he never was.

Q. What were the funds for Labor's Non-Partisan League? A. Sir?

Q. What were these funds?

A. Oh, these were funds accumulated from donations made by local unions, made by local unions and sent to the head office of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Have you finished?

A. You have the floor, sir. [3836]

Q. And what was to be the disposition of these funds? Where were they to go?

A. The funds—the problem was of getting the funds back so that there was a lot of work to be done in the, so to speak, as we termed it in those days, grassroots. But I had better explain that to you so we won't have some hidden identity back of that phraseology. It was for doing a district assembly work within the various districts, assembly districts. The people there felt as though they needed money to get out leaflets and, on particular issues, leaflets supporting various particular candidates and that sort of thing. And that was why we felt at that time that there ought to be a little more equal distribution of these funds between the north and the south, so that this particular program could be carried on.

Q. And your best memory is that the funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League came into existence in the year 1940 and were hence the subject of this discussion that you had?

A. No, I wouldn't exactly say that. I don't believe I testified to that, sir.

Q. Well, were there funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League in existence in 1940?

A. That is my understanding of it, as I testified here.

Q. That is when you say this meeting took place?

A. That's right.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Didn't Mr. Kaiser tell you that the funds of Labor's [3837] Non-Partisan League were funds allocated in the year 1938 and used up in that year and the year following, and that they were never thereafter revived. Didn't he tell you that?

A. I never remember seeing Mr. Kaiser at Labor's Non-Partisan League meetings. I didn't know he was a member. That is something new to me.

Q. You say John L. Lewis was the head of the Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. That's correct, that's correct, on a national basis.

Q. Was there a man named George Creel who headed Labor's Non-Partisan League in California?

A. George Creel?

Q. C-r-e-e-l. A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. You never heard of him?

A. I have heard of him, but I didn't know of him heading up Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Q. Where did you hear of George Creel?

A. Vaguely, in my mind, apparently, seems to me that he was one of our local politicians, I believe. Just offhand, that strikes me. I may be wrong, but that is the first impression I get to answer your question.

Q. You say he was a local politician?

A. I would say that is what—where I first heard of him, I believe. At one time, perhaps, he may have run for governor, or [3838] was thinking of running for governor of the state, or maybe it is a different man. I don't know. The name "Creel" kind of sounds familiar, sir. I am trying to help you.

Q. Was he a politician in Northern California or Southern California?

Mr. Paisley: Well, now, wait a minute. Pardon me, counsel. If Mr. Creel wasn't at the meeting, Your Honor, are we really concerned about when he heard about Mr. Creel? I object on the ground it is immaterial and irrelevant when he heard about Mr. Creel.

The Court: We will take the recess, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. We will take the afternoon recess, and the same admonition to you now, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Recess.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): When we convened this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock you told the Court and jury that your Communist Party card, during the first two years or so of your membership or so was held by the Communist Party itself, is that correct?

A. Yes, that's correct. I hesitated to answer that for a minute, Mr. Counsel, but I do believe it was this afternoon's session that that was raised.

Q. And you didn't ever tell your first wife about your membership in the Communist Party? [3839]

A. No, I didn't.

Q. And you married her when you were already a member of the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Let's get this straight now. Which wife are you referring to, the first or second wife?

Q. Oh, I think I said that.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you read the question to him?

(Record read.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Referring to your first wife. A. No, sir.

Q. You joined while you were married to her?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And you were still a member of the Communist Party when you separated from her?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And during all of the time you remained married to that lady you never told her of your membership in the Communist Party?

A. That's correct.

Q. You never indulged that confidence with her?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Paisley: He said so, Your Honor, two or three times.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, with reference again to these funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League about which you said you had that talk out in the residence in the Sunset District, you didn't have the funds out there with you, did you? [3840]

A. No, sir.

Q. You weren't dividing the funds in the house at that particular time?

A. Oh, definitely not.

Q. Pardon me?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. Definitely not; no, sir. We didn't have no funds out there.

Q. Well, have you learned since the last recess that the funds for Northern California, as sent here to the state by John L. Lewis, were handled by George Creel? Do you remember that?

Mr. Paisley: I object to the question, if the Court please, on the ground it is not a question: it is testimony by counsel, and he is not on the stand, not under oath.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, were you told in the recess by any of the prosecutors that the funds for Southern California of Labor's Non-Partisan League were handled by Phil Gibson, who is now a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of California?

Mr. Paisley: Pardon me, Your Honor. That is just an inartful attempt to get around the Court's ruling by saying, "Were you told that by some government investigator?" That is all it is. We object to it on the same ground, Your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: We certainly have a right to ask that.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You say you went to work for the Ford [3841] plant in 1933?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What month?

A. That would have been in November, I believe. It would be late in 1933, sir. I wouldn't say offhand, I believe November of 1933. I am not positive on that, but I would say approximately November.

Q. Now, coming to this convention, the National CIO convention of 1943 that you attended, did you say that that took place at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the meeting that you had in which you identified Harry Bridges as being among those present, took place in a room at that hotel?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And the preliminary matter that you offered the Court as part of the recital of what took place was the election in the State CIO convention here in California. You said that Slim Connolly or Philip Connolly, whichever name you used, had defeated this man named James Thimmens for the presidency of the union. A. That's correct.

Q. Now you are sure of that, are you?

A. Sure of what, sir?

Q. Of that statement.

A. That Slim Connolly defeated Mr. Thimmens for the election [3842] for president of the State CIO for California. The record, I think, will speak for itself in that connection, yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it true that Mr. Thimmens didn't even run against Mr. Connolly that year?

A. I wasn't present at that convention. I understand, however, that he did, and withdrew, because it was certainly pretty well understood by all the right wing forces in the state that he was a candidate. I was held up in the East at that time on other work of the union.

Q. Well, now, yesterday under oath, when the prosecutor was examining you, you said this:——

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment, Your Honor. I would like to have this word, or these words "under oath" eliminated from these questions if we can. Of course the witness was under oath all the time that he was on the stand. Each time he asks, "Yesterday you testified under oath, didn't you, . . ." so and so. I think that is improper.

I thing that is improper.

The Court: Well, it may be regarded, counsel, as a habit of an examiner; various habits crip into our mode of examination. I see no harm in it. It is two or three extra words and it certainly does no harm. We understand the witnesses are under oath. The jury understands that, of course.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): This question was put to you:

"Do you know who the candidates had been when Mr. Connolly was elected?" [3843]

"A. I do.

"Q. Who were they?

"Answer: Mr. Thimmens and Mr. Connolly were candidates for the state presidency of the California State CIO."

A. Yes, sir; and I still repeat that, that is my—would be my answer if you asked me the question again today. To the best of my knowledge, that was the exact set of circumstances.

Q. Well, actually, wasn't the opponent who opposed Mr. Connolly at that election in 1943 a man named Walter S. Pollard?

A. If Walter S. Pollard opposed Slim Connolly at the convention you refer to, it was certainly with the approval, then, of Mr. Thimmens.

Q. Now, you told the Court and jury yesterday that Mr. Connolly and Mr. Thimmens ran against each other and that Connolly was elected?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, let me ask you this: Isn't it true that the election that year for the presidency was between Mr. Connolly and Walter S. Pollard of the Shipyard Workers and that Connolly got 571 votes and Pollard got 199, Pollard being defeated, Thimmens not being a candiate at all. Isn't that true?

A. I couldn't vouch for whether it is true or not, sir.

Q. Well, I will show you a copy of the news story in the San Francisco Chronicle concerning that election, Tuesday, October 26, 1943, and I will ask you to read it over, please. [3844]

(Paper handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (Continuing): And you told the Court and jury yesterday that one of the arguments or discussions about what the prosecutor called this "strange and unusual procedure" was that it was argued that the rank and file had elected Connolly over Thimmens and that the will of the rank and file was being thwarted by replacing Connolly with Thimmens. You told them that, didn't you?

A. I believe I did, sir, words to that effect.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Well, now, you accept the fact, don't you, that the persons running for the presidency of the State CIO that year were Philip M. Connolly defeating Walter S. Pollard? Do you have any doubt of that?

A. That is what it said on that slip of paper you handed me, sir, purportedly a news story, and the figures as you quote them are the same as on that paper. I will vouch for that. I will indicate to you again, the record speaks for itself, that Thimmens later on did become the state president by virtue of the fact of the meeting that I explained here in detail to you, that was held in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel during the National CIO convention. The record is clear on that, on this particular instance here that you refer to. I don't affirm or deny it. But I do know that Thimmens has been an outstanding leader of—and Slim Connolly—of the State and did run against Slim Connolly, if not at this convention, at—has run against [3845] Slim Connolly. I make that statement to you and also the Court.

Q. You mean if that wasn't in this year, it was some other year?

A. Well, let's consult the record on that. I am sure we will find that I am attempting here in the best way I can to tell you the truth, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Now I will ask that this copy of the news item of the San Francisco Chronicle be received and marked as Defendant's next.

The Court: For identification. So ordered.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

(Thereupon purported news clipping from the San Francisco Chronicle, referred to above, was marked Defendant's Exhibit G-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, now, forgetting for a moment this story about the defeated candidate Thimmens being asked to replace the victorious one Connolly, let's go into this meeting that you say you had in the room at the Bellevue-Stratford at Philadelphia. You named several of the persons who were in the room, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you said there were others whose names you could not recall? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About how many people were there in all?

A. Oh, approximately 15, I would say, sir. [3846]

Q. And you named seven or eight of these people? A. That's right.

Q. And have you any idea who the other seven or eight were?

A. I have a slight idea who they were, yes, sir, but I couldn't name them for you, because I do not know their names.

Q. Well, actually, if you were at the convention and if there was any discussion in any kind of meeting, there was a member of the Communist Party named Rathborne present, wasn't there?

A. Where at, sir?

Q. At Philadelphia. A. No, sir.

Q. There was no man by that name present?

A. Not to my knowledge, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Now, you say that nevertheless there were about 15 people in this meeting?

A. I would say approximately 15, to the best of my recollection.

Q. And you can not give us the names of the other seven or eight, as the case may be, whom you haven't named yet?

A. That is true, I can not.

Q. But you are quite definite as to the presence there of the persons whose names you did give us?

A. I knew those people, sir. That is the difference between that and those that I did not know.

Q. The other people were people you didn't know at all? A. That's correct. [3847]

Q. Had never seen before?

A. I wouldn't say—I have saw them before that meeting, saw them at the convention. They were convention delegates. I saw two or three of those people that were there with, they were close friends, apparently, of Slim Connolly. I saw them there in his presence. But as to who they were, I couldn't tell you their names.

Q. Everyone present in that room was a delegate to the convention? A. Not everyone, no.

Q. Well, now, you named a man, let us say, the name of Jim Doherty. Who was he?

A. He was a delegate.

Q. From what union? A. Utility Workers.

Q. And from what city?

A. Los Angeles, California.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. And he was present at the convention as a delegate?

A. Best of my recollections, yes, sir.

Q. And he was representing the Utility Workers of Los Angeles?

A. The best of my recollections, I believe that is the organization he represented. I know he headed that organization for quite a considerable length of time.

Q. Now, the CIO National Convention kept printed records, did it not? [3848]

A. I imagine they did.

Q. Of all convention proceedings?

A. It was general practice, sir.

Q. You were a delegate, weren't you?

A. I was.

Q. And the name of all delegates are printed in the CIO convention book for that particular year, isn't that a custom?

A. It is a custom. I don't recall having a copy or receiving a copy of it, that you refer to or make reference to there.

Q. Well, now, I have marked with a piece of paper the list of delegates at the CIO convention, 1943, the national convention. I am going to ask you to look at it and see if you can find the name of Jim Doherty listed as a delegate.

Mr. Paisley: Well, unless he testified, Your Honor, that Doherty was a delegate, I don't see that we are embarking upon proper cross examination.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: I heard him testify a moment ago that that is what Doherty was.

(Document handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. Jim Dougherty was not a delegate at all at the convention of 1940, was he?

A. I was unable to discover his name in there.

Q. And this is the official convention proceedings, is it not?

A. I assume it is. It looks official to me. I would say that it was, although I never received a copy of that proceedings, but I assume it is official, sir.

Q. He is not listed as a delegate at all?

A. I couldn't locate his name in there. I hastily glanced through it. It may be there. I may have taken a little time and gone slower through there, but I didn't discover it there.

Q. You still say he was a delegate, though?

A. I said to the best of my recollection, sir, he was a delegate.

Q. In saying that you saw him there, you are mindful, of course, that you know Jim Dougherty well?

A. I know Jim Dougherty. I don't know about the "well."

Q. He was not a stranger to you?

A. Not a stranger. Just what you mean by "well"—if you mean a bosom pal, not to that extent.

Q. Had you known him over a period of years?

A. Yes, two or three years, I imagine. Let's see.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

I have known him for about—I first met him around about 1940, I [3850] guess.

Q. These official convention proceeding books list all delegates, don't they?

A. That apparently does there. I checked to find if I was listed as a delegate. I find my name there.

Q. Yes, you are there. A. Yes, sir.

Q. But Dougherty isn't?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you knew Dougherty better than you ever knew Harry Bridges, didn't you?

A. No, I wouldn't say that.

Q. You wouldn't say that?

A. No, I would not.

Q. But you were willing to come here and put the man named Dougherty, who is not on trial at all in this case, in part of your testimony without even checking up to see if he was present in Philadelphia, weren't you?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, he could have been there at the convention without being a delegate.

Mr. MacInnis: We know.

Mr. Paisley: What this witness said is Dougherty was in the Communist Party meeting there in the hotel. He said that. He could have been there and that could have been true, and yet he might not have been a delegate. [3851]

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, he said he was a delegate there. We would not be so concerned if the witness had not said a moment ago Yes, he was a delegate. That is what he says.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: May I see your book there, Mr. Counsel?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You say that at this secret meeting that you participated in in the hotel room some man named Hudson told those present, including Bridges, that there were orders from the top party leaders about a certain maneuver that was to take place, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Before you went into that meeting did you know what this top Party policy was to be?

A. I did not.

Q. Like yourself, according to you, Harry Bridges sat there and also listened to this man named Hudson say what the top leaders had said?

A. That is a matter of testimony. I said that, yes, sir.

Q. And who were these top leaders who had made the decision?

A. It wasn't indicated to us by the top Party of the Communist Party as far as mentioning names is concerned. I do not recall that this man, Roy Hudson, mentioned any particular name or names, as far as the top Party was concerned, but definitely left the inference that they had this meeting, as I related to you in court, sir, and that this was a decision that had been arrived at. [3852]

Q. Did this man Hudson say that it was some great party like Lawrence Ross?

A. I told you, sir, to the best of my recollection no names were mentioned, and if the name Lawrence

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Ross was used, it was not used in my presence. I don't recall any top Party official's name being used in the meeting, only to indicate the top officers had discussed the problem, period.

Q. Didn't Hudson tell Harry Bridges that the great Communist leader whose decision you must follow blindly was Manning Johnson? Did he tell you that?

A. I told you, sir, honestly and truthfully, no personal names were mentioned, that if they had been, I certainly would have recorded them for the reference here of the Court.

Q. From your general understanding of the Communist Party, a top leader, I suppose, would be a man on some committee which would rule the Party? Would that be true? A. No, sir.

Q. Is there some committee which is the executive committee or the highest ruling body within the Communist Party?

A. They have their duly elected officers.

Q. What are the names of those committees?

A. The officers—I don't know the names of the committees, but it is the top committee of the Communist Party, which has its present, its executive secretary. I think the record will indicate and show at that time, to the best of my [3853] recollection, the president was William Z. Foster and the executive secretary was William Browder.

Q. William Browder? Tell me this: Did this man Hudson say the orders had come from William Z. Foster?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I told you, sir, no names were mentioned. I am telling you the truth on that, so if you stay there all day you won't get a different answer on that.

Q. I am willing to stay here all day.

A. So am I, sir.

Q. Is there some committee in the Communist Party that has ruling powers or executive powers?

A. Well, executive ruling powers and executive powers, certainly. They are commissioned with that responsibility. I never attended a Communist Party Convention. I have had reports back from Communist Party conventions, and certainly they are delegated with the authority of making decisions and running the organization to the best of their ability.

Q. What is the name of the chief ruling body in the Communist Party? Is there some name that the ruling body has?

A. They have a name for it. It just slips my mind right now, sir.

Q. You were in the Communist Party from 1938—— A. Yes, sir.

Q. ——to 1944? A. Yes, sir. [3854]

Q. But you can't tell us the name of this ruling body?

A. I have it on the tip of my tongue, but I am not going to make a mistake and tell you the wrong name. I can't call it to you right at the present time. I probably can before the session is over, if I have a little time to ponder on it. I will do the best I can to accommodate you.

Q. When Hudson said he had top Party orders, didn't Harry Bridges say, "From whom did those orders come?"

A. No, I don't recall Harry Bridges saying that.

Q. He was not curious about that. Didn't Harry Bridges say, "Why, I am one of the top Party men. I am one of the ruling bodies of the Communist Party myself. I am the top Party man around here"? Didn't he say that?

A. If you have testimony to that, you use it. I won't say that.

Q. That didn't take place? A. No, sir.

Q. You were present during all the proceedings had at this convention of the CIO in 1943?

A. I won't say I was present at all of them, because I did have other work to do. We had an Executive Board session of my organization, the United Auto Workers. You will notice a list of officers are listed there as delegates, I believe, and I won't say I was present at every session of the convention—almost all. [3855]

Q. You voted at that convention?

A. I did.

Q. Upon the resolution concerning Harry Bridges, didn't you?

A. I believe—also it is customary at the conventions to poll—have a roll call on those. I think that would be a matter of record also, by voting record there. I am sure at that time if there was an issue concerning Harry Bridges, I certainly voted in support of him.

Q. You did?

A. I say if there was an issue.

Q. You heard the Harry Bridges resolution and you voted in favor of it, didn't you?

A. I didn't hear the resolution made, sir, and to refresh my memory, if you would let me see the resolution, maybe I could help you out a little bit on my testimony here.

(A document was shown to the witness.)

A. Yes, sir, I would have voted in favor of that resolution. I am sure I would. I have certainly voted in favor of similar resolutions in the Council, local unions, and influenced others to support such resolutions.

Q. And you were present at that time?

A. I don't recall offhand whether I was or not, but we voted in a bloc as far as most of the issues are concerned in the UAW. I even believe in that particular instance that Walter Reuther had no other recourse than vote along on that [3856] resolution there.

Q. And the resolution was this, "That whereas the order of Attorney General Biddle to deport Harry Bridges, and the deportation proceedings"—

Mr. Paisley: I do not know what he has got there, your Honor, but I object to his reading from something that is not in evidence.

Mr. MacInnis: Something this man voted on, your Hon

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: May I be heard on that, your Honor? Here is a resolution that this man voted for on the convention floor, heard discussed, and participated in, involving the very issues that are present in this case.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Were you present on the convention floor when Harry Bridges spoke to the convention?

A. I believe I was. If my memory serves me, I was present when Harry spoke. Made it a point to be there.

Q. Do you remember what he said?

A. No, sir, I can't recall verbatim what he said. I have heard several speeches by Mr. Bridges and I couldn't commence here to put them in order and tell you everything Harry said since I have known him.

Q. He spoke in favor of the war effort, didn't he?

A. I imagine he would at that time, yes, sir.

Q. And he spoke about the interest of the labor movement to prosecute the war to a victorious end?

Mr. Paisley: Pardon me——

The Court: The objection is sustained, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Michener, at some point within the war years you became a member of the War Labor Board, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. You were one of the labor union members of that board? A. That is correct.

Q. And in order to qualify for your position on the War Labor Board, you had to fill out a document of application, didn't you?

A. Yes. Yes, there was a document that had to be filled out, as I recall it. I served on several bodies, and I believe—I am sure that there was some statement connected with that, that responsibility. However, I am not sure. I would have to see the document to identify my memory with that, too. I served also on the California Apprenticeship Council and various propositions, and I wouldn't know offhand as to what the document was that would have to be filled out for the War Labor Board, whether there was one at all. It seems to me there was though. [3858]

Q. What was the year in which you were a member of the War Labor Board?

A. That followed '40—let's see. That was in '43 also, I believe.

Q. '43?

A. I would have to check that to refresh my memory, but I believe it was during that period that I served on the War Labor Board. The best of my recollections.

Q. And in the questionnaire that you had to fill in and answer, you were asked the question, "Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party, U.S.A., or any Communist organization?", weren't you?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I can't agree with you, Mr. Counsel, that I asked that question or had to fill out that application.

The Court: Would you show the witness any application you have?

Mr. MacInnis: I have a form.

Mr. Paisley: Oh, well, that wouldn't do, Your Honor. He would have to show him something that the witness allegedly had signed. We can get forms, I suppose we can get a truckload of them here in this building—the tax place over here.

The Witness: Your Honor, perhaps I recall,—the executive secretary of the War Labor Board was Thomas Fair Niblett, and I don't know if he is still located in San Francisco or not, but certainly if there was any such files filed, he would [3859] perhaps know about it and suggest we utilize his source to get that, because I couldn't be in the position here, honestly, to swear under oath here as to whether that is the regular form or whether I ever filled out such a form as that. But if I see one with my signature on it, certainly then I wouldn't hesitate a moment to indicate to you that. But as far as concealing my party membership, I made the statement here earlier that I had told various officials in the union that I never was a member of the Communist Party, and I also made the statement, sir, that under oath and I consider that this is under oath, that I never indicated or lied about my affiliation with my Communist Party. Now, under those circumstances I doubt very much, I do doubt, and the fact of the matter is, Mr. Counsel, that I will buy you a new hat if you will, or can, bring me up some statement of where I put my signature on these circumstances.

Q. When did you last see the application that you made for the War Labor Board?

A. I will tell you. I have no recollection of making an application for the War Labor Board.

Q. When did you last discuss it?

A. Oh, I couldn't give you an intelligent answer. When I last discussed what, sir?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, Your Honor, I am going to ask that the Government counsel produce the original of whatever application this man signed, because it is under oath. [3860]

The Court: There is no indication that any such application has ever been signed.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, Judge, we know that to be true, that he couldn't be on that board without signing it. I think Your Honor can take judicial notice of that fact. Would Your Honor request the Government to produce such a document if it exists, for I am sure it exists?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, all he has there is a civil service application blank. That is what he is parading to the witness.

Mr. MacInnis: I am informed that this is the questionnaire that was submitted to persons wishing to qualify for that post, Your Honor.

The Court: Qualify for a particular post on the War Labor Board?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: This is a civil service form?

Mr. Paisley: Yes, sir, regular old form—what is it? Ought to know the number of it. Form 57. Everybody in the federal service has heard of it.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I think, Your Honor, that it is entirely in order to request that you order the prosecution to bring in the original form signed by this man, if there is any form.

Mr. Paisley: Let me see this. [3861]

The Court: Did you sign any application when you were made or caused to be appointed by this board?

The Witness: No, Your Honor; to the best of my knowledge, I really didn't.

The Court: Do you recall the circumstances under which you entered the service on the War Labor Board?

The Witness: Yes, I do. My name, Your Honor, was placed as a recommendation by the president of my international union, R. J. Thomas, and also was place there by Philip Murray. Of course, R. J. Thomas recommended to Philip Murray, and jointly they proposed my name to serve on the tenth, I believe it was, the Tenth Regional Board, which comprised——

The Court: What was the date, approximately, of that?

The Witness: To the best of my recollection, Your Honor, it would be in 1943.

The Court: Where?

The Witness: Their head offices were here in

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

San Francisco on Market Street, in the old Furniture Exchange Building.

The Court: Were you a member of the Tenth Regional Board?

The Witness: Yes, sir. And Thomas——

The Court: How many other members served with you?

The Witness: There were—was one other member serving with me, representing the CIO. His name was Wilson. He was the representative from the Rubber Workers of the CIO. He was an alternate that took my place quite frequently. And then there [3862] was another man, representing the Steel Workers. His name slips me right now. Then representing the A.F. of L. for the time I was on the board was one man that I remember very distinctly, was Jack Shelley, representing the A.F. of L. He was from San Francisco here. And I don't remember too many of the industry members. I do remember that Paul Shoup of the Merchants and Manufacturers who has since passed away. But he was a member of the board.

The Court: After your name was submitted or your nomination suggested, what procedure was adopted toward your serving and receiving the credentials?

The Witness: I was notified by the president of my organization, R. J. Thomas, that I had been appointed and accepted to serve on the board. Now there were forms that I filled out.

The Court: Did you take an oath of any kind looking toward your service upon that board?

The Witness: It seems to me that there was a regular, an oath that I would serve to the best of my ability and not—and so forth and so on, and not——

The Court: Was it on a comparable form to that submitted, as referred to by Mr. Paisley as Form 57?

The Witness: I really—my honest opinion of it, Your Honor, I don't believe it was.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, this form which counsel has was approved by the Civil Service Commission in November 1947. I [3863] happen to know that these questions with reference to loyalty of employees and applicants have been changed, changed several times, as a matter of fact; and the present form, I understand, is as is on this form. But in 1943 I know that the questions were totally different than those on this form.

Mr. MacInnis: That is why we woudd like the original, Your Honor, so there would be no leaving it to the memory of the witness.

The Court: Well, of course, counsel, you base your request upon the supposition that there is an original.

Mr. MacInnis: Oh, I know that to be true.

The Court: You know that to be true?

Mr. Paisley: How does he know it, sir?

The Court: Any document that may be in existence or have a reality, under these circumstances, I will order produced. But I would not make an order with respect to a non-existent document.

Mr. MacInnis: Of course not.

The Court: And then let it be said that the Government has failed to respond to an order of the Court. Usually an order is made predicated upon the basis of a document in fact in existence. Now Mr. Paisley suggests to me that the questions are different now. He apparently has knowledge on this particular subject; I have not. As to this Form 57, that apparently is one that is used in the ordinary Civil Service routine. The [3864] gentleman on the stand states that he took an oath; no doubt he did. The form may well have been the usual short form of oath, and there may well not have been any reference to Communist affiliation or the like. Now I can not make an order that we require government counsel to go on a quest for a non-existent document, and then let it be said hereafter that they failed to produce a document.

Now you say you have knowledge that such a document is in existence. Without adopting Mr. Paisley's suggestion, may I ask you what the basis of that knowledge is?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, one of the first bases that I would point out to Your Honor is that I have evidence that this man on the witness stand talked over the answers that he should give to certain questions with another person, and that those questions were contained in the document to which I have reference. Aside from any ordinary knowledge that he would have about the necessity for an application, we would of course know that the Government wouldn't lightly appoint a person to the War Labor Board without making at least a cursory examination into the background.

The Court: Mr. Donohue or Mr. Paisley, do you have knowledge whether these documents are now in existence here?

Mr. Donohue: I never heard of it, if Your Honor pleases. In fact, I am wholly unfamiliar with what the War Labor Board is or was. [3865]

Mr. MacInnis: I guess there wasn't any, Judge.

Mr. Donohue: I said I wasn't familiar with it, if Your Honor pleases.

The Court: Well, I will ask the Government——

Mr. Donohue: If there be such a document——

The Court: I will ask the Government, without making an order presently, to make a survey to determine whether or not there are any records in existence, looking toward this witness taking an oath, and if the oath appear in and under some written form that that oath be produced.

Mr. Donohue: You may be assured, Your Honor, that if there is any such document obtainable and we may obtain it, we shall get it. I had hoped that Mr. MacInnis, when he said he knew there was such a document, might help us locate it.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis said that with an assurance that he had knowledge. Now I am willing to make any order or directive or suggestion that may be in keeping with the fact. But I am not going to send government counsel on the question of a non-existent document:

Mr. Donohue: Well, we will do our best to——

The Court: I will ask you, Mr. Donohue, to make a survey under my suggestion to determine whether there are any documents in existence of the type, character or description generally alluded to by Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. Donohue: That shall be done at once, Your Honor. [3866]

The Court: And that such a document be produced.

Mr. Donohue: I shall, Your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: May I state that my information generally would be that there would be two documents, one an application form, the other would be a matter that you referred to, a short form oath, when he would be admitted to the post.

The Court: Let us see what there is in existence.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. Shall we take the recess, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes. We have this matter of the request for the grand jury. I will take that up immediately after the jury retires.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the afternoon recess and adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. May I make the same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor converse with any person or on any subject of the trial. You are not to form or express an opinion hereon until the case is submitted to you. You may now retire.

> (Whereupon the jury left the courtroom and the following occurred outside the presence of the jury:)

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, I would like to ask Your Honor to order the record of yesterday changed on page 3660, line 4, in order to conform with what I think all of us understood was the true nature of the remarks made by Mr. Hallinan concerning, apparently, Mr. McMillan. Line 4 reads, [3867] after the comma, "then the old man that sits in the back and croaks out an objection occasionally got up and added something to it." I think we all recall that the word "man" was not used, but the word "banshee" was used; and I therefore ask Your Honor to order the record corrected to read "then the old banshee that sits in the back and croaks out an objection occasionally got up and added something to it."

Mr. Hallinan: We will stipulate to that.

The Court: Stipulate to the correction?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes.

The Court: That was the reference made to Mr. McMillan?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: The record may be corrected at page 3660, line 4, accordingly.

Now, on the matter of the grand jury, or at least the request for the minutes or transcript of the grand jury, Mr. MacInnis, I have examined the authorities submitted at the brief period allotted to me during the recess, and I see no reason at all to change or otherwise alter my ruling heretofore made, that there is no basis or predicate for such a request. And accordingly the same is denied.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, so that I would be guided, Your Honor, in future instances where this question or request may well come up, having examined the authorities, would Your Honor tell me what distinction is made between a proper case in [3868] which this request may be honored?

The Court: I have no occasion to discuss any distinction, because the authorities as I examined them in the brief period of time allotted me do not support the general statements given. This statement appears to have been—did you examine these authorities?

Mr. MacInnis: Only perfunctorily, Your Honor.

The Court: I noticed that the memorandum comes from N.L. I assume that is Norman Leonard?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: And he is a gentleman who has been associated with the law firm of Gladstein and others. He has appeared in this matter heretofore. Now, if you will examine the authorities over night you will determine that there is no basis or authority justifying this Court to require the Government to produce the minutes or transcript of the grand jury in the light of the record before the Court.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court may request government counsel to produce the grand jury minutes or transcript for examination by the Court, but to permit defense counsel in the light of the statement made by this witness to pore over the grand jury records would not aid and assist any issue for determination in this case.

Now, I ask you to go over the authorities tonight, and I think you will determine, as I have indicated to you.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I will do that, Your [3869] Honor.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: I have always believed from such general knowledge as I may possess of the law that the matter is discretionary with the court, and that wherever it appears that may be a variance between what a witness has told the grand jury and what a witness says in court, that then the court is empowered to lift that veil of secrecy from the grand jury and allow an inspection of the transcript. Now, that is my knowledge, I think, of the general law. Now what is Your Honor's notion of the law upon that subject?

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, sometimes——

Mr. MacInnis: All right, I won't pass the ball back, then.

The Court: Sometimes your assumed naivete is rather refreshing. Be that as it may, I am rather of the inclination now to adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Thursday, January 12, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [3870]

Thursday, January 12, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr., heretofore sworn.

The Court: Proceed.

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Did you know a man named Sidney Hillman?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was he?

A. Sidney Hillman was the president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Q. Was he a member of the Communist Party?

A. Not to my knowledge, sir. I would say he wasn't a member.

Q. Well, has he been active in the CIO?

A. He has passed away, now.

Q. Yes. Was he active during his lifetime?

A. He was, very much so.

Q. Was he the founder of the Political Action Committee of the CIO?

A. He was very instrumental in helping formu-

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)
late the Labor's Non-Partisan League in its early stages, sir.

Q. Now, you told the Court and jury, I think the day before yesterday, that during the 1943 convention of the CIO at [3871] Philadelphia some committee went to Philip Murray and ultimately arranged that a man named Thimmens become the state president of the California CIO, is that correct? A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Now, the person who engineered that entire move was Sidney Hillman, isn't that true?

A. No, sir, that is not true.

Q. Did you ever consult with Sidney Hillman upon that particular change of officers?

A. I never had the occasion to. He may have been consulted on it, however, but I wasn't party to it, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was Sidney Hillman who first proposed that Mr. Thimmens be made president of the California CIO at that time?

A. If he had, he never proposed it to me, sir. Possibly he may have proposed it to others, but not to me.

Q. So you don't know one way or the other what his part in that particular move may have been?

A. Only with relation to the transaction. I never come in contact with him regarding the matter.

Q. What did you say your present office is within the union?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. My present office in the local union, you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. I told the Court that I was a delegate to the Greater Los Angeles Industrial Union Council, CIO, and also a delegate to [3872] the District Auto Council No. 5 of the UAW-CIO.

Q. Are you a regular delegate or an alternate delegate? A. I am a regular delegate, sir.

Q. Do you hold any other office at this time, sir? A. I do not.

Q. Tell me this. Yesterday you told the Court and jury that the only part that you ever played in the previous cases against Harry Bridges was to contribute occasionally, is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. You did nothing further at any time?

A. I am just not quite clear on that, counsel. What did you have in mind? I will try to cooperate with you and help you out on it.

Q. Well, now, as early as 1940, did you discuss the matter of Harry Bridges' citizenship with various people?

A. I don't know whether I discussed the matter of his citizenship with various people, but I do know this: that I spoke at various locals in Mr. Bridges' behalf, and regarding his citizenship, I naturally would be—that naturally would be a topic. But I can't recall just making that solely a discussion with individuals, no, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. When you spoke at these various local unions on his behalf, what did you say?

A. Matter of, I was at that time, 1940, you have reference to, [3873] sir? I was regional director at that time for the United Auto Workers, and as such, had several local unions in the State of California which were under my jurisdiction. And naturally the proposition of Bridges was very popular within the CIO. He was pretty well known. And I spoke, as I have indicated to you, in his behalf. Just what I have said I would not be in a position to repeat it to you.

Q. But generally, what would you have said?

A. As a matter of making contributions to the Bridges' Defense Fund, I would speak in favor of it. Generally that is what I would have said.

Q. What would you say about the status of Harry Bridges or his character as a labor leader or the charges that had been brought against him?

A. Well, I would say then, as I would now, if you would like to have a statement on that? —

Q. What would you say?

A. I would say to you that in my opinion Mr. Harry Bridges is one of the most able and capable labor leaders in the country, and if it wasn't for the fact that he was connected with the Communist Party, I am sure today he would be filling the boots of Philip Murray as head of the National CIO. That is my feeling toward Mr. Bridges.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Is that what you said when you made these speeches?

A. I didn't say that exactly, but words to that effect probably. [3874]

Q. You didn't tell these locals that you thought he was connected with the Communist Party, did you? A. I did not.

Q. You told them that you merely thought he was a great labor leader, didn't you?

A. That's right.

Q. And that you thought the charges against him were lies?

A. I don't—as I have indicated to you earlier, sir, I can't recall exactly what I said. But in general, I have given you the idea. [3875]

Q. About how many of such speeches did you make?

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. Your Honor, it seems to me that is improper cross-examination. If he has a transcript here of a statement or testimony by the witness giving the interrogation contrary to what he has testified in this case, I think that would be a proper question. But just to explore around about his past speeches, what he might have said about Bridges before he met with him in Communist Party meetings, I do not think that is proper cross-examination.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: I would not be in a position to tell you how many such speeches I made. I would indicate to you, however, that there would be several, and several would be more than three.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Would it have been as many as ten?

A. Possibly. I tell you honestly I can't give you the exact number.

Q. In addition to making those speeches would you have passed out literature involving Harry Bridges?

A. Not personally, I would not have passed out literature in behalf of Harry Bridges, because that would not come within my line of work.

Q. Would this be the case, that literature would be sent to you in your position as an officer, and then you would give that literature to subordinates to pass out while you yourself [3876] would make a speech?

A. Not necessarily, if the reference is being made that we went out strictly on a campaign for Harry Bridges, I spoke to people and passed out literature at the same time. That would be incorrect.

Q. That would not be true?

A. That would not be true.

Q. Are those the things that you had in mind when you said to the jury yesterday, "Not exactly, sir, because my contribution to the Harry Bridges trials heretofore had been financially."

"Q. You did not do anything else?

"A. That is right, sir."

Q. You did not tell the jury yesterday that you had made several speeches on behalf of Harry Bridges, did you?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I do not think that is fair cross-examination.

Mr. MacInnis: It is unfair to expose the truth.

Mr. Paisley: He is asking him if he was a stool pigeon and had testified against Bridges. He said what he did was contribute money. He did not testify.

Mr. MacInnis: I do not think I have asked him yet if he was a stool pigeon, your Honor. Maybe this is a suggestion from the prosecutor. I asked him if he had called other people stool pigeons and he said he had. He said he had called [3877] the other people who had testified before against Harry Bridges stool pigeons. Now, the question I put to him is this, that yesterday he was asked these questions. He said all he did was contribute financially and that is all he had done. That is the question. Now, the preceding question would show what it was. I see the other man is whispering a suggestion to Mr. Paisley.

Will you read the question, Mr. Reporter.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer that and make an explanation if you wish.

The Witness: Yes, your Honor. No, I did not tell the Jury or the Court yesterday that I had made several speeches in behalf of Harry Bridges, and I really do not want to leave that impression here this morning that I went out campaigning for Harry Bridges. I pointed out to you, sir, I had several local unions under my jurisdiction as regional director for the Auto Workers. The Bridges problem was important, a problem for the CIO, a well known problem to the CIO, and in the course of attending a meeting of a local union and discussing perhaps a problem of a contract or something ilke that, the Bridges proposition would be raised by a member of the local union or maybe an officer of the local union and they would ask my opinion on it, and at that time I would indicate to them that the position of the national CIO was at [3878] that time to support Harry Bridges. I acquainted them with those facts, and I certainly did not attempt to conceal or hide anything from the Court here when I made that statement yesterday, sir. I did contribute financially to the Bridges' campaign. At that time, as I recall it, there were stamps available. I haven't one in my possession now. I didn't rehearse this case or come up prepared to bring proof that I am telling you the truth, but I still believe I have in my possession a stamp that I had purchased in the Bridges' defense fund. I believe I could locate that for you.

Q. Did your wife keep those stamps for you?

A. No, she did not.

Q. You say that independently of these talks that you made under the circumstances just now described, you had no interest or made no inquiries concerning the citizenship of Harry Bridges?

A. I had no occasion to conduct such an investigation, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Hence you did nothing about that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever make any inquiry directly of Harry Bridges about his citizenship?

A. I have heard an explanation once about it from Mr. Bridges. I am rather vague on it, but I could probably put a few pieces of the discussion together.

Q. Was this an oral explanation or one in writing? [3879]

A. This one was oral that I refer to, sir.

Q. Did you ever request him in writing to make a summary of his citizenship status?

A. I can't recall that I ever did. I may have, but I just don't recall it at the present time. If you have a document there with my signature on it, I would be glad to identify it for you.

Q. Actually on July 26, 1940, you sent him a wire from St. Louis, a wire to Bridges here in San Francisco, asking him to send you a letter immediately to George F. Addis at the Jefferson Hotel, St. Louis, Missouri, regarding his citizenship, didn't you?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, would that be material to this inquiry? I do not think it would. I object to it.

The Court: You might identify the wire.

Mr. MacInnis: The answer to it will be, your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: The answer would be hearsay and a self-serving declaration certainly.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: The witness just denied he made any such requests a moment ago.

The Court: I can't recall any denial, Mr. MacInnis. He said there was an oral matter of conversation, as I recall the record. He hadn't any independent recollection of any writing.

The Witness: That is what I testified, your Honor. [3880]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Is that a wire that you sent?

A. Before I could answer that, counsel, I would like to inquire as to whether there was a reply made to this wire by Mr. Bridges, and where he sent the reply, and to what name it was sent, whether it was sent to myself or whether it was sent to George F. Addis.

Q. I am going to come to that in just a moment. I am asking you first, Did you send that wire?

A. I don't recall sending it, sir, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. It bears your name, does it?

A. It does bear my name, yes, sir.

Q. After July 26, 1940, you received a copy of the letter suggested by this wire directed to George F. Addis, didn't you?

A. As I say again, sir, I don't recall. If you have the document there that I may read, it may refresh my memory and I will be able to explain the proposition to you, but I just can't recall that wire at the present time.

Q. I will ask you if you did not get a reply by wire on July 27 before you received the copy of the letter and reply stating——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Wait a minute, your Honor. The document is not in evidence Mr. MacInnis knows he has no business reading a document that is not in evidence. [3881]

Mr. MacInnis: This is cross-examination, your Honor.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Paisley: What if it is cross-examination, your Honor? He can't stand up here and read documents, some telegram that he says Mr. Bridges sent. The matter is wholly immaterial.

The Court: Mr. Paisley, I cannot anticipate the nature of the telegram. The line of inquiry appeals to me thus far as immaterial. I do not know the extent to which it will go, but presently it appears to me to be immaterial cross-examination on an immaterial issue. However, I am not going to rule until the matter is sufficiently fixed that I can direct my attention to it.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): I will ask you if you did not receive a reply to the wire of July 26 on the following day, July 27, saying Bridges is in Los Angeles, a letter to Addis being sent airmail special delivery on Monday from Los Angeles, signed Lou Goldblatt?

A. Where was that wire sent to? Is that indicated on the wire there?

Q. It is sent to you at the Jefferson Hotel, St.

Louis, Missouri, the same place from which your first wire was sent.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I pose a question. Is this cross-examination of the material testimony given by this witness against Mr. Bridges concerning those two meetings? [3882] of the material testimony given by this witness against Mr. Bridges concerning those two meetings?

Mr. MacInnis: I am not confined to that.

Mr. Paisley: Or is it an attempt to impeach or discredit the witness? It does not. It is a side issue.

Mr. MacInnis: If it is immaterial you may have no fear as to what may be brought out.

Mr. Paisley: We shall be here until the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock.

Mr. MacInnis: I thought that was the line of some other prosecutor. Have you adopted it?

Mr. Donohue: The banshee.

The Court: What was that last?

Mr. MacInnis: I thought that was the line of some other prosecutor.

Mr. Paisley: That is right. That is plagiarism. I am accused of plagiarism.

The Court: Do you interpose an objection at this time?

Mr. Paisley: I certainly do, your Honor, to the best of my ability, as forceful as I know how.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor, I have not come to the letter yet, that is the subject of these wires. It is wholly preliminary to show what the subject was.

The Court: May I have the letter? [3883]

Mr. MacInnis: Of course (handing document to Court). A copy of which was sent to this man.

The Court: I merely asked for the letter so we may facilitate this earlier inquiry. We might facilitate it by my looking at the letter. [3883-A]

(Letter handed to Court through Clerk.)

Mr. MacInnis: I might suggest that we show the Judge the wires, too, so that he can correlate the meaning of it.

(Telegrams handed to Court through Clerk.)

The Court: The letter is some five pages of full text. I can not read it in its full content. It appears to be directed to Mr. George Addes, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. MacInnis: A letter requested by this man, who is the witness.

The Court: I can not see presently that it would be material to any examination conducted on direct or any material matter that may be approached on cross-examination. You may mark it for identification, if you wish.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, first, I want to ask the witness if he recognizes this copy of the letter as called for by his wire.

The Court: The letter is directed to Mr. George Addes.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: Yes, you might examine it.

(Letter handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

Mr. Paisley: Now, Your Honor, are we going to sit here while this witness reads five pages of what Your Honor has already ruled is immaterial?

The Court: Well, I think the witness——

Mr. Paisley: He is reading it, he is sitting there [3884] reading it.

The Court: The witness might glance at it and determine whether or not he can identify the letter.

The Witness: Just glancing at it, Your Honor, I would have to indicate to you that I can not identify the letter.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, now, having seen these two wires, do you now recall that you sent the first of these wires to Harry Bridges?

A. I am sorry, sir, but I do not recall sending those wires. I may tell you, it may throw a little light on the subject,——

Q. No, I am not interested in anything else.

A. O. K.

Q. I want to know if you can recall whether you sent this wire or not.

A. I believe I answered no to that, sir.

Q. Can you recall whether you received a reply to the wire? A. I can't recall that, sir.

Q. And don't you recall that you received a copy of the letter from Harry Bridges to Mr. George Addes?

A. That possibly could be, but I don't recall it.

Q. Now, you have no recollection on that?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. No, sir. There would be no need of my attempting to evade the issue. If I remembered it, I would be honest and tell you about it.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, we will ask these documents be received [3885] and marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered, as one exhibit for identification.

(Whereupon two wires and the letter referred to were marked Defendant's Exhibit H-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, did you attend the State CIO convention in 1941?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that held?

A. I believe, if my memory serves me correctly, that convention was held in Oakland, I believe.

Q. Were you there through all the proceedings?

A. Most all of the proceedings.

Q. That convention covered about three days, did it?

A. Yes, sir. I remember a situation developed there that refreshes my mind on that particular convention.

Q. Now, you remember the opening of the convention, I suppose?

A. The opening remarks, I don't recall offhand, no, sir.

Q. Do you remember that a man named Ray Heide of the Alameda County Industrial Union Council called the convention to order?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. I object to that question, Your Honor, on the ground that Mr. MacInnis is testifying. He says, "Do you remember that a certain set of facts existed?" I object to it on that ground. I object to it on the further ground that it is not proper cross-examination, not in cross of anything brought out on direct. I didn't ask him anything [3886] about the CIO convention in 1941. He testified about meeting with Mr. Bridges here in 1940 in a house out here on the Sunset Strip or section or whatever it is. For that reason, for those reasons I object.

The Court: Overruled.

A. That would be proper procedure for opening the State CIO conventions. If they were held in Oakland or San Francisco, the local officials of the CIO Councils usually open them and I assume that that would be correct under the circumstances there in Oakland.

Q. Well, you remember that the first speech was made by Father Phillips of St. Marys Parish of Oakland, don't you?

A. I wouldn't be able to identify the name, but again, I would indicate to you that that is the procedure of opening our state conventions, to have representatives of the clergy present to give the ovations.

Q. And then Mayor Slavich of Oakland spoke and then Rabbi Saul White spoke. Do you remember that?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. No, I wouldn't be able to remember just exactly who spoke. I attended so many conventions it would be hard for me to keep track of them all, sir.

Q. That was the first day, October 3rd. Now, do you remember that the second day, Saturday morning, Saturday afternoon, the 4th day of October of 1941, you were present at a convention and you had a discussion with several of the other delegates [3887] concerning Harry Bridges? Do you remember that?

A. That could be likely, very likely, but I don't recall as to whether it was exactly on Saturday or it was exactly that date.

Q. Well, do you remember a man named John Mitchell, a member of the ILWU?

A. I remember the ILWU.

Q. And do you remember a man named Brown from the United Rubber Workers?

A. No, I am sorry, I can't identify Mitchell or Brown from United Rubber Workers.

Q. Did you know a man named Oliver from the Los Angeles Newspaper Guild?

A. That name is familiar, and I don't recall having any discussion with a Mr. Oliver at Oakland, though. I will be honest with you about that.

Q. Did you know a man named Jim Smith from the S.W.O.C.?

A. Yes, I believe I did know a Mr. Smith representing that organization. I believe he was from Alameda or Oakland, if I recall correctly.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. What is the S.W.O.C.?

A. Steel Workers Organization Committee.

Q Well, don't you remember that on that Saturday, you, Jim Smith, John Mitchell, Delegate Brown of the United Rubber Workers and Oliver from the Los Angeles Newspaper Guild had a [3888] conversation about Harry Bridges?

A I don't remember, sir. I said it could be possible.

Q. Now, Delegate Brown of the United Rubber Workers—and maybe this will refresh your memory; he was a Negro. Do you remember that?

A. No, that doesn't help refresh my memory any, sir.

Q. Well, does this refresh your memory, that the conversation began something like this, that Delegate Brown said that Negro labor had received the decision of Judge Sears against Harry Bridges in 1941 with great concern, because prior to Bridges' leadership the Negro labor was allowed to work on the docks only as stool pigeons and scabs and that they looked upon Harry Bridges as one of the greatest benefactors of the Negro race since John Brown; do you remember that?

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. I object, if Your Honor pleases.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this is a conversation in which this man participated. Now, therefore we have had the prosecutor telling Your Honor in the face of an objection from the defense that it was fundamental that this man could testify as to any conversation had in the presence of Harry Bridges. Now, he told Your Honor that flatly. Now we have a conversation of this man on the floor of the convention concerning Harry Bridges with a group of other delegates. [3889]

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, I didn't object to these preliminary questions, thinking that he might possibly be leading up to asking the witness, "Didn't your make a statement at this meeting in 1941 contrary to what you testified under oath here in some material respect?" But it is obvious that what he is trying to do is read some declarations by persons who were in sympathy with Bridges at this particular meeting and to get it before the jury,—these other deportation proceedings. That is obviously what he is trying to do.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, now, Mr. Michener, on that day, Saturday, the 4th day of October of 1941, you said this: "I don't believe that the convention should be completely adjourned until it has heard the voice of the Auto Workers on the matter before it. We have here today the largest delegation ever assembled to a state convention, and we did not do this by ourselves, but by cooperative action on the part of the state CIO and Director Bridges. Whenever we got into difficulties, we always got help and consultation from Bridges. The record speaks for itself, and that record is conclusive. The fundamental principle, an injury to one is an injury to all, particularly applies to the case of Harry Bridges. If we want to keep democracy in America, let us keep Harry Bridges with us."

Did you say that?

Mr. Paisley: Just a moment. I object to that, if Your [3890] Honor please. It is a statement——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you show the witness this page, please?

(Handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Would you look at part of it marked in red, bearing your name, as a quotation from yourself? Those are the minutes from the convention itself.

(Examined by the witness.)

Mr. Paisley: May I see it, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, you can look at the same portion there.

(Examined by Mr. Paisley.)

Mr. Paisley: Well, that is just what you read, isn't it? That is exactly what you read here?

Mr. MacInnis: Of course. You don't think I read it falsely, do you?

Mr. Paisley: No, I just asked you, sir, if that is what you read. Now, he has shown the witness, Your Honor, what he read here in the presence of the jury.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, of course.

Mr. Paisley: And Your Honor sustained an objection to it. I wanted to keep the record straight.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, were you shown correctly a summary of what you said on that occasion?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor has ruled on this.

The Court: The objection is sustained, Mr. MacInnis. [3891]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Witness, in 1942 were you appointed to do work for the Bridges Defense Committee in Southern California?

A. That could have been possible that I loaned my name to that committee. I have done that quite often in my career as a labor leader, attached my name to a Bridges' Defense Committee. Most of the popular CIO people at that time served on a committee in some capacity or other.

Q. Well, I don't mean merely served upon a committee. Did you promise to handle the Bridges case in the Auto and Aircraft locals in August of 1942?

A. I don't know whether I promised to or not. Again I will repeat to you exactly what I have told you earlier today, however, that on several occasions I spoke about the Bridges case in front of my local union; and I repeat that again that that might have been possible and was possible in '42, sir.

Q. Well, wasn't that pursuant to an appointment of you by the Bridges' Defense Committee to take over that kind of work?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. No. I wouldn't say that I was appointed to take over that type of work. If I served on a Bridges' Defense Committee, I served mainly for loaning my name to the committee, sir. Used—as a representative on the committee.

Q. Now, were you given certain literature in bulk which you handed to subordinates to distribute among the members of your locals, pertaining to Harry Bridges? [3892]

A. Yes, at various times in our office of the United Auto Workers there we had available several leaflets regarding the Bridges case and which was made available to local unions if they desired information on the Bridges case. We had the pamphlets and leaflets there available for them.

Q. And you cooperated in the passing out of these pamphlets whenever they were desired?

Mr. Paisley: I object, if Your Honor please, on the ground it is immaterial and irrelevant, not proper cross-examination; there is nothing inconsistent with his doing that and his testimony, Your Honor.

The Court: The witness has already testified to that subject.

Mr. Paisley: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, among those pamphlets, I suppose, was a reprint of an article in Liberty magazine by John B. Hughes entitled "Can We Afford to Deport Harry Bridges?" and the article pointing out that he was a fine man and a tribute to the labor movement in America? Remember that?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor; are we going to let him read from magazines?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, the question is whether he passed out such pamphlets, Your Honor.

Mr. Paisley: Well, what if he did?

The Court: Objection sustained. [3893]

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I am going to ask if Mr. Mitchell will display this pamphlet to the witness.

Mr. Paisley: Well, I object to taking up the time, Your Honor. It is perfectly obvious that it is incompetent testimony.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, if this witness by adoption, by passing out to other people, the members of the rank and file of his union, a document containing statements of others——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, the witness has testified two or three times that he cooperated with Mr. Bridges, that he undertook to carry on a program looking toward some benefactions to Mr. Bridges.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: Now, that suffices.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I think this, Your Honor. The man's credibility is at stake here, and if he was deceiving members of his own union when he did that, why, we have a right to present that for the record, so that his credibility may be properly weighed in this case.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Now we ask that the pamphlet entitled "Can We Afford to Deport Harry Bridges?" a reprint from Liberty magazine of September 19, 1942, be marked.

The Court: I would suggest holding it a little higher so all the jurors can see it, Mr. MacInnis. [394]

Mr. MacInnis: I would be glad to do that.

The Court: All right. It may be marked for identification.

(Thereupon magazine article, "Can We Afford to Deport Harry Bridges?" was marked Defendant's Exhibit I-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Witness, did you sign a wire to the President of the United States asking him to set aside the deportation proceeding against Harry Bridges?

Mr. Paisley: Objected to Your Honor, on the ground that it is not inconsistent with his testimony on direct examination. He said he was a member of the Communist Party, that he concealed his own membership, that he sat in this Communist Party meeting with Bridges, and that he was following the party line of concealing membership of other Communists and all such matter as that. Now, this isn't inconsistent with that testimony at all. It is right in line with it, Your Honor. Naturally he would have joined in these petitions to the Great Father in Washington. They come in in wagonloads, trainloads. [3895]

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: I do not think we should speak disrespectfully of the late President, your Honor, even in objection by the prosecutor. A man cannot take the stand and say, "Oh, previously in my life I was a terrible liar. I tried to deceive the people I did business with," and then by that balk any attempts to show how deceitful he was. He can't possibly do that. Now, if this man signed a wire, we have a right to know what it was, and if it concerned the deportation of Harry Bridges, and if it said things directly contrary to his present assertions here, we have the right to bring those out.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor is sustaining that objection without even seeing the wire, whose contents are directly opposite to what this witness has said concerning Harry Bridges.

Mr. Paisley: Are you representing to his Honor that there is something in that paper there which this witness sent to the President contrary to what he has testified about Harry Bridges being a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. MacInnis: I certainly do. He speaks of the previous prosecution as being outrageous, for one thing. He says that Attorney General Biddle's decision to deport Harry Bridges is outrageous. He says that Harry Bridges was innocent of the charge. Do you mean to say that if this man signed a wire saying Bridges was innocent, that that cannot be brought into evidence? [2896]

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, it appears to me to be purposeless on my part to sustain an objection or interpose an objection because no matter what ruling I make you attempt to read to the Court and to the witness the subject matter of documents that have not been admitted in evidence. Now, we realize that the rule is elementary that until the document is in evidence you cannot read it to the jury. I am obliged to exercise some supervision over this trial.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to be heard on this matter.

The Court: The jury understands it is my duty and province exclusively to rule on these matters with respect to the relevancy or lack of relevancy, and until and unless a matter is introduced in evidence, the subject of the letter or document may not be offered to the jury. I have stated to you, Mr. MacInnis, in the past, and I restate now, that reference to the contents of documents, before the same are admitted in evidence, is not proper. Again I say the same to you.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, I wish you would reserve judgment on the propriety of these until after the noon recess.

The Court: I will. I will reserve the ruling.

Mr. Hallinan: I have Wigmore on Evidence squarely on it, in which he says that the question is, Does the document or the previous document contain some thought or some idea inconsistent with the general tenor of the witness' testimony? Now, not exactly and squarely contradicting it, but even where [3897] that matter is only a matter of an expression of opinion. If the jury or the Court can reasonably construe that as being contrary to his general expression, it is admissible as impeachment.

The Court: We will take it up at the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: May we have the recess now? I would like to take this matter up because it is of great importance, because I think we can show your Honor he says things exactly opposite to the general tenor of his testimony here.

The Court: All right. We will take the morning recess. Ladies and gentlemen, the same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon the jury was excused.)

Mr. Hallinan: Judge, here is the citation or part of the citation, though I have the book at the ILWU. This is a short compendium taken directly out of 3 Wigmore on Evidence, Third Edition, Section 1041, and it is an answer to legal inquiry as to whether expressions of opinion, such as that a person is innocent or he was not to blame or something of that kind, can be introduced or must be admissible in evidence as contradictory of direct statements of fact which could be reasonably construed as contrary to that. In other words, a situation such as this: A man testifies that another man apparently deliberately shot. But he has said to somebody else, [3898] "The defendant was justified," or "I don't believe he can be reasonably found guilty," or something of that kind. Now, should that be admissible? Here is the answer that is given in the compendium.

The Court: Those are spontaneous statements made at or about the time.

Mr. Hallinan: No, I mean at any time, at any time, not about the time. But let's say years apart from the inquiry. Here is the solution.

Mr. Paisley: There is no question about that.

Mr. Hallinan: Let me read this off. It won't take a minute.

Mr. Paisley: All right.

Mr. Hallinan (reading):

> "There is only one proper inquiry, 'Is there within the broad statement of anyone on the general question some implied assertion of fact inconsistent with the assertion made on the stand'?"

Wigmore said that is the inquiry: "Is there within the broad statement of opinion on the general question some implied assertion of fact inconsistent with the assertion made on the stand?"

> "If there is, it ought to be received whether or not it is clothed in or associated with an expression of opinion." [3899]

Where a person says, as in one of these telegrams, where Mr. Bridges is accused in the first deportation hearing of one thing and only one thing, and that is membership in or affiliation with the Communist Party, and a man says that he is innocent of that charge, then that opinion contains within it an implied assertion that he is not a Communist or is not affiliated with the Communist Party. Now, this man gets on the witness stand and claims that he is both of those things, or at least one of them. He at least claims that he was affiliated with the Communist Party. And that statement, and the nature of the inquiry, that he was innocent of that charge, is a matter that the jury should be allowed to consider as bearing upon the credibility of this man and whether he has contradicted himself by past statements, and I think, your Honor, that such statements as Mr. MacInnis tendered certainly come within this inquiry: "Is there within the particular statement of opinion on the general question some implied assertion of fact inconsistent with the assertion made on the stand?"

Now, we have a great many matters of that kind, and this is of great importance to the defense, your Honor. Here we have witnesses who take the stand and testify Mr. Bridges was a Communist. We have written statements, documents distributed by them and signed by them, in which they say that the previous prosecutions of Mr. Bridges were unwarranted persecutions, that he was innocent of the them were framing him—matters of that kind—and charge as made, that [3900] the officers who brought can it possibly be held that those are not inconsistent with the present statements of those same witnesses? I submit, your Honor, they are admissible in evidence. And I submit this also, if the Court please, that where there is any doubt or where it is open to a reasonable doubt, that that doubt should be resolved in favor of the defendant and the jury should be entitled to pass upon it, that the Court should not reserve to itself the sole judgment upon whether or not it constitutes contradictory statements.

Mr. Paisley: This statement, if your Honor please—Is this it, Mr. MacInnis? I note the date of the first is 1943.

The Court: I should like to ask Mr. MacInnis for the documents.

Mr. Paisley: I recognized it, your Honor. He has shown it to me.

Mr. MacInnis: I thought you wanted to see it, Judge.

The Court: No.

Mr. Paisley: The date of it is 1943. When I arose to object, your Honor, it was on the ground that ~~to be~~ admissible there would have to be some statement made by the witness contrary to what he testified under oath here. For instance, if he had said that Mr. Bridges is not a Communist and has never been a Communist, I think that would be admissible. Then in [3901] the arguments the Government would take the position, certainly he made the statement. That was in line with the Communist Party line at that time. He would not have been a good Communist if he had not tried to conceal Mr. Bridges' membership in the Communist Party as well as his own membership, and so on. If such statements as that are in the paper, I have no objection to them.

The Court: Why not examine the paper?

Mr. Paisley: He does not tender things to us.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, we are not to be placed in the position of letting the prosecution pass upon our evidence before we offer it.

The Court: The difficulty at times has been that documents have been handed to the Court containing five, six or seven pages, wherein there may be couched one pertinent sentence or the like and the balance of the matter immaterial.

Mr. MacInnis: That is true, and if a part of the matter is admissible, of course the whole thing goes in. Here is a sentence out of this wire——

The Court: May I see this?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, I will mark in red the paragraph which obviously contradicts in essence the story which this witness has given here.

The Court: The paragraph that you point out to the Court has to do with prior proceedings. [3902]

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: It has to do with a document wherein many associates of Mr. Bridges, union associates, I assume, cosigned the letter directed to the President, wherein they urged the President to cancel the warrant of arrest. It appears that Mr. Michener's name is embraced in and with many others. The subject matter of the paragraph that you point out to me, paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, has to do with prior proceedings, comment upon witnesses in prior proceedings, joint comment at least by all of these persons, and I cannot see the materiality in the present proceeding nor can I see any matter of internal inconsistencies and thought process between what the witness may now testify to and what he may have engaged in at that time. This witness admits on the stand that, 1, he was a good Communist, that he did everything to propitiate his colleagues, that he delivered literature, that he made speeches, that he contributed funds. That stands as admitted. We might assume as the night follows the day that a person situated as Michener then was would become vocal with respect to asserted, attempted deportation proceedings against Mr. Bridges. I cannot see, Mr. MacInnis, how this Court would be justified in undertaking to assimilate an avalanche of testimony that might be at hand. You gentlemen may have letter upon letter, pamphlet upon pamphlet, wherein this witness stated, either individually or collectively, that [3903] these prior proceedings were, as they say here, outrageous, or characterize it in another fashion. But I cannot see how that would aid or assist this jury in determining the matter of credibility in and with regard to his present testimony. This jury knows now apparently, as I know from the admission made by the witness, that he did sustain the objectives of Mr. Bridges, whatever they may have been, concerning the deportation matters; that he did everything that a union official might then have done, and there is apparently nothing inconsistent with any statement he made on the stand, either expressly or by necessary implication, to admit in evidence and to deluge this Court and jury with pamphlet upon pamphlet, wire upon wire, Liberty Magazine articles upon magazine articles, I say would be to permit this tribunal to become a sounding board for all and singular of the prior proceedings.

I indicated at the outset, Mr. Hallinan, I would not permit it. I thought it was irregular. I now reaffirm my ruling.

Mr. Hallinan: Might I say this, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Hallinan: It is our position that this man has distributed these pamphlets and made these criticisms of the prior proceedings; that the statements made in the pamphlets are true, and that the criticisms made of the prior proceedings are justified, and that this man did not distribute them because [3904] he was not a good Communist, as you put it, but because it was the truth.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, but we do not have to accept his statement.

The Court: I say to you, Mr. Hallinan, the underlying fallacy is your initial premise in your offer. Your initial premise presumes to undertake his passing upon the prior proceedings. We are not undertaking to pass upon the prior proceedings. None of the witnesses thus far——

Mr. Hallinan: But the question is precisely the same on each proceeding, Judge. If the questions in the prior proceedings were not the identical question of fact that he is testifying about here, that would be a perfectly valid criticism of it. But here these people get up having—your Honor suggests avalanches—they have literally indulged in avalanches of statements that Harry Bridges was innocent of the charge as brought against him by the Government, to wit, the precise and exact thing that they are testifying here.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I want to correct the record. At times the record becomes lengthy and it is difficult to correct it later. I do not undertake now to say the defense has an avalanche of testimony in that respect. I say it may be presumed.

Mr. Hallinan: We have. [3905]

The Court: It may be presumed.

Mr. Hallinan: We have an avalanche of it.

The Court: We recognize in these matters, presently at least, the town is being deluged with all sorts of literature, all sorts of comment.

Mr. Hallinan: That is true.

The Court: Pamphlets from your viewpoint. But I cannot conceive of how a court of law would undertake to admit all of that material in a proceeding of this character, for the very obvious reason that we would be trying this case by circulars and pamphlets and undisclosed statements and disclosed statements, wherein the authors might not be subjected to cross-examination.

Mr. Hallinan: Might I suggest this, your Honor: If the prosecution had bales of pamphlets in which Mr. Bridges was praising the Communist Party or asserting the propriety of it, or following what they call the Communit Party line, they would be admitted quickly enough. They would have them in by the truckload, and there wouldn't be any criticism about it, that they were too numerous to deluge the court with them. That has happened in cases where the prosecution brings in bales and bales of literature and reads them for weeks, months and years, if necessary, to a jury. The mere fact that we have a great number of them, and that propriety might dictate that they be presented to the witness whom they contradict, is no reason for rejecting them. The fact that the [3906] proof may be enormous——

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I am ruling on this precise matter. I sustain the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, may I say this to you?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: You remarked a moment ago that the fallacy in the reasoning that we proffered is in the original premise, that the criticism in that telegram signed by the witness Michener criticizes a prior proceeding, and your Honor went on to say that no witness had testified here concerning that prior proceeding. Well, now, here is where the fallacy may be, I respectfully say: The first witness produced by the prosecution in this case was a man named Lloyd Garner, and on cross-examination he told the Court and jury that the issue in the prior proceedings was the identical issue that now confronts this Court. He told the Court and jury that he had knowledge as an immigration officer that in 1939 as well as in 1941, the issue was, Was Harry Bridges a member of the Communist Party?

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, this paragraph, in part at least, requests the President to exercise his prerogatives: "You have the power to overrule the Attorney General," and so forth. Now, I cannot see how that would affect the credibility of this witness in this proceeding with respect to his testimony and his categorical testimony that he joined Mr. [3907] Bridges on these occasions. I read the record last evening. I covered four or five transcripts. I retraced my steps a little bit. Sometimes we have to do that. And I reviewed the testimony of several witnesses, and I am satisfied my ruling in this instance is correct. I am satisfied that no prejudice will result to the defendant Mr. Bridges in connection with it. I am satisfied that the ruling is fair to the defense and to Mr. Bridges and to all the co-defendants, and I am further satisfied that I am not foreclosing from this jury any credible evidence that might affect the credibility of this man. I have allowed latitude to a point of perhaps exhaustion in connection with other witnesses. [3908]

Mr. MacInnis: What do you mean by exhaustion, Judge?

The Court: Well, now, Mr. MacInnis, late yesterday afternoon we had our little colloquy. I do not intend to be cross-examined by you.

Mr. MacInnis: I am not attempting to cross-examine you.

The Court: And I shall make my statements freely, as I intend to make them, without any aid or assistance on your part.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, for the record, if the Court please, in respect of the ruling that you have just now made, we offer to prove that by the question put to the witness and by the presentation of the document which was a telegram signed by him and addressed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt at Washington, that the witness made a comment concerning deportation proceedings of 1941, then being brought against Harry Bridges. We offer to show and we offer to prove that there is already in this record evidence that the issue in that proceeding was almost precisely the issue in this case, namely, that Harry Bridges was accused in that proceeding of having been a member of the Communist Party and that that was the issue of fact upon which Judge Sears had made a finding adversely to Harry Bridges; that his membership in the Communist Party was precisely the issue upon which this witness purported to give testimony concerning two meetings which he says he attended with Harry Bridges, and that in 1943, following the events to which he gave testimony here, the witness Michener said, among [3909] other things, in a telegram to the President, as follows:

> "Attorney General Biddle, who made the outrageous decision to deport Harry Bridges after his own Board of Immigration Appeals reached a conclusion unanimously that he was innocent of the flimsy charges against him, exercises his power only by your suffrance. That you have the power to overrule the Attorney General or any other administrative officer appointed by you is well established by precedent, as well as by numerous decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States."

And the telegram consists of approximately ten paragraphs asking the President of the United States upon reasons stated in it to set aside the warrant of arrest and deportation against Harry Bridges.

The Court: You may mark them for identification, Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. MacInnis: We ask that the——

The Court: Do you have any other documents that you desire to submit for identification in aid of the offer or in support of the offer? If you have, you may submit them to Mr. Mitchell and they will be marked for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, we would prefer to do those things as they come up, Your Honor.

The Court: All right. We will take the recess.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Clerk: The matter is marked Defendant's J-1 for [3910] identification.

(Thereupon communication referred to, telegram addressed to President Roosevelt, was marked Defendant's Exhibit J-1 for identification.)

(Recess.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, in explanation of some of the speeches that you made defending Harry Bridges in 1940, '41, '42, as the case may have been, you state today that it was national CIO policy then to defend Harry Bridges, is that correct?

A. That was correct. That was national CIO policy and also the policy of the party.

Q. By the party, you mean the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, the National CIO itself was defending Harry Bridges in each of the two previous cases brought against him?

A. I don't recall that they had their attorneys representing Mr. Bridges, but as far as giving him support, they were. I don't believe the CIO furnished him legal counsel in his previous cases.

Q. So that when you called the witnesses in the previous Bridges cases liars and stool pigeons, you were following national CIO policy, were you?

A. No, I was following the Communist Party line, sir.

Q. I thought you said those two policies were

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

the same during the previous Bridges cases. [3911]

A. I don't recall of ever hearing of any officials of the CIO that were not members of the Communist Party refer to the witnesses as stool pigeons, et cetera.

Q. Why, you heard people such as Philip Murray accuse the government officials of fomenting a frameup against Harry Bridges, didn't you?

A. Words to that effect. I didn't hear the phraseology "stool pigeon" used.

Q. Yes. And Philip Murray who then called the Government's case against Bridges a frameup was never a member of the Communist Party, was he?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, that would be hearsay, anything that Mr. Murray might have said, and it is certainly not proper cross-examination of this witness. I object to it.

Mr. MacInnis: It goes to his explanation, Your Honor.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, actually, now, many persons in the labor movement who were not members of the Communist Party signed letters denouncing the Bridges prosecution, didn't they?

Mr. Paisley: Same objection, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): In fact, as you mentioned yesterday, Reuther himself, Walter Reuther.

the president of the Auto Union, defended Harry Bridges before?

Mr. Paisley: Now, I must go a little further than object, [3912] Your Honor, and suggest that counsel is obviously trying to circuit Your Honor's ruling. In fact, he is ignoring it.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): But now you have been informed that since that time and in the years 1949 and the present year 1950, the Reuther brothers want Bridges out of the CIO?

Mr. Paisley: Well, Your Honor, I object to that. Counsel must have heard Your Honor's rule.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, let me ask you this, Mr. Michener. You say you were following the Communist Party line, or the CIO line, as the case may be, when you defended Harry Bridges before. You now affirm that the witnesses who call Harry Bridges a Communist are not liars and stool pigeons, is that the case?

A. Counsel, I am not quite clear on your question. Would you repeat that again, please?

Q. Well, I will rephrase it this way. What line are you following now, that Kaiser, Kidder and Kessler are lying?

Mr. Paisley: Oh, Your Honor, I object to that as frivolous and argumentative.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Do you know a man named Dr. Ernest Cohen?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

A. I believe I do, sir. I do know a doctor by that name. [3913]

Q. He is a psychiatrist in Beverly Hills, isn't he? A. That's correct, sir.

Q. And he has treated you for mental illness in 1944, hasn't he?

Mr. Paisley: Oh, Your Honor,——

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, it is well founded that that type of question can be asked of a witness, particularly when he admits it.

Q. Well, now, coming back to the matter which engaged us last evening at the close of the Court's day, when you made application to be a member of the War Labor Board, you discussed with your second wife the answers that you should give to some questions appearing on the form that was submitted to you, didn't you?

A. I didn't indicate that to you yesterday, sir, in the testimony. You indicated to me that you had talked to someone that had talked to me and I didn't know who you had the opportunity of discussing the problem with, sir.

Q. Did you discuss the matter with your second wife?

A. I don't recall discussing the particular matter you refer to with my second wife.

Q. Would you say that you didn't?

A. I wouldn't say that I did, or I wouldn't say that I hadn't or had. [3914]

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Well, now, another question. Now, let me see if this refreshes your memory. Another question that you were compelled to answer under oath was this: "Have you ever been convicted of any crime——"

Mr. Paisley: Now, wait a minute. Your Honor, he is testifying; he is telling the Court and the jury and the witness that he signed some application under oath. The witness has said he did not. Now he says, "Another one that you signed——."

Mr. MacInnis: No, the witness says he thinks he did sign some statement under oath.

Mr. Paisley: I didn't hear him so testify. I object.

The Court: Reframe the question.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, let me ask you this now. Does this refresh your memory, that one of the questions you were compelled to answer under oath in the application to be made a member of the Regional War Labor Board was this, "Have you ever been convicted of any crime involving a fine of more than $25?"

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, he is testifying as to what was in a blank. Doesn't even have the blank now. He says it, he is asserting it, he is not asking the question. He is asserting a fact.

The Court: The form is not before the Court. Request was made for it. I sustain the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, Your Honor, that is a question [3915] that has been repeated over the years, all of the forms——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: I am not familiar with the form that this man signed. It isn't before the Court, and I sustain the objection.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Well, let me ask you this then: In applying for a post with the War Labor Board you lied under oath about your previous convictions of crime, didn't you?

A. I did not, sir.

Q. You didn't reply in the negative?

A. I told you yesterday, I will repeat again, sir, that I have no recollection of signing such a document as you refer to.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, do I understand that the document is not now produced in court by the Government?

Mr. Donohue: Oh, if Your Honor pleases, may I be heard on that subject?

The Court: Yes, you may.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't see how he can, Your Honor. He said last night he didn't know what a War Labor Board was.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. Donohue: And I didn't know last night what it was because I wasn't in a position at the time of the war to know what the War Labor Board was. I say this to Your Honor, from what I have been able to learn. We have wired Washington, the Bureau of Immigration, asking them to consult with the national archives, my information on that point being that upon the dissolution of the War Labor Board such parts of the records as they deemed fit [3916] would be deposited in the national archives building in Washington. Now, obviously, between then and now, if there ever was such a form filled out by this witness, we couldn't have it here this morning. As soon as I get a reply from Washington as to what the result of the inquiry is, I shall call it to Your Honor's attention.

The Court: Thank you.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, then, I take it, Your Honor, that when that search is complete, we may recall this witness for further question?

Mr. Paisley: If that be necessary.

The Court: If the occasion arise and the necessity exists.

Mr. MacInnis: We have no further questions at this time.

The Court: Any further questions of this witness?

Mr. Paisley: I think I have one or two here, or two or three here, Your Honor. I made some notes as we went along.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Paisley:

Q. Mr. Michener, in your cross-examination you gave the names of a number of persons in your labor union down in Los Angeles, and officials of the Ford plant whom you told that you were coming up here to testify. Is it a fact that you have been fighting Communism in your local union down there since 1945?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Judge. That is absolutely [3917] suggestive. That question is leading, suggestive, gives the answer.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Well, have you taken any part in your labor organization on the question of Communism since 1945?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, Your Honor, whether he did or did not take such a part, or whether there is such a program, would have nothing to with the issues in this case or with the verity of the testimony that he has given here. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes, I have taken a very active part in fighting the Communist Party since September of 1945.

Q. You were asked about your second wife, Mr. Michener, and I believe you testified that she also was a member of the Communist Party.

A. I did, sir.

Q. And you were divorced from her?

A. I was, sir.

Q. Did the question of Communism have anything to do with the divorce?

A. Indirectly, sir, it did.

Q. In what respect?

A. Well,——

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I hardly think that a gratuitous [3918] remark at this time from this man as to the cause of breakup of his second marriage would throw any light on the issues in this case. it could only serve, I suppose, to reflect upon some person who is not before the Court. It would have nothing to do with his present testimony, it wouldn't throw any light one way or the other. I suppose his willingness to give such a remark would pass some reflection upon his credibility alone, but the question is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: With respect to your observation that his willingness to testify on that subject might affect his credibility, of course I instruct the jury to disregard the remark. I can not see, however, Mr. Paisley, that that would be proper redirect examination on any subject. The only possible subject upon which it might bear is the alleged conversation suggested by Mr. MacInnis as to the form or content of a presumed document which is not before the Court.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Your second wife was the one who kept these Communist Party cards, as I understand it?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now Your Honor, he has already given three different pieces of testimony on that subject, and I don't think that he can be led or given suggested answers.

The Court: I will allow him to answer.

A. Yes, she did keep the card. [3919]

Q. Did she oppose your withdrawal from the

A. No, I didn't discuss that matter with her, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

Q. Do you know whether or not she is still a member of the Party?

A. To the best of my knowledge she is.

Q. (By the Court): What is your wife's name?

A. My wife's name is Mary Michener.

Q. Your second wife? A. Mary Michener.

Q. Is she known as Mary Michener at the present time?

A. She perhaps would be known as Mary Hoff or Mary Benley.

Q. H-o-f-f? A. Yes, H-o-f-f.

Q. And Benley? A. B-e-n-l-e-y.

Q. Mary Benley?

A. That was her maiden name.

Q. What is the name Mary Hoff?

A. She was married before, and the first time she was married to a man by the name of Hoff, H-o-f-f. I don't recall his first name.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Where was the CIO convention in 1941, State convention, held?

Mr. MacInnis: That was asked and answered this morning.

The Court: That was the Oakland [3920] convention.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: There is no question about that.

Mr. Paisley: No question about it, your Honor, but from time to time we wish to reemphasize something. The objection is made that it is repetitious. It is repetition, but I am just leading to another question.

The Court: All right. Will you go into the subject matter?

Mr. Paisley: How is that?

The Court: Will you go into the subject matter that you want to go into?

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): The meeting out here in the Sunset section was in 1940, is that right?

A. That is correct, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, your Honor, he wants to go over the same testimony again with some attempt to add new facts or embellish them.

The Court: I assume that is preliminary to some other matter.

Mr. Paisley: That is what it is.

Q. (By the Court): It was in 1940, was it?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Come to the next question.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): About what time of the year?

A. As I say, it was in late '40. I couldn't exactly tell you [3921] the exact time.

Mr. Paisley: Mark that as an exhibit first.

Mr. MacInnis: I am sorry, I didn't hear what you said.

Mr. Paisley: I asked the clerk to mark this card as an exhibit.

The Court: What is the nature of the card?

Mr. Paisley: This is a hotel registration card at the Shaw Hotel in August of 1940, if your Honor please.

The Court: Mark it for identification.

(The registration card was marked U. S. Exhibit 9 for identification.)

Mr. Paisley: Will you show it to the witness.

Q. I show you Government Exhibit No. 9 for identification, Mr. Michener. Do you recognize it? Can you identify it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it?

A. That is a card similar to the one handed to me yesterday here, a registration at the Shaw Hotel with my signature on it, L. H. Michener, and my address, 212 West 3rd Street, Los Angeles, California.

Q. Did you sign it?

The Court: What is the source of that card? Where was it obtained?

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, the immigration officers investigating at the Shaw Hotel located that card. Realizing [3922] the importance of it, they asked the hotel to keep it in a safe place, and the hotel accordingly placed it in their safe. Now, I take it probably Mr. MacInnis, when they were investigating to find out whether there were registration cards there, found the one which they found and did not know that this one was in their possession. That is quite probable. I imagine that is what happened. But we have it here. We got it back from the hotel since yesterday.

The Court: This is a record kept in the regular course of business of the hotel?

Mr. Paisley: Yes, sir. We have an employee of the hotel here, if there is any technical objection made to his disability to identify it.

The Court: There is an employee in court?

Mr. Paisley: Oh, yes. I do not know whether she is in the courtroom. She is available.

Q. That is your signature, is it?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you register at that hotel on that date?

A. I believe I must have. That is my signature on there.

Q. Do you recall that you stayed at the Shaw Hotel on that occasion?

A. I do. I stayed there approximately on that occasion, I am sure.

Mr. Paisley: I would like to offer the card in evidence. [3923]

The Court: Do you have an objection, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: With the ingenuous explanation that has been offered to the concealing of this card in the hotel safe, I certainly do not question its validity. It has the Hotel Shaw upon it. I may have some questions upon it.

The Court: I would rather not have any misunderstanding about it hereafter. If you desire I will call in the clerk or the person who has charge of that document.

Mr. MacInnis: I make no objection to the validity of the card.

The Court: Do you have any objection to the statement made by Mr. Paisley concerning the fact that the document or card was in the safe or safe deposit box of the hotel?

Mr. Paisley: I am told by the hotel people,——

The Court: Bring the man in rather than have any statement made by the Court——

Mr. MacInnis: I assume that is what he did.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, do you question my veracity?

The Court: Do I?

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, I will defend him on that. We will accept his word.

Mr. Paisley: Mr. MacInnis gets up here in front of the jury and suggests that I made some ingenuous statement about the concealment of the card.

The Court: No, Mr. Paisley, this case—— [3924]

Mr. MacInnis: "Ingenuous" is complimentary; it should have been "ingenious."

The Court: Mr. Paisley, I have not reflected on your integrity at any stage of the proceeding, and what I had to say was in the interest of what I regard as an orderly procedure. Now the witness is available. Mr. MacInnis——

Mr. MacInnis: We are making no point of it, Judge.

The Court: Mr. Paisley made a statement concerning the fact that it was in the safe, Is that statement to be regarded as evidence in this case? I do not want a loose record in this case at any time. In the past I have prided myself on my trial records, and I intend to do it in this case.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, we do not offer this document as a document kept in the regular course of business. We do not depend upon that rule. Here is a witness who has said, "This is my signature. I signed this card."

The Court: Mr. Paisley, perhaps I am obtuse, or perhaps I can't make myself understood. It is unusual that a document be maintained in a safe which ordinarily is kept in the regular course of business. That unusual aspect of the situation might create some question hereafter concerning the statement which you make to the Court not under oath. Mr. MacInnis says he has no objection. Is it stipulated? Have you gentlemen stipulated? Because hereafter you may attempt to argue the matter to the jury and I will have nothing in [3925] the record. I certainly have not reflected upon your integrity. I will call the witness of my own motion. Call the witness. Call the witness.

Mr. Paisley: Now, your Honor?

The Court: Any time.

Mr. Donohue: I have just sent for the witness.

Mr. Paisley: I had just one other question of this witness and we might be able to get him off the stand.

The Court: All right.

Q. (By Mr. Paisley): Mr. Michener, was there any time to your knowledge that Mr. Thimmes was a candidate against Mr. Connolly for the office of president of the CIO out here in California?

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, the objection to that question is——

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener.)

The Court: This was gone into yesterday on cross-examination. There is some confusion in the record. I will allow it. It may be confusing to the record.

Mr. MacInnis: This would be an attempt to impeach his own witness, because this man testified that in 1943 Connolly defeated Thimmes for the office of State president.

The Court: I will allow the question and any explanation that you have to make, sir.

The Witness: That was correct, that I did make that statement that Connolly defeated Thimmes in '43, and I was [3926] shown here documents that I was in error in that. There was a time—I wouldn't say whether it was '42 or '41—there was a time, and I am sure the records will show that Mr. Thimmes did run against Mr. Connolly for president of the CIO in the State of California.

Mr. Paisley: Those are all the questions I have.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. And the time that you say Connolly defeated Thimmes for the presidency of the State CIO was the same time in which Harry Bridges was present at a meeting in which it was discussed that the other man should replace Connolly?

A. Well, no, sir. The elections that took place, if I follow you correctly, the elections for the State president of the State CIO was conducted in California, and the meeting I referred to regarding Bridges being present when this matter was discussed; changing the officers, was held in Philadelphia in 1943.

Q. Whatever time the meeting was held, it was within the year in which Connolly had defeated Thimmes, is that correct?

A. It was incorrect because your questions yesterday—I was in error at the '43 State convention here. I believe Mr. Pollard, who I indicated to you was at that time, I believe, a member of Brother Thimmes' organization, that is, Thimmes supported him and had more or elss the right wing [3927] group of the CIO in the State.

Q. Yes, but you told the jury yesterday that Thimmes had been defeated by Connolly in the State, and that then you had this discussion back in Philadelphia of going to the heads of the CIO with a suggestion that Thimmes replace Connolly, and that Bridges had objected because the rank and file had voted against Thimmes, and that it would be a bad thing for that reason. That is what you told the jury, isn't that right?

A. That is right.

Q. But then you find that Connolly and Thimmes did not run against each other that year at all, that Thimmes was not the defeated candidate whom you say was discussed?

A. I found that in court yesterday. That was developed here.

Q. Yes. So all the reasons that you gave for that conversation were false reasons based upon the same error that you made in saying that it was Connolly versus Thimmes in 1943?

A. I wouldn't say that is correct, sir. I think that is your personal opinion.

Q. You said certain things about your second wife here today. When did you see her last?

A. The last time I recall seeing my ex-wife was in '45, sometime about March or April, I would say, to the best of my recollection. I was returning from Los Angeles on a train, back up here to get out on my ship, and she happened to be on [3928] same train. That is the last time I recall seeing her.

Q. A casual meeting?

A. A casual meeting, yes.

Q. Before that time when had you seen her since the separation?

A. It would be sometime in January of 1945.

Q. So far as you know, that lady is earning her living respectably as a school teacher in the public school system in Southern California, isn't that correct? A. Will you repeat that question?

Q. I say, so far as you know, that lady is earning her living as a school teacher in the public school system in Southern California, isn't she?

A. That is news to me. That is the first I heard of it.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Paisley: That is all.

The Court: The witness is excused.

Mr. Donohue: I am told that there is a lady from the hotel here, your Honor.

The Court: Produce the lady.

MRS. ISABEL ELLIOTT

called for the Government; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury. [3929]

The Witness: Mrs. Isabel Elliott.

The Clerk: Mrs. Isabel Elliott?

The Witness: Right.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Where do you live, Mrs. Elliott?

A. 51 Chattanooga Street.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am assistant manager of the Shaw Hotel.

Q. How long have you been at the Shaw Hotel?

A. Well, I am there—let's see—seven years.

Q. I hand you what has heretofore been marked United States Exhibit for identification No. 9 and ask you to take a look at it, and then tell us whether you can tell us what it is.

A. Well, this is the registration card of the hotel. of course, I wasn't working there at the time that this has been registered.

Q. When did you last see that document which is now in your hands?

A. I gave that to Mr. Kesler on October 6.

Q. On October 6? A. Right.

Q. Have you seen it since October 6?

A. Well, then he returned it several days after

(Testimony of Isabel Elliott.)

and I put in away, and I gave it to him yesterday, I think, or today—I think it was yesterday I gave it to him. [3930]

Q. Do you recall at what time you gave it to him?

A. Well, in the morning.

Q. Are you sure it was yesterday morning?

A. Sometime before noon.

Q. Are you sure it was yesterday morning?

Mr. MacInnis: I do not think, your Honor, this prosecutor may cross-examine his own witness.

Mr. Donohue: I never saw the lady in my life, if your Honor please. She said it may have been yesterday. I am only trying to find the truth.

The Court: The objection is overruled. To the best of your recollection.

A. Well, it was a couple of days ago, very shortly.

Q. A couple of days ago?

A. Uh-huh (affirmative).

The Court: I didn't hear you, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: Not a word did I utter.

Mr. Donohue: Just one of his typical sarcastic laughs, your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: Do you think I have a typical sarcastic laugh?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, I do.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, I would prefer in the light of this demonstration that your Honor question this [3931] witness. I never saw this witness before in my life.

(Testimony of Isabel Elliott.)

Mr. MacInnis: Neither did I, your Honor, and I was told by one of the immigration officers this morning when I saw the card that they had gotten it and that they had taken it back to the hotel and asked them to keep it in a safe place, and I have no reason to doubt it. I have no reason to doubt it now. I understood it was shortly after they got it, and it has been in the hotel safe for some time. I could be wrong about it. That is what I was told.

Q. (By the Court): Was this card kept in the regular course of business in which that type of card is kept?

A. Yes, we keep them. We got it out of the file for Mr. Kesler. He returned it to me and I put it in the safe.

Q. You lodged it in the safe?

A. I put it in the hotel safe, and then when he came after it, I gave it to him.

The Court: That is all.

Mr. MacInnis: May I ask one or two questions?

The Witness: Surely.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. You put this card in the safe at the request of this Mr. Kesler, did you?

A. Well, I did, so in case I needed it again I would know just where to get it.

Q. And then you say yesterday morning or a couple of days ago [3932] you returned it back to Mr. Kesler? A. I did.

(Testimony of Isabel Elliott.)

Q. Did he come over to the hotel to get it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He came over and asked you for it?

A. He did.

Q. It has been in his possession, so far as you know, since the time you gave it to him?

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Other than in the clerk's possession.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me?

The Court: The clerk has had it here in temporary custody. It has been marked in evidence.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

Q. On what would be about a day and a half ago did an investigator come to the hotel connected with the defense in this case and ask to look at your records? A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Didn't some person ask to go through the records of the hotel so far as the registration of this man named Michener was concerned?

A. Not regarding this card.

Q. Well, regarding any card theretofore?

A. We had someone yesterday going through for a card, but it wasn't this. [3933]

Q. Did you see that person?

A. The man that came in?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. You didn't tell him, though, about the other card, did you? A. No, I didn't.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, madam.

(Testimony of Isabel Elliott.)

The Court: The card may be marked in evidence.

(U. S. Exhibit 9 for identification was received in evidence.)

Mr. Donohue: May I for one question call Mr. Kesler, if your Honor please?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Donohue: Mr. Kesler, will you come forward, please.

The Court: The witness is excused.

LAWRENCE R. KESLER

called for the Government; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: My name is Lawrence R. Kesler.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Kesler? [3934]

A. My residence is in Tucson, Arizona.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am employed by the Immigration Service.

Q. How long have you been in San Francisco with the Immigration Service?

A. I have been in San Francisco since May 27, 1949.

Q. I ask the clerk to hand you what is marked Government's for identification No. 9 and ask you to look at it and tell his Honor and the ladies and gentlemen of the jury if you can identify it.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. If the Court please,

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

counsel is now asking this witness to give testimony with the hope of impeaching another witness whom he has just called to the stand.

Mr. Donohue: Your Honor, I am trying——

The Court: Overruled, and the jury will disregard the remark.

Mr. Donohue: With great difficulty from Mr. MacInnis I am trying to establish a fact, if your Honor please.

The Witness: This is a registration card from the Shaw Hotel.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): When did you first see that card?

A. I first obtained the card on October 5 of last year.

Q. And where did you obtain the card?

A. I obtained the card from the file rooms or the record [3935] of the Shaw Hotel.

Q. What did you then do or thereafter do with respect to that card?

A. After I secured it I asked permission to remove it from the Shaw Hotel, and Mrs. Elliott, who was on duty at the time, dated and signed the card so that it could be identified, and I later returned the card to her.

Q. When? A. In about two or three days.

Q. And that was about when?

A. That was approximately on the 7th or 8th of October, 1949.

Q. When did you next see the card?

A. I next saw the card this morning. I went over to the hotel this morning about 8:30. I saw Mrs. Elliott and she gave me the card this morning.

Q. Did you ask anyone at the hotel when you were there at any time with respect to that card not to discuss the fact that there was such a card with any person or persons?

A. I did not. When I returned the card to Mrs. Elliott I told her that we may want it for further identification at a later date.

Mr. Donohue: You may have the witness.

Mr. Hallinan: The cross-examination of this witness will consume a very long time, your Honor, and we will ask that it be deferred until two [3936] o'clock.

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, the only legitimate cross-examination would be with reference to this card.

Mr. Hallinan: Oh, no; the interest of the witness is always of importance. His activities in the case will form a large part of his interest, and we have a great many questions to put to the witness.

The Court: Counsel, I shall limit the cross-examination of this witness at this stage of the proceedings to matters concerning this card and no other matter.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, we will propose questions to establish the interest of the witness, his interest in this case, and, of course, whatever your Honor may do with respect to those questions will be within your Honor's own judgment, but we certainly cannot be remiss in ~~our~~ obligation to make the proper inquiry. So I think if we could resume at two o'clock, because the inquiry will be quite extensive——

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Mr. Paisley: On that point, your Honor, there is one case in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decided by the Ninth Circuit that I happen to have read since I have been here that I would like to cite to your Honor. Your Honor just made a ruling, and I would like to cite that case.

Mr. Hallinan: Let us have the case, because it will be a novelty. I should like to look it up at noontime. The interest of a witness, your Honor, and his activities in the case, the witnesses he has interviewed, the persons he has consulted, [3937] the efforts he has made to procure a conviction of the defendants are all absolutely material upon the credibility of the witness. We are not accepting a word that the witness has said. We intend to attack his credibility. We intend to inquire into all of his activities in connection with this case.

The Court: Counsel, notwithstanding your intention, Mr. Hallinan, I tell you now my rule is I shall limit the cross-examination to facts and matters surrounding this particular exhibit. The witness has not been offered on any other subject. It is improper cross-examination, and assuming all the questions you have in mind, assuming the length of the cross-examination that you may well intend, I tell you now the objections will be sustained, and that it will unduly take the time of the Court and jury. I ask you, therefore, quite respectfully, you and Mr. MacInnis, to undertake whatever cross-examination you may have at this stage concerning the card in question and release this witness.

Mr. Hallinan: Of course, I can't do that consistent with the obligation we owe to our clients, your Honor, to elicit all pertinent evidence and, of course, the questions will have to be asked. I know what my duty and my obligation is. Your Honor knows your duty and obligation. I cannot control yours, but I know you will not attempt to prevent me——

The Court: The matter will stand over until two [3938] o'clock. It is now 12:10. I have told you what my rule shall be.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes. Now, might we ask counsel for that authority which he says so interrupts the ordinary rule of law as to prevent an attorney from inquiring into the motives, the activities of a witness? What is that authority from the Ninth Circuit you told us about, Mr. Paisley?

Mr. Paisley: Mr. Hallinan, I do not recall the number of the book and the page number, but I can get it at the recess; if you will give me a telephone number at which I can get you or at which I can receive the station, I will be glad to call you just as soon as possible, within the next 15 or 20 minutes, and I would like the privilege of submitting it to you.

The Court: We will take the noon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions or to form an opinion thereon until the matter is submitted to you.

Mr. Hallinan: The number is Prospect 5-0533. If Mr. Paisley will give me the decision there, I will be grateful.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [3939]

Thursday, January 12, 1950, 2:00 P.M.

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. The witness on the stand is Lawrence R. Kesler, heretofore sworn.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, might the witness Michener be returned to the stand immediately at the conclusion of this witness' testimony? Might we inquire if he is available?

The Court: I excused the witness. Is the witness available?

Mr. Paisley: He is available, I am sure, your Honor; I saw him upstairs a moment ago.

Don't let him go, Mr. Kaiser.

The Court: Will you put in a call for the witness, to make him available immediately after this witness?

Mr. Paisley: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: Thank you.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Now, Mr. Kesler, you say that you procured this card originally from the Hotel Shaw when?

A. On October 5, 1949.

Q. And who directed you to go to the Hotel Shaw to procure the card? How did you happen to go there?

A. Nobody directed me to. It was just a routine check.

Q. Well, I don't want to use the word "directed" as though you [3940] were in some sort of inferior position, but I mean, who suggested the Hotel Shaw, or who put you on the track of going to the Hotel Shaw to seek out this card?

A. Well, Mr. Michener indicated that he had stayed at the Hotel Shaw in the latter part of 1940 and it was just a routine check to verify his stay in San Francisco.

Q. In anything that I ask you, Mr. Kesler, will you please understand I am not criticizing you. I just want to find out. You don't have to make any explanations or apologies for your conduct, if that is what you think it is, because no one is questioning that.

A. I understand that, Mr. Hallinan. I am making no apologies.

Q. All right. Now, did you get the information from Mr. Michener personally or did someone else give you the information?

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

A. The information wasn't secured by myself, no.

Q. From whom did you get the information?

A. From a report.

Q. Who signed the report or who gave the report?

A. Frankly, I don't know for sure. I believe it was Mr. Ward. I believe it was a report signed by Mr. Ward.

Q. And who is Mr. Ward?

A. He works for the Immigration Service.

Q. Now, was there more contained in the report than the notation about Mr. Michener having stayed at the Hotel Shaw?

A. There undoubtedly was. Yes, I know that there were other [3941] things besides the fact that he stayed at the Hotel Shaw.

Q. Now, did the report state the occasion on which Mr. Shaw—or Mr. Michener, rather—stayed at the Shaw Hotel? A. That's right.

Q. What occasion was that?

A. At the time that he attended a Communist Party meeting in San Francisco.

Q. Now, have you made enough inquiry into it to determine that that is the Communist Party meeting that Mr. Michener said he attended in the Sunset District sometime in the fall of 1940?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if your Honor pleases. I don't think that is pertinent.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor will see the pertinency of it immediately.

Mr. Donohue: The witness has testified, if your Honor pleases, that in consequence of a report signed by another agent, referring to an occasion when Mr. Michener stayed at the Shaw Hotel, he went to the hotel and obtained this document.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, now I just want to have him relate that exact time. It will only take two questions.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question, please?

Mr. Hallinan: May we have the question read, your Honor?

The Court: Yes. Would you read it, please?

(Record read.) [3942]

A. I believe that it was included in the report.

Q. In the report he had spoken of two meetings that he had with Mr. Bridges which he said were Communist Party meetings, is that right?

A. No, I didn't say that. I say that the time he stayed at the Hotel Shaw referred to the same time that he had attended a Communist Party meeting in the Sunset District in San Francisco.

Q. All right. Now, where did Mr. Ward purport to have gotten that information?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Did Mr. Ward tell you where he had gotten that information, or was it contained in the report?

Mr. Donohue: Same objection, if your Honor please.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

The Court: Overruled.

A. He did not tell me personally, no.

Q. So, having learned that—When did you read that report, or when did you get that information, with relation to the time you went to this hotel and made this checkup?

A. Well, it was just previous to that time, I would say possibly a week.

Q. Now, did you, of your own accord or under instructions of somebody else, go to the hotel and make a checkup? [3943]

A. No, it was just a routine check on my part.

Q. It is something you would do under ordinary circumstances ~~on~~ reading that report?

A. That's right.

Q. All right. And you went to the Hotel Shaw and did you personally make a check of the records of the Hotel Shaw, or did you have somebody do it for you?

A. I was with somebody from the hotel.

Q. Who was that person?

A. I believe his name was Jack Oliver.

Q. Jack Oliver?

A. He was employed by the hotel.

Q. I see. And will you tell us now what was done toward the discovery of this card? What were the steps that were taken by Mr. Oliver in your presence or by you which led to the discovery of this card?

A. We searched through the old records, the registration records of the hotel, which were kept in their basement, until such time that we found Mr. Michener's registration card.

Q. What periods did you search?

A. We started from the end of the year.

Q. The end of the year 1939? A. 1949.

Q. 1949?

A. I mean 1940. I beg your pardon. [3944]

Q. And worked back, is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And how far back did you work?

A. We worked back until I found this card.

Q. Until you found this card. Then you quit?

A. That's right.

Q. You didn't discover the card that was signed in February? A. No.

Q. Now, when you discovered this card, what did you do in the hotel with Mr. Oliver toward taking the card out?

A. Well, Mr. Oliver was not in a position to do anything about releasing the card himself. I don't know exactly what his capacity is. But I did ask the clerk at the desk if it would be possible to remove the card, which I would return in a few days. She granted that permission, dated the card as of October 5, 1949, and signed her name to the card.

Q. All right. Now, was there any other card from the end of the year up to this August the 26th card? A. I found none.

Q. And made, I take it, a thorough check of what records they had, did you? A. That's right.

Q. Now, when the lady or the clerk gave you consent ot take the card, what did you do with the card?

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

A. I took the card back to the [3945] Immigration Office.

Q. And what did you do with it there?

A. We had a photostat made of it, or I believe it was a photograph; I know that it was.

Q. How many copies of the photograph?

A. I think there were four made.

Q. And what was done with those four photographs?

A. They were included in the files of the Immigration Service.

Q. Were they all put in the one file or were any of them distributed to any other person?

A. There was one in Mr. Michener's file; there was one in the photograph file that we maintain; the other two I don't know where they were or where they were placed.

Q. When you say in Mr. Michener's file, you mean you have a separate file in the Immigration Service relating to Mr. Michener?

A. Certainly.

Q. Only as a witness in this case or generally?

A. As a witness in this case.

Q. Only?

A. Well, as far as I know. I don't know any different.

Q. You have a separate file concerning that man, the photostat of the card was put in there?

A. That's right.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. All right. Now, then, what did you do with the original?

A. After two or three days I returned the original to Mrs. [3946] Elliott at the Shaw Hotel.

Q. With what instructions?

A. With no instructions, except that I asked her if she would keep it available if we wanted it in the future.

Q. Did you ask her to put it in the safe?

A. I did not.

Q. All right. Now, when did you next see any of the photostats?

A. Oh, I have seen those many times. [3946-A]

Q. Now, let me ask you this, Mr. Witness: With what persons other than yourself connected with the prosecution in this case have you discussed this card or that photostat?

A. Other than the prosecution?

Q. No, no, the persons connected with the prosecution.

A. Well, we have talked about it generally.

Q. Who are "we"? I want to know the persons connected with the prosecution with whom you have talked about this card. Name them one by one; attorneys preferably if you will start with them. What attorneys have you talked it over with or discussed it with? A. Before obtaining the card?

Q. No, afterwards. Let us say between the obtaining of the card and the present moment.

A. Oh, I have talked to Mr. Donohue.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. When did you first talk to Mr. Donohue about this card?

A. I believe it was this morning. I know that it was.

Q. Is that the first time that you spoke to him about it? A. That is right.

Q. Where was that?

A. Upstairs in this building on the fourth floor.

Q. Did you or he have the photostat of the card with you? A. I had the original card.

Q. Did he have the photostat?

A. I didn't see it. [3947]

Q. What time was that?

A. Just before court this morning. It was about 9:30.

Q. You had a talk with Mr. Donohue—by Mr. Donohue you mean the special prosecutor in this action? A. That is right.

Q. Did the talk you had with him then relate solely to the card or were other matters also discussed?

A. It related solely to the card. I indicated that I had secured the card this morning.

Q. Did you give him the card then?

A. I showed it to him and he returned it to me.

Q. You retained it in your possession, is that right? A. That is right, that is right.

Q. Did you talk to any other attorney about the card between the time you got it and the present moment?

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

A. I talked to Mr. Paisley and pretty much the same thing would apply.

Q. When did you first talk to Mr. Paisley about it?

A. I believe—it was approximately the same time that I talked to Mr. Donohue.

Q. Was he with Mr. Donohue this morning at the time you showed Mr. Donohue the card?

A. No, I don't think so. I think Mr. Paisley saw it just previous to that or just after.

Q. Where? [3948]

A. In the same room upstairs.

Q. Mr. Donohue had left that time, or hadn't come yet, or what?

A. No, he was there at the time, I believe.

Q. I just asked you if Mr. Paisley was present when you showed it to Mr. Donohue and you said no.

A. I believe he came in at the same time.

Q. Prior to that time had you ever talked to Mr. Donohue about either the card or the photostat of it?

A. I don't recall talking to him about it, no.

Q. Have you talked to Mr. Donohue about facts connected with this case prior to your talking to him this morning? A. Yes.

Q. Many times?

A. I would say a few times, not many, no.

Q. Have you talked to him since Michener was subpoenaed or since he appeared here?

A. I have talked to him, yes.

Q. Did you talk to him on any of those occasions about this card or about the photostat?

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you tell him that you had checked the Hotel Shaw and verified this date of Michener's appearance here?

A. I personally don't recall telling him that, no.

Q. Did you tell it to Mr. Paisley?

A. No. [3949]

Q. Have you talked to Mr. Paisley any time before this morning about this subject?

A. No, I did not.

Q. How about Mr. Bruce Barber?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. When did you talk to Mr. Barber about this card?

A. Shortly after I secured the copy in October.

Q. Did you show him the card?

A. No, I don't think he actually saw the card itself.

Q. Did you tell him what the contents of the card disclosed? A. That is right, I did.

Q. You told him the date, the time and everything about the appearance of Michener at that time, is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. Told him about your search through the records, and that this was the only card that you found from that time until the end of the year?

A. I don't know that I went in detail about it. I told him I had secured the card.

Q. Did you tell him what date was on the card?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Barber which included any discussion of that card or its discovery after that time?

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

A. No, not after I had told him that I found the card, I didn't discuss it with him any more. [3950]

Q. Did you have any discussion with him at all about that card or the discovery of it in the hotel or the photostatic copy of it from the time that you just narrated up until the present?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Boyd about the card?

A. I showed the card to Mr. Boyd this morning previous to showing it to Mr. Donohue and Mr. Paisley.

Q. What time did you show it to Mr. Boyd?

A. I would say it was around 9:15.

Q. Where? A. Upstairs in this building.

Q. Did you have any discussion with Mr. Boyd at 9:15 this morning on any subject other than that which related to this card? A. No.

Q. So you talked to Mr. Boyd about it, and how long did you talk to him about the card?

A. Five minutes or less.

Q. Then afterwards you talked to Mr. Donohue about it? A. That is right.

Q. And how long did you talk to him about it?

A. About the same length of time.

Q. And then you talked to Mr. Paisley about it, is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. How long did you talk to him? [3951]

A. Just a few minutes.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. During any of those conversations with those three gentlemen, was any other person present?

A. I believe the stenographer was in the room.

Q. How about Mr. Michener?

A. No, Mr. Michener was not in the room.

Q. Are you sure he wasn't in the room at that time? A. Yes, I am sure he was not.

Q. When did you last talk to Mr. Michener about this card?

A. I believe it was after the trial recessed at noon today.

Q. After the trial recessed at noon today?

A. That is right.

Q. At that time you had been excused as a witness? A. That is right.

Q. And you talked to him then, is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Where? A. We had lunch together.

Q. Where?

A. On Market Street. Do you want the name of it?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it was Nick's on Market, is the name of the restaurant,

Q. Anybody else there?

A. Mr. Wooley was there. [3952]

Q. Who is Mr. Wooley?

A. He is employed by the Immigration Service.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I believe his title is Patrol Inspector.

Q. Is what? A. Patrol Inspector.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. Patrol Inspector? A. Yes.

Q. So you, Mr. Michener and Mr. Wooley had lunch today and then for the first time you talked to them about this card, is that right?

A. I believe you asked me if the last time——

Q. Oh, excuse me, that is right. That is the last time you talked to him about the card?

A. That is correct.

Q. When prior to that had you talked to Mr. Michener about the card, the last time prior to that?

A. I mentioned the fact to him yesterday afternoon.

Q. Where? A. It was in this building.

Q. Where? What room?

A. I believe it was during a recess.

Q. Did you have the card with you then?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a photostat of it? [3953]

A. No, I did not. I got the card this morning.

Q. Did you have any notations as to the contents of the card when you were talking to Michener yesterday? A. No.

Q. You talked to him in what part of the building yesterday? . In the hall.

Q. Who else was present? A. Nobody.

Q. Just you and he? A. That is right.

Q. What part of the hall, Mr. Kesler?

A. Outside of the courtroom.

Q. How long did you talk to him at that time?

A. Five minutes, more or less.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. When prior to that time had you talked to Michener about the card?

A. I don't believe that I did.

Q. You don't believe you talked to him about it?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember saying anything to him at any time about the card prior to the time you talked to him in the corridor yesterday?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did anybody else in your presence or within your hearing at any time prior to that say anything to Michener about that card? [3954]

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Had you interviewed Michener before that time?

A. I wouldn't say it was an interview. We were merely talking.

Q. And you talked about the circumstances and facts of this case, isn't that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you verify from Michener the truth of the circumstances narrated in this card, namely, the time he occupied the room at the Hotel Shaw?

A. No.

Q. Didn't you ask him at all if the card did not refresh his recollection that that was the time he stayed there and the length of time he did stay?

A. No, I did not.

Q. This card shows a William Clark registered there with Michener. Did you ask him who William Clark was? A. I did.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. Who was William Clark?

A. I don't know who William Clark is.

Q. Who did he tell you he was?

A. I don't know whether Mr. Michener was sure who William Clark was or not.

Q. Did he tell you who he thought he was?

A. Yes, I believe—he said he believed it was Paul Kline.

Q. He believed that the William Clark was Paul Kline? [3955] A. That is correct.

Q. The card shows, does it not, that Mr. Michener arrived on 8/26/40—that is the 26th day of August, 1940—and departed on the 27th of August, 1940, doesn't it? A. Yes, that is what it shows.

Q. Mr. Kesler, have you the desire unjustly and contrary to the facts, to procure a conviction of the defendants in this case?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: That is a proper question, your Honor. It is a preliminary question to the next question I am going to ask him. I want to find out whether that is this man's motive and interest right now.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, only this morning when this witness was called to testify merely to the fact that he procured this card and brought it to court this morning, your Honor, I take it, in evaluing the importance or non-importance of the purpose for which the witness was called, ruled that the question of the bias, prejudice or interest of this witness in this prosecution obviously could not be in issue with respect or arising out of the fact that he testified only as to this minute fact and told Mr. Hallinan that his cross-examination of this witness would be restricted to the matter which was developed on direct examination, that is, the facts with respect to this card, and I therefore most respectfully say to your Honor that a question [3956] as to the attitude of this witness toward this prosecution is not only an improper question, but it is in violation of the ruling which your Honor made this morning. If there is any question in Mr. Hallinan's mind about the ability of your Honor or the power of your Honor to make such a ruling, I have authorities here which I will be only too glad to call to your Honor's attention.

Mr. Hallinan: Might I say this, your Honor: What he says is very true, and when they called the witness to the stand, while the witness' presence on the stand seemed to us of great importance as opening a doorway that we most desired to open, a little further reflection illustrated the fact that when fraud and corruption are involved in a case, the slightest incident may open a door that you never suspected, and this little card that was put in so inadvertently now, if your Honor please, convicts the officers of the prosecution of fraud, corruption, deceit and concealment, and I will show you how in a moment.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Now, let me ask you this. I will withdraw the last question.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I have admonished you in the past, and it becomes my duty increasingly, as it must be apparent to you, and with continuity of regularity, to admonish you to disregard the statements made by Mr. Hallinan. This statement made by Mr. Hallinan may not be regarded by you as evidence in this case. The evidence is unfolded from the [3957] lips of the witness or witnesses, as it may appear. I admonish you to disregard this statement and I assign the remarks as misconduct at this stage of the case.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, I must enter an exception to that. Counsel was permitted to get up here and make an argument as to the impropriety of the evidence, and I am certainly entitled to reply to it.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, it must be apparent to you at this stage that to make that charge based upon that card, in the light of the narrative which has been elicited from this witness is wholly improper.

Mr. Hallinan: Let's see. One question, and I think your Honor will hold differently.

The Court: The last question you addressed to the witness was—what was the question?

Mr. Hallinan: Whatever it was, I will withdraw it and I will ask him this question.

The Court: All right.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, you and these other gentlemen knew when Michener was on the stand that the date of the alleged meeting out in the Sunset District had to be August 26, 1940, didn't you?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases.

Mr. Hallinan: You see what they have done, Judge. This [3958] is the same sort—I will ask that this gentleman not be permitted to interrupt the cross-examination. He has on several occasions when witnesses were in a similar position jumped up and by arguing and trying to instruct the witness and get them out of court, prevented the discovery of facts that are pertinent.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I will say to you I am not going to foreclose you from an examination in and with respect to this card and the surrounding circumstances. I thus far have allowed you, without interruption on the part of anyone, complete latitude. I have also checked authorities during the noon hour and am prepared to discuss them in the presence of the jury or out of the presence of the presence of the jury, and I am willing of course to exercise the discretion in connection with your cross-examination that I regard as sound, and thus far there has been no interruption. But your characterizations, Mr. Hallinan, must be apparent to you.

Mr. Hallinan: I will withdraw that question.

The Court: Then it is nothing but misconduct.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Let me ask you this, sir: When Michener was on the stand, you were sitting out here in the courtroom, weren't you?

A. Part of the time, yes.

Q. And you heard Michener testify that the meeting out in the Sunset Strip or the Sunset District was some time in the late [3959] fall of 1940, didn't you?

A. No, I wasn't here during the direct examination.

Q. Have you since heard that that was the time that he identified it?

A. I knew that prior to coming here.

Q. Yes. And you knew all the time that the meeting, if it took place at all, had to take place on the 26th of August, 1940, didn't you?

A. That isn't necessarily true.

Q. Now, you didn't see any of these prosecutors when Michener was first on the stand as a means of identifying the time when that meeting was held, present this card to him, did you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. But when the defendants brought in a card dated February, 1940, then of course you gentlemen balanced advantages and decided that it would be necessary to show this card to him to establish that he had been there at another time, isn't that right?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor pleases, to the question. Mr. Kesler is an agent of the Bureau of Immigration. He did not have anything to do with the decision which was made by the prosecution with respect to the examination or production of this card.

Mr. Hallinan: Who made the decision?

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Hallinan: All right.

The Court: To that question.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Did anybody tell you that it would be desirable to conceal the card for the reason that in the examinations of Mr. Johnson and Crouch it developed that there was great danger in establishing dates on these things because union records frequently came up to prove that Mr. Bridges was elsewhere? Did any of these prosecution gentlemen tell you that?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor pleases.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Hallinan: I think, Your Honor, it is a perfectly proper question. The reason why this card was not introduced is of the highest significance, and we should be enabled to inquire into it. And, Your Honor, might I say this, that the jury is entitled to hear these things and to reach its own conclusions upon it. Now, Your Honor sustained the objection as to questions of fact.

The Court: I am willing to have the jury hear, as well as the Court, any matters that may be relevant, material, to the card in question, to its production and the original investigation. I am not inclined that the jury hear, nor this Court, an argument in advance made, or characterizations made in advance, or the indictment of witnesses made in advance. I am [3961] willing to permit any pertinent question made, and put to these witnesses bearing upon this particular investigation.

Mr. Paisley: Well, Your Honor,——

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Will you tell me that it was not discussed with Mr. Paisley, Mr. Boyd and Mr. Donohue this morning in the United States District Attorney's office, that the card should not be displayed to Mr. Michener or that the card should now be produced, so as to counterbalance the effect of the production of the card by the defense from February, 1940? Was that discussed?

A. They didn't discuss it in my presence, if it was. I didn't follow——

Q. Was it discussed by any of them in your presence prior to this time, prior to the time—to this morning, that it would be wise not to mention this card nor show it to Michener on the stand, so that Mr. Bridges—or so that a definite date would not be established for that alleged meeting in the Sunset, so that the defense might be precluded from proving that Mr. Bridges was elsewhere. Did any of them say that to you?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if Your Honor pleases, because it presupposes a fact which is not a fact; it presupposes the fact that this card was not produced. We produced this card.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Hallinan: They produced it this morning, Your Honor, [3963] after letting Michener on the stand for a day and a half, and didn't produce it. And they only produced it after we attempted to show that there was no such card. Then it came out of hiding.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): You say you come from Tucson, Arizona? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have been in San Francisco since May, 1949?

A. I may have said that. I wish to correct it, however, if I did. I arrived here in February—February 27, 1949.

Q. Have you been here continuously since? I mean, except on expeditions connected with this case?

A. I have been in this district ever since, yes.

Q. And have you been working on any matter except the Bridges case?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, let me ask you whether in May, 1949, accompanied by an agent Meyers—or whether you accompanied that agent named Meyers, and went to visit a man named Herman Mann,——

Mr. Donohue: Object to the question.

Mr. Hallinan: Wait a moment, if you will. I haven't finished the question. [3963]

Q. (Continuing): —and then and there offered to Mr. Mann that you would procure the services of the United States Cancer Research to cure his dying wife if he would come in and testify against Bridges. Did you, Mr. Kesler?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases.

Mr. Hallinan: It goes to the witness' activities in this case, your Honor. It goes to his credibility and his interest. Now, Your Honor indicated this morning that his credibility and interest, as of your opinion at that time, might not be material. I hope in view of the inferences raised by the suppression of this date that that opinion will now be set aside and that we may be permitted to inquire into all the activities of this gentleman in connection with attempting to procure a conviction of the defendants in this case. Now, I will say this, Your Honor: I have——

The Court: You have now assumed to advance into matters independent of the card?

Mr. Hallinan: I have at least a thousand questions on this subject, on the subject of his interest and activities in the case, and I don't—I am willing to accept, although I certainly argue and protest, a ruling, Your Honor, that would prevent us from doing it. I want to show all the activities of this man and the associates with whom he was connected and whom he acted in cooperation with, to procure evidence, false evidence [3964] and fraudulent, Your Honor, in this case. I want the right to do that, to make a showing attacking his credibility and as showing his interest in the case. Now, as

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)
I say, I don't want—I will not persist in making it if the Court rules advisedly and with some thought that it is improper; but I certainly want the record protected, because I think it would be reversible error that we be barred from inquiring into the activities and interests of an agent who has been instrumental in getting this case together, and who has done an enormous amount of work and engaged in an enormous amount of activity to procure a result that he is not entitled to procure.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, may I hear from you?

Mr. Donohue: I have already objected to the question, if Your Honor pleases. Number one: as being an improper question on cross examination, because not a matter which was referred to on direct examination of this witness; and as being in direct violation of Your Honor's ruling this morning, to the effect that the cross examination would be limited to the subject matter of the card, which alone was developed on direct examination.

The Court: My examination of authorities, of the authorities during the noon hour, Mr. Hallinan, would justify me in the reassertion of the rule which I think is sound, (1), that the cross examination in the main is limited to that which is elicited and brought out in chief, on direct; secondly, that [3965] the discretion vests in the trial court with respect to the limitations upon that cross examination. The matter elicited on direct examination had to do with a card. I have allowed you full and complete scope in and with respect to the card, all the surrounding circumstances, the conversation had with the agents and the attorneys. You have been permitted to state to the jury, before my admonition, in connection with the characterization about this card. I have admonished the jury to disregard your statement.

For your information, I reviewed the following authorities and you might note them in your book——

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me, if I may.

The Court: ——so you may have them hereafter.

United States v. Toner, 173 Fed. 2d. 140 at 144. The language of Justice Stone in the Supreme Court decision of Alford v. United States, 682, 687, wherein Justice Stone said, in part:

> "There is a duty to protect him (that is the witness) from questions which go beyond the bounds of proper cross examination merely to harass, annoy and humiliate him."

The case of United States v. Easterday, 57 Fed. 2d. 165 at 166. This is United States v. Easterday, E-a-s-t-e-r-d-a-y, at 57 Fed. 2d. 165, at 166. And this is Justice Learned Hand, speaking for the Circuit Court:

> "Cross examination does not extend to aimless shots at [3966] random; a trial presupposes rational process applied to the testimony uttered. The judge was not bound to allow what otherwise had no bearing on the witness' credibility."

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Then in Morton v. U. S., at 60 Fed. 2d. 696, at 699. And the language used in this Morton case is somewhat reminiscent of your expectation or hope that some error might be created in the record. The Court said——

Mr. Hallinan: It is no hope, Your Honor; I hope no error will be created. I tried to argue Your Honor into permitting the evidence in.

The Court: I am trying my level best to keep error out of the record.

The Court then said:

> "The battle continued, not to ascertain the truth, but in the evident hope that error might be injected into the record and ultimate conviction thereby avoided. But avoidance of a conviction, upon uncontradicted evidence, establishing to a certainty the guilt of the accused,——" and so forth. Then the Court concluded:

> "Nevertheless, the ascertainment of the truth by means of a fair trial, rather than the slavish devotion to the rules of the game, is the determinative factor in ascertaining the existence of prejudicial error."

I also referred to the Gerson case, Gerson v. U. S., 88 Fed. 2d. 358, at 361: [3967]

> "The extent of cross examination with respect to an appropriate subject of inquiry is within the sound discretion of the trial court.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

It may exercise a reasonable judgment in determining when the subject is exhausted."

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, at this time, because of the citation of certain language in one of these cases, which might—I hope not—be a reflection upon me——

The Court: That language may be stricken from the record and I advise the jury to disregard it. It unfortunately crept into the note.

Mr. Hallinan: I move for a mistrial, Your Honor, on the ground that the statement of the Court is manifestly prejudicial. Now, I mean, the mere fact that Your Honor read it and has stricken it out——

The Court: The motion for a mistrial is denied.

Mr. Hallinan: Now, Your Honor, the only——

The Court: Also there is one other case that I referred to, Twachtman, T-w-a-c-h-t-m-a-n, v. Connelly, C-o-n-n-e-l-l-y, in 106 Fed. 2d. 501, at 507, with respect to the latitude. And also Wigmore, 3 Wigmore, Section 983, Third Edition.

Mr. Hallinan: In matters that you have been discussing, Your Honor, those are not, I think, involved in the thing that we have here. These are——

The Court: Do you desire, Mr. Hallinan, in aid of the record, so that there may be no mistake about it, to make an [3968] offer of proof in the absence of the jury? If you do, I will accept your offer of proof.

Mr. Hallinan: These are general statements, and the statements you read are general statements, and we are all familiar with them. The limitations that the Court can impose. But they have nothing to do with the right to impeach a witness by showing his interest and activities. I think that they are somewhat in the nature of the information conveyed by Mr. Paisley to me at noon. He said he would ring up and give me a citation squarely on the matter, and he did ring up and spent a few minutes insulting me and attacking me, then hung up suddenly before I got a reasonable chance to reply.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

Mr. Paisley: I want to reply to this.

Mr. Hallinan: And that is all that happened there.

Mr. Paisley: I would like to reply to that statement. I did call Mr. Hallinan, as I promised in the presence of Your Honor and the jury, to give him the citation. He then launched into a most insulting stream of words.

Mr. Hallinan: The citation that he gave me was a statement that I would have to obey the order of the Court. He said he would give me a citation before noon on the subject of the right to cross-examine on interest and activity of the witness. He rang up, I suppose that Mr. Donohue and some of his pals were there, and adopted a very sarcastic and truculent air, and told me, first, recited off a thing, and then says, "Of course, that [3969] does not involve the point we are talking about: it involves your obligation to comply with the Court's orders," and so forth. Now, a certain exchange of recriminations took place, but the most that I called Mr. Paisley was the name by which we commonly designate him as the counsel table, and I will tell it to you in secret, if——

The Court: I am not interested in what you may call Mr. Paisley, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: Very well. Now, I would like to do this, if the Court please. I have an affidavit here of Herman Mann concerning which I just questioned this gentleman, and I want to offer——

The Court: May I see it?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes. And I want to offer the affidavit of Herman Mann as an offer of proof. I want it marked for identification, and an offer of proof may be oral or in writing. There is no use having sessions outside the jury's presence. I am against that procedure anyhow.

The Court: It is not what you are against, Mr. Hallinan; it is what the rule is traditionally in these courts.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, Your Honor, tradition is a difficult thing to follow. I don't know of any written rule——

The Court: Well, you seem not to be interested in tradition.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, anyway, we offer this affidavit of [3970] Herman Mann, and I offer it to show that this man is one of the persons described in the third paragraph, or in the last paragraph of the matter. Now, if it may be marked for identification, that is the facts that we wish to prove at this time.

The Court: You might show the document to Mr. Donohue. Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Hallinan: Well it is for your perusal, I take it.

Mr. Donohue: This isn't the first offer of proof we haven't been permitted to see, but I do think we should be permitted to see it, if Your Honor please.

(Document examined by Mr. Donohue.)

Mr. Hallinan: Now, with regard to other questions of a similar nature, that is, I want to question this witness with regard to his interviews with other witnesses who have appeared here, with persons who have not appeared here,——

The Court: In connection with the card in question?

Mr. Hallinan: No, in connection with his general activities in this case, interviews with witnesses, his promises, threats, inducements and so forth. I want to question him about all of them.

The Court: May I see it?

(Document examined by the Court.)

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Hallinan: I am not—could we retain this or withdraw it from the Clerk afterward and substitute a copy of it instead? [3971]

The Court: I have no objection, Mr. Hallinan. And you may make a photostat copy, Mr. Mitchell.

(Testimony of Lawrence R. Kesler.)

The Clerk: May it be marked for identification?

The Court: Yes, for identification.

(Thereupon, document referred to was marked Defendant's Exhibit K-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): What is your salary with the United States Government, Mr. Kesler?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Overruled.

A. My salary?

Mr. Paisley: May I suggest that both pages of that exhibit be marked, given the same number?

The Court: You may answer.

A. $4800 a year.

Q. In addition to yourself, how many agents of the Immigration Department within the period of February 27, 1949, within your knowledge have been working on the present case?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Donohue: That is all. You may step down. You are excused.

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess. Do you desire, Mr. Donohue, to call another witness now? [3972]

Mr. Donohue: I have a short witness, if Your Honor pleases, to go back to the identification of a record from the Immigration Service that was under discussion at the time Mr. Schrimpf testified. It will take only a short time. I suggest after the recess, if I might call that one witness——

Mr. Paisley: Well, didn't Mr. Hallinan say he wanted to question Mr. Michener?

The Court: That is correct, yes. Call Mr. Michener. We will take the afternoon recess in the interim, ladies and gentlemen. May I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion upon the matter until it is finally submitted to you.

(Recess.) [3973]

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr., heretofore sworn.

Cross-Examination

LEWIS HERBERT MICHENER, JR.
recalled; previously sworn.

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. You told us already, Mr. Michener, that you had had certain dealings and conversations with an agent named Kesler; that is right, isn't it?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. During the recess which persons connected with the Immigration Department or the prosecution have talked to you?

A. That is, you mean, sir, since I have been off the stand here or before, during the noon hour——

Q. Yes.

A. Let me see. I talked to a Mr. Woolley.

Q. Who? A. Woolley.

Q. How do you spell that?

A. I couldn't tell you, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

Q. What is that? A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. Woolley? A. Yes, sir.

Q. W-u-e-l-l-i-e? Who else? [3974]

A. Mr. Kaiser.

Q. Who else? A. Mr. Kesler.

Q. Anyone else? A. Mr. Barber.

Q. Anyone else?

A. That is about all I can think of, sir.

Q. That is at noontime? A. At noontime.

Q. You say that is about all you can think of?

A. That is, I believe, the answer I gave you, sir.

Q. You are not sure whether you spoke to more persons than that?

A. No, I believe that would be about the size of it.

Q. Where did the conversation take place with Mr. Woolley, Kaiser, Kesler and Barber?

A. It wasn't really a conversation. I had lunch with Mr. Woolley and Mr. Kesler.

Q. Where?

A. Over here on Market Street. We walked over there and had lunch, and we returned together to this building.

Q. Since that time have you been still in this building? A. I have, sir.

Q. At whose order or suggestion or request have you stayed in this building since that time? [3975]

A. I wasn't here under any order, request or suggestion. I was here working out arrangements for my plane reservation to return home.

Q. When is your plane reservation to return home as scheduled?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

A. It hasn't been completed. That is why I am still remaining here.

Q. Were you doing the telephoning yourself or were some agents of the department doing the work for you?

A. Some agents of the department were doing the work for me.

Q. Who?

A. All I know about it was Mr. Kaiser called someone in another office. They were working on it. That is all I know about it.

Q. You had lunch, then, you say, with Mr. Woolley and Mr. Kesler. When did you talk to Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Barber?

A. I talked to Mr. Barber on the way down here to this meeting, this court session now, sir, out in the hallway here.

Q. How long did you talk to him?

A. Just said hello to him.

Q. No conversation at all about your testimony?

A. None whatever, sir.

Q. Did you have any conversation with any of those four people today concerning a card that you signed at the Hotel Shaw, the last one that was shown to you, the one that was [3976] marked for identification?

A. Do you mean by that during the noon hour?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have a talk with anyone after the noon hour about this card? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

Q. No discussion on the subject of this card at all, is that right? A. No, sir, it is not right.

Q. Did you have a conversation with somebody about it? A. Not during the noon hour.

Q. I said after the noon hour.

A. No, sir, not after the noon hour.

Q. When did you have a conversation with them? A. This morning.

Q. What time?

A. Oh, I would say roughly between 9:30 and quarter to 10 or somewhere.

Q. With whom did you have the talk then?

A. Mr. Kesler.

Q. Where? A. In this building.

Q. Between 9:30 and a quarter to 10?

A. Approximately that time, I would judge.

Q. Did Mr. Kesler then have the card with him?

A. He did.

Q. Where did that conversation take place?

A. That took place in this building on the fourth floor.

Q. Who else was present?

A. It wasn't really a conversation over it. He showed me the card.

Q. Who was present?

A. Mr. Kaiser, Mr. Woolley and Mr. Paisley.

Q. How about Mr. Donohue? A. No, sir.

Q. Where did that conversation take place?

A. In this building on the fourth floor.

Q. What was said about the card at that time?

A. At that time all that was said about it was

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

Mr. Kesler showed me the card and said, "Does that look like your signature?"

I looked at it and I thought for the time being it was the same card I had seen here in court, and I said, "Yes, that is my signature," and that is all that was said about it.

Q. Had you ever seen that card before from the time you signed it? A. No, sir.

Q. So from the time you signed the card back in 1940 up until this morning you had never seen that card; is that right? [3978]

A. That is right, sir.

Q. Did you see a photostat of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. The card had never been shown to you by any person? A. That is what I said.

Q. You had not seen it from the time you signed it until you saw it this morning?

A. That is right.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. I am sure of that.

Q. He asked you this morning if this was your signature and that is all that was said, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Were these other gentlemen present when he showed you that card?

A. They were present, yes, sir.

Q. Tell us exactly what he said. Where did he produce the card from, first?

A. I got here a little bit before he did this morning, apparently, because he came in with the card, showed it to me as I was standing in the room upstairs.

Q. Tell us, then, the full conversation with you at that time.

A. I will repeat again that he asked me, "Does that look like your signature? I looked at it, and as I have indicated to you, it looked to me like the card that was handed to me by your [3979] partner yesterday.

Q. Just a minute, if you will. Will you show this witness that card again, please.

That is admitted in evidence, is it not, Mr. Mitchell?

The Clerk: Yes, it is, Mr. Hallinan, Government's No. 9 in evidence.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): You saw that card, Government's Exhibit No. 9. Now, when Mr. Kesler spoke to you about the card, when he first came in, did he have the card in his hand? Did he produce it from a pocket, an envelope, a file, or what?

A. I assumed he produced it from an inside coat pocket apparently.

Q. Don't assume; what you saw.

A. That is what I seen. He produced it from an inside coat pocket.

Q. Tell us exactly what he did with the card and what he said to you when he so produced it.

A. When he produced it he pulled the card out something similar to this (indicating), and said, "Say, Lew, I have a registration card here from the Shaw Hotel. Does that look like your signature?"

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

I looked at it as I am looking at it now. I said, "Yes, that looks like my signature."

Q. What else did he say?

A. He wanted to know who this man was, this other signature [3980] on there, and I told him at the time I couldn't recall. It could possibly have been Paul Kline, because he stayed with me.

Q. What else was said?

A. That is all in reference to this card.

Q. You say that he asked you who was the other person whose name was on there and what is the name that is on that card?

A. Well, it looks to me like it would be either William Clerk or William Clark. The "William," "Wm.," is very easy to distinguish. The other is C-l-e-r-k or C-l-a-r-k, I believe, as nearly as I can distinguish it.

Q. Is that all that was then said about that card or the contents of the card?

A. That was all, sir.

Q. Was anything said about the use of the card? What use would be made of the card in the court inquiry today?

A. There may have been, but not in my presence.

Q. No, I say to you within your hearing.

A. No, sir.

Q. Nothing was said at all? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

Q. Nothing was asked you about the date?

A. No, sir. I told you to the best of my recollection of the discussion that was held this morning with reference to this card, sir. [3981]

Q. Except for that discussion now, have you had any conversation about that card with any of these people from the time you signed the card up until this morning? A. No, sir.

Q. Has any person connected with the Government, that is, the Immigration Department or the attorneys or anyone else, ever mentioned that card to you from the time you signed it back in 1940 up until Kesler produced it this morning?

A. No, sir, I didn't know anything about this card. The first I saw it was this morning.

Q. Do you mean to tell me that Kaiser never mentioned it to you?

A. I mean to tell you exactly that, sir.

Q. Nor Donohue?

A. I mean to tell you exactly that.

Q. Paisley? A. That is correct.

Q. Kidder? A. That is right.

Q. No questions have been addressed to you about that card?

A. Sir, I am under oath up here and I honestly tell you no, sir.

Q. Did you indicate to anybody at any time whether or not that card confirmed your remembrance as to the time that you had the meeting that you say was a Communist meeting out [3982] in the Sunset district?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

A. I had no occasion to make any such reference as that, sir.

Q. You are sure you did not, is that right?

A. I am positively sure I did not.

Q. Do you know a man named William Clark?

A. I don't know a man by the name of William Clark.

Q. Or William Clerk? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named William Clark who is a member of the Iron Workers Union in this neighborhood? A. No, I——

Mr. Hallinan: Might I have the card again?

Q. I notice on this card that it says, "Michener, L. H. Michener and 1." That means some other person occupied the room with you; that is right, isn't it? A. That is right.

Q. Who was the person?

A. To my recollection, as I have indicated to you, it was Paul Kline. We stayed together the night before we came up here——

Q. No. Just a minute, if you will. I know what you stated before. I asked you who was the person who occupied this room with you at the Shaw Hotel on August 21, 1940?

A. To the best of my recollection, I would have to say to you [3983] it was Paul Kline.

Q. I don't want you to have to say anything. Tell me who was the person so far as you remember.

Mr. Paisley: That is argumentative.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

A. So far as I remember, it was Paul Kline.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, yesterday in answer to the following questions in this court do you remember giving the following answers:

> "Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, to come to this meeting, the first one of the two which you described Harry Bridges as being present, you say that you came up from Southern California with a man named Kline, is that true?
> "A. That is correct; Paul Kline.
> "Q. Paul Kline. And how did you get up here? Did you drive or take the plane or what?
>
> "A. I drove my automobile.
> "Q. And then you and Mr. Kline, I suppose, stayed together while you were here in San Francisco?
> "A. Didn't stay together here, but we did stay together on the way up as a result of some motor trouble I had. We stayed together at a motel down the line.
> "Q. And you went to the Shaw Hotel?
> "A. That is correct, sir.
> "Q. Did you stay there alone or with any other person?
> "A. Stayed there alone." [3984]

Did you give that testimony?

A. If you are reading exact from the transcript, I would say that I gave that testimony.

Q. On several occasions on which Mr. MacInnis has questioned you on the transcript or on letters, you have given us somewhat similar answers. "If you are reading from the transcript I said that," and so forth. Is the veracity of whatever statement you make dependent upon what written commitment the attorney examining you is able to make of you?

A. I am not quite clear on what you are trying to drive at.

Q. I mean this: Is it your position that you will say anything that suits your convenience or that suits the purposes of the gentlemen who brought you here, unless you know that you can be contradicted by some document that you have signed or some testimony that you have given before? Is that your attitude?

A. I don't think that is my attitude.

Q. What do you mean by saying that if that is what you said here, then that is your statement?

A. You were reading quite a long, lengthy sentence. I didn't know but what you might omit a word and then have me indicate that is exactly what I said, and then I would be in the same position I am right now with your cross-examination.

Q. You are of such a nature, sir, that knowing that no one can trust you, you will trust nobody, is that correct? [3985]

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if your Honor please, and ask that the jury be charged that there is no implication of truth in what Mr. Hallinan has said.

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

The Court: Sustained. The jury is admonished to disregard it.

(A transcript was handed to the witness.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Is that your testimony?

A. That is my testimony.

Q. Do you want to change it now?

A. No, sir.

Q. You noticed from the wires that were displayed to you this morning and were offered here as a defendants' exhibit for identification, the Court declining to permit their introduction in evidence, that you sent a wire to Harry Bridges from St. Louis on July 26, 1940. Do you remember that?

A. I told you, your partner, that I didn't remember that.

Q. What was happening in St. Louis in July, 1940, do you remember? A. I do.

Q. What was it?

A. We had an Auto Workers convention in progress then.

Q. Were you a delegate?

A. I was not only a delegate but an officer of the organization at the time.

Q. Were you reelected at that convention?

A. I was.

Q. Were the facts of that convention pretty clear in your mind when you were talking with Kaiser, Kesler and so forth? [3986-A]

Mr. Paisley: I thought — wait a minute. I thought the further examination by another counsel of the witness, Your Honor, was to be confined to the card and that the fact that William Clark's name appears on it. Now, we are going back over other territory.

The Court: Well, this was a matter that was up this morning. I will overrule the objection.

A. I don't recall ever discussing that St. Louis convention with—who all did you ask me if I discussed it with again, please?

Q. In fixing the time that you attended the meeting in San Francisco, concerning which you have testified here, in the Sunset District, had you employed the fact that you were at the convention in St. Louis as a means of establishing the time at which this meeting was held in the Sunset District?

A. No, sir.

Q. That did not help keep it within your mind or bring it to your recollection, is that true?

A. That is true.

Q. When you testified before the grand jury in this proceeding, did you testify that the meeting in the Sunset District was approximately August 28, 1940? A. I did not.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. To the best of my recollection, I am sure of it. I don't [3987] recall using any particular date. I think I have indicated there, as I have indicated to you here in this court, that it was late in 1940.

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me just one moment.

Q. How long have you known Paul Kline?

A. I have known Paul Kline since about the first part of 1938.

Q. What was the name of the motel that you stayed at with Paul Kline on the way up here?

A. I am sorry, I couldn't tell you that. It was one of these little motels.

Q. What town was it in?

A. About 200 miles down the line. I had motor car trouble and we pulled off the road at one of these little places along the road and stayed.

Q. You can't tell us what town it was in?

A. It wasn't in a town, it was a little motel alongside the road, down the line. I would estimate around 200 miles. I left Los Angeles on Sunday and started up here on Sunday, and then we had this car trouble, so I didn't get in here until the following day.

Q. And you say that Paul Kline was a member of the Communist Party? A. I did.

Q. What position, if any, did he hold?

A. He was secretary of the Los Angeles County.

Q. At that time? A. At that time.

Q. And what was your position?

A. At that time I was the Coast Coast Director for the United Auto Workers.

Q. No. I say in the Communist Party.

A. Well, my position has always been, in the Communist Party, just as a member of the Communist Party. I never had any official position in the party.

Q. Now, you say that you are not sure who the

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

William Clark or Clerk, who signed his name on that document, is?

A. I honestly say that to you.

Q. And you—have you some notion about using the word "honestly" or "I am trying to tell the truth," or something that adds something to the dignity of your testimony, sir?

A. I can't help it; if the Court will instruct me to give my testimony differently, I will. I am giving it to you to the best way I can. I did not rehearse my testimony when I came here.

Q. No. I am talking about the use of the word "honestly."

A. If it will suit your convenience, I will try to omit it in my future answers to you, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear the phrase, "Methinks the lady doth protest too much"?

A. Don't know whether I ever did. I don't see what——[3989]

Q. Well, you have heard it now. Let me ask you this, Mr. Michener. In the room in the Clark Hotel, were they twin beds or single beds on the 29th of August, 1940, or the 26th of August?

A. I wouldn't recall whether they were single beds or——

Q. Or double beds?

A. Or double beds. But I thought you had someone here from the hotel. Probably they could have given you——

Q. No one asked you f[illegible] the suggestion. If you will just confine yourself to the answers, you will have difficulty enough. Now, you don't remember, then, whether the person who slept in that room under the name of William Clark slept in the same bed with you, do you?

A. No, I don't know of a William Clark or Clerk. I told you honestly that I know no such man.

Q. Well, there was some person slept in the same room with you, at any rate, wasn't there?

A. I faintly recollect there was.

Q. Well, let's just call him a mysterious gink, or something like that.

Mr. Paisley: Hold on now. He has asked him a question. He ought to be civil enough——

Mr. Hallinan: He answered that question. Didn't you answer that question?

Mr. Paisley: I don't——[3990]

Mr. Hallinan: May I have the Reporter read the answer?

The Court: Read the answer, please, Mr. Reporter.

(Record read.)

Mr. Hallinan: Do you want to add something to his answer?

Mr. Paisley: No. I just wanted you to be civil and polite and let the witness answer the question, and don't break in on him. [3990-A]

Mr. Hallinan: Well, if you will teach me to be polite more by example than precept,——

The Court: I hope we will not have to go through this again. Strike the last question, that reference to "gink." And would you rephrase that, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: You don't want me to use that phrase to describe the person?

The Court: I am sure the jurors are not familiar with it. I am not familiar with the connotation of "gink," very frankly.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, years ago they used to have an expression, in my lost youth, that anyone whose identity was not established, they called them "the mysterious gink." It is a great phrase in the Police Department. Anyone who is not known, or who is described as having a round neck and his arms bending in the middle, is put down as a mysterious gink. However, I only say that in illustration of the phrase. If your Honor would prefer some other designation, I will make it.

Q. This man you don't remember, you don't remember whether he slept in the same bed with you? You don't remember who he was, but there was somebody there, is that right?

A. Apparently there was, because the card indicates that. I have told you about all I can recall about the situation. Mr. Paul Kline and I were together, and if anyone stayed [3991] there with me, why, it would have been Paul Kline. There was no one else, apparently, that was here with me on that particular occasion.

Q. Now, when you were testifying this morning in answer to questions being put to you by Mr. MacInnis, you refused to give any date upon which you stopped at the hotel Shaw in the year 1940, didn't you?

A. I don't think I refused. I didn't know.

Q. Yes, you said you didn't know. But the very morning of this day that he was examining you, you had seen this card that showed you had stayed there on the 26th of August, 1940, and on the 27th of August, 1940, is that right?

A. No, sir, not entirely. I saw that card with my name on it, and to be honest with you, I never scrutinized it for a date. Pardon me, I never scrutinized it for a date.

Q. Yes. And nobody called the date to your attention? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't know what year this card represented or anything else, did you?

A. I never looked at that. I looked mainly at my signature, which was scrawled out there rather largely, boldly, on the front of the card, and——

Mr. MacInnis: I am going to ask that the jurors be handed the card now, if the Court please, so as to show that the date is typed or stamped in blue ink very plainly on the front of [3992] the card. If the jurors will pass the card around?

(Card handed to jury by Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, sir, yesterday Mr. MacInnis showed you a card dated similarly to this, but February 9, 1940, and having the name "Tauschley" or some such name, written over yours. Do you remember that? A. I do.

Q. All right. And you noticed on that card that the date was stamped on the front in blue ink, February 9, 1940; correct?

A. I noticed it here on the stamp.

Q. That was called to your attention yesterday, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. This morning when this gentleman showed you the card that is now in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 9, your attention was called to the fact that the name "Clerk" or "Clark" was also written above your name, isn't that right?

A. I don't think the record will show that. I don't recall it being called to my attention here in the court this morning, that that was brought out.

Q. No, this morning, when you were up in the office with Messrs. Paisley, Kaiser and so forth, and Mr. Kesler showed you this card, he called your attention to the fact that the name Clerk or Clark was written above yours, isn't that right?

A. That's right. [3993]

Q. And he asked you who that person was, isn't that right? A. That's right.

Q. And you answered that it was probably Paul Kline, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you knew that the document he was showing you had something to do with the inquiry that had been made and was being made as to when the so-called Communist meeting took place out in the Sunset district, isn't that right?

A. No, I can't go that far with you.

Q. And you never—you didn't bother to look and see what date was on it?

(Testimony of Lewis Herbert Michener, Jr.)

A. No. I really should have, I guess.

Q. Oh, yes. And nobody bothered to point it out to you? A. I didn't quite catch you.

Q. Nobody bothered to point it out to you?

A. Nobody bothered to point it out to me.

Q. Liar, perjurer and stool pigeon are the names that you have often applied to people who have testified precisely as you have testified, isn't that right?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases, and ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard it.

The Court: The objection is sustained, the jury is admonished to disregard the statement. [3994]

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions of the witness, if your Honor pleases. And due to the lateness of the hour, if your Honor pleases, may we adjourn until tomorrow, and may this witness be finally excused?

The Court: The witness is excused. You are excused.

(Witness excused.)

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. And may I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is finally submitted to you.

(Thereupon, an adjournment was taken until Friday, January 13, 1950, at 10:00 a.m.) [3995]

Friday Morning Session

January 13, 1950, 10:00 o'Clock

The Clerk: United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

The Clerk: The witness' name?

Mr. Donohue: George H. Wilson.

The Clerk: Call George H. Wilson.

GEORGE EDWARD HAULFISH WILSON

called on behalf of the United States; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please?

A. George Edward Haulfish Wilson.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Wilson?

A. In Los Angeles.

Q. And what is your business or occupation?

A. I am a newspaper man.

Q. By what newspaper are you now employed?

A. Los Angeles Daily News.

Q. How long have you lived in Los Angeles, Mr. Wilson?

A. Since January 1, 1948—or June 1, 1948.

Q. And where were you born? [3996]

A. Charlotteville, Virginia.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. And did there come a time when your family left Virginia?

A. Yes, I was about two years old.

Q. And to what state did you go, Mr. Wilson?

A. Montana.

Q. And how long did you live in the State of Montana? A. Until 1934.

Q. Can you briefly trace your educational or formal educational background in the State of Montana?

A. I was educated in the public schools, went to the Kentucky Military Institute for one year, went to the University of Montana for approximately two years.

Q. What was your major study?

A. Journalism.

Q. Upon leaving the University of Montana, what, generally, was your employment in the State of Montana? A. Newspaper work, entirely.

Q. And when you came to San Francisco in 1934, would you state generally what your occupation was here until you went to Los Angeles?

A. Newspaper work.

Q. Did there come a time, Mr. Wilson, during your residence in San Francisco when you became active in the labor movement? A. There did.

Q. And will you generally indicate the nature of your activity [3997] in the labor movement in San Francisco?

A. Oh, it started with soon after I came to town, with the American Newspaper Guild, which I joined before I went to work. And after I had gone to work, in the Guild, and the Guild became affiliated with the A. F. of L., sir, I was a delegate to the A. F. of L. Labor Council here. When we were eventually thrown out of the Council, the CIO Council was organized and I became its president.

Q. Am I correct in stating that you were the first president of the San Francisco CIO Council?

Mr. Hallinan: I object to that as leading and suggestive, if the Court please.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): May I ask you, were you the first president of the San Francisco CIO Council?

Mr. Hallinan: Same objection, if it please Your Honor, just repeating it.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I was.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): How long did you remain president of the San Francisco CIO Council?

A. Until the winter of 1941, I believe.

Q. Did there come a time, Mr. Wilson, and if so, where and when, that you became a member of the Communist Party? A. Yes.

Q. Would you state your best recollection as to when it was? [3998]

A. It was either in 1940 or 1941, I am not sure.

Q. And where did you join?

A. Well, I have talked with a man by the name of Walter Lambert——

Mr. Hallinan: Just a moment. I object to this.

if the Court please, as hearsay, not binding upon the defendants, not in their presence.

Mr. Donohue: May I withdraw that question, if Your Honor pleases?

The Court: All right.

Mr. Donohue: And ask the question:——

Q. What were the circumstances under which you joined the Communist Party?

Mr. Hallinan: If the Court please, object to it—res inter alia actae, matters done outside the presence of the defendants, hearsay, not binding upon them.

Mr. Donohue: May I say, if Your Honor pleases, with respect to this question as with respect to a like objection made to similar questions heretofore that I believe this testimony is admissible not as binding upon the defendants, but as proof of the circumstances under which this witness did in fact became a member of the Communist Party.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, where his membership in the Communist Party might also be a matter at issue, if the Court please, it could not be proved in that fashion; that is not the best evidence.

The Court: The objection is overruled for the reason [3999] heretofore disclosed in the record by the Court, and the jury is again admonished, as I have admonished you in the past, that testimony with respect to the entrance of this witness into the Communist Party, and the surrounding circumstances and the incidents related thereto are not binding upon the defendants or either or any of them. [3999-A]

A. Well, the circumstances, if I understand the question, were that I was asked to join and I joined.

Q. Did you fill out an application for membership? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you receive a membership card?

A. I later received a membership card.

Q. Can you tell us from whom you received a card? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Did you pay dues as a member of the Communist Party? A. Occasionally, yes.

Q. And over how long a period did you continue your membership in the Communist Party?

A. Until the—I would say until the spring of 1945.

Q. Was your membership in the Communist Party during that period wholly within the area of the City of San Francisco?

A. I belonged to the Party at no other place, if that is what you mean.

Q. During the period of your membership in the Communist Party did you attend any meetings of the Communist Party?

Mr. Hallinan: I object to this as calling for an opinion and conclusion and no proper foundation laid. The circumstances of the meetings might be detailed so the Court and jury could determine the nature of them.

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor please, a person who has joined an organization is certainly qualified to [4000] testify as to whether he ever attended a meeting of that organization.

Mr. Hallinan: We have heard that statement numerous times. I contend the foundation should be laid and the circumstances shown so the jury can determine that ultimate fact.

Mr. Donohue: As Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis frequently say, if your Honor please, this question is obviously purely preliminary to what will follow.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Donohue: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. I did.

Q. About how often, Mr. Wilson, would you say you attended meetings of the Communist Party?

A. Oh, the group that I belonged to meet, I think it was, once a week, supposedly once a week. We did not meet that often.

Q. May I ask you, sir, upon the receipt of your membership card to which group were you assigned?

A. It is my recollection that I was assigned to a special group known as a special committee.

Q. Can you tell us where generally meetings of that group known as a special committee were held?

A. At that time they were being held on Pierce Street. [4001]

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. By whom were you notified, if you can now recall, of the time and place of the meetings?

A. We usually had—I will withdraw that. I was notified by numerous people. Nobody, I believe, had the job of telling us. The word was passed around.

Q. The notification was not in writing?

A. Oh, no.

Q. And at these meetings which you attended, Mr. Wilson, did you know all of the persons who attended those meetings?

A. Yes, I knew them all.

Q. And did you know each of the persons who attended the meetings that you have described to be also members of the same committee or group of the Communist Party as yourself?

Mr. Hallinan: Just a minute. I object to that, if your Honor please, as calling for an opinion and conclusion, and furthermore we have here a different situation. Now it is disclosed that this gentleman never filed any application. We should know what were the circumstances under which these other persons who are charged now or alleged to be members of it became members. In other words, we have had described heretofore a certain procedure for becoming a member of the Communist Party, and I submit it is obvious now the mere opinion of the witness that he is or is not a member of the Communist Party cannot be binding upon this jury. There was a procedure necessary for becoming such a member. Now there are [4002] certain people proposed to be identified as members, and how can the witness' impression or his opinion convey any authenticity?

Mr. Donohue: While Mr. Hallinan's observation may be well taken as to the degree to which the statement of the witness may be accepted, it certainly cannot go as to its admissibility.

The Court: This matter has been passed on by the Court in other instances, and perhaps under slightly different circumstances. I will overrule the objection. You may cross-examine on that subject.

The Witness: Repeat the question.

Mr. Donohue: Will you read the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read.)

A. No, I couldn't answer that question in the affirmative. Some of the meetings were attended by—only by people who were assigned to that committee. There were other meetings that other people came to who were not members of the committee.

Q. During the time, Mr. Wilson, that you were a member of the Communist Party you were also active in the labor movement in the city of San Francisco? A. I was.

Q. And during that period of time did you faithfully or otherwise attend meetings, the nature of which was purely a matter concerned with your duties in the labor movement and the persons who were present were persons who may or may not have been [4003] members of the Communist Party?

Mr. Hallinan: I object to that, if the Court please, as complex, unintelligible, and not a proper question. He can ask what meetings were attended and what was the subject under discussion, but we should have each separate meeting so we can follow it.

The Court: Can you understand the question, Mr. Wilson?

The Witness: It is a little complex for me.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Have you ever attended labor union meetings, the members present being known to you only as members of the labor group who were conducting that meeting?

Mr. Hallinan: If the Court please, that sounds as unintelligible as the other. The proper method, if I may be permitted to interpose an objection—when we are cross-examining people numerous continued objections are interposed and we permit them to be finished. If the Court please, it seems to me the only proper method of doing this now is questions can be asked as to meetings and the persons who attended and the subjects under discussion. But to ask the witness a general wide question of that kind calls for an opinion and conclusion outside the scope of what the witness is permitted to testify to. There is no reason why there should be these short-cuts so as to make a group of all meetings and commit the witness to some such statement.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Mr. Donohue: I appreciate the suggestion, if the Court [4004] please, from counsel.

Mr. Hallinan: I am not making a suggestion, your Honor, at all. I am making an objection to the Court.

Mr. Donohue: I think, however, I should be permitted to ask the question.

Mr. Hallinan: I certainly do not pretend to presume I can instruct counsel in anything, and I do not intend to do it.

Mr. Donohue: I think I should be permitted to ask the question in my own way, and if the witness does not understand the question I think he can so state, and I will then reframe it.

The Court: The witness may answer the question.

Mr. Donohue: Will you read the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read.)

A. If I understand the question, it is if I attended labor meetings at which labor members attended. The answer is Yes, if that is the question.

Q. Mr. Wilson, did you ever attend meetings of the Communist Party at which no person other than persons known to you to be members of the Communist Party were present?

Mr. Hallinan: Just a minute. The same objection, if the Court please, no proper foundation as to who the persons were, what meetings were held, or the knowledge of the witness of those persons. I submit that is calling for an opinion and [4005] conclusion and containing too many subjects in one general question.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Mr. Donohue: It is again only a preliminary question, if your Honor please.

The Court: It is overruled, and as you proceed with the witness, may I suggest, Mr. Donohue, in connection with any given person identified, lay the foundation and elaborate thereon.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor. I must ask the preliminary question first.

Will you read the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read.)

A. I did.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Wilson, do you know the defendant Harry Bridges?

A. I do.

Q. Do you know the defendant Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the defendant J. R. Robertson?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see them in the courtroom?

A. Yes, I see them.

Q. Will you indicate where they are?

A. Well, Harry is sitting there leaning back. Henry is next to him, and Bob is over at the other end of the table. [4006]

Q. I assume by "Harry" you refer to Harry Bridges? A. I do.

Q. By "Henry" you refer to Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. And by "Bob" you refer to J. R. Robertson?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever attend a Communist Party meeting at which the defendant J. R. Robertson was also present?

Mr. Hallinan: Just a minute. Same objection, if the Court please, no proper foundation laid.

Mr. Donohue: Again it is a preliminary question.

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me. If I may be permitted to finish the objection. We make the objection, if the Court please, no proper foundation has been laid as to who were the persons present, and that meeting should be identified and the persons present first before any general characterization is placed upon it. It is calling for an opinion and conclusion on a non-expert matter.

The Court: Overruled.

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): And did you ever attend a Communist Party meeting at which Henry Schmidt was also present? A. Yes. [4007]

Q. Can you tell us where and when it was that you attended a Communist Party meeting at which J. R. Robertson was also present?

A. I attended several meetings with Robertson up at—in an apartment in North Beach, and my memory is that it was around in 1944, 1945.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Wilson, to what unit of the Communist Party Mr. J. R. Robertson was assigned?

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Mr. Hallinan: Just a moment. Object to that, if the Court please. No foundation laid, calling for an opinion and conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Donohue: If the objector will permit the question to be answered, I think the answer will answer the objection itself, if Your Honor pleases. If he doesn't know, obviously he can state so, that he doesn't know. If he does know——

Mr. Hallinan: That isn't what he asked him.

Mr. Donohue: I asked him if he knew.

Mr. Hallinan: And it is assuming something not in evidence, that Mr. Robertson was ever in the Communist Party or ever assigned to any portion of it. A violent assumption on counsel's part—in fact, a trick question.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, I ask that the—well, I will pass it. May I say, if Your Honor pleases, that the witness has already testified that he is a member or was a member of the Communist Party, assigned to a unit, that he attended weekly [4008] meetings of that unit. He has stated that he has attended a Communist Party meeting at which the defendant J. R. Robertson was present, has indicated his best recollection of the time and place. I think he is certainly qualified to answer the question, "Do you know to what unit of the Communist Party Mr. J. R. Robertson belonged?"

Mr. Hallinan: If the Court please, a great deal of foundation would have to be laid for that, as to what he knew about Mr. Robertson, whether Mr. Robertson was a member of the party, how he would know that, what application were made and so forth. That is assuming something not in evidence. The witness has not said that Mr. Robertson was a member of the Communist Party nor assigned to any part of it. Only that he attended a meeting.

The Court: Much of that subject matter is cross-examination. The witness has testified that he knew the defendant Robertson, that he attended meetings in a North Beach apartment with the defendant Robertson. Now he is asked as to a particular unit. I think the question is proper.

Mr. Donohue: Would you read the question to the witness?

The Court: You might answer that, Mr. Wilson, as to a particular unit, if any, to which Mr. Robertson was attached, if he was attached to a particular unit.

A. Well, it was my understanding he was attached to the same unit I was. [4009]

Mr. Hallinan: Ask that be stricken out, if the Court please,—"my understanding"—as stating an opinion and conclusion.

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor pleases, again that it is a matter he may be cross examined about.

The Court: The motion is denied.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Would you say, Mr.

Wilson, that you attended one or more than one meeting of the Communist Party at which the defendant J. R. Robertson was present?

A. More than one.

Q. And with respect to the defendant Henry Schmidt, did you ever attend a meeting of the Communist Party at which Mr. Schmidt was present?

A. I did.

Q. And would you say that you attended one or more than one? A. More than one.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Mervyn Rathborne? A. I do.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of William C. Schneidermann? A. I do.

Q. Do you know a man who is referred to as "Slim" Connolly? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Lou Goldblatt? A. Yes.

Q. And you do know Harry Bridges? [4010]

A. I do.

Q. Did you ever attend a meeting with the persons named? A. I did.

Q. If so, will you state the time and place?

A. The place was in the Governor Hotel. The time I don't know.

Q. What is your best recollection of the time, Mr. Wilson?

A. Somewhere between 1942 and 1944.

Q. Are you able to tell us in whose room at the Governor Hotel the meeting took place?

A. I think Rathborne made the reservation.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. And can you tell us first what was the subject matter under discussion at that meeting?

A. Some difference of opinion between Rathborne and Goldblatt, as I recall.

Q. Do you recall over what the difference of opinion was?

Mr. Hallinan: I object to that, your Honor. What should be done is to ask him to state what the conversation was, as nearly as the witness can remember.

Mr. Donohue: If we can once find the subject matter, if your Honor pleases then I will ask him if he can recall what was said.

Mr. Hallinan: If he can recall that subject matter, he might——

The Court: Overruled. He may state the difference of opinion that existed as to the overall [4011] policies.

Mr. Donohue: That is all I wanted to know, your Honor.

The Court: And then the detail, if he recalls the detail.

A. The meeting,—and I don't have a very good recollection of it, I mean, of what was discussed—was, as I recall, called by Rathborne to make a complaint against Goldblatt's interference in the State Council work.

Q. Can you recall what was said by any one of the persons who were present, Mr. Wilson?

A. I can not.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. Would you enumerate for me the persons who were present?

A. Bridges was there, Schneidermann, Rathborne, Goldblatt, Connolly and myself, sir, as I remember.

Q. Can you tell us whether those were all of the persons who were present?

A. I don't recall any more.

Q. And who was Mr. Schneidermann, if you know?

Mr. Hallinan: Object to that, if the Court please, as calling for an opinion and conclusion; no proper foundation laid.

The Court: Overruled.

A. He was the state secretary, I believe, of the Communist Party.

Q. And who was the man referred to as "Slim" Connolly?

A. He was the president at that time, I think, of the State CIO Council.

Q. And who was the man described as Lou Goldblatt? [4012]

A. He was secretary of the International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union.

Q. And who was the man designated as Mervyn Rathborne?

A. He was the secretary of the California CIO Council.

Q. I ask you, Mr. Wilson, was this meeting a labor meeting or a meeting of a group of the Communist Party to discuss a labor problem.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Mr. Hallinan: Just a moment, if the Court please. Now that is calling for an opinion and conclusion. The gentleman has already stated the persons present, the nature of the discussion, and there is no reason or no logic and no sanction for him now putting a designation upon it, no reason why the witness should be either required or permitted to put any designation on it at all. He has described the meeting, he has stated what the subject was, the persons was and where it took place. The jury and the Court can draw their own conclusions on it.

Mr. Donohue: Once again I say to your Honor here is a witness who was prominent in the——

Mr. Hallinan: Now, I object to arguing that.

The Court: Yes, I will overrule the objection. Objection overruled. [4013]

Mr. Donohue: Would you read the question to the witness, please?

(Question read.)

A. It was a group of Communists discussing the labor problem.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness.

Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, Mr. Wilson, before you joined the Communist Party you had attended numerous meetings at which Communists were present, had you? A. I had.

Q. And,——

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

A. I had attended several, yes.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I had attended——.

I guess what I should do, your Honor, would be to say that I don't understand the question in its form. I could answer it many ways; it is obvious I could answer it many ways.

The Court: Well, Mr. Hallinan, will you reframe it?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, surely.

Q. I say, before you joined the Communist Party at all, and while you were in the labor movement in San Francisco from 1934 to 1940 or 1941, I take it you attended meetings at which Communists were present, it that right? A. Oh, yes. [4014]

Q. And did you attend meetings at which Communists were present at which you were the only non-Communist? A. I don't know.

Q. In other words, there wouldn't be—there might be people there who would or would not be Communists, so far as you know, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you say that you never filed or signed or filled out any application?

A. That is the best of my recollection.

Q. But sometime a membership card was delivered to you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how long after you—well, withdraw that.

And you say that you occasionally paid dues to the Party? A. That's right.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. Now, with relation to meetings that were attended by you, that is, meetings of Communists, before you became a member of the Party, with relation to what subjects were those meetings being held?

A. Well, I attended one out at Civic Auditorium where Browder made a speech one time, I think. That was a meeting, a public meeting.

Q. Did you attend private meetings also where they were present?

A. There were meetings of—many labor meetings at which [4015] Communists were in attendance, purely labor meetings. I have attended social affairs at which Communists have been present.

Q. Now, you say that you met Mr. Robertson at the meeting—at several meetings that were held at North Beach, is that right?

A. That was my——

Q. You never saw any Communist Party book that was ever issued to Mr. Robertson?

A. No, I have never seen one.

Q. You never saw any application ever signed by him? A. No, I did not.

Q. Never saw him pay any dues?

A. I don't think I ever saw him pay dues.

Q. And the same answers as to Mr. Schmidt, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And the same answers as to Mr. Bridges, is that true? A. Right.

Q. The meeting that you say was called at the Governor Hotel related to matters, you said, of the

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

State Council work—that is, the CIO; is that right?

A. Yes; Rathborne asked me to go to it. I went with him.

Q. Where is the Governor Hotel?

A. Oh, it is down—it is right around the corner from where the ILWU building is now. The little red streetcar comes down the street there, just a block back of Golden Gate [4016] Avenue. The street—I don't know what it is.

Mr. Hallinan: I beg your pardon. I missed the last——

The Court: Read the answer.

The Witness: I don't recall the name of the street, your Honor, it is on.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, would you like to take a short recess?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes.

The Court: We will take a short recess, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, the morning recess. May I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion on this matter until it is submitted to you. You may retire for the recess.

(Recess.) [4017]

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Mr. Wilson, after you—at any time in your career did you work for the United States Government? I mean, within recent years? A. I did.

Q. When?

A. From December 1945 until the summer of 1947.

(Testimony of George Wilson.)

Q. Was that a civil service job?

A. It was.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all. No further questions.

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions of the witness. May the witness be excused?

The Court: The witness is excused.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, this has been for me, at least, a rather exhausting week. I have been ill with a cold. Would your Honor consider the possibility of an adjournment until Monday morning?

Mr. Hallinan: We would just as soon proceed, your Honor. Now, one of the reasons would be this, to be quite frank: if they have a wtiness they can produce here, at least we will have Saturday and Sunday to find out what we can find out about him. And we shouldn't be constantly attempted to be taken by surprise. Now, the only purpose of adjourning this until Monday is so that we can't have time to inquire into these witnesses.

Now, your Honor, you see how closehaul—we sailed with Mr. Ross. It was just the last minute, after motions had been [4018] made by the witness himself and counsel, to have the witness excused—why, then, we discovered the thing. Now, if they have an important witness, or if they have any witness, why not let them put him on and give us a couple of days. This isn't a game; we shouldn't be caught in some kind of a net, that we are excluded and precluded from finding out things about these people. Let's look them over and then we will have Saturday and Sunday, and perhaps we will have some information, if there be any information. There may not be. But if there is, why can't we have a couple of days? Now, I don't think it has been a week any more exhausting than any other weeks, and everybody seems to be in fine fettle, sound of wind and limb, and I think we should proceed. It seems to me, your Honor, that the sole purpose is, and I think the sole purpose is, to preclude us from ample opportunity to discover what we can about witnesses who testify.

Here is what happens: A man comes from New York, from Los Angeles, from Tennessee or whereever the witness comes from, and then we have to scramble and rush and work night and day. Why, if anyone is exhausted, we should be. But we are not. We are perfectly willing to go ahead, and we would like that time to investigate these people.

Now we also asked some days ago if we could have some indication as to who the witnesses were That was declined and refused. Your Honor suggested that we confer with counsel. [4019] The conference resulted in Mr. MacInnis going over and asking, "Well, can we confer about this thing?", and Mr. Donohue saying, "We have conferred; the answer is no." Now, of what aid is that to anybody? As I say, your Honor, this isn't a game, this isn't some kind of a trap that we move around in. The Court is interested in seeing that the defendants are protected, if there is any evidence that will aid them in breaking down statements that may be made by witnesses who possibly may not testify truthfully—Your Honor wants to afford us that opportunity, I know, and counsel seems to take some queer notion that any trickery or any guile that results in convicting the defendants is legitimate, and he has come out in the papers and said, "We intend to surprise the defendants. They are going to be greatly surprised." By "surprised" substitute "ambushed." That isn't right. Let us find out now, while they put out their witness and question him. Give us a couple of days to find out who he is, what he has had to say, what contrary statements he might have made. We have to run around to Un-American Activities files, union documents, chase people up to Stockton, run people back to Rosenfelt, Massachusetts and New York, in the University of Kentucky; and it is an incredible amount of work, and the fact that we have been enabled in the time that we have to discover as much as we have been able to discover is purely fortuitous and luck, or the dispensation of a Divine Providence. But that is the situation we are in. [4020]

Now, I think, your Honor, that you should make them proceed with their case.

Mr. Donohue: May I say, number one, if your Honor pleases, that when we are in the same position as Mr. Hallinan, when he puts on his defense, we shall not complain if we have not been informed as to the witnesses' identity whom he expects to call. Number two, I had no reason to believe that a witness whom I offered on the stand this morning would be released as shortly as he was, and for that reason I am unprepared to proceed.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, might we have a little compromise, then? Tell us who the next witness is and we will see if we can find out something about him over the weekend.

Mr. Donohue: The next witness will be Miss Georgiana Vermilion, of the Immigration Service.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, all right, that is probably only some little formal thing. But who is the next witness of any consequence who will take some time or who will say anything that we would probably have to controvert? Who is that?

Mr. Donohue: I am unable to say at this moment, if your Honor, pleases.

Mr. Hallinan: He can't mean he is unable to say; he means he won't say. That is what I say, your Honor: this is blackjacking, this is ambushing, this is unfair, and I think the Court should direct Mr. Donohue to tell us now who is this [4021] witness that they are trying to hold over the weekend, so we won't have time to find out anything about him or her.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, this Court can not assume, under the circumstances as outlined by Mr. Donohue, to direct a disclosure of the next witness' name or the following witness. I do not know from day to day, any more than anyone else, I suppose, until the witness' name is disclosed. Now, much has been said by you, Mr. Hallinan, concerning the preparation of the case. I told you and your associate, Mr. MacInnis, that during the course of the trial, if occasion arose, that the Court in the exercise of a sound discretion would grant you reasonable continuance, in the afternoon or over the nightfall or the following morning, to work out your cross examination. I think the record will indicate that this Court has in the past given you latitude.

Mr. Hallinan: We concede that without question, Judge. You have.

The Court: And time. Now, the Ross incident which you referred to——

Mr. Hallinan: If it weren't for your ruling on that, if you hadn't given the latitude that you have just expressed, Ross would have gone out of here without us ever discovering that.

The Court: That may or may not be true. Mr. Ross is always subject to recall; anybody within the United States is [4022] subject to recall under the process of this Court. No one can remove himself from the process of the Court. And upon the request made by you or Mr. MacInnis, he would have been brought back here, or any other witness may be brought back here at any time, that you gentlemen request. At any time you wish I will have a witness returned. [4023]

Mr. MacInnis: May I say this, your Honor: The prosecutor has not asked your Honor to grant a continuance for internal reasons in the preparation of the case. He has not said that he needs time to confer with witnesses or look up information. He says, if you please, that he is exhausted. Your Honor, the defense counsel are not exhausted and the defendants are not exhausted. We are perfectly fresh and ready to go ahead. And I say this to you: Where is the outcry of yesterday, made seven times by Mr. Donohue and Mr. Paisley, that the prosecution was trying to expedite the trial, that we were trying to drag it out, and where is the frost in the pumpkin that Mr. Paisley was talking about? These gentlemen, who are now exhausted and want a recess until Monday, but who yesterday complained that the trial was being stalled because questions were put to witnesses on cross examination? I say if he has a reason, your Honor would be able to act upon it.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I am always willing in any case, be it the Bridges case or any case, to accede to a reasonable request upon the part of counsel for a continuance. The jurors have been subjected to a long strain as well as the Court. We in turn feel the same strain that you gentlemen do, the jurors and the Court—reflectively, perhaps—and the case is wearing on from week to week. It is a long case. Everyone appears to be in very good health, however, in the jury. But this witness whom you spoke of, this [4024] Georgiana——

Mr. Donohue: Vermillion.

The Court: Is she available?

Mr. Donohue: I could get her here, your Honor. I could get her here within a half hour.

Mr. Hallinan: Of course, if she is only going to take a few minutes, we would not suggest going ahead only for that witness.

Mr. Donohue: Of course, my examination of her would be very short, but I am not certain how long thereafter the witness may remain on the stand. But I think I should say to your Honor, for the many weeks of this trial, with the definite problem of never knowing when the next witness can be called, this is the first time we have your Honor for a postponement, and we had no expectation that the witness we called this morning would be released as early as he was, else I would have asked your Honor under any circumstances for this time.

The Court: I think, Mr. Hallinan, that is a fair observation made by Mr. Donohue with respect to the witness George Wilson.

Mr. Hallinan: They must have known he wasn't going to say anything of consequence, your Honor, and there would not be any occasion for cross-examining him.

The Court: I will not make any comment on that. Could [4025] we dispose of this one witness, Georgiana Vermillion, and then have the matter stand over until Monday and start with another witness?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor. It will take a half hour to get her here and get some records I want to ask her to identify.

Mr. Hallinan: There is no use coming back at two o'clock for that, your Honor. So if that is all they are going to produce, I would then say we would not continue to protest.

The Court: In fairness now to Mr. Donohue, I can anticipate or at least understand how he wouldn't have a so-called major witness in readiness in attendance in view of the rather short disposal of the last witness. That is perfectly apparent. Accordingly, if that is the desire of counsel, we will regularly adjourn this court until Monday at ten o'clock, with the same admonition to you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial, nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, your Honor.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Monday, January 16, 1950, at 10:00 a.m.) [4026]

Monday, January 16, 1950, 10:00 A. M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson.

The Court: Stipulated that the jurors are present?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: So stipulated, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Donohue: Would you call the witness, Mrs. Georgiana Vermillion.

The Clerk: Call Mrs. Vermillion.

Mr. Hallinan: I think in the interim, your Honor, that there are one or two matters that we would like to have provided, and we will request them now without interfering with the course of the matter.

The prosecution agreed to bring in here the affidavit of the witness Michener on his application for civil service. We want that.

We also asked the Court to require the prosecution to bring in the affidavit on application for civil service employment signed by the witness Wilson.

And we also asked the Court to request the prosecution to bring into court and turn over to the Clerk a certain record from the Hotel Governor where Mr. Wilson said a meeting took [4027] place, which has now been abstracted from the records of the Hotel Governor and is now retained by the Immigration Department.

We would like to see those three records, your Honor. I think they should be produced.

Mr Donohue: If your Honor please, with respect to the witness Michener, as I told your Honor the other day, we called Washington and asked them to try to locate any such affidavit if there be one.

With respect to the witness Wilson, we shall make like effort. This is the first time that affidavit has been requested, and we shall make every effort to procure it.

With respect to the record of the Governor Hotel, after telephone inquiry on Saturday morning, I advised an agent of the Immigration Service to make the information available by that record to man named Lipsitt, who said he had called as an investigator for the defense. However, I shall be glad to produce the card in court.

And I may say at this time, too, if your Honor pleases, that during the examination of the witness Henry Schrimpf a request was made by the defense counsel for the address of the then hearing examiner, a man by the name of Houser.

We are advised by the California State Bar Association that J. (for John) Everett Houser, who was then a hearing examiner at the Immigration Service, is now engaged in the private practice of the law at the address 814 Security [4028] Building, Long Beach, California.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, I am glad to see that we have such a measure of cooperation now between counsel for the adverse parties.

When Mr. Houser was inquired for in this case, if the Court please, Mr. Donohue said to the Court:

> "I may say to your Honor, as long as counsel has raised the point, that the examiner, from our records, who conducted this hearing, is no longer in the Immigration Service. We have made every possible effort since this matter came to our attention a day or two ago to locate him that we may bring him here, and we can't find him.
> The Court: Are you prepared to disclose his name?
> Mr. Donohue: His name is Houser.
> The Court: How long was he in the Government service?
> Mr. Donohue: I will have to ask Mr. Boyd if he knows.
> Mr. Boyd: I am not prepared to answer, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I can find the information for you.

The Court: At least his name is Houser.

Mr. Donohue: We understood he was an attorney practicing law in Los Angeles. I called the Los Angeles office of the Immigration Service the day before yesterday and asked them to make every human effort to locate him, that I wanted to talk with him." [4029]

Now, your Honor, not as boasting of the superior diligence or activity of the defense, I want to say this: that we surpassed human effort in the matter. The afternoon after this statement was made we called the State Bar of California, and it took the girl fully five minutes before she was able to convey to us the information that Mr. Everett Houser was practicing law in the Security, S-e-c-u-r-i-t-y, Building in Long Beach, and that same evening a gentleman representing us called upon Mr. Houser to verify the fact that he was the officer.

Now, during the Christmas vacation, having occasion to be in Los Angeles, I went down to the Security Building and went in to see Mr. Houser. If further contact becomes necessary for Mr. Donohue or any of his aides, then the building is the largest in Long Beach. Mr. Houser's office is not on the first floor, but you have to take an instrument called an elevator, e-l-e-v-a-t-o-r, and Mr. Everett Houser's name appears, not under "Harvy," "Canfield," "Rossi," or "Dorgan," but Everett Howser, "H-o-w-s-e-r, two t's in the "Everett."

When I met Mr. Howser, I expected of course he would be very diminutive about his person as to easily evade inspection, but strangely enough, he was a man of ordinary size and appearance. He affirmed that he was the same man, and he said that he had been called on the telephone by lawyers for the prosecution a Monday before I called upon him, and that an [4030] agent of the Immigration Authority in Los Angeles had called upon him. Now, I did not find out exactly who that man was, but I suggest to Mr. Donohue that he might consult an agent named Kaiser—K-z-z-y-z-c-r, the "h" being silent as in "Humphrey," and in that fashion, if he has any difficulty in locating Mr. Howser, he might find him.

Your Honor, a few days ago the Court instructed the jury that they should ignore a statement I had made that Mr. Donohue personally had deceived the Court, and this was one of the matters I had in mind at that time, because there was no qualification in this case. He said that he had made every human effort, when anybody would know that a five-minute telephone call would locate any lawyer in the State.

Furthermore, I might say this, your Honor: Mr. Howser and his brother, he informs me, were practicing in that location for over twenty years except for a brief period during the war, about three years, when he was in the Immigration Service in San Francisco.

Mr. Donohue: May I now proceed, if your Honor please?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Donohue: Would you call the witness Mrs. Vermillion. [4031]

GEORGINA VERMILLION

called as a witness on behalf of the United States; sworn.

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please?

A. Georgina Vermillion.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mrs. Vermillion, where do you live?

A. San Francisco.

Q. How long have you lived here?

A. Practically all of my life.

Q. Where are you now employed?

A. In the Immigration and Naturalization Service, San Francisco.

Q. How long have you been employed in the Immigration and Naturalization Service?

A. Since December 6, 1923, continuously.

Q. I hand you what has been heretofore marked as United States in evidence No. 6, and which has been heretofore identified as an application for a certificate of arrival, a preliminary form for petition for naturalization of one Henry Joseph Schrimpf, and ask you to examine it. (Handing document to witness.) From an examination of that exhibit, Mrs. Vermillion, can you tell the Court and jury when that paper first came into the possession of the Naturalization Service?

Mr. Hallinan: I object to it as not the best evidence, if the Court please, calling for the opinion and conclusion of [4032] the witness. If the paper discloses it, then the lady's opinion is unnecessary.

Mr. Donohue: There was a question raised that your Honor may recall at the time——

The Court: Pardon me?

Mr. Donohue: There was a question raised at the time this document was introduced as to the date upon which this document arrived at the Immigration Service, and I called the witness for the purpose of answering the question that was raised at that time.

Mr. Hallinan: We further object, your Honor; it is not the best evidence. According to the information that has been furnished the Court already, and further information that we have, the officer who conducted the hearing was Mr. Houser. I think Mr. Houser should be produced for the reason that we believe that there are further notes and records other than those disclosed by counsel and the preceding witness to the Court, and we do not want to have counsel evade producing that by the device of calling some other witness.

Mr. Donohue: If Mr. Hallinan wants to call Mr. Houser, the process of this court, as he knows, is available to him and he may do so.

The Court: You may answer the question.

The Witness: The question was whether this application had been submitted, I believe, and this shows, stamped on the [4033] reverse of the form, "September 11, 1942," which was the date stamped by the person accepting the application as the date of receipt.

Mr. Donohue: I ask the Clerk to hand you what I shall ask him to mark as Government's next for identification, and will then ask permission from your Honor to substitute therefor a photostatic copy and ask you to examine it.

Q. Would you examine the middle of the three documents which are contained on that page and having done so, will you tell us what it is?

A. It is a receipt for See of $250 for the certificate of arrival issued in the name of Henry Joseph Schrimpf.

Q. Can you tell us on what date that receipt was issued?

A. That was issued on September 28—I can't read it very well—September 28, 1942. It looks like a "3."

Mr. Donohue: Would you mark this, please, in substitution for the document?

The Clerk: With your Honor's permission, may it be marked Government's 10 for identification?

The Court: So ordered.

(The receipt for certificate of arrival was thereupon marked United States Exhibit No. 10 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions of this witness, if your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: No questions. [4034]

The Court: You are excused.

Mr. Donohue: May the last exhibit for identification No. 10, United States, be received in evidence, if your Honor please?

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. Donohue: The Government rests, if your Honor please.

United States Rests

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor,——

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me. He said the Government rests. You mean they are producing no more evidence? Rathborne? Nobody?

Mr. Donohue: The Government rests, if your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, I won't make any comment, your Honor, in view of the question we asked yesterday, to be informed as to how many other witnesses, what other witnesses and so forth, and the attitude that counsel took then. What was the purpose of it? To pitch us all suddenly into gathering our witnesses together hastily and trying to proceed without any notice? Is that a fair way to be treated by people who are supposed to be representing the United States Government? They said after Miss Vermillion was through, they had another witness whose name they declined to state. There is another thing Mr. Donohue stated to the Court, and then suddenly they came in here and say, "The Government rests," leaving up us in the air now prepared for cross examination of witnesses that they have been [4035] yelling around in the newspapers were witnesses who deliver Sunday punches, and they dazzle us and scare us to death. We knew who they were. And then they come here and say, "The Government rests." I think that is treating the Court and the jury, not to mention the defendants—of course, we are not entitled to any consideration—but treating them with considerable discourtesy and considerable unfairness. They could have told us on Saturday that that is all they had. Friday after noon your Honor suggested that they call a witness. Oh, no, they had another witness who was to follow the witness who took the stand this morning, who would take a considerable length of time, and so we adjourned until today.

Mr. Donohue: I may say on Friday we said to your Honor we had several witnesses under subpoena. We had four. The decision announced to your Honor this morning was made by the United States this morning.

Mr. Hallinan: By the United States? Now, who is the United States that made the decision? The attorney for Mr. Frankie Costello, the New York gangster, is the United States now, is that right?

Mr. Donohue: I represent the United States.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, yo represent Frankie Costello, the New York gangster.

Mr. Donohue: I never saw Mr. Costello in my life.

Mr. Hallinan: Drew Pearson came out yesterday with an [4036] article on it disclosing your whole connection with Maragon, the man who comes here and represents the United States Government, who covers every trick and every device by saying, "I represent the United States Government."

Your Honor, I think we have been treated unfairly. I think everybody has been treated unfairly here.

Mr. Donohue: Your Honor, I do not believe I ought personally to defend myself against this personal abuse when your Honor has been a victim as well as myself.

Mr. Hallinan: I object to that and I assign that as misconduct and ask that the jury be instructed to ignore it. I have not said one word to your Honor that could be construed as criticism. I have made objections to rulings, your Honor made, which I would be derelict in my duty if I did not make. I have made no personal criticism of you at all, either in court or out of court.

Mr. Donohue: I most earnestly say to your Honor, and I shall say it now in the presence of the jury, that the suggestion or allegation made by Mr. Hallinan with respect to any connection I may have had with a man named Frank Costello is as untrue as the fact that I am standing talking to your Honor. I never saw Frank Costello in my life. I never talked with Mr. Costello in my life. I never had a written communication with Mr. Costello in my life. I never represented Mr. Costello in my life. I would not know the man if he walked in the courtroom. [4037]

The Court: As well as myself.

Mr. Hallinan: On Saturday, January 14, 1950, in Drew Pearson's column he gives the fact that Frank Costello——

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, are we to have the same difficulty your Honor has——

Mr. Hallinan: Counsel want to contradict the statement and say it is untrue.

Mr. Paisley: Are you going to read Drew Pearson's article before the jury? I think your Honor should protect counsel from that.

Mr. Hallinan: Here is the trick now. Mr. Donohue gets up and says the statement is untrue. When I try to show that it is true, not he but Mr. Paisley gets up to interrupt me. I have the right, in view of counsel's statement here, to show that in the issue of the 14th it says, "At this very moment another immigrant, Harry Bridges, is on trial in San Francisco in exactly the same charge that is against Frank Costello, perjury, in connection with citizenship papers. This column holds no brief for Bridges, but everybody should be treated equally, and it is an ironic fact that Jiggs Donohue, a private attorney, who has contacts with the Maragon-Costello crowd is now retained by the Justice Department to prosecute Bridges."

Now, if he wants to tell the jury the position that he actually occupies, that is all right with me. We will take [4038] anybody on. We don't care. We don't care whether Mr. Donohue is responsible or not responsible about getting up here with this unctuous statement about the United States Government, covering up his own devices to obtain the conviction of Harry Bridges at any cost is something that should not be permitted. When he gets up and makes a defense of the thing, we are entitled to show the basis of our statement.

The Court: Have you completed, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, we have only one further matter. At your Honor's request the prosecution promised to bring the witness Garner back for further cross examination. When he is done, we will be ready to proceed with the defense.

Mr. Donohue: I imagine he can be brought here within a couple of hours. We shall have him flown today from Los Angeles, if your Honor please.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I believe the Court should say a word or two about the events that have just transpired. This case has been an extremely difficult one for this Court or perhaps any court to preside over, and by reason of the rather unorthodox manner of presentation in many instances. I have sought to manage this trial as best I could in the light of the circumstances that appeared at times and now appear to be disconcerting, to say the least. I suppose there comes a period in the career of a person where [4039] there is a great deal that might be said that should be left unsaid, and that is the situation confronting me momentarily. First, with respect to the question of the Government resting, the United States Government acting through and by its attorneys, Mr. Donohue, who is the spokesman for the Government in the role of special attorney, has the right to manage its case as it and they see fit. They have the duty of presenting the evidence to you. It is our duty to sit and receive it, your duty to pass upon the facts, my duty to pass upon the law. It is not the province of this Court or any other court to tell the Government or the defense how they should manage their case or the witnesses they should present or how they should catechize the witnesses or how they should cross-examine the witnesses. All those matters are things of internal affair and operation over which they have complete control and exclusive domination.

Mr. Paisley at one juncture indicated for the record rather briefly that I should come to the defense of Mr. Donohue. I think that was his remark, at least I gathered it, because the remarks were coming rather rapidly for the moment. I do not believe that this Court has been required to come to Mr. Donohue's defense or Mr. Hallinan's defense or the defense of any lawyer in this case. I might say, however, parenthetically, that with respect to closing his case this morning there is nothing in Mr. Donohue's conduct that would reflect upon him [4040] as an officer of this Court. He has the perfect right, if he please, to close his case down at this time or any other time as befits his knowledge of the case. I, of course, have no knowledge of the internal operations of the case. I, of course, have no more knowledge than you have here today concerning the future of any witnesses that they might have had nor the identity of any witnesses. Each morning as this case came forward and was presented to you, I knew no more nor less than you about the nature or identity of the several witnesses to be called. I cannot now presently recall all of the things said by counsel in this colloquy, unfortunate as it has been, and I regard it as a most unfortunate colloquy.

With respect to Mr. Donohue's identification of a gentleman or a man known as Costello, I know no more about Costello than you do perhaps, and that is through the medium of the press. Mr. Donohue has categorically denied any relationship with Mr. Costello. Mr. Hallinan has seen fit to read from a newspaper article. There is no issue before this Court or before the jury with respect to Mr. Donohue's relationship to that man, if he had any relationship, and he denies it.

I say to you ladies and gentlemen that of all the events and all the incidents that have transpired thus far in this case, the last has been perhaps more far-reaching in its possible significance upon you and with respect to such possible [4041] prejudice as might be entertained by you from the remarks made and entered here, I say to you now in deference to your oaths as jurors to ignore, erase from your memories and from your recollection, and disregard all of the statements made by counsel in this last discussion as if the same had never occurred.

The case will advance into the defense stages rapidly. I assume that there will be some legal arguments to take up. I assume that. I do not know. And the case will be completed. I hope, and I say this again to counsel with all the zeal, earnestness and vigor at my command, that these outbursts have not helped the Court and, I dare say, the jury in the final determination of this case. I shall not go further on at this time concerning them, but I hope and pray that they not result in the future. My trust and prayer is that this case continue on in as orderly a fashion as may be obtainable under all the circumstances present. . .

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to enter an exception, your Honor, to the remarks just now made with reference to the criticism of the Government prosecutor for ending his case this morning. Your Honor remarked categorically to the jury that this prosecutor has a perfect right to close his case whenever he chooses, that he has a perfect right to do anything he sees fit with the conduct——

The Court: Within the confines of his own knowledge [4042] and within the confines of the case, Mr. MacInnis, that is true.

Mr. MacInnis: We take exception to your Honor's remarks.

The Court: You may have your exception.

Mr. MacInnis: Because they contain obviously a criticism of the complaint made by the defense. Your Honor was led to believe on Friday, just as we were, that Mr. Donohue had a lady who would give short testimony, to be followed by other witnesses. He said that to the Court, and when we asked him to disclose the name of the witness your Honor said you could not compel him to do so.

And he said, "I am not going to do so." With that in mind we adjourned until today, fully prepared to go ahead, and then this gentleman comes in here, exercising that perfect right which you ascribe to him and says, "The Government rests." It is true that the prosecutor may control the course of his case, but I respectfully suggest that your Honor temper the remarks made to the jury as reflecting no criticism of defense counsel for complaining.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, my remarks were as temperate and as well controlled as any I have tried to make in this case. You have your exception.

Mr. Hallinan: Will there be an adjournment until tomorrow to produce Mr. Garner?

The Court: Mr. Donohue, what is the future of this witness, [4043] Mr. Garner?

Mr. Donohue: We shall phone Los Angeles now and ask that he be put on the first plane for San Francisco, if your Honor please.

The Court: Will he be here by the afternoon session?

Mr. Donohue: He might possibly be. I shall be glad to find out how quickly we can get him here.

The Court: Are there any matters of a legal nature to take up?

Mr. Hallinan: It would seem to me to be difficult to have him here for the afternoon session. It is now eleven. It takes at least two hours, and there are rainy and storm conditions. [4043-A]

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, if agreeable, of course, to counsel, you can take up any legal matters that you may have. I assume you may have some.

Mr. Hallinan: We have the matters of the three documents we spoke to your Honor about. I wouldn't ask to have them brought in this morning. There is the Civil Service records, the affidavits of the two witnesses, and the document from the Governor Hotel. But we do not want to make any motions.

The Court: Is it agreeable, gentlemen, that the jury be excused until tomorrow morning?

Mr. Hallinan: I think that will be the best way.

The Court: In the meantime, you can focus your attention on the defense matters and organize whatever matter you have at hand.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that would be a fair solution.

The Court: If you wish, I will say this to you, Mr. Hallinan, as I said before, if you want to take up tomorrow noon at 2:00 o'clock rather than tomorrow morning, giving you a chance to marshal your evidence, that will be perfectly agreeable to the Court.

Mr. Hallinan: I won't suggest that because it may be afterwards the jury will have to be excused again for a day or two.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will recess and adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock, and again may I admonish you not to discuss the case under any [4044] conditions or suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial, and not to form or express an opinion thereon until it is submitted to you. You may retire.

We will stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Tuesday, January 17, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4044-A]

Tuesday, January 17, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

(The following proceedings were had out of the presence of the jury:)

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, on behalf of the defendants we have a request to make of the Court, and I hope it doesn't seem unreasonable. At the time the Government rested we said we had a great number of witnesses, many of them residing out of San Francisco, not at great distances—Stockton, Alameda, Los Angeles, and so forth. We desired to arrange the presentation of the defense case so as to make it most expeditious. We find it impossible to get our witnesses together in that way within the time that we would have by continuing directly with the case. If we could have the case deferred until Monday morning after Mr. Garner finished his testimony, then we would be able to go ahead and have our witnesses here and we would not be putting them on piecemeal, so we are asking that we be given a continuance after Mr. Garner's testimony is finished until Monday morning to give us that opportunity. What is your thought on that?

The Court: In addition to Mr. Garner's testimony I understood that you probably would have some legal motions.

Mr. Hallinan: If there were, we can make those today [4045] following his testimony. I don't know what the legal motions may be. There may be one or two short ones, but not any extensive motions.

The Court: What is the attitude of the prosecution, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: We have no objection, if the Court please.

The Court: All right; granted.

Mr. Donohue: Just a moment, please. May I say to your Honor that, as I read the record, it appeared to me from reading pages 755, 756 and 757 of the record that what Mr. Hallinan has stated substantially to the Court with respect to the witness Garner was that he wanted to make an offer of proof in the absence of the jury by asking a series of questions of the witness Garner.

Mr. Hallinan: We don't want that now.

Mr. Donohue: I assumed that that is the only purpose for which he is recalled.

Mr. MacInnis: No, we have some other matters, your Honor, in lieu of the questions which were to be asked in the absence of the jury.

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: These would be a continuation of the ordinary questions in the presence of the jury.

(At this time the jury was brought into the courtroom.)

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Lloyd H. Garner, [4046] heretofore sworn.

LLOYD H. GARNER

recalled for the Government; previously sworn.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Garner, you have probably been asked this question before by me, but I haven't gone over the record to see in just what place it finds itself. Could you tell us when you were first informed that you were to be called as a witness in this case, either before the Grand Jury or before this Court and jury?

A. I don't know that I have been asked the question before, but, as I recall it, it was in the spring of this last year, of 1949.

Q. Sometime in the spring of 1949?

A. I think so.

Q. And at the time that this request was made of you, you were working with the Immigration Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Los Angeles? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could you recall for us how and in what manner the request was made?

A. Well, it would have been orally by word of mouth from my superior.

Q. Do you remember what person spoke [4047] to you?

A. I think so. I think the first time that I was advised that my presence would be needed while

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

I was in Los Angeles, as I recall, it was my district director, Mr. Barber, who mentioned it to me. He was not district director at that time; he was in the Los Angeles office.

Q. Mr. Barber himself had a conversation with you and told you that your services as a witness would be required?

A. He told me that I probably would be required at the time—the first time he talked to me about it.

Q. Can you tell us the conversation that you then had with Mr. Barber?

A. Well, it was very extensive; I can't tell you definitely, no. We——

Q. Well, did he tell you that there was a new action contemplated against Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. What did he say?

A. Are you asking me for a direct quotation of his words?

Q. As best you can remember, in substance.

A. Well, the best I can remember on that was merely that an action was contemplated and that my assistance would be needed.

Q. Now the Mr. Barber who then spoke to you is the same Mr. Barber who sits at the end of the prosecution table, is that true?

A. Yes, that is true. [4048]

Q. And all he said was that a new action was contemplated against Harry Bridges?

A. I don't know that——

Q. And that your services were needed?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

A. I don't know that he said a new action.

Q. Did he say the same action would be continued?

A. An action. I would have understood, of course, that there would be a new action, because there was none pending so far as I knew at that time.

Q. Did he say anything else to you at the time?

A. Yes, we had some considerable conversation, I presume, at that time.

Q. Well, did he tell you what the subject matter of your proposed testimony would be?

A. No, he did not. He did not.

Q. He did not reveal to you what it was that he wanted you to testify to?

A. He told me that he wanted me to testify concerning the naturalization, the court hearing of Harry Bridges.

Q. In other words, he did tell you that the role he wanted you to play was to tell what you had done in connection with the naturalization of Harry Bridges?

A. He gave me—I presume so. He gave me to understand that is the part I would have, of course.

Q. Well, did he tell you that, Mr. Garner? [4049]

A. I think I may say that he told me that. He told me that that would be what my part would be, of course.

Q. Did he ask you at that time to tell him what this oral conversation was that you told the Court and jury two months ago took place between you and Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Robertson respectively?

A. Yes, I think we discussed that.

Q. He asked you at that time to tell him what the oral conversation had been?

A. He asked me if I recalled it, if I could tell him.

Q. Did he know before he interrogated you that there had been some oral conversation with those men?

A. You mean between myself and Mr. Bridges and the other defendants here?

Q. Yes.

A. You are asking me if he knew it?

Q. Well, did he tell you that he knew it?

A. No, I don't think that he told me that he knew it. I don't think that was necessary.

Q. Why wasn't it necessary?

A. He was cognizant of the fact there had been a court hearing, that I conducted the court hearing.

Q. In other words, Mr. Garner, the very fact that you conducted this hearing and participated as an officer of the Immigration Service indicated to him that in the ordinary course [4050] of events you would have had such an interview?

A. I presume that is a fair observation.

Q. Well, is that true from your point of view also? A. Would you repeat the question?

Q. Is it true from your point of view that your very participation in a citizenship hearing would indicate that you had also had oral interviews not only with the applicant but with his two corroborating witnesses? A. Yes, that would follow.

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Q. And from that fact alone it would have indicated to his mind that you would have asked them the necessary questions called for by the law?

A. Yes, I would have asked them the questions.

Q. When you talked to Mr. Barber about substantially the oral conversations that you had with these men, independently of the transcript of the court hearing did you have any memorandum at that time?

A. I think only the triplicate petition that was in the office file—Service file.

Q. You mean the same documents that are in evidence, the application, being Government's Exhibit No. 1 in this case, and the petition, being No. 2? A. Yes, I think that would be it.

Mr. MacInnis: May I have those, please, Mr. Mitchell?

(Documents handed to counsel.) [4051]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): There was no other memorandum in existence, was there, as to any record of your conversation with the men?

A. I don't believe there was at that time as to the preliminary examination.

Q. Well, was there any memorandum in existence at any time? A. As to the court hearing?

Q. I am not speaking of that, Mr. Garner.

A. No.

Q. Just the oral conversations that you say you had with Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt back in the fall of 1945?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

A. I don't believe there was any memorandum. I don't recall offhand.

Q. So that when you spoke to Mr. Barber in the spring of this year about your participation in the case, you told him, based on your memory alone, what the conversations were? A. That is true.

Q. Did you make any memorandum for Mr. Barber at that time? A. I may have done so.

Q. Well, did you?

A. I don't know that I did at that time, but I made a memorandum, I think, subsequent to that.

Q. When did you make that memorandum?

A. As to the exact date now, I can't testify; it was subsequent to my first conversation with [4052] him.

Q. Well, you spoke to Mr. Barber first in the spring of 1949 prior to the month of May, I suppose, is that true?

A. Yes. I don't know whether it was prior; I don't recall offhand. It was prior to the grand jury hearing, if that is what you mean.

Q. Yes. And did you make some written memorandum for Mr. Barber before you appeared before the grand jury? A. I think perhaps I did.

Q. About how long before you appeared before the grand jury?

A. That is difficult to say, sir. It might have been a month; it might have been more than a month.

~~Q. Was that a written statement that you gave~~ to some co-agents of the Immigration Service?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

A. It would have been a memorandum, I presume, from myself to Mr. Barber.

Q. Did you indicate it, or did you write it in your own hand? A. I would write it myself.

Q. Well, did you?

A. I probably typed it out myself.

Q. Mr. Garner, do you have any independent memory of what you did? In other words, I am asking you not what you may have done or what you probably did, but what you did do. This is only last year, Mr. Garner, 1949.

A. It wasn't a particularly material matter so far as I was concerned. I would say that I typed it myself, I prepared the [4053] memorandum myself.

Q. Did you sign it? A. Oh, yes, surely.

Q. And did you give it personally to Mr. Barber?

A. No, I don't know what I did. I probably left it on his desk. I don't know; I don't recall that I handed it to him personally.

Q. Did you ever discuss it with him?

A. I think so.

Q. What was that discussion?

A. Well, it would have been a review of the memorandum and a discussion that would naturally follow from it.

Q. So that you had a discussion with Mr. Barber in the spring of 1949 in which he told you that he would want you to participate in the case to be brought against Harry Bridges, and after that time you typed out yourself a memorandum which you signed and placed on his desk, then after that Mr. Barber had a discussion with you about the contents of your memorandum, is that correct?

A. Chronologically, I think that is correct, but as to the time sequence, I am not so sure just how long elapsed in between.

Q. Was there anything different in the memorandum from the contents of your oral conversation with Mr. Barber that you had first?

A. That is a little difficult to answer, counsel. I don't think [4054] there would be anything substantially different, no.

Q. Well, after leaving this memorandum with Mr. Barber, did you ever see it again?

A. I don't recall that I did.

Q. Did you ever see a copy of it?

A. I don't recall that I saw a copy of it. I will take that back. I have seen a copy of it, but I thought you were referring to at the time, the particular time.

Q. When did you see the copy of the memorandum?

A. I think I saw the copy of the memorandum about the time of the grand jury hearing.

Q. Who showed it to you then, Mr. Garner?

A. One of the officers of the Service.

Q. Do you remember who?

A. No, I don't remember whether it was Mr. Barber or Mr. Kidder or Mr. Kaiser, but it was one of the officers.

Q. One of those men? A. Sir?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Q. One of those men? A. I think so.

Q. When they showed you your memorandum before the grand jury hearing, did you read it over?

A. I presume I did.

Q. Well, did you, Mr. Garner?

A. I don't know that I read it over. I would have scanned [4055] through it.

Q. Did you scan through it and more or less correlate your memory, refresh your memory, before you gave the testimony?

A. I don't know as to the purpose of it, whether that was why I did it or not.

Q. Well, was your purpose, then, in reading over the memorandum, Mr. Garner?

A. Well, it was handed to me to review it; I suppose it was to see whether my memory was refreshed on it.

Q. And you did use it for that purpose, did you?

A. Well, I suppose you might say so, I don't think that it was necessary.

Q. Now, then, you testified before the grand jury, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And between that time, which I am told was sometime in May of 1949, and last November when you first appeared here as a witness before the Court and jury, did you see that memorandum again? A. I don't recall that I did.

Q. Are you positive of that?

A. No, sir, I am not.

Q. Now, do you have any memory one way or the other as to whether or not any of those men—

Mr. Barber, Mr. Kaiser or Mr. Kidder—handed you the memorandum before you testified here for the same purpose, so that you could review it? [4056]

A. I don't think so. The best of my recollection, I don't think that memorandum was shown me again.

Q. When you made up the memorandum at first, did you keep a copy of it?

A. I think I don't have a copy. I don't believe I have one.

Q. Did you make one at the time?

A. No, I think I only made it in duplicate and gave both copies to my official—my superior.

Q. You think you made it in duplicate, typed it yourself, and that you gave both documents to your superior, is that true?

A. I think that is true.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Garner, you recall your previous testimony here, don't you, in general?

A. In this proceeding?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And you told the Court and jury that you never at any time made any memorandum about the oral conversation that you had, or that you say you had, with Mr. Robertson, Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Bridges?

The Court: May we have the page on that, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: I will get it in a moment.

The Court: I can't personally recall that testimony.

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Mr. MacInnis: I will recall it to you. [4057]

Mr. MacInnis: There are two places in the transcript, at pages 612 and 629.

Referring to page 629, line 18:

> "Q. And the notes, referring to the notes that you made on the triplicate copy of the the Government—and the notes are the only memorial so far as your mind is concerned as to what was said at that time?
> "A. I have no other source of notations, that is right."

That is true: There was no other notation made at the time of the conversations.

Q. Well, to say the least, Mr. Garner, you did not offer us the information in your previous testimony that you had later made a memorandum for Mr. Barber, did you? A. You didn't ask.

Mr. Donohue: That is a different question.

The Court: You adverted to page 612. Is there anything on page 612?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. The question on page 612 refers to notes made at that time. The question on page 629 refers to any memorial or notes.

Q. In any event, Mr. Garner, you have not offered us that information before, have you?

A. I didn't know it was called for.

Q. When Mr. Barber came to see you, or when you went to his office, on the occasion of your first discussion, he told you [4058] that there was to be a case brought against Harry Bridges, did he?

A. He told me it was contemplated.

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Q. Can you recall as nearly as possible the substance of what he said?

A. He said very little about it. In fact, I think that is all that he did say, that if it became necessary they would use my testimony.

Q. Did he tell you it was a criminal case or civil case?

A. He did not. He didn't tell me what type of case it would be.

Q. Did he ever, at any time, tell you it was a criminal case?

A. Not prior to the grand jury hearing.

Q. Did he tell you prior to the grand jury hearing that it was to be a criminal case? A. No.

Q. Not at all?

A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. Didn't Mr. Barber or Mr. Kaiser tell you that not only was a criminal case to be brought against Harry Bridges, but that the Government had also filed a civil case against him to cancel his citizenship? That was told you, wasn't it?

A. I have no recollection of any such information as that at that time.

Q. You never heard of the other lawsuit? [4059]

A. Which other do you mean?

Q. The civil lawsuit.

A. No, at that time I had no knowledge of it.

Q. I mean at this time, Mr. Garner.

A. At this time I do not have any recollection of a civil case.

Q. Don't you know, Mr. Garner, as an officer of the Immigration Service that the Government has on file a civil case against Harry Bridges asking for the cancelation of his citizenship, a case which will be tried after the present case is finished? You know that, don't you?

A. I have no knowledge on it.

Q. You never heard of it?

A. I have heard rumors of it. I have heard nothing officially.

Q. Oh, if we send for the record from the Clerk of this Court, would that be official notice for you or would it refresh your memory?

A. That would give me notice of it, yes.

Mr. MacInnis: In lieu of sending for the record here, will the Government stipulate that there is such a case on file?

Mr. Donohue: Of course, if Your Honor please, but may I rise to inquire what the purpose of the inquiry of this witness is?

Mr. MacInnis: I will accept the stipulation, if the Government says there is such a case on file.

The Court: There is such a case on file. Is it so [4060] stipulated?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, of course, Your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: I have no further inquiry.

The Court: What was the question?

(Record read.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Garner, when you spoke before about administering your duties in this case as well as in other cases, you said that you were following the statute which governs your duties, is that true?

A. I think I made that comment.

Q. You had in mind, I think you said, Section 705 of the Nationality Act, is that true?

A. I think I adverted to that section.

Q. You are familiar with the contents of that section, aren't you? A. Fairly so, yes.

Mr. MacInnis: That section has been read into evidence before, Your Honor, so I won't read it in its entirety.

Mr. Donohue: Can we have the reference in the record where it was read before, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: During the testimony of Henry Schrimpf.

Q. That section, Mr. Garner,—and if it will refresh your memory, I will hand you the volume—governs your duties as an officer of the Immigration Service, doesn't it?

A. Yes, that is one of the sections that affect my duties. [4061]

Q. With the volume before you, can you tell us generally what the prohibitions are against granting citizenship to aliens of a certain class?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please. I do not think that is a proper matter for cross-examination.

Mr. MacInnis: It is preliminary, Your Honor, to questions asked at a particular time.

Mr. Donohue: He has the right to ask him anything he may have done, but he has no right to ask the witness as to whether the witness properly performed the functions of his office.

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I may say this: I am not criticizing this witness in the conduct of his office. I assume he does properly perform his duties. But these questions are to elucidate the things he will ordinarily do pursuant to his office. He tells us in many instances, Your Honor, "I would have done that. I presume I did that." And our assumption would be he said those things because those are the things he would normally do.

The Court: That would be purely hypothetical. What he did in the case at bar is the all-important matter, as I gather it. The objection is sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Garner, following His Honor's suggestion, and calling your attention only to the case at bar, [4062] you told the Court and jury before that you asked Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt certain questions about whether they knew Harry Bridges had ever been a member of the Communist Party, they replying in the negative, and whether they themselves had ever been a member of the Communist Party, and they replied in the negative, didn't they?

A. That is right.

Q. And those questions were called for by your interpretation of Section 705 of the Nationality Act, were they not?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please. Whether they were called for by the interpretation of any section of the Act is not important. The point at issue is whether they were asked.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Your Honor. The Witness asked these questions pursuant to the Act, and I have a purpose which Your Honor will perceive in a moment in pursuing this matter further.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): In reference to the question which you asked Mr. Robertson, Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Bridges, the law governing your duties calls for an inquiry back over a period of ten years, doesn't it?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please, as to what the law provides. The question before this [4063] Court and jury is what question was asked by this witness and what answer was made.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You were a hearing officer with the Immigration Service here from 1941 until what other year?

A. You mean in the San Francisco office?

Q. Yes. A. Until 1948.

Q. And your duties were the same during all that period of time? A. Generally, yes.

Q. And you would have exercised your duties to all applicants for citizenship in the same manner during that period of time?

A. Generally, I think so.

Q. Would your duties have been any different.

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

let us say, in the year 1943 than in the year 1945?

A. My duties, sir, are several. They are not confined only to these examinations. I suppose you refer to the examination in naturalization cases.

Q. Yes.

A. The duties would not be substantially any different.

Q. You would ask people the same questions in 1943 as in 1945?

A. The same general line of questions, yes, I would.

Q. So that if any person came before you in 1943 and indicated that he had been a member of the Communist Party during a period [4064] of ten years past, he would not be eligible for citizenship, would he?

A. I wouldn't go that far. I wouldn't say he would not be eligible.

Q. Doesn't the statute before you say that any person who, within that period of ten years, has been a member of any organization advocating the overthrow of the Government by force and violence may not obtain citizenship?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And during the period of time in which you were the hearing officer in San Francisco, particularly in the year 1943, the Immigration Service and yourself considered the Communist Party to be such a party as defined in that law, is that not true?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, if I may be heard respectfully on this point: This witness told us very lucidly before that he had to ask these questions because the law, Section 705 of the Nationality Act, required him to do so. We wish to prove at this time out of his lips——

The Court: You can make the offer of proof in the absence [4065] of the jury.

Mr. MacInnis: I am not making any offer of proof, Your Honor. I am merely making a suggestion on the objection. We wish to show that obviously the witness, Henry Schrimpf, either lied to the Immigration Service when he was naturalized, or else had some special bounty conferred upon him. The inference is irresistible in either direction, and that is the purpose of these questions. I ask Your Honor to consider his ruling again and permit me to ask the witness the questions.

The Court: My ruling was correct when made. It still stands correct.

Mr. MacInnis: We take exception.

The Court: You may have an exception. With respect to your observation concerning Mr. Schrimpf, the jury is instructed to disregard the same.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Garner, what did you do before you came with the Immigration Service in 1941 at San Francisco?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, with all of these witnesses the prosecutor has entered into a biographical discussion. Concerning this man, the only thing in the record is he was a hearing officer in 1941. I would like to know what he did before that.

Mr. Donohue: If the purpose is an attempt to impeach the [4066] witness by some prior occupation, I will withdraw it. If it has no other purpose, I repeat my objection to Your Honor.

The Court: The witness at one stage said he was a lawyer. I will overrule the objection.

The Witness: May I have the question?

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What did you do before 1941?

A. I was engaged in the practice of law.

Q. Where, Mr. Garner? A. Los Angeles.

Q. That was a continuous occupation?

A. That is right.

Q. And you had not been with the government service until 1941?

A. I had not except for army service in 1918.

Q. Mr. Garner, let me ask you this: Would an alien who was suspected of having Communist affiliations or being a Communist be permitted to refuse to answer questions to the Immigration Service at any time during your tenure of office?

(Testimony of Lloyd H. Garner.)

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if Your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I have no further questions.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, may this witness, who drove all night in the rain last night to get here from Los Angeles, be now finally excused?

The Court: The witness is excused. [4067]

Mr. Hallinan: Apparently they treat their employees different from their other witnesses. The witnesses are flown around in luxurious planes, but the employees are not.

The Court: That remark is uncalled for.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, what about counsel's remark?

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I asked you if we could not avoid these constant bickerings between counsel. I am trying to manage this case in continuity.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, nothing was said about Mr. Donohue's comment on the exploit of the man driving through the rain last night. What has that got to do with his testimony?

Mr. Donohue: I have in mind only the fact that the man needs rest, and I asked Your Honor to excuse him so he could get some rest.

The Court: The witness is excused. Is there any further testimony?

Mr. Donohue: No, Your Honor. We have rested.

The Court: The Government rests.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, the Government has rested its case in chief, that is, with respect to the witnesses that it intends to call at this stage. The defense will go forward. In contemplation of going forward with this case, Mr. Hallinan, speaking for the defense, in your absence this morning, requested a continuance of this cause until Monday next, January 23rd, at 10:00 o'clock a.m. The Government, speaking through Mr. [4068] Joseph Donohue, offered no objection and consented to that continuance. Consistent with the policy of this Court to afford the defense every opportunity to present witnesses and to marshal the facts, I have accordingly granted the same. Under the circumstances, therefore, this cause will stand over regularly for further trial until next Monday at 10:00 o'clock.

In the interim I assume there will be several legal motions in the absence of the jury, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: I do not know of any, unless the prosecution has some to make.

The Court: All right. We therefore separate, Court and jury, for the interval for several days. In the course of that separation, again may I admonish you to carefully refrain from any conversations with any persons about this case, to refrain from conversations with the members of your family. I should again admonish you not to read the current articles in the newspapers and to refrain from listening to radio comments thereon.

I have no estimate at the present time as to the length or proposed length of the defense in the presentation of its witnesses, nor do I have any indication at this time with respect to the rebuttal, if any, that the Government may have. After the defense presents its cause, the Government may then present witnesses in rebuttal, if the same be properly in rebuttal of the defense. So we can only conjecture as to the future number of days that may be in contemplation. Any number [4069] of days that I might estimate would be a mere guess and speculation.

Accordingly, this Court, unless otherwise indicated by counsel at this time, will stand adjourned until Monday next, January 23rd, at 10:00 o'clock. You may now retire.

(Thereupon, an adjournment was taken to Monday, January 23, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4069-A]

Monday, January 23, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Court: Stipulate that the jurors are present?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, Your Honor.

The Clerk: The United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson.

The Court: Proceed.

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANTS SCHMIDT AND ROBERTSON

Mr. MacInnis: Members of the jury: I am very sorry that we had to intrude on your good nature last week and ask that the case be postponed for a few days; but when the prosecution declared that it had presented all of its evidence, we realized over night that there were two months of testimony to consider, and we wanted to come before you, as we will now, with an offer of proof that would take into consideration not just the generalities of the case made against these three men, but every item in that case. We wanted to leave not a solitary answer of any witness left untouched. So, as I say, at the risk of offending you and at the risk of interrupting the ordinary procedure from cause to effect in the trial, we asked for the recess.

Now, as we said once before, we want to lay all of the cards in this case on the table. We not only want to lay the cards on the table, but we want to show you exactly how the cards are going to be played, and that is what we propose to do. [4070]

I think that we have traversed a great deal of detail together. At the outset of the case, on behalf of the ~~defendant~~ Harry Bridges, an opening statement was made, and there was much criticism because Mr. Hallinan told the jury in advance that witnesses would commit perjury upon the stand. I think that now nobody will gasp when I say that we will show you that perjury has been committed here by witnesses called by these men who at the moment represent the United States Government.

In making an opening statement to you, I have only one request to make, and it goes to the whole case, and it is this: Hear me out. Hear out, if you will, the three men who have sat here throughout the two months of accusations. Hear out the defense, and then decide for yourselves, not upon any words of ours or upon characterizations that we might apply to people who have come here, but decide for yourselves out of the record in this case what may be the merit of this prosecution and what may be the motivations for the production of witnesses here.

You have listened with us to the presentation of a case by the side upon whom the overwhelming burden of proof must depend under our law. I want to approach you now on behalf of two defendants, the defendants Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson, two defendants who are presumed to be innocent. And we will undertake to show you that these men are innocent in fact as well as under the presumption of our law. We will invite you to listen to the testimony. We will invite you to follow the [4071] progress of our case, and we are confident that you will reach the same conclusion that we have espoused from the start of this case: That there is no real evidence against these men; that they are not guilty, and that they ought to be found not guilty.

We will show you that Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Robertson even to a moral certainty, which is not a burden cast upon us since the defense need only raise a reasonable doubt in order to be entitled to an acquittal, but we will show you by the weight of the evidence and by moral certainty, that Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Robertson are not guilty of conspiring with themselves or with any other person to evade the laws of the United States. We will show you by necessary implication that the third defendant, the chief defendant in this case, Mr. Harry Renton Bridges, is also innocent because, in the presentation of evidence, we will not be able to abstract the case of Bridges from the case of Robertson and Schmidt. These three men are charged in the lofty language of the indictment with having conspired at times and places to the grand jurors unknown, to aid Harry Bridges in some spurious attainment of citizenship. Because of that charge, the knowledge that these men possessed concerning Harry Bridges will become a facet of evidence for your consideration. Their activities in connection with Harry Bridges will become proper evidence for you to consider; the basis of information which they possessed and upon which they had a right to rely when [4072] they were called as witnesses in our Superior Court to vouch for Harry Bridges when he applied for citizenship—all of these matters will come before you, and you will be the sole judges of the facts of the case.

We have no fear at all that you will consider lightly the assertions of the defendants, because we will offer you not only the naked word of a man who stands accused, in many instances we will offer you records—business records, sometimes public records—to show you that what they say will be the truth, and that the assertions brought against them are fabricated, invented, born out of thoughts that are beyond our ken at this time.

Now, each defendant, I will tell you in advance, will take the witness stand. Each defendant in this case will be a witness not only for himself but on behalf of each other defendant. And it will be your duty to evaluate the testimony of the defendants. They have a right to choose not to testify. They are waiving that right. They are going to appear before you and answer any question that may properly be put to them. And it will be your duty, and we invite you, to listen to them, to compare the testimony that they will give, the reasonableness of their statements, the directness of their position, with the evidence that has already been offered here on the part of the Government of the United States.

That is the position basically which we are going to follow, [4073] but in placing the defendants on the stand I want to commend to you these thoughts as well as to the prosecutors, because when these men take the stand, the prosecution will have a full right to cross-examine each of them.

We will show you that Harry Bridges has given testimony many times before, volumes of testimony, all of it available to the prosecution. Harry Bridges testified in 1937 before Immigration Inspector Gerard Riley upon the same subject matters that engage us here. Harry Bridges testified in 1939 before Dean Landis of Harvard, who was the Immigration Examiner in San Francisco. Harry Bridges testified in 1941 before Judge Sears of New York, who was appointed to be the Examiner in that prosecution against Harry Bridges. We have no fear, members of the jury, that any arrant statement of his will rise out of the past to damn him in your eyes. We have no fear at all. We expect these gentlemen to use such sources as are available to them to cross-examine the witnesses.

We will show you that Henry Schmidt has given testimony before on the same subject matters. Henry Schmidt was called as a witness on behalf of Harry Bridges in the 1941 hearing before Judge Sears, and as he sits upon the witness stand we will ask you to contrast the statements that he makes here with any possible differences that he has made in the past. We will make that offer to you in respect of the defendant Henry Schmidt.

And I want to make this offer by way of particular suggestion [4074] if it be of any aid at all in respect of these three men: This is a serious case. The three men are going to take the stand and testify. We will endeavor to cover every item of the prosecution evidence. Now, if we are remiss, if any question remains unsettled in the minds of any of you, if there is any gap, any hiatus in the plan of evidence, if there is any matter of puzzlement, anything that remains undenied, we respectfully ask you, any of you, to put such questions to us as may come into your mind. You can do that by asking the permission of the Judge. You can do it by raising your hand and putting the question directly in the record. It would be no more than your right to exercise that function. It would be no more than our duty to answer it as best we can. That is the position that we take in this case.

We will show you on the whole that the three men who sit here charged with conspiracy to commit perjury have themselves been assaulted by professional perjurers. If we were to characterize the case of the prosecution,—and we will by the evidence which we will properly bring here,—we would seek to show you this: Mistakes from the most benign perspective; lies from the cold appraisals of the truth; imagery, fabrications, insanity—not out of our lips and not because we say these things. We will ask you out of the total of the evidence in this case to reach that kind of a conclusion.

I will speak with you first, if I may, concerning the [4075] general matters which we will prove in response to these charges, and we will proceed then, I think item by item, to disprove the assertions of the various witnesses who have appeared here. And I think it wise for the interest of all, particularly the interests of the defendants whom I represent, that we do this, because if we spend a little time now—it may be tedious—we will expedite things later.

Many witnesses have testified here. The human memory has certain limitations, and we want to refresh the minds of everyone in advance as to exactly what the accusations are and as to exactly the answers we will make shall be.

I think that when the defense has finished, subject to your criticisms, there will not be a solitary item in the case of the prosecution unanswered; there will not be a single shred of evidence which will not have faded into destruction before the warm light of evidence which will now be produced. I say that generally about the prosecution case. Now I will tell you point by point just what we are going to do.

First of all, the overall accusations about the Communist Party, the allegations tied in with the emotional thoughts in these defendants and economic procedure throughout the world. The Communist Party, I repeat, whether the Communist Party be good or whether it be bad, is of course not one of the matters upon which we are sitting in [4076] judgment.

The Communist Party has come into this record in various manners and aspects. It was humanitarian, out of the lips of Schomaker and Stanley Hancock. It was a vile conspiratorial group, out of the tainted words of Manning Johnson. We will show by evidence that whatever the Communist Party may be, whatever it may have been, these men were none of it, these men were never members of the Communist Party, and anyone who comes before you, anyone who has come before you with that kind of assertion lies, and in practically every instance we will be able to show you the reason and the motivation for that kind of lie.

Harry Bridges, to begin with him, the person in this conspiracy charged against Schmidt, Robertson and Bridges, Harry Bridges never joined the Communist Party. We will show you that by evidence. He never applied for membership. He never received or possessed any Communist book under the name of Bridges, under the name of Dorgan, Rossi, Harvey, Canfield, even under the name of Harry Guinn, a last minute starter intruded into the case by the witness Paul Crouch who testified for the Government. We will show you that this assertion about Bridges that I make now, that he was never a member of the Communist Party, was true in 1933, it was true and has been proved true in 1939, in 1941, it has been true throughout the years, and is true today.

Henry Schmidt, we will show you by the evidence, never joined the Communist Party, never has been a member of the Communist Party, although he too over the years has had the same accusations [4077] flung at him ever since the days when he joined the waterfront workers in the early struggles for a living wage.

Bob Robertson has never been a member of the Communist Party. Some of you may wonder at the reason for his inclusion in this case. We will show you that Bob Robertson has this difficulty. One day in the autumn of 1945 he walked over to the City Hall with a leader whom he revered, because that man was at last going to receive his citizenship in the United States, and at the last minute Robertson was asked to appear as a corroborating witness for Bridges, and he now finds himself indicted for conspiracy by this Federal Court. That is the story of Robertson. He has never been a member of the Communist Party; no credible evidence at all concerning that man. What there may be now in the record concerning him I can not say. My memory discloses none to myself. Robertson is charged here upon the fickle oath of one person, George Wilson, who says that he saw Robertson at a Communist meeting, we are not told with whom, we are not told when, we are not told where. That is the testimony against Robertson, and it fits somewhat into the pattern read out by the prosecutor at the start of this case, originally out of the lips of the indictment, when he said, "We will show you that Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt conspired at times and places and with persons to the grand jurors unknown." Henry Schmidt is touched here with the same broad accusation. That conspiracy at times, at places and with persons unknown. When the charge was [4078] made at the start of this case, we wondered as to what kind of terrible evidence might be brought here to substantiate that charge, now that the case for the Government has been closed, we will offer you this conclusion out of the evidence. The accusation was that they did something at times and places unknown. The evidence shows that anything they might have done is unknown at least so far as this record is concerned.

Concerning the defense that we must offer you on behalf of Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt, I think that one can best proceed by endeavoring to show you every facet of the knowledge which either of those men might have possessed concerning Harry Bridges, because you will recall they are charged with going to court with Harry Bridges and with telling the Court that they believed him to be a proper person to receive citizenship in the United States. We will show you that was their honest belief in 1945. It is their honest belief today. They double and redouble anything they said concerning the fitness of Harry Bridges to receive citizenship in the United States. What will be the evidence concerning the alleged relationship between Harry Bridges and the Communist Party as it was known to Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt? Well, we will reveal everything we know concerning that.

To us native San Franciscans who may have watched as observers of the passing scene the stormy years of this Australian, whose love for our shores and this city at least eclipsed the [4079] ties that bound him to his native land so that he has fought with his life and his health to remain one of us against the unremitting efforts of a million foes; to us, as I say, who have seen Harry Bridges in San Francisco and watched the shifting economic scenes of this century, his position is clear. But we have evidence we must meet in this case, and we will show you at the outset that when Harry Bridges emerged before the great San Francisco strike of 1934 as the articulate champion of human beings in distress, he had to accept aid from any person who might offer it. He was the leader of a few unorganized men. It is not our thought here to speak about the economic discord of those years. It is not our thought to go over past wrongs and open old sores and criticize employers or anybody else. The evidence shows there was a strike. The evidence shows what happened in that strike. But we will show you that Harry Bridges was in no position to refuse aid from anybody in the 1934 strike, and indeed we will show you from whom could he expect aid. The average man, insecure in 1934 in his own job, owing a natural allegiance to his employer, could scarcely help the efforts of a few other men who wanted to make a living wage. A few wealthy citizens, a very, very few. gave some circuitous help to Harry Bridges, and we will show he has never been labeled a capitalist because of that circumstance. The church did what it could to teach people to appreciate the rights of the working people, but by and large, there was no recognized group [4080] of persons who could come to the aid of the longshoremen. The Democratic Party and the Republican Party sat upon the threshold of the affair as spectators, but there was one group living always in the darkness of the economic corridors, living in the shadows of society's disdain, half secret, half organized, half feudal perhaps, but probably more than half brave. The Communist Party came to Harry Bridges in the course of the 1934 strike and offered him every small service that it could possess. And I say this to you. I think you will see it out of the evidence, too. Harry Bridges could not renounce the aid of the Communist Party in 1934 and he need not denounce the Communist Party today. What was the aid and assistance that this now conspirational group brought to Harry Bridges in 1934? Surely not the unlawful aims which we are now told are the secret and deeper ends of the Communist Party. If that be so, those aims were not disclosed to Harry Bridges or to Henry Schmidt and to any of the other people who fought the strike in 1934. The Communist Party brought to Harry Bridges in 1934 the columns of a small newspaper, a little first aid for strikers who refused to retreat before the onslaughts of the police and the vigilantes. They offered a little organization in the ranks of unorganized labor so that men and more men might stand together in that subversive of all subversive ends, the quest for a living wage.

We will show you that things were as they were, and they were not more, and that was the contribution of the Communist [4081] Party to the strike and the association of the Communist Party with Harry Bridges. We do not mean either to belittle or to extol the position of the Communist Party. The Communist Party made some contributions to the strike. It is up to you to evaluate what those contributions were. There was never revealed to Harry Bridges, we will show you, or to Henry Schmidt, who was by his side in 1934, the tentacles of any international spy system. No. Nor did the NKVD, the terrible Soviet secret police described here, you will recall, as a sort of dragon who biennially devoured the lists of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, according to the language of the witness Paul Crouch, that dark group, the NKVD, did not help the strikers or reveal itself to Harry Bridges or Henry Schmidt.

As I say, what the Communist Party was, what it did, in the strike is a matter of history, and the Communist Party did not direct the strike, it did not direct Harry Bridges, and if John Schomaker was a courier for the Communist Party, any message which he might have carried from the unseen man called Sam Darcy could never have been a message of an imperative tone to Harry Bridges, because Harry Bridges accepted the aid of the Communists when it went along with the aims of the union, and he turned it down when there was any contrariety between the two ends.

You have heard the claim advanced by witnesses appearing for the Government that the Communists won the 1934 strike, but [4082] you have also heard persons out of the same coterie of witnesses say that the Communist Party engineered the great war against Hitler and Fascism. I think we can show you by the evidence that there are some human advancements for which the Communist Party was not responsible, and we will ask you to evaluate all those positions in the light of fact and not in the light of either hysteria or fancy.

Be that as it may, Harry Bridges, after the industrial strikes of 1934 and afterwards, followed such policies as would best suit the men in his own union, and in many instances, we will show you, the policy of the Communist Party happened to be the same policy as the policy of the ILWU. When that took place, he embraced the policy; when that did not take place, and we will show you that that was the situation on many, many occasions, Harry Bridges and the ILWU went off independently and even in conflict with the mandates of the Communist Party, and we will show you that by the evidence, not merely by utterances out of the lips of ourselves, who are, of course, interested in the case. That has been the story of Harry Bridges and of his two adherents who sit here as defendants, Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson.

There has been evidence here about the Communist Party line. It is a phrase that you hear on the streets. It is a phrase that has been echoed in the courtroom here, the Communist Party line. You are told in a most dramatic instance of that [4083] kind that the Communist Party line made some abrupt change in June of 1941, at the time that Hitler attacked Soviet Russia, and you are told that Harry Bridges made that same abrupt change of policy, and hence Harry Bridges is a Communist. Well, the whole premise is false. The whole declaration is a myth. The whole thing has no bearing on Harry Bridges whatever the Communist Party line may have been, because we will show you by evidence, we will show you from Harry Bridges and from his records out of the glass house in which he has necessarily lived over the years, we will show you by printed documents that prior to June, 1941, and after June of 1941, Harry Bridges followed the identical policy, particularly prior to June of 1941 when there was no sign upon the international scene of any break between Soviet Russia and Germany, Harry Bridges endorsed the national defense program of our President and urged all the members of his union to follow that policy. After June of 1941, he repeated the identical words and continued, and that has been the position of Harry Bridges over all the years of the war.

So we will show you, in short, that there has been no Communist Party line for any of these three defendants. We do not propose, when we speak of cooperation on occasion between the aims of the ILWU and the aims of the Communist Party, to suggest that these men cooperated in all respects with the Communist Party short of actual membership. We do not infer that at all. The cooperation, when it did exist, was the same kind of [4084] cooperation that one political party might have with another during one phase of a campaign.

We will show you that these three men, whom you have been told by witnesses followed the Communist Party line, are the three men who ignored the Communist Party in their famous no-strike pledge. We will show you that by evidence which can not be refuted. We will show you within the last calendar year, 1949, these three men, Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson, flaunted whatever strength the Communist Party might have brought them, by entering into an agreement which has been popularly called the new look on the waterfront. And what is that? The new look on the waterfront is the arrangement between Harry Bridges, the ILWU, and the Employers, by which all controversies are settled first by sitting down at the council table with persons who I suppose to the Communist Party constitute the hated capitalist class, and we will show you that by entering into that arrangement Harry Bridges and the ILWU drew forth bitter criticism from the Communist Party as having effectuated a surrender of their economic rights. So there is no picture of these men following hand in hand in the laying of the years with the Communist Party. There will be no such thing out of the evidence in this case.

Now, as to secret meetings. There has been much talk from the witnesses who have appeared here of so-called secret meetings. And there were secret meetings, members of the jury. [4085] In the incipient days of the union every meeting had to be held in secret lest the participants be subjected to assault and arrest as radicals. That situation, of course, has changed. It changed after the conclusion of the 1934 strikes. But over the years there have been many so-called secret meetings, the same kind of secret meetings that any business man might have within the spheres of endeavor of his own work. We will show you that Bridges has had secret meetings with employers, although he has not thereby been accused of becoming one of them. We will show that he has had secret meetings with bankers. He has secret meetings with city judges who wanted his support for reelection, but who feared such patronage should see the light of day. There have been many secret meetings conducted by Harry Bridges, but none of them linking him with the Communist Party.

Bridges, it is true, has attended meetings where Communists were present and where he, known to himself, was probably the only non-Communist present. We will show you that the witness who gave his name as Kermit Charles Kroiek told the truth, a prosecution witness, when he told you as jurors that it was quite a usual thing for a Communist Party meeting to have invited as a participant some trade union leader who did not happen to be a member of the Communist Party, so that problems of the union which might also be issues pleasing to the Communist Party could be discussed. We will show you that that was the situation of Bridges in more instances than he could possibly narrate, more [4086] instances than his memory might contain. We will show you, however, that Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt never attended meetings of that kind, because the peculiar stature of Harry Bridges in the trade union movement was the reason for his inclusion in various small Communist Party meetings on occasion. They were not Communist Party meetings so far as Bridges was concerned. What they may have been considered by the other persons are matters outside of his knowledge or opinion.

Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson, in the course of their life as trade unionists, have sat down at meetings in which a great number of persons whom they thought to belong to the Communist Party were present, but neither respectively has been the only non-Communist present, and we will show you that by evidence in this case.

If I can speak a little further upon this evidence about attending meetings with members of the Communist Party on the part of Harry Bridges, that situation, I think, is easily illustrated, and I will do that by recounting an incident which has been duplicated over the years on at least several occasions during his lifetime. Harry Bridges is acquainted with the man identified here as William Schneidermann, said to be a Communist leader or a district organizer or some title of that kind, locally here in San Francisco. Let us suppose that Harry Bridges is sitting in his office, and as I say, this is an incident that has been duplicated on many occasions, and he has [4087] before him the discussion of some matter that is coming up on the union floor, a proposed piece of legislation either in Sacramento or in Washington, upon which the union has asked to take a position. That is something that happens every month in the lives of these men. The telephone rings. It is Schneidermann. He says, "Mr. Bridges, can I come over and see you?" Bridges says, "Yes, come over."

You may say why does he consult with William Schneidermann? And here is why: Bridges knows that when he takes a position on a piece of proposed law to the floor of the union, there may be three or four other people who will rise to the floor and speak on the same proposition, people whose affiliations may or may not be known to Harry Bridges, people who may be influenced by William Schneidermann. So it is highly to the interests of Harry Bridges to sit down and unfold his point of view, and he does so. Suppose Schneidermann comes up to Bridges' office and he has three of his associates with him. Has Mr. Bridges thereby attended a fraction meeting or a faction meeting, whatever these witnesses called these segments of the Communist Party? And to illustrate the problem further: Suppose Schneidermann says to Bridges, "Can you meet me? I want to discuss something with you." And Bridges meets Schneidermann somewhere else, in a restaurant booth, and Schneidermann has two or three companions. Is Bridges then attending a unit meeting of the Communist Party? We will show you members of [4088] the jury that upon every instance in which Harry Bridges has attended groups, happening to be composed of the members of the Communist Party, that his participation has been entirely directed to the interests of his union and to the interests of the men who have elected him, and we will show you that clearly and unequivocally by the evidence in this case.

We will show you by evidence, in short, that any association or corporation or joining together in any movement or any activity between ILWU headed by Harry Bridges and the Communist Party might be likened to the alliance which existed for a few years between Soviet Russia and the United States. The two nations cooperated for their immediate ends, but by that association we did not become Communists, nor did the Soviet people become capitalists. We will show you that that analogy can particularly be applied to any cooperation between those men and any endeavor linking the name of the Communist Party with their work. [4089]

And we will show you this: In any matter in which there was any discussion or association between Harry Bridges or Henry Schmidt—because Henry Schmidt has been associated in the trade union movement with Harry Bridges now over a great number of years—we will show you that any such momentary cooperation had to do with perfectly legitimate and ordinary aims of the working people. When they discussed prospective legislation with members of the Communist Party, in most every instance those same subjects of discussion became enacted as part of the laws of our land, because they were concerned with very fundamental things. Their business is concerned with very fundamental things,—wages, hours, working conditions, —things that go to the essence of the lives of human beings. And we will show you that when these fundamental issues,—wages, hours, working conditions of human beings—became broadened into political issues, again they became matters entirely of legitimate inquiry. For example, Social Security, old age pension, the graduated income tax according to the wealth of the particular taxpayer—the Communist Party was interested in all of these measures, and when the measures were proposed, the opponents attacked the measures, they were called radicals. And yet the Congressmen who voted for those laws did not become Communists, any more than Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt or Bob Robertson have become Communists by the economic life which they led in the interests of men who were working with their hands. [4090]

We will show you that the union to which these men belong, the ILWU, is a militant, progressive, even a left-wing union. By "left-wing" I mean a union that fights for the rights of the working class which it represents. We will show that has always been their position; that they have never equivocated; they may be on the opposite end of the economic poles to the men who consider themselves conservatives or reactionaries, but they are not members of the Communist Party, and they never have been.

In their movement toward effectuating their own aims, the ILWU and the men who appear here as defendants, have taken positions which on occasion have been deemed visionary. They have gone further than the advocacy of the laws which we have just now mentioned. They have asked that other laws be passed. And what are they? Civil rights for all of the people of the South; no discrimination because of race, color or creed in any employment. It happens that those are the ends of the Communist Party at this time, and they are also in this calendar year of 1950 the ends of the Administration of President Truman. It happens that in these instances the aims and the ideals of the three groups, the ILWU, the Communist Party and the Democratic administration, seem to coincide. No one of the three thereby becomes tainted with the political color of the other.

And we will show you that by evidence upon a broader scale, [4091] upon a purely international scale. We will offer you all of the activities of Harry Bridges. We will show you that the actions of the three men, of Harry Bridges, Bob Robertson and Henry Schmidt, have not been at the inspiration of the Communist Party in any particular, but they are truly—and perhaps this may sound like an overstatement—inspired by a love of humanity and love of America. I say that without blushing, and I will expect you to reach that conclusion when you hear the evidence in this case.

For example, long ago in the late 1930's long before we were awakened to the rude and grim news of Pearl Harbor, Harry Bridges informed the United States Government that Japanese spies in fishing boats were cruising along the coast from British Columbia down to the Gulf. And we will show you that when he communicated this evidence to the Department of Justice he was primly thanked for it, and the evidence was filed away.

Earlier still, in 1935, Harry Bridges and the ILWU refused to load scrap iron which was then being sent to Mussolini for the prosecution of the campaign in Abyssinia. And Bridges was denounced as a troublemaker for taking that position and the Italian consulate and the local authorities combined to condemn Bridges and to threaten police interference if the cargo was not moved.

Those are the activities of these men long before the great war which came upon all of us. [4092]

Long before the great war Harry Bridges had boycotted any shipment of munitions or scrap iron to Japan because, as early as 1931, Japan had become an aggressor nation.

If those aims are Communistic, I suppose these men may well be labeled Communists. If these aims are American aims, we will expect you to find them not guilty in this case, because they never were members of the Communist Party, they never joined, they never participated, except as I have outlined here.

The inference appears out of the lips of some of the prosecution witnesses that Harry Bridges in his policies and his activities prior to the great war followed the interests not of the United States but the interests of an inimical foreign power. We will show you by evidence that any activity, any conduct, any stated policy on behalf of Harry Bridges in the international situation prior to the war was born not out of any participation with Communist Party members, not out of any economic discussions which he ever had with members of that group, but by cooperation with General Breckenridge of the United States Marine Corps. We will show you that as early as 1936 the international policy of Harry Bridges began to be formulated and tempered by meetings between those two men which took place monthly over a period of many years. And before the war, and around 1939 or 1940, while the Immigration Service was assaulting Bridges with its arm of the Government, the War Department requested Harry Bridges to cooperate with the [4093] Office of Strategic Services, the famous OSS which became so well known in the war. That is the international background that we will show you concerning Harry Bridges and concerning these men who went along the road with him over the entire stream of years. And in none of those activities—we will show you out of the evidence in not one international activity of Harry Bridges did the Communist Party, a small segment of 70,000 members of our population, one-fiftieth of one per cent, direct him, advise him, order him or influence him.

We will show you that, and we are sure that you will come to that conclusion after you listen to the evidence.

Now, as has been mentioned before, an opening statement such as the statement I make to you now, is not evidence. You can receive evidence only out of the lips of witnesses. An opening statement, however, is a prelude to the evidence. We make this detailed statement now, you may be assured, not because of any adulation which I may possess in the sound of my own voice, but because we want to point out to you in advance exactly what our position may be on every facet of this case. And we want to show you and alert you in advance to the inferences which we expect to arise from all parts of the testimony.

An opening statement is more than a mere offer of proof, it is a promise, it is a pact, it is an agreement between myself and yourselves that the defense binds itself to produce the evidence of which we now speak. We will undertake [4094] to prove to you everything which I now mention.

I told you that I would proceed first to tell you about the general matters which we will prove in opposition to the case stated here by the Government. I will now go, if I may, into the specific evidence, the accusations which are made here, the incidents which have been related; sometimes by people who never saw Bridges in their entire lives. We want to go over point by point every one of those persons and demonstrate to you the utter falsity of everything that they have said.

The first witness called by the prosecution was the man named John Schomaker. I will speak with you first concerning his testimony. We will go along the various facets of the declarations he made here. And I will say this to you: Just as surely as the witnesses Johnson, Crouch and Ross have been caught in open perjury, the witness Schomaker will be caught in the same toils as the evidence progresses.

The Court: We will take the morning recess. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the morning recess, and the same admonition is given to you as I gave during the introduction of the evidence, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.)

Mr. MacInnis: As I suggested, I would less than frank with the jury if after having tried your patience with a rather long [4095] introductory statement, I failed to show you the specific items of evidence upon which we will rely in this case. I am going to proceed now to tell you exactly what we are going to show upon exactly every accusation made by the prosecution witnesses, and at the conclusion we will invite you to share the opinion that we have had all along: that it is a house of cards; that it is a fabrication; that it is a form without substance.

I will ask you to journey with me first through the testimony of the witness John Schomaker, the fiction writer and hod carrier, the man who laughed as he purported to point the accusatory finger at three men whom he said were still his friends. I will hint and suggest the items of testimony that he gave, and then I will tell you exactly what we are going to do to counterbalance and rebut utterly that testimony. And so that we can follow the trend of this discussion, I am going to intrude a little further upon your good nature and upon the discretion of his Honor, if I may, and use the blackboard, because there are dates, details and incidents. And I will proceed as swiftly as I can.

Now, concerning the witness John Schomaker I will put a few words concerning each incident upon the blackboard so that we can identify them in our minds as we discuss them. You will have to forgive my poor writing, but I will indicate it from here.

A Juror: We can't see the lower part. [4096]

Mr. MacInnis: I think maybe this wasn't such a good idea; but I will read this aloud, and if you have any difficulty, I will dispense with the blackboard. It occurred to me as a good idea, but if we have any trouble, I think I will probably abandon it.

The first item of testimony that comes to my mind as given by John Schomaker concerning Harry Bridges is his assertion that in October of 1933, he went to the home of Harry Bridges with a man named Herman Mann. He told the jury that he, John Schomaker, was at that time a member of the ILA, the old longshoremen's union. He told the jury he didn't know whether Harry Bridges was at that time, and that they had some discussions. Here is what we will show you, not by the lips of one of the defendants but by documentary evidence: From January of 1929 up to the end of the month of October, 1933, John Schomaker worked as an orderly in the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto; he wasn't on the waterfront at all. We have under subpoena the records of the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto, and I anticipate that the first testimony which we will intrude upon your ears will be the testimony that until October 30, 1933, John Schomaker worked as an orderly at the Palo Alto hospital. The significance of that date transcends merely the failings of human memory; it isn't a matter of saying, "Well, maybe it was the next month, maybe he was mistaken," for these reasons John Schomaker testified that his purpose of going out to see Harry Bridges—and you [4097] will recall his early words—was to get Bridges to write articles for the Waterfront Worker, a mimeographed sheet which was published in the interests of the militant waterfront workers before the strike. Here is how we will show you that did not take place in September of 1933: The Waterfront Worker was taken over from another union group by no other person than Harry Bridges,—a matter established in previous trials involving the same subject matter—and in September of 1933, the paper was controlled, owned apparently, by Bridges as one of the members of the strike committee at that time and a member of the executive board of the Longshoremen's Union, and John Schomaker, who later on did become the editor of that little paper, would have had nothing to do in October of 1933, or even in November of 1933, with going to Harry Bridges, who had instigated the paper, and asking him to write articles. We will show you that by additional evidence to the word of Harry Bridges, but the more cogent fact is the third. I will read that aloud because it is difficult for the jurors in the rear to see. Schomaker said that when he first came to waterfront in October of 1933, he had instruction from Sam Darcy, the local leader of the Communist Party, to do two things: (1) To set up the Albion Hall group; that was a group of men, longshoremen, who wanted to struggle for their rights to better wages; and to reactivate the waterfront. We will show you that that testimony is as clearly a lie as any other piece of testimony in the [4098] prosecution case, because the Albion Hall group was set up by Harry Bridges and by other people in the union months before Schomaker ever saw the San Francisco waterfront. The Albion Hall group was composed of some of the men who were later very active in the 1934 strike.

You will recall during the progress of some of the testimony references to a little strike in 1933 in the early fall upon the Matson docks. That took place in August or September of 1933. That strike, its successful conclusion, and the events that followed constituted the reactivating of the waterfront, because fully two months before Schomaker saw service as a longshoreman on the waterfront, the union had come to life, the ILA became recognized in a limited way by the employers, the men were openly allowed to wear their buttons, the exectuive board headed by Bridges had been set up, and when Schomaker came to the waterfront all of those things had been done.

We have some other proof about the emergence of Schomaker out of the corridors of the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto where he worked so long as an orderly, in this: We will show you by records which are under subpoena—Mr. Bertani, secretary of Local 10 of the ILWU will probably be our second witness, Mr. Louis Bertani, and he will bring to you the original records showing that John Schomaker was initiated into the ILA, the Longshoremen's Union, on November 20, 1933, weeks after the events of which he spoke took place. [4099]

Mr. MacInnis: I will proceed now to the matter which may be most dramatic, at least it was from my point of view, in the testimony of John Schomaker, the story about the application to the Communist Party supposedly signed by Harry Bridges. I have some thoughts on that, but first, another odd thought comes to my mind. We will show you that while Schomaker worked until October 30th of 1933, in Palo Alto Hospital, at the end of the strike when the longshoremen had to register, he took to himself a spurious registration and represented to the employers that he had been working on and off through 1932 and 1933 on the waterfront. Here, he swore, he came in October, 1933, to the waterfront. We will offer you that as a sign of the same deceptions which will characterize all of this man's testimony.

The next testimony of Schomaker is that one day in November, 1933, he went into a restaurant at Stewart and Market Streets, on the corner, he says, with Harry Bridges and a man named B. B. Jones, that while they sat there a very dramatic incident took place. First of all, there was probably no restaurant on the corner of Stewart and Market Streets in 1933. That is not a matter of great moment, however, because there was a restaurant a little less than a block away called Boyd's which has always been in existence, a place where Bridges often did go for coffee during those years of his life. The date, you will recall, was fixed by Schomaker by his allusion to another incident, if you recall his words on the stand, when he said, "I remember the [4100] time because one of the things we were talking about was the death of a waterfront worker over at Encinal Terminals." We have gone through the records of the State Compensation Board and similar public agencies and we find that there was a death of a waterfront worker in that period of time, but occurring, I believe, either on the last day of the calendar year 1933, the end of December or early January. At least, it could not have been a topic of discussion during the calendar year 1933.

The third incident, the most dramatic incident, that a man called B. B. Jones, whom Schomaker says was an organizer, I suppose for the Communist Party, asked Bridges if he would join the Communist Party, and that there was some discussion. Schomaker said, for some strange reason, he then left the restaurant and stood outside talking to some man while the terrible deal took place. We will show you by B. B. Jones himself that no such thing took place, because B. B. Jones does exist. B. B. Jones is a man working upon the waterfront. His name is Bruce B. Jones. And he is not unknown to these gentlemen who form the backbone of the prosecution. We will show you that the agents of these men interviewed Mr. B. B. Jones in the spring of 1949. We will show you that they served upon him a subpoena to appear before the grand jury in this matter, and that B. B. Jones came, but that they did not call him as a witness. We will show you that by the testimony of B. B. Jones the third person present in this clandestine meeting between Schomaker, Bridges and Jones. We [4101] will show you that the signing up, the supposed signing up of Bridges by B. B. Jones in the Communist Party is an invention, a rank fabrication, the purest lie of any lie that has yet intruded itself into this case. We will show you that it is a seat of fiction comparable to the story of the witnesses who told you of seeing Bridges receiving honors from the Communist Party in New York at a time when we know him to have been right here in California. We will show you that by other evidence in addition to the testimony of Mr. B. B. Jones.

We will show you that B. B. Jones is a longshoreman at the present time. We will show you that he was so enraged when he read in the newspapers of the story in which he was supposed to be a participant that he got out a mimeographed sheet himself denouncing and denying the story, and hung it up in every open place along the waterfront so that the members of the waterfront crowds could see the attitude that he felt.

We will show you that Jones knows Schomaker and Schomaker knows Jones and that Schomaker, as recently as last week, in the interests of these men for the Government, made a subtle although definite attempt to contact Mr. Jones to see if Mr. Jones was going to come here to contradict him in this case. We will show you that by evidence. You will say to yourselves, "If this charge now being made is true, why would these supposedly learned men take a chance on using a person who really exists as the third person in this kind of transaction"? [4102]

We will show you by the evidence what the reasons are. First, we will show you that John Schomaker thought that B. B. Jones was still a member of the Communist Party, and he thought that B. B. Jones would not dare to come to court and expose himself to cross-examination as a witness because he might thus be called upon to reveal the names of compatriots of his. [4103]

But we will show you that, alas, B. B. Jones was a person who was in the Communist Party and drifted out of it eight years ago, in 1942, after he was torpedoed on a merchant ship during the last war.

The second reason that they used the name B. B. Jones was this: Mr. Jones—I say in all respect to him because he will be here as probably our third witness—is an eccentric kind of fellow. He is a rough kind of fellow. He does not possess, we will show you, the Southern education of a man like Lawrence Ross, let us say, produced here by the Government. He is a fellow who is prone to lose his temper. He is excitable. He was torpedoed in the war and they thought we would not dare to produce Mr. Jones because of the eccentricities of his nature, but we do not care, and we do not suppose that you do either, what the propensities of Mr. Jones may be to lose his temper or to display any other histrionic abilities. We will bring him here to show you that this thing did not happen, that it could not have happened. And after you have listened to Mr. B. B. Jones we will offer you another conclusion: If the Communist Party had been trying to solicit the membership of Harry Bridges, they never would have called on Mr. B. B. Jones to carry out that task. You will see by his appearance, you will see by his demeanor, that he is not a person to whom that task would have been entrusted, and the naming of Jones in this case is some [4104] kind of macabre joke dreamed up by Schomaker and the agents of the Immigration Service—dreamed up, of course, to deceive you and to attempt to gain an unjust conviction of Mr. Bridges. We will show you that by the evidence in this case.

As I say, we will show you that B. B. Jones, Bruce B. Jones, knew Schomaker. More than that, we will show you that B. B. Jones, when he himself was being questioned by members of the Immigration Service, read that John Schomaker was also being questioned, and that Schomaker was a prospective witness for the Government. So Mr. Jones drove down to Menlo Park and he had a conversation with John Schomaker, and he will narrate it here. And I might say that after he had that conversation he made a written statement so that he would not be forced to rely on his own memory as to everything contained in that conversation; and when he takes the stand we will offer the statement in evidence. We will let the Government representatives see the statement if they choose, because Mr. B. B. Jones made a faithful report of exactly what John Schomaker said, and here is the conversation that they had as he will narrate it: Mr. Jones, after discovering the fact that he was being followed by agents of the Immigration Service, drew from Schomaker the admission that he was to be a Government witness. Jones asked him why, and Schomaker said—Schomaker, you will recall, had just bought a boarding house in Menlo Park, close to the environs of Stanford University, and is dependent for [4105] part of his existence upon the existence of students who take board and room at his house. Schomaker said, "What can I do?" He said, "I don't know any more than you do whether Bridges is a Communist or whether he is not, but," he said, "I have this house. I can't lose this house. If the Stanford students boycott me, I won't have this house any more." He said, "I have a family. I have to think of a lot of things. I am not in the ILWU any more."

And he said this: "My life isn't mine any more. Immigration agents come into my house without even ringing the doorbell."

Mr. Schomaker told the truth when he told you exactly that upon the witness stand here. That is the testimony that we will show you in respect of this supposed application in the Communist Party in the presence of B. B. Jones.

We will show you that the testimony about Communist Party books in the name of Harry Bridges or in the name of Dorgan or any other name is just as false as the spurious books which used to be bandied around San Francisco in the name of Dorgan at $500 apiece. That already appears in the testimony introduced by the Government as to the contents of Harry Bridges testimony before Judge Foley when he applied for citizenship. [4106]

We will show you that Harry Bridges never paid any dues to the Communist Party. He did not pay them to Schomaker, he did not pay them to B. B. Jones, he did not pay them to any other person and I regret to say that the other person mentioned in that incident named Norma Perry is not a person upon whom we could rely to bring here as a witness. We will show you Norma Perry is a person expelled from her job as secretary of the ILWU by Bridges because of information brought to him by the employers themselves that she was active as a labor spy, and that is the substance of that testimony and what it will be.

The next incident is this: Some time in 1938 at the house of a man named Jack Shaw Schomaker went out to a gathering attended by many people, and at that gathering Harry Bridges appeared and stood before the people and said that he joined the Communist Party, that he was a member of the Communist Party.

We will show you that in the calendar year of 1938 Harry Bridges, who was thus accused of placing his liberty in the hands of fifty or sixty people, many of whom were strangers, had already been called in, in November 1937 I think, before an Immigration Board to give testimony upon this very subject matter. In 1938 a warrant of arrest for his deportation had been issued, and we will show you that that never took place, and that Henry Schmidt, who is named by Schomaker as having been present at that meeting, was never at the home of Jack Shaw except to attend a large cocktail party some time years ago, a [4107] gathering at which no person made any speech to anybody else. We will show you that that event never took place, that in the first place Harry Bridges possesses sufficient intelligence not to have done a thing like that, and secondly, he would have no reason to do it. We will show you that by the evidence in this case.

The next matters to which I will respectfully call your attention involve the story about Sam Darcy and the 1934 strike. We will show you that if Darcy ever gave orders or instructions to John Schomaker as a courier, those instructions were never delivered to Harry Bridges. We will show you that Darcy exercised no right to order Harry Bridges to do anything. We will show you that he never did. We will show you unofficially that Sam Darcy has been under subpoena by these gentlemen of the prosecution throughout all of this trial, but they have chosen not to produce him as a witness upon this very important point. We will show you that the Communist Party, whatever role it may have played in aiding the strikers, whatever sympathy it may have possessed, did not call the strike. We will show you that the strike, particularly the general strike, was called by the most conservative leaders of the labor movement in San Francisco, Mr. Ed Vandeleur and Mr. John Shelley, who is now a member of Congress, and the Communist Party did not call either the longshore strike or the general strike of 1934. The aims of the strikers, as we learned already from the witnesses in this [4108] case, particularly the hostile witness, Henry Schrimpf, the aims of the strikers were not Communist Party aims. They were strictly trade union aims, living wages.

better working conditions, a chance for every man to have a fair job and a fair opportunity to earn a living. And the Communist Party, if you please, we will show you, did not settle the strike. We will show you that the strike was settled by a board appointed by the President of the United States and headed by the late and great Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco. We think that those facts will establish the Communist Party did not settle the strike.

Whatever your Honor's pleasure is, I can either proceed——

The Court: If it is not convenient——

Mr. MacInnis: It is convenient, your Honor.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen, we will resume at 2:00 o'clock. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form nor express an opinion thereon.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [4109]

Afternoon Session—Monday, January 23, 1950
2:00 P.M.

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANTS SCHMIDT AND ROBERTSON

Mr. MacInnis: To return, if I may, to a showing of the evidence which we will bring here in respect of the assertions of John Schomaker, the laughing hod carrier of Menlo Park, who was the first major witness of the prosecution, I will continue with the next incident to which he testified.

I have moved the blackboard a little bit closer; I think it may be of assistance here.

Harry Bridges came in by plane at 9:30 this morning from Honolulu. He complained that when the board was back further that my writing looked like the waves of the ocean, it made him a little dizzy. So I moved it up where Harry Bridges can't see it. So I will continue.

The ninth episode was a little story about Grants Pass, Oregon. John Schomaker said that on a day in the summer of 1936—and you will remember that is the same summer that Bridges was also supposed to have taken a mysterious trip to New York—but anyway, in the summer of 1936 Harry Bridges and John Schomaker drove up to Grants Pass and they met some [4110] mysterious people in the courthouse square, and as you remember, Bridges got out of the left side of the automobile because of his liberal leanings, and Schomaker got out on the right.

We will show you, members of the jury, and seriously, that the meeting at Grants Pass never took place, and there was no conceivable reason as to why such a meeting should have taken place. We will show you that one of the persons mentioned as a participant in this meeting at Grants Pass was a man called Bert Nelson. I think you will remember that his name was given as one of the persons who had this conference in Grants Pass, at which Harry Bridges, according to John Schomaker, was present.

We will show you not out of the lips of Harry Bridges, but out of the records taken many years ago, in 1936, records which could not have been fabricated, records for which there would be no reason to fabricate—we will show you that on July 20 of 1936, Harry Bridges returned to San Francisco from a trip to Seattle, and that on this trip in Seattle he had been installed upon the executive board of a coastwise union, and that he had met in Seattle with a man named Bert Nelson, who was placed as the most important person in this conversation by John Schomaker. We will show you that that meeting never took place.

The tenth meeting or incident, if you can bear with my imperfect writing, was a meeting said to be with Earl Browder [4111] in some prune orchard during the prosecution of the 1934 strike. Now, whether Browder came to San Francisco in the course of the 1934 strike I can't say. We don't know. Harry Bridges attended no meeting in any prune orchard with Earl Browder. Harry Bridges we will show you, met Earl Browder two years later for the first time in his life, and he met him openly in a legitimate manner that might befall any citizen of some standing or some renown in San Francisco. Browder was speaking along with a group of other persons upon the stage of Dreamland Auditorium in San Francisco in 1936, and Mr. Bridges was introduced to him and shook hands with him then for the first time here in San Francisco.

Henry Schmidt is said to have been another member of this meeting in the prune orchard with Earl Browder, whatever its significance may be. Henry Schmidt had never met Browder in his life, has never met him yet. I believe Henry Schmidt, as a member of an audience, heard Browder and various other persons speak, possibly at the same meeting at Dreamland Auditorium, but he has never met the man in his life.

Henry Schmidt, when this incident was disclosed upon the witness stand, attempted to recall all of the times in his life in which he had passed through that particular segment of our country. By our country, I mean the valley around San Jose and the points to the west over to the ocean.

Now, the incident concerning Browder and the prune [4112] orchard is not a novel one to the Bridges case, because the same matter was invoked in previous cases brought against Harry Bridges, and Henry Schmidt read that material in an attempt to find out a possible reference to that incident or anything taking place in real life, and he found in the other case there was a reference to the town of Cupertino and a reference to a prune orchard. Henry Schmidt in the recent years of his life has traveled in the summertime to Santa Cruz, Ben Lomond and Felton, and has gone by Cupertino possibly a couple of hundred times, and not the faintest flicker of recognition comes into his mind concerning anything having to do with a prune orchard in that part of the country, much less the meeting with the man called Earl Browder. [4113]

The next incident of which Schomaker spoke was a meeting taking place in San Diego in 1935. I think prior to a State American Federation of Labor convention, and into that meeting comes another member of the cast of characters, Stanley Hancock, who later testified and said that such a meeting took place. Now, we will show you that Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt never saw that man Stanley Hancock in their lives. When he came into the room, they looked at each other and at me in wonderment and amazement and we asked, as we did from time to time, "Who is this person? Do you know him?" And not a glimmer of recognition.

The meeting supposedly taking place in San Diego before the A. F. of L. convention of 1935 is another meeting in which the names of persons, have been pieced together for designs that we can't fathom at this time, but Bridges did not attend such a meeting, Schmidt did not attend such a meeting, and we have no idea as to whether or not the other persons present actually gathered there. There would have been no reason for Bridges to have met with that particular assemblage, and we will show you by evidence that he did not do so. We will show you that he was present at the convention of 1935, that he participated in various activities on the floor of the convention; we will show you that this meeting which was supposedly to discuss the slate of progressive candidates to be run for office in the A. F. of L. never took place, at least in that form. [4114]

We will show you that Bridges and Henry Schmidt attended a large caucus of progressive persons, a great number of people, who were discussing the candidates they were backing for office, but that group had nothing to do with the man now known as Stanley Hancock, that probably the man named John Schomaker was not there, and it had nothing at all to do with the Communist Party.

We can perceive, I think, the pattern upon which many segments of this case are built by following the testimony of Schomaker, who is a kind of anchor man for the supporting testimony of other persons; and because the twelfth incident, to which we call your attention, and upon which we will present evidence, is the naming by Schomaker of a meeting at the Sokol Hall, at which a man named Schneidermann spoke, and into that meeting we find in the testimony of Schomaker, that there is brought to our attention the name of Lawrence Ross. Lawrence Ross is named by Schomaker. The man called Lawrence Ross was later produced as a witness here. Now, if there was such a gathering at Sokol Hall to hear William Schneidermann speak about his attendance at some Communist international convention, we do not know. We have looked through the public writings of those times, the Chronicle, the Examiner, the Call and the News, and we have found some reference to public meetings. We have found, although we have asked the witness those questions, we found Schneidermann made a public speech at the Scottish Rite [4115] Auditorium at about that period of time, and the subject of his talk was a visit to the Communist International. Bridges was not there, Henry Schmidt was not there. Whether the man named Lawrence Ross attended such a meeting we have no way of saying. That would be our proof on that subject.

The thirteenth episode, and I think the last in the series of incidents narrated by John Schomaker, was a meeting which he said he attended, which he labeled with the Communist adjective and which he said was devoted to accusations brought against a woman called Norma Perry, who has been mentioned many times throughout this trial. We will show you that there was a woman named Norma Perry. We will show you that some time during the 1934 strike a woman by that name, who was apparently married to a known Communist, who had been several times married to persons of that affiliation, came to the waterfront and offered her services as secretary to the strike committee. We will show you that she was engaged, and that she performed ordinary functions for a considerable period of time. There did come a day when Henry Schrimpf, the second witness of whom we will presently speak, and John Schomaker came to Harry Bridges and told him that he ought to fire Norma Perry, that she was a labor spy, that she was carrying on information to the employers, and there was a discussion, because Harry Bridges declined to accept their word for that assertion. Norma Perry was brought into the room and there was a discussion. Bridges declined to take the [4116] woman's job away from her at that time and she continued in that post.

A little while later Bridges had a conversation with Mr. Mitchell of the Pacific Lighterage Company in San Francisco, one of the employers, and Mitchell himself told Harry Bridges that information was coming to the employers out of the lips of Norma Perry, and Bridges then fired the woman. The history of this lady is she then took up employment with a mortal enemy of Mr. Bridges, Mr. Harry Lundeberg, whose name has been mentioned before. That is the story of Norma Perry. That is the story of the supposed meeting together to fire her from her job. The story is that when the accusations were first made, Harry Bridges listened to them, took the lady's word against the word of Schomaker and Schrimpf. Later on when the proof seemed irresistible, coming as it did from the other side of the economic fence, he fired her. That is a summary of the evidence which we will produce as opposed to every assertion made upon the witness stand by John Schomaker. If he testified generally as to meetings which he called Communist meetings, we reaffirm our denial that those meetings never happened either, and we are assured that the evidence will support exactly what we say at this time by way of offer of proof. So I will invite you, if I may, into a summary of the evidence which we will produce upon the stand, of the second of the stable of confessed ex-Communists, a man called Henry Schrimpf. [4117]

Henry Schrimpf was first brought to the witness stand late one afternoon and he gave brief testimony upon that first day about one incident. He said that some time in the spring or summer of 1934, at a place I think on Stewart Street, although he was not sure of that, that Henry Schmidt was walking by and said to him, "Why don't you get wise to yourself and join the Communist Party?", and that he handed him an application. He said he didn't know what he did with the application. He thinks he filled it out. What he did with it thereafter he didn't say. Well, upon such details we would naturally not be enabled to produce many persons to prove that the incident never happened, because no other persons are named as being among those present, but we will show you that Schmidt did no such thing. We will show you that Henry Schmidt never asked Schrimpf nor any other person to join the Communist Party. We will show you that Henry Schmidt was not an organizer for the Communist Party nor for any other group or political association. We will show you that that incident never took place.

One of the chief gains established by the Waterfront workers as a result of the 1934 strike was the creation of a joint labor relations committee by which representatives of the union and representatives of the employers sat together on one committee and arbitrated matters of general interest both to the employers and to the union. Additional to all the working conditions and wage scale and to the ordinary things that would [4118] affect the economic situation of the workers, the most important feature of the 1934 strike and its successful end was the creation and the recognition that followed it of the Labor Relations Committee. I offer you this introduction because it forms the basis for a hatred of fifteen years' standing emanating from the witness Henry Schrimpf and directed toward Harry Bridges and toward Henry Schmidt. The Labor Relations Committee, you will recall, was a matter upon which Mr. Schrimpf was interrogated by myself when he took the witness stand. Henry Schrimpf said first he never heard of it. He said secondly maybe he was on some temporary committee, but that he was not on the committee established at the end of the strike. We will produce records, not necessarily union records, because we can bring the duplicate records possessed by the employers themselves; we will probably subpoena those records here, to show you that at the conclusion of the 1934 strike Henry Schrimpf was one of the three or four people selected to represent the union in the most important committee then in existence.

Now, what is the significance of what may appear to be a minor discrepancy in his testimony? It is this: Henry Schrimpf has an unfortunate affliction, for which I do not criticize him. He is a man who drinks. There were two, three, four meetings of the Labor Relations Committee shortly after that committee was brought into existence, and the records will show, as we pointed out to Henry Schrimpf before, that he was absent, that [4119] he failed to attend. After the third or fourth absence, Harry Bridges went to Henry Schrimpf and told him he was going to withhold payment of the allotment or wages. There was some daily stipend paid to both employer members and union members of the Labor Relations Committee, and he told Henry Schrimpf that he was not going to have him put off the Board and thus exposed, but he would permit him to resign. So we will show you that Henry Schrimpf then tendered a formal resignation to the Labor Relations Committee of the Joint Employer and Union Activities, and thereafter he told people the reason he had resigned was he could not appear and sit across the table from a man named Peterson who was then a representative of the employers. We will show you that by competent evidence from one or two different sources. We will show you that from that time onward, late in 1934 or early 1935, there ensued on the part of Schrimpf an almost maniacal hatred for Harry Bridges. We will show you, in fact, that hatred led up to activity on the part of Schrimpf in connection with the Immigration Department as far back as 1937, and with that thought we will travel to the next incident involving Henry Schrimpf. [4120]

Henry Schrimpf, you will recall, told you under oath that he was a member of the Communist Party but that he drifted away sometime in 1935; that he had only remained a member for a year to a year and a half. The witness Lawrence Ross—I certainly don't ask that you accept his word—said that Schrimpf was a member of the Communist Party during 1935 and 1936 and 1937, during all of his tenure of office as editor of the Western Worker. Whichever of those statements you choose to accept, we will show you this—part of it has already been shown by evidence; part of it remains to be established by evidence which we will produce. We will show you that in the summer of 1937 there was an incident in the city of Portland, Oregon, where a union convention was being held; that there was word sent around that Henry Schrimpf had been seized and interrogated by agents of the Immigration Department. Henry Schrimpf was of course at that time an alien, not a citizen of the United States. That after the incident, which also disclosed other activities of the Immigration Department which have been mentioned in the evidence, a Mr. Bonham, who was then a representative or head of the Immigration Service—he may well have held the post which Mr. Barber now occupies—was asked to come and make a statement on the floor of the convention, and you will recall that Henry Schrimpf said that it was true that he had gotten up and he had vigorously defended his own rights and said that he [4121] had refused to make any statement to Mr. Bonham and to the members of the Immigration Service. Now, while we doubted at the outset the credibility of that statement, that an alien might take that position with the Immigration Service, we have discovered—and indeed Harry Bridges has known it for many years—and we will show you that at that very time in the year 1937 Henry Schrimpf, the confessed member of the Communist Party, was writing letters to the Immigration Service denouncing Harry Bridges and suggesting that he should be deported because he was a member of the Communist Party.

You may recall during the examination of Henry Schrimpf that there were produced and shown to him certain letters. It was ruled, upon objection from the prosecution, that those letters were hearsay. Very likely they were, at the particular time. We will show you that in the year 1938, in the month of March, here in San Francisco, after a warrant for his arrest upon deportation charges was issued against Harry Bridges, that he sent for Henry Schrimpf, and he produced and showed to him the letters which have previously been referred to—correspondence between Congressman John Coffey of the State of Washington; Madam Perkins, who was then Secretary of Labor, and Mr. John L. Lewis, out of which it developed that Madam Perkins had herself written to Congressman Coffey discussing the charges brought by Henry Schrimpf against Harry Bridges back in 1937. And we will show you that Bridges [4122] confronted Schrimpf with these facts, and that Schrimpf again denied his connection with the affair; that since that time, with the passage of years, Henry Schrimpf made no effort to achieve further prominence in the ILWU except on isolated occasions. We will show you that by the testimony of more than one person who will take the stand in this case.

The witness Henry Schrimpf of course repeated the testimony concerning the prune orchard meeting with Earl Browder. Our testimony upon that point has already been disclosed.

He discussed and testified concerning the firing of Norma Perry from the Union. That testimony of course has already been discussed between us.

The final matter to which I will advert in discussing Henry Schrimpf would be his malice toward Henry Schmidt. Henry Schmidt found himself lifted by the testimony of Henry Schrimpf into the position of a Communist Party organizer in 1934. We will show you that, in addition to the hatred between Schrimpf and Harry Bridges, the hatred that Schrimpf bore for Bridges, that in the passage of the same years following the 1934 strike that in virtually every annual election of the ILWU Henry Schrimpf took a position opposite to that of Henry Schmidt and was on each and every occasion defeated in bitter political contests for an office within the union.

We will show you that the bitterness and the resentment of Henry Schrimpf toward Mr. Schmidt grew to such proportions [4123] that on one occasion he physically assaulted and attacked Mr. Schmidt following a meeting of the union. We will show you and we will offer you the conclusion that those feelings had something to do with the procurement here of Henry Schrimpf.

I said erroneously that the incident concerning the malice of Schrimpf for the defendant Henry Schmidt was the last incident. There is one more matter that I would very gravely call to your attention: the naturalization of Henry Schrimpf. Henry Schrimpf told you under oath that he was a member of the Communist Party. The evidence by which the prosecution is bound establishes, according to his word, that he was in the Communist Party through 1935; by the word of the unfortunate Ross that he was in the Communist Party continuously through 1937. Now, whichever you accept, there has been read into the record the Naturalization Act or law governing those matters, and that law makes inquiry into the status of any applicant for citizenship a matter of inquiry going back ten years. The papers are now received in evidence, that is, such papers as we have been permitted to admit concerning the witness Henry Schrimpf, that he was asked the question under oath in his application: "Have you ever been a member of any organization advocating the overthrow of our Government by force and violence," and he answered in the negative. And he was granted his citizenship papers in 1943—I might say, a privilege for which he had theretofore never made any application.

We will show you that throughout the past many years that in the eyes of the Immigration Service the Communist Party has always been considered a party falling within that prohibition of that law; that is, an organization teaching the overthrow of the Government by force and violence. We will show you that in preparing those forms and in abstracting the signature under oath of Henry Schrimpf that the Immigration Service, and Henry Schrimpf must have known, that reference was being made to his Communist Party affiliation.

We will offer you in the instance of the witness Henry Schrimpf the irresistible conclusion either that some special bounty was granted the man by the Immigration Service for reasons not disclosed, or that Henry Schrimpf committed ordinary perjury for which he might have been prosecuted.

One matter that I won't trouble to write upon the blackboard. We will show you that the immigration officer in charge of the matter concerning Henry Schrimpf was, as recently disclosed by the special prosecutor from Washington, a man named Howser, and we will show you that when the name of the man Howser was first intruded into the record in this case, that the special prosecutor rose to his feet and said he was making every human effort to discover the whereabouts and the existence of Mr. Howser, but that he couldn't be found because he was no longer in the Immigration Service. We have caused a subpoena to be served upon Mr. Howser in his law [4125] offices in Long Beach. And his name is indeed Everett Howser, spelled with two t's, as the prosecutor pointed out; he does have offices in the Security Building at Long Beach. And long before the disclosure was made to us by the prosecutor, Mr. Howser had been interviewed by members of the Immigration Service in respect to this case. We will offer you that fact and ask you to draw whatever conclusion you feel that the situation merits in the light of fairness and good faith.

A lady by the name of Irene Harris, we will show, was next produced by the Government, and she gave testimony concerning one incident in corroboration, apparently, of the previous words of the witness John Schomaker. Now, not having any evidence in our possession as to the direct motivations of Mrs. Harris, except for the fact that her husband, a Mr. Ernest Harris, has been for many years a foe and opponent of Harry Bridges within the structure of the ILWU, and crediting the lady with the ordinary intendments that one credits human beings, realizing the possibility of mistake, we will show you this: In the first place, Harry Bridges in the year 1938 did not go to the home of Jack Shaw and announce after his wararnt for arrest had been issued to a group of strangers that he was indeed a member of the Communist Party; he did not on that occasion or any other ask the persons present to join the Communist Party. We have questioned Bridges very thoroughly as to what he might have said on a variety of occasions [4126] that might have been misconstrued, and we will show you this: that on more than one occasion, on maybe two occasions, three occasions, five occasions in his life, that Harry Bridges, who has been constantly accused of membership of the Communist Party going back to the year 1934—a man who, as I said, has necessarily dwelt in a house of glass over the years—we will show you that in response to that accusation, on a number of occasions in union meetings, semi-social meetings and the like, he said, "We are accused of being Communists. If what we are doing is Communism, then Communism must be pretty good; and if what we are doing is Communism, I guess I am a Communist." We will show you that Bridges, in defense of himself, has said the remark that I have just now cited in substance upon a dozen occasions, and if there was any honest incident to which the lady Mrs. Harris was a witness, a matter that startled her, as she said here, it would have been the kind of conversation that I have just now mentioned; but it could not be and it was not a conversation foolishly and falsely admitting membership in a political group to which he never had belonged.

The next witness produced by the Government was Stanley Hancock. Mr. Hancock identified himself, you will recall, as a real revolutionary as well as being a member of the Communist Party. He told you that he defied law and order in Southern California because he was devoted to the ideals of [4127] the working class. But he came here, we will show you, to tell you—for what reasons, we can't say—but he journeyed out here from Erie, Pennsylvania, to tell you of an incident that never took place. And I will show you how and I will show you why. To show the devotion to the same pattern of testimony, again we advert to the thought that John Schomaker testified first to a meeting in 1935 at the—he didn't name the apartments, I believe—at a place in San Diego, and placed as one of those present a man named Stanley Hancock. And then Mr. Hancock was brought across the continent to identify the place. And when he testified and told the jury rather accurately that the name of the apartment was the Sumner Apartments in San Diego: that the Sumner Apartments were located at 12th and B Streets, we were impressed and worried. But in a few moments it developed that he had been taken down there two weeks before by one of the immigration agents, as you will recall, and that he visited the scene of this alleged occurrence in order to prepare himself for testimony.

Now, we will show you—and I think this testimony will cover the whole incident—we will show you that Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt, who are named as persons attending that particular meeting, never saw Stanley Hancock in their lives, they never met him, they never exchanged words with him. Whether Hancock may have seen Bridges or Schmidt at some part of his life, who can say? but we know and we will [4128] show you that neither Bridges nor Schmidt ever saw Stanley Hancock in either of their lives.

The next witness who came here was Mr. Kermit Charles Krolek, and he blurted out something that we accept as true. Mr. Krolek told the Court and jury that it wasn't at all unusual for a Communist Party meeting to be held and for some trade union leader who was not a member of the Communist Party to be invited there to participate in some discussion involving union affairs. And we will show that the conversation, or the purport of the conversation, or the situation that developed upon some of the matters to which he testified, was that kind of a conversation.

However, there are other matters to which we will call your attention to which Mr. Krolek gave false testimony and testimony we can prove to have been absolutely false. [4129]

Mr. Krolek told you with great particularity that he attended a meeting at the Venetian Square Apartments—I think he gave you the location—Long Beach, that he went up a spiral staircase to the second floor and that he took the first door to the right or maybe it was the left when he reached the top of the landing and again we wondered at the particularity of his testimony until it developed that he, too, was taken down to the particular city and walked up the particular stairway by one of the Immigration agents immediately prior to coming to court. We will show you that the persons mentioned by the witness Krolek as being present in the Venetian Square Apartments in Long Beach were members of a radio operators' union, that is, all except Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt. We will show you that Harry Bridges, and Henry Schmidt had no interest, no reason and no business to be attending that particular meeting with radio operators, whether they were Communist Party members or not. We will show you that if the meeting of radio operators did take place that it was a meeting held without the presence of Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt. We will show you that at the most their names have been added to some meeting which might have taken place in the dim past. We will show you, in short, that that meeting never took place, either.

The next incident involving the testimony of the witness Krolek involves the magic doors of 121

Haight Street, so many times testified to here as the repository or as the office [4130] doors of the Communist Party in San Francisco. Mr. Krolek told you that on one occasion while he was a Communist he went into those premises and waited in the hallway and saw through an open door Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt sitting in some kind of a top grade secret conference with a man called Schneidermann.

We will show you this, that Harry Bridges—and this is something that has been established in 1939, something that was established in 1941, something that is still true today. Harry Bridges has been to No. 121 Haight Street twice in his entire life. Each of those visits took place in the year 1934. The first of those visits took place, you may remember from some reference to the earlier testimony, when the Communist Party wanted to make an offer to the strikers of the use of their organization called International Labor Defense. That was an organization, as I understand it from the testimony, that offered legal service, the protection of lawyers and the like, to strikers who were arrested and charged with minor crimes during the course of the strike. Harry Bridges went up to 121 Haight Street in the summer of 1934 and had a discussion upon that subject. Harry Bridges again during the period of the strike went up to Communist Party headquarters when the Communist Party offered to give open aid and assistance to strikers in some phases of their work. He went up on that occasion. I believe, and delivered to the Communist Party the recommendation of the strikers that the Communist Party's assistance in that particular [4131] would not be accepted. Other than that Harry Bridges has never been at 121 Haight Street. He was not there on the day testified to by the witness Krolek, and Henry Schmidt, if I may speak of him, because he was mentioned as being in that room, we will prove to you that he, on two other occasions in his life, visited No. 121 Haight Street, neither of them being remotely connected with the incident testified to by the witness Krolek. Henry Schmidt went to 121 Haight Street I think in around 1936 when a well known Communist orator, a lady called Anita Whitney, was speaking. He went up there when there were about 400 people sitting there listening to what she had to say in a public meeting. Henry Schmidt was invited in another year to a cocktail party at 121 Haight Street, on a New Year's Eve, and spent five or ten minutes in the premises. That is the extent of his acquaintanceship with that address, which has caused so much attention during the course of the trial.

Would it be convenient to take the recess?

The Court: Yes, we will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Recess.) [4132]

Mr. MacInnis: I am taking the risk of being tedious and, of course, by such means affronting you in some small degree, as against the greater risk of leaving something out which might be of assistance. So I hope you will bear with me upon the remainder of the journey throughout the details of the prosecution's case and the manner in which that case will be refuted. And besides, I want these prosecutors, of course, to have a full opportunity to prepare their cross-examination and I want to inform them of these matters in advance for that purpose.

The most dramatic, the most climactic, the most telling incidents in the stream of witnesses who were brought here by the prosecution was the fable read out to you at the start of this case that Harry Bridges who had before that time been labeled as a Communist, was a great big Communist, that he had been elected in 1936 and 1938 to the Central or National Committee of the Communist Party, and two men were brought here at the outset to give lip service to that idea. One of them I can remember so well, Manning Johnson, peripatetic maniac, harboring evil toward everything he touches, brought here, if you please, as a traveler by the Immigration Service, serving before, we will show you, in fourteen cases for the Immigration Service, leaving here with our imprecations upon his head but with the blessings of the Immigration Service to testify in two further cases in Los Angeles.

The second witness, Paul Crouch, released from the white [4133] halls of Alcatraz after serving there for sedition, a confessed Communist, was the second person who corroborated Mr. Johnson. Now, here are the things that they told the jury. It is established by public records, by the stipulation of the Government, that in 1936 the Communist Party had a national convention, that that took place in the City of New York between June 24th and June 28th. That we know. That we know from the records. We know it from the testimony of Crouch, who was specific. We know it from the testimony of Johnson, who said he adopted the dates as stipulated to by the Government. Johnson told you under oath that Harry Bridges was introduced to him upon either the last day or the day following at that convention, and that he was introduced as an annually elected member of the Central Committee. The witness Crouch said that he saw Bridges at the convention, possibly early, possibly upon Wednesday, June 24th, and that the next time that he saw him was on the date of the election, the election of that Central or National Committee. We will show you by evidence, public reports, reports available to all persons, largely out of the New York Times, which covered the Communist Party convention, that the election of the Central or National Committee of the Communist Party took place on the last day of that convention. The reason I say that this episode is the most climatic, the most dramatic and the most telling in the case is because it illustrates more than anything else, the utter falsity, the real, the final, the complete falsity of [4134] a whole fragment of a case brought before you by men who represent the Government of the United States. We will show you that in that interim of time, in that island of dates which we were so grateful to receive from the record here, that Harry Bridges, by records, by the statements of witnesses, by the showing of physical impossibility, could not have been and was not in the City of New York. We will show that to you by people who saw him, people who heard him, by records made at the time which could not possibly be fabricated. We will show you by newspaper accounts, records of the City of San Francisco and the City of Stockton, California, that Harry Bridges, upon Saturday, the 27th of June, 1936, when the witness Manning Johnson told you seriously as ever a man can speak, that he saw Harry Bridges inducted into office as a member of the Communist Party Central Committee—we will show you that on that very day Harry Bridges was making a speech in the City of Stockton. I would say we could prove that by a hundred people. We will show you that by the newspaper accounts before and after in the Stockton Record, showing that Bridges was scheduled to speak on that day, the article the day after showing indeed he had in fact spoken.

We will show you this: that all the information in our possession concerning what we now know to be wilful, positive and murderous perjury was turned over by us on the day this Court adjourned for the Christmas vacation to the Government. We have kept no secrets as to the manner of the production of [4135] this testimony. We have kept no secrets as to the names of persons who will testify. We challenge those witnesses for the commission of wilful perjury, whose implications must have been known to the agents who produced those men in this cause, and we will offer you the evidence that these men have had a chance to investigate, and which they in fact investigated immediately by the dispatching of agents to the City of Stockton. We will show you that by a stream of testimony which I will now discuss.

On the night of Monday, the 22nd of June, two days before the Communist Party convention in New York began, Harry Bridges called to order as chairman a meeting at the Scottish Rite Auditorium. We have served copies of the records. We have persons in existence who saw him. Well, you may state, it is easy to get to New York in this day of fast travel. We will show you that in the year 1936, according to the schedules of airlines, the average time of travel between San Francisco and New York was in all 22½ hours. That takes into consideration the time of leaving for the airport and the comportment in from the airport in New York to some point of central location in New York City. We will show you, and I am about to discuss what Bridges did on the other days and nights. We will show you that it was utterly physically impossible for Bridges to have been in New York on any of those days. In fact, we will show you that he could not have been there within a period of more than two weeks, give or take many days in either direction, [4136] both before and after the time now established as the time of this Communist Party convention. That testimony was absolute. It was unequivocal testimony. It was not testimony about some meeting that happened some time that year. It was testimony about something said to happen during that actual convention of the Communist Party. We will show you that upon Tuesday night, June 23rd, one night before the beginning of the Communist Party convention, Harry Bridges answered Present at a roll call of the regular meeting of the San Francisco Bay Area District Council No. 2 held in Room F at the Ferry Building in San Francisco. So Harry Bridges was in San Francisco on the night of the 23rd day of June. [4137]

On Wednesday, the 24th day of June, 1936, the day the witness Paul Crouch says he possibly saw Mr. Bridges at the start of the convention—he says he saw him twice, once at the start and again at the election of the Central Committee—we will show you that at nine o'clock in the evening at a regular meeting of the Executive Board called to order by Harry Bridges on Wednesday, June 24, he was present here in San Francisco—an utter physical impossibility that Harry Bridges could have gone to New York.

We will show you that Bridges was not at any public meeting upon the two following days, Thursday and Friday, although we will of course call to your attention the air schedules and utter impossibility of his going to New York and returning. But we will show you that on Friday, which would be the 26th day of June of 1936, Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt together made an arrangement to drive up to the city of Stockton the following day, Saturday, June 27. The invitation for Bridges to speak at that place was of long standing, it was of semi-public repute at the time; it was published in the labor papers and some of the ordinary press accounts. We will show you that they made an arrangement on Friday to be driven to Stockton by a member of the union, a man named William Christensen. And we will produce Mr. William Christensen as a witness in this case. We will show you that Mr. Christensen drove Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt from San Francisco to [4138] Stockton, not in the early part of Saturday did he speak, but I believe early in the evening, and during the evening, bearing in mind that there were still a few hours left in that calendar day, we will produce Mr. Christensen, Henry Schmidt and four or five other persons, members of the Stockton local, who went to a night club in Stockton and they sat at a table and they had a couple of drinks and they discussed matters for a couple of hours until the night club closed, and then Mr. Christensen drove Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt down from Stockton to the town of Albany, where he lives, and the men slept there for two or three hours, Mr. Christensen and his wife prepared breakfast early in the morning, Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt on Sunday morning, June 28, had breakfast in the home of Mr. Christensen and they were then driven back to San Francisco on the same day, Sunday, June 28—the last day of the convention depended upon by the United States Government in this case.

Now, without commenting further, I will say this: After the testimony of Mr. Crouch and Mr. Johnson to which you listened along with us, we had prepared photostatic copies of the names and the statements of witnesses, and we caused those to be publicly distributed so that any person interested might investigate whether or not the Government had produced perjured testimony in this case. We gave the names of these witnesses along with others. We will produce as many witnesses on this point as may be convenient, having in mind the passage of [4139] time and the necessities for proving the point,—a Mr. Scheaffer, a Mr. Barth Woods, Mr. George McDonald, another man by the name of Walter Tesch, confirms the name of the bar in Stockton where Bridges and Schmidt were upon Saturday night, June 27, 1936. We will produce that evidence and we will vouch for it, and we will ask you to draw such conclusions as would naturally follow its admission here.

It is said that there is a day's leeway after June 28, Sunday. We can show you where Harry Bridges was in public meetings beginning with Tuesday, the 1st day of July, with one day's hiatus between the last public meeting here in San Francisco after coming from breakfast in Albany on June 28—a complete physical impossibility that he made this flight to New York—we will produce the airline schedules, because at 11 in the morning on Tuesday, July 1, Harry Bridges is in his office and he goes down to the Ferry Building—pardon me; I shouldn't say July 1; Tuesday is June 30. Yes, Monday would be June 29, Tuesday, June 30. On Tuesday, June 30, at 11 o'clock Harry Bridges goes and presides as chairman at a meeting of the Bay Area District Council.

I am sorry; there was a meeting Monday night, the 29th of June, which I will find in a moment. In fact, the schedule of days is complete. Will you find that for me?

We will show you that on the night of July 1 he answered the roll call at an Executive Committee meeting, and that from [4140] other records he was in San Francisco right through July 3, 4 and 5. We will show you evidence that will utterly destroy any credit, any possible credit, any imaginary credit, that might be attached to witnesses of the ilk of Johnson and Crouch.

We will show you that the statements of Johnson and Crouch made as you heard them made were not born out of mistake or out of the failings of human memory. We will show you that by irresistible inferences growing out of the evidence which we will produce. We will show you that Mr. Johnson and Mr. Crouch told deliberate lies and that they were procured here to tell deliberate lies to deceive you and to cause an unjust conviction of the defendants in this case. We will show that by evidence.

We will show you this: We will show you that the witness Manning Johnson, if anyone fails to remember all of the particulars of his testimony, followed in this case a pattern that he has revealed before to the Immigration Service. We will show you that in another case in which he was called as a witness by the Immigration Service, he falsely identified as present at an alleged Communist meeting two men named Tim Buck and Carr, and that it was proved in the same case that Messrs. Buck and Carr at the time designated were reposing in a penitentiary in Canada. We will show you that the Government had knowledge of that fact when it produced Mr. Manning Johnson as a [4141] witness here.

Harry Bridges was never elected, we will show you, to the Central or the National Committee of the Communist Party under his name, under the name of Dorgan, under the name of Rossi, Harvey, Canfield, Gwinn, or any other name in the series of noms de plume that have been offered to you by the prosecution in this case.

We will show you that Paul Crouch, if there is in fact such a person as Paul Crouch, never prepared any resolution for Harry Bridges for his use in the State convention of the CIO in 1941. We will show you that this person Crouch, as I say, if he does exist and if he does have a wife, did not send his wife as a courier to Harry Bridges with an imperative message from Crouch, from the Communist Party or from any other group. And we will show you that Bridges and Schmidt never saw Crouch or Johnson in their entire lives. Whether anyone else did, I cannot say. The traveling troupe of Crouch and Johnson has now passed on to another city, and I will pass to another witness.

We proceed now into events upon which I need not speak in so great detail because they took place scarcely more than two weeks ago; but upon the heels of the exposure of Johnson and Crouch, there was produced here by the Government a man who at first called himself Lawrence Ross. I won't delineate upon the details of his testimony or upon its ending, but in [4142] Lawrence Ross you saw a man whose double identify was starkly exposed before your own eyes.

We will show you that there are other implications in the testimony of Lawrence Ross deeper than his confessions of false statements made upon the witness stand here.

We will show you that Lawrence Ross first testified falsely that he saw Harry Bridges at some meeting in Fresno; that he secondly testified falsely when he corroborated John Schomaker and told you he saw Harry Bridges at some meeting in Sokol Hall here in San Francisco. Indeed, it was rather difficult to cross-examine Mr. Ross because he remembered no persons who were with him at these meetings, didn't remember with whom he had gone to them, remembered nothing except the bare allegation that such an incident took place.

The third incident emanating from the lips of Lawrence Ross is another meeting of dubious quality in some unknown apartment in an unknown street in San Francisco. Bridges was there, and several other unknown persons further in attendance.

And Mr. Ross, after the testimony of Johnson and Crouch, told you that he was present at the Communist Party convention of 1936 and that he knew that Harry Bridges was elected to its Central Committee, but he doesn't remember in whose company he came or went.

Now, we will show you this: The supposed election of Harry Bridges to this Central or National Committee of the [4143] Communist Party is not a new development in the history of the tribulations of Harry Bridges. It has been brought up before and disproved. It now raises its head through the lips of a new character.

We will show you that after the exposure of Lawrence Ross, during that week-end when he told you that he was examining his soul and talking it over with the agent Kaiser, Mr. Ross and Mr. Kaiser drove over to Fulton Street in Berkeley and they had a conference with a man named Miles G. Humphreys—"Umphreys" was the name Ross gave him in some devotion to that Southern accent that he acquired. Mr. Miles G. Humphreys was known to the agent Kaiser as one of the witnesses in the previous trial of Harry Bridges who testified falsely upon the same incident and who was specifically found to be a liar.

So, as I say, the same train continues despite the exposures upon the witness stand.

The last or second to the last witness of whom, I will now speak as speedily as our convenience will permit, was a man named Lew Michener—Lew Michener, the compatriot of the brother Reuther in the CIO. We will show you this: In the first instance, the first incident which we will discuss, Lew Michener said that he came to San Francisco and went to some meeting at a place he called the Sunset Strip with Harry Bridges in what he said was late 1940. We will show you that when Michener specified the date of that meeting as late 1940 [4144] that he was deliberately concealing what was to him a known fact; that is, that he had registered at the Shaw Hotel upon a date in August of that year, I believe it was the 28th or 27th of August of 1940. And we will show you that he committed wilful perjury when he told you, first, that he came here with a man named Kline who did not stop with him at the hotel, and that later, when confronted by the Government prosecutors with his own registration, he said that fictitious name imposed upon the card was the name of Mr. Paul Kline, his companion.

We will show that the date of that alleged meeting was deliberately concealed because of the sad experience which these gentlemen have had furnishing specific dates in this case.

We will show you that Michener lied when he told the jury, first, when questioned by the prosecutors, that he never possessed a Communist Party card. We will show you that he lied when he later changed that testimony and said that his wife kept the card for him, and that he lied when he changed that testimony and said that for the first three years the Communist Party itself kept the card for him, because all or some of those statements must be false.

We will show you this: Michener told the Court and jury that this meeting in supposed late 1940 had to do with a discussion among those present of the distribution of the funds of a group called Labor's Non-Partisan League. Now, we will [4145] show you this: that Labor's Non-Partisan League was an organization headed by Mr. John L. Lewis, who is apparently not accused of being a member of the Communist Party, and that the only time that any vast funds were possessed by that group was about a year prior to late 1940, and that there were funds at that time sent out to California by Mr. John L. Lewis and that they were received not by a group of men who met fictitiously and in secret out on the Sunset Strip, which does not exist either, but that the funds were sent to the late George Creel for Northern California and to the Hon. Phil Gibson for Southern California. The Hon. Phil Gibson is now Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court. And that is the story about the funds for Labor's Non-Partisan League.

The meeting that Michener told you about never took place. It happened by accident that the Government was able to place Michener in San Francisco on a date in that year. The meeting, whether it was the Sunset Strip or it was some other place, at whose house we are not told, so far as Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt are concerned, that meeting never took place. I shouldn't have said Mr. Schmidt, because Mr. Schmidt was not accused of being at that particular meeting.

The last—not the last, but the next is the incident of the 1943 convention at Philadelphia. That scene took place very recently, and the words of it are probably still ringing in our ears. I remember the prosecutor telling his Honor and [4146] the jury that he had an unusual circumstance: that the Communist Party headed by Bridges and others went to John L. Lewis and caused one man who had defeated another for office in the CIO to allow his defeated opponent to replace him. We will show you that that incident is half fictitious. And I will tell you why I say "half," because part of the incident took place, but it had nothing at all to do with the Communist Party. [4146-A]

You were told by Michener under oath that at the California State Convention a man named Connelly defeated a man named James Thimmes, spelled T-h-i-m-m-e-s, for the presidency of the State CIO, and you are told at this convention in Philadelphia there was a meeting had by which the Communist Party wanted to replace the victorious president. Mr. Connelly. with the defeated candidate. Mr. Thimmes. We will show you that that did not take place because Mr. Connelly ran for office in that year against a man named Pollard, whom he defeated. The Thimmes incident had nothing to do, and when he was confronted with the record on the race between Pollard and Connelly, Mr. Michener said, "Well, I didn't attend that convention in Philadelphia that year," and we will show you that he lied under oath when he said that because he was present on the floor, voted and spoke as a delegate in the 1943 state convention when Mr. Connelly defeated Mr. Pollard, as I suggest.

We will show you that he placed in this alleged Communist meeting in Philadelphia a friend of his, a man named Jim Doherty, who was not even there, a man who was not a delegate and who was not present in Philadelphia at that time. He identified him as a delegate. We will show you by the records that Mr. Doherty was no such thing, and he hence did not attend any such meeting. We will show you that the half, the portion of that incident which is true is this: that Connelly was president of the CIO in California, and Harry Bridges was working in close conjunction with a man, now deceased, whose name was Sidney Hillman. [4147] Sidney Hillman was said by the witnesses not to have been a member of the Communist Party. We will show you that Mr. Hillman and Mr. Bridges, for political reasons connected entirely with the inner workings of the CIO, wanted to replace Mr. Connelly, whom Michener says was a Communist, with Mr. Thimmes, that they made plans to do so, that they went to Mr. John L. Lewis, and that they put the project across, that there was no relationship at all to any faction meeting, any unit meeting or anything else taking place within the dark confines of the supposed Communist Party.

Mr. Michener, you will remember, served as a labor member of the War Labor Board during the war years. There was some colloquy which we had about whether or not that man filled out an application in which he had to make statements under oath concerning previous membership in the Communist Party or any similar organization or concerning previous convictions of crime, and you will recall that these gentlemen who represent the Government in this case, said again that they would make every human effort to find those records. Well, again, we have investigated and we are prepared to prove—I see by his alert picking up of paper that the prosecutor is in possession of the same information—that there is in existence, published by the Federal Government, and certainly at all times available to these men, a document called "Manual of Operations of National War Labor Relations Board," and that according to that manual [4148] of operations a sheet of paper or a series of sheets called "Form 57" had to be filled out. Form 57, you will remember, is the form at which the prosecutor scoffed when we suggested to the witness that that was the possible form. I told the Court and the jury that that was just the ordinary Civil Service employment application. Well, that is the form that they had to sign. We will show you—we do not yet have the original document of Mr. Michener, but we hope to have it brought here——

Mr. Donohue: Excuse me. May I interrupt to hand counsel a photostat, unsigned and certified by the Labor Department.

Mr. MacInnis: Photostat and unsigned?

Mr. Donohue: Unsigned.

Mr. MacInnis: We will show you that the questions appear concerning arrests, summoning into court, and there is no answer given concerning the bootlegging convictions that were so graciously offered us by the prosecutor in respect to Mr. Michener, and we will show you in answer to the question, "Do you advocate or have you ever advocated or are you now or have you ever been a member of any organization that advocates the overthrow of the United States by force or violence?" that no answer seems to appear. I do not know what this document is, but I assume we will examine it later.

Mr. Donohue: I will be glad to offer it in evidence, if Your Honor please. It is certified to by the Chief of the Appointment and Records Section of the United States Department [4149] of Labor.

Mr. MacInnis: We will look at that later. Your Honor.

The Court: Do you desire to reopen your case for that purpose?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, Your Honor, for that purpose.

The Court: It may be reopened for that purpose, offered and received in evidence.

Mr. MacInnis: We only have a statement by this gentleman as to where he received it. I think we should be allowed to look at it.

The Court: You might have it marked for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: That is perfectly all right. It may be the only record on the subject.

The Court: Mark it for identification.

> (The Form 57 referred to was thereupon marked United States Exhibit No. 11 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: And may I say to Your Honor I received it this morning.

Mr. MacInnis: That is a familiar experience. Both sides seem to come into possession of these bits of evidence about the same time.

The last witness who was brought here, a man named George Wilson, said to you that he had seen Henry Schmidt at a Communist Party meeting, and that he had seen Bob Robertson at a Communist Party meeting. When it was or where it was we are not [4150] told, and we are thus placed in some difficulty as to any rebuttal of that statement, except we will show that they never attended any such meeting either with Wilson or anyone else during the course of their lives.

We will show you this, the one other matter to which Mr. Wilson testified. He told you that he went to a meeting at the Governor Hotel here in San Francisco. He said that that hotel was on the street that had a little red car running along, although he didn't recall its name. I understand Mr. Wilson ate at that hotel every day for about ten years. That is possibly why he does not remember the name of the street. He told you under oath that the room in the hotel was engaged by a man named Mervyn Rathborne who is a brother-in-law of the witness Kermit Charles Krolek and that the discussion at the meeting involved a controversy between Mr. Rathborne and a man named Lou Goldblatt, and he said that in his opinion this meeting was a group of Communists discussing trade union matters. Now, we did what we could to investigate that incident and we find that indeed Mr. Rathborne did engage a room at the time in question at the Governor Hotel. We will show you that Mr. Rathborne lived down the Peninsula, and that during meetings and conventions it was often his practice to rent rooms at the Governor or other hotels, and we will show you this: the meeting, if there was any meeting, or the engagement of the Governor Hotel room was so far removed from the Communist Party that Mr. [4151] Rathborne made out a voucher for his expenses in engaging this Governor Hotel room and turned it in to the CIO as part of his expenditures of some meeting or discussion that was had that week. And far from being any secret or conspiratorial discussion, the controversy between Mr. Rathborne and Mr. Goldblatt on the date in question in May of 1940 is an open matter discussed upon the floor of the CIO. It was not a Communist Party dispute or a controversy at all, and documents, as part of the regular records of the CIO upon that controversy, are available and we will introduce them here into evidence.

We will show you this in respect of the case brought here by the Government: Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and Rob Robertson are charged here with conspiracy to commit perjury because Mr. Bridges answered in the negative, they being present, to the question, "Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?" We will show you that when Harry Bridges made that negative answer, he was conscious and the Government was conscious in putting the question to him that he had previously upon a host of occasions answered similarly under oath. He had answered "No," in 1937. He had answered "No" in 1939 at that meeting. He had answered "No" in 1941, and we will show you that if Harry Bridges had answered "Yes" he would immediately have been indicted for the same crime—perjury—because of the previous statements that he had given that were known both to himself and to the Government. We will show you that he knew he [4152] was not a member of the Communist Party, that he was thoroughly conscious of the nature of the proceedings, that he had reviewed his own life and that he knew he was not a member of the Communist Party and that he never had been. We will show you that Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson, when they answered the questions put to them, whether they believed Harry Bridges to be devoted to the doctrines of our Constitution and answered "Yes," well and fully believed that that was the case, and had every basis to rely upon the truth of their assertion. We will show you that they conspired with no one. We will show you that they agreed with no one to evade the truth. We will show you that none of the three men had any agreement or understanding with each other or with anyone else to deceive the Government of the United States or any other purpose. And that statement, if you bear with me a little bit more before we adjourn, leads us to the testimony of another witness, a man named Lloyd Garner, a lawyer in the Immigration Service, the man who taught us the lesson of the value of identification testimony when he first came here by identifying Mr. Hallinan as Bob Robertson at the start of the prosecution's case.

We will show you that this is about what happened in matters surrounding the naturalization hearing of Harry Bridges. We will show you that it was purely accidental that Bob Robertson happened to be asked or happened to hear as a corroborative witness to any matter in the case. We will show you that Henry [4153] Schmidt, who has been a close friend and associate of Harry Bridges over the years, was asked to be a witness for Harry Bridges soon after the decision to make his reapplication for citizenship was made. We will show you that another friend, a man named Park

Schnurr, had been asked to be the second witness, and that those questions were included upon the original application. It is now here in evidence with Mr. Schnurr's name scratched out and Mr. Robertson's name inserted in its place. We will show you that Bob Robertson happened to be in Harry Bridges' office on the date Bridges was coming to City Hall and that he walked along with the other people and was standing with them while Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Schnurr went to the interior office of Mr. Garner. There was some flaw in the citizenship papers of Mr. Schnurr, some imperfection in the proof. Mr. Garner and Mr. Schnurr came to the door and Mr. Garner said that Mr. Schnurr could not qualify at that time, and the question was put to Mr. Bridges as to whether or not he wanted to come back some later date, whereupon Mr. Robertson, now indicted for conspiracy, said, "I will be a witness," and went into the room with Mr. Garner.

That is the story of the inclusion of Mr. Robertson in the matter involving the naturalization of Harry Bridges. [4154]

So far as the testimony of Mr. Garner is concerned, there are some things which occur to us as unnatural, and which we will offer you by way of proof. Mr. Bridges has a definite recollection of a very brief conversation with Mr. Garner in his office. He recalls that Mr. Garner had something before him, some Immigration Service record concerning the Bridges case; that Mr. Garner, coming to the end of the document, smiled genially at Mr. Bridges and said, "Well, you will certainly have no trouble on this occasion," because he had before him a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. And we will show you that, so far as Mr. Harry Bridges remembers, there were no pointed questions put to him in that private interview, and that so far as Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson may be concerned, they were not asked by Mr. Garner the telling question retold supposedly here in evidence, "Are you now or have you been a member of the Communist Party?" They were not, as it happened, but they were not asked that question.

We will show you that Mr. Garner erred, to say the least, when he says that he asked Mr. Schmidt in that private interview if he was arrested and received a negative answer, because Mr. Schmidt was arrested in a labor controversy when the AFL was split apart by the CIO, and as a matter of fact Mr. Schmidt has always mentioned that one arrest in his career. He was with a group of people and stopped a fight between two other men and was arrested, and he always admits that arrest and would [4155] have admitted it to Mr. Garner if he had been asked that question.

In the case of Mr. Robertson, Garner tells you under oath that he asked the question, "Have you ever been outside the continent of the United States?" and that Robertson answered, "Only on a few short trips." So far as Mr. Robertson can remember, he was never at that time outside the continental limits of the United States.. And that is the situation that we will present to you by evidence concerning Mr. Garner, who says he made no memorandum, although he was a hearing officer of the Immigration Service; who says he kept no notes except one or two penciled words on the back of the application, and who says that the first time he correlated these fast memories was in the spring of 1949 when he was called into the office of his superior, Mr. Barber, and that he then, four years later, made a written memorandum of this supposed conversation.

Now, I have one more thought before we ask for the adjuornment of the night, and it is this: It involved the position of the three defendants in this case and it may throw some light upon some of the things which have been discussed.

Forgetting for a moment the sheer accident which brought Bob Robertson as a corroborating witness in the citizenship hearing of Harry Bridges, the ILWU, so often mentioned in this case, is of course a union which came into existence with the welding together of the longshoremen on the one hand and the [4156] warehousemen on the other. We have been told, and we will show by other evidence, that of course Harry Bridges is the president of the ILWU. He is the negotiator. He is the leading figure, the man who negotiates with the employers. The longshoremen have had as their president during most of the years of their existence Henry Schmidt. The warehousemen have had as their national leader and as their international representative, Bob Robertson. The echelons of the ILWU, the longshoremen and the warehousemen, are literally symbolized by the three men who are the defendants in this case. As I say, I know it was an accident that Robertson happened to go along, but the existence of these men, the jobs they hold, lead me to say that we will show you that the defendants are being prosecuted not for what they are but for what they represent.

May we take a recess?

The Court: Yes. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the afternoon adjournment until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Tuesday, January 24, 1950, at 10:00 [4157] a.m.)

Tuesday, January 24, 1950—10:00 A. M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. MacInnis: In addition to the matters which I tried to cover with you yesterday as thoroughly as time, and I hope your patience, would allow, the diligence of some of our associates has uncovered some further evidence regarding one episode, and if I may, I will revert briefly to that particular incident.

I told you yesterday that we would show that the charge that Bridges met with a man called Earl Browder in some prune orchard in the 1934 strike was false and that we would prove it to be false. I am now in possession of some records supplementing the naked word of any witness who may take the stand, and I will tell you just what that evidence may be.

The witness Schomaker testified that the meeting in this prune orchard with Browder took place in the month of June during the strike. That same testimony was augmented by the words of the witness following Schomaker, Mr. Henry Schrimpf, who told you that the Browder meeting in the prune orchard took place upon a Sunday and that it was before the general strike and at least within a month preceding the general strike. Now, [4158] as it happens, we have records showing the movements of the strike committee upon each and every Sunday preceding the general strike.

The general strike which followed the waterfront or longshore strike was called in San Francisco on July 16 of 1934. Now, here are the movements of Harry Bridges based upon public records.

On Sunday, June 17, going a month back, there was a meeting of the strike committee because Henry Schmidt had returned that morning from a trip to the Northwest, and the strike committee met from 10:30 in the morning until 12:30, a little after noon, and they returned again at 2 p.m. for a further meeting, and that meeting must have been rather lengthy, because the minutes indicate that it adjourned at 11 p.m. that night. Harry Bridges presided at the meeting.

You were told by the witnesses that this meeting in the prune orchard was probably in the early afternoon, that there was a picnic lunch laid out on tables and that the sun was shining, so that would be the approximate time, if there ever was such a meeting.

We come to the next Sunday, June 24, 1934. Upon that day Mr. Edward McGrady, representative of the President who came out as an intermediator between the employers and the strikers, arrived in San Francisco and Harry Bridges met him at 3 p.m. at the airport, came back up to San Francisco and stayed with him [4159] at a meeting at the Hotel Whitcomb, and that meeting and the presence of Harry Bridges are reported in the San Francisco Chronicle of the following day.

And the next Sunday, July 1, there was a morning meeting of the strike committee presided over by Bridges, and the records will show that to be the case; and in the afternoon and early evening there was another meeting with the board set up by the President to negotiate with the employers, and it is also reported in the Chronicle on the following day, July 2 of 1934.

On the next Sunday, July 8, the bodies of the two men, Sperry and Berdois, the two longshoremen killed in the day that has been referred to as Bloody Thursday, were lying in state upon that particular day. The teamsters met at Dreamland Auditorium to take a vote upon whether they should join the strike. Henry Schmidt was with the strike committee at that meeting. Harry Bridges was here, as shown by the minutes, and the minutes show that there was a motion made requiring him to stay on duty in San Francisco and to desist from going over to Oakland at another meeting where his presence was requested.

So we will show you every Sunday in that period of time so far as the activities of Bridges may be concerned to bolster the memories of these men and their flat statements that this event never did take place. [4160]

Now, I will conclude this prelude to our recitation of evidence in this case as quickly as possible by a few words of what we will show you about the personal background of these three men.

I will not say much concerning the defendant Bridges, because most of the details of his life have become matters of public interest. He was educated at Melbourne at the secondary schools of the Christian Brothers in that city, and he has been in and around San Francisco for about thirty years.

Mr. Robertson, the person concerning whom very little has been said in this case, will of course take the stand and will tell you about the ordinary events of his life. His life and his activities in the labor movement, we will show you, are symbols of the same strength that we expect to find in every utterance that he will make upon the witness stand.

Mr. Robertson is forty-four years of age. He lives in Mill Valley with his wife and his two children. I think he has a daughter three and a half, and I think he has a son about three months old. He was born in the State of Texas, and he migrated with his family to Missouri a few years later. His father was a miner in the States of Missouri and Arkansas. And around 1929 Robertson came to San Francisco. So, for almost twenty years, we will show you that he has lived around this region. I should have said in 1929 he came to California; I think he first came to around the city of Los Angeles, and later moved up to the environs of San Francisco.

We will show you that it was not until the year 1934 that Bob Robertson entered the labor movement. He was impelled into it by the turbulence of the 1934 strike concerning which so many things have been said here in evidence.

At the time of the 1934 strike Bob Robertson was working in the Public Foods warehouse here in San Francisco. He had been working there as an ordinary warehouseman since about 1933, and when the waterfront strike was called and the warehouse workers in the Public Foods warehouse were propelled into the same struggle for a living wage, Bob Robertson was then brought to the foreground and he became a moving figure in the formation of the Warehousemen's Union which is now an integral part of the ILWU.

We will show you that after the strike Robertson returned to his ordinary job for a while at the Public Foods warehouse, but after the conclusion of about a year he was discharged, unfortunately, because of his union activities. After that he worked sporadically, as a longshoreman and sometimes as a warehouseman, alternating in whatever jobs were available out in the hiring halls; but in the fall of 1936 Mr. Robertson was appointed a business representative for the old union, not the present ILWU, and in 1937 he went upon a tour of organizing in the great Northwest. In other words, [4162] he took on the very unpopular job of going into communities where labor has never been organized, coming in as a hostile stranger to the managerial side of industry, to do what he could to organize the unorganized workers in those areas. He was in Southern California in 1937 for a while in the same work. In 1939 he was transferred to New Orleans, and after that he became an international representative, and he is now the first vice president of the ILWU. Now, that is the background of Mr. Robertson.

Henry Schmidt, we will show you, is fifty years of age. He was born in Germany, and he came to this continent with his family in the year 1911, when I believe he was twelve years of age. The family came first to Canada and then later came into the United States. On Christmas Eve of the year 1917 Henry Schmidt arrived in San Francisco and he has been here ever since. He has been living here thirty-three years.

The family of Henry Schmidt, we will show you, consists now of himself and his daughter. His daughter will probably appear as a witness in this case.

Now, in 1927 after the restrictions on naturalization were removed after the first great war, Henry Schmidt completed his naturalization process and was admitted to citizenship in the United States. He was on the waterfront from about the year 1928. He has dim recollections of seeing Harry Bridges in the early days before the formation of the union, but by 1933 [4163] the men knew each other fairly well.

In 1933 in the late summer or early fall of that year, long before any person named John Schomaker came to the San Francisco waterfront, Henry Schmidt and Harry Bridges were the moving figures in forming a group called the Albion Hall group, which set up the strengthening of the union, elected officers, prosecuted a small but successful strike against the Matson Line, and brought the situation to a point where the men could openly wear their union buttons on the waterfront without the immediate fear of losing their jobs. The waterfront workers and the old union, the ILA, was reactivated. It was militant. It was preparing for the moves of the future, months before John Schomaker left the seclusion of his job as an orderly at the Palo Alto Veterans' Hospital and came up to San Francisco to join the longshore movement. We will show you that by the evidence in this case, by the records of the union, by the testimony of Henry Schmidt and by the testimony of others.

In 1936 after the rigors of the 1934 strike, Henry Schmidt was elected to the office of the presidency of the union, and he was reelected to the same post in the following year, 1937. In 1938 we probably all recall there ensued the historic schism between the AFL and the emergent group, the CIO; and after the formation of the CIO in what was for a time a lengthy controversy, Henry Schmidt was again elected to the presidency of the new union. I think he has been president of the union [4164] on approximately five occasions.

In the fall of the year 1941, just a few months before the outbreak of the war, Admiral Emory S. Land, who was then head of the War Shipping Administration, appointed Henry Schmidt to the Pacific Coast Maritime Board, and throughout the years of the war Henry Schmidt served in that capacity, expediting the loading and unloading of ships upon our docks, and at the war's end he returned to his functions as an officer in the ILWU.

In the year 1946 Henry Schmidt became president of the ILWU, of the CIO Council, and the same year he was appointed international representative for the ILWU. Last year, in the last calendar year, 1949, Henry Schmidt was appointed to a post with the United Nations in the Displaced Persons group, and he was about to embark for Europe upon that activity when his friend Harry Bridges talked him out of taking that trip and convinced him that he could do more good for people generally by staying here. And in about a month he was indicted. So, anyway, that is the general story of the background of Henry Schmidt.

There is one final phase of the evidence that we will expect to produce here, and I think it will be possibly the most important type of evidence to which you will listen, because when you are weighing the testimony of the Manning Johnsons, of the Paul Crouches, and the Lawrence Rosses and the others, [4165] we will ask you to look at the testimony of persons who have come here to give testimony about the character of Mr. Bridges, Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt.

We will produce as thorough a cross-section of our citizenry as we can, in order to let you see what the reputation of these men charged here with conspiracy to commit perjury may be.

We will show you that their reputation for truth, honesty and integrity, the very things involved and embraced in this charge, is good; that it has always been good, and that that is the esteem in which they are held by people who know them.

Character evidence, of course, in our law comes to the aid of the presumption of innocence. We will bring here not only people from the labor movement, because, surely, if we brought only people of that character, one might be suspect, because many of those people have been voting Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt into office for many years. So we will bring here professional people, public officeholders, businessmen, members of employer groups of the waterfront, men whose economic interests are directly in conflict with Mr. Bridges, Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Robertson. [4166]

We will bring here men of clergy and allow them to state their opinion to you about the truth, honesty and integrity of these defendants. Now, I anticipate that before this day is over some of the character witnesses will have taken the stand and made declarations before you. The first character witness whom we expect to call is one of the most renowned men of medicine in the State of California, Dr. Leo Eloesser, a man who has been practicing medicine in San Francisco for about half a century, I believe, lacking only a few years, a man who now has the post of the head of the United Nations Relief for Children throughout the world. He is back from one of his sojourns to other continents for a few days and he will be here to speak for the character of Harry Bridges. It may well be that the second character witness whom we will produce will be out of the ranks of our local city government. We will bring before you a man who for many years has been a leader in our local legislative and governmental fields, supervisor Dewey Mead, and we will ask him to testify before you concerning the character and the reputation of Harry Bridges.

Another character witness whom we will not anticipate today but he will be here as soon as his own convenience will permit, will be the former attorney general of the State of California, the Hon. Robert Kenny. We will ask him to take the stand and make such statements as he may deem proper concerning the character and the integrity of Harry Bridges. [4167]

Another witness and office holder upon a national scale whom we will produce, if he can return to the Coast from Washington in time, is United States Senator Wayne Morris of the State of Oregon. We hope to produce him as a character witness in this case.

So far as the employers' groups may be concerned, we anticipate that several people, a real cross section, not an isolated number out of the employers, the people who sit down across the council table from Mr. Bridges, Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Robertson in the negotiation of wages and other affairs concerning the privileges of working men—as I say, we will bring a considerable group of these people here, I anticipate. I sat down yesterday at lunch with a faction or fraction, as the Government might say, meeting of the employers, and several of them will come here. The foremost of those men, possibly the best known, the man whom we think will be here today, is a man named Walter Buck. Mr. Buck is a director of the Matson Steamship Company. He is a director of the American Trust Company. He is a director of the San Francisco Bank. Mr. Buck may be remembered by you out of your reading of the accounts of our times as the man who sat down with Harry Bridges and settled the great strike of Hawaii last fall.

There will be other witnesses. There will be the Rev. Edward Peet of Mill Valley, the clergyman in the district of Mr. Robertson. There will be other witnesses to augment the [4168] number of these witnesses, all from varied classes.

From the early days of the labor movement in San Francisco—and San Francisco has been said traditionally to be the cradle of the labor movement—we will bring to you a man named Eugene Burke, an elderly man, who has seen the history of the waterfront for approximately fifty years. He was there before Harry Bridges came here. He saw the conditions as they passed in the traversing of the years, and he saw Harry Bridges in his early days on the waterfront, and he knows him now, and he will appear here and give testimony as a character witness.

Well, that is the case, members of the jury. You have the gist of the case. It is not going to be a case of hedging. It is not going to be a case of equivocating. We are going to put things right on the line for you. We think this: It is going to be a case leaving you, to say the least, with monstrous doubts concerning this prosecution which we have claimed and which we say again is rank and open frameup. We are confident that you will see that at the end of the case. It is going to be a case of an acquittal for all three defendants in your minds as well as ours, an acquittal and nothing else. I do not claim by these perorations or by the length of this address that the three men whom we represent are saints in the lofty and stilted usage of that word. Leftwing saints, perhaps, and when I say "leftwing" I accord to that phrase all of the dignity that it used to possess when Franklin Delano Roosevelt remarked, "You can [4169] count me a little to the left of center."

Thanks very much for your patience.

The Court: You may call the first witness.

Mr. MacInnis: Call, please, Mr. Ryan of the Veterans Hospital in Palo Alto.

JAMES J. RYAN

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury?

A. James J. Ryan.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Ryan?

A. I am the personnel officer at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Palo Alto.

Q. Have you come here pursuant to some subpoena served upon your office?

A. There is a subpoena served upon the assistant manager.

Q. What is his name? A. Mr. Hevern.

Q. Pardon me? A. Mr. Hevern.

Q. Mr. Hevern? A. That is right.

Q. You have been delegated to perform the task assigned by that [4170] subpoena, is that correct?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Pursuant to this subpoena, have you brought here some documents?

A. I have brought with me some card records of our office.

Q. What person do those card records concern?

A. They concern a Mr. John H. Schomaker.

(Testimony of James J. Ryan.)

Q. Do the records which you have in your hand disclose that the man called John H. Schomaker was an employee of the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto?

A. They disclose that he was employed there on three different occasions.

Q. Have you the full employment record of that man in your hand?

A. I have only the card records. The full employment record is in Washington.

Q. Do you have employment records as far as the dates may be concerned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I see that, please?

(Documents handed by the witness to Mr. MacInnis.)

Q. Now, when you tell us that the man called John H. Schomaker was employed upon three different occasions at the Veterans Hospital, can you tell us by looking at these cards what the beginning date of the employment was on each of those occasions? [4171]

A. Yes, sir, I can.

Q. Will you tell us?

A. He began work the first time on April 9, 1927.

Q. April 9th, 1927?

A. He resigned on June 24th, 1927.

Q. So he first worked in 1927 and the second employment was what?

A. Was from July 5th, 1927, until September 3rd, 1928.

(Testimony of James J. Ryan.)

Q. And he apparently left on September 3rd, 1928? A. That is correct.

Q. When did the third employment commence? A. The third employment commenced on January 18th, 1929.

Q. January 18th, 1929, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Do your records show when he resigned?

A. He resigned on October 30th, 1933.

Q. October 30th, 1933, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Are the records which you have in your hand the official records, that is, the business records of the hospital? A. They are, sir.

Q. Are they kept in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you bring them here from the ordinary repository in the office? [4172]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I see them again, please? I am going to ask that the third employment record beginning January 18th, 1929, showing the resignation as of October 30th, 1933, be marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered.

(The employment record referred to was thereupon marked Defendant's Exhibit K-2 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: We offer into evidence the exhibit now called K-2.

Mr. Donohue: No objection, your Honor.

The Court: It may be marked.

(Defendant's Exhibit K-2, heretofore marked for identification, was thereupon received in evidence.)

Mr. MacInnis: Unless there is any desire otherwise, we will return the earlier employment cards to this gentleman.

The Court: Mr. Mitchell, will you have a photostat made of that exhibit and return the original?

The Clerk: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: For the information of the witness, the Judge will send the original card back to the hospital and a photostat will be kept here, so your records will be complete in a day or so.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: No further questions. [4173]

Mr. Donohue: May I have the exhibit, please?

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Ryan, how long have you been employed by the Veterans Administration?

A. Since February, 1946, sir.

Q. This card which you have identified as a service card (would you hand it to him again, please?), that card does not indicate any accumulated leave which the employee may have earned during the period of his employment?

A. No, sir, it does not.

Q. Do you know from your experience in the Veterans Administration during the period from January 18, 1929, to October 30, 1933, how much accumulated leave Mr. Schomaker would have earned?

(Testimony of James J. Ryan.)

A. I do not recall the law exactly that was in effect at that time, but as I recall it, the employee was allowed to carry over from one year to the next year sixty days' annual leave.

Q. Then from your records it is perfectly possible that Mr. Schomaker, having accumulated leave, may have left the service of the Veterans Administration prior to the date of October 30, 1933, which appears on that record?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. That assumes the man allowed his entire accumulated leave to wait until the end of his employment.

Mr. Donohue: I did not ask him about the entire leave.

The Court: The objection is overruled. You may answer. [4174]

The Witness: It is possible that he could have left 60 days plus whatever leave he might have accumulated during the time prior to his going on leave. At that time federal employees were allowed what were called terminal leaves. You aren't dropped off the payroll until the leave you had accumulated had expired.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): And there is nothing on that record which you have brought here, Mr. Ryan, which would show that John Schomaker actually worked at the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto on the 30th day of October, 1933?

A. No, sir, there is nothing.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

(Testimony of James J. Ryan.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Ryan, before coming here, have you talked to any person connected with the Government in this case? A. No, sir, I have not.

Q. You have not had any memoradum or interview with any person?

A. No, sir, I have not.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, may I ask if counsel can impeach his own witness?

Mr. MacInnis: I am trying to find the facts of this matter.

Q. To your knowledge, Mr. Ryan, did any representative of the [4175] Government see the card which you have in your hand before you brought it here today?

A. They could not have, sir, because we didn't know we had these records until yesterday morning when we got the subpoena. One of the employees recalled all the old records were in storage. We went over and dug them out. So no one has seen them since I came to the Veterans Administration in 1946.

Q. Someone from my office must have seen them, Mr. Ryan.

A. They saw a physician's record card.

Q. Pardon me?

A. They saw a physician's record card.

Q. And that card would have the same dates as the card that you brought here?

A. Yes, sir, it does.

Q. And that card would show, just as the official record does here, that John Schomaker went to work on January 18, 1929, and that he resigned on October 30th of 1933?

A. Yes, sir. I have that card with me, too, sir.

Q. And the other card, I take it, would not show any of these possible leaves either, would it?

A. There is no record at the office which would show that leave. It might be in his official personnel file, which is back in Washington.

Q. So when you say that the man may have taken leave at a certain leave, you are speculating, not having any real knowledge [4176] of what the man did?

A. All I meant to say was it is possible, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

The Court: Mr. Ryan is excused.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, we have two witnesses scheduled to appear at 11:00, so might we have the recess early?

The Court: We will take the morning recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4177]

ALBERT BERTANI

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court.

(Testimony of Albert Bertani.)

The Witness: Albert Bertani.

The Clerk: Will you spell your last name.

The Witness: B-e-r-t-a-n-i.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. What is your business, Mr. Bertani?

A. Recording secretary of Local 10.

Q. That is of the ILWU?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And how long have you been such?

A. Just a few weeks.

Q. Have you charge, however, of the records of the various members of that union?

A. I have.

Q. Have you brought along the record of John H. Schomaker? A. I have.

Q. Would you produce it, please.

A. The local isn't rich enough to buy me new briefcase (producing document).

Mr. Hallinan: I am just interested in the date of initiation (handing document to counsel).

Q. Are these records that are kept in the regular course of business of the ILWU? [4178]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And produced by you from their files, is that right? A. That's right.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer them in evidence, if the Court please. This is the record of John D. Schomaker. The principal thing I wish to call attention is the initiation date, 11/20/33.

The Court: They may be marked in evidence.

Mr. Hallinan: And then there is an application for registration as a longshoreman that is also produced from the file, and I want to offer that in evidence.

The Clerk: The first, if your Honor please, is marked Defendants' L-1.

(The last document referred to was handed to counsel.)

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection to this, if the Court please. I notice the name John D. Schomaker. I don't know whether that is his signature or not. I can't concede that.

Mr. Hallinan: Might we have the same device that was employed before: that a photostat be substituted and the documents returned to the witness?

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. Hallinan: No further questions.

The Clerk: The last exhibit, if your Honor please, is marked M-1 in evidence.

(Membership record marked Defendants' Exhibit L-1 in [4179] evidence; application for registration marked Defendants' Exhibit M-1 in evidence.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. That record, Mr. Bertani, shows that Mr. Schomaker was initiated in the ILA November 20, 1933? A. That's right.

Q. Did Mr. Hallinan tell you that on the 21st

(Testimony of Albert Bertani.)

day of November, 1949, and in this court the witness John Schomaker was asked these questions and made these replies:

> "Q. And what kind of work did you engage in on the waterfront?
>
> "A. (By John Schomaker): Well, regular longshore work when I could get a job.
> "Q. Did there come a time when you became a member of the union?
> "A. There was.
> "Q. And about when was it?
> "A. Well, I joined the ILA in, I think, November, 1933."

Did Mr. Hallinan tell you that Mr. Schomaker made those answers to those questions?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions. Just a minute, please.

May I have that last exhibit, please? Would you ask the witness to take a look at it. [4180]

The Clerk: This is Exhibit M-1 (handing document to witness).

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Do you know, sir, of your own knowledge whether or not that was the signature of John D. Schomaker? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

The Court: The witness is excused.

Mr. Hallinan: Call Mr. Jones, please.

BRUCE B. JONES

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Bruce Barrow Jones.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Jones?

A. I am a longshoreman, Mr. Hallinan.

Q. How long have you been such?

A. I worked off and on, made very little work, from 1932, but I have been consistently occupied as a longshoreman since 1934 with the exception of the time that I was a representative of the ILWU in the East Coast and the Gulf and during the recent war.

Q. And prior to the time that you became a stevedore what was [4181] your occupation?

A. I was unemployed, trying to get a job on a ship, hanging around the fink hall—any kind of work I could get on the waterfront. I even worked a little bit as a warehouseman and as a lumper around the Walk up, made a few days there, and off and on for the railroad in various jobs that they had.

Q. Have you been a sailor?

A. I have, yes.

Q. Were you a sailor around the strike of 1934?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And were you ever a member of the Communist Party, Mr. Jones?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. I was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. And for how long?

A. To the best of my recollection, Mr. Hallinan, I joined the Communist Party in the middle of 1932 and I was active in the Communist Party up till about the year of 1939, when I had a lot of trouble. I had—I hurt my back on the waterfront, and I had a lot of stomach trouble that came along at the same time, and that is the time that I started out, so to speak, to withdraw from it, because I was unable to go along with it.

Q. Let me ask you this: Do you know John Schomaker?

A. Yes, I know John Schomaker, Mr. Hallinan.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. I met John Schomaker in the latter part of 1933. The [4182] place I met him at, if I remember correctly, was in the Marine Workers Industrial Union hall, which was located on the second floor of a building I think at 432 Market Street.

Q. That was known as the MWIU, was it?

A. Marine Workers Industrial Union.

Q. Were you a member of that?

A. I was.

Q. Was Schomaker? Well, withdraw that. Now I want to ask you this: Do you know Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, sure.

Q. When did you first meet Harry Bridges?

A. The first time, Mr. Hallinan, I met Harry Bridges to talk to was when I was on a steamship called the Texan, which was in the third or fourth month of the year 1934. I was a member of the crew of that ship and Bridges was a longshoreman that had been loading the ships. There is a lapse of time or a brief lull between the longshoremen when they get their work done and between them getting off the ship and the seamen who are standing by, before the seamen take over battening down the hatches and like that. That is the first time that I had ever met Harry Bridges to have anything to say to him.

Q. You say that was sometime in 1934?

A. I have a discharge, Mr. Hallinan, from the Government, it was the Coast Guard or the Steamboat Inspectors at that time, which says on it, if I remember correctly, it has the [4183] first letter is 4, and there is a line and 34; I think the middle is 3. I think it was the fourth month, they calculate it that way, or the day. It was in March or April, 1934.

Q. Does that card show the name of the ship you sailed on?

A. It shows my name, the name of the ship, and it shows my rating on the ship, and it shows that I deserted the ship in New York in 1934.

Q. Is it by means of that card that you are able to place the first time you talked to Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, that is correct. [4184]

Q. In other words, you had seen him and spoken to him but had not had a conversation with him prior to that day?

A. That is correct, Mr. Hallinan.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. That would be about April, 1934, so far as your memory is refreshed by the document that you had? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Will you tell us what the nature of your conversation with him was at that time?

A. I don't know. Harry was standing over there and smoking a pipe. They had just swung in the gear or something, and if I remember correct, he had a piece of rope in his hand and he said something about having a good voyage and do a good job.

Q. At that time had you been designated by the Marine Workers or some organization to try to do something about the impending strike on the Pacific Coast?

A. Well, Mr. Hallinan, it was two ways: I was involved in a transaction trying to get something to eat. I always had my book down there in the fink hall on top to try to get a ship. It was a question of trying to get something to eat and also to help out my brother seamen and longshoremen, and under that category, that is when I shipped on that ship.

Q. Let me ask you this: Did you in the month of December, 1933, or at any other time or at all, in company with John Schomaker or alone or under any circumstances or in the presence of anybody ever ask Harry Bridges or suggest to Harry Bridges or [4185] recommend to Harry Bridges that he join the Communist Party?

A. I did not, Mr. Hallinan; at no time did I ever sign Harry Bridges up in the Communist Party, and at no time did I ever ask him to join the Communist Party.

Q. Did you ever in the company of Schomaker or by yourself or in the company of any other person in a restaurant at Stewart and Market Street or at any place on the wide globe ever receive from Harry Bridges an application signed by him applying for membership in the Communist Party?

A. I did not, Mr. Hallinan, and Schomaker is a goddam liar when he said that I did.

Q. Mr. Jones, have you and Schomaker been friendly for a long time?

A. Mr. Hallinan, do you want me to say when I met this guy and like that?

Q. Yes, if you will.

A. And some of the later years?

Q. Yes.

A. Mr. Hallinan, in the fall of 1933 I was in the Marine Workers Industrial Union doing a lot of Jimmy Higgins' work, being in the breadline in the morning and in the afternoon looking for work. We used to go around there at the shapeup on the waterfront at different places, and then we would go around by warehouse, and I remember the Gibraltar Warehouse. We went around the North Beach, and whenever we seen a boxcar sitting in front [4186] of a door, we would go in and ask the guy if he wanted help in discharging it. I was involved in a transaction like that. This guy Schomaker came in. I think I met him in the Marine

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Workers Hall for the first time. He said he had been working in the Veterans Hospital and like that, but his wife was an employee of the Japanese Steamship Agency, and I think she said an employee of the Japanese Steamship Agency, and my understanding was, through some connection of her being in there, he had a chance to get on the docks that way. That is when I first met him.

Q. In addition to this story that Schomaker tells about you presenting and having signed by Harry Bridges an application card, he says that he and you walked up Market Street to deliver it to the Communist headquarters on Grove Street, for the reason that neither he nor you had the carfare. Do you know if Schomaker was impecunious at that time?

The Court: One moment, Mr. Hallinan, before the witness answers. May I address to you, Mr. Jones?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: This does not reflect upon the defense at all. It is not necessary for you to use any swear words or the like. This is a court of law, and if occasion arises to answer a question, I request you to answer it without any——

The Witness: Judge Harris, I apologize. I am a longshoreman and seaman and I feel very strongly when a man has put my [4187] name in the newspapers.

The Court: That is all you have to say. We have many people in this courtroom. I say to the jury not to reflect upon the witness in connection with his last statement or any swear words he used.

Mr. Hallinan: It is a privilege that a great many of us would like to enjoy, but we can't do it.

The Court: You can enjoy it elsewhere, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: That is what I say. We can't do it.

The Court: You and Mr. Jones might enjoy it some place else.

Mr. Hallinan: And a great many others, Judge.

Mr. MacInnis: I am going to ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard the last remark that you made. I think you made it intemperately. I do not think you really meant to say that, Judge. You said that Mr. Hallinan and Mr. Jones might enjoying swearing elsewhere. I do not think you should have said that, and I think you should tell the jury to disregard your remarks.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan had already announced he would enjoy swearing.

Mr. Hallinan: I would like, your Honor, to save the witness embarrassment, that is all. When the witness says something like that, I like to say something that will save him embarrassment. That is the reason. I think my language can be [4188] as elegant as that of anyone in the courtroom when I choose to make it so.

The Court: That is all right. Thanks.

Q. Mr. Jones, you remember when the grand jury had a meeting that resulted in the indictments against Harry Bridges, Bob Robertson and Henry Schmidt, do you? A. I do.

Q. Were you subpoenaed as a witness before that same grand jury? A. I was.

Q. Did you appear at the grand jury headquarters? A. I appeared up there, yes.

Q. Were you called as a witness?

A. No, I hung around the witness room.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I hung around what I think is called the witness room.

Q. Then you were never produced before the grand jury?

A. No, I was never produced before the grand jury.

Q. At any time around that time did you have any conversation with Schomaker touching the question of Harry Bridges being or not being a member of the Communist Party? A. I did.

Q. Where was that?

A. At Schomaker's home.

Q. Under what circumstances did you go there?

A. When I first got the subpoena, Mr. Hallinan, and due to some of the remarks that the agent of the Immigration Department made to me regarding the subpoena, and also because some of the remarks that over the past three or four years Schomaker has made to me, I thought I had better go down and see him, because I was certain this was another frameup against Bridges, and frankly speaking, Mr. Hallinan, I wanted to go down and see Schomaker and try and see that he didn't get involved in it because of the fact I noticed he was very vindictive against Bridges. He had mentioned to me on a number of times in the past year the Federal Bureau of Investigation hounded him, and I knew that he was in a tight financial place, because he tried to borrow money from me on a number of occasions, which I haven't got to loan him, and which I wouldn't have loaned him because he has carried on some of the screwiest transactions that I think he could have gotten into. I went down to see him and I took a longshoreman with me, a rank and file longshoreman.

So when we got down there, he seemed reluctant to greet me, but then he and his wife—his wife came running out and he greeted me. He said, "Come on upstairs."

They have a kind of large house down there, a very large house, and over the garage in back there is a place which they have fixed up and which he rents to Stanford students. He says, "Come up here and we will talk about it."

I told him I received a subpoena from the grand jury. We [4190] goes up in this room and sits down. His wife, Rose, she showed me how some of the knotty pine—it was evidently put in there when it was green—how some of this had shrunk. In other words, he pointed out to me the greenness of the wood when it should have been seasoned wood. We sat down and I told him—we started to talk about it. I said, John, I got a subpoena to appear up there." He said, "Well, I have already been up there."

I said, "John," I says, "you know this is a frame-up and you know the position of a union man in this thing in the past is to go—is to contact your lawyers and here you are getting mixed up in this damn thing, and you haven't even seen any of the lawyers of the Defense Committee, and like that." He says, "Yes," he says, "but what am I going to do?" He says, "They have been coming down here every week for months." He says, "They even came down here last Saturday. I was sitting in the living room reading a book. They came in my house without ringing the doorbell, and when I called them on it, they say, 'Well, the doorbell don't work,' I told them, I said, 'You should at least knock on the door.'"

And his wife butted in and said, "Yes, you are damned if you do and damned if you don't."

Pardon me, Mr. Harris. I am quoting him. He said, "You are damned if you do, you are damned if you don't."

And John says, "So what are you going to do? If I don't go along with them, I will be blackballed here. I'll get no [4191] students to occupy the rooms here, and what am I going to do?" And he flung his hands out like that (indicating).

I thought all the more this guy was getting in a terrific jam. So he talked along. I began to ask him, "How do you handle yourself in a situation once you get up there?" He said, "Well, you go in a room," and he went on to describe to me this, that and the other.

I said, "What did you say there?" And he told me—he switched back, something about meeting Rathborne, and he recalled Rathborne's article in the newspaper at that time. He said that was screwy, but he had a discussion in the room next to the grand jury with Rathborne, like that. He said, "He told me about it." He was asked certain questions.

I said, "What were they, John?" He said he was asked whether Bridges was a member of the Communist Party or not, and he told me there in the presence of another witness and his wife that he had told the grand jury that he had never seen Harry Bridges' party book nor his application card. That is what he told me there. And he says although he had assumed—when he attended certain meetings with Bridges and like that and other people—I think he mentioned Schneidermann's name—that he had assumed that Bridges was a Communist, but he told me there in the presence of the witness, he said he told them—he told me he had never seen his party book or his application card or had seen him pay his dues but that he had told the [4192] grand jury, when they asked him about attending meetings with people, that he had assumed that Bridges was a Communist. That was it. He told an assuming business to the grand jury and he told me there he had never seen Bridges' party book, his application card or seen him pay dues.

Q. Then did you have any further conversation with him? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Under what circumstances?

A. Well, that ended all of that conversation.

Q. Tell us what else.

A. We talked along there, and one of the things that has made me kind of shy off Mr. Schomaker in the past three or four years wasn't only the fact that during the war I was away—he was down there at the 'front together like that. There has been a couple of us. We talk on the waterfront, Mr. Hallinan, and the term that we use is called the rank and file. That means a lot to the rank and file seamen. I don't know just how to put it. It is a kind of a democratic expression. It is like in the days when the seamen were in unions that were governed by dictators. They didn't have nothing to say in the union, and things like that. The rank and file, the guy that does the work. And in later years Schomaker has been using a term called the rank and the filth, and I resented it, and that is one of the reasons, as later years went on, John Schomaker and I had nothing in common. [4193] Another thing was he is so vindictive against Harry Bridges for different things that happened down there that he would sink the whole union.

Q. What happened? Did he ever express to you the reasons why he was vindictive against Bridges?

A. Well, there have been quite a few little arguments down there, Mr. Hallinan. It is all involved around one thing, and that one thing, Mr. Hallinan, is that the longshoremen and seamen will never get anywhere unless we have unity and joint action. I think the history of the labor union, as far as the maritime industry, will prove that out. Now, in the course of getting that unity and maintaining that unity different other things come up. Some of those things, Mr. Hallinan, come up. I tell you the truth, when it is all over, I was in it, but I don't know what it was all about. But one of the things that you could point out was a question of the War Labor Board. Another thing was John Schomaker's position on the East Coast in the Gulf drive back there. He said that attempt on the part of the ILWU to organize the longshoremen of the Gulf and the North Atlantic ports into the ILWU and into the CIO was an expression whereby Bridges was satisfying his fat head. That was his reaction to the part of Bridges and the West Coast longshoremen to bring a decent working condition and a hiring hall to the longshoremen on the East Coast and the Gulf, and I told him, I said, "John, that isn't so." I said, [4194] "Bridges was sincere in that." I said, "I was sincere in that." I said, "I spent about a year and a half around there. I never made any money out of that. In fact, when I came back here I was in debt."

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

That was his reaction to that.

Q. I asked you a little while before, and then some discussion interrupted it, in addition to saying that you had signed or you had received a signed application card from Harry Bridges, Schomaker testified that in December, 1933, you and he had to walk up Market Street to 37 Grove Street, which he said took about 45 minutes because neither you nor he had the carfare. Do you know whether he was impoverished at that time?

A. Well, there is one point—let's see. We were supposed to walk up there from a restaurant, Mr. Hallinan?

Q. Yes.

A. I will tell you a little story about that restaurant, Mr. Hallinan. That restaurant—I would never have went in that restaurant with Bridges or Schomaker because at different times I would go in that restaurant and work for a meal. That's right. I have been down on my hands and knees and scrubbed the border around the floors of that restaurant for something to eat, but I have a little pride, and I would never have went in that restaurant in the first place to talk over anything with Schomaker or Harry Bridges. And as far as walking up Market Street with John Schomaker and he said he was short of money, that is [4195] a lot of baloney because he was living with his family, Mr. Hallinan. I never saw him short of money or anything like that. I didn't see him flush, but he was eating three square meals a day and living with his family.

Q. His wife was working for the Japanese Steamship Company, you say, at that time?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. That is what she told me, yes.

Q. Then did you go back and talk to Schomaker again after this first occasion?

A. After the first trip down there, I came back and I saw the lawyers of the Defense Committee.

Q. Who was that?

A. That was George Andersen.

Q. What happened then?

A. We went down there the next day—I think it was the next day or the day after that.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Jones: After you went down there with George Andersen and saw Schomaker, did you sign any memorandum of what had occurred there? A. I did.

Q. And have you since read that memorandum to refresh your recollection as to what was said?

A. I did, yes.

Q. How long after you went down there did you make the statement that we are referring to? [4196]

A. What statement?

Q. The one that you say you made after——

A. I would say within a week, Mr. Hallinan.

Q. And you have read that one since, have you, for the purpose of refreshing your recollection?

A. That is right.

Mr. Hallinan: Will you show this to the witness and ask him if that is the statement. (Handing document to the witness.)

A. This seems to be it, Mr. Hallinan. I didn't take the time to read it word for word.

Q. Can you state the contents of this statement or the conversation that you and Mr. Andersen had with Schomaker on that second occasion, without reading from this document? A. No:

Q. Oh, no, pardon me. This is Carlson Melin and B. B. Jones and Rosie Schomaker. That is the statement you told about already.

A. That is the statement that I signed there about what went on in John Schomaker's house.

Q. Yes, but that was the first occasion. Was Carlson Malin the man you went down with when you first had a conversation?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Let me ask you this: On the second occasion when you went down with George Andersen who else went down?

A. George Andersen, Carlson Malin, and Schomaker's brother-in-law, Charles Lambert. [4197]

Q. And you had another conversation with Schomaker then? A. That's right.

Q. Where? A. In his patio.

Q. And about how long after the first?

A. About how long after the first one?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it was the next day or the next day after that day.

Q. And will you tell us what the general nature of the conversation was then?

A. Well, to the best of my recollection then, Mr. Hallinan, the general nature of the conversation was that George asked Schomaker if he cared to tell him what went on at the Grand Jury. That is the best of my recollection of it, Schomaker appeared very nervous and hedged and this, that and the other. About the only thing that I can remember, Mr. Hallinan, definitely out of that—out of that conversation that day was that Schomaker told George Andersen that he had told the Grand Jury that he didn't know whether Bridges was a Communist or not.

Q. Now, we talked about the first meeting and the statement that I had here that was shown to you.

A. Yes.

Q. And as to the conversation that occurred in the first meeting. [4198] A. Yes.

Q. You have read this recently for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, is that correct?

A. Yes, one day last week.

Mr. Hallinan: We will offer it in evidence. It is just the same thing. If you want to object, we don't care.

Mr. Donohue: We object, if your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: All right.

Mr. Donohue: It is only self-serving.

Mr. Hallinan: No, it isn't self-serving. It is just a statement.

Q. Did Schomaker ever tell you that he was going to use your name in testimony as having been involved in obtaining a membership application signed by Harry Bridges in the Communist Party?

A. No, he did not.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Jones, am I to believe that you said shortly ago that you left the Communist Party because your back hurt and you had stomach trouble?

A. And the other transaction involved there, Mr. Donohue, was along in 1941 I was trying to get in the Navy, and when I couldn't make that I shipped out. That is correct, yes.

Q. Then you didn't leave the Communist Party because you had [4199] any disagreement with the principles of the Communist Party, did you?

A. I didn't leave the Communist Party because I had a difference of opinion with the Communist Party.

Q. And you haven't any different opinion of the Communist Party today, have you?

A. You are getting into another subject now, Mr. Donohue. I don't know whether my opinions of the Communist Party today or not concern this case, whether it has got anything to do with it, but I know my political opinions as a free-born American citizen is my own damn business, and I am not sure you have got any business to ask me what my political opinions are today.

The Court: Mr. Witness, will you answer the question, please.

The Witness: What kind of a question did he ask me, Judge? I am sorry.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Jones, do you believe what Mr. MacInnis stated yesterday, that you are an eccentric?

A. I don't know whether Mr. MacInnis said that. I am an individualist. If he said that, I agree with that.

Q. I said if he said you were an eccentric would you agree with him?

A. I don't know whether he said it or not. That is a hypothetical question. I want to know what the record is. Read [4200] the record of yesterday.

Mr. Donohue: Will your Honor pardon me a moment, please.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is an improper question. I think the witness isn't——

The Court: It might be, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: I beg your pardon?

The Court: It might be argumentative.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw it.

The Court: What have you in mind? Part of the opening statement?

Mr. Donohue: Yes. I will withdraw the question, if the Court please.

Q. Mr. Jones, when did you first talk with either Mr. Hallinan or Mr. MacInnis with respect to the testimony you have given us here today?

A. On the day the newspapers came out with the story of John Schomaker naming me as being the one who is supposed to sign Harry Bridges up into the Communist Party, I received a telephone call from the defense committee to come over.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Who made the phone call?

A. That I don't know, but everything was in order; I crossed on the way over, the time that I came over, brother, because I wanted to go into that myself.

Q. In response to that phone call what did you do?

A. I won't say in response to that phone call, Mr. Donohue. [4201] I will say in the course of the phone call coming over and my being anxious to get over there myself, I came over to see Mr. Hallinan—the defense committee; correct that; it was the defense committee.

Q. I ask you now, after you received the phone call where did you go and to whom did you talk?

A. After receiving the phone call, Mr. Donohue, which happened to be a request to do something which I was fully intending to do whether I got the phone call or not, I proceeded to 150 Golden Gate. And I went in there and a clerk or stenographer showed me a copy of the transcript, I guess you call it, of Schomaker's statements up there, and I was involved in the transaction of reading that over when I think Mr. Hallinan and the attorneys and Bridges came into the room, and I think as they came into the room I was reading this over and explaining to the girl there that it was a lie. That is when I first met him.

Q. When was that?

A. That was on the day that Schomaker testified I did that.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. How long did you stay there?

A. I would say 30 minutes; approximately half an hour or something like that.

Q. Did you talk with anyone other than Mr. Hallinan or Mr. MacInnis?

A. On that particular time? [4202]

Q. Yes. A. Not that I can remember, no.

Q. When did you next talk to anyone about your testimony now?

A. Well, let me see. When was that testimony given, Mr. Donohue?

Q. Are you referring to the testimony of John Schomaker?

A. You asked me—repeat your question again, please.

Q. When did you next talk to anyone concerning your testimony here after the incident you have just discussed in which you said you talked to Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis at 150 Golden Gate Avenue?

A. Well, I will answer—I will say that when that came out in the newspaper it created quite an uproar and there was all kinds of people asking me about it, rank and file longshoremen and all kinds of people, and anybody that asked me about it I told them; and I told anybody who would listen that what Schomaker said up here about me signing up Harry Bridges was a lie. I can't enumerate all the people. It would be half the waterfront, I guess.

Q. When did you talk to anyone associated with the defense committee after you talked to Mr. MacInnis and Mr. Hallinan?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. The only time that I can remember, then the next time I talked to Mr. Hallinan and members of the defense committee was last week.

Q. Well, tell us when and where last week. [4203]

A. I talked to Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis of the Bridges defense committee, and I think it was last Tuesday or Wednesday.

Q. What time of day or night?

A. I think it was ten o'clock in the morning.

Q. And where? A. 150 Golden Gate.

Q. Who was present?

A. Mr. Hallinan then.

Q. Anybody else?

A. Well, there was other people in the office around there.

Q. Who?

A. Clerks. I don't recall; I don't know their names.

Q. Is it your testimony now that there was no one else in the room whom you knew except Mr. Hallinan?

A. That is all I can recall, yes.

Q. Was Mr. Norman Leonard in the room?

A. Well, there was a—he is a member of the defense committee.

Q. I asked you a question: Was he there or was he not there?

A. He was there when I went in, reported to the desk, and then Mr. Hallinan and I went out into another room and talked.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. What did you tell us Mr. Norman Leonard was there?

A. Because when you asked me—that building up there has three rooms up there, that defense committee has three rooms [4204] that I know of. I go in the door and I see the clerks and the stenographers there, that's right. Then I went—when they told me that Mr. Hallinan was in there and Mr. Leonard was in there, I go into there, yes.

Q. Then you did see Mr. Leonard?

A. Yes, he was in. I don't know whether he is on the defense; I don't know his role up there.

Q. Don't you know that Norman Leonard is connected with the law firm of Gladstein, Resner, Andersen and Sawyer? A. That's right.

Q. You knew Mr. Leonard when you saw him on this occasion?

A. Yes, surely. He and Mr. Hallinan was right there. You asked me when was the next time I talked to Mr. Hallinan. I am telling you.

Q. I asked you when you last talked with anyone connected with the Bridges defense. Was that the last conversation you had with anyone about your testimony here, or did you talk with someone since?

A. Yes, I talked with someone since.

Q. Will you tell us when and where.

A. Well, a number of people again, Mr. Donohue.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. I am talking about people who were associated with the Bridges-Schmidt-Robertson defense.

A. After that last Tuesday, I think it was, or Wednesday, I saw Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis, and possibly Mr. Leonard, [4205] in there, and the various clerical help in the office, at approximately 2 p.m. last Friday.

Q. Now, you are certain that Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis were there?

A. Yes, I talked to them, yes.

Q. But you are not sure Mr. Norman Leonard was there?

A. He wasn't there, I don't think, when I talked to Mr. MacInnis and Mr. Hallinan.

Q. When did he come into the room?

A. I think he was there when I went in.

Q. And he left before you began to talk to Mr. Hallinan and Mr. MacInnis?

A. I am not sure. He is a very busy man; I am not watching like that.

Q. You mean you are, or Mr. Leonard is a very busy man?

A. I am busy too, my own personal business to go about.

Q. Since last Friday at two o'clock have you discussed your testimony here with anyone?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell us where and with whom.

A. Oh, various people on the waterfront.

Q. I am talking now and I restrict the question to persons associated with the Bridges-Schmidt-Robertson defense.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. I haven't talked to anybody.

Q. You haven't talked to anybody? [4206]

A. Of the Bridges-Schmidt-Robertson defense.

Q. You talked to no one last night about your testimony this morning? A. No.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Jones?

A. Mr. Donohue, I don't know, Judge, I am hesitant about giving my address.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the question.

A. Because I don't like the vigilantes and their set-up of throwing rocks at people, coming around the house and throwing rocks through the windows and painting signs on the gate. I think the paper says other witnesses up here didn't give their address.

Q. Did you stay at your home last night?

A. I did, that is correct, and the night before, and the night before that, and right down from there.

Q. You didn't talk to anyone last night about your testimony?

A. Yes, sure, I taked to someone last night.

Q. Anyone associated with the Bridges defense?

A. No, just the rank and file longshoremen. I guess he—in fact, in an overall picture he is.

Q. Mr. Jones, do you know William Schneidermann? A. Yes, I know him. [4207]

Q. When did you talk with him last?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. The last time I saw Bill Schneidermann, Mr. Donohue, was on New Year's Eve at approximately ten minutes of twelve at a party held at the Labor School on Golden Gate Avenue. He was coming in the door and I was going out. I said, "Hello," and he said, "Hello."

Q. Did you get Schneidermann's permission to testify in this proceeding, Mr. Jones?

A. I don't get anybody's permission to do anything, Mr. Donohue. I have been involved in transactions here since this thing started and getting some place to tell somebody else that Schomaker was a liar. I don't get Schneidermann's permission or anybody else's permission to do anything.

Q. Mr. Schneidermann didn't send you to see Mr. Norman Leonard?

A. Absolutely not. Mr. Norman Leonard was the attorney of the Bridges Defense Committee that went with me up to the grand jury when this thing first came up.

Q. Was it Mr. Norman Leonard or Mr. Herbert Resner who went to the grand jury with you?

A. There was four or five of them around there, and Mr. Norman Leonard was one of them.

Q. When did you get a subpoena to appear before the grand jury?

A. It was about 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon on my way home.

Q. Do you recall when? A. No. [4208]

Q. What did you do with respect to that subpoena after you got it?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones)

A. The first thing I did was get this guy from the rank and file longshoremen and went down and seen Schomaker.

Q. And it is a fact that you didn't go down and see Mr. Schomaker until after you had received your subpoena to appear before the grand jury?

A. That is right. That is what I told the Court. I had nothing in common with him to go down and see him. He is a degenerated moron.

Q. You didn't tell him that when you went down there? A. What?

Q. You didn't tell him that?

A. I didn't say the words degenerated moron, no, but I argued out every point he brought up about the East Coast and the Gulf and that area back there. He said that day that Harry Bridges was a fathead.

Q. You didn't tell him that during this visit before or after you had coffee and cake with his wife in the kitchen?

A. No; since he started involving me here, I have formulated, made up my mind that he is a degenerated moron. I was in the process of coming to that conclusion when he named me here. That guy even tried to write books and I have given him experiences of mine at sea during the war to help him try to write a book. [4209]

Q. Mr. Jones, you didn't tell John Schomaker in the kitchen of his home when you ate his wife's cake and drank her coffee that he was a degenerated moron, did you?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. No, I didn't, but I blasted him on every point that he raised. I told him, I says, "What are you sticking your snout in the waterfront for? You are not on the waterfront; you are down here carrying hod. If you have got something against Bridges or Schmidt, don't take it out on the rank and file." That is what I told him. "I am down there trying to make a living," I says, "and indirectly you are hitting me."

Q. Who is the man that went down with you to see John Schomaker at his home in Menlo Park?

A. Carlton Melin.

Q. You know him to be a member of the Communist Party, do you?

A. I don't know him to be a member of the Communist Party. He is an old-timer; he has been on the waterfront for years.

Q. Wasn't he a member of the Communist Party at the time you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. Not to my knowledge, Mr. Donohue. And I want to get at what is this thing of being a member of the Communist Party. The longshoremen have been called Communists. Franklin Roosevelt and everybody else who were trying to do some social welfare in this country has been called a Communist, and not so long ago Mr. Havenner was running for election for the House of Representatives or something. I happened to be driving up [4210] Broderick Street or one of those streets in a car with another individual, and this guy had a sign on his bumper, "Havenner for Congress," and some boy about twelve years of age said, "Havenner is a Communist." What the hell do you mean by being a Communist?

Mr. Donohue: Might we take a recess at this time?

The Court: We will take the recess until 2:00 o'clock. The same admonition to you, ladies and gentlemen, not to discuss the case under any circumstances nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

We will take the recess.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [4211]

Afternoon Session, Tuesday, January 24, 1950

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, we have in court a witness who is obliged to leave the jurisdiction rather shortly, and I wonder if we could put him on the stand?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. Will Dr. Leo Eloesser step up, please.

DR. LEO ELOESSER

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Leo Eloesser.

The Clerk: Dr. Leo Eloesser. Will you spell your last name, Doctor?

The Witness: E-l-o-e-s-s-e-r.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Your name is Leo Eloesser, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you were born, as I am informed from the volume entitled "Who's Who in America," here in San Francisco in the year 1881, is that correct?

A. That is correct. [4212]

Q. Are you a member of some profession?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What profession is that, Doctor?

A. Medical profession.

Q. And you received your early education before entering into the medical profession at what school?

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

A. University of California.

Q. And in what year did you receive your bachelor's degree at the University of California?

A. December, 1900.

Q. In December of 1900. Now, after your graduation from the University of California in 1900 did you pursue any further studies of a graduate nature?

A. I studied medicine at the University of Heidelberg.

Q. The University of Heidelberg in Germany?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you receive the degree of Doctor of Medicine? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the University of Heidelberg?

A. In 1907.

Q. In 1907. After your graduation from the University of Heidelberg did you undertake any medical work of a specialized nature in Europe?

A. Yes, sir; I served in various surgical clinics for about three years. [4213]

Q. Were you a member of the Royal Clinic at Kiel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For how many years were you with that clinic?

A. I was one year in Kiel, about a year in Heidelberg, and about one year in various other universities.

Q. Did you undertake any work in the city of Berlin?

A. I was at the so-called Augusta Hospital in Berlin.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. And before returning to the United States to resume your work in this community did you become a member of the Cancer Institute in any school in Europe?

A. Yes, sir, at Heidelberg.

Q. At Heidelberg? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would that have been following the year 1907?

A. Yes, that was 1908, as I remember.

Q. In what year did you return to San Francisco to take up your medical practice here?

A. 1909.

Q. And have you been in the City of San Francisco as a practicing physician continuously since 1909 with the exception of the visits that you have made on tour of duty to foreign countries?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What has been the general nature of your medical practice here in San Francisco? [4214]

A. Surgical practice.

Q. Have you been since you returned to San Francisco in 1909 a member of the faculty of any medical university?

A. Yes, sir. I was instructor at the—I think assistant at the University of California for a short time, and then I changed to Stanford.

Q. What post did you hold with Stanford University Medical School?

A. I held various posts, but I entered as clinical professor of surgery.

Q. Am I correctly informed that you are now Professer Emeritus? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. Of surgery at Stanford University?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you been over the years a member of the staffs of any hospitals in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What hospitals are those, Doctor?

A. I was chief of the Surgical Service of the Stanford Division at the San Francisco Hospital.

Q. You were chief of the Surgical Division of the Stanford side at the San Francisco Hospital, is that correct?

A. Correct, yes, sir.

Q. And for what period of time approximately did you hold that [4215] post?

A. As chief I think I held the post from about—I can't quite remember; from sometime in the 1930's until my retirement in 1945.

Q. During the first World War did you hold any rank in the Medical Corps of the United States Army?

A. Yes, sir, I was a major.

Q. You were a major in the Medical Corps of the United States Army, and that service comprised how many years?

A. One year.

Q. After the conclusion of the war did you undertake any work of a specialized nature either here or elsewhere?

A. Yes, I worked as a surgeon here in San Francisco, and I was a member of a number of scientific societies.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. Could you list for us generally the scientific societies of which you have been a member?

A. It is quite a long list of special societies; surgical societies mainly.

Q. Have you been president of the American Thoracic Institute?

A. Yes, sir; American Association for Thoracic Surgery is the correct title.

Q. You are, I suppose, a member of the American Medical Association? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you been a member of any scientific associations of [4216] a specialized field in the realm of surgery?

A. Yes, quite a few of them, both here and in Latin America.

Q. In Latin America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what particular countries, Doctor?

A. The Argentine, Bolivia, Cuba, Chile, Brazil, Peru, Mexico, and maybe a few others.

Q. And have you spent considerable periods of time in the Latin and South American countries?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you have mentioned?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What has been the nature of your sojourns in those countries, Doctor?

A. Well, at times I went to attend various meetings and congresses, and there was about three months in Buenos Aires as exchange professor of surgery.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. You were in the Argentine as an exchange professor of surgery, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was in about what year?

A. I think that was '43, if I remember correctly.

Q. Have you from time to time during your last twenty years, let us say, undertaken medical work in various foreign countries? [4217]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And could you list for us generally the type of work and the countries which you would have in mind?

A. Yes, sir, I was with UNRAA in China two years and from UNRAA I transferred to the World Health Organization, of which I am still a member.

Q. When you say that you were with UNRAA in China for two years, is it true that you were the chief of the Welfare Division for China?

A. No, sir, I was chief of the division for medical education.

Q. And you spent two years in China?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what two calendar years were those?

A. For UNRAA I was there in the last half of '45 until the beginning of '47. Since my work with World Health Organization I have been there from the middle of 1947 until October 1, [4218] 1949.

Q. During your work with World Health Organization, what countries have you visited and worked in? A. China.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. Am I correct in supposing that you have returned here but recently from Brazil?

A. That is correct.

Q. Am I correct in suggesting that you are about to leave this jurisdiction for another destination?

A. Yes, I am going to Cuba for a short visit and then I am going to New York.

Q. Is your work in Cuba connected with World Health Organizations?

A. No, I am going to visit the Cuban Surgical Conference that invited me to attend.

Q. Doctor, having generally in mind now your medical background, let me ask you just one or two further questions. Have you been a contributor over the years to various medical periodicals?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have written articles upon your own special subjects? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I suppose you have been a member of various social organizations in San Francisco?

A. Yes, sir, a few.

Q. I have in mind the St. Francis Yacht Club and the San Francisco Yacht Club. [4219]

A. That is correct.

Q. Are those the organizations to which you belong? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you met, during the course of your life here in San Francisco, a man named Harry Bridges? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. When do you recall first meeting Harry Bridges?

A. I first met him in the St. Francis Hospital in 1933, when I attended him medically.

Q. He was a patient of yours in 1933, is that right?

A. Yes, sir, he had been operated upon and I was called in to attend him.

Q. After the first meeting did you see him from time to time over the years?

A. Yes, sir, I had him again in St. Luke's Hospital as a patient, and I have seen him at intervals since.

Q. Doctor, from your contacts with Harry Bridges over the years have you become familiar with his reputation in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

Mr. Donohue: I must object to the question, if Your Honor please, on the ground that the proper foundation has not been laid for asking the question. He asked the doctor if he had treated the defendant Bridges medically. He said he had over the years. He now asks him for his general reputation, without showing that the doctor is qualified to express an opinion as to [4220] his general reputation.

The Court: In addition to the professional contacts that he may have had, has he had any social relationship or otherwise?

Mr. MacInnis: I think I asked him if he had seen him from time to time.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. Have you seen Harry Bridges from time to time over the intervening years since 1933?

Mr. Donohue: I again object, if Your Honor please. As I understand it, the law allows an established reputation for good character to be placed in evidence, and one's reputation for good character is his reputation in the community, which one can only gain by discussing it or by a knowledge of other perons who also know the defendant Harry Bridges. One can not learn the reputation of another personally. It must come from contact with others and a discussion of that matter with others. I again suggest, if Your Honor please, there has not been a proper foundation laid.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, it has been held on many occasions that matters now suggested by way of criticism are matters for cross-examination. The early case of People v. Adams, a 1902 decision of the Supreme Court of California, I think, covers this point. We surely would not bring a man here not prepared to give character testimony unless he knew something of which he was about to speak.

Q. You might do this, Doctor: Could you tell us approximately [4221] how many times you have seen or talked to Harry Bridges in the years since 1933?

A. Well, it is a little hard for me to remember. I had him several weeks in the St. Francis Hospital and I had him, I think, several weeks—I am not quite sure—in St. Luke's Hospital and I visited him daily during those times.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Q. In addition to such contacts that you may have had with him either while attending him at the hospital or on other occasions, have you ever heard the name of Harry Bridges mentioned or discussed by others? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you heard other people discuss Harry Bridges? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from your own knowledge of the man and from your own participation or hearing of discussions concerning Harry Bridges, do you know what his reputation in this community for truth, honesty and integrity may be?

A. Yes, sir, I think that he has a good reputation for truth, honesty and integrity.

Q. Would you accept his word under oath?

Mr. Donohue: I object, Your Honor. That is not a test under the law.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe it is.

The Court: He answered in the affirmative with respect to [4222] the general question addressed to him, and I think that suffices.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe the cases permit the additional question as to whether or not the witness would accept the word of the defendant under oath.

The Court: My recollection is that you have asked the general question and he has given a general answer.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well. No further questions.

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Doctor, you served in Spain with the Loyalist Brigade, did you not?

A. No, sir, I did not serve with the Loyalist Brigade. I served in Spain but not with the Brigade.

Q. When were you in Spain, Doctor?

A. I was in Spain over the winter of 1937-38.

Q. What was your service in Spain? What were you doing in Spain?

A. I was attached to a mobile unit of the Spanish Loyalist Army.

Q. Doctor, have you been a member of the American Committee for Protection of the Foreign-Born? A. Yes, sir, I think so.

Q. And do you know that that organization, the American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign-Born, is on the Attorney General's subversive list as of May 1st, 1949?

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, in the first place, I do not know [4223] that such a thing is so, and if it were so, we are engaged in a trial here in which the doctrine of guilt by association does not apply, and if this gentleman is on a committee for the protection of the foreign-born, I think that has no bearing upon the credit which may be attached to his testimony.

Mr. Donohue: I think it has as much bearing as the fact that he belonged to the St. Francis Yacht Club.

Mr. MacInnis: I think, Your Honor, if the Attorney General is to be brought here as a witness, I for one would be very glad to cross-examine him on what organizations he says should be taboo. But for this special prosecutor from Washington to tell us in a hearsay form what he says the Attorney General holds is hardly a basis for any cross-examination.

Mr. Donohue: I would be glad to submit you the list.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Did you know that fact, Doctor?

A. No, sir; I am sorry I didn't know it.

Q. Have you been a member of the American Committee for Jugo-slav Relief?

A. I am sorry; I don't know. I belong to so many of these things, it is very hard for me to keep them straight, but if you say so, I would be glad to accept your word for it. I don't know.

Q. Do you know that that organization is on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations as of May 1st, 1949? [4224]

A. No, sir; I am sorry, I do not know it.

Q. Have you been a member of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties?

A. I am sorry, I do not know that either.

Q. And you would not know whether or not that organization is on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations?

(Testimony of Dr. Leo Eloesser.)

A. No, sir, I have been in China until October of this year, so I am not very well up.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. I take it, Doctor, if any question is put to you about almost any conceivable charitable organization, that it might well contain the label of subversive in the eyes of prosecutors, in view of the statements made about the Attorney General; so we have no further questions.

The Court: Is that a question, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me?

The Court: Was that a question you addressed?

Mr. MacInnis: I think not, Your Honor.

The Court: I just wondered.

Mr. MacInnis: It was an observation.

The Court: An observation. Thank you.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

The Court: You are excused. [4225]

BRUCE B. JONES

resumed the stand on behalf of the defendants; previously sworn.

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Bruce Barrow Jones, heretofore sworn.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

~~Cross~~-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Jones, have you sometimes been known as Ben Jones? A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever tell Harry Bridges that you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. I don't believe I ever did, but I got up in a meeting one time when an individual who had pilfered some money was accussing Harry Bridges and the Communist Party of stealing the funds and I told them I was a member of the Communist Party, and such a statement on his part was a lie, and afterwards he was expelled and exposed as the guy who stole the dough. His name was Finson F. Cox. Bridges probably heard that then.

Q. Then your answer is you never told Mr. Bridges that you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. Not to my recollection. If it was, it was in the course, as a free-born American to another human being, a longshoreman, stating my political opinion. That is my business to do that.

Q. Would you say if Mr. Bridges had testified heretofore that [4226] you had told him that you were a member of the Communist Party that Mr. Bridges was mistaken?

A. I would say that possibly he was correct. I make no bones of my political affiliation at any time.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Mr. Donohue, and I have had discussions with half—ten, fifteen, twenty thousand maritime workers and I can't remember everything. If Bridges said that, he was correct.

Q. Thank you, Mr. Jones. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did I understand you correctly to say this morning that you first met John Schomaker late in 1933? A. That is absolutely correct.

Q. And at that time you knew that his wife Rosa was working for a steamship company?

A. No. At that time I met Schomaker he came down to the waterfront and said he had been employed in a veterans' hospital. I think he was a janitor or an orderly—orderly was the term that he used—and in the course of time, a very short time, a discussion—to be frank with you, the discussion was the tough time these girls have in offices. His wife told me that she was working or had worked in the Japanese Steamship office and told me some of the problems there that she had as an office worker in there.

Q. What is your best recollection of when this conversation took place? [4227]

A. I can't say the time, but it was not so long afterwards.

Q. Not so long after what?

A. After I first met John Schomaker.

Q. And when would you say you first met John Schomaker?

A. In the late fall of 1933.

Q. And shortly thereafter his wife told you she was or had been working for the steamship company?

A. That is right, and that through her contact with this guy she worked for, the word was passed along on the dock, the employing boss there, and that is how he got in, and the proof of it is he went to work down there, not steady, but on spec, and he got in there.

Q. You can't tell us now whether Mrs. Schomaker told you she was at that time working for the steamship company, can you?

A. Well, Mr. Donohue, the whole discussion was not around—the point was, she was explaining to me about office girls working in offices, and how sometimes they had difficulty with the bosses, the bosses wanting to take them out and like that.

Q. You can't tell now whether hers was a current difficulty or a past difficulty, can you?

A. Yes, sure.

Q. What was it? A. It had happened.

Q. It had happened?

A. Yes, she had had that trouble. At the present time she [4228] wasn't having it. At the time she told me she wasn't having it.

Q. Your best recollection is when you first met Mrs. Schomaker she was not then empolyed by anybody?

A. I couldn't say. They kept that very quiet. I couldn't say. It was kind of bad coming down on the waterfront, Mr. Donohue, and have persons working up in a steamship office get you a job, when there was 5,000 other longshoremen earning their livelihood down there, down there sweating them docks out for years, and you come down with a contact in the office and go in ahead of these other guys with families. You can't keep that quiet. They didn't tell me that because they were telling me the mechanics of it. It all came out of this other discussion about these girls working in offices and having difficulties with their employers maintaining, shall we say, their ethics.

Q. But you could be mistaken with respect to the fact that you first met Schomaker in the late fall of 1933?

A. That is absolutely correct, Mr. Donohue. He testified here that he met me in 1931 and, Mr. Donohue, that is not in accordance with the facts.

Q. Let met ask you this: Where were you working in 1931?

A. In 1931, Mr. Donohue, I was working, in the possibility of working in several places. One of them, I might have been on a job—I was a locomotive fireman there at one time, and when locomotive firemen were laid off, we were given other jobs. I think I worked in a bridge gang there, even flagged a crossing [4229] for a short time, this, that and the other.

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Jones——

A. And at one time I remember I went down here on a farm and helped thresh wheat, down around Half Moon Bay. I can't say definitely where I was then—around looking for work.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Jones, if in 1931 or 1932 you did not work for the Millbrae Dairies.

A. Yes, that is correct; for a short time, yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact that you lived at a ranch house on the Mills Estate? A. That is correct.

Q. And isn't it a fact that that ranch house is some two miles from the highway?

A. That is correct.

Q. And isn't it a fact that John Schomaker called on you at your home at that ranch house?

A. That is not correct. What happened, Mr. Donohue——

Q. Yes.

A. I was working down there for a short period of time. I got the job out of an organization called the "Rough and Ready." That is what the guys call it. The legal name was Murray and Ready. I went down there and worked on Gordon's this, that and the other. I was fed my board there, and in the course of working down there, I got a number of subscriptions for the Western Worker, Mr. Donohue. And John Schomaker came up [4230] there one time—I invited him to come up there—not invited him, but I sent word up to the publication of Western Worker, to get a guy up there to talk further about the Western Worker, and John came up there, and the night he came up I wasn't there. I never met him. I was in town, and when I came back they said the representative of the Western Worker was up there.

I said, "What did he look like?" They said, "Oh, he's a big tall guy."

And that is the nearest I ever came to meeting him.

Furthermore, in 1932, Mr. Donohue, I was in the hunger march to Sacramento. I left the San Francisco delegation. The delegation from Los Angeles—we had a delegation from Los Angeles—the Red Squad of the police tried to keep them from leaving Los Angeles, but this delegation from Frisco went down by the way of Redwood City, and I think we stopped there, and I never met him then. But later on he told me he had been the section organizer of that territory down there, and I said, "I don't know how in the hell I come to miss you all these times. I missed you the night you came to the Millbrae Estate. I was in that business and you were supposed to be down there at Redwood City when the hunger march came through and I never seen you. I don't know how I missed you."

Q. Isn't it a fact that you knew John Schomaker when you worked for the Southern Pacific Railroad?

A. I absolutely did not. The first time I met Schomaker was in the MWIU at 432 Market [4231] Street.

Q. You said this morning, Mr. Jones, that at one time you hired out from the fink hall. What is a fink hall?

A. Well, that is an expression, Mr. Donohue.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

that comes from 'way down; you go back. It comes from the people called the common people, Mr. Donohue. I think a man by the name of Abraham Lincoln had something to say about the—he used the term "common people," and some guy says, "What do you mean, common people? You mean the people whose flesh and blood are common?" Lincoln said, "No, I mean that part of America that is the common people. I call them common because there is so goddam many of them." The common people in the maritime industry, Mr. Donohue, have been persecuted for years because of what is known as clip joints and places like that, out of which they hire these seamen and keep them under their thumbs, more or less, and he won't squawk against evil conditions of the shipping industry. They were mainly built up because of the lack of joint action between the seamen and the longshoremen. I wasn't in industry at the time, but I did ship out on a U. S. Shipping Board ship. After the last war the Shipping Board—the United States Government set up what has been called the United States Shipping Board, and they had these offices called the Shipping Board offices, and gradually they got around, and that is when the name fink hall developed, because you could only go out as a strikebreaker when they first started, Mr. Donohue, or you couldn't [4232] go through and go to work. That is the historic record of "fink hall."

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. When did you ship on the Texan?

A. I shipped in San Francisco—I haven't got the discharge with me, but I think it was the fourth month of the year of 1934.

Q. We agree, I think, that the fourth month is April?

A. Yes, I will agree that the fourth month is April, but on this discharge it doesn't say April. It says "4," it has got a dash, then I think "1" or "2," and another dash, and then it has got "34." Some people call the first part the month and some call it the day. I think maybe it is the day or the month, I don't know.

Q. You are sure of one thing, and that is that you shipped out of San Francisco on the Texan in 1934?

A. Yes, sir, I shipped out on the Texan, out of the fink hall. I could have shipped out and made other trips a lot of times, because you know they told me what to do.

Q. I haven't any idea.

A. Mr. Donohue, I will tell you: When you go to register at the fink hall and you hand in your book, put a five- or ten-dollar bill in it and ask the shipping master or clerk who handles the book to hold that for you. That was the old trick; that was the old payoff. He never gave that back to you, and you went to work. And I tell you, Mr. Donohue, I [4235] am pretty sure that Scabby Bettencourt made a hell of a mistake when he let me get that job on the Texan. I saw him after '34 in the Market Street branch of the American Trust Company, he was flitting around there from one office to the other, he recognized me; he made a mistake, because that ship, we tied her up in the Port of New York, and one of our demands was for a flat, unconditional settlement of the Pacific Coast strike.

Q. When was it you got to New York, Mr. Jones, on the Texan? A. That is correct.

Q. When?

A. When? Well, we—after we sailed from here, we went around through the Panama Canal, up the south Atlantic coast of the United States, stopped at a little place called Norfolk. We were there about in—one afternoon, I think, Mr. Donohue. I went ashore there and referred to a newspaper. We hadn't even got anything about the '34 strike. I picked up a newspaper. I saw in the paper where the West Coast longshoremen had gone on strike.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to when your ship reached Norfolk?

A. I can't tell the date. Then we sailed from there up to Philadelphia, and when we got into Philadelphia there was a funny thing happened. As we were tying up the ship, a bunch of guys were on the docks, and all of a sudden they started [4234] to run, and a bunch of cops chasing them. And at that time—by that time I was the delegate, ship's delegate, and I thought that the strike was on in Philadelphia and that the guys were picketing out there. So, boy, as soon as we had that ship tied up, I barged down the gangway and asked, "Did the cops chase them pickets away or not?" And they said, "No, the guys was on the dock conducting a crap game, and the police came down and busted it up." And from Philadelphia we went to New York.

Q. The first intimation you had of the West Coast maritime strike was something you saw in the paper when your ship, the Texan, reached Norfolk? A. That is correct.

Q. You know when the '34 strike began, do you not?

A. I only know, not through personal recollection, because I was there on the ship.

Q. What is your best recollection from what you have read?

A. My recollection is from what I read in the paper, May 8 or 9.

Q. Then you would say that you got to Norfolk sometime in May? A. No.

Q. When did you get to Norfolk?

A. I won't say that at all. I will say that we was on this ship. She is one of the largest ships of the American-Hawaiian line. We proceeded down the west coast, Mr. Donohue, through [4235] the Panama Canal, and entered the port of Norfolk. We arrived there approximately two o'clock in the afternoon and left that night. We were sore because after that long voyage we never had a chance to go ashore.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. But you had a chance to read the newspaper? A. Yes, surely.

Q. You saw that there was——

A. I saw another worker reading a newspaper as I walked up through the Negro section of Norfolk.

Q. After you arrived on that ship in Norfolk you saw that there was a maritime strike in San Francisco? A. I won't say yes or no.

Q. You did read it in the paper?

A. I read it in the paper, yes.

Q. From your experience at sea and from your description of the ship that you went from the west coast of San Francisco to Norfolk on, how long did it take you to get from San Francisco to Norfolk?

A. Well, let me see. A railroad in those days, I think, used to guarantee a boxcar shipment across the country in over—I don't know; the ships beat them, anyhow. We used to make the run—of course, the Texan, I think, was a twin screw ship; I think it used to normally make the run from Pedro to Balboa, the western entrance of the Panama Canal, in about—I don't know—about twelve days, up and down, and it was [4236] one day going through the Canal, and then from the Canal up to New York it is a shorter run; about eight days, I think. That is the best of my recollection.

Q. Then would you say that you left San Francisco on the Texan not more than thirty days before some date after the West Coast 1934 strike began?

A. I will say this, Mr. Donohue: I signed on that ship, as I said, and the record is on file. We left Frisco, and we didn't go to Norfolk; we made what they call the loop. I think we did. I think we went up to the northwest, picked up lumber like that. That was the loop.

Q. How many days were you——

A. I am pretty sure of that, because I know we worked on the deck, and the longshoremen had a big pile of dunnage on the deck, and then we went out on the deck after supper and throwed the dunnage overboard, and spent two or three hours at that. And while we were throwing the dunnage overboard somebody said not to go overboard with it. We got done throwing the dunnage overboard and it was then time to stand watch. When you got through work in those days you met yourself coming back.

Q. Can you tell us how long it took you from San Francisco to the time you reached Norfolk when you read in the paper about the West Coast strike?

A. I would say according to the other ships making the run, [4237] it would have been about —I think the steamship companies, Mr. Donohue, guaranteed a shipment from one coast to the other in 18 or 20 days. I am not sure of that. I have been more or less trying to make a living in the other work I have been doing.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Let's say it was 30 days.

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Let's say it was as long as 30 days. Can you not now tell us when it was you left San Francisco on the Texan?

A. No, I can't. You would have to go down to the custom house and get the record.

Q. It wasn't more than 30 days prior to the time you reached Norfolk?

A. I will say, Mr. Donohue, get the record, go down to the custom house and get it; I don't know.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Jones: Before you sailed on the Texan out of San Francisco, what did you do?

A. I was around looking for work.

Q. How long were you around looking for work?

A. Ever since I have been here, but I wasn't having too much luck after a certain thing happened. You know what happened, Mr. Donohue? I went to work and I worked and I made a day at the Matson, I think I worked on the Harvard or the Yale. A guy, I think his name was Haskell, they called him Old Camera Eye; he used to stand up there and point, "You," "You," [4238] "You," I went to work for a day. The next time the ship came in a policeman stood up there, and I saw him. He said, "Don't hire that guy." That's right; I was blackballed all over.

Q. When had you last left San Francisco prior to the time you sailed on the Texan?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. What do you mean, up to the—"left"? What do you mean, "left San Francisco"?

Q. When had you last been away from San Francisco prior to the time you left San Francisco to sail on the Texan?

A. Well, I was up—I couldn't answer that definitely, Mr. Donohue. I was looking for work. Another longshoreman and I by the name of Hans, we went up on a farm up near San Rafael and stowed bales of hay in a loft up there. We was up there about a week, I couldn't say distinctly.

Q. You can't tell us, then, on what ship you had sailed prior to the time you had sailed on the Texan, if you did sail? A. Oh, yes.

Q. When? A. That was the Kansan.

Q. When did you sail on the Kansan?

A. I was a fireman on the Kansan, but I don't know—along in the late—late 20's.

Q. And then after the late 20's when you had sailed on the Kansan until the time you left San Francisco on the Texan—— A. Yes. [4239]

Q. ——did you continuously reside in the San Francisco Bay area?

A. After I left on the Kansan?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I lived home for a while, I think. I think; I am not sure.

Q. Where do you call home?

A. Baltimore, Maryland.

Q. When did you come back from Baltimore?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. I came back from Baltimore when I was called back to work on the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Q. That was when?

A. I think that was in '29.

Q. Then from '29 until you sailed in '34 on the Texan you lived in the Bay area?

A. That is right, yes, in or around here.

Q. Now, do you recall when it was you were served with a subpoena to appear before the Grand Jury?

A. Yes, it was about—after work, yes, about five o'clock.

Q. Do you recall in what month?

A. I think it was in May.

Q. And I think you testified this morning that after you received the Grand Jury subpoena, you and Slim Melin——

A. Carlton Melin, yes.

Q. Carlton Melin, sometimes called "Slim"?

A. Yes.

Q. ——went down to Menlo Park and talked to John and Mrs. Schomaker? A. Yes.

Q. I think you testified this morning that at some time after you received the subpoena you consulted with members of the Bridges Defense Committee?

A. Yes, yes, that's right. I was in contact with local representatives of the Defense Committee, Mr. Donohue, because of—that was the dope; that was my position.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. What do you mean, "that was the dope," Mr. Jones?

A. Was that I wasn't going to have your Gestapo hounding me on this, that and the other, and they said—I asked the lawyers about it; I knew that this was a frame-up. So I asked them what to say. They said, "Whenever they stop you, you tell them that if they want to discuss anything about the Bridges case or like that, to do it in the presence of a lawyer, and tell them that I am your lawyer." That's right.

Q. Did you get the dope before or after you consulted with the Bridges Defense Committee?

A. Well, I tell you, Mr. Donohue, that has been the dope for a long number of years in the trade union movement. There has been all kinds of frame-ups around here—Tom Mooney, Modesto, King, Ramsey and Connor,—those are some of the most prominent. There has been all kinds of other frame-ups, attempted [4241] frame-ups and like that, and it has been time and time again published in the trade union press, Mr. Donohue—the AFL and the CIO press—that in any kind of game like this, every trade union man, his duty is to go to the union attorneys. That's right. That is what I mean by getting the dope, is an impression on my mind for years.

Q. Now, may I ask you again, Mr. Jones, had you consulted with the defense counsel for Mr.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Bridges before or after you went to see Mr. Schomaker for the first time?

A. I didn't get the drift of your point there.

Q. Let me ask you this: You remember getting the Grand Jury subpoena? A. That's right.

Q. You remember that you went down to Menlo Park with Mr. Melin? A. Yes.

Q. And talked to John and Roza Schomaker?

A. Yes.

Q. Which came first, the subpoena or the visit to Menlo Park?

A. Well, the thing that came first was my visit to the Defense Committee. A representative, one of the agents of yours, McGowan, first contacted me. He contacted me before I got the——

Q. Subpoena? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. When did he contact you? [4242]

A. I guess it was about a month before that.

Q. You then went to the Bridges Defense Committee?

A. I went to the local union legal representatives, that's right.

Q. Whom did you consult with?

A. George Andersen.

Q. Now, again, after you received your Grand Jury subpoena did you go and see George Andersen before or after you went down to Menlo Park and talked to John Schomaker?

A. I am pretty sure that I saw John Schomaker first. I am positively sure I did.

Q. And isn't it also a fact that after you and

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Mr. Melin went down and talked to John and Mrs. Schomaker, that you then went back to Mr. Andersen and made a report?

A. No, that isn't so.

Q. Then how do you account for the fact that the following day, or the second day, as you testified this morning, you went back again with George Andersen to see Mr. and Mrs. Schomaker?

A. Well, I tell you——

Q. I wish you would.

A. I will tell you, Cappy, how it come about. I went down to see John Schomaker with Carlton Melin, and on the way back I stopped off at the Bjorne Halling's house, and he arranged a meeting, and at that meeting George Andersen was there, and the meeting was held at 150 Golden Gate Avenue at approximately [4243] a little bit after noon, I think it was.

Q. Tell me, who was at that meeting?

A. Oh, I can remember some of the guys.

Q. Tell me.

A. George Andersen, Melin, myself and Bridges, and I don't know whether Robertson and Schmidt was there or not.

Q. Was it at that meeting at 150 Golden Gate Avenue that you arranged then to go down this day to see Mr. Schomaker?

A. Yes, that's right, yes. Yes, George says to me, "I was down to see him yesterday, but he wasn't there." I says, "After he left me he said he was going over to see his father-in-law. I don't think he went there. I think he went to see Mervyn Rathborne."

Q. After you had gone down to see Mr. Schomaker with Slim Melin and you reported that fact to George—and by "George" I assume you mean George Andersen? A. Yes.

Q. George Andersen told you that he had already been down to see John Schomaker and he wasn't home? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Was it at that meeting that you then decided to pay the second visit to John Schomaker's home?

A. Yes, that's right. George says he had missed him the other day, and I says, "Well, we will go down and try it now if you want." He says, "Yes."

Q. Did you go on the day of the meeting?

A. Yes, that's right; we left right there.

Q. By what means of transportation?

A. Automobile.

Q. Whose automobile?

A. Carlton Melin's.

Q. And who went?

A. Oh, George Andersen, oh, myself, Melin, and Charles Lambert.

Q. Now, at any time up to this moment that you are now discussing had George Andersen told you that he and Mr. Herbert Resner of the firm of Gladstein, Resner, Andersen & Sawyer, and Mr. Morris Watson, the ILWU dispatcher, had gone down to Half Moon Bay and talked to Mr. Rathborne? A. Did he tell me that?

Q. Yes.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. I think it was in the newspapers at that time, I think it was, that George had been down to see Rathborne, but I don't remember him saying anything like that to me.

Q. You don't remember him telling you that fact? A. No.

Q. But you do know as a matter of fact that before you left San Francisco to go down to Menlo Park to talk to John Schomaker, that George Andersen, Herbert Resner and Morris Watson had gone down to Half Moon Bay and talked to Mervyn [4245] Rathborne?

A. I don't know that. The only thing I know, George Andersen said that he had been down to see Schomaker and he probably got there an hour after I left.

Q. Didn't you just tell me you read it in the paper?

A. I said probably I had seen in the newspaper that George had been down to see Rathborne.

Q. Then you knew it when you left here with Andersen?

A. I don't know nothing of what I read in the papers. They had some stuff in about me that wasn't true.

Q. You mean you read in the papers that—

A. Just a minute. I read in the papers that George Andersen had been down. It didn't say a damn thing about Resner or Watson or anybody else; it said George Andersen. They were trying to whip up a campaign for intimidation against George.

Q. You don't know as a matter of fact that Resner and Watson did go down there?

A. I don't know it, no.

Q. You don't? A. I don't know it, no.

Mr. Donohue: May we take a recess at this time?

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition not to discuss the case or form or express an opinion.

(Recess.) [4246]

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, Your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Jones, when did you go down to the Gulf?

A. I left here, Mr. Donohue, I think it was along in June, July or August for New York.

Q. Of what year? A. '37.

Q. Who went with you?

A. I went by myself.

Q. Did you meet Mervyn Rathborne down there?

A. No, not in the Gulf, no. I may have met him in New York. I don't know. I don't remember whether he was there or not.

Q. Did you meet Bjorne Halling down there?

A. No.

Q. Did you meet the defendant J. R. Robertson down there? A. No.

Q. Didn't you go down to the Gulf with the men

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

I have just mentioned to raid the A. F. of L. union down there? A. To do what?

Q. To raid it. A. Raid it?

Q. Yes.

A. I was the first guy to go back there, Mr. Donohue, and after I got back there I seen such an underground revolt was going [4247] on that I called for help. And then I think Bob Robertson and Paul Heide and I think Burton Nelson, they went into the Gulf, and I think Bjorne Halling came in to New York, and the question was not to raid the Gulf, Mr. Donohue. The question was, as I said before—that is a long story, you bringing that question of raiding the Gulf, raiding the A. F. of L.

Q. Didn't you testify this morning that there was a dispute between Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schomaker on the question of organizing the waterfronts on the East and the Gulf Coasts?

A. No, no, there was no dispute. Our union voted for it, this, that and the other. Schomaker never said a damn word against it and after it was all over, that was one of the points I brought out here, where he was degenerate morally. Instead of looking on that as a drive to better the conditions and bring unionization and a democratic union to the negroes and the white workers of the South—and I want to tell you, Mr. Donohue, and this Court, up until this Labor Board election, that was the first secret ballot the negroes and whites ever had as citizens of the United States. His reaction to that was, instead of trying to uplift the human beings and to build a mighty labor union, his reaction was that that was a demonstration of Bridges' fatheadedness. That is what I said.

Q. Were there no unions on the East Coast or the Gulf Coast for the——

A. That is correct, there were. [4248]

Q. Isn't it a fact that you went there to raid those unions and not to organize the workers?

A. That is not correct. That is not correct. The kind of union they had there in New York and like that, it is a gangster's union.

Q. Mr. Ryan was the head of the union, was he?

A. He is the head of the union, had himself elected for life. He was also a member of the State Board of Pardons, so I am told, of the State of New York. He had gangsters paroled out of Sing Sing prison and put on the docks to spy and beat up the rank and file. In fact, there were men murdered back there in the ranks of the longshoremen. Pete Panto was murdered. What about you investigating some of that, Mr. Donohue? Dewey started it. That is how Dewey got his publicity. But when he got elected into office, he dropped it. He used that as a publicity point to get the people behind him because he started to buck it up. That is it.

Q. Mr. Jones, then there was a union on the East Coast and the Gulf Coast, wasn't there?

A. There was an organization dominated by racketeers that no rank and filer ever admitted was a union. The majority of the locals in the Gulf were locals where the rank and file went out on strike and Joseph B. Ryan turned around and chartered scab locals. That is right. What we was doing was helping the rank and file in those locals to get control of those locals and fight [4249] for the six hour day, the union hiring hall, decent working conditions, a uniform sling load and democracy in the union. That was it. And Joseph B. Ryan was busy—you want to talk about raiding—he was busy out here. The Teamsters wanted this, the Jitney Drivers wanted the other, and I guess Brother Bridges will tell you something about the raiding here.

Q. Then you deny you went there to raid those unions?

A. That is correct, in the sense of the word as you use it.

Q. Now, Mr. Jones, what did you do with the subpoenas served upon you to appear before the grand jury?

A. I went up and saw Carlton Melin.

Q. And then what did you do?

A. Went down and saw John Schomaker.

Q. There came a time when you took that subpoena to a lawyer? A. Yes.

Q. To whom did you take it?

A. I think I showed it to George Andersen at that meeting I previously mentioned to you at 150 Golden Gate.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Did you ever come here to the courthouse in response to that subpoena? A. I sure did.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the law firm of Gladstein, Resner, Andersen & Sawyer filed a motion in this court to quash the service of that subpoena upon you?

A. I don't know. I don't remember the details. I am not a [4250] lawyer, Mr. Donohue. All I know is I was up here. Nobody asked me any questions. They had us in that room there. Nobody asked us any questions at all. I was up here.

Q. You were told Frank Slaby was under subpoena, weren't you? A. He was there, yes.

Q. And you were told that when Frank Slaby went before the grand jury he refused to answer questions even as to what his name was, weren't you? A. I don't think that.

Q. You were not told that?

A. No, I don't remember being told that. I think I was told he did answer his name or something like that. I don't know.

Q. Were you told that Mr. Schneidermann would not answer any questions before the grand jury? A. No.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, we were prevented from inquiring even as to the names of some of the people that Mr. Donohue's witnesses encountered in the grand jury room, so I think as this witness has already testified what anybody did in the grand jury room, this inquiry is beyond the realms of proper cross-examination.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Mr. Donohue: I shall not pursue it further, if Your Honor please.

Q. Referring now to the second visit you made to John Schomaker's home with Mr. George Andersen, Mr. Melin and the name [4251] of the third person who accompanied you was what?

A. Charles Lampert.

Q. Charles Lampert? A. That is right.

Q. What time did you get to Schomaker's home?

A. I would say it was in the mid-afternoon, Mr. Donohue.

Q. Did you go inside the house?

A. Not at first, no.

Q. Later? A. Yes.

Q. Was this the occasion on which Mr. Schomaker served you with pie and coffee?

A. Yes, that is true. It is customary to do that. If anybody comes to my house, I feel insulted—I tell you that—and I just had another invitation, Mr. Donohue, to come down and see her a couple of days ago.

Q. Did you accept it?

A. No, I didn't, because at that time her husband hadn't said a damn lie here in court about it.

Q. You went the other two times without invitation, didn't you?

A. Yes, without invitation the other two times, yes. It was a common understanding when I was in that area, I would go see them, and when they were down there, they would come and see me—when they were up in my area.

Q. You knew when you went there Mr. Schomaker had already [4252] testified before the grand jury?

A. When I went there the second time?

Q. Yes. A. That is correct.

Q. Didn't you go there for the purpose of trying to find out what he had said? A. No, no.

Q. Let me ask you this: At this meeting at Mr. Schomaker's home, did you not hear George Andersen say to Mr. Schomaker, "The reason we are here is to ask you to tell us what transpired before the grand jury."?

A. I can't recall whether I did that or not, Mr. Donohue.

Q. And didn't you hear John Schomaker reply, "Well, I can't divulge what happened there"? Did that happen?

A. I may have heard him and I may not have. He would have been hypocritical if he did; either that or he would have been lying the previous time because he sat down and told me what happened or what was supposed to have happened. He never said that to me the first time.

Q. I will ask you if it is not a fact that George Andersen said, "That is true, but will you answer one question: Did you say to the grand jury whether or not Harry Bridges was a Communist"? Did you hear George Andersen ask you that question? A. I think I did, yes.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. And did you hear John Schomaker make this reply: [4253]

> "Well, I told them the truth. I said you can ask Melin or Ben the same question and they will answer the same way I answer it."

Did you hear him make that reply?

A. If I remember correctly on that, Schomaker told George Andersen that he had not told the grand jury whether Bridges was a Communist or not, or he told him he was not. I think that is it. I am not sure.

Q. Then you deny that John Schomaker just made the statement I just read to you?

A. I didn't deny it, no.

Q. Did he make that statement?

A. I don't say he did, I don't say he didn't.

Q. Let me ask you this, if it is not a fact——

A. I am not sure the other one is a fact, Mr. Donohue.

Q. Didn't John Schomaker then turn to each of the three of you, Melin, the man we have called Lampert——

A. I don't call him that. That is what he calls himself.

Q. ——and yourself—— A. Yes.

Q. ——and ask each one of you in turn did you know the answer to that one, and didn't each one of you say, "Yes," including you?

A. No, that wasn't said, no, no.

Q. And isn't it a fact that John Schomaker then turned to you and said, "You signed him up"?

A. You are a liar for saying Schomaker said that.

Q. I didn't ask you that.

A. It isn't a fact.

Q. I asked you if he made that statement.

A. It isn't a fact. At no time at these previous meetings I went down with Schomaker did Schomaker tell me in the presence of these other people anything about signing Bridges up, and it struck me very sharply when it came out in the newspapers that he said that.

Q. And isn't it a further fact that you said, "The s.o.b. was hard to get dues out of"?

A. You are a liar for saying that here, and I never said that. You are a liar, Donohue, and Schomaker is, too.

Mr. Donohue: That is all. No further questions.

The Witness: You got that, Donohue? You are a liar and Schomaker is, too, and anybody is that ever said I signed Bridges up.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. Jones, after you read Schomaker's statement in the paper of what he was supposed to have said, that you had made these statements, did you publish some sort of handbill to distribute to your friends on the waterfront denying these things, denying you had anything to do with signing Bridges up as a Communist?

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. The chairman of the Defense Committee of Local 10 asked me [4255] if I wanted to make a statement and I says, "Yes." So after the union meeting that night, on a Wednesday night, we went and explained the thing. He put it on the waterfront. There was either a typographical error in it or else he misconstrued some of the things I said. I wanted to make that statement. I am familiar with it. I couldn't crash the court and get in here. I wanted to deny it before all the maritime workers and everybody else in the State of California, that Schomaker is a liar. That kind of put the finger on me for being a stool pigeon when he brought that out, and that was the whole conspiracy and the plot of the Department of Immigration when they think that. They were going to dynamite—have Schomaker come out with that idea, and they were going to dynamite, intimidate and scare Jones, scare him with the Gestapo or try to buy him off, like your agent Max Alexander asked me. He said, "We'll take care of you." That is your conspiracy and plot, to come out in the newspaper with that stuff and try to get me boxed in with your Gestapo and go along with what Schomaker said.

Mr. Hallinan: Would you show him that document?

(Document handed to witness.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Do you recognize that document, Mr. Jones?

A. This is the letter I received from Mr. Schomaker, and that was last Friday night.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Was it enclosed in the envelope you are shown here? [4256] A. That is correct.

Q. Is that Schomaker's address on the back of the envelope?

A. Yes, 698—yes, I think that is it—I think it is 698 or 697.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer it in evidence, if the Court please, as Defendant's exhibit next in order.

Mr. Donohue: No objection.

Mr. Hallinan: I have a photostat copy I would like to substitute for it, if the Court please.

The Court: The objection is overruled. It may be received.

Mr. Hallinan: There is no objection.

The Court: I thought I heard an objection.

Mr. Donohue: I offered no objection.

(Letter and envelope referred to were thereupon received in evidence and marked Defendant's Exhibit 1-N-1.)

Mr. Hallinan: This is a letter addressed to Mr. Bruce B. Jones, Box 365, Sausalito, California, with the postmark "Menlo Park, California, January 17, 9 a.m., 1950." On the back "698 Menlo Oaks Drive, Menlo Park, California."

The letter reads:

> "Menlo Park. Hello, Ben. How have you been? Since you have lots of time on your hands, how about dropping down? There is plenty we can talk about. As ever, Roza."

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

Q. Now, you said in answer to a question of Mr. Donohue, you are a free-born American citizen Were you born in this [4257] country, Mr. Jones?

A. That is right, in Maryland.

Q. How many generations?

A. My mother and my father were born here. My grandfather fought in the Grand Army of the Potomac. I have all his records written on the battlefield around Richmond. And his people were here—in fact, he emigrated into Maryland from the State of Pennsylvania at the time of the Civil War. He first joined the Pennsylvania Volunteers, and as far back as I know, in the records of the family, they have been in the United States for many years.

Q. He fought in the Union Army of the Civil War?

A. The Grand Army of the Potomac, that is right. Members of my family have been in the American army in every war this country had.

Q. You tried to enlist in the last war, did you?

A. I did. When the war started, I went down to the United States Navy and I signed an application, took a physical examination, and they told me they would let me know if I was accepted or not. I waited quite a bit of time, and finally I received a document signed by an officer in the Navy that said my application was denied. And I took that application and I put it in the safe deposit box, and my understanding of the rules of the United States Navy is that any time you apply for service in the armed forces during the war that they can [4258] turn you down without stating a reason, but after the war is over, I understand that they have to give you the reason, and I've got that in a box in a bank, and I am keeping it. And when the United States is officially declared at peace, or when this last war is finally declared over, I think I am going to try to find out who it was that denied me my constitutional rights to defend this country against aggression.

Q. Mr. Donohue asked you if you are sometimes known as Ben Jones, and you said yes.

A. That is correct.

Q. Why do you use the name Ben?

A. Well, it is a kind of an easy name.

Q. You think Bruce is a little fancy?

A. It is a little bit around some of these gang bosses that haven't had a hell of a lot of education to write, this, that and the other. We got guys that are prizefighters. We have strong arm Louie, Pour-it-on Such-and-such, we have all kinds of funny names down there. I like the name of Ben. It is an easy name.

Q. You said something to Mr. Donohue in answer to some questions of this about murderers and gangsters in the unions on the East Coast.

A. That is right.

Q. Will you tell us a little more what you mean by that? A. Well, that's a long story. [4259]

Q. We will listen.

(Testimony of Bruce B. Jones.)

A. You see, the way it works in New York is—and even some of the big shipping companies are trying to stop it and they couldn't get anywheres with it—there is a tax called a loading tax put on all the cargo coming off a truck going onto a dock or from the dock onto a truck. There is an extra charge that the shipper has to pay, and the official name of this—well, the unofficial name of this is called a loading racket. The guys that do this work belong to Ryan's union, the ILA. Here the Teamsters do it. But these guys in New York belong to Ryan's union definitely, a local of the ILA. It is all on paper. And these are the guys that are paroled out of Sing Sing, hoodlums, this, that and the other—strong arm boys. Lots of times they don't even touch it. They get somebody else to do it and they pay him a little bit for it. But they stand around at all times on the dock in case somebody squawks about too many things on a load or some guy comes out on the dock known as a militant trade unionist, they beat him up, this, that and the other.

Q. Who is Pete Pantos?

A. Pete Pantos is a guy that lived in Brooklyn, a longshoreman there. He was the leader of the rank and file movement in Brooklyn. He was murdered by this outfit called Murder, Inc. And Dewey, when he got started, he was just a small time guy. He got started. He was district attorney there or something [4260] like that. And he built up a big name for himself by exposing these rackets around there. There was some rackets among the poultry producers. When the trucks came in with the chickens from upstate New York, they had to pay a fee to get over the bridge. He exposed a lot of them. And all the rank and filers, the guys that worked for a living around there, was hoping to get Dewey to expose this loading racket.

And there is another guy down in New [4261] Orleans.

I hear a lot about aliens, but the guy that broke Halling's jaw down there with a club, he was an alien, Mr. Barber and Mr. Donohue. He was in a gang that ran over there from Mexico, ran around with clubs and beat up people. I don't know whether he was the guy that attacked Bob Robertson and crippled his back or not, but I was told that. Why don't you investigate some people like that?

Q. Mr. Jones, let me ask you this: You said that the unions on the East Coast and the Gulf were undemocratic unions; they are controlled by bosses and gangsters. By that do you mean that the rank and file did not get an opportunity to vote for the reelection of officers, and so forth?

A. That is right, and the first thing is anybody can join Ryan's local when you go around there. They don't care whether you work or not. Give them the dough and he gives you a book. Most of the officers are in an office I would say about 25 per cent as big as this courtroom, but they have thousands of men there that pay dues in there. They never have meetings.

A democratic local is a local like ours, where we have microphones all over the floor and we have a chairman up there, and a man is entitled to speak on the subject that is on the floor, and to express any opinion he wants. That is what I mean by a democratic local. They haven't got that in New York. [4262]

Another thing he uses in the Gulf is two separate locals, one for the Negroes and one for the whites. They have that in Baltimore, too. [4262-A]

Q. What is the rule out here?

A. Every man who works in the industry belongs to one local.

Q. What about the——

A. There is no Jim Crow. In the Gulf there is Jim Crow locals like that. He forced them into Jim Crow locals. When the whites get ready to strike the Ryans just go over and say this, that and the other, they use one against each other, it makes it difficult for everybody in two different locals to go together in unison. The shipowners benefit from it.

Q. In San Francisco and on the West Coast in the organizations of which Harry Bridges is president, are those democratic unions?

A. They are.

Q. How do you mean? Tell us what you mean by that.

A. Well, we have all kinds of committees—grievance committee, all kinds of committees in the union. The rank and file is participating in the functioning of the organization, deck and gang stewards, welfare, safety committees and executive boards and all various kinds of committees.

Then we have this local meeting once a week, and every man has a full right before any of these committees. For instance, if he has violated a rule or something, he goes before the grievance committee and gets a hearing. If he is found guilty by the grievance committee, then he may appeal such ruling to the executive board. In the meantime, whatever [4263] the reprimand was is held in abeyance. Then if it happens that the executive committee, they still hold against him, then it is still held in abeyance until it goes to the general membership. There it is read before the membership, and at the general membership the final action is taken, and at which time he has a full right to get up and explain in detail his rights. Then we have elections. All of the officers are elected by secret ballot. Every major issue that we have before us is generally put to a secret ballot. If it wasn't put to a secret ballot, it is only because the rank and file didn't want the secret ballot. That is the trouble around here. Everybody gives Bridges credit for doing a lot of things, when the truth of the matter is, any major thing that is ever done that I have knowed about, it was brought before the local and they told him to do it. That's right. There is other people down on the waterfront. Bridges is a great guy and I am for him. There is other people down on the goddam waterfront there, a lot of Jim Higginses and honest men of the rank and file. That's right. That is what I mean by a democratic organization.

Q. How long are the officers elected for?

A. The officers in the local are elected for one year. They can run to succeed themselves, but after two years they have to return to the industry and work a year.

Q. In other words, an officer cannot remain in office after [4264] he has served two years?

A. Without going back to industry and working one year.

Another point is this democratic action. As I see it, the whole crux of the situation is the joint action of the seamen and longshoremen together, all the maritime workers. That is industry unionism. That is what Bridges stands for, and that is the reason why they are out to get him, because he stands for unity, and they are against that unity, and they raise all kinds of hollers and everything to try to get Bridges.

Q. Do you think they are trying to get Bridges or to get the union?

A. They are trying to get Bridges and the union both together at the same time. They are trying to get the union. They are raising this smoke screen against Harry Bridges, that's it. They are not concerned with Bridges as an individual any more than Donohue is concerned with me or Barber when his agent asked me—told me that they would take care of me. You are out to smash the union, and the proof of it is, Barber and Donohue, is the lies Schomaker told up here about me signing Harry Bridges up into the Party.

Q. If there are enough like you in the union, Mr. B. B. Jones, I think anybody will have a hard time smashing the union.

A. Well, I got a point on that, Mr. Hallinan. I expect [4265] after this thing is over I will have to go around with a tin hat, because last night I was coming out Market Street and a cop stopped me and started to argue. He says, "You are B. B. Jones; don't you know me?" And then I says, "Who are you? I don't know you." "I used to be in the Red squad," he says, "don't you remember me?" He said, "I was on the Red squad on the strike in '37."

I said, "What strike are you breaking now?" That is the point we are up against.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: We have no further witnesses until tomorrow.

The Court: We will take the afternoon adjournment, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions and not to converse with any person on any subject of the trial, nor to form or express an opinion thereon until the matter is finally submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Wednesday, January 23, 1950, at 10:00 [4266] a.m.)

Wednesday, January 25, 1950—10:00 A. M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. Hallinan: We had a subpoena served on a Mr. J-for-John Everett Houser. Might he be called? Is he available?

J. EVERETT HOUSER

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please.

The Witness: J. Everett Houser, H-o-u-s-e-r.

The Clerk: J. Everett Houser?

The Witness: Right.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. Houser, where do you reside?

A. 814 Security Building, Long Beach, California.

Q. And then do you live in that vicinity also?

A. Yes, sir, at 3945 Myrtle Avenue, also in Long Beach.

Q. How long have you lived in Long Beach?

A. Since 1922.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Q. Continuously?

A. No, sir, for three years during the last war I lived in San Francisco.

Q. And at what address? [4267]

A. 637-37th Avenue, I believe it was.

Q. Now, you are an attorney at law, are you not, Mr. Houser? A. That is correct.

Q. You have been practicing continuously except for that period for some considerable time, is that correct? A. Since 1929.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Houser?

A. In Iowa.

Q. And came to California when?

A. 1920.

Q. And you were admitted to practice in California in 1929? A. That is correct.

Q. And then you practiced continuously until what year when you came up to San Francisco?

A. 1942.

Q. 1942. Were you a member of a firm, or did you practice individually by yourself?

A. I have always been in partnership.

Q. With whom?

A. My partners have varied, but I have always had my father with me. At one time I also had my brother associated. At present I have a third party.

Q. The name of the firm has been Houser & Houser for a long time, is that right?

A. No, sir. It was in that form for a period of about five [4268] years.

Q. I see. Well, now, when you started practicing law in 1929 where was your office then?

A. In the Security Building.

Q. Had your father been a lawyer before that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had he an office in that building prior to that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for how long, do you know, prior to that? A. Since it was built in 1925.

Q. And then in 1929 you opened offices with your father or you joined your father's firm and remained there until 1942 when you came to San Francisco? A. That is correct.

Q. Are you a married man, Mr. Houser?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have children? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is your name in the telephone book? It sounds rather silly to ask this, but it is a necessary thing. Has your name been in the telephone book continuously during that time in Long Beach?

A. Yes, sir. It may have been omitted during those war years I spoke of.

Q. You have been, of course, continuously registered with the [4269] State Bar of California as a practicing attorney?

A. Yes, active status during the entire time.

Q. Paid dues each year and had the certificate of permission to practice issued to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you came to San Francisco in 1942

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

you were employed then as an attorney, I take it, by the Immigration Department, is that right?

A. No, sir, that isn't classed as an attorney; that is classed as a naturalization examiner.

Q. And then you held that position for three years, leaving, I take it, in 1945, is that correct?

A. Yes, July 1.

Q. And then you returned to Long Beach and resumed your practice there? A. Right.

Q. And have been there continuously ever since?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. From the time that you left the Immigration Department in 1945 up to the present time have you been in touch with any members or officers of the Immigration Service? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when? How many times since then?

A. I presume you mean in relation to this case?

Q. No, prior to this case. [4270]

A. Well, yes, I conducted a naturalization for one of my children.

Q. When was that? A. In 1947 or '8.

Q. And in that connection did you meet some of the officials of the Immigration Department?

A. Some that I hadn't known before, yes, sir.

Q. And any that you had known before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you been acquainted with some of the staff in the Los Angeles area, or in the San Francisco area—which?

A. I foun in dealing with the Los Angeles

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

office that one of the San Francisco men had been transferred there.

Q. Who was that?

A. Mr. Lloyd Garner. I renewed acquaintances with him.

Q. That was in 1947?

A. I believe so, '47 or '48. I have also had other contacts. You speak of other contacts. Two of the men in San Francisco have seen me from time to time just as a friendly visit.

Q. Who are they?

A. Mr. Antonelli and Mr. Bonsall. Mr. Stiller, too, I met last fall at a football game.

Q. Do you know Mr. William Kaiser?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or Mr. Kesler? [4271] A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know Mr. Kidder?

A. No, sir, I don't recognize those names.

Q. Do you know Mr. John Boyd?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never met him?

A. I don't believe so. I don't remember the name.

Q. Do you know Mr. Bruce Barber?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recognize his name either?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, since the inception of this case have you talked to any of the officers or employees of the Immigration Department, agents?

A. I will have to ask when the inception was.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Q. The trial started on the 14th of November 1949; that is last November.

A. Yes, sir, I think it was after that date that I was visited by a member of the Immigration Service from the Los Angeles office.

Q. What was his name?

A. I don't remember. He showed me his identification, but I didn't make any note of it.

Q. Had you met him before? A. No.

Q. In relation to what particular matter did he interview you?

A. He wanted to know what I could recall about a civil action which our firm had filed against Harry Bridges in 1937 for the collection of damages on account of the death of a boy who had been killed by a car driven by Mr. Bridges.

Q. He wanted to know what you knew about the matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he discuss with you then the pendency of this present case?

A. Only to mention that it was pending.

Q. Had you seen the papers and known from your own information obtained aside from anything he said that such a case was on file?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the case had yet proceeded to trial at the time this man called on you? A. I don't think so.

Q. About how long prior to the time it proceeded to trial did he call on you?

A. May I ask when it did proceed to trial?

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Q. The 14th of November, 1949.

A. Well, that must have been just about the time he called on me.

Q. Did anyone from the Immigration Service call on you after that? [4273]

A. No, sir, the next call I had was from you.

Q. And then when I called upon you, that was in the Christmas vacation, the last Christmas vacation? A. It was a telephone call.

Q. Oh, there was a telephone call first?

A. Yes, from a person who gave your name.

Q. Yes. What was the inquiry on that matter, do you know?

A. Yes, the substance of the conversation was did I know that my name had been mentioned as the preliminary examiner for a man by the name of Schrimpf, and could I recall the man. And I told him I certainly could not. And then the question was asked as to what inquiry was made at that time as to Communistic tendencies of an applicant for naturalization. And I told you at that time on the phone. I am speaking now of the telephone conversation.

Q. Then after the telephone conversation did somebody representing me call upon you?

A. No, you called yourself.

Q. Didn't some attorney from Long Beach call upon you the day after you had the phone conversation? A. No, sir.

Q. It was not I who phoned you but someone phoning at my direction. A. I am sorry.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Q. How long was that prior to my visit to you, do you remember? [4274]

A. Yes, that was about a month.

Q. About a month before. And then I called on you during the Christmas vacation at your office in the Security Building? A. Yes.

Q. And asked you pretty much the same matter, is that correct?

A. There were some additional things discussed.

Q. They related to the examination of Schrimpf, is that right?

A. And the practice of the Naturalization Department.

Q. And whether or not you had been consulted by the immigration authorities prior to that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told me that a man had been over to see you from the Los Angeles office on this matter about a month before? A. That is correct.

Q. Since that time, since my visit to you, have you had any contact with the Immigration Service?

A. No, sir.

Q. And nobody called upon you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or talked to you? A. No, sir.

Q. Since your arrival in San Francisco in response to this subpoena, have you talked to any of the officers or attorneys for the Immigration Department? A. No, sir. [4275]

Q. Did you notify them that you had been subpoenaed? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Q. You were the examining officer for a man named Henry Schrimpf, according to such records as we have here. Do you remember Schrimpf personally at all?

A. No, I do not. That has been eight years ago.

Q. I want to show you these documents, those that have been introduced in evidence under the numbers Government's 6 and 7; you are familiar, I take it, generally, with that type of document, are you? A. I was at the time.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Houser: In addition to those documents that you see there, in the ordinary course of your duties as an immigration inspection officer, would there be other documents relating to questions put to Schrimpf or matters adduced from him?

A. I was not in immigration work at that time. I was in naturalization. Could I hear the question again?

(Question read.)

A. Yes, there would.

Q. What would it be?

A. These papers do not include the photograph, which are always discussed, signed by the applicant. There is nothing here in regard to military service, which was a very vital subject at that time, and a form was taken from the applicant in regard [4276] to that showing what his military service was or military status, whether he is registered or not under the Selective Service Act. There is also a statement taken in regard to arrests, the criminal record, if any, of the applicant or his freedom from any criminal record.

These papers also indicate that this application was filed as the spouse of a citizen, which means that we would have to have documents establishing a valid marriage and a termination of any prior marriage by divorce, death or otherwise; and also documents to establish the citizenship of the citizen spouse, either a birth certificate or some other record. There is nothing here to indicate whether the applicant had anything in regard to his preparation for citizenship by training in a school. Very often a teacher's certificate is presented.

There would be other questions put to the witness, but eliminating that from the picture, I think that is all I can recall at this time as to other documents or questions.

Q. Were questions at that time ordinarily addressed showing membership in or affiliation with the Communist Party? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And would that be reduced to writing and as answers in response to that?

A. No, no, not ordinarily.

Q. Would you have made a memoradum as to his replies?

A. Only in case it was adverse, that is, something that required [4277] further investigation.

Q. In other words, if a person stated he had been a member of the Communist Party but had left it, you would have made a notation of that, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is correct. I think that question is also covered in the printed application form here as to a believer in anarchy or unlawful damage, injury or destruction of property. I am reading from question No. 28 in the application form.

Q. Yes, but over and in addition to that printed form, as I take it, you would also question him directly and specifically upon his connections and affiliations with the Communist Party?

A. No, that would depend upon the examiner as to how the questions were put.

Q. What was your own practice?

A. My own practice is in the same way that you would question a witness, I think, to find some supporting evidence before the direct question is put as to membership. For example, whether he owns property, real estate or personal property, such as a car or jewelry; whether he thinks the Government should interfere with the ownership of real estate or personal property of that kind or some other kind; and what military service he had actually contributed to the welfare of the United States, whether he had made some other contribution such as by the investment of his money in war bonds or to the Red Cross or by the giving of blood. And other questions—I could go on at [4278] length if you want me to—which would indicate some leaning or affiliation with things for which Communism stands, instead of asking him directly, "Are you a Communist?" If he showed some inclination, yes, it would certainly be proper to follow it up then with the $64.00 question, "Are you a Communist?"

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, I am going to ask that the Government now produce the memoranda described by the witness that are not included in this document. Might we have such an order?

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor pleases, when this matter first was called to the Court's attention, that we introduced the documents which were pertinent to the inquiry here and told your Honor that we would be glad to produce for your Honor's inspection any other document or documents which are in the files of the Immigration Service. They are privileged under the law, and as I understand the law, it is your Honor's right and our duty, at your Honor's request or direction, to give such documents as we consider privileged to your Honor and if your Honor feels that any part or all are pertinent to the inquiry, then your Honor may direct such part or parts or all may then be offered in evidence, and we shall be glad to do that.

Mr. Hallinan: I do not know of anything that makes them privileged, your Honor, and the jury is entitled to see them. This is a question very directly bearing upon Schrimpf's motives [4279] and credibility. There should not be any of these artificial guards thrown around disclosing what he did say or didn't say. We ask that the documents be presented.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Mr. Donohue: We shall be glad to comply with any direction of your Honor, but I have simply stated to your Honor what is well recognized as the rule of all the departments, that the files of any department of the United States are privileged, and we offer those to your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: The documents were brought out with relation to Harry Bridges, Robertson and Schmidt. I do not see why a different rule prevails with regard to Schrimpf. If they are privileged as to him, they are privileged as to them. I submit that they should be produced so the jury may know and find out what Schrimpf said, what his motives were, what disclosures he made.

Mr. Donohue: Again I say it is for your Honor to determine whether there was any pertinent material in those files or in the files which should be presented to the jury, and on that point, of course, we will follow your Honor's direction.

The Witness: Your Honor, in view of this motion I would like to clarify one part of my testimony, and that is the original documents produced by an applicant are returned to him; for instance, the Selective Service card or his documents to establish marriage or previous termination of marriage—those are returned to the applicant the same day he is examined. [4280]

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, but I am not talking about those. I am talking about the notes that you took.

Mr. Donohue: He has not said he took any notes yet, if your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: He admits he has some documents. Now let him produce them, show them. He certainly should show them to the Court, let the Court look at them. They said in answer to some questions of Mr. MacInnis:

> "I would like to request of the Government prosecutors that we be given now the copy of the transcript of such preliminary questions as were put to this witness and the two men who were his witnesses.
> "Mr. Paisley: There is no such document in existence, according to my information and belief.
> "The Court: I will make an order that it be produced. If it is in existence, produce it.
> "Mr. MacInnis: We ask that the Government prosecutor, if the record cannot be produced, or if it is not now in existence, produce the notes or memoranda of the hearing officer who questioned Mr. Schrimpf, Mr. Arms and Mr. Jensen.
> "Mr. Paisley: I am informed by Mr. Boyd, who certainly ought to know, your Honor, that this is the complete record of the Immigration Service."

And then Mr. Donohue: [4281]

> "I must say to your Honor, as long as counsel has raised the point, that the hearing examiner, from our records, who conducted this hearing, is no longer in the Immigration Serv> ice, and we have made every possible human effort, since this matter came to our attention a day or two ago, to locate him, that we may bring him here, and we can't find him.

> "The Court: Are you prepared to disclose his name?
> "Mr. Donohue: His name is Houser. We understood he was an attorney practicing law in Los Angeles. [4282]
> "Mr. Donohue: His name is Houser. We understood he was an attorney practicing law in Los Angeles. I called the Los Angeles office of the Immigration Service the day before yesterday and asked them to make every human effort to locate him, that I wanted to talk to him."

And then Mr. MacInnis made the point that Mr. Houser's name did not appear on any of the documents here, that Mr. Houser's name was designated as examiner; that there must be some record in their possession that ought to have Mr. Houser's name on it. He said, "Now they say that this is the full record. If the name of Mr. Houser appears on some records, so that it could then be transmitted into the mind of Mr. Donohue, we would like to see that record."

> "Mr. Paisley: We have voluntarily given them everything that this witness signed in any capacity."

The Witness: Your Honor——

Mr. Hallinan: We asked, if the Court please, that they be required to produce the documents here and, at the very least, if the jury and the defense are going to be barred from looking at them, that your Honor first pass upon and determine whether that is a fair treatment.

The Witness: Your Honor, I believe that Mr. Hallinan has misinterpreted another part of my testimony. I didn't say that these documents were made in this Schrimpf case, [4283] because I can't recall the Schrimpf case.

Mr. Hallinan: I know. I grant that.

The Witness: I was just testifying to the general practice.

Mr. Hallinan: They just said now they have some more memorandum, Mr. Houser, but they say that they will not produce it and show it to the Court. I am not talking about your testimony.

Mr. Donohue: We made no such statement, if your Honor please, because there is no memorandum made by Mr. Houser or anyone else, and I say that Mr. Hallinan is in error when he said that we learned the name of Mr. Houser from some other document, because if Mr. Hallinan will look at the documents in Mr. Houser's hands which have been in evidence since last November, you will find Mr. Houser's name on this document.

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. Donohue: That is how we learned the name of Mr. Houser. There is no memorandum, there is no transcript, there is no record of any question or answer this witness made of Mr. Schrimpf on file in the immigration office or in the naturalization section of the immigration office. There is further information about Mr. Schrimpf, but it has nothing to do with his application for naturalization.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Mr. Hallinan: Have you anything about Schrimpf being or not being a Communist?

Mr. Donohue: That is the complete file of the naturalization [4284] proceedings of the witness Henry Schrimpf.

Mr. Hallinan:, If the Court please, under ordinary circumstances, one accepts these matters without further question; but our experience in this case has been a rather distrustful one about getting such things. I have, your Honor, a teletype from Washington that I want to call your attention to.

> "To Leonard from Glazier"
> Mr. Norman Leonard is assisting us in the matter.
> "Re Michener"
> Archives of War Labor Board state that all employees had to file personal history date under Form 57.
> Mrs. Patterson told me that she had orders not to discuss his file or the affidavit she had signed. I asked her point blank whether his complete file had been submitted and she refused to answer. She told me she had been > ordered to send me to Harris Shane Director of Personnel for the Department of Labor.

> Shane confirmed that Patterson had been ordered not to talk to me. He said that the Department was the repository of the personnel files of the WLB but refused to discuss the contents of Michener's file. He would not tell me whether the documents and affidavit covered the entire contents of Michener's files and would not even state that he or others with a similar position had had [4285] to fill out a Form 57. The attitude of both of them convinced me that someone is pulling a fast job."

In this statement Mr. Glazier says that both Mrs. Patterson and Shane told him that she had been ordered not to talk to him.

We put through a telephone message to Mr. Glazier on this particular matter and had him go to the department to find out these things. And how they knew that Mr. Glazier was interested, I don't know.

Might I see that Michener document that has been marked for identification? It is a photostat that we brought in, returned to you yesterday.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask, if your Honor please, if this is a pertinent matter with respect to the inquiry of Mr. Houser?

Mr. Hallinan: It is, I think, with regard to the disclosure of the documents and our right to insist upon them.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Mr. Donohue: We offered them last week and you didn't want to accept them.

Mr. Hallinan: In this Michener document, your Honor, there is an affidavit by this Louise C. Patterson in which she says:

> "I hereby certify that the folder containing personnel documents relating to the employment of Lew Michener, appointed February 11, 1943, with the National War Labor Board, Executive Office of the President, Office [4286] for Emergency Management, which was transferred from the National Wage Stabilization Board (the successor agency to the National War Labor Board) to the Department of Labor by executive order 9809, effective February 24, 1947, does not contain an oath of office, standard Form 61."

This is sworn to before a notary.

Then there is affixed another document.

> "To Whom It May Concern:
> I hereby certify that the attached photostatic copies are true copies of the records contained in the personnel folder of Lew Michener, appointed February 11, 1943 with the National Labor Relations Board," and then the rest of the matter about it being transferred to that department.

Then we have an unsigned statement on this form 57 by Michener. The name is typed in at the end, Lewis Herbert. The questions with relation to his previous arrests, to his membership in subversive organizations, contain no answers. There is, as I say, no signature, but in the front of one of the documents it says this, a document signed by Ernest Pinnelley, Personnel Officer:

> "Original oath taken December 29, 1942. Since there has been no break in service, no new oath has been taken." [4287]

So the document bears upon its face internal evidence that the personnel file contains more than has been produced before the Court.

Now, if this were the first instance of the kind, your Honor, it might seem to be unjust or undue criticism to suggest that some definite effort is being made by some of the officials of the Immigration Department to prevent the truth and the real documents being presented in court. I can't see any reason why these people should receive instructions that they were not to discuss this matter. Ordinarily, these are considered public records. They are not even allowed to discuss them. They can't say to the man that there are or are not other documents. This is brought in here simply on the ex parte statement of counsel. He presents it, hands it in with a certificate on it that does not disclose whether there are other documents. And I submit, your Honor, that not only with the Michener matter but with this Schrimpf thing, that the effort has been deliberately made to suppress such documents, to conceal them, to prevent the defense from getting them; and certainly and emphatically for the prosecution not to produce them themselves. Now, I think that what the Court should do is this: that you should order, not Mr. Donohue, because he hasn't charge of them; I suppose he just relays what he is told by people in the Immigration Department, but order Mr. Bruce Barber to forthwith deliver to you [4288] all papers of every kind relating to Henry Schrimpf and that you examine them. We would like to get a chance to look at them. We are not concerned with Mr. Schrimpf, who he may be or anything about him, except as it bears on this case. We would like to present those matters to the jury and let them see them. Will your Honor do that?

I also ask that your Honor now order these people to produce the entire file relating to Lew Michener's employment in the matters discussed in the document that has been marked here for identification.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, I see no reason why we should have to do the work for the defense, but we have sought to facilitate their effort as best we can. There was no duty on the part of the United States to produce any record concerning the witness Lew Michener. The duty was on Mr. Hallinan, as chief of defense counsel, to issue a subpoena out of this court directed to the Department of Labor in Washington, requiring the delivery to this Court for his inspection of the records of the Department of Labor. When that was not done, and when Mr. Hallinan raised the question about the answer which either he or Mr. MacInnis said he knew that Mr. Michener had made to a question as to whether or not he had been a member of the Communist Party, we then sought to do their work for them and procured from Washington a certified photostatic copy of the Form 57 filled out in part in [4289] typing, but never bearing the signature of Mr. Michener. And your Honor will recall he said on the stand he never signed any such document. It is the responsibility of the defendants. Now, I don't know who Mr. Glazier is in Washington. I do know who Mr. Norman Leonard is in the City of San Francisco, and it is perfectly apparent to your Honor, as it must be to everyone in this courtroom, that no person—Mr. Glazier or Mr. Leonard—can go into any office of the United States Government and say, "I want to look at the personnel file of John Smith." Every Government employee has a right to believe that his personal files are kept secret and that they are not open to the inspection of Mr. Glazier, Mr. Leonard or anybody else. The proper way to get those records, if there are any more—and if there are any more, I know nothing about them—the proper way to get those records here is for Mr. Hallinan to do his duty by his clients and ask your Honor to issue a subpoena directed to the Department of Labor and bring them here.

Mr. Hallinan: Might I suggest this, your Honor: that the gentleman who just spoke, although only a special prosecutor appointed briefly to do a particular job, is nevertheless a part of the United States Government while he is doing that job. And these other gentlemen sitting at the table are part of the United States Government. So is the Department of Labor. So is the Immigration Department. All these files [4290] and records are available to them. They have them in their possession. The Court is part of the United States Government. The Court is interested in seeing that these things are brought here in the quickest and most expeditious way. And when the officers of the Government are directed or requested or ordered by a court to produce certain documents, they should do it without quibbling as to whether Hallinan or anyone else is doing his duty by his clients or whether he should get a subpoena issued. It is to the Court's interest to see that the documents are produced as rapidly as possible.

Your Honor directed these gentlemen to produce these documents. At that time they did not refuse. Mr. Donohue did not get up and say, "I am not going to do Mr. Hallinan's job"—if it be my job. And in these Federal Courts it has always been the rule and always been the custom, where documents were in the possession of the United States Government, or any branch of it, for the prosecution to produce the documents, and this quib~~bling~~ about whether or not we ignore our duty, or how it should be done, comes in extremely bad form and bad grace. I suggest, your Honor, that these gentlemen be directed to produce their files, because all the files of the United States Government are open and available to them. When they can even direct persons connected with the archives not to discuss the matter with us, how can we find out who is the person in charge or how can we get them [4291] to produce the documents when we do not know where they are? Another thing: For us to bring people out here means that we have to spend several hundred dollars that these working men can ill afford to dig up out of their hard-earned wages to pay to bring people out from Washington to produce their records. We have to pay airplane fares, per diems, and services of marshals. To bring Mr. Houser here has cost $110. We can't afford to do that. Your Honor has told these people to produce them. It isn't a question that you asked Mr. Donohue for him to quibble about; they were told to bring them here. They are not bringing them as your Honor suggested; by bringing a portion of them they are practicing a larger deceit than if they didn't bring in anything at all.

Here is a misleading thing, in this statement of Michener's. Anyone that has had experience with these Government agencies knows that you cannot leave parts of a statement on an application blank, not fill them in at all, not state whether you have been arrested and not state whether you have been a member of a subversive organization, and still get the job. Whoever accepted the document would be subject to severe censure if he did so: We now ask that the documents stated by Mr. Donohue to be in their possession which are so secret that they dare not let me see them, that they be produced, and we be given a chance to look at them.

The Court: One or two questions of this witness. [4292]

Q. Do I recall your testimony correctly, that you did not have any additional memorandum of your own in connection with the application of Mr. Schrimpf?

A. As to the application of Mr. Schrimpf, I am unable to state because I don't remember that particular case. I have testified, at Mr. Hallinan's request, regarding the general practice at that time as I recall it after eight years, and in that I have stated that, as I recall it, there was a printed form in relation to the Selective Service card and military service record of the applicant, a mimeographed form which was filled out, and I don't recall whether the applicant signed it or not. [4293]

And I notice from this paper that he evidently had no Selective Service card, so it is just possible that that form was not filled out; it was deferred until the card was produced or some evidence of his registration.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

I also stated it was customary at that time, whether it was done in the Schrimpf case or not, to have the applicant sign a written statement regarding his criminal record, if any, or his freedom from arrests, and that would be signed by the applicant and not by the examiner.

Q. As part of your duties, did you pass upon this application, sir?

A. I made a preliminary examination and a recommendation to the designated examiner.

Q. Where does the recommendation appear?

Q. On the front page of United States Exhibit No. 7 at the line in the bottom half of the exhibit which says, "Recommendation of Preliminary Examiner."

Q. It states "SS Paid; otherwise passed."

The Witness: May I look at it again?

Q. "Paid, p-a-i-d."

The Witness: The word is "card," your Honor, and the "SS" stands for Selective Service card, which was the abbreviation in use at that time, and "otherwise passed" is correct.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. In aid of the questions which your Honor was just now putting to this witness, I would [4294] like to make this observation, which I am sure will be within the realm of your memory. In 1940 there was passed the Smith Act.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I sometimes welcome your observations, and sometimes they are uninvited.

Now I am addressing questions to this witness, and I hope that we can proceed, to the end that I may answer the question presented by Mr. Hallinan. Mr. Hallinan posed a question to this Court. I am trying to answer it.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I am not trying to interfere. I think this will be of assistance in clearing up this subject.

The Court: May I ask you to defer it, Mr. MacInnis, please.

Mr. MacInnis: If you so rule, I will.

The Court: Let me solve this immediate problem. I think I may be able to solve it. There are two problems before me. Mr. Paisley, do you have some communication to make to Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Paisley: No, we have none.

The Court: Any matter of legal concern that you think bears upon the matter before the Court? I think Mr. Hallinan has quite adequately presented his views. If there is some other matter of law that you wish to present to the Court, I will welcome it. My thought is that this problem can become increasingly acute if we permit—— [4295]

Mr. Hallinan: It skipped my mind about the Smith Act requiring this question.

The Court: What is it?

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, it was a matter of law that I wanted to call to your Honor's attention.

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: The Smith Act of 1940 empowered the Immigration Department to deport from the country any alien who at any time since his entry into the country had been affiliated with the Communist Party or with any organization described as subversive in the Form 61 which is now before Mr. Houser. And that was the act under which Harry Bridges was prosecuted in 1941. The Act was in existence in 1943, and it was within the scrutiny of the officials of the Immigration Department at that time to determine not only if any alien applying for citizenship had ever been a member of the Communist Party, but if he had ever been affiliated with that party. And that is the matter of law that I wanted to call to your attention. That is the statute under which Harry Bridges was prosecuted in 1941 on the charge that if he were not a member of the Communist Party he was at least affiliated with that party and of course it was found that he was neither.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

The Court: Now, Mr. MacInnis, you finally consummated your original objective.

Mr. MacInnis: I think not. [4296]

The Court: And it is perfectly apparent to me the reason why you indicated it to me. I am familiar with the Smith Act. At the very outset of your remarks I was quite content in my own mind that you would complete your remarks in that fashion, an indirect method again of producing matters before the jury in the nature of argument. I have reached the determination in the past. We have had this discussion. Mr. Hallinan has very adequately, I think, and very properly, posed two questions to the Court, and I shall now attempt to answer them. [4297]

No. 1, with respect to this immigration matter, and without the benefit of the transcript before me, my recollection of the colloquy was that when this matter first arose, Mr. Paisley or one of the counsel was to present to the Court a file or files having some particular bearing upon this matter. Someone referred to it as a secret file at that time, as I recall. If that file be in existence, if it has any bearing upon this man's testimony, it should be produced for the Court's surveillance and perusal. Such file may well be within the realms of privilege as announced by Mr. Donohue, but I shall accede to Mr. Hallinan's request, and accordingly again welcome the receipt of such file or files.

Mr. Donohue: Within a very few minutes it will be within Your Honor's hands.

The Court: Is my recollection of the transcript correct, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: In substance, without particularity. Now, with respect to the Michener matter, that comes in as a collateral argument submitted by Mr. Hallinan and purely by parity of reasoning. There is nothing in the Michener matter thus far referred to that would justify this Court or any person to level criticism upon Mr. Donohue or any of the other agents for, as it appears, Mr. Donohue produced, as I recall, during the argument of Mr. MacInnis the certified copy which Mr. Hallinan more [4298] recently alluded to. That certified copy is in substance and effect as Mr. Hallinan refers to it—apparently. I have not read it. If there be other and additional documents in that file bearing upon that application, if they are material they should be produced. They should be produced. The burden upon Mr. Donohue was not to produce the file. He did produce the Form 57, and any criticism directed at him or toward him is not justified. But I suggest, Mr. Donohue, rather than burden the record by the subpoena process of the Court that this particular board be requested through you as a directive from this Court to produce any and all such documents bearing upon Mr. Michener.

Mr. Donohue: If there be any further documents, we shall produce them.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, another direction that was made at the same time by the Court, and it can be done at this time, is that all documents relating to the witness George Wilson be also produced. The Court made the same suggestion.

The Court: George Wilson we approach from a different level. On George Wilson—the record is not before me——

Mr. Hallinan: The documents are in the same category.

Mr. Donohue: I will produce it after the 11:00 o'clock recess for George Wilson.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

Mr. Hallinan: All right. That is the whole file.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, sir, we will offer it in evidence, if your Honor will permit me to reopen our case for that purpose. [4299]

Mr. Hallinan: Let me ask you this—no, we had better see it. Is the Schrimpf file available? Will your Honor look at it during the recess?

The Court: I will when it is available.

Mr. Hallinan: I say when it is, will you look at it first, then decide what should or should not be put in.

The Court: I will.

Mr. Hallinan: May I ask this also, your Honor: We have brought here, to be here at 11:00 o'clock, a character witness who will only take a few minutes, and if we might interrupt Mr. Houser's testimony——

The Court: That is agreeable. We will take the morning recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.)

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your name to the Court and jury?

A. Walter E. Buck.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. And where do you live, Mr. Buck?

A. 3785 Jackson Street, San Francisco.

Q. How long have you lived in [4300] California?

A. I was born in California, in San Francisco.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I am a merchant.

Q. Will you tell us, Mr. Buck, what organizations you have ownerships in or of which you are an officer or director?

A. Yes. I am a director of the North American Oil Company, director of the El Dorado Oil Company, director of and executive vice president of the American Distilling Company, president of the Moxey Company of Boston, director of the Matson Navigation Company, director of the San Francisco Bank, director of the California Union Insurance Company, and I am a partner in N. Olhandt & Company.

Q. Mr. Olhandt is also connected with the San Francisco Bank?

A. He is a director of the San Francisco Bank.

Q. You say that you hold an office with the Matson Navigation Company?

A. I am a director in the Matson Navigation Company.

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

Q. Do you also own a considerable amount of stock in that organization?

A. Yes, I am a sizable stockholders in the company.

Q. Do you have any connection with the California-Hawaiian Sugar Company?

A. No connections, except I was instrumental in bringing about settlement of the strike with the longshoremen's union.

Q. A strike or a series of strikes, one or two strikes, have [4301] recently been settled that involved the Hawaiian sugar growers, the San Francisco warehousemen, and some other collateral organizations, is that true? A. Yes.

Q. Were you one of the employers' group that was endeavoring to settle the strike?

A. Well, I was the go-between between the employers' group in the Hawaiian Islands in the stevedore strike with the union.

Q. Who were some of the employers on the Islands whom you named?

A. Well, Castle & Cook, C. Brewer & Company, Alexander & Baldwin, Theodore H. Davies. I think that covers it.

Q. Those are four of the so-called Big Five of the Hawaiian Islands?

A. Yes, and the American Factors.

Q. They control a great deal of the economy of the Hawaiian Islands, is that correct?

A. They are very largely interested down there.

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

Q. Has the San Francisco Bank got certain commitments and certain interests also in those companies or in their operations?

A. No, they have not, not the San Francisco Bank.

Q. Then the Matson Navigation Company operates ships where?

A. To the Hawaiian Islands, between the Pacific Coast and the Hawaiian Islands.

Q. About how many ships have they? [4302]

A. About 15, I think.

Q. Including the Lurline, Matsonia and some of those well known names? A. Yes.

Q. In endeavoring to settle the strike, whom did you deal with on the workers' side, Mr. Buck?

A. Mr. Bridges.

Q. Was he the chief person that you had contact with? A. Yes.

Q. And those discussions and deliberations ran over how long a period of time?

A. Over two months.

Q. And then in the course of these matters did you communicate with agents of the employers' group and then with Mr. Bridges and back and forth like that?

A. Yes, that was the procedure.

Q. Did you have occasion in the course of that to discuss with various persons connected with that employers' group or with other persons in this vicinity Mr. Bridges' character and reputation?

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

A. Yes.

Q. Could you tell us, Mr. Buck, what Mr. Bridges' general reputation for truth, honesty and integrity is in the City and County of San Francisco?

A. Well, when it first became known to some extent that I was [4303] entering into these strike features, some of my friends and acquaintances told me about Mr. Bridges, and they told me that if he passed his word that he would carry it through and I could rely on his integrity.

Q. His general reputation for truth, honesty and integrity you would say is good, is that right?

A. I would say so.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Buck, by whom were you first asked to give testimony this morning?

A. I don't recollect just who first asked me. I talked with Mr. Bridges, Mr. Goldblatt.

Q. Mr. Bridges, Mr. Goldblatt. Can you recall about when that was?

A. Oh, a week or so ago. Probably a little bit longer. I just got back from New York last Saturday.

Q. It was prior to your going to New York?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that the only discussion you had with anyone as to the testimony you would give here this morning?

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

A. I talked in a casual way with Mr. Hallinan.

Q. Do you recall when, sir?

A. Yes, it was last Monday.

Q. Mr. Buck, do you consider yourself an operator of ships or [4304] an investor in shipping?

A. Well, I am probably both. I operated ships myself for many, many years, and at one time I was superintendent of the Matson Navigation Company.

Q. How long have you been with the Matson Navigation Company?

A. Well, I left them many years ago. I started in 1903.

Q. And left when?

A. I think somewhere around 1910, and then I was with the marine end of the Associated Oil for many years, and during the first World War I was in the shipbuilding business, and in the second World War.

Q. And when did you last return to a directorship on the Matson Line?

A. Well, I was not a director until last year.

Q. Then you have been a director of the Matson Line for about a year?

A. Yes, about April of last year.

Q. Did you ever discuss the reputation of Harry Bridges with the board of directors of the Matson Line?

A. No, I have not discussed it with them.

Q. Did you ever discuss the reputation of Harry

Bridges with the board of directors of the Bank of San Francisco? A. No.

Q. Do you limit your testimony as to the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity to comments that [4305] were made by the employers' group in the recent negotiations in which you participated in Hawaii?

A. No. As I said before, that some people on the outside have spoken to me who were not connected with the employers' group then in Hawaii.

Q. Can you tell us who some of those people are, Mr. Buck?

A. No, it was some time ago and I just don't recollect their name.

Q. Mr. Buck, you do know many persons who know Harry Bridges?

A. No, I don't know many people.

Q. How many people would you say you know who know Mr. Bridges?

A. Well, probably 20 or 30.

Q. And it was among those 20 or 30 persons you heard discuss the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, just as I testified here a few minutes ago in reference to Harry Bridges carrying through his bargain if he made one.

Q. Did you ever hear anybody characterize Harry Bridges as a Communist?

A. I have read the papers.

Q. Other than reading the papers?

A. What?

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

Q. Other than reading the papers.

A. Well, I never heard anyone say that they knew he was a [4306] Communist.

Q. Did you ever hear anyone say he was a Communist, whether they knew it or not?

A. No, I don't think I ever heard anyone say he was actually a Communist except what I read in the papers on the testimony of these witnesses.

Q. Mr. Buck, you haven't been in this courtroom since the beginning of this trial continuously?

A. No, sir.

Q. If evidence beyond a reasonable doubt were presented to you that Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, would you still say his reputation for truth, honesty and integrity was good?

A. Well, if a man was proved guilty, I naturally would think he was guilty.

Q. Mr. Buck, do you consider it a matter of sound business policy to offer testimony here as to the good reputation of the defendant Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Will you repeat that question, please?

(Question read.)

A. As I find him, yes.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Buck: In your

(Testimony of Walter E. Buck.)

dealings with Harry Bridges, did you ever hear him say or do [4307] anything that would indicate to you that he was a Communist or a member of the Communist Party?

A. I don't know as I exactly know what a Communist is.

Q. I am not sure myself.

A. I never heard him say he was a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Did he always seem to carry along in the accepted manner of trade union negotiations with your people in settling these strikes, for instance?

A. Yes, and I think he used very good judgment in the handling of the affair, too.

Q. Did he ever show any inclination to be arbitrary or unreasonable or maintain a strike just for the purpose of creating trouble or dissension, so far as you could discern?

A. No, I gained the impression that he was doing his best to get as much for the members of his union as he possibly could.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions, your Honor.

The Court: You are excused.

Mr. Hallinan: I suppose, your Honor, that it might be well that we have Mr. Houser stand by until this afternoon's session and I will produce another witness now.

The Court: Very well.

WALTER W. MAHAFFEY

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn. [4308]

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your name to the Court and jury?

A. Walter W. Mahaffey.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, what is your occupation?

A. I am a stationary engineer.

Q. Located where? Where are you working?

A. In Long Beach, California.

Q. Is that where you live?

A. I live in Seal Beach.

Q. Are you a married man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any children? A. Two, two girls.

Q. How long have you been a stationary engineer?

A. Well, do you mean working at the job?

Q. Yes. Or working in general in that occupation.

A. Well, I belonged to the Engineer's Union, the Operating Engineers, since 1939.

Q. Did you tell us what firm you work for now?

A. The A. K. Wilson Company.

Q. That is in Long Beach?

A. Well, it is out of Long Beach, between Long Beach and Compton.

Q. Were you ever a member of the [4309] ILWU? A. Yes.

Q. And where? A. Stockton, California.

Q. Are you a Stockton man by birth?

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

A. I was born there.

Q. What years, if you remember, roughly, were you a member of the ILWU in Stockton?

A. Since 1933.

Q. Until what time? A. 1939.

Q. While you were a member of that organization in Stockton were you ever an officer of the organization?

A. I was the first president of the organization and then its secretary until 1939.

Coming up to the year 1936, and starting in in May, 1936, I have some records here that I will show you that you have seen already. (I had better show them to counsel first.) For the purpose of refreshing your recollection on some matter.

Mr. Paisley: What part of this do you refer to?

Mr. Hallinan: That one page, just to give the date, and the last part of it. This is preliminary to show Mr. Bridges' trip to Stockton on June 27th. That helps to establish the reason for it. Here I have a photostat if you want to look at it, and then I will show this to the witness in the meantime and we might save time. [4310]

Q. Can you tell us, Mr. Mahaffey, what that book is that you have there?

A. This is a record of the minutes of the organization during that period of time.

Q. That is of the ILWU?

A. Well, at this particular time I believe it was the ILA.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. I am sorry; that is right. By the minutes you mean the minutes that were kept of the meetings of that organization?

A. Of all the regular meetings and special meetings of the organization, yes.

Q. Looking at that page of May 21st, using that to refresh your recollection if need be, or if you can remember the details without it, will you tell us what was the situation with regard to a convention in San Pedro to which your union had sent delegates?

A. I was a delegate to our own convention in San Pedro.

Q. What was that a convention of?

A. A convention of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Q. How long did that last, Mr. Mahaffey?

A. Well, I think it was—it was a long one. Around 17 or 18 days, if I remember correctly.

Q. Do you remember when it started and when it finished?

A. Well, it started, I believe, in April and from there 17 days—I think it went into May.

Q. Do you remember who else was a delegate with you? [4311] A. From my local?

Q. Yes. A. Mike Silk.

Q. You and Silk went to San Pedro, did you?

A. We went to San Pedro.

Q. Before the convention adjourned there, did you and Silk return to Stockton?

A. Well, no. We finished the convention. At the same time there was a convention of the Maritime Federation held immediately after ours. We left and returned shortly after that convention convened.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. First there was a convention of the ILWU in San Pedro? A. That is right.

Q. And after that finished there immediately started a convention of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific? A. Yes.

Q. Were you and Mr. Silk also delegates to that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you remain through the convention of the Maritime Federation? A. No, I did not.

Q. Refreshing your recollection from that book, if need be, can you tell us just what was done about you and Mr. Silk separating yourself from that convention?

A. Well, at that time we were from a small local up here, and [4312] the convention had taken so long, Brother Silk left and returned, although we went together to the convention. He returned with another delegate from another local, and I remained over until the start of the Maritime Federation convention, and after several days I received a wire and was called back to my local, and I left at that time, and I recall very clearly that I was instructed to give our proxy votes to Local 3879 at that time.

Q. Who was the delegate for Local 3879, do you know?

A. Well, Mr. Bridges, Mr. Schmidt—two that I recall.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. Did you meet Mr. Bridges down at the convention? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Will you state whether or not your delegation was supporting Harry Bridges in that convention?

A. Definitely.

Q. And the document you have been looking at are the minutes of a special meeting held on May 21st, 1936, in Stockton, is that right?

A. That is right.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer that one page in evidence, if the Court please, and we have a photostat of it that I will ask be used instead of the book itself.

Mr. Donohue: No objection, your Honor.

The Court: That may be the order. The photostat may be received in lieu of the page designated as page 78 of this book.

(Page 78 of minutes was thereupon received in evidence and marked Defendants' Exhibit O-1.) [4313]

Mr. Hallinan (reading):

"Special Meeting May 21, 1936, 7:30 P. M.

"Meeting was called to decide whether or not Mahaffey should stay for the M. F. convention.

"Mike Silk reported that at the I. L. convention there was two different factions fighting against each other, stated that there was very little use of having delegates there as all that was done the first nine days was a lot of mud thrown between the delegates and a lot of arguing between Lewis Peterson, Morris, and Bridges. Explained the situation which happened here some time ago on the Kate Luck, and about Ryan taking charters away from the union longshoremen in the Gulf ports and giving it to the scabs. Described how the nomination of officers was carried on and told about the three assessments that were coming up for us to vote on.

"A motion by M, Silk, seconded by A. Pope that we send W. Mahaffey a night letter instructing him to return to Stockton at once and that he give his proxy to 38-79. Motion carried.

"President L. N. Devonshire adjourned the meeting. Meeting adjourned at 8:45."

Q. Pursuant to that, then, Mr. Mahaffey, you state you did give the proxy to Local 38-79 and you returned to Stockton? A. Yes. [4314]

Q. Now, thereafter, do you remember Harry Bridges speaking at a meeting in Stockton and reporting upon the subsequent matters of that convention? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Where was that meeting held, Mr. Mahaffey?

A. The meeting was held in the Teamsters Union hall, which was also an office of the Central Labor Council at that time, in Stockton.

Mr. Hallinan: Now, counsel have already seen this photostatic copy of the Stockton Record, I believe. Do you want to look at it again?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, to the use of a photostatic copy of a newspaper for any purpose unless there is something in there the witness may have written concerning which he wants to refresh his recollection.

The Court: This is for the purpose of refreshment of recollection. I assume that is what it is for.

Mr. Hallinan: Might we take the table up here, because I have several.

Q. You have seen that paper before, have you, Mr. Mahaffey? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And that is a photostat of the Stockton Record of what date?

A. June 27, 1936, Saturday.

Q. You notice down at the bottom of the sheet an article [4315] about that meeting that we have just been talking about? A. Yes.

Q. And then attached to the sheet is an enlarged reproduction of the document.

A. I have it here.

Q. I want to show you another book—this you have seen a photostat of before. You have seen that book before, too, have you, Mr. Mahaffey? It is the next page, the page on your right hand side, the second from the end. A. Yes.

Q. What is that book?

A. It is the day book of receipts and expenditures of the local in Stockton.

Q. And the second line from the end reads what?

A. "June 29, Cash, Hall, chairs and entertainment for Bridges meeting. $4.80. Total of $19.80."

Q. I want to show you now a copy of a letter. What is that document, Mr. Mahaffey?

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

A. It is a letter that I dictated to the editor of the Voice of the Federation newspaper.

Q. What is the date of the letter?

A. June 29, 1936.

Q. And what is the subject?

A. The subject is regarding Bridges' invitation to speak in Stockton on Labor Day, and also states that he attended a [4316] meeting of the Teamsters—longshoremen, bargemen and warehousemen at the Teamsters' hall on June 27, Saturday night.

Q. Anything else?

A. Well, we requested that he attend our Labor Day celebration because it was going to be the biggest celebration of Labor Day we had at that time in Stockton.

Q. This is the part that is important; the other just identifies it (exhibiting document to counsel).

Now, that subsequent book that is just shown to you, what is that?

A. This is the Voice of the Federation.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, we make the same objection with respect to this newspaper as we did heretofore. You can't establish a fact by an account in a newspaper. On that basis we object to it.

Mr. Hallinan: We are going to try to do it.

Q. What was the Voice of the Federation—Maritime Federation?

A. It was the Maritime Federation—the official organ of the Maritime Federation.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. Is that the same paper that you wrote the letter to that you just identified? A. Yes.

Q. And what date is the newspaper article that you have there?

A. This is July 2, 1936. [4317]

Q. Will you turn to the third page, the last one that is turned down, Mr. Mahaffey. Do you see an account there that is marked off with pencil?

A. Yes.

Q. And what does that purport to state?

A. Well, it begins with Bridges and Schmidt at Stockton.

Q. And then does it tell some of the substance of Mr. Bridges' speech?

Mr. Donohue: To that I object, if your Honor please, again on the ground—— A. Yes.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Hallinan: This is all going to refreshing recollection.

Q. If I may turn this page. Now, that last paper that you were shown there, the last sheet, that is the same paper?

A. The Voice of the Federation.

Q. And what date? It is July 9?

A. July 9.

Q. Then do you see an article in there on that page you are looking at down at the bottom?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the substance of that?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please——

A. Reports——

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute, Mr. Mahaffey. I object [4318] to reading any article from any newspaper.

Mr. Hallinan: I don't want him to read it; just the substance.

The Court: The objection is sustained. Newspaper articles are permitted before the witness for the purpose of refreshing his recollection.

Q. Do they refresh your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you, in the light of that refreshment, any independent recollection of the events?

A. Yes.

The Court: All right; you may testify.

Mr. Hallinan: Mr. Mahaffey, the article, without reading it, does it give a date upon which Bridges, Schmidt and Christensen spoke at Stockton?

A. Yes.

Q. What date does it give?

A. June 27.

Q. Now, using all of the documents that have been shown to you to refresh your recollection, can you now state to the Court and jury on what day Harry Bridges spoke at Stockton?

A. Saturday, June 27, 1936.

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, were you personally present at that meeting? A. Yes.

Q. And did you have anything to do with arranging the meeting? [4319]

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

A. I arranged it.

Q. And will you tell us now the circumstances under which it was arranged. First, can you tell the person with whom you got in touch, if there were such person, who communicated with Mr. Bridges?

A. Well, just prior to the arrangement—and it wasn't I got in touch with him; I believe it was just the reverse; he had gotten in touch with me.

Q. Who is that person? A. Mike Silk.

Q. Without stating the language, what was the nature of the communication that Mr. Silk gave you on that occasion?

A. Mr. Silk called me by telephone. After we had discussed—well, it went back further than that. When I left San Pedro and we turned our proxies over to 38-79, we discussed them coming to our local after the meeting to make a report of what transpired at the Maritime Federation convention, and at this particular meeting it was arranged through Mr. Silk, who was in San Francisco, in contacting me to make arrangements for the hall, that Mr. Bridges and several of the other delegates would be there in attendance.

Q. Can you tell us approximately how long prior to Saturday, June 27, 1936, Mr. Silk notified you that Mr. Bridges could appear and would appear?

A. He notified me, I believe, about two or three days prior [4320] to the meeting. There was a little difficulty whether or not the meeting was going to be held.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. Why?

A. Well, I presume it was because of the time element, meaning by that whether Mr. Bridges was too pressed with business in San Francisco, or whether he was going to take time out and come and talk to us.

Q. And then when, how long before the meeting were you finally notified by Mr. Silk that they would and could be there?

A. About two days.

Q. Now, I notice in this Stockton Record of Saturday, June 27, the statement of Walter Mahaffey, Business Agent——

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, to reading anything from the newspaper which is not in evidence, for the purpose of proving what happened.

Mr. Hallinan: I will offer it in evidence.

Mr. Donohue: I will object to it.

Mr. Hallinan: I would like to show the witness the document again and the last paragraph of the statement about the meeting.

Q. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us from that when it was that you first announced the holding of the Bridges meeting?

A. As far as my recollection is, I think it was on a Friday. [4321]

Q. And did you announce it immediately as soon as you received the communication from Mr. Silk?

A. I announced it, yes—well, I announced it

prior to that time, but, however, in this particular instance, I announced it to the press.

Q. In other words, as I understand it, Mr. Mahaffey, first there was a discussion in which Mr. Silk said he could get Mr. Bridges, and then later he phoned to you and said if you could get a hall, and so forth, they could produce Bridges on this coming Saturday. Was there some question of difficulty between you that he wasn't giving you enough time to notify the members?

A. Yes, I was perturbed about it because it wasn't too definite, and I insisted that we know so that I could make this arrangement for the hall and notify the various other locals that wanted to attend.

Q. When did he call you back and tell you All right, it was definite?

A. I think it was on a Thursday or Friday.

Q. So you only had from the time that the meeting was held a space of one or two days at the most to get the people to the hall for that meeting? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, do you remember Mr. Bridges coming to Stockton? A. Yes. [4322]

Q. And do you remember the meeting itself?

A. I do.

Q. And do you remember anything that occurred after the meeting? A. Yes.

Q. What was that?

A. Well, we had arranged a little entertainment after the meeting at a restaurant and night club up there. They had a floor show, and there was eight or nine of us went over to watch the floor show and have some refreshments.

(Testimony of Walter W. Mahaffey.)

Q. Was Harry Bridges included in that group?

A. He was.

Q. How about Schmidt?

A. Henry Schmidt was.

Q. And William Christensen?

A. William Christensen.

Q. Can you give us your recollection as to how long you people stayed there? I want to get, particularly, as closely as you can, when those three men returned to San Francisco.

A. Well, as I recall it, we were there after the place closed.

Q. And what time would that be?

A. Oh, two o'clock; 2:30 in the morning.

Mr. Hallinan: Might we have the recess now, your Honor?

The Court: Yes. We will take the noon recess period, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, and resume at two o'clock [4323] this afternoon. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [4323-A]

Wednesday, January 25, 1950, 2:00 P. M.

The Court: Mr. Mitchell has handed to me a file folder of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, subject, Henry Joseph Schrimpf, and I have considered the same, and hand the file or file folder to counsel, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: Mr. MacInnis has a short witness, a character witness. He can put him on and I will glance through the file in the meantime.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, have you glanced through that file?

Mr. Donohue: No, I have not.

The Court: You have not?

Mr. Donohue: No.

The Court: You might examine it in conjunction with counsel then.

Mr. MacInnis: May we, your Honor, during this interim place a short witness upon the stand?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: I will call, please, the Rev. Edward Peet.

EDWARD L. PEET

called on behalf of the defendant Robertson; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please? [4324]

A. Edward L. Peet.

Q. Will you spell the last name?

A. P-e-e-t.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Rev. Peet, would you state your profession to the Court and jury?

A. I am a minister of the Methodist Church.

(Testimony of Edward L. Peet.)

Q. Of what particular Methodist Church is that?

A. The Methodist Church in Mill Valley.

Q. Does that church have a particular name in Mill Valley? A. That is the name.

Q. The Methodist Church of Mill Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you the pastor of that church?

A. I am the pastor, yes.

Q. Is that a congregation which has been in existence some time in Mill Valley?

A. About 42 years.

Q. You yourself live in Mill Valley, do you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. At what address?

A. 89 Valley Circle.

Q. Do you live there with your family?

A. I do.

Q. And your family consists of what other [4325] persons? A. My wife and two children.

Q. Are those children of school age or younger?

A. The older girl is in Tamalpais High School, sophomore in Tamalpais High School, 15 years of age.

Q. And your younger child?

A. The younger child is 9 years of age, a student in Park Grammar School.

Q. You have been at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley for about what period of time?

A. Since August 1st, 1948.

Q. Prior to that time what was your station or parish?

(Testimony of Edward L. Peet.)

A. North Methodist Church in Hartford, Connecticut.

Q. You came from that church to Mill Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know a man named J. R. Robertson?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. For what period of time have you known him?

A. About a year.

Q. Under what circumstances did you meet him and about how many occasions have you seen or talked with him?

A. His mother is a member of my church, and visiting the home when she was visiting with him or living there, I believe, about a year ago, I met Mr. Robertson and have visited there probably a half [4326] dozen times since then.

Q. You visited Mr. Robertson's house about a half dozen times? A. Yes.

Q. Has he attended your church as well?

A. Yes, he has, yes.

Q. Have you since the bringing of an indictment against Mr. Robertson had occasion to discuss the reputation of Mr. Robertson in your community, Mill Valley? A. Yes, I have.

Q. With about how many persons have you discussed the character or reputation of Mr. Robertson? A. At least a dozen.

Q. At least a dozen people?

A. At least a dozen, yes.

(Testimony of Edward L. Peet.)

Q. Those discussions have taken place at least within the last calendar year, is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. From your knowledge of Mr. Robertson, your visits at his home, and such other acquaintanceship that you may have with other members of his family, and your conversations with members of your own community, are you familiar now with the reputation of Mr. Robertson for truth, honesty and integrity? A. Yes, I am.

Q. And what is that reputation, Dr. Peet?

A. I would say that it is—in Mill Valley he has an excellent [4327] reputation.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Reverend, are you the same Rev. Edward L. Peet who is listed in Appendix 9 of the House Un-American Activities Committee as endorsing the Committee for Citizenship Rights Organization to Defend the American Citizenship of William Schneidermann?

A. I am not familiar with the document.

Q. Did you endorse the citizenship of William Schneidermann?

A. I have no clear recollection of it. I may have.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Mr. MacInnis: We have no further questions.

The Court: You are excused.

The witness may resume the stand, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes. Dr. Peet would like to sit in the courtroom, if he may.

The Court: Very well.

The witness on the stand might have that file folder for the purpose of refreshing his recollection now if you desire. [4328]

J. EVERETT HOUSER

resumed;

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. I might say the only thing we are interested in in that file is the letter, not the file as a whole. We don't care to inquire into the personal matters of Mr. Schrimpf.

Q. You notice there, sir, a letter from the Federal Bureau of Investigation? A. I do.

Q. Would you please read the contents of that aloud.

Mr. Donohue: May it please the Court, I object to it unless it is material.

The Court: One moment. Have you examined the file?

Mr. Donohue: No, your Honor, I have not.

The Court: Better examine it.

Mr. Hallinan: The letter is the only thing I intend to inquire about, so you can confine your examination to that, unless you wish to go further into it.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, I am not foreclosing

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

you from an examination of the entire file if you are so advised.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: I mean, at this moment I am only interested in the one matter.

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please, as obviously that letter has no bearing on this issue [4329] whatsoever.

Mr. Hallinan: Let me see that.

Mr. Donohue: It is immaterial.

Mr. Hallinan: Let me see the letter, if you will.

Q. You testified heretofore, sir, that where a question related to a man's—withdraw that—where there was information or some suggestion that related to possible affiliation with the Communist Party, then you pursued that further, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir, or other disloyal activities.

Q. Now, on June 4, 1943, you did receive information that Henry Schrimpf's name appeared in the Federal Bureau of Investigation records in connection with the Harry Bridges case, didn't you?

A. I don't think so; I don't recall it.

(The document was handed to the witness.)

The Witness: I don't believe I have seen this letter before, Mr. Hallinan.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Well, who is Mr. Irving F. Wixon?

A. That was the District Director at that time.

Q. Of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. He was at 801 Silver Avenue. Where was your office?

A. There for a time, until it was moved.

Q. Was it there on June 4, 1943?

A. No. [4330]

Q. Well, now, was it customary to inquire concerning affiliations of the kind I have indicated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation when persons suspected of Communist leanings appeared for naturalization? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And would it be ordinarily true that a communication would be addressed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation on such matters?

A. Quite likely.

Q. Do you know who Mr. N. J. L. Piepper was?

A. I believe there is a Mr. Piepper that has some connection with the FBI, or did have at that time.

Q. Well, I call your attention to the contents of this letter.

Mr. Donohue: Object, if your Honor please. He said he never saw it.

Mr. Hallinan: I asked him about the subject matter of it, your Honor. I don't care whether he saw it before.

Q. Have you any information that a file concerning Henry Joseph Schrimpf's activities in the Harry Bridges case was in the possession of Mr. Irving F. Wixon, District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service?

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

A. No personal knowledge; just what I see in that letter now.

Q. Did you make any inquiry as to whether Mr. Wixon had in his possession a file about Henry Schrimpf in connection with [4331] the Harry Bridges case?

A. No, sir. As far as I can recall, that Schrimpf case was only in my hands for preliminary examination, which would only take an hour or so.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, now, could we ask the gentleman to produce from Irving F. Wixon the file of information pertaining to Henry Joseph Schrimpf which was in the possession of Mr. Wixon on June 4, 1943, in connection with the Harry Bridges case.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I produced, or caused it to be produced, in connection with the testimony of this witness and pertaining to any testimony that he might give.

Mr. Hallinan: Is this all the information that was given to you?

The Court: That is all, sir. That was handed to me; I received it from Mr. Mitchell at I would say 11:35 or 11:40.

The Clerk: 11:35.

The Court: I considered it at the noon recess in my chambers in the presence of Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Goldsmith, and after consideration I returned it to Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. Hallinan: Of course, your Honor understands that there was no question that any more was given to you.

The Court: That is all I have.

Mr. Hallinan: I wanted to show that in the record, and I offer this document; I want the document, the whole file, [4332] marked for identification.

The Court: The file may be marked for identification, or it may be photostated and the original returned to the Service.

Mr. Hallinan: If they wish.

(The file was marked Defendants' Exhibit P-1 for identification.)

Mr. Hallinan: I want to introduce a letter in evidence from Mr. Piepper to the Naturalization Service stating that a file of information concerning Henry Schrimpf in connection with the Harry Bridges case is in Mr. Wixon's possession and no reply or contradiction of the contents of that file.

Mr. Donohue: Just a moment, if your Honor please.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): So you personally, then, have no knowledge of any file in the possession of the Naturalization Department as to Henry Schrimpf's connection with the Harry Bridges case?

A. No.

Q. Did you get any direction now, Mr. Houser, from Mr. Wixon or from any agency of the United States Government that, because of Schrimpf's activities against Harry Bridges, that he should be granted citizenship?

A. No, sir. No, sir. My only connection with that case, as far as I know or can recall, was the preliminary examination which is reflected in one of the exhibits that you showed to [4333] me this morning, which shows the preliminary examination was conducted by myself and a recommendation made to the designated examiner for further examination.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Houser—and this is also only for the record, because I have no doubt about the answer: You never made any attempt to conceal yourself or to avoid being communicated with either by any person representing the prosecution or the defense in this case, have you?

A. No, sir. I maintained an office at all times; I can be reached any day.

Mr. Hallinan: Thank you. That is all.

Mr. Donohue: I have no questions.

The Court: One moment. Merely for the purpose of the record, Mr. Donohue, there is an offer made by Mr. Hallinan of a letter.

Mr. Donohue: I object to it, if your Honor please, on the ground that it is immaterial and not pertinent to this issue.

The Court: The objection is sustained. It may be marked for identification.

Mr. Hallinan: Might I suggest this, your Honor—the ruling being made, I know you won't think I am imposing in suggesting it—that here is a document in the nature of an admission on the part of the Government that such information exists. Now, at least an information of ~~an~~ admission is contained in the letter, and no reply to it contradicting the statement made to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. [4334]

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I am not inclined to agree with your construction of that letter. I am willing to discuss it in the absence of the jury, perhaps, for fear that some prejudice might attach either to your side of the controversy or in some way. I am not inclined to agree with your construction.

Mr. Hallinan: As far as our side is concerned, I am willing to have it discussed right here before the jury.

The Court: That letter appears to have emanated from Mr. Piepper.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes. Here it is included in the file of the Naturalization Department without comment, without contradiction, without inquiry, so that this letter being in the file certainly raises the inference that a file with such information does exist. Furthermore, it shows that such a file exists in the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Court: I can not agree with your construction of that letter, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: As far as prejudicing our case is concerned, we are willing to have that and everything else put in before the jury without——

The Court: It may be marked for identification next in order.

(Letter from Mr. Piepper was thereupon included in Defendants' Exhibit P-1.)

The Court: Is this witness excused? [4335]

Mr. Hallinan: Yes.

(Testimony of J. Everett Houser.)

The Witness: I am unwilling to leave the stand until we clear up this matter of fees which was mentioned this morning by Mr. Hallinan as some $110 and was inferred that I had received it.

Mr. Hallinan: No, we didn't say that. That is what we had to give the marshal. What fees did he give you? Maybe we have a rebate coming.

A. The marshal handed me a check from some Defense Committee for $100, and as I have told you before, I didn't care to have any fees in the case and I would like to return it at this time.

The Court: You may return it.

Mr. Hallinan: That is very generous. Thank you for it.

The Court: The witness is entitled under the law to his travel expenses. You are entitled to travel as well as per diem.

Mr. Hallinan: We are glad to give you that, sir. If you will tell us what your actual expenses were, we will be glad to give it to you. These fees are called for by the Code. It says you must give so much per day, so much per mile and so much for service. We asked the marshal what it was. He set that amount so we gave it to him.

A. The check is considerably in excess of my expenses, and I consider this as part of my war effort and I am glad to contribute [4336] it.

Mr. Hallinan: We are grateful to you.

The Clerk: May the record show that I have given the check to Mr. Hallinan.

The Court: You are excused.

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

Mr. Hallinan: Mr. Mahaffey, will you take the stand?

WALTER MAHAFFEY

resumed the stand on behalf of the defendants; previously sworn.

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Walter Mahaffey, heretofore sworn.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. I think, Mr. Mahaffey, that we inquired about you, Mr. Bridges and some of the other gentlemen going to a nightclub after this performance, and then they went home, is that right? They left? A. Yes.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Mahaffey—well, withdraw the question.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Mahaffey, I think you testified this morning that there was some question before this meeting as to whether or not you would hold a meeting.

A. Some question of whether or not we would what?

Q. As to whether or not you would hold this meeting on Saturday [4337] night.

A. No, I think it was a question what time it would be.

Q. Pardon?

A. What time the meeting would be.

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

Q. There was no question as to the fact that there would be a meeting? A. No.

Q. And the only question was as to the time?

A. Correct.

Q. Didn't you tell us this morning, sir, that it was only a day or two at best prior to this meeting that you were informed that Mr. Bridges would be able to be there? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact, sir, that you weren't notified by telephone by Mr. Silk until at or about noon Saturday that Mr. Bridges would be there?

A. No.

Q. Do you not know, sir, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Bridges was in New York and you were uncertain as to whether he could return in time for this meeting on Saturday?

A. Say that again.

Q. Do you not know as a matter of fact that Mr. Bridges was in New York City at the time you were making arrangements for this meeting and you were uncertain as to whether he would return in time for the meeting? A. I do not, no.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No. [4338]

Q. Independent of the records which then existed made heretofore by Mr. Hallinan or others, do you have or did you have an independent recollection of the date and place of this meeting?

A. I did.

Q. You did not need these records to refresh your recollections? A. No, I did not.

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, in May of 1945 were you a member of the Long Beach Club of the Communist Political Association? A. I was not.

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, did your name appear on a brochure announcing the first California convention of the American Youth for Democracy on May 6 and 7, 1944, at the North Star Auditorium, 1631 West Adams Street, Los Angeles, California?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Will you say that it did not?

A. It did not.

Q. Are you familiar with the organization American Youth for Democracy? A. No.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all. Will you call Mr. Silk, please? I want to ask Mr. Mahaffey one or two other questions. Do you mind stepping back up again, Mr. Mahaffey? [4339]

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, within the last month or so, has any agent of the Immigration Department called upon you and interviewed you about the exact information you have testified here today?

A. Yes, they were to my house.

Q. Who?

A. A Mr. Kaiser and a Mr. Ward.

Q. Did they bring along any photostatic copy of any paper?

A. I didn't see them. In fact, the meeting was very short.

Q. They questioned you about that subject, though, did they?

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

A. Yes, they questioned me a bit and then threatened me with jail.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. When was this, Mr. Mahaffey?

A. It was right during the holiday recess of this trial.

Q. What is your best recollection of the date?

A. It was around—just before—around Christmas.

Q. Is that your best recollection of the time?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did it happen? A. At my home.

Q. And who was present?

A. Mr. Ward and Mr. Kaiser, I believe his name is. At that time I didn't know Mr. Ward.

Q. And anyone else present other than yourself? [4340] A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us who else was present?

A. My attorney.

Q. And who was your attorney?

A. Mr. George Shibley.

Q. Where does he live or where does he have his office? A. In Long Beach.

Q. What is his address, if you know?

A. It is the Hartwell Building.

Q. What building?

A. The Hartwell Building.

Q. And he was present at all times during the conversation you had with Mr. Ward?

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

A. What conversation there was, yes.

Q. Now, tell us the threat that was made and by whom, and in the language of the street?

A. It was made by Mr. Kaiser as he was leaving in his automobile. He said, "I will see you in jail."

Q. By Mr. Kaiser? A. That is correct.

Q. And where were you at the time?

A. I was standing on the opposite side of the car on the sidewalk.

Q. And where was your counsel at that time?

A. He was right alongside of me. [4341]

Q. Is this the occasion on which you told Mr. Kaiser that Mr. Henry Schmidt had on an instance at a convention in Portland, Oregon—did you ever go up north to a convention with Henry Schmidt?

A. No.

Mr. Donohue: Will Your Honor indulge me for just a minute, please?

Q. By the way, can you tell us what it was your counsel had said to Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward prior to the threat you have just testified about?

A. He asked Mr. Ward who he was.

Q. Did he tell Mr. Ward who he was?

A. Mr. Ward didn't ask him.

Q. Isn't it a fact that he told him he was your counsel and that he would not give his name?

A. He did not.

Q. And isn't it a fact that your counsel told Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward that he was familiar with the fact that the Immigration Service had been bribing people, and he had been told that they would be down there to meet you?

A. I don't believe he did.

Q. Didn't you tell Mr. Kaiser that Mr. Hallinan had called you and told you to expect a call from someone from the Immigration Service?

A. I told him that I had talked with Mr. Hallinan. I knew [4342] they were coming.

Q. What did you tell him about your call from Mr. Hallinan? A. That is all I told him.

Q. Isn't it a fact that at that time you told Mr. Kaiser that Mr. Hallinan told you not to tell him anything? A. That is not correct.

Q. And isn't it a further fact that thereupon your counsel then said, "Well, you know that Mr. Hallinan told you to tell the truth."

A. In fact, Mr. Hallinan told me to tell him anything.

Q. Mr. Hallinan said what?

A. He told me to tell him exactly what transpired when I met Mr. Hallinan.

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, did you attend a convention in Seattle in the late 1930's with Henry Schmidt?

A. Late '30's?

Q. Yes.

A. What do you mean by late '30's?

Q. Did you ever attend a convention in the late '30's with Henry Schmidt at a time when you and Henry Schmidt shared the same room in a hotel?

A. I shared the same room with him. I don't think it was in the late '30's.

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

Q. When was it? A. It was in the [4343] '30's.

Q. Do you recall an incident wherein you had some trouble keeping the room? A. I do.

Q. Do you recall telling Mr. Kaiser that on that occasion Mr. Schmidt, Mr. Henry Schmidt, the defendant here, got mad and said to you, "When are you going to get wise and join the party?"

A. No, no, no. I recall the incident, but it wasn't that at all.

Q. And you did not make that statement?

A. No.

Q. In the presence of Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward?

A. No. Mr. Kaiser and I discussed that particular thing, and he was very well convinced, and when I told him that, he said, "You would be a very reluctant witness, wouldn't you?"

Q. What did you say to him when you discussed this matter?

A. I explained, as you say, we shared the same room. It wasn't a convention. It was an executive board meeting of the longshoremen, and at that time I was the one who was angry because we rented the room and then they told us we couldn't have the room because it had previously been rented to someone else. Mr. Schmidt didn't get angry. I was the one and he took me on for getting angry about it. He was very docile.

Q. What was the occasion for bringing up this suggestion with respect to Henry Schmidt saying to you, "When are you going to [4344] get wise to yourself?"

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

A. I was blowing my top.

Q. Then it didn't happen?

A. No, not as you said it.

Q. Tell us just what was said about joining the party. A. What party? That is what I said.

Q. I am asking you. You were there. I wasn't there. A. What party are you talking about?

Q. What was said about joining any party between you and Mr. Schmidt on the occasion you are testifying about?

A. It wasn't anything like you made it out here.

Q. Tell us how it was.

A. I was blowing my top about us losing the room.

Q. Yes.

A. Because they said it had previously been rented to some convention.

Q. Yes.

A. And they hadn't told us—or we hadn't told them how long we would be there. When we rented the room, we didn't know how long we were going to be there, and I resented the fact that we had to give up our room. They were hard to get. And later on when they wanted to put us to bed in the lobby of the hotel, I wouldn't stand for it. And then we finally made an agreement that if they got us another room, we would move. And they got me another room in another hotel, and I believe they got Mr. [4345] Schmidt another room in some other hotel, and it was settled that way.

(Testimony of Walter Mahaffey.)

Q. And nothing was said by anyone about joining any party? A. No.

Q. You are sure of that? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Mahaffey, has any reward been offered to you in consideration for your testimony here today? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions, Your Honor.

MIKE SILK

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your full name to the Court and jury?

A. My name is Mike Silk.

Q. Will you spell your last name?

A. S-i-l-k.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Silk?

A. I live in Wilmington, California.

Q. And what is your occupation?

A. Longshoreman.

Q. How long have you been a longshoreman, Mr. Silk?

A. Well, steady, ever since 1933, a little [4346] before.

Q. What is your age, if I may ask?

A. What did you say?

Q. Do you mind telling us what your age is?

A. Age I think is 59 going on—I think next March will be 60.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

Q. Have you a family, Mr. Silk?

A. I got wife.

Q. Did you ever live in Stockton? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you live in Stockton?

A. Well, since '33 to '41, but I didn't always live there. My residence was there, but I used to go working in the Port of San Francisco, because they was slack there. And then I go from San Francisco on a visiting permit in San Francisco. And I used to work visiting from my own port to Los Angeles.

Q. In other words, while you lived in Stockton, when work was slack up there, you would get a visitor's permit so that you could work in San Francisco or even in Los Angeles, is that correct?

A. We come down here in San Francisco, reported to the president of the local or vice president of the local. We ask the question, we get a permit. He says yes. So we went to the Labor Relations Board. We registered. He give us a permit, and then we have the same privilege as the local in San Francisco.

Q. Were you ever an officer of the ILA? [4347]

A. I was a member of my local, executive board member, and I got elected at a convention in '36 in Pedro, ILA convention. We elected the delegates by secret ballot, and the one that gets the most votes goes to the convention.

Q. Did you go to the convention in San Pedro?

A. Yes.

Q. That was a convention of the ILA?

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

A. Yes, but another fellow—you fellows heard of him—Joseph C. Ryan was our chief commander they had.

Q. Do you know who was another delegate from your local?

A. Our finance secretary, Walter Mahaffey.

Q. Then was there a Maritime Federation convention that followed the ILA convention?

A. The ILA convention started first. That was 17 days, I think, something like that. The record is there. I don't know exactly how many days. 17 I think he was in the LA convention. The Maritime convention started a little bit afterwards, next day. I never served in the Martime convention, and I went back after our convention was finished. I went back again to Stockton.

Q. Did you leave anybody in San Pedro?

A. Mahaffey—he stayed there for days. Because I am a member and delegate, I got up a special meeting through the president and I made that report from the best of my knowledge of that convention. Therefore I made a motion to make my report. We [4348] send a night letter or telegram to bring Mahaffey back, because that was a small local, and we can't do much—we can't do much for workers there. It was mostly their mudslinging and you know, all them bigshot officers, they was fighting between themselves.

Q. Then what did you do? Did you give your proxy or did the local union give its proxy to someone else?

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

A. After this meeting was called—I think Walter got the records—it must be in the records, in the books—I made a motion to send a night letter for Mahaffey come back and give a proxy to Mr. Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt. If any vote is taken, he can use our votes any way he sees fit to better our union.

Q. After you came back, after that convention was over, were you working in San Francisco part of the time?

A. After I came back from convention, there was no work in Stockton, and I come down here and I got visiting permit from the local in San Francisco. I was working down here.

Q. Do you remember any occasion when Harry Bridges went to Stockton to report on the maritime convention?

A. I was working in San Francisco. Quite a few members from Stockton was working down there, and they insisted on me contacting Mr. Bridges and have him go to Stockton, and so—I think it was a Thursday——

Mr. Hallinan: Wait. We are getting a little ahead of [4349] ourselves. I want to use the documents again, Ed. I will put this up. Just put this up so we can put the books on it.

Q. (By the Court): Can you see that all right?

A. Yes, I remember this.

Mr. Hallinan: Wait. I am going to give Mr. Mitchell the other documents.

Q. Now, you see that photostat of the Stockton

Record that you have been shown, that black document? A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the date on it?

A. That was on June 27th.

Q. Do you see the article that is blown up there, that is made large? A. Uh-huh.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, we have heretofore objected to the use of these two newspapers as establishing a fact, and I think Your Honor had ruled only that they may be used for the purpose of refreshing the recollection of the witness.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all I want them for.

Q. Do you see the piece down at the bottom of the Stockton Record on the previous meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. Then you see the enlargement I just pointed to at the top of the paper? [4350] A. Yes.

Q. I want to show you the day book of the union. I just put a pencil mark opposite the date.

A. You mean the 29th?

Q. Yes. A. I was back in Frisco.

Q. Yes, but that just shows the payment of the hall. But now taking the two newspapers, Mr. Silk —never mind that document for a minute—taking those two newspapers, do they refresh your recollection as to the date on which Harry Bridges spoke at the Stockton union?

A. I remember that pretty well because I forgot all about it and——

Q. Answer the question. By looking at these papers, can you refresh your recollection as to what date that meeting was held?

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

A. Oh, I remember well.

Q. What date was it?

A. It was held Saturday night.

Q. Saturday night. A. Saturday night.

Q. What date? A. On June 27th.

Q. 1936?

A. That was on a Saturday. [4351]

Q. Mr. Silk, did you go to that meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you get there?

A. I went from San Francisco with Bridges and Henry Schmidt and Billy Christensen and a fellow named Jack Crowley.

Q. Did you go in an automobile or what?

A. We went in Mr. Christensen's automobile.

Q. Do you know who arranged to have Harry Bridges go to Stockton? A. I did.

Q. When did you make that arrangement with him?

A. I was—talked with Mr. Bridges on a Thursday or Friday. I wouldn't swear, but I think it was—Friday or Thursday—and he told me, asked him, "Harry, will you go to Stockton and give a little pep talk to our membership there?" He said, "If you make arrangement with Mahaffey," he says, "I'll go."

Q. I will take these so we can use the microphone again.

Now, Mr. Silk, I have shown you all these papers before you came to court, is that right?

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

A. What?

Q. You have seen all these papers before you came to court? You do not have to look at them in court, is that right? A. Yes, I saw them.

Q. You say that Harry Bridges went up with you and the other men you named to Stockton on Saturday, June 27th, 1936? [4352]

A. Yes, sir..

Q. And you say you made the arrangements for him to go up there on either Thursday or Friday?

A. Yes. I won't swear—I know it was Thursday or Friday. I don't recollect which one of them days that it was.

Q. Was it Thursday or Friday of that same week that he went up there or some other week?

A. That was on a Thursday or Friday. We left on Saturday for Stockton.

Q. So you made the arrangements, then, for him to go to Stockton one or two days before the meeting was held, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. When you made the arrangements for Harry Bridges, did you telephone to Stockton or do anything to acquaint them with the fact that you had Harry Bridges?

A. I talked to Mahaffey on the telephone, and Mahaffey kind of give me a bawling out. He said, "Why didn't you call before?" At that time I was working. I ain't had much money. What little change I have, when I struck the job, I was working. I have no time to call him up, only them days, on Thursday or Friday I called him up, and finally he said, "Call me up later. I will let you know."

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

So on Saturday afternoon I called him up and he says, "Yes, I will make arrangements, and we have a meeting in Teamsters Hall." [4353]

Q. Was there any complaint by Mahaffey that there would not be enough time to get a hall and get a crowd there between the time you talked to Bridges and the meeting on Saturday night?

A. That is what he told me. I said, "I can't help it. I used to tell you. You tell me. If you make arrangements for the meeting," I tell him, "I can't bring Bridges." He said, "He will go if you arrange the meeting."

That was a question between me and Mahaffey.

Q. Then, do you remember the meeting being held and Bridges speaking?

A. Yes, I was right there in the meeting—go ahead.

Q. Do you remember who else spoke?

A. Schmidt, who was talking a few minutes, Billy Christensen—Mahaffey gave him an introduction and he talked—and I made a few remarks meself, and Bridges was the main speaker.

Q. Do you remember about what time the meeting finished?

A. Well, according to the old fellows there, have no watch on me—they claimed Bridges talked for nearly two hours.

Q. After the meeting did you go any place with any of those men?

A. Yes, our officers, Bridges and all that bunch was with us, our executive board members, we went to Marioni's nightclub—floor show there. We was there, had a few drinks, lots of fun, watched the full floor show, and one thing and another.

Q. Then did you go back to San Francisco with Christensen? A. Yes, sir. [4354]

Q. Then what did you do? Come right through or what happened?

A. No, we stopped in Oakland. We went to Billy Christensen's. His wife was still in bed. He rang the bell, I suppose. She got up, opened the door, made the coffee, and were there approximately, I should say, maybe an hour. Then Christensen said, "Well, fellows," he said, "I got to have a little sleep and take you fellows to Frisco." He took us to Frisco, in front of the dispatch hall, the local in San Francisco, Bridges went his way and I went mine to a hotel, and that is all.

Q. On Thursday or Friday, that is, one day or two days before the meeting in Stockton, were you talking to Harry Bridges in San Francisco?

A. Certainly I was talking to him, asking him if he would make a trip——

Q. Are you certain of that? A. What?

Q. Are you certain of that?

A. Why, certainly I am certain.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all. I would say this, Your Honor, I would like again to offer these documents in evidence. I suggest this, that it might be a question of the date in the minds of the jurors whether the documents the witnesses say refresh their recollection or not logically or reasonably do so, and I offer them for the purpose of allowing the jury to pass [4355] upon the reasonableness of the recollection from an inspection of the documents. I think that under those circumstances the documents should be admitted. If there is any question in the mind of the prosecution, if they raise any point that the meeting was not held at that particular date, I think the jury should be entitled to inspect the documents from which the witnesses refresh their recollection. They are all things that occurred years ago, records that were made, neutral papers, no possible chance that it could be foreseen that 13 or 14 years afterwards one would have to create something like this, and I think the jury should look at them.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, with respect, of course, to the union records, the letter which was identified as a copy of a letter written by Mr. Mahaffey, we offer no objection, but I can not create by an agreement with Mr. Hallinan a principle which the law does not recognize, and the law does not recognize a newspaper account of a fact as proof of that fact.

Mr. Hallinan: If Mr. Donohue makes no objection, I am sure nobody else will, Your Honor, the law or nobody else. If he has no objection to it, there is no reason why the jury should not look at them. As I say, it is not for the purpose of establishing a fact by the newspapers, but for the purpose of determining if the matters which the witnesses say refresh their recollection as to the date should not inevitably do so.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

The Court: They may be marked for identification. [4356]

Mr. Hallinan: We will offer at this time, at any rate, the copy of the letter that Mr. Mahaffey wrote to the Voice of the Federation, and I will ask to substitute a photostat of it for the original letter.

The Court: That may be marked in evidence.

> (Copy of letter, Mahaffey to Voice of the Federation, was thereupon received in evidence and marked Defendants' Exhibit Q-1.)

Mr. Hallinan: One other question I had forgotten: Mr. Silk, do you know Henry Schrimpf?

A. Sure I know him.

Q. Have you known him for a long time?

A. I know him ever since 1934.

Q. Were you and he quite friendly?

A. We was pretty good friends.

Q. Did you ever hear him talk about Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt?

A. Well, exactly I won't commit myself because, you know, had an affection between themselves and I don't want to go on them damn records at all, because you and I talking together, maybe you don't like the man and maybe I do. You know what I mean? I know he wasn't very good friends. I know that. That is as far as I may go.

Q. You know he and Henry Schmidt and Harry Bridges were not very good friends? [4357]

A. Sure.

Q. Did you ever hear him say that about them?

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

A. We were talking about it on the job. I heard it discussed. You know, when in Rome do like the Romans do. Working in San Francisco, I have to be a right fellow. I have to get a few dollars in my pocket. If I was siding with Schrimpf or say something against him, the officers in the organization, the first thing they would chase me back to Stockton. So I was a good guy and mind my own business and do the work what I was supposed to do.

Q. Tell me this: What is the worst thing you ever heard Schrimpf say about Henry Schmidt?

A. What did you say? [4358]

Q. What is the worst thing you ever heard Schrimpf say about Henry Schmidt?

A. Well, he didn't like Schmidt because he was running for Executive Board of ILA. Finally votes was taken on Pedro; Schmidt beat him. So it was in his craw, he thought he would be better man on Executive Board than Schmidt. Delegates from California elected Schmidt. Then after that I don't think he had any love for each other, and this Schmidt here used to tell me about it. I never go butting in that.

Q. Did he blame Bridges for Schmidt being elected over him?

A. Well, I think in a way he did, yes.

Q. Did he hate Bridges, too?

A. I don't think he ever had no use for Schmidt—Bridges or Schmidt, because I don't know—all together I want to keep my nose out of that.

Mr. Hallinan: I see. All right. That is all.

The Court: We will take the recess. We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case or form or express an opinion.

(Recess.)

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Silk, do you remember where it was you saw Harry Bridges and asked him about going to Stockton to [4359] make the speech?

A. That was right there in the dispatching hall on Clay Street. He had an office behind the dispatching office.

Q. It was in his office that you talked with him?

A. Yes, I saw him in the dispatching hall that day, too, right in front of it.

Q. About what time was it, do you recall Mr. Silk, that you talked to him about the speech in Stockton?

A. I think around—around forenoon.

Q. In the forenoon?

A. Yes, around in the neighborhood—I ain't had no watch exactly. I know it must be around forenoon, the best I remember.

Q. Do you remember what time it was when you left by automobile to go to Stockton?

A. Approximately around one o'clock. I know

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

I had lunch, then I went down there, and he was there around the hall, and Jack Crowley asked me, "Where you going?" and I said, "I am going to Stockton with Harry Bridges. He is going to make a speech in Stockton."

He says, "Can I go with you guys?"

I says, "Ask Mr. Christensen. He owns the car."

Q. It was after lunch?

A. After lunch, yes.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you got to Stockton? [4360]

A. Approximately around five o'clock. It was close to sundown. You know what I mean; the sun was pretty well down.

Q. Do you recall now that it was on the same day on which you talked to Mr. Bridges about making the speech that you took an automobile and went to Stockton? A. What do you mean?

Q. Do you remember now that it was on the same day as the day on which you asked Mr. Bridges to make the speech that you took the automobile and went to Stockton?

A. I talked to Mr. Bridges about going to the meeting a couple of days before. I don't know; I think it was on a Thursday or Friday I was talking to Bridges. Bridges told me, he says, "If you want me up there, make arrangements for me. I am ready to go with you any time for meeting arranged for me."

Q. Can you tell us where that conversation took place between you and Bridges?

A. Right down there in his office, in the dispatching hall, longshoremen, on Clay Street.

Q. And you don't know now whether it was Thursday or Friday?

A. Exactly I don't know, help me God, I don't. I know it was Thursday or Friday because Mahaffey told me, "I ain't going to have enough publicized meeting."

I says, "My God, you got the whole bunch, warehousemen, longshoremen, bargemen was all together." That was the ones he is going to talk to; maybe other members of other unions [4361] was there, because we was belong to AFL down there.

Q. Do you recall the time of day it was that you asked Mr. Bridges to make the speech in Stockton?

A. I told you I was talking to him Thursday or Friday.

Q. Do you recall what time of day on Thursday or Friday?

A. It was around, I think forenoon, if I remember right.

Q. Do you recall that you were working either or both of those days, Thursday and Friday?

A. Eh?

Q. Do you recall whether or not you were working on either Thursday or Friday at the time you talked to Mr. Bridges?

A. Well, I was working around there. Best look on the record from the shipowners. I can't remember all those. I know I was working.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

Q. You don't remember either where you were working on either of those two days?

A. The only way for you people to find out, shipowners got record every day I ever worked down there or any other place, because he has got the records: I don't remember.

Q. Have you ever said before, Mr. Silk, that in fact you asked Harry Bridges on Saturday whether he would make the speech that night in Stockton?

A. We was—Government agent was in my apartment in Wilmington. This meeting was out of my mind, I never even think about. Two Government agents was there. [4362]

Q. When, Mr. Silk?

A. About—I think about three weeks ago, maybe a little longer.

Q. Between Christmas and New Year's?

A. Eh?

Q. Was it between Christmas and New Year's?

A. No, it was after that.

Q. After that? A. After that, yes.

Q. Will you tell us what happened?

A. Then he asked me questions and I was absolutely forgot it. I ain't a little boy, remember everything; I ain't got no records with me. The only reason, I see the Los Angeles News about this speech Bridges was making at meeting, and I told my wife, I says, "My God, I remember that," I says. "I was with him from San Francisco to Stockton. I was on a visit from San Francisco." So I told her about it. After I see the Stockton Record memorize better, and I told Mr. Kaiser that I was talking to him on a Saturday, I talked to Mr. Bridges. Lots of things I don't remember. And I says, "Exactly what is going, if it was a couple of months or so, I remember it. This must be twelve or thirteen years ago."

Q. Do you remember now that several weeks ago when you talked to Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward—do you know that the other gentleman was Mr. Ward from the Immigration Service? [4363]

A. Know was two of them, name of Mr. Kaiser; and I think is another guy, what do you call it—is here; that is his name.

Q. Was it Mr. Ward?

A. Yes (handing card to the Court).

The Court: Leslie Ward.

Mr. Donohue: I think that is it, if your Honor please.

A. Because that day he was over there meeting arrangement with Bridges is meeting to talk in Los Angeles CIO Building, and I was already dressed up to go, and I going and my wife going to listen to him make a talk. And after all this conversation with Kaiser was asking me lots of things, I told him I don't remember exactly. I don't. Only thing what I remember right is certain things; certain things I don't remember.

He asked me where I going that night. I told him I go to Los Angeles. And he did ask me, too, if Bridges' attorney or others come up talk about anything. I said, "No, he never did." So he asked me, he says, "If you want to go Los Angeles," he says, "I take you."

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

I says, "No, I am not going with you, because I made arrangements with one guy Walter, he is going to take me over there."

And finally he told me he might come back, and he going to ask me my opinion what kind of a speech Bridges has made. [4364]

I made the statement to Mr. Kaiser, I says, "The way I hear it, being open meeting, if you want to go you welcome to that meeting."

Mr. Kaiser says, "I don't think I will go. Them fellows knows me."

So this gentleman, a few days afterwards he come back, and him and his wife and a little bit of a boy about that high, he asked me about the meeting. I told him Bridges made a speech ever since our union born, and he was giving everybody details, one thing and another. I says, "Why you don't go up there, because it was open meeting to everybody?"

And this gentleman says, he says, "Mike, we had people up there. That was correspondence between me and this gentleman here."

Q. The day that Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward came down to see you—up until that time you hadn't talked with Mr. Bridges or anyone associated with the Bridges Defense Committee; correct?

A. I ain't got it.

Q. Do you recall the day that Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward came to your house? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to that time had anyone from the Bridges Defense Committee or Mr. Bridges contacted or talked to you? A. No.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

Q. The day that Mr. Ward and Mr. Kaiser came to your house [4365] is the day of the night on which you went to hear Mr. Bridges make a speech in Los Angeles; correct?

A. Mr. Kaiser, according to my wife's statement, he was there after noon, I don't know what time, and he asked what am I working, and my wife told him I was working. Mr. Kaiser asked her, according to my wife's statement, he says, "What time will Mike be home?"

My wife says, "I can't exactly tell you. If he work nine hours he be back around 6:15. If the job finish early, he might come any time—any time."

So Mr. Kaiser asked, "Do you think be sure he worked nine hours, I be there 6:15."

She says, "Most of the time he always come around after 15 minutes or 20 minutes after 6."

So naturally I was all ready—I never expected to see anybody from Government officials, and quick as I come home my wife says, "Government men was looking for you, Mike."

So I says, "My God, what he got to do with me?"

She says, "He was asking you about the time you be home. I told him you be home around 6:15."

About that time these two gentlemen came.

Q. Was that the night on which you went to hear Mr. Bridges speak?

A. Yes, that was 6:15 or 6:20; maybe Mr. Kaiser or this gentleman knows what time. I never looked at the watch. [4366] It was after six, because I was eating my supper, them fellows waiting until I have a bite to eat.

Q. What time was it Mr. Bridges spoke that night? A. Around 8 o'clock or 8:30.

Q. While Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward were at your house on this night did you tell them that at approximately one or 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 27, 1936, you went to the ILA hiring hall on Clay Street, saw Harry Bridges, and asked if he would speak at Stockton that night?

A. I was talking to him, made the arrangement for the meeting. I told Mr. Kaiser lots of things I don't remember, but this memorize me after I saw that article. Mr. Kaiser even had the article, showed it to me, give me no chance to read it, because I was anxious to go with the wife—that is the meeting in the Stockton Record. So after this Bridges' attorney show me that Stockton paper memorize my mind better than it did before.

Q. Do you recall now, Mr. Silk, whether you did make that statement to Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward?

A. Eh?

Q. Do you recall now whether or not you did make a statement to Mr. Ward and Mr. Kaiser that you had asked Mr. Bridges to speak at the Stockton meeting about 1 or 1:30 on Saturday, the day of the night on which the speech was made?

A. I was talking to him. He asked me so many questions, lots [4367] of things I don't remember. He never marked anything there. We was just talking like you and I, going in the other room talking,

He was change different subjects; he ask me that day if when we went to Stockton Mr. Bridges was tired. He says, "Did he make any remarks," he says, "about he was making a trip?"

I says, "He never did." We was only talking union activity, where you are working under slave conditions, have organized, then we was talking how we would enjoy ourselves when we got—shipowners recognized our unions. That is what the conversation was. Lots of things was talking zigzag. I did told him, I says, "I better leave"——

The Court: Mr. Silk, may I interrupt you? Can you understand the question that Mr. Donohue asked you originally? Let's get that original question.

Mr. Donohue: I will be glad to repeat it.

The Court: If you don't understand the question, say you can't understand. If you understand the question, would you answer it Yes or No.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Do you remember now, Mr. Silk, whether or not you told Mr. Ward and Mr. Kaiser at your home that you asked Harry Bridges between 1 and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday to make a speech on that same Saturday night at Stockton?

A. I talked to Mr. Bridges. I talked to Mr. Bridges and I told him that Mahaffey arranged the meeting that night at [4368] Stockton. I talked to Mr. Bridges a day or two before that.

Q. I understand that is what you say, Mr. Silk.

A. That is what coming in my mind after I see the whole picture of the doggone meeting we went to.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

Q. I ask you now, Do you recall at this moment whether or not you did tell Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Ward at your home that you invited Mr. Bridges to speak at the Stockton meeting between 1 and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, the day of the night on which he did in fact make the speech?

A. My God, how could I say this? How could I make a meeting on five minutes in time?

Q. Let me ask you another question, Mr. Silk;

A. Go ahead.

Q. Do you remember that you told Mr. Ward and Mr. Kaiser that you telephoned Walter Mahaffey and told him that Bridges would appear and that while you held the phone Mahaffey called the union hall, Teamsters Hall, to see if it was available for the meeting that night? A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't say that?

A. No. If he did, somebody put in a story.

Q. Do you remember that subsequently Mr. Ward and his wife and little boy came back to your house? A. Yes. [4369]

Q. Do you recall that they showed you a piece of paper and read it to you?

A. He didn't read it to me. He asked me to read it. I says, "What is that?"

He says, "You know what we was talking about with Mr. Kaiser and," he says, "read it." He says, "Will you sign it?"

I says, "I don't sign anything on that case, because I don't remember everything what you guys asked me." That is what I told him. I never signed nothing.

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

Q. Did you read the paper?

A. I looked at it, and then I passed it—he says, "Let the wife read it." So she looked at it. And she says, "There is nothing wrong there."

I says, "Myself, I don't sign anything, because I know lots of things I don't remember. I don't want to sign nothing."

And he made a step, and he says, "Well," he said, "that is all right. I will send the statement up there." He says, "If you won't sign the statement, no matter; if you sign or not, I am going to send the statement."

The reason I won't read the statement, because he never write anything before me that night he was talking to me the first time, never used any writing, any correspondence, so I don't know what them people put in that paper.

Q. Mr. Silk, isn't it a fact that you and your wife both [4370] read the paper?

A. I never did read it. I looked at it and I put it to him. He says, "Mr. Silk, will you read it?"

He handed it to my wife, she looked at it, and then she handed it to me, and he asked me to sign it. I won't sign it, because lots of things may be in that paper, and I don't remember. I want to be honest to God, tell the truth what I know. If I don't know, I keep my mouth shut.

Q. Mr. Silk, isn't it a fact after you read the paper you then said to Mr. Ward, "The statements

(Testimony of Mike Silk.)

I made in there are true, but I won't sign that affidavit because I don't want to get mixed up in this matter"? A. No, I never say that.

Q. You didn't say that? A. No, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: Call Mr. McDonald, please.

The Court: You are excused.

GERALD C. McDONALD

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury, please.

The Witness: Gerald C. McDonald. [4371]

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. McDonald, what is your occupation, please? A. Longshoreman.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Since 1933.

Q. Where do you work?

A. Stockton, California.

Q. Do you live there also? A. I do, sir.

Q. Have you a family, Mr. McDonald?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does it consist of?

A. Four children—my wife and four children.

Q. And do you belong to the ILWU?

A. I do.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. Prior to the ILWU did you also belong to the ILA? A. I did.

Q. And did you occupy any position as an officer in it? A. I was recording secretary.

Q. Now, you kept the minutes of the meetings, and so forth? A. I did.

Q. We have here the minutes including a special meeting of May 21, 1936, and I will ask you whose handwriting that document is in. [4372]

A. That is my handwriting.

Mr. Hallinan: And might I say that the document is the original of Defendants' Exhibit O-1, that photostat.

Q. Now, refreshing your recollection from that document, and especially from the end of it—there is no necessity; I am sorry; I hadn't remembered I introduced that. That is in evidence.

At the end of it it tells of the transfer of the proxies at the Maritime Federation convention to the San Francisco local. Do you notice that, Mr. McDonald? A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you remember a time after that when Harry Bridges made a talk in Stockton?

A. I do.

Q. Now, I have given you there a photostatic copy of the Stockton Record, and I pointed to an item in it. You have seen that document before, have you, Mr. McDonald? A. I have, yes.

Q. I showed it to you on a previous occasion?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. Then I also presented to you a copy of the Voice of the Federation and indicated a particular article in it in the issue of July 2, 1936; is that right? A. Right.

Q. I also have here a book of the expenditures of the union. [4373] I will ask you in whose handwriting that book is. A. That is my writing.

Q. Now, refreshing your recollection from those three documents, Mr. McDonald, can you tell us on what day it was that Harry Bridges made the speech in Stockton? A. June 27, 1936.

Q. And what was the first intimation that you had that Mr. Bridges was going to give the speech at Stockton?

A. Do you mean when I first heard that he was going to give it?

Q. Yes.

A. On Thursday or Friday before the Saturday that this meeting was held.

Q. Then what was the information you received?

A. Mike Silk had called from San Francisco to Mahaffey and told him that Bridges would be up there Saturday night.

Mr. Donohue: We object to the conversation, if your Honor please.

The Court: Just a minute.

Mr. Hallinan: I think he is entitled to tell that.

Mr. Donohue: He isn't entitled, if your Honor please, to describe a conversation had between other persons.

The Court: The fact that he had the conversation is admissible; the contents may be excluded.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): What was the conversation that you [4374] had, not what Silk and Mahaffey may have had?

A. Mahaffey told me that Bridges would be in Stockton Saturday night for a meeting.

Q. Was there any difficulty regarding the shortness of time between the notice that he would come to the meeting? A. Yes, there was.

Q. What was the difficulty?

A. Well, the first thing we started discussing was such short notice to get all of our members and members of the other ILA unions around town at a meeting, especially on a Saturday night.

Mr. Hallinan: I think I have a copy of that account. If not, I will bring it out in the morning, your Honor. I ask that it be substituted for the book itself. I didn't introduce a copy of the page of the account book?

The Court: No.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Will you take a look at that account book, that page, and read off to us the second from the last item.

A. On June 29, "Cash for hall, chairs and entertainment for Bridges meeting, $19.80."

Q. Whose handwriting is that in?

A. My handwriting.

Mr. Hallinan: We will offer in evidence, if the Court please, that page of the document, and as I say, if I may, I [4375] will substitute a photostatic reproduction of it.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Mr. Donohue: We have no objection, if your Honor please.

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: May that be marked Defendants' R-1, your Honor.

> (Copy of page of account book was marked Defendants' Exhibit R-1.) [4376]

Q. You have read the articles in this paper on the matter of the meeting? A. I have.

Q. A copy of the issue of July 9th of the Voice of the Federation (I just pointed to an article in it)—you have seen that article before?

A. I have.

Q. Can you refresh your recollection from that again as to whether or not the persons named in it appeared at the times indicated there and Mr. Bridges made a talk?

A. Yes, on that I know they were there.

Q. Who else spoke there, do you know?

A. Schmidt spoke and Christensen.

Q. After the meeting adjourned, did you go any place with those gentlemen? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not go to the night club with them?

A. No.

Q. On the subsequent Monday, the ensuing Monday, then, I take it, you made the notation in the cash book for the expenditure of the money for the hall, chairs and entertainment, is that right?

A. I did.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all. [4377]

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. May, when did you first have occasion to recall this meeting?

A. I don't know just what you mean.

Q. When was the question as to whether or not there was such a meeting first posed to you since the day of the meeting itself?

A. Oh, about a month or five weeks ago.

Q. Under what circumstances was it called to your attention?

A. Jewarski, the president of our organization, asked me if I remembered about the Bridges meeting.

Q. What was your then recollection?

A. I told him—he asked me if I knew the date when it was. I said no, but I knew it was on Saturday night.

Q. Then by referring to your union records you came to the conclusion as to what Saturday night it was held, correct? A. That is right.

Q. When or with whom did you next discuss it?

A. Mr. Leonard.

Q. When and where did you see Mr. Leonard?

A. Oh, about three weeks ago in Stockton.

Q. Do you know Mr. Leonard's first name?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. And he came to Stockton to discuss it with you? A. He and some other gentleman.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. Do you know who the other gentlemen [4378] were? A. Lipstick or——

Q. Was it Mr. Lipsit?

A. That sounds like it.

Q. Was there anyone else with him?

A. That is all, two men.

Q. When did you first have occasion to recall when it was that Mr. Mahaffey told you he knew that Mr. Bridges was coming to make the speech?

A. I don't get—will you state——

Q. Do you recall testifying a moment ago that Mr. Mahaffey told you on either the Thursday or Friday prior to the Saturday upon which you say the speech was made, that Mr. Mahaffey told you that Mr. Bridges was in fact going to make the speech? Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first have occasion to recall that fact?

A. Oh, I told that to Jewarski when this was first mentioned. I told him the whole story.

Q. What did you tell him then?

A. I told him about Mahaffey receiving calls from Mike Silk, stating that Bridges was going to be in Stockton Saturday night and we were all hollering because it was going to be on Saturday night, such short notice.

Q. Do you recall then that it was on Thursday or Friday that Mr. Mahaffey gave you that information? [4379] A. Yes.

Q. Now, can you tell us more precisely whether it was Thursday or Friday?

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

A. Well, that far back I couldn't tell you whether it was Thursday or Friday.

Q. Could it have been Wednesday?

A. I doubt if it could have been Wednesday.

Q. Could it have been Saturday?

A. It could not have been that soon, no.

Q. It could have been Friday? A. Yes.

Q. But it could not have been on Saturday?

A. I don't think it could have been, no.

Q. What is your best recollection of the time of day on which you got that information?

A. I think it was around the morning, but I wouldn't say for sure about that.

Q. It was on the morning of either——

A. Thursday or Friday.

Q. Thursday or Friday, and do you recall where you may have been or in fact were at the time Mr. Mahaffey gave you this information?

A. I was in the office of the union.

Q. And that is where you are regularly employed in the office of the union? [4380]

A. I was at that time.

Q. How long have you been a member of the ILWU? A. Since 1933.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. One thing I forgot. There is a letter I want to show you here. I am showing you a letter there, a copy of a letter, purporting to be from Walter Mahaffey to Mr. B. Mayes, Editor, Voice of the Federation. It has been received in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit Q-1. Have you seen that document before? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. When did you last see it?

A. You mean the original document?

Q. That document.

A. When I took it out of the files when Leonard and Lip——

Q. Lipsit.

A. Lipstick was up at Stockton.

Q. What did you do with it?

A. I gave it to them.

Q. Gave it ot Mr. Leonard or Mr. Lipsit?

A. Yes.

Q. You found that in the regular files of the union that you had charge of, is that right?

A. Yes. [4381]

Q. Was there anybody there when you removed that? Did you have any difficulty locating it or anything of the kind?

A. We had a little trouble finding it. Mr. Devonshire didn't think we could find it. We were both looking through the files and I pulled it out.

Q. You were making a search, then, to determine the exact date which that meeting took place?

A. Yes.

Q. That document was drawn by you from the files and turned over to Mr. Leonard?

A. Right.

(Testimony of Gerald C. McDonald.)

Q. The document reads on the headline of the International Longshoremen's Association, Local 38-93, ILA, 28 West Main Street, Telephone 7201, "Affiliated with American Federation of Labor, International Transport Workers' Federation and Trades and Labor Congress of Canada."

"Stockton, Calif., June 29, 1936.

"Mr. B. Mayes, Editor
"Voice of the Federation
"120 Golden Gate Ave.
"San Francisco, Calif.

"At a special meeting Saturday night, June 27th, held in Teamsters Hall, the Longshoremen, Bargemen, Warehousemen and Ship Clerks were addressed by brothers Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and William Christensen, of Local 38-79. [4382]

"The speakers were very well received and the membership expressed themselves as desirous of having them back again as soon as possible.

"Brother Bridges was given an invitation to speak in Stockton, on Labor Day. We sincerely hope he accepts as this is to be the biggest celebration Labor has ever had in this city.

"Fraternally yours, Walter Mahaffey, Sect. Local 38-93, I.L.A., Stockton, Calif."

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Mayes: Do you recall that in the issue of July 9th of the Voice of the Federation it does appear in that article that Mr. Bridges was invited to speak on Labor Day also? A. It does say that, yes.

Q. Let me ask you this now: Do you have around your place now any of the letterhead of the ILA upon which this is written?

A. You mean blank ones?

Q. Yes.

A. Might have. I don't know for sure.

Q. The telephone number would be different, would it?

A. It is different now, yes. You mean on our new stationery?

Q. Yes.

A. It would be different, yes.

Q. I wonder how long ago it was that the telephone was 7201, do you know? [4383]

A. Well, when they put in the dial system they put in another number.

Q. What about the address, 28 West Main Street? Is that where you are still located?

A. No.

Q. How long ago did you move from 28 West Main Street?

A. We moved from 28 West Main in 1937.

Q. So that you wouldn't have letterheads printed with an address 28 West Main Street for at least 13 years, is that right? A. No.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

The Court: The witness is excused.

Mr. Hallinan: Now, I have several witnesses, your Honor, that are in attendance, most of them along this same line, but I do not see how we could get one of them through by 4:00.

The Court: It is approximately 4:00 o'clock now. We will take the adjournment, then, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock, and may I again admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor suffer or permit any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial. You are not to form or express an opinion on the matter until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Thursday, January 26, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4384]

Thursday, January 26, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. MacInnis: Call Dewey Mead.

DEWEY MEAD

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Dewey Mead.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Mead, were you born in the State of California? A. I was, sir.

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

Q. And am I correctly informed that you were born around Sacramento?

A. I was born in Sacramento.

Q. And you spent the early years of your life in the City of Oakland, is that correct? A. I did.

Q. And have been a resident of the City of San Francisco for about how many years?

A. Since 1919.

Q. About 31 years? [4385]

A. Yes, sir, just about.

Q. What has been your business or profession over the years, Mr. Mead?

A. Well, for many, many years I worked as a journeyman painter and decorator. For 15 years I represented the Painters and Decorators affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Q. Pardon me. Was that an elective office which you held with the American Federation of Labor?

A. Yes, elected every year.

Q. What was the title which you then held?

A. Business Representative.

Q. And after that time did you retire from the labor movement and go into private business?

A. Well, during that time I was also president of the San Francisco Building and Construction Trades Council for many years.

Q. For about how many years were you president of that council?

A. Seven or eight; I am not quite sure.

Q. And will you tell the Court and jury what the San Francisco Building and Trades Council may be.

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

A. It is the parent body for all the building trades craftsmen.

Q. And you were president of that body for about seven or [4386] eight years here in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when did you go into private business, Mr. Mead?

A. I retired from the San Francisco Building and Construction Trades Council in 1937, February 1, to be exact.

Q. And at the present time what is your business or profession?

A. I am in the painting and decorating business, contracting business.

Q. What is the name of that business?

A. Dewey Mead & Company.

Q. You operate that business here within the City of San Francisco?

A. Yes. It is not confined—my efforts are not confined to the City and County of San Francisco, however.

Q. Have you held any elective office in the City and County of San Francisco for some years?

A. Yes, I have been a member of the San Francisco City and County Board of Supervisors for fifteen years.

Q. And you are at present a member of the Board of Supervisors? A. I am.

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

Q. Now, do you know a man named Harry Bridges? A. Yes, I do.

Q. And do you know a man named Henry Schmidt? A. Yes, I do.

Q. For about how many years have you known those two men? [4387]

A. I met them both—I am sure that I met Mr. Bridges in 1934; I believe both of them since 1934.

Q. Did you meet him in the course of the 1934 strike or in some matters pertaining to the strike?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And following that time have you had occasion to meet those two men over the years?

A. Occasionally, yes.

Q. And have you met them at social gatherings as well as political gatherings?

A. Yes; I have.

Q. Have you appeared with Mr. Bridges on various panels or forums conducted within this City and County?

A. Yes, I have. I appeared on one panel sponsored by the San Francisco Chronicle.

Q. And what was that, Mr. Mead?

A. It was a panel representative of labor and employers.

Q. Was that the panel on which the participants were yourself, Mr. Bridges and Mr. J. D. Zellerbach? A. Yes, it was.

Q. In addition to your acquaintanceship with Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt over the period of the past sixteen years, have you heard those two men discussed in this community by other persons?

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

A. Oh, yes; yes, I have. [4388]

Q. You have heard their reputation discussed?

A. I have.

Q. Now, from all of those bases,—your own knowledge of the men and such conversation as you have had or overheard by other persons regarding Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt,—are you familiar with the reputation of each of those men in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. What is the reputation of Mr. Bridges in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. As far as I personally know, very good.

Q. What is the reputation of Mr. Schmidt in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Very good, to the best of my knowledge.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Are you here in response to a subpoena, Mr. Mead? A. I am, sir.

Q. And when was the subpoena served on you?

A. Yesterday.

Q. Prior to the service of that subpoena had you discussed your testimony with any person or persons?

A. I didn't discuss my testimony with them, no.

Q. Did you discuss the question as to whether or not you would [4389] appear? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with whom did you discuss that question?

A. Well, now, unfortunately, I can't think of the man's name. I know him very well. The gentleman I discussed the question with whether I should appear or would appear left for Seattle, I believe, this morning. I am just trying to think of his name. It won't come to my mind at the moment.

Q. Was he a member of the Bridges-Schmidt-Robertson Defense Committee, to your knowledge?

A. I believe so.

Q. Was he a member of the bar?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And when did you have that discussion with him?

A. That was sometime last week. I might add, however, that I had lunch with this gentleman and Mr. MacInnis yesterday noon. At the outset, however, I advised the gentlemen that I spoke to that I would appear if and when I were subpoenaed.

Q. Can you tell us, Mr. Mead, with whom you have discussed the question of the good reputation of Mr. Bridges and/or Mr. Schmidt?

A. No, I couldn't name names. Over the period of many, many years since 1934 Mr. Bridges' name has been brought up in various discussions from time to time. It would involve hundreds of people; I couldn't begin to give you the names of [4390] them.

Q. Can you give us the name of any person with whom you have discussed the good reputation of Mr. Bridges and/or Mr. Schmidt?

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

A. No, I am afraid not; not at the moment.

Q. Among the hundreds of persons with whom you have discussed Mr. Bridges, did you ever hear any person state that, in his opinion, Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. On how many occasions would you say you have heard that said?

A. Well, I wouldn't know, because the people that I discussed that matter with, who made that statement, in my opinion, weren't in a position to know exactly what they were talking about. I take their statements with a grain of salt. I don't know that the man is a Communist, and I don't believe that they do either.

Q. Can you tell us who it might have been who said that Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I am afraid I couldn't name names.

Q. At any time, Mr. Mead, do you recall offering your support to the People's World?

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall whether or not on the 31st of December of 1938 you wrote a letter to the People's World offering your [4391] services to the People's World sustaining fund drive?

A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. You don't recall it?

A. What was the date again, please?

Q. December 31, 1938.

A. I don't recall it.

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

Q. At any itme, Mr. Mead, during the years you have held public office, have you solicited political assistance from Harry Bridges or the organization which he represents?

A. I have not. I have been requested to appear before their organization for the purpose of interrogation.

Q. And have you so appeared?

A. I believe I appeared at one election.

Q. Do you recall when that was?

A. Or prior to one election.

Q. Do you recall when that was?

A. Well, it must have been the election prior to the last election that I was returned to office, because during the last election I was in the hospital and made no campaign whatsoever. So it must have been the time before. [4392]

Q. Is your testimony here this morning, Mr. Mead, in any way influenced or affected by the fact that you may have some political aspirations in the future? A. Absolutely none whatsoever, sir.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Mead, I suppose that in your activities as a member of the Board of Supervisors, you are called upon to speak to many blocs of our citizenry regardless of their political creed, whether they be

(Testimony of Dewey Mead.)

Republicans, Democrats or members of the smaller political groups?

A. Yes, of course that is correct.

Q. And I take it that you don't endorse any one of those particular groups by appearing before them? A. Not necessarily, no.

Q. Now, might I refresh your memory by suggesting that the man who contacted you was Mr. Germaine Bulcke?

A. Bulcke, that's right.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: One further question, if your Honor pleases.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Mead, on the 5th of August, 1945, did you insert an ad in the People's World which stated, "The Daily Worker is the outstanding pro-Labor daily paper in the Bay Area; for that reason alone it deserves the support of every member of [4393] a labor organization"?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions, your Honor.

Further Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Well, Mr. Mead, do you have any connection whatsoever with any Communist organization?

A. I certainly do not. I think I made that very clear at the Board of Supervisors meeting last Monday, when I suggested in no uncertain terms that any Communists, in my opinion, if they weren't satisfied with the conditions in this marvelous country of ours, if you will pardon the expression, "get the hell out."

Q. If you thought that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, would you have come here to give testimony?

A. I certainly would not, unless I was brought down here by force.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Further Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Mead, if evidence were presented to you establishing beyond a reasonable doubt that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, would you say, to, that he, too, should get the hell out? A. I certainly would.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much, Mr. Mead.

Mr. Hallinan: It struck me, your Honor, that certain [4394] documents that have been referred to by witnesses here and introduced in evidence should be shown to the jury. There might be some question made, there might be some question in the jurors' minds as to whether the documents display on their faces the originality ascribed to them by the witnesses who identify them as being what they purport to be, so I am going to ask that they be presented to the jurors now. They are the minute book of the Stockton union, especially its records of May 21, 1936, and its day book, which was identified as the payment on the 29th of June for the hall rented for the Bridges meeting, and then the copy of the letter dated June 29, 1936, to the Voice of the Federation. I have marked the two books with a lead pencil marking, the day book with a circle and a cross in it, and the book of the minutes by putting a bracket around the part that discusses having the meeting. I think if they see the original books, it would be fairer to the jurors' perception than a copy. Photostatic copies have been substituted, but I think the originals are more desirable at this time.

(Whereupon Exhibits O-1, Q-1 and R-1 for identification were handed to a juror by the Clerk.)

Mr. Donohue: At this time might I ask your Honor if it is your Honor's practice to permit exhibits to go into the jury room with the jury?

The Court: Yes, it is. [4395]

Mr. Donohue: Then we shall not ask the jury to look at our exhibits at this time, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Very well. Any documents duly admitted in evidence by the Court, either by the prosecution or by the defense, may be taken into the jury room by the jurors during their deliberations and examined. The original, of course, may be supplanted by photostats hereafter. The jurors understand that practice, I assume.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, your Honor.

(Documents referred to above were examined by the jury.)

Mr. Hallinan: I think, your Honor, in view of the fact that some question might possibly be raised, although it certainly has not been raised by the attorneys for the prosecution, as to whether or not these documents were compiled or written at the time that they are indicated, I will offer in evidence the original documents themselves. Now we have photostat there, and at the conclusion of the case, we should like to withdraw these. But I think it might be better if we have the original documents in evidence.

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: May they be marked as originally, your Honor?

The Court: They may be withdrawn hereafter.

(Whereupon Defendants' Exhibits O-1, Q-1 and R-1 previously marked for identification were received in evidence.) [4396]

Mr. Hallinan: Now if we might have Louis Devonshire.

LOUIS DEVONSHIRE

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury? A. Louis M. Devonshire.

The Clerk: How do you spell the first name?

A. L-o-u-i-s.

The Clerk: Louis N.? A. M., yes.

The Clerk: Devonshire?. A. That's right.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. Devonshire, what is your occupation?

A. I am ship's clerk.

Q. And where do you live?

A. I live in the vicinity of Stockton.

Q. Have you a family? A. Yes.

Q. What does it consist of?

A. I have my wife and I have my daughter there and three grandchildren.

Q. And where do you come from originally? Are you a California man?

A. No, I come from Washington, a little town by the name of [4397] Montesano.

Q. How long have you lived in or around Stockton? A. About 25 years.

Q. So you were living there in 1936?

A. That's right.

Q. And did you have the same occupation, ship's clerk?

A. No, I was a longshoreman at that time.

Q. And you were a member of the ILA local of the longshore union at that time?

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

A. That's right, yes.

Q. In the year 1936, and in the month of June, did you have any office in that union?

A. Yes, sir, I was president.

Q. You were president of the local of the ILA?

A. That's right.

Q. That has since become the ILWU?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you remember an occasion in or about the month of June of 1936, when Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and William Christensen spoke before a meeting of the local in Stockton?

A. I remember that Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt spoke, but I can't place Mr. Christensen, no.

Q. Now, I just displayed to you two papers there and I indicated to you with a pencil the items that I wished to call to your attention. One is the Stockton Record, a photostat of the [4398] Stockton Record for June 27, 1936, and the other is the original of the Voice of the Federation, edition of July 9, 1936. You have seen those documents before, have you not? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And you have seen the account book of the union that was introduced here in evidence?

A. Yes, I have seen that.

Q. Now, using those documents to refresh your recollection, can you tell us, Mr. Devonshire, what day Mr. Bridges and Mr. Schmidt spoke before the Stockton local? A. It was on June 27, 1936.

Q. And what day of the week was that?

A. That was on a Saturday evening.

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

Q. And did you attend the meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after the meeting were you one of the party that attended to some place of entertainment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you just tell us what took place there?

A. Well, we left the meeting and went over to a night club by the name of Mattioni's and had a drink and watched the entertainment there. I don't know just how long we were there, but after we left, then I went on home.

Q. Had Mr. Bridges ever been in Stockton, so far as you know, at one of your meetings? [4399]

A. No, I don't believe Mr. Bridges had. He might have.

Q. There at the nightclub was any particular attention called to your group by the master of ceremonies or anything like that?

A. I believe there was, yes, a spotlight, I believe, was turned on Mr. Bridges.

Q. And then after that occurred you left the nightclub and you simply went home?

A. That's right.

Q. When was this matter first called to your attention again, the date, and so forth?

A. Well, I think some time Saturday.

Q. Oh, I see. In other words, going back to 1936 you think that the first time that you knew that Mr. Bridges was going to be there was some time on Saturday?

A. Yes, that's right.

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

Q. When was this testimony that you are giving, however, called to your attention? When were you first asked about these dates and so forth?

A. Well, Mr. Javorski, the president of the local up there, called me where I was working one time and asked me if I remembered a meeting. I told him yes, but I didn't remember the exact date at that time, but that was the first——

Q. About how long ago was that?

A. That was about, I believe about three—about four weeks ago. [4400]

Q. Then did you participate in making a search for the records to establish the date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw the letter that was introduced here? (Exhibiting paper to witness). That is the letter from Mr. Mahaffey to the Voice of the Federation.

A. Yes.

Q. You knew Mr. Mahaffey at that time, did you? A. Oh, yes.

Q. What was his position?

A. He was business agent and financial secretary at that time.

Q. Can you tell me now when after that meeting you first saw the letter that has been shown to you?

A. Well, when we—there was a couple of men came down—you mean the first time——

Q. No, no; you are narrating the event I wanted.

A. When a couple of gentlemen came up from San Francisco in search of evidence and we went—

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

Mr. McDonald and I went through those records and picked up various stuff pertaining to this meeting.

Q. Was that document, the letter to the Voice of the Federation, or a copy of the letter one of the documents you found?

A. No, no, Mr. McDonald must have found this letter. There was another letter that we had pertaining to it, I believe. [4401]

Q. Have you seen the book of accounts?

A. Yes, we found that that day.

Q. And have you produced the minute book?

A. Yes.

Q. Showing when Mr. Bridges was coming there? A. Yes.

Q. Reporting on the Maritime Federation convention in San Pedro? A. That's right.

Q. Since that time have you talked about this matter with any official or investigator for the Immigration Department?

A. Yes, there was one man up to my house.

Q. Did he have with him any documents?

A. He had a copy of a statement I had signed, and he had a photostatic copy of the Stockton Record—page of the Stockton Record.

Q. Of what date? A. June 27.

Q. 1936? A. That's right, yes.

Q. And questioned you at that time?

A. He asked me if—he let me read the statement and asked me if I had signed it, and I told him Yes.

Q. And how long ago was that?

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

A. Let's see; that was only about a week or so ago; just a [4402] short while back.

Mr. Hallinan: I see. I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. What was the other letter you found, do you recall, Mr. Devonshire?

A. Well, it was a letter pertaining—pertaining to something. I don't remember the exact wording of it, no, sir.

Q. Mr. Devonshire, were it not for the documents which were exhibited to you, would you have had any independent recollection of the date in question?

A. Well, I might have. I knew approximately.

Q. When you say "approximately" within how wide a range of time?

A. I knew it within a month, but this has refreshed my memory as to the date, yes.

Q. And you could only fix the precise date by reference to the documents which were shown to you? A. That's right.

Q. When were these documents first shown you, can you recall, Mr. Devonshire?

A. Well, you mean the Record and that?

Q. The Photostats.

A. Oh, that was on, I believe about the first Saturday of this month.

Q. By whom were they shown to you? [4403]

A. There was a couple of gentlemen came up from San Francisco.

(Testimony of Louis Devonshire.)

Q. Do you know who those gentlemen were?

A. A Mr. Leonard and Mr. Leipsic, I think his name is.

Q. Did they exhibit them to you at that time, Mr. Devonshire?

A. Well, they just asked us if we had any records. No, they didn't have the photostats at that time. No, no, I am wrong there. They asked us if we had anything that would show that Mr. Bridges had been there at that time.

Q. And then you made the search?

A. We searched for the documents.

Q. When did you first see the photostat of the Stockton paper? A. The Federal men had it.

Q. Pardon?

A. The Federal men had it—the men from the Department of—from the Immigration Department.

Q. That is the first time you saw that paper?

A. That's right, the photostat, yes.

Q. What documents did you use for the purpose of refreshing your recollection as to the date on which this meeting occurred?

A. Well, we used this—the account books, and that one there, and then a friend of mine was married on the same day. That brought it back to me.

Q. And at the time we are talking about, in June of 1936, you were the president?

A. That's right, yes, sir. [4404]

Q. And I think you stated that you first knew Mr. Bridges was going to make the speech on Saturday? A. Yes, that's right.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. One other matter, Mr. Devonshire. Have you also prior to this time seen a copy of the excerpt from the Voice of the Federation of the issue of July 2, 1936, reciting portions of the speech that Mr. Bridges gave in Stockton that night?

A. Yes.

Q. Refreshing your recollection from that, can you tell us what was the nature of the discussion he gave?

A. He reported on his meeting with the Maritime Federation of the Pacific. He had our proxy to handle our business with that organization.

Q. Do you remember also—and I suppose it will be necessary to refresh your recollection from that same item—whether or not he was invited at that time to return as the principal speaker at the Labor Day celebration which was going to be held?

A. I believe he was, yes.

Q. You have seen that in the documents that were shown you? A. Yes.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Could we have Mr. Shuffler—Mr. James Shuffler? [4405]

JAMES SHUFFLER

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: My name is James Shuffler.

The Clerk: Will you spell the last name.

The Witness: S-h-u-f-f-l-e-r.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

I think, your Honor, that the record should disclose this: that at the time that certain motions were made to the Court concerning the witnesses Manning Johnson and Paul Crouch, photostatic reproductions of all these newspaper items, the letter, the statement that Mr. Devonshire said was shown to him, and other documents were presented to the Court and left here with the clerk and permitted to be inspected by the officers of the Immigration Service and the attorneys. That is so that there may be no question that they had ample opportunity to inspect them, to look into them and to question the witnesses concerning them.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, is that a correct statement?

Mr. Donohue: My recollection, if your Honor please, is that on the day Mr. Hallinan suggests that certain originals were offered to the Court; some time subsequently on the same day they were substituted for by photostats; and some time later that day photostats were taken. I may say, in fairness to your Honor, that some time subsequently, a matter of days, [4406] I did obtain a copy of these from the United States Commissioner, to whom the set had been sent, and that we have inspected them from that source.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, Mr. Shuffler, what is your occupation, please?

A. I am a longshoreman.

Q. Where do you live? A. In Stockton.

Q. Are you a man of family?

A. I am. I live at 1428 Carlton Avenue.

Q. What does your family consist of?

A. My wife.

Q. How long have you been a longshoreman, Mr. Shuffler? A. Since 1933, sir.

Q. Are you a member of the ILWU in Stockton?

A. I am.

Q. Hold any office there?

A. I am vice-president of Local 54.

Q. And were you also a member of the ILA which preceded the ILWU in Stockton?

A. I was, sir.

Q. And were you such in the month of June, 1936? A. I was.

Q. It seems sort of tedious going through this same routine, but that is the only way we can produce these records. You [4407] have before you, Mr. Shuffler, a photostatic copy of the front page of the Stockton Record for June 27, 1936. You have seen that document before, have you?

A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. And then you also have before you the original of the Voice of the Federation for July 9, 1936? A. Yes.

(Testimony of James Shuffler.)

Q. You have seen that document before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, do you remember a meeting at which Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and William Christensen addressed a meeting of the ILA local in Stockton in the year 1936? A. I do.

Q. And using the documents that I have just shown to you and whatever documents you have looked at between the date and the present time, can you tell us on what day those three gentlemen addressed the Stockton local?

A. It was on a Saturday night, June 27, 1936.

Q. Did you attend the meeting? A. I did.

Q. And did you afterwards accompany these men to the place of entertainment that has been identified here?

A. Yes, sir; we went to Mattioni's, and I think I had one highball at that place, and it was pretty hot in there, and I went home. [4408]

Q. And left the other men staying there?

A. That's right.

Q. Have you been questioned by any of the immigration inspectors on this matter?

A. No, sir, I haven't.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. When, Mr. Shuffler, was it that the question of this meeting was first brought to your attention?

(Testimony of James Shuffler.)

A. It was first brought to my attention that Saturday morning that Mr. Bridges spoke in Stockton. I walked into the longshore hall for dispatch orders and I seen the sign on the board.

Q. When, after the meeting and more recently, has the question of this meeting been brought to your attention?

A. Well, I don't remember the date, but there was some gentlemen from Frisco came down to look up those records.

Q. Can you tell us about how long ago it was?

A. Well, I would say offhand maybe five weeks ago.

Q. Before Christmas, was it?

A. No, after Christmas.

Q. After Christmas? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall who the gentlemen were that came to talk to you? [4409]

A. I wouldn't know their names, but I would know them if I seen them. I think——

Q. When they first asked you about that meeting were you then able to tell them the date on which this meeting was held? A. Oh, no.

Q. And you fix the date now how?

A. After I seen the records, the papers, the photostatic copies.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all, Mr. Shuffler.

Mr. Frank Jaworski.

The Court: We might take the recess.

Mr. Hallinan: All right.

The Court: We will take morning recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions and not to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4410]

FRANK JAMES JAWORSKI

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your full name to the Court and jury?

A. Frank James Jaworski.

Q. Will you spell your last name?

A. J-a-w-o-r-s-k-i.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Jaworski?

A. 332 West Jefferson, Stockton, California.

Q. Are you a man of family? A. Pardon?

Q. Have you a family? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Consisting of what?

A. Wife and three—four children.

Q. Is the fourth one pretty young?

A. Not too young.

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Jaworski?

A. Longshoreman.

Q. And how long have you been such?

A. '42—Since '42.

(Testimony of Frank James Jaworski.)

Q. Since 1942. Prior to that time what was your occupation? A. I was a bargeman.

Q. Were you, as a bargeman, a member of the ILA local of [4411] Stockton? A. I was.

Q. And were you such in the year 1936?

A. I was.

Q. Do you now belong to the ILWU?

A. I do.

Q. And have you any office in the Stockton local?

A. I am the president and business agent of Local 54.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Since '47.

Q. Do you remember an occasion in the year 1936 when Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and William Christensen spoke in Stockton?

A. I do.

Q. Now, you have, prior to this time, been shown the documents that are lying on the table in front of you? A. I have.

Q. And you have there the photostatic reproduction of the front page of the Stockton Record for June 27, 1936, announcing the meeting; and then you have the original of the Voice of the Federation, the issue of July 9, 1936, stating the meeting would be held and giving the date upon which it was held, is that right? A. That's correct.

Q. Now, you have seen those documents before; have you also seen the expenditure book of your local union? [4412] A. I have.

Q. Establishing the date upon which the hall

(Testimony of Frank James Jaworski.)

rent was paid and the expenses of entertaining visitors? A. I have.

Q. And then have you seen also the letter that Mr. Mahaffey sent out, which is reproduced in that article in the Voice of the Federation?

A. I glanced at it, yes.

Q. Now, using all those devices to refresh your recollection, can you tell us, Mr. Jaworski, on what date Harry Bridges spoke in Stockton?

A. With these articles refreshing my memory, I would say June 27, 1936, between 7:00 and 8:00 p.m.

Q. I see. And did you attend the meeting?

A. I did.

Q. Do you remember it very distinctly? I mean, do you remember that he was there and spoke?

A. Well, I remember distinctly a couple of statements made by him. One was that if you get 95 cents an hour do 45 cents worth of work. The other was, there was no middle ground between the employer and employee, and that stuck in my mind.

Q. Now let me ask you this: Did you go on the party with Mr. Bridges that went to Mattioni's?

A. I did not.

Q. I see. So after the meeting—Have you any notion of what [4413] time the meeting adjourned?

A. I would say it lasted approximately two hours.

Q. Now, showing you also a document that I think you have seen before, an issue of the Voice of the Federation for July the 2nd, or a copy of it, at least, you have seen; can you state, refreshing your recollection from that, about how long Harry Bridges spoke on that occasion?

A. I would say a good hour.

Mr. Hallinan: All right. That is all.

Mr. Donohue: Would Your Honor indulge me a moment?

Mr Hallinan: One other little matter.

Q. Have you been consulted by any of the officers or agents of the Department of immigration touching your testimony on this matter?

A. I have not.

Mr. Hallinan: I see.

Mr. Donohue: We have no questions of the witness, Your Honor.

The Court: The witness is excused.

Mr. Hallinan: Call Mr. Barth Woods.

BARTH WOODS

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

Q. (By the Clerk): Will you state your full name to the Court and jury? [4414]

A. Barth Woods.

Q. And will you spell the first name?

A. B-a-r-t-h.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Woods?

A. I live in Stockton.

(Testimony of Barth Woods.)

Q. And have you a family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does it consist of?

A. Well, it consists of my wife and I and two daughters.

Q. I see. And how long have you lived in Stockton?

A. I have lived in Stockton for, oh, I should say 35 years.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Longshoreman.

Q. Are you a member of the ILWU, of the Stockton local? A. I am.

Q. And were you a member of the ILA, which preceded it? A. I was.

Q. Now, you have also been shown within the last few weeks certain documents relating to a meeting which Harry Bridges addressed in Stockton?

A. I have.

Q. Now, Mr. Woods, you have before you a photostatic reproduction of the first page of the Stockton Record or the issue of June 27, 1936. You have seen that document before, have you? [4415] A. Yes.

Q. And then the other documents is a copy of the Voice of the Federation, the issue of July 9, 1936. You have seen that item before, have you?

A. Yes.

Q. The Stockton Record reproduction contains the announcement of the meeting to be addressed by Harry Bridges for that evening, is that true?

A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Barth Woods.)

Q. And then the Voice of the Federation article states that on June 27, 1936, Harry Bridges, William Christensen and Henry Schmidt did address the Stockton local, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you also been shown the expenditure book of your union, showing the payment for the hall, chairs and entertainment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the letter that was found in the files of the local which is reproduced in the Voice of the Federation item, signed by Walter Mahaffey, announcing that that meeting had taken place at that time; you have seen those documents before?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you attend that meeting, Mr. Woods? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And using all those documents to refresh your recollection, can you tell the Court and jury what date the meeting was held [4416] that was so addressed by Harry Bridges?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you the date.

Q. No, but I say, using the papers to refresh your recollection? A. Yes, yes.

Q. Then tell us what it was.

A. I didn't just quite understand.

Q. I say, by looking at the dates on those newspapers, does that refresh your recollection as to what date it was? A. Yes.

Q. All right. And what date was it?

A. It was June 27.

(Testimony of Barth Woods.)

Q. 1936? A. That's right.

Q. Of course, without those documents you would not have remembered what date it was, isn't that correct? A. That's correct.

Q. Now, you say you did attend the meeting and heard him speak? A. I did.

Q. Have you any recollection as to how long the meeting lasted? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Or approximately how long Harry Bridges spoke?

A. Well, I think Bridges spoke longer than any one of the other speakers. I think he was the main speaker.

Q. Did you go with Harry Bridges any place after the meeting adjourned? [4417]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where?

A. I went to Mattioni's nightclub.

Q. And can you tell us what happened at Mattioni's, some things that refresh your recollection on that or that you remember?

A. Well, there wasn't much. We went in and had a few drinks, I think it was, and I couldn't remember just too much about it.

Q. I see. Did you stay until they left, until Bridges and Schmidt and Christensen went home?

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that's all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Woods, when was your attention first called to this document which you now have in front of you?

A. Well, I went to the hall. It was that morning. And there was, I think—I am positive that there was a notice on the blackboard that there was to be a meeting that night.

Q. Oh, you mean the first indication you had that there was to be a meeting, you saw that on the hall on the morning of the night on which the speech was made? A. That's correct.

Q. I am referring now to the documents in front of you, Mr. Woods. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When were those first exhibited to you?

A. They were [4418] exhibited to me, I think it was a week ago last Wednesday, the first I have seen them.

Q. And where, Mr. Woods?

A. That was at our hall.

Q. And by whom?

A. That was by Mr.—(indicating)—Mr. Hallinan.

Q. By Mr. Hallinan? A. Yes.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all, Mr. Woods.

Now, if the Court please, we are compelled to ask a favor that will probably discommode everybody considerably, but Mr. William Christensen, the man who owned and drove the automobile on the occasion that we have narrated here, and who will be the last of the witnesses that we intended to use on this particular subject, is now confined to bed in the Permanente Hospital in Oakland. He has a displaced intervertebral disc and he is in traction, with weights holding his feet down. He will probably be in there for a month or so. Now his evidence is important, not only to the fact of the meeting, but as to his prior contacts with Harry Bridges in San Francisco. I am going to ask, if the Court please, that the Court will have the Court and jury assembled in the Permanente Hospital to take his testimony there. I know that a deposition would serve part of the purpose, [4419] but then I suppose we all realize the difference between just a read-off statement and seeing the witness and having the jury get an impression of what sort of man he is and how truthful he may be. If it wouldn't be too great an inconvenience, we would esteem it a favor to have the jury meet in the hospital and have Mr. Christensen questioned in the presence of the Court and jury.

The Court: A deposition would not suffice, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: Well, as I say, it is never as satisfactory. We could do it, but—I would, of course, want to balance conveniences. I don't want to impose upon the Court and the jury. I suppose we could take a deposition instead.

The Court: I am willing to accede to any reasonable request. I feel that transportation of the jurors to the hospital, the surrounding conditions, and all, may not be at all in accord with the situation prevailing in the court. We might not be able to find accommodations there in the hospital wherein the hearing could be conducted in the presence of the jury. We also have the possibility of having the jurors separating on such an occasion. Many matters incident to such a journey might result in problems that would not be encountered if we had the deposition. Now, we all appreciate the fact that a deposition is a cold record. There is no question about that, when it is read into the transcript. But it might be the only available process we have. [4420]

Mr. Hallinan: Well, the request borders on being a little unreasonable. If he weren't a man of a very peculiarly vigorous type, I wouldn't care to do so. But I thought it might make a better impression by seeing him. Suppose we do this: If counsel will go along with us, we might take Mr. Christensen's deposition on Saturday morning and then present it on Monday to the jury. Is that agreeable to you, counsel?

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection whatever, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, then, suppose that without the necessity of formal notice and so forth, we take a deposition of Mr. William Christensen in the Permanente Hospital in Oakland on Saturday at 11:00 o'clock and I will produce a notary and reporter over there to take the deposition.

The Court: Who is the attending physician?

Mr. Hallinan: I don't know, Judge; he is in the ward over there.

The Court: Is there a possibility he might be brought into the trial here, into this actual courtroom, at a later stage, holding him even out of order?

Mr. Hallinan: Well, Your Honor——

The Court: I would be willing, Mr. Hallinan, in deference to your request that you have the man in the flesh.

Mr. Hallinan: I will say this, Judge. The case is progressing very rapidly, and it will not consume, I think, the length [4421] of time that we thought before. I would not be surprised but what our evidence will be through in a few days. We haven't a great many more witnesses and we may be through within a week and a half or two weeks.

Now, Mr. Christensen will not be out in that time. He may possibly have to have an operation. But I am willing to take the deposition and bring that in. It will help establish some matters. So then, if counsel will have some representative there in the Permanente Hospital on Saturday at 11:00 a.m., I don't think the deposition will take very long. [4422]

The Court: Mr. Donohue, is that stipulated to on the part of the Government or the prosecutors?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Mr. Mitchell, will you make a minute entry that an order was made for the taking of the deposition at the time and place indicated by Mr. Hallinan, and that formal notice has been given to all parties of the time and place of the taking of the deposition.

Mr. Hallinan: Thank you, your Honor.

The Clerk: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: Now, with regard to one other small matter. We had, when Mr. Wilson was on the stand, some discussion about a record of the Hotel Governor that had been removed from the files of the Hotel Governor and was then in the possession of the Immigration Department. We would like to have that document produced.

Mr. Donohue: May I say, if your Honor pleases, that I think the same day that Mr. Wilson took the stand, Mr. Norman Leonard called the Immigration Service and was given a detailed description of the information on the card. I have the card; I am sure it is upstairs. After we adjourn at noon I can——

Mr. Hallinan: We would like to have the card itself.

The Court: You can produce the card?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: Just produce it at 2 p.m. [4423] Now, we have a witness subpoenaed for 2 p.m.

The Court: We will adjourn, then, until 2 p.m., if agreeable.

Mr. Hallinan: Thank you.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take our noon recess until two o'clock this afternoon. The same admonition to you, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [4424]

Thursday, January 26, 1950—2:00 P.M.

The Court: Counsel, if I may have your attention briefly, and ladies and gentlemen of the jury: During the noon period I had an opportunity to reconsider the request made by Mr. Hallinan. I, in addition, have conferred with Mr. Mitchell as to the means that might be employed to transport the jurors to the hospital in question, relative to the jurors and the courtroom attaches. Mr. Mitchell advises that appropriate accommodations may be made, and accordingly, in the light of our discussion concerning Mr. Hallinan's request, I think the ends of justice would be served by having the jurors attend for the purpose of the taking of the testimony of this gentleman who appears to be ill. As Mr. Hallinan indicated, he suffers from a back injury, an intervertebral disc injury, and he is in traction.

There is one request I might make preliminarily. Will this examination meet with his doctor's approval?

Mr. Hallinan: Oh, yes.

The Court: Accordingly, then——

Mr. Hallinan: I'm sorry. As I say, balancing convenience, it might not be worth it, but I feel remiss not to ask to go over. We are grateful for the consideration you have given.

The Court: We will accede to your request, Mr. Hallinan. Accordingly, then, at two o'clock, Mr. Mitchell will make [4425] arrangements for transportation to be here for the jurors and court attaches. I assume we will arrive there at 2:30. The session will then continue as a regular court session in that hospital at some convenient place to be provided there and will be completed by direct and cross-examination of counsel. Thereafter court will recess from that point, return here to the courtroom proper, and then I think we will adjourn for the day. Let us, then, in terms of our procedure, allocate tomorrow afternoon, Friday, for that purpose.

Mr. Hallinan: We will be willing to stipulate that the jury may be excused at the hospital so they need not return to court, if that is your wish.

The Court: All right, those persons resident in Oakland or Berkeley will be excused at the hospital tomorrow afternoon.

Of course, it is a public hearing and the jurors are admonished now. I will admonish you not to separate under any conditions for fear that some prejudice might result or a mistrial result. The jurors are, to remain together intact at all times from the time they leave the building. Of course, they are not to discuss the matter with any person or persons. And I assume that the hospital attaches or secretary there will be able to accommodate us, Mr. Mitchell. Will you communicate with them to work that out?

The Clerk: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: All right. [4426]

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, that we might well invite a stipulation from Government counsel as to the plan you have outlined so that both sides will be in the position of agreeing.

Mr. Donohue: We concur, your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: We will call Mr. Pearson, please.

The Court: Of course, it is a public hearing tomorrow afternoon, and if members of the press have any quandary, they likewise are privileged to be present. Any member of the press is privileged to be present, and any person or persons are privileged within the ken of the accommodations they have provided. We can't foreclose the public from any part of this trial. It is a public trial within the constitutional provision.

OSCAR W. PEARSON

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury, please?

The Witness: Oscar W. Pearson.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Pearson, will you state your address, if you please?

A. My address—my home address?

Q. Yes. [4427]

A. Is 150 Sutro Heights Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. And what is your business address, Mr. Pearson?

A. 16 California Street, Pacific Maritime Association.

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

Q. What is the Pacific Maritime Association, Mr. Pearson?

A. It is an association that administers—negotiates and administers labor contracts with the various unions involved in the maritime industry.

Q. Is it the successor organization to the Waterfront Employers Association?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Pearson, did you come here today pursuant to a subpoena which also directed the attendance of Mr. Burke and Mr. Finnesey of the same Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Yes, directed—I came here being subpoenaed, and also Mr. Finnesey and Mr. Brown.

Q. Mr. Brown; I am sorry.

A. That's right.

Q. That is Mr. Hubert Brown?

A. Hubert Brown, yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Pearson, in addition to your membership in the Pacific Maritime Association, are you employed by any organization or firm?

A. I am also executive vice president of the Marine Terminals Corporation of Los Angeles.

Q. The Marine Terminals Corporation of Los Angeles? [4428] A. Of Los Angeles.

Q. Do you hold any particular post with the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. I am president of that association.

Q. As president of the Pacific Maritime Association do you conduct negotiations with Harry Bridges? A. I do.

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

Q. And Mr. Bridges, of course, acting in the capacity of a representative of his union, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Bridges? A. I do.

Q. Have you talked with him on many occasions? A. I have.

Q. And have you heard his name mentioned or discussed by other members of this community?

A. I have.

Q. And from your own meetings and acquaintanceship with Mr. Bridges and from such conversations with other members of this community in which you have participated or overheard statements, can you tell us what is the reputation at this time in this community of Mr. Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. I would say that Mr. Bridges' reputation in that respect is very good, and my own association with him will reflect that. [4429] I have heard others say differently, however, and it depends entirely on who you are talking to.

Q. Your own opinion and your own impression is that Mr. Bridges' reputation is good?

A. Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. [4429-A]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. When were you served with a subpoena to appear, Mr. Pearson?

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

A. I was served this forenoon about, I would say, 11:00 o'clock, approximately.

Q. And prior to having them served with a subpoena, had you discussed your coming here with any person or persons? A. I had, yes.

Q. With whom, please?

A. I had discussed it with Mr. Goldblatt.

Q. And who is Mr. Goldblatt?

A. He is also a representative of the ILWU.

Q. Yes. And with whom else?

A. I have discussed it with our own group, including the witnesses which were called and subpoenaed today.

Q. Who, within your own group, sir, have you discussed your testimony of today with?

A. I have discussed it with the board of directors of the same association.

Q. And who are the members of that board, with whom you discussed your coming here?

A. They are representatives of the various steamer lines and heads of the industry, generally, who have been appointed as board of directors of the association.

Q. Well, will you name for us those gentlemen with whom you [4430] actually discussed the fact that you were coming here to testify today?

A. Mr. Finnesey.

Q. How do you spell that name, please?

A. F-i-n-n-e-s-e-y.

Q. Yes, sir?

A. Mr. Gilbert Brown, Mr. Sevier, S-e-v-i-e-r,

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

Mr. Pennington. Specifically those gentlemen and also the members of the board. And these gentlemen, also members of the board.

Q. Now, these gentlemen are members of the board of which you are president, the Pacific Maritime Association? A. That's right.

Q. Does that represent all the ship lines?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. And when did you discuss your coming here with these gentlemen?

A. It was discussed in the board of directors' meeting two days ago—Tuesday, the 24th.

Q. Did the board of directors take any official action with respect to your coming here?

A. No, they did not.

Q. Was there any division of opinion among the members of the board who were present as to your coming here?

A. No, there wasn't. There was no opinion as such.

Q. I beg your pardon? [4431]

A. There was no opinion as such expressed by any of the members. I did want them to be advised of the fact that my discussion with Mr. Goldblatt had been on the basis of a subpoena to come here, and that I wanted them to know what was comtemplated.

Q. Then I take it you simply advised the board that you had discussed with Mr. Goldblatt coming here under subpoena, and that no comment was made by them with respect to your coming?

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

A. That's right.

Q. How long have you been president of the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Since April 1st, 1949.

Q. And how long have you been in San Francisco?

A. I came here at that time, in April, to take over the duties as president. I have been here before, however, on several occasions.

Q. Permanently? Or I should say for a long period of time? A. Yes.

Q. When, sir?

A. During the war I came here shortly after Pearl Harbor and accepted a task of assisting the army in loading their ships.

Q. And you remained how long, sir?

A. Until V-E Day.

Q. And did you then return to Los Angeles?

A. That's correct.

Q. Where was it that you discussed your coming here with Mr. [4432] Goldblatt?

A. It was raised on two or three occasions.

Q. When was the first time that you can recall, sir?

A. Approximately, I would say, two or three weeks ago.

Q. Can you tell us what Mr. Goldblatt said on that occasion?

A. On that occasion he advanced the thought, and wanted to know how I would feel about that, and I told him, well, it would be essential to me that under no circumstances would I come here unless I were subpoenaed—in view of the fact that I was a representative of an association such as the Pacific Maritime Association.

Q. Now, when you say that Mr. Goldblatt advanced the thought, can you tell us precisely what he said, or the substance of what he may have told you? A. Not precisely.

Q. What did he tell you he wanted you to do?

A. He said, "It might be, in the course of our defense for Harry Bridges, necessary to subpoena yourself and some of the members of the Coast Labor Relations Committee who have had close contact wtih Mr. Bridges and who would be able to testify as to the results of their negotiations and his character."

Q. And he told you that he was interested in having you discuss, over and above his character, the results of negotiations that you may have had with Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes, he specifically had in mind the fact that we had had [4433] very close relations in recent months, and by virtue of those relations, he felt that it would be appropriate for him to discuss whether we would testify as witnesses.

Q. In other words, Mr. Goldblatt told you that because of the recent friendly relationship between the Pacific Maritime Association and the ILWU, that he thought you might be inclined to come here and testify as to Mr. Bridges' good character; is that substantially correct?

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

A. Well, you have injected the word "friendly" there.

Q. Well, what word would you use, sir?

A. We have had negotiations which have been on a basis of understanding, and at many times on a basis of where we have had our own ideas, which conflicted but eventually were resolved,—if you wish, on a friendly basis, yes.

Q. Now, did you report to your board of directors after this first conference with Mr. Goldblatt or did you discuss the matter further with Mr. Goldblatt before you took it up with your board?

A. That's right, on a succeeding occasion Mr. Goldblatt mentioned that it would be apparent that what he had talked about before would eventually come to pass, and on that basis I felt it best that the board of directors be fully advised.

Q. And after you advised your board of directors, did you then contact Mr. Goldblatt and tell him that you would accept a subpoena and you would come and testify? [4434]

A. No, he contacted me, called me this morning and told me that I would have a subpoena.

Q. Now, did you discuss with anyone of the gentlemen whose names you have called as having been present at this meeting of the board of directors the reputation of Mr. Bridges?

A. Well, there has been some discussion from time to time regarding the possible need that these gentlemen also become witnesses, on the basis of being character witnesses, yes.

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

Q. Then do I understand that you advised these gentlemen that they too, as well as you, might be subpoenaed to come here and testify as witnesses to the good character of the defendant Bridges?.

A. Well, one of those gentlemen was present at the time Mr. Goldblatt contacted me.

Q. The first or second time?

A. Both times.

Q.. And who was that gentleman?

A. Mr. Finnesey.

Q. Mr. Pearson, do you consider it a sound business policy for you to come here and testify in this proceeding as to the reputation of the defendant Harry Bridges as to truth, honesty and integrity?

A. My consideration in that respect is strictly on a basis, as I understand it, that when you are subpoenaed you are required to appear, in accordance with the law. [4435]

Q. Correct. But do you now believe that it is a matter of sound business policy for you, as president of the Pacific Maritime Association, to testify in this proceeding as to the reputation of the defendant Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Why, I have not thought of it from the standpoint of a business policy or advisability from a standpoint of business policy. For that reason I did mention to Mr. Goldblatt that unless I was subpoenaed I would prefer not to appear.

Q. Now, I understand you to say that Mr.

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

Bridges has a reputation for truth, honesty and integrity which is good, correct?

A. I did so state. Specifically, from my own observation. In so far as the reputation in the community, it all depends on who you are talking to.

Q. That is the point I wanted to ask you about, sir. When you made that statement were you expressing your personal opinion of the defendant Harry Bridges or were you expressing the reputation of Harry Bridges as you have heard it discussed among others whom you know, who also know Harry Bridges?

A. Well, I expressed my opinion.

Q. Yes. Now, have you, as a matter of fact, discussed with any person the question of the honesty, truth or integrity of Harry Bridges; and if so, will you tell us with whom?

A. Well, we have had occasion, as members of the Coast Labor Relations Committee, to depend on those very characteristics, [4436] and for that reason it was discussed on several occasions.

Q. Well, can you tell us the name of any person or persons who has said to you that Harry Bridges is a truthful, veracious man of integrity?

A. Well, perhaps not in just that sequence of words, but under circumstances which would leave the same intent, yes.

Q. Can you tell us with whom?

A. The very gentlemen I have mentioned before:

Q. All members of the board of directors of the Pacific Maritime Association?

(Testimony of Oscar W. Pearson.)

A. No, members of the Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Will you tell us who they are?

A. I have given you them. I will supplement that with one more name—Jones, Gordon Jones.

Q. And all of these men, with perhaps the exception of Gordon Jones, are also members of the board of directors of the Pacific Maritime Association? A. That's correct.

Q. You are the man who is responsible for the negotiations with Mr. Bridges and his union?

A. I am.

Q. For the shipowners?

A. That's correct.

Q. And if you considered that your coming here was only as a duty you owed to the Court to respond to a subpoena, would you [4437] tell us what the necessity was for the conferences with Mr. Goldblatt and the reports to your board of directors:

A. I felt that insofar as the board of directors was concerned, I owed it to them to advise them of the circumstances.

Q. And as far as Mr. Goldblatt was concerned?

A. As far as my coming here to testify in this case.

Q. Have you ever heard any person state, or has any person discussed with you, the suggestion that Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party? A. Yes, on many occasions.

Q. Would you believe that a labor leader who stated at a union meeting that when you get 95 cents an hour you should give 45 cents of work, is an honest labor leader?

A. He could be an honest labor leader and say that perhaps—in the light of the fact that he would have the interests other than that of the employer at heart. Naturally, we as employers do not condone that line of thinking.

Q. And would you say that a labor leader who, addressing a meeting of his union, stated that there is no middle ground between the employer and the employee is a labor leader of integrity?

A. I would be entirely—that would be entirely dependent on the circumstances involved at the time. I can only specify those circumstances which I have had through my own observation of the man in our dealings and our negotiations. [4438]

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Pearson, to clarify, if I may, some of the inferences that attach to some questions put to you by the prosecutor, let me ask you this. Did you come here by virtue of any bargain reached between you and the ILWU by which you were to give testimony in exchange for some benefit?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. And in your dealings with Harry Bridges, have you found him to be a man of integrity, yourself? A. I certainly have.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Isn't it a matter of fact, sir, that you are here to testify because you were afraid not to come? A. Definitely not.

Further Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Well, Mr. Pearson, are you afraid of Mr. Goldblatt? A. Of course not. [4439]

Q. Are you afraid of Mr. Bridges?
A. Certainly not.

Q. Are you afraid of the union? A. No.

Q. And as I understand it, you are trying to do justice to the post which you occupy yourself and to render faithful service to the organization which employs you? A. That's right.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions, your Honor.

The Court: Witness excused.

Mr. MacInnis: May Mr. Hubert Brown be called.

HUBERT BROWN

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury, please?

The Witness: My name is Hubert Brown.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your residence address, Mr. Brown?

A. Redwood City, 6 Hillview Avenue.

Q. What is your business address?

A. 141 Battery Street.

Q. What organization occupies that address?

A. Pacific Far East Lines, Inc.

Q. Are you connected with the Pacific Far East Lines, Inc.? A. Yes, I am.

Q. What post or office do you hold?

A. I am assistant to the president.

Q. Assistant to the president. Are you also a member of the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Our company is.

Q. And do you represent your company in that association? A. I do.

Q. And for how long have you had that representation?

A. Well, our company has been a member of the association since its formation late in 1946.

Q. And since late 1946 have you represented your company upon the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Yes, to a degree, not—not—in other words,

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

I am an alternate for the president of the company.

Q. In other words, sometimes you attend the meetings and negotiations and sometimes your alternate attends; is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Have you come to know Mr. Harry Bridges through your work with the Pacific Maritime Association? A. Yes.

Q. Have you seen him on many occasions?

A. Yes. [4441]

Q. Now, what is the scope of the work or the endeavors of the Pacific Maritime Association so far as Mr. Bridges and his union may be concerned?

A. Well, the Pacific Maritime Association is an organization of steamship operators banded together for the purposes of collective bargaining negotiations and labor relations and the administration of the contracts that arise therefrom.

Q. Do you know Mr. Pearson, who testified before you? A. Yes.

Q. And do you know Mr. Kenneth Finnesey?

A. Yes, they both serve with me, or I serve with them on the Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Over the past periods of time have you discussed with those gentlemen or with other men connected with you in business the reputation of Harry Bridges in this community?

A. Well, I would say yes.

Q. And from your own meetings and acquaintanceship with Harry Bridges and from such comment from other persons as may have reached your ears, do you know so that you can tell us here in court what is at the present time in this community the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Are you asking me my—from my own personal contact with him and experience?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Donohue: Object to that, if your Honor please; that [4442] isn't admissible. The personal contact of the witness with the defendant Bridges or the witness' personal opinion is not admissible.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: To clarify the question, we ask for the personal opinion of the witness, your Honor, based upon his own acquaintanceship plus such conversations as he may have had with other persons, which I understand is the basis of the law.

The Court: The witness' reputation in the community for the traits involved?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, that is correct.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Do you know the reputation of Mr. Bridges at this time for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, yes, I would say it is good.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Now, you understand, Mr. Brown, that when you state that the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity is good that you are testifying to his general reputation among the persons whom you know who know Mr. Bridges, and not voicing your own personal opinion?

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

A. I understand that. I understand that the question as it was put to me pertains to knowledge or what I have heard in this period that I have been engaged in labor relations. [4443]

Q. And you answered on that basis?

A. I answered on that basis.

Q. What is the period during which you have been engaged in labor relations?

A. Well, starting in rather a small way, and then with increasing frequency since our company was formed in 1946.

Q. Since 1946 and in this community with whom have you discussed the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, with the executives of our own company; with——

Q. Will you give me the names of the persons, please? A. In our company?

Q. Anyone with whom you have discussed the reputation of Mr. Bridges.

A. Well, Mr. Cuffe, president of our company; Colonel Lowry, the operating vice president; other members of the Coast Labor Relations Committee; Mr. Finnesey, Mr. Pearson; Mr. Henry Clark of the Association; Mr. Schneider, other members of the industry who are on the Coast Labor Relations Committee and with whom we had joint meetings.

Q. When were you advised that you would be called here to testify?

A. Specifically advised?

Q. Well, advised specifically or not specifically.

A. Well, I—I began to believe that I would be called, I [4444] should say, as long as about three weeks ago.

Q. What gave you that premonition?

A. Well, one of the other members of the Coast Committee indicated that he thought the Coast Committee might be called upon.

Q. Who was that member?

A. Mr. Finnesey.

Q. Did he state any reason why he thought the Coast Committee might be called upon?

A. I don't recall that he did give any particular reason.

Q. And what is the next indication you had more certain that you were going to be called?

A. Well, I heard that there was some discussion of the matter—I am trying to place the day—I think Monday of this week.

Q. What did you hear, and from whom, on Monday?

A. Well, again I heard from an attorney that the matter had been discussed and that subpoenas would probably be issued.

Q. Who was the attorney you heard that from?

A. James Adams.

Q. And what next did you hear?

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

A. I got a subpoena this morning.

Q. Have you discussed with anyone at all the nature of the testimony you would give this morning or this afternoon?

A. Well, discussed—no; I, of course, informed my superiors, and told them that I felt that I would be called upon to answer [4445] all the questions that were put to me.

Q. You didn't discuss it with Mr. Lou Goldblatt? A. Yes.

Q. When did you discuss it with him?

A. Over the telephone.

Q. When? A. Monday.

Q. What was the discussion?

A. Mr. Goldblatt called, and that was the first knowledge that I had had from the union—first indication I had had from the union that they contemplated putting me under subpoena. As I said before, I had some inkling of it from discussions with Mr. Finnesey and, I am not certain, I think with one of the other members of the Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. What—excuse me.

A. And Mr. Goldblatt told me that they had discussed this with some of our people and indicated pretty definitely that I would be subpoenaed. I won't say that he made the flat statement, but he indicated that I would be subpoenaed.

Q. Did he tell you what he would expect you to testify to if you were called as a witness?

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

A. To the truth, yes.

Q. The truth of what?

A. Anything that was asked me.

Q. Did you have any idea before you came here what might be [4446] asked you?

A. No. Well, I think I said to Mr. Goldblatt that if I were on the witness stand I would answer all questions that were put to me truthfully, and I think Mr. Goldblatt said that that is all that they would expect. And if my memory serves me correctly, he said that they were interested in asking me some questions about the relations with Mr. Bridges in the period that I have mentioned and that we have been talking about since I have served on the Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. In your experience in the Bay Area have you ever heard anyone say that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I think I may have heard that said, yes.

Q. Would you say that a person who was reputed to be a member of the Communist Party was a person of honesty, integrity and veracity?

A. I don't know whether another's allegations as to a person's membership in the Party would affect my own beliefs as to his integrity. If I had reached those beliefs from my own experience, I don't think they would.

Q. You would accept from others the reputation and the opinion of others that Mr. Bridges was a man of truth, honesty and integrity, would you not?

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

A. I think it would depend upon the source or what I believed to [4447] be the basis of their knowledge.

Q. And did you question the experience of the person who may have said that, in his opinion, Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I think not.

Q. May I ask you, sir, if you knew that one of the witnesses called by Mr. Bridges, and a member of his union, had testified that at a union meeting Mr. Bridges said, "Whenever you get 95 cents an hour, give 45 cents worth of work," that that would be the statement of an honest labor leader?

A. I am not quite certain I understood.

Mr. Donohue: Would you repeat the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read.)

A. Well, if true, I hardly think that it was an honest statement, no.

Q. Mr. Brown, do you consider it in the interests of the shipping company by which you are employed to appear here and testify as to the good character of Harry Bridges?

A. The interest or lack of interest had little to do with it after I received a subpoena this morning.

Q. Then you are not under any compulsion or in no way motivated by any possible fear of reprisal in the event you did not testify here as to the good character of the defendant Harry Bridges?

A. No, I am not. I have nothing to fear.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

(Testimony of Hubert Brown.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Brown, you haven't received any orders from Moscow to come here, have you?

A. No, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Brown, in reference to a statement couched to you in a question by the special prosecutor, before you would pass any mature judgment on the value of any statement alleged to have been made by Harry Bridges or any other person, you would want to have before you the circumstances of the statement and the whole contents of it, would you not?

A. In general, yes. I have found many times that it is not safe to lift things from context and rely completely upon snap judgment and interpretation.

Q. Mr. Goldblatt didn't tell you that anything untoward would happen if you wouldn't come here, did he?

A. Mr. Goldblatt didn't tell me anything, except that it had been decided that the Coast Committee was wanted by the defense.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, if your Honor please.

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess. In the meantime you can get the additional witnesses. You are excused.

We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen [4449] of the jury. The same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions or form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4449-A]

Mr. MacInnis: May we call Mr. Finnesey, please?

Th eClerk: Call Mr. Finnesey.

KENNETH H. FINNESEY

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury?

A. My name is Finnesey, Kenneth H.

Q. How do you spell the last name?

A. F-i-n-n-e-s-e-y.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Finnesey, will you state your residence address to the Court and jury?

A. It is 515 Madera Drive, San Mateo.

Q. And what is your business address, Mr. Finnesey?

A. 214 Front Street, corner of California.

Q. What organization occupies that address, Mr. Finnesey? A. State Steamship Company.

Q. And do you occupy some post or office with the State Steamship Company?

A. I am a vice president.

Q. And are you a member of the Pacific Maritime Association? A. I am a director.

Q. And did you, as a director of the Pacific Maritime Association, receive a subpoena directing you to attend court here? [4450] A. I did.

Q. Now, what is the scope of your duties with the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. I represent my company in that association, and as a director and part of the Coast Labor Relations Committee, I meet with the ILWU.

Q. In other words, you conduct negotiations as to matters affecting employment and working conditions, along with the representatives of the union?

A. That's correct.

Q. And for what period of time have you been in that post, Mr. Finnesey?

A. Would you restate that last remark?

Q. I say, for what period of time have you held your post with the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Since it has been organized. I think you are familiar with the fact that it has been recently organized to take over the activities of the WEA, Waterfront Employers Association.

Q. In other words, it is the successor to the old Waterfront Employers Association?

A. Successor. However, I was also a director of the predecessor organization.

Q. I see. Now, do you know a man named Harry Bridges? A. I do.

Q. And have you known him as a representative of the ILWU in [4451] negotiations which have been conducted? A. I have.

(Testimony of Kenneth H. Finnesey.)

Q. You have sat across the council table from him, I suppose, upon numerous occasions?

A. Many times.

Q. Now, have you heard the reputation of Harry Bridges discussed by other persons?

A. Very often.

Q. And from your own acquaintanceship with Mr. Bridges and from such remarks of other persons in this community as may have reached your ears, are you familiar with his reputation at this time in this community for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I believe I am.

Q. What is that reputation, Mr. Finnesey?

A. Are you now asking me his reputation in the community or with me?

Q. Well, your knowledge of his reputation, based upon your own knowledge of the man, plus such conversations as you have had with others.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, I think I must insist that the only reputation which is admissible is his reputation in the community.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, but we may explain, I think, properly to the witness, that the basis for the giving of that answer may be, first, his own knowledge of the person plus conversations [4452] that he has had with other persons in the community whereby he is now possessed of knowledge as to the general reputation of Mr. Bridges.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, the man's personal knowledge has nothing to do with it. As

I understand the law, only an established reputation for good character is admissible.

The Court: Let's see. He may have had other conversations with others.

Mr. MacInnis: I think he said he has, Your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: I think, if Your Honor pleases, that the testimony of a character witness must be restricted to his reputation. That is what has come to the witness' attention from others; not his own personal dealings.

Mr. MacInnis: I might say, Your Honor, that the 1902 decision of People vs. Adams holds that even if a man has never heard the particular defendant's reputation discussed, he may nevertheless give his opinion upon the theory that if there have been no discussions, that is negative proof that there has been no bad statement concerning the man.

Q. Now, Mr. Finnesey, do you know the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I do.

Q. What is that reputation?

A. It is good.

Mr. MacInnnis: Thank you. [4453]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. With whom did you discuss your testimony, Mr. Finnesey, before you came here?

(Testimony of Kenneth H. Finnesey.)

A. Discussed it with Louis Goldblatt.

Q. When, please?

A. I discussed it with him several times. The latest time was last Monday.

Q. And you also discussed it with your board of directors?

A. That's correct, on Tuesday afternoon.

Q. In the simple duty of a citizen to respond to a subpoena and answer truthfully questions which are put to him, was there any necessity for these discussions with Mr. Goldblatt and your board of directors as a premise to your coming here to testify?

A. Only insofar as we always acquaint our board of directors with any discussions that we have with members of the ILWU.

Q. And why the several meetings with Mr. Goldblatt?

A. We meet with him for several reasons, which include continuing, not necessarily negotiations, but discussions of problems that confront the union vs. the employers.

Q. And did you consider the question of your personal testimony and the testimony of your associates in the Pacific Maritime Association as a problem connected or associated with Management and labor?

A. I expected that it would be natural for the defendant to [4454] call upon those people with whom he has had business dealings, and I happen to be one of those.

(Testimony of Kenneth H. Finnesey.)

Q. Well did you come to the conclusion first that Mr. Bridges had an established reputation in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. In November of 1948.

Q. Did you know Mr. Bridges prior to November of 1948?

A. Not personally. I knew who he was. I had seen him and perhaps met him.

Q. Had you at that time, or let me ask you—strike that, please. Prior to November of 1948, did you know the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity? A. Based on hearsay.

Q. Well, I think you understood from the question Mr. MacInnis put to you that the statement you make today as to his reputation is based on what other people have told you or said about Mr. Bridges?

A. Partly so, and partly my own opinion.

Q. And what was your concept of the reputation of Mr. Bridges prior to 1948?

A. Not good.

Q. Mr. Finnesey, if you had been told by the president of the Stockton local of the ILWU that at a union meeting in Stockton the defendant Harry Bridges had said, "Whenever you get 95 cents an hour, do 45 cents an hour's work," would that change your [4455] opinion as to the reputation of Mr. Bridges?

A. I would have to know more of the circumstances surrounding that discussion.

(Testimony of Kenneth H. Finnesey.)

Q. You couldn't form an opinion on that statement alone? A. I could not.

Q. Have you ever in the discussions which you have had with other persons concerning Mr. Bridges heard it said that Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party? A. I have.

Q. If you were persuaded by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, would you still say that he had a reputation for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I would.

Q. You would.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Finnesey, do you tell us that prior to November of 1948 you had heard hearsay reports about Harry Bridges which were not good?

A. That's correct.

Q. And following November of 1948, when you began to have personal contact with him, I suppose matters arose which made you depend from time to time upon the good faith of the dealings between you, is that correct? [4456]

A. That is exactly correct, to the point that we feel that the contract that the employers now have with the ILWU, the success of it, is based a great deal on the good faith between the parties.

Q. And is that the opinion that you have of Harry Bridges at this time? A. It is.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Finnesey, is the fact that you and your associates have come here to testify as to the good character of Harry Bridges in any way predicated upon any fear that something might happen to that contract which now exists between your organizations?

A. No, sir; the answer to that is what I have in my pocket here—a subpoena.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. The answer as to the reason I came is because I was subpoenaed.

Q. And you are in no way influenced with respect to the continuation of that agreement in your testimony? A. I am not.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

Mr. MacInnis: No further questions.

Mr. Hallinan: May we have Miss Rand called?

The Clerk: Call Miss Rand. [4457]

ANNE RAND

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury please.

The Witness: My name is Anne Rand.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. You live in San Francisco, do you, Miss Rand? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Librarian.

Q. You are a librarian? A. Yes.

Q. Have you had special courses in becoming a librarian?

A. I have a master's degree from the University of California in my field.

Q. Specializing in that branch or field?

A. Yes, in librarianship.

Q. You graduated with a master's degree from the University of California?

A. My undergraduate degree is from Columbia University in New York.

Q. You went to the University of California also, did you?

A. Yes, I earned my master's degree there.

Q. Have you been practicing that business or profession since [4458] your graduation?

A. Yes, for many years.

Q. By whom are you now employed?

A. As librarian at the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Q. That is the ILWU? A. ILWU.

Q. You are librarian there? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you had that position?

A. Since June of 1946.

Q. Now, as such librarian what are your duties?

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

A. They are two mainly: to keep abreast of the current business of the union, and to maintain all records and archives of the union.

Q. And who is the person then who has charge of the records and archives of the ILWU?

A. The Librarian of the union.

Q. That is yourself? A. Yes.

Q. I asked you to bring certain documents of which I gave you a list. Have you procured those documents from the files of the ILWU?

A. Yes, I got them from the files and they are here now.

Q. And will you state whether or not the list of documents [4459] that I gave to you is taken from the regular files of the union?

A. They are taken from the regular files of the library of the ILWU.

Q. And are those files and the contents maintained as part of the regular business of the ILWU?

A. They are.

Q. Now, will you open the briefcase which you have, Miss Rand. Now, I asked you first if you would bring the minutes of a regular membership meeting of the San Francisco ILA which preceded the ILWU held on June 22, 1936. Have you that document? A. I have that document here.

Q. Might I have it, please?

(The witness handed a document to Mr. Hallinan.)

Q. Now, as I understand it, Miss Rand, you have just handed us the original minutes of the regular meeting of Local 38-79, ILWU, held in Scottish Rite Auditorium on Monday, June 22, 1936, is that correct? A. That is correct.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Q. And this document has been taken by you from the files of the ILWU maintained as part of their regular business records, is that correct?

A. That is quite correct.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer it in evidence, if the Court please. I will show it to Mr. Donohue (handing document to Mr. [4460] Donohue). We offer it in evidence, if the Court please, under the Uniform Business Records law as the defendants' exhibit next in order.

Mr. Donohue: No objection, your Honor.

The Clerk: Marked Defendants' S-1 in evidence.

(Minutes of ILWU, June 22, 1936, were marked Defendants' Exhibit S-1 in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): The next document I asked you to bring was the minutes of the meeting of the San Francisco Maritime Federation of the Pacific District Council No. 2 held on Tuesday, the 23rd day of June, 1936. Have you that document, Miss Rand? A. I have that here.

Q. And the same description applies to that as we just did to the other: It is procured from the same source? A. That is true.

Mr. Donohue: If the Court please, that doesn't seem to conform to the rule that it is a document kept in the regular order of business, as it appears to be a mimeographed or photostatic copy.

Mr. Hallinan: Still kept that way.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Q. Some of them you have originals and some you have mimeographed copies, but you have offiered the documents that constitute part of your file, is that correct? A. Exactly. [4461]

Q. In other words, as I understand it, some of these minutes——

Mr. Paisley: Your Honor, just a moment. Can't counsel cease from leading the witness? He is telling the witness how to anwer. He has been doing that all day.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): As I understand it—well, let me ask you this: Some of these documents are mimeographed and some are typewritten, is that correct? A. That is quite right.

Q. Is there any distinction made between them in the files of the union?

A. None whatsoever.

Mr. Hallinan: Or are they all filed indiscriminately? I think it is admissible.

The Court: May I see it?

(The document was handed to the Court.)

The Court: This appears to be mimeographed.

The Witness: That's right. They are in various forms.

Mr. Hallinan: As I understand it, the only original in matters of that kind is the stencil, your Honor, and all miemographed documents would be copies like that.

The Court: Very well. This mimeographed copy appears to bear the signature of Mervyn Rathborne as secretary. Where would the original be lodged?

The Witness: That I am afraid I can't say. All the records coming to us in the library I have kept. [4462]

Q. (By the Court): May I ask you the source of this mimeographed copy?

A. These were part of the library archives as I inherited them when I took over the job.

Q. On the date mentioned, in June of 1946?

A. That is right.

Q. And who preceded you?

A. To my knowledge, I am the first trained librarian.

Q. The first librarian? A. They have had.

Q. Do you now know where the original might be lodged? A. I'm afraid not, sir.

Q. Well, wouldn't it, in the terms of your training, and in the light of your experience, be the usual routine to lodge the original in a bound volume or some such volume?

A. That may be. I have no knowledge of it.

Q. Do you presently know where the bound volume may be, if such exists?

A. No, I'm afraid I don't.

Mr. Hallinan: We have none.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, this appears to be a mimeographed copy.

Mr. Hallinan: As I understand, in mimeographing the only original is the stencil.

The Court: That is true. [4463]

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Mr. Hallinan: And then all the copies are run off and the stencil is not retained.

The Court: This appears to be a copy or mimeographed copy of the minutes of the regular meeting of the San Francisco Bay Area District Council No. 2 held in Room F, Ferry Building, San Francisco, California; it appears that the chairman was Harry Bridges, secretary Mervyn Rathborne, meeting called to order at 8:22, and so forth, credentials, roll call, and the like. Are we to conclude, Mr. Hallinan, that the original of this document is not in existence?

Mr. Hallinan: Not in existence. In other words, there never was an original except the stencil from which those things are run off.

The Court: What, if any, document did Mr. Mervyn Rathborne sign?

Mr. Hallinan: The stencil, and then the stencil is not retained, being unintelligible, not a readable document, because in numerous of these matters what we have are these mimeographed documents. I suppose some of them are sent out to the various other departments of the union and that is the——

The Court: I understand that, but it seems to me, in the bowing acquaintance that I have with routine business matters——

Mr. Hallinan: We make no point of the signature or anything of that kind.

The Court: No, but regular minutes are kept in a minute [4464] book.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): These are not kept in that fashion, is that correct?

A. That is right. They are kept chronologically in our files reserved for that purpose.

The Court: In order?

The Witness: That is quite right.

Q. (By the Court): Did you inherit a minute book of any kind, character or description?

A. I did not.

Mr. Donohue: It would seem incredible——

The Court: May I ask one further question:

Q. Is there any continuity with respect to the minutes as you withdraw them from the files of the union, or are they kept in an indiscriminate manner?

A. They are, as far as I could get them, in chronological order according to the date of the meeting.

Mr. Hallinan: We can always get each succeeding one from the files because they are kept in regular order.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan: I am fearful that this document does not meet the requirements of the particular rule you seek to apply.

Mr. Hallinan: It doesn't say in the Uniform Business Records law that only originals are admissible. I suppose a carbon copy is the copy which is ordinarily offered. Suppose a [4465] letter is written by a person and he retains a carbon copy. The carbon copy is admissible. And that is all that that is: That is a carbon copy or mimeographed copy of a document that is send around.

The Court: There is no authentication of the minute or minutes. I will mark it for identification.

Mr. Hallinan: Judge, that won't help us very much, because the contents of that are very important as establishing Mr. Bridges' whereabouts.

The Court: I haven't looked at the contents at all.

Mr. Hallinan: I might say the purpose of all of these, we have one purpose: to establish Mr. Bridges' whereabouts on the dates set out in the minutes. In other words, these minutes speak for themselves. They contain recitals; they are documents made in the regular course of business retained by the union as part of their official records, and they are admissible under the law.

Now, no special distinction should be made, and there is no reason why we should have to conform to a stricter rule than the uniform law provides, your Honor, and the record that you have is the one that is admissible. If it happens to be an original, all right; if it doesn't, then you produce what you have.

The section, your Honor, is 1953-J of the Code of Civil Procedure. We have that. That is the section under which we [4466] are offering them, and of course they are subject to argument and dispute——

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, there is a Federal statute that bears directly upon this matter.

Mr. Hallinan: The Uniform Business Records law is the same all over. In other words, the purpose is to try to get a uniform law as to what shall be admissible, and the Federal law is the same as the State.

The Court: The leading case is Palmer v. Hoff-mann, a decision by Justice Douglas. I am not familiar with the background, but I think for the present I will mark it for identification. I want authorities from the Government as well as from you on that particular point.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: That is, as to whether a mimeographed copy is in a different position from another?

The Court: And the mode and manner of maintaining the document as elicited from this witness, and in general the situation as presented by this document which you handed the Court.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Miss Rand, may I ask you this: When did you say you became librarian of the ILWU? A. In June of 1946.

Q. In June, 1946? A. Yes.

Q. And were these documents in the files at that time? [4467] A. That's right.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, we can do that, mark them for identification, I suppose, then.

The Court: I am not indicating my ultimate ruling.

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, I understand.

The Clerk: May it be marked Defendants' T-1 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Defendants' Exhibit T-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): The next one I asked you to bring were the minutes of the San Francisco

ILA Executive Board for Sunday, the 24th day of June, 1936. Have you that, Miss Rand?

A. I have that right here. [4408]

(The document handed to Government counsel.)

Mr. Hallinan: Well, this one does not come within that criticism, for it is a typewritten original, with the secretary's name on it. We will offer that evidence as Defendants' next in order.

Mr. Donohue: And on that basis we make no objection to it, if your Honor please.

The Court: May I see that one, please?

(Document examined by the Court.)

The Court: Now, again, Mr. Hallinan——

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, there is no objection by the prosecution.

The Court: No, but I am trying to clarify the matter in my own mind with respect to the prior offer you made, with respect to the looseleaf manner of keeping documents, so I may make a ruling on that other matter. I observe on the margin that these minutes were extracted from a ledger or book, looseleaf book, were they?

The Witness: These were brought to me in the form in which they presently are.

The Court: By whom were they brought?

The Witness: They were in the files in the form in which I brought them. These are the original copies in the library, of the minutes as I found them. The librarian was very competent, the library was very competently kept by the research [4469] staff, which I understand, prior to my time there, kept all the records.

The Court: Well, in your search, as requested no doubt by Mr. Hallinan or someone on his behalf or Mr. Bridges, where did you find this document?

The Witness: In the folder in the chronological order in which the rest of these minutes are kept.

The Court: Originally they were maintained in a ledger, were they not?

The Witness: That is something I have no way of telling. They were in this form as I took them from the folder.

The Court: Well, from your professional experience, would it not seem to indicate that by reason of the perforations, that at one time they were lodged in a permanent bound form?

The Witness: That may be. I have no way of telling.

Mr. Hallinan: And you will notice, Judge, that that and the first document are of the ILA; the second one, the mimeographed one, is the Maritime Federation of the Pacific.

The Court: Yes, I see.

Mr. Hallinan: So there is a difference in the two. I think all of the Maritime Federation ones are mimeographed ones, and then you notice there is a different secretary, too. In this one it is Ivan Cox.

The Court: Ivan A. Cox appears to be the secretary.

The Clerk: That is admitted, Your [4470] Honor?

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

The Court: It may be marked.

The Clerk: Marked Defendants' U-1 in evidence.

(The minutes referred to were thereupon received in evidence and marked Defendants' Exhibit U-1.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, the next one I asked you to bring or the next in sequence is the San Francisco ILA regular membership meeting of Monday, the 29th of June, 1936. Have you that?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. May I have it, please?

A. (Document produced.)

(Document examined by Government counsel.)

Mr. Hallinan: I am pretty sure, your Honor, that photostatic copies of these documents were included in the matters I submitted to the Court in the matter of the accusations against Crouch and Johnson.

Mr. Donohue: I didn't hear that.

Mr. Hallinan: I say, that photostatic copies of these were included in the documents that I gave the Court in the accusations against Crouch and Johnson, and which we sent to the grand jury.

Mr. Donohue: Don't you remember that you withdrew them from the Court, Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: Yes, but then we sent them to the United States District Attorney and to the grand jury, didn't we? [4471]

Mr. Donohue: You didn't send any to me.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Mr. Hallinan: Well, you are only here especially for this case. You weren't interested in prosecuting Crouch and Johnson.

Mr. Donohue: That is a special reason why you should have sent them to me.

Mr. Hallinan: That is another original, your Honor, from the ILA, and we offer it as Defendant's next in order.

Mr. Donohue: I may say, as long as Mr. Hallinan wants to become technical, if your Honor pleases, unless he can establish by this witness that this document was kept in the regular course of business in 1936 as it is now kept by her, it would not be admissible.

Mr. Hallinan: No, you don't have to do any such thing. In fact, the purpose of the uniform business records law is just to obviate the necessity of going back over a long period of years and making proof of the execution of the document or how it was kept. If it is included, if it is removed from the ordinary business records, then it is admissible. Now, it is a disputable presumption that the facts contained in it are correctly stated, but so far as a prima facie showing is concerned, it need only be shown that it is taken from the regular uniform business records.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask your Honor to mark all of these exhibits for identification until we can produce authorities [4472] before your Honor on the question as to whether or not the evidence produced by the witness establishes a foundation upon which these documents may be admitted under the federal statute?

The Court: It may be marked presently for identification. I will hear counsel out on this subject tomorrow.

Mr. Hallinan: All right.

Q. Now, the next document you have is for the San Francisco District Council minutes that I asked for, the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, for Tuesday, the 30th of June, 1936. Have you that, Miss Rand? A. I have it here, sir.

The Clerk: May the record show that the last exhibit is marked Defendants' V-1 for identification?

> (Whereupon document concerning meeting of Monday, June 29, 1936, referred to above, was marked Defendants' Exhibit V-1 for identification.)

> (Document produced by the witness, examined by counsel for the Government.)

Mr. Donohue: This, I take it, your Honor, being also mimeographed would be subject to the same rule.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, we offer it in evidence, then, and we have agreed, I take it, that it isn't necessary to ask the witness as to each particular document, that they were all taken from the same place a[illegible] that they are all subject to the first [4473] question that was asked.

The Court: Was that a correct statement?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

The Clerk: May this be marked Defendants' W-1 for identification.

(Whereupon document dated 6/30/36 referred to above was marked Defendants' Exhibit W-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): So now we have received from you minutes of meetings for Monday, the 22nd of June, Tuesday, the 23rd of June, Wednesday, the 24th of June, Monday, the 29th of June, and Tuesday, the 30th of June?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now have you the minutes of the San Francisco District Council No. 2, executive committee, for Wednesday, the 1st of July?

A. I have those here (producing).

(Documents examined by counsel for the Government.)

Mr. Donohue: We object on the same basis, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer it in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit next in order.

The Court: It may be presently marked for identification, pending counsel's investigation into the matter he indicated.

(Document dated 7/1/36 referred to above was marked Defendants' Exhibit X-1 for identification.)

Q. (Mr. Hallinan): Now I asked you to bring an undated [4474] press release relating to the

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

~~parade to~~ be held on the 5th of July—no, on the 4th of July it is—no, the 5th of July; a parade to be held on the 5th of July signed by Harry Bridges. Have you that document?

A. That document is here (producing).

(Document examined by counsel for the Government.)

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, I think there are several bases for objection. There is no evidence that this is a document kept in the regular course of business. No. 2, I don't find any date on the document.

The Court: Who was the author of the letter?

Mr. Hallinan: Mr. Bridges.

The Court: Well, mark it now and it may be——

Mr. Hallinan: Now I thought we agreed that we wouldn't have to repeat each question, but this document that was just handed me, the undated letter, is on the San Francisco Bay Area District Council No. 2 letterhead.

Q. Was that also procured by you from the files regularly kept by you in the ordinary course of business of the ILWU?

A. They were gotten from the files.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer it as Defendants' exhibit next in order. And I might state to your Honor that while it does not contain a date we can show that by its internal contents the date is necessarily to be derived from it, to be deduced from it. It is our contention that this letter was written and signed by [4475] Mr. Bridges on the 2nd of July, 1936, because he speaks of "For Release on Friday," and it speaks about the parade to be held on the 5th; so the last day it could have been written was Thursday, which was July 2nd.

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

The Court: It may be marked for identification at the present time.

(Whereupon undated press release was marked Defendants' Exhibit Y-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, you have also, or I asked you to bring also the minutes of the executive committee of the San Francisco Council No. 2 for Friday, the 3rd of July. Have you that?

A. Yes. (Producing.)

(Documents examined by counsel for the Government.)

Mr. Donohue: We ask your Honor to accept this subject to the same stipulation.

Mr. Hallinan: Then this document we offer in evidence as Defendants' next in order.

The Court: It may be marked in the same way.

(Whereupon document dated 7/3/36 was marked Defendant's Exhibit Z-1 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Is that the last document you have?

A. We have one more that should have been with it,

Q. What is that?

A. The one for July 1st and one also for July 6th. [4476]

(Testimony of Anne Rand.)

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. One for July 6th and another section of the July 1st.

Q. I see. May I have those two, then, both of them? A. Yes (producing).

(Documents examined by counsel for the Government.)

Mr. Donohue: We ask your Honor to accept these subject to the same understanding.

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, now, so that we have them in the proper rotation only, one of them I have procured from you out of order, because it is minutes of the regular meeting of the executive board held Wednesday, July 1st, 1936. That is the ILA. And this one is signed by Henry Schmidt, I note. We offer that, then, as Defendants' exhibit next in order.

The Court: It may be marked for identification.

(Whereupon portion of minutes of meeting of 7/1/36 was marked Defendants' Exhibit A-2 for identification.)

Mr. Hallinan: And then the last one is the minutes of the regular meeting of the Local 38-79, held Monday, July 6, 1936, at the Scottish Rite Auditorium. That is signed by Ivan F. Cox. We offer that as defendants' next exhibit in order.

(Whereupon minutes of meeting of 7/6/36 was marked Defendants' Exhibit B-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Now, might I ask this, Miss Rand: Are there other minutes going back of the first one that you produced [4477] here on the 22nd of June, 1936?

A. Yes, they go back.

Q. In other words, it extends in a reverse series backwards, is that right? A. Correct.

Q. And how about from the 6th of July, 1936, up to the present date? Are they also in regular rotation? A. They are intact.

Q. But I asked you only to pick out the ones that ran for the week which included the 27th day of June, 1936, and for the ensuing week?

A. That is correct.

Q. But you have available and can produce the records that precede that and the records that succeed it? A. That is quite right.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Miss Rand, you were employed only or have been employed only since 1946 as the librarian?

A. That is quite right.

Q. You are not able to testify what the practice was prior to your coming to work there, with respect to keeping these records?

A. Only in that I found them in excellent order, maintained in the research department, which practice I have maintained and [4478] continued.

Q. But, for example, these exhibits which appear to have perforated holes, as though they might once have been in a permanent folder, you didn't find them in a folder? A. I did not, no.

Q. And you do not know at what time they may have been removed from the folder?

A. That I can't say. I have no way of telling.

Q. And with respect to these documents which appear to have been mimeographed, you are not familiar with the practice with respect to keeping any original of those documents?

A. That I do not know.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, subject perhaps to the necessity of recalling the witness after we have made an examination of the statute, we have no further questions at this time. But we would like to reserve that right, in case there be a point which may become important.

The Court: You have that right.

Mr. Hallinan: And might I suggest, your Honor, that the ruling on that and the presentation of points and authorities be deferred until Monday because we have other matters that will crowd in and we don't want to take the time off to search on that?

Mr. Donohue: No objection.

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, any convenience of yours will be [4479] met by the Court, be it proper.

Mr. Hallinan: And we have some further records that Miss Rand will introduce later, so then she can be cross-examined on this further if they desire.

Thank yo[illegible], Miss Rand. That is all.

Your Honor, we have one witness left, a character witness. It will only take a few minutes. If we can put her on now, we would be glad to.

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: We call Miss Louise Schmidt.

The Clerk: Call Miss Louise Schmidt.

LOUISE SCHMIDT

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury?

A. Louise Harriet Schmidt.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. You are the daughter of Mr. Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were born here in the City and County of San Francisco, is that correct?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And have lived here all of your life? [4480]

A. Yes.

Q. You were educated in the public schools here in San Francisco? A. I was.

Q. And graduated from what high school?

A. Mission High School.

Q. That was in what year, Miss Schmidt?

A. June of 1946.

Q. Now, since June of 1946 have you been employed? A. I have.

Q. What is your present employment?

A. I am working with Crocker First National Bank.

(Testimony of Louise Schmidt.)

Q. And you have been working with that bank for about what period of time?

A. About eight months.

Q. And previous to that employment, did you work with some other bank ~~in~~ the City and County?

A. Yes, the Bank of America.

Q. I see. Then you transferred from the Bank of America to the Crocker First National Bank, is that so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have seen your father, I suppose, almost every day for all of your life, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have not only seen your father, but I suppose particularly [4481] since this case was brought, you have heard other people mention and discuss your father? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now, from your own knowledge and from such conversations as you may have heard others engage in, do you know what the reputation of your father, Henry Schmidt, is in this community for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I do.

Q. What is that reputation?

A. It is excellent.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: Of the young lady we have no questions, your Honor.

The Court: All right; you may be excused.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the adjournment, then, until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. The same admonition to you, not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Testimony of Louise Schmidt.)

We have in mind the plans for tomorrow afternoon. Have you completed those plans?

The Clerk: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: So that we leave here at 2:00 o'clock?

The Clerk: We may assemble here in the usual fashion, at 2:00, and leave from here.

The Court: All right. You may retire.

Mr. Donohue: Will your Honor remain just a moment?

The Court: Very well. [4482]

(Whereupon the jury retired from the courtroom, and the following occurred outside of the presence of the jury:)

The Court: Mr. Donohue asked the Court to remain here.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor. I have, pursuant to your Honor's direction, brought the original and a photostat of the guest registration of the Governor Hotel, which Mr. Hallinan requested. I shall be glad to give him either the original or a photostat, whichever he may prefer.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, if we may have the photostat, and let the clerk have the original, that will be satisfactory.

The Court: The original may be lodged with the clerk.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, sir.

The Court: And it may be merely marked for identification.

(Discussion between Court and clerk outside hearing of the reporter.)

The Court: It may be marked as Government's Exhibit next in order for identification only.

Mr. Hallinan: We will stipulate it may be admitted in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: Well, all right. I think that should be done tomorrow morning, in the presence of the jury. Otherwise we will stand adjourned.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Friday, January 27, 1950, at 10:00 a.m.) [4483]

Friday, January 27, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: The United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. Hallinan: We have now, if the Court please, produced by the Government attorney the guest registration card which we called for at the appearance on the witness stand of the witness George Wilson, and there was some discussion in evidence at that time, I believe, that a certain guest registation card at the Governor Hotel in the name of Mervyn Rathborne had been removed from the files of the Governor Hotel and was then in the possession of the Government. This document has been delivered to the clerk yesterday by the special prosecutor. We now offer it in evidence, if the Court please, as the defendants' exhibit next in oder.

The Court: It may be received and marked in evidence.

The Clerk: Defendants' C-2 in evidence.

(Registration card marked Defendants' Exhibit C-2 in evidence.)

Mr. Hallinan: Now, Mr. Robertson, will you please take the stand.

JAMES A. ROBERTSON

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: James A. Robertson.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. And where do you live, Mr. Robertson?

A. At 721 19th Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. And what is your business or occupation?

A. I am secretary to the Pacific Maritime Association.

Q. The Pacific Maritime Association—just what is that?

A. That is a labor relations organization dealing with both onshore and offshore labor.

Q. Then the matter which you refer to, is that a group of employers? A. It is, sir.

Q. That is the employers' group that is formed to deal with labor organizations in their mutual difficulties or agreements, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you are secretary of that organization?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, as such do you have charge of the records of the organization? A. I have.

Q. Are the records of the organization maintained under your control in the ordinary course of business of this organization you have just testified to? A. They are. [4485]

Q. Now, you were asked to produce from the files of that organization certain minutes of meetings of the Longshore Labor Relations Committee of San Francisco. Did you bring them with you?

A. I did, sir.

Q. And prior to this time has that document or these minutes been delivered to the defense so that photostats could be made of portions of them? Do you know if that has been done?

A. I delivered them. I have the dates here, if you wish.

On December 23, 1949, Mr. Modine, I believe, through our Mr. Clark, vice president, requested that we send the originals of the Labor Relations Committee minutes, October 16, 1934, through December 31, 1937.

On December 30, 1949, we sent the minutes for 1938 through 1941, inclusive.

On January 25 we again sent the minutes covering the period October 16, 1934, to March 28, 1935.

Q. The original minutes have since been returned to you? A. I have them, yes.

Q. Have you brought those minutes with you?

A. I have them here, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not—might I see the minutes first?

A. (Handing documents to Mr. Hallinan.)

Mr. Hallinan: I might at this time, in view of some little [4486] comment that was made on the matter, your Honor, ask if it would be all right to at least let the jurors know that some of my activity in taking away the table from Mr. Mitchell and taking it before the witness and bringing that large book up there is in deference to the fact that Mr. Mitchell had a very serious operation during the Christmas vacation, and my interest was not to interfere with his function, but only to save him that exertion.

The Court: I must say, Mr. Hallinan, no reflection has been made on you, and I am sure Mr. Mitchell appreciates it.

Mr. Hallinan: I heard it from somebody in the courtroom. I thought some of the jurors might have had that impression.

The Court: That was absolutely unwarranted. I instruct the jury accordingly. That was a very gracious act on your part.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): The document that you presented here contains the minutes of the Longshore Labor Relations Committee of San Francisco from October 16, 1934, to March 28, 1935, inclusive. Is that taken by you from the regular files of your organization? A. It was.

Q. And is it maintained in those files in the regular course of business of your organization, at least as of the present time?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Hallinan: I might state to counsel that the purpose [4487] of this matter and the parts that I wish to call attention to are those minutes commencing October 16, 1934, and running along until the end of October. All relate to the membership on the committee on the union side of it of Henry Schrimpf and his absences from the various meetings. That is the purpose of it.

We offer at this time, if the Court please, the minute book, then, in evidence. I will substitute for them the photostats of the meetings we desire.

The Court: There is no objection, I assume, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: I think probably not, if your Honor please. We would like an opportunity to examine it. It is rather voluminous.

The Court: Subject to your examination, it may be received and appropriately marked.

Mr. Hallinan: Then I will substitute the photostats for the original.

The Clerk: May it be marked Defendants' D-2.

> (The minutes were marked Defendants' Exhibit D-2 in evidence.)

Mr. Hallinan: Then we will return it to Mr. Robertson.

The Witness: Thank you.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Did you bring with you in response to a subpoena another document relating to certain minutes maintained by your organization?

A. I did. [4488]

Q. Will you tell us what that document is, Mr. Robertson.

A. The minutes of the meeting of the Longshore Labor Relations Committee of San Francisco of July 3, 1936.

(Testimony of James A. Robertson.)

Q. And would you state from whence you received or took that document.

A. These were taken from the files of our manager in San Francisco.

Q. Are they maintained in those files in the regular course of business of the organization?

A. That is correct.

Q. And under your control also?

A. Not under my direct control.

Q. But you have charge of the whole thing; there are certain subordinate persons who have the direct control? A. That is correct.

Mr. Hallinan: We offer it in evidence, if the Court please, as the defendants' exhibit next in order.

Q. And, as you said before, Mr. Robertson, all of these matters now are from the files of the employer; that is correct, isn't it?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Hallinan: And I have a photostatic reproduction of that document, which I will ask to be substituted for it.

Mr. Donohue: There is no objection, if your Honor please.

The Court: Let it be marked. [4489]

The Clerk: May it be marked Defendants' E-2 in evidence.

(The minutes were marked Defendants' Exhibit E-2 in evidence.)

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

The Court: Mr. Donohue, that original minute book is available to you to the end that you may make such comparison as is necessary, then it is to be returned to this witness.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Hallinan: The photostats offered in lieu were turned over to the Government. The duty is upon them to return the minute book.

The Court: Yes. Mr. Mitchell will undertake to return it to this witness.

Mr. Donohue: We have no questions of this witness.

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

Mr. MacInnis: We will call Henry Schmidt, your Honor.

HENRY SCHMIDT

one of the defendants, called in his own behalf; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: My name is Henry Schmidt—S-c-h-m-i-d-t.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your address, Mr. Schmidt?

A. 559 11th Avenue.

Q. And what is your occupation at this time? [4490]

A. I am an officer of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Q. What office do you hold?

A. The title is International Representative.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Schmidt?

A. I was born in Germany on the 9th of February, 1899.

Q. And you are at present 50 or 51 years of age, is that correct? A. I will be 51 next month.

Q. When did you come to this continent, Mr. Schmidt?

A. My father and I came to the American continent in 1911.

Q. To what city or place did you first come?

A. We landed in Canada, and we journeyed to Winnipeg in the Province of Manitoba.

Q. And from that place where next did you travel and take up residence?

A. Well, I traveled alone to a farm in the Province of Manitoba shortly after our arrival in Winnipeg, and I stayed there for about 14 or 15 months, I recall.

Q. And when first did you come to the United States? A. In the winter of 1915.

Q. And that residence was in what city or State?

A. In Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Q. And after living in Minneapolis where did you go next?

A. I came to San Francisco. [4491]

Q. What was the date upon which you came to San Francisco?

A. The day before Christmas 1917, December 24.

Q. And have you lived here in San Francisco for the past 33 years?

A. With the exception of one year in Marin County, and I have spent a stretch of 18 months in

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Hawaii, which was part of 1946 and part of 1947, and again for a six months' period in Hawaii in 1949.

Q. I take it your permanent residence has been since 1917 in and around San Francisco?

A. That is correct. [4492]

Q. What occupation have you followed since you have been here in San Francisco?

A. I worked in several mills here in San Francisco, flour mills.

Q. During what approximate period of years?

A. That would be in 1917 and 1918, through the years until about 1926 or 1927, thereabouts; I drifted down to the waterfront and began to work as a longshoreman.

Q. When did you obtain your citizenship in the United States?

A. It was either in 1926 or 1927 in this building.

Q. Was it in this room?

A. I think it was in this room.

Q. And it was either in 1926 or 1927, is that correct? A. One of those two years.

Q. What was the first years upon which you began to work on the waterfront?

A. About that time, '26 or '27.

Q. Was there in those years any union in existence?

A. Yes, there was a union and its name was—the official name was the San Francisco Longshoremen's Association.

Q. Was that a so-called company union?

A. It was generally recognized by the men as a company-controlled union and it was called the Blue Book Union.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. What was the significance of that phrase, the Blue Book Union? [4493]

A. Well, merely because the membership books that it issued to its members were blue in color.

Q. Did you work fairly steadily on the waterfront for the approximate years of 1927 up to, let us say, 1933? A. No, sir.

Q. What was the situation so far as the activities on the waterfront were concerned?

A. Well, when I first came there I don't think I managed to get any employment for the first four or five weeks. I just stationed myself at Pier gates and then eventually I managed to get employment in a car gang at the Dollar Line docks, Pier 44 and Pier 46.

Q. What was the nature of the work that you undertook at that time?

A. Well, other men and I would unload or load cargo, freight, that is, from railroad boxcars or into railroad boxcars.

Q. Did you continue with that kind of work for a considerable number of years?

A. Yes, I think so. I can't recall whether it was a year and a half or two years.

Q. What change, if any, took place in your mode of employment on the waterfront?

A. Well, as I tried to explain, the work at Pier 14 was rather unsteady, and I managed to get a little bit of work as a longshoreman at the Matson dock and I worked a few jobs there. [4494] And some time thereafter—I don't recall how long—I managed to get into a steady gang of longshoremen at the Admiral Line docks. That would be Pier 16 and Pier 18.

Q. For what period of time did that steady work continue?

A. Well, that continued until about 1933.

Q. Can you tell us what your best memory is concerning the first time you met Harry Bridges?

A. I recall he talked to me one time on the waterfront in 1933, and it was on an occasion when I was no longer employed at the Admiral Line. We had had a little strike there and I was dismissed, and he came to me one morning at the shapeup at the Ferry Building and we had a brief conversation, and I think he helped me getting a job for that day with another gang boss.

Q. Is that the first time that you are conscious of having talked with Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, that is so.

Q. Did you know him to see him before that time?

A. Well, he was pointed out to me and, well, from then on, I knew him.

Q. What was the shapeup which you have just mentioned?

A. It was the custom on the San Francisco waterfront for many longshoremen to report at the Ferry Building, that is, on the Embarcadero directly across the street from the Ferry Building, and the men would report there as early as 6:00 in the morning for the purpose of finding employment and also for the purpose [4495] of securing their orders from their gang bosses in order to find out where they might go to work and if they were going to go to work. Hundreds of men would assemble there each morning.

Q. Would that be true whether the men belonged to a particular steady working gang or not?

A. Yes, both types of men would assemble there, those who were members of the gangs and others who were just free lance.

Q. And the opportunities then for employment were created at the last minute in the so-called shapeup line?

A. That would be a correct statement, yes.

Q. About what percentage of the men who would come to the shapeup at 6:00 in the morning would find employment on a particular day?

A. I couldn't answer that question.

Q. Would that vary?

A. That would vary with the work opportunities, Mr. MacInnis. If there were but few ships in the harbor, there would not be much opportunity, and by the same reason, if there were many ships in the harbor there would be more work opportunity.

Q. Was there any arrangement in effect at that time for a distribution of the work over all the men who were there? A. None whatsoever.

Q. What was done in that respect?

A. Well, nothing was done. It was a hit-and-miss proposition.

Q. In the year 1933, Mr. Schmidt, of which you now speak, was [4496] there an organization called the Albion Hall group which then came into existence?

A. That came into existence, to the best of my knowledge, in that year, either about the time that the ILA began to reorganize—and the ILA began to reorganize about the middle of that year, 1933 that is——

Q. By the middle of the year do you have in mind any particular month?

A. Well, mid-year is June, and that is the best that I can fix it.

Q. What do you mean when you say that the ILA began to reorganize? What was the ILA in 1933, and was it in active existence during all of that year?

A. The ILA is or was the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Association. It is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. It had functioned on the San Francisco waterfront prior to the establishment of the Blue Book Union. It went out of existence about 1919, and in 1933, as I have already stated, the international officers in New York apparently learned that there was an opportunity to reorganize the ILA in San Francisco. They sent an organizer here and he began to operate, and he had but little difficulty in getting the San Francisco longshoremen to join that union.

Q. What was the connection between the so-called Albion Hall group and the reorganizing or the activating of the ILA? [4497]

A. Well, the men who composed that group were members of the ILA, the ILA which had just been reorganized.

Q. Were you a member of the Albion Hall group?

A. Yes, shortly thereafter I found myself a member of that group.

Q. Was Harry Bridges, to your knowledge, a member of the Albion Hall group?

A. Yes, he was there.

Q. Now, how did the Albion Hall group gets its name?

A. Well, apaprently because the building in which the group met is situated on Albion Street in San Francisco. The name of the hall is not Albion Hall. The name of the hall is the Equality Hall.

Q. What did the men, the members of the ILA who were given the name of the Albion Hall group, do to reorganize the ILA in the middle of 1933?

A. Well, let me put it this way: The ILA was already well on its way to being established. The group in Equality Hall met for the purpose of attempting to formulate some program which would be beneficial to the men who had just joined this new union.

Q. Do you have any approximate memory concerning the time you went into the Albion Hall group?

A. No, it seems to me it was in the middle of 1933. It may have been July. I recall I paid an initiation fee to the ILA [4498] organizer, and this was a number of weeks before I was initiated into the union, and my membership book indicates that I was initiated into the union in July of 1933, and I guess I became a member of the Equality Hall about that time; maybe shortly thereafter.

Q. At or about the time that you were initiated into the ILA, the Equality Hall group or Albion Hall group, as it has been called, was already organized? A. That seems to be correct.

Q. At that time, Mr. Schmidt, was there a man named John Schomaker on the waterfront who was also a member of the ILA?

A. I don't think so. I think that he appeared on the waterfront some months later.

Q. Do you have any recollection of seeing John Schomaker at the time that the ILA was being reorganized?

A. Well, those were the days when I was shaping up on the Embarcadero across the street from the Ferry, and I have no recollection of seeing him around there then.

Q. When you first began to see John Schomaker, I suppose you took particular notice of him because of his size and appearance, is that correct?

A. Well, he was noticed by everybody.

Q. Did you have any recollection of seeing John Schomaker at the time the Albion Hall group was taking an interest in the ILA? [4499]

A. Not at the beginning.

Q. Did the ILA elect a slate of candidates or a slate of officials in the summer of 1933?

A. Some time during 1933 there was an election which resulted in the election of permanent officers, an executive board, and so on and so forth.

Q. Was there any event in the early fall of 1933 at which time——

A. Mr. MacInnis, excuse me. I did not get the beginning of that statement.

Q. I am sorry. Was there any event in the early fall of 1933 at which time the men renounced their membership in the Blue Book Union?

A. There was a strike at the Matson docks. It was pretty well along in the year, a strike that was of short duration. I think it had to do with the dismissal of four or five men, and I do not recall whether they were dismissed because they had joined the new union or not. In any case, I recall they were reinstated and after that it gave considerable more impetus to the organization of the new union.

Q. I am going to show you a photostatic reproduction of the San Francisco News of October 10, 1933, and of the San Francisco Chronicle of the following day, October 11, and ask you if a reading of these documents can refresh your memory as to the date of the Matson strike of which you [4500] speak.

A. What are the dates of these papers?

Q. The dates are shown on them.

A. Mr. MacInnis, I do not see anything in the News relating to this Matson incident. Maybe it is in the Chronicle.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, I do not like to intrude in the examination, but I think I might object again to the use of either an original or photostatic copy of a newspaper introduced for the purpose of establishing either the truth of the statement contained in that document or a date upon which an incident occurred because obviously if one has no independent recollection of a date on which an incident occurred, the mere reading of a newspaper account of the date on which that account appears is thereby a substitution for the recollection of the witness.

The Court: The avowed purpose is to refresh his recollection, and perhaps by a relation of events as described therein he may or may not have his recollection refreshed.

Mr. Donohue: I assume that that strike is a matter of record, and I will be glad to stipulate when it was if Mr. MacInnis will tell us when the strike was.

The Court: Does that refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, it does. The date was fairly late in the year of 1933. It would be October 10th or 11th or thereabouts. I recall that I was working on the Admiral Line docks, and before going to work at 8:00 o'clock in the morning I would go up [4501] to the Matson Line which is but a short distance, because everybody knew there was going to be some kind of difficulty there.

Q. What was the nature of the difficulty at the

Matson docks? What was its duration and what was the total effect of it?

A. Well, it is my recollection that four or five men had been dismissed for carrying on union activity, I presume, and the other men, who were fellow workers, decided to either not go to work or leave the job after they had gone to work, and I think their demand was that these men be reinstated. I can't recall what the officials of the union did about it, but eventaually a committee wound up in the office of Mr. George Creel, who was then an official of the NRA, and he had something to do with the settlement of this dispute.

Q. Pardon me. By the NRA, do you mean the National Recovery Act? A. That's right.

Q. That was set up in the early days of President Roosevelt, is that correct?

A. Which, incidentally, had a great deal to do with the reorganization of the union.

Q. What happened as a result of the setting up of this mediation board under George Creel?

A. Well, eventually that dispute was settled. I believe the men were reinstated, and that is the best I can do.

Q. After that time did you become active in the affairs of the [4502] ILA? A. Oh, yes.

Q. After that time did you see Harry Bridges more and more frequently?

A. Yes. As I stated a while ago, there was a mass initiation at the Labor Temple. Then there was an election, and I was a candidate for the executive board. I think Bridges was a candidate for the executive board. We were both elected and from then on we saw each other quite frequently.

Q. When in relation to the time of your initiation into the ILA, which you say was July of 1933, did you become a candidate for the executive board along with Harry Bridges?

A. Well, inasmuch as I was initiated in July, I think it was shortly thereafter, but I couldn't mention the date.

Q. In any event, shortly after July of 1933 you and Harry Bridges were both members of the executive board of the ILA, is that correct?

A. Local 38-79, yes.

Q. Carrying your memory into the following year, 1934, was there a strike committee set up by the ILA?

A. Yes, in February of that year, 1934, an emergency convention was held in San Francisco. All of the ILA locals on the Pacific Coast sent delegates to that convention, and as a result of the action that was taken at that convention, which among other things demanded that the employers recognize the newly [4503] formed union and other demands, it was also decided to enforce those demands by going on strike, if necessary, and shortly after the convention, our union established a strike committee.

Q. What, generally, were the activites of the strike committee between the time of its formation and the time at which a strike was ultimately called?

A. I recall that we were scheduled to go on strike on the 22nd or 23rd of March, I believe, and I recall the strike committee was meeting quite often to discuss what should be done in case we should go out on strike. The strike did not take place on that March 22nd date because there was a request from President Roosevelt to postpone it. Thereafter there were more meetings, and we made all sorts of preparations to take care of the strike if one should take place.

The strike committee was divided into subcommittees, and those men who had had previous strike experience would tell about their experiences and they would make proposals as to what ought to be done. Bridges made quite a few explanatory remarks. There was a defense committee set up, a publicity committee—these are subcommittees—a picket committee, and so forth.

Q. In addition to being a member of the strike committee itself, were you a member of any subcommittee of the strike committee?

A. Yes, two other members and I we were elected to the [4504] publicity committee.

Q. What was your function or duty as a member of the publicity committee?

A. We were instructed by the strike committee to prepare, publish and distribute a daily strike bulletin.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And how often did you publish that?

A. Well, after May 9th when the strike was in effect, we tried to live up to our instructions to get it out daily. We did not succeed during the first eight or nine days because of our inexperience, I suppose. [4505]

Q. During the entire duration of the strike how often did the strike committee itself meet?

A. The strike committee met every day during that strike, and on a number of occasions it met more than once; twice, and it may have met three times in one day on certain days.

Q. Did the strike committee meet on Sundays as well as on week days throughout the duration of the strike?

A. It met very often on Sundays, yes.

Q. When did the strike end?

A. On the last day of July.

Q. Of 1934? A. 1934.

Q. After the strike was a labor relations committee set up whose membership was composed of employers and union men alike?

A. Not immediately after the strike. That didn't come until after October 12.

Q. But after October such a body was set up, is that correct?

A. On October 12 the National Longshoremen's Board handed down an award which established a number of things, including the establishment of a joint longshore dispatching hall; and there were certain paragraphs in this award which made it obligatory on the part of the employers and the union to set up a joint labor relations committee, and that was done.

Q. What was the purpose or function of this Labor Relations Committee? [4506]

A. The Joint Labor Relations Committee was instructed by the terms of the award to establish a hiring hall, to register all the longshoremen in the port, to revise the old blue book working rules, and such things as that, and attempt to adjust grievances that might arise on the job.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, at the time of the strike did you become a member of the Communist Party?

A. I did not.

Q. Prior to the strike had you been a member of the Communist Party? A. I was not.

Q. Did you ever at any time join the Communist Party? A. I did not.

Q. Were you ever at any time a member of the Communist Party? A. I was not.

Q. Did you ever at any time sign an application asking for membership in the Communist Party? A. I certainly did not.

Q. Did you ever at any time possess a membership card in the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Did you ever at any time pay dues to the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Well, did you ever attend Communist Party meetings? A. No. [4507]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did you ever attend meetings in which all the other persons present were known by you to be members of the Communist Party?

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Have you ever been in that position where you had the knowledge that you were the only non-Communist present? A. No.

Q. And have you ever been possessed of the opinion that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Did you ever go to a Communist Party meeting with Harry Bridges? A. No.

Q. Now, proceeding, if we may, to some of the testimony that has been offered against you and the other defendants by the Government, I will begin with the testimony of John Schomaker and go over some of the incidents which he has purported to narrate to the jury.

In the year 1938, Mr. Schmidt, did you go to a party or gathering at the home of a man named Jack Shaw at a time when Harry Bridges made a speech to some 50 or 60 people announcing that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I have been at the home of Jack Shaw and it was a social gathering. I don't recall what year it was. And there were no speeches made. I have a clear recollection that most of those present were walking around with a drink in their hand, [4508] and everybody was talking at the same time.

Q. Do you remember whether or not Harry

Bridges was present at any such gathering?

A. I don't recollect seeing him there. I doubt it very much.

Q. Did you ever hear Harry Bridges, either at the home of Jack Shaw or at any other home or at any other gathering place, announce that he was a member of the Communist Party and invite, urge or request other persons present to do the same thing, to join the Communist Party?

A. Never heard any such thing.

Q. And you never heard him say any remark comparable to that in substance or otherwise, did you? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you remember a woman named Norma Perry? A. I do.

Q. Who was she, and under what circumstances did you first see her?

A. Well, when I first saw her I didn't know who she was.

Q. Just tell us the circumstances of when you first saw her and what may have developed.

A. Well, it must have been in the month of May, 1934. The longshore strike was already in progress, and that strike started on May 9, and as I said a while ago, I was a member of the publicity committee, and suddenly one morning, or it may have been afternoon, this woman came to our committee and she [4509] brought with her a portable typewriter and stated that she was a typist or stenographer and wanted to know if we couldn't use her services.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

And I suppose I discussed this with Ralph Malin, the other member of the publicity committee. I don't too clearly recollect what words were spoken. I think we may have taken her proposal to the strike committee. Anyhow, to make a long story short, her offer was accepted, and she began to work and do typing work and cutting stencils and assisted us in getting out the mimeographed strike bulletin which I mentioned a while ag .

Q. Now, did you ever attend any meeting held for the purpose of bringing charges against Norma Perry? A. No,, sir.

Q. Did you ever associate yourself with Henry Schrimpf and John Schomaker in bringing charges against her that she was a labor spy?

A. I had nothing to do with that.

Q. Was there a time when this lady named Norma Perry was discharged from her job with the union?

A. Well, that eventually happened, but I don't recall the surrounding circumstances. She later became office secretary after the strike when Bridges was president of the union, and I don't recall if she was still there later on when I became president of that union.

Q. Let me ask you this, to meet specifically the charge that [4510] has been made: In early 1935 did you go to a meeting called by John Schomaker at which there were present a man named Darcy, the woman named Perry, John Schomaker, Harry Bridges, Henry Schrimpf and Herman Mann?

A. No, I wasn't there.

Q. Do you know whether or not such a meeting ever took place? A. I couldn't know.

Q. Were you ever at any meeting with a man named Sam Darcy? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever meet Sam Darcy?

A. Not to meet him. I have heard him make a couple of talks.

Q. You mean you have been present in an audience?

A. Yes. And again I can't recall the year; it was at Dreamland Auditorium out on Steiner Street here in San Francisco, and he spoke from the platform. I was a member of the audience.

Q. Did you ever sit down in a small gathering—by "a small gathering" I mean ten or twelve people or less—in anybody's home in which you discussed matters with Sam Darcy and others?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever have any personal conversation with Sam Darcy in your life?

A. I couldn't have had.

Q. Did you ever shake hands with the man or exchange a word with him in your life?

A. No handshaking. [4511]

Q. Well, was there any exchanging of words between you and Sam Darcy? A. No, sir.

Q. In the same year, 1935, in the month of September, did you go down to San Diego to any convention of the State Federation of Labor?

A. What year was that, please?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. 1935.

A. Yes, that was the State convention of the American Federation of Labor, and, as I recall it, that was my first experience at such a convention. That was in San Diego?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I did go there.

Q. In the course of that convention did you go to a small gathering or meeting with Harry Bridges and others, including a man called Stanley Hancock and at a place called the Sumner Apartments?

A. No, sir, I definitely did not. I never saw Hancock until he sat down in this chair here several weeks ago.

Q. And do you have any conscious recollection of ever seeing the man who calls himself Stanley Hancock before?

A. I have no recollection. I am positive that I have never seen him before.

Q. And apart from whether or not you may have passed that man in a crowd or seen him from that perspective, did you ever speak [4512] with him or sit with him in any small gathering or room full of people?

A. No words ever passed between us.

Q. Are you positive of that?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Now, the witness Schomaker says that other persons were present at this alleged meeting besides you, Stanley Hancock and himself. He says a man named Jack Johnstone was there. Do you know that man?

A. I don't know him at all.

Q. Ever hear of him?

A. I am sure I haven't.

Q. Ever meet him? A. Jack Johnstone?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know him at all.

Q. Are you positive you have never met such a man as Jack Johnstone in your life?

A. That is right.

Q. There is a man named Schneidermann said to have been present at the same meeting in 1935 in the Sumner Apartments at San Diego. Did you sit down with that man at that time in the company that I have mentioned?

A. Of course not.

Q. Did you ever thereafter meet the man named Schneidermann? [4513] A. Yes.

Q. Did you know him in 1935? A. No.

Q. Describe, if you will, the occasion, if any, when you did meet Mr. Schneidermann, and tell us when it was.

A. I met him on two occasions, and I don't recall which is the first. He spoke to a membership meeting of the San Francisco Longshoremen some years ago; I think it was long after we left the AFL and had already affiliated with the CIO. I forget what subject he spoke on. I was the chairman of the meeting and Schneidermann came there and he stood alongside of me and spoke to the assembled longshoremen.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Was that the first time that you ever met the man, to your knowledge?

A. Unless the other incident took place first, and I don't know.

Q. Do you know in what approximate years these two incidents took place?

A. The one I just described, I couldn't recall the year.

Q. What is the other incident that you mention in which you say you met William Schneidermann?

A. It was right after a funeral, and it was the funeral of one of the Macnamara brothers. I don't recall whether he died in San Quentin or outside, but he was buried from the funeral parlors of—of Duggan on 16th and Albion Street, and [4514] there were many people at that funeral, and I was there.

Q. And did you meet Mr. Schneidermann at that funeral?

A. Not in the building. After—the man was to be buried in Marin County in a cemetery near San Rafael, and it seemed that dozens of people wanted to go there. I wanted to go there myself. People were looking for transportation, and in the building itself I had had a conversation with Mrs. Rena Mooney, and she rode with me, and as we were turning the corner from Albion Street into 17th Street, Schneidermann was standing on the curbstone with a lady. And I don't recollect whether I spoke first or Rena Mooney spoke first and pointed him out, but I pulled up to the curbstone and said, "Are you people looking for a ride?"

They said, "Yes."

I said, "Jump in." And they rode with us to San Rafael, and Schneidermann introduced us to his wife.

Q. Now, aside from the two incidents which you have described, one upon the stage of a meeting hall and the other at this funeral, have you ever seen or spoken with William Schneidermann in your life? A. None that I can recall.

Q. Those were the only two incidents which put you into contact with that man, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, the next incident which was described—— [4515]

The Court: We might take the morning recess, if agreeable.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well.

The Court: We will take the morning recess; the same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions or form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4515-A]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Schmidt, to go on to the next charge in which you are named by the witness Schomaker, did you attend any conference in the year 1935 at 121 Haight Street at which you sat in a discussion with Sam Darcy, John Schomaker, Ed Harris, Walter Lambert, Harry Bridges and a man named Hanoff?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. That never happened.

Q. Are you positive that never happened?

A. I am absolutely certain.

Q. What is your reason for being so certain? Can you tell us if you have ever been to that address?

A. First, I do not know some of the names that you mentioned there.

Q. What are the names that you do not know at all?

A. There was the name of Hanoff, I think you said.

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know any such person.

Q. Have you ever known anybody named Hanoff? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know the other people?

A. Well, will you give them to me again, please?

Q. Sam Darcy, a man named Hanoff, a man named Schrimpf——

A. Well, of course I know Schrimpf.

Q. Norma Perry?

A. What was that? [4516]

A. Norma Perry. A. Yes.

Q. A man named Lambert?

A. Yes, I have met him somewhere.

Q. And Harry Bridges?

A. I know him very well.

Q. How many times in your life, if at all, have you ever been to that address 121 Haight Street?

A. Twice.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. What are those occasions?

A. On one occasion I went there to a mass meeting—I recall it was in the basement of the place—to hear somebody speak, and the speaker was a woman.

Q. Do you remember who that woman was?

A. I am not sure but I am willing to state it was Anita Whitney, but I am not quite sure whether it was she or another woman.

Q. In describing that activity, do you mean you were present as a member of the audience?

A. Yes, I was there and there were several hundred other people there.

Q. Several hundred other people. Were you to 121 Haight Street on any other occasion?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. When was that? [4517]

A. It was on a New Year's Eve. There was a celebration there.

Q. What were you doing there then?

A. Raising Cain, just as the other people were.

Q. You mean you were invited to some party?

A. I guess so. I don't recollect how I got there. It was New Year's Eve.

Q. You didn't have any secret conference with Sam Darcy or William Schneidermann or Hanoff or any of those people at that time, did you?

A. On New Year's Eve, do you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. Not at that time or any other time.

Q. The next incident of 1935, which is called to our attention by Schomaker, is a meeting in which he says you were present with Schneidermann, Hanoff, Gannett, Ross and Harry Bridges at Sokol Hall. Did you ever attend such a meeting in the early fall of 1935?

A. That couldn't have happened because again you have mentioned the names of two or three people there that I do not know.

Q. Well, in the beginning now, have you ever been to Sokol Hall?

A. Yes, I have been at Sokol Hall.

Q. When?

A. Years ago. I couldn't recollect which year.

Q. What was the nature of the event? [4518]

A. It was a social affair a Slavonian society, either Czechoslovak society or Jugoslav society, many of our longshore members belonged to that group and they invited me there, so I came.

Q. You mean that was a purely social function such as a dance and activities of that kind?

A. That is what took place.

Q. It was not a meeting in which the guests gathered to hear a speaker?

A. There was no speech making.

Q. You have said before in reference to the people in whose company you were placed that you never knew anybody named Hanoff, so I suppose you were not in his company. Did you ever know anybody by the name of Betty Gannett?

A. No, sir.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did you ever know anybody by the name of Lawrence Seton Ross? A. Oh, yes.

Q. When did you know him?

A. Well, I can't be quite sure but I think he was a man who came to the strike committee or the publicity of the strike committee in 1934 and made us a proposition to give us a hand with the issuance of the daily bulletin, and his explanation was he was working on the Western Worker and, well, I don't know just exactly what he said, but eventually his proposition was accepted, and I think that Ross came there with that proposition.

Q. You believe him to be the same man who came here to testify [4519] as a witness?

A. Yes, Mr. Lipman Rosenstein, the same man.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Ross thereafter, that is, after the 1934 strike?

A. Well, during the strike, after his proposition was accepted, he would drop in once in a while to gather up the copy, which he then took to his printing establishment, I suppose, and some hours later the finished product would be brought back for distribution, and I can't recall how often he came. Sometimes somebody else came to pick up the copy.

Q. After that period of time, did you ever see him?

A. No, he disappeared and I didn't see him again until he sat down here one morning.

Q. You had no contact with the man called Ross other than that you have already described?

A. That is right.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And you did not attend any Sokol Hall meeting with him on an occasion where William Schneidermann was a speaker? A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever go to any public hall in which Schneidermann was the speaker?

A. Well, there was the occasion when he spoke to our longshore union.

Q. The one you have mentioned already?

A. I don't know whether you refer to that as a public meeting [4520] or not.

Q. Any other? A. No, sir.

Q. The last incident, I believe, in which your name is mentioned by the man called John Schomaker, refers to some meeting at a shack in a prune orchard in Santa Clara County prior to the general strike on a Sunday. Did you ever meet a man named Earl Browder? A. No, sir.

Q. And, of course, since you never met him, I suppose your answer would be the same as to whether you met him in any prune orchard in Santa Clara Valley? A. That is right.

Q. Did you drive down in an automobile to this prune orchard, in an automobile with Lambert, Schrimpf, Harry Bridges and Elmer Wheeler?

A. I did not.

Q. You are positive you never met Browder in your life?

A. I have never met him. I recall that I heard him speak at a very large public gathering in the City of Seattle. It was during the recent war.

Q. What was the nature of that gathering?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I can't recall. I was there on business, and we were scheduled to leave Seattle the next day. I heard that there was this gathering in the Civic Auditorium, I believe, of the City [4521] of Seattle, and I went there to hear this man speak.

Q. You mean Mr. Browder was the only speaker or one of a number of speakers?

A. I think he was the only one and his remarks had to do with the war.

Q. With reference to whether or not you ever went down to any prune orchard in Santa Clara County in the course of the 1934 strike, have you tried to refresh your memory from various sources upon that?

A. Yes, I have looked at some of the records that we have saved through the years.

Q. Have you yourself any personal association of the roads that go through Santa Clara Valley so that you would be able to remember if you made any special trip in that region?

A. Oh, yes. During the 1934 strike and during the general strike I have no recollection of leaving the city of San Francisco except on one occasion when the strike committee elected me and instructed me to go to Portland and Seattle. Other than that, I was in San Francisco every day, including Sundays.

Q. Do you have any memory as to when this trip to the Northwest, to Portland and Seattle, took place?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I can not recall on which day the journey started, but I came back to San Francisco on the 16th of that month because everybody was talking about an agreement or a contract that had been formulated or negotiated by International President Ryan. [4522] I recall walking out of the Ferry Building. I ran into a policeman who recognized me and he said, "Well, you are back again." And I don't know what my response was. I then went to 113 Stewart Street, the union headquarters. There was a meeting that afternoon or that evening in Eagles Hall on Golden Gate Avenue where this 16th of the month agreement was discussed.

Q. With reference to your participation in any matters in San Francisco in the month of June on Sundays, in order to follow the testimony about this alleged prune orchard trip, I am going to show you some documents and I will ask you if they refresh your recollection as to what days. I will show you what has been handed to me as minutes of a special meeting of the strike committee held on Sunday, June 17, 1934. I will ask you if a reading of that document refreshes your memory as to where you were on that day, what you did and whether or not any meeting was held which you attended.

A. Well, it certainly does. I would like to point out there is some error here on the part of the then secretary.

Q. What is that?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. He states here a meeting called to order at 10:30 p.m. and of course that is a mistake.

Q. That is obviously.

A. It should be 10:30 a.m. And then it is pointed out here that I made a report—no, it says here that I made a report with regard to the situation in the Northwest after my return from [4523] that trip.

Q. Refreshing your memory from that document, can you tell us whether or not you were actually in attendance at any meeting beginning at or around 10:00 o'clock or 10:30 in the morning of Sunday, June 17th, 1934?

A. Yes, that meeting took place, I am very sure, right after my return from the Northwest.

Mr. MacInnis: We will ask that that document be marked for identification, Your Honor. While Your Honor is looking at it, I will hand Mr. Mitchell the photostat which we will ask to be substituted for the original.

The Court: It may be marked for identification.

(Minutes of 6/17/34 were thereupon marked Defendant's Exhibit F-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): With respect to what was done the balance of that day, Sunday, June 17, 1934, and also in respect to the error that you point out as to the time, I am going to show you another document which has been handed to me as the minutes of another committee called on June 17, 1934, and held at the International Longshoremen's Association. I will ask you to look at this document and ask if it refreshes your memory.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, will you show the document to counsel, please, so he may crutinize the same?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. [4524]

Mr. MacInnis: I will let him see the other one, too.

A. Yes, I remember that meeting very clearly.

Q. I will ask you first if that document of the later meeting refreshes your memory as to the time on which the earlier meeting which you have already described was held.

A. Yes, it is my recollection that this meeting took place in the evening at Eagles Hall on Golden Gate Avenue here in San Francisco.

Q. Is there any reference in those minutes to the time of the earlier meeting?

A. I haven't discovered it yet.

Q. I call your attention——

A. Yes, there is; the very first item reads—it is a motion: "Regularly moved and seconded that the chairman of the Strike Committee read the minutes of the Strike Committee meeting held at 10 o'clock this morning."

Q. Were you in attendance at the later meeting, according to your present recollection as refreshed by those minutes?

A. I recall it very clearly. It is the type of meeting one would never forget.

Q. What was done at that meeting that you now recall?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Well, the thing that stands out is the fact that the International President, Joseph P. Ryan, came there to speak, and he had with him what has since become known as the June 16 agreement, and the men apparently were already acquainted [4525] with the contents of that agreement and they were very much dissatisfied with it. I think it provided that the longshoremen accept the terms of that agreement, and one of the chief reasons that we didn't want to accept it was because if we had accepted it and returned to work, the seafaring men, who were also on strike, would have been left out in the cold. Everybody understood that aspect of the situation, and Mr. Ryan, although he tried very hard to sell this proposition to the membership, was hardly heard because nobody cared to listen to him, and there was constant booing and hissing going on.

Q. Are you able to tell us from that document the time that that meeting terminated?

A. Well, it is my recollection that it was quite late at night. Maybe it is on there; I don't know.

Q. Was that a meeting that ran most of the afternoon and through the night?

A. Yes, there is a sentence here in connection with the meeting, "Adjourned at 11 o'clock."

Mr. MacInnis: We ask, if the Court please, that the photostat of that document be received and marked for identification.

Mr. Donohue: I assume it is only for identification. I notice these documents are unsigned, and

I would like an opportunity to consider them in the eventuality that they should be offered in evidence.

Mr. MacInnis: The original document may remain with the [4526] clerk, then, until such time as he has had an opportunity to consider it.

(Photostatic copy of minutes marked Defendants' Exhibit G-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): With reference to the following Sunday, Mr. Schmidt, which was June 24 of 1934, I will hand you a photostat of the San Francisco Chronicle of the following day which has the text of the article typewritten, and I will ask you if this article refreshes your memory as to what happened upon the waterfront upon that Sunday.

I don't have another copy of it, your Honor.

The Witness: Mr. MacInnis, are those typed sheets a copy of the article in the newspaper, the photostats?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, using the documents I have shown you as a means of refreshing your memory, tell us what happened upon Sunday, June 24, 1934, upon the waterfront.

A. Well, I am pretty sure that there was a strike committee meeting in the morning, as was the custom, that committee met every day, and in the afternoon, or sometime during the morning possibly, the then assistant Secretary of the Department of Labor came to San Francisco, Edward F. O'Grady.

Q. And who met him?

A. A group went out to meet him, of maritime trade union [4527] officials, but I wasn't one of them.

Q. Do you know whether Harry Bridges was in that group?

A. I am pretty sure he went there, yes.

Q. You weren't along, however?

A. That's right.

Q. What did you do that Sunday?

A. I undoubtedly was present at the strike committee meeting in the morning, and if there was any meeting in the afternoon having to do with the strike, I would naturally be there.

Q. Did you go down to any prune orchard that day in Santa Clara Valley?

A. Absolutely not.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to ask that the document just now shown the witness be marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: Marked Defendants' H-2 for identification.

(Photostatic copy of article in San Francisco Chronicle marked Defendants' Exhibit H-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): On the following Sunday, leading up to the series of Sundays which were covered by the testimony of Mr. Schrimpf and Mr. Schomaker, July 1 of 1934, were you in attendance at any meeting of the strike committee?

A. July 1? I am pretty sure I was, because things were getting pretty warm. Things were getting pretty warm. The Industrial Association was making public announcements that they [4528] were going to open the port, and the police were all over the place, and I undoubtedly was pretty busy on that day in San Francisco. [4528-A]

Q. Now, using the document that I had handed you by Mr. Mitchell, tell me whether or not you have any recollection of making a report yourself of that strike committee meeting of Sunday, July 1st, 1934.

A. Yes; there apparently was a special meeting and it is here stated that the meeting was called at the request of the chairman, namely, Bridges; and I made a report at this special meeting of the strike committee relative to a situation in Milwaukee. I can't recall what that was. It had to do with a strike that was going on there. I rather think that that was the strike in Minneapolis because the Teamsters were on strike there, too, at that same time, it is my recollection.

Q. Have you any recollection as to the time of that meeting?

A. That meeting would have been held on Sunday morning, possibly a little later than usual for the reason that it was Sunday.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask that the photostatic

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

copy of that document be marked for identification, Your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: May the original be retained that we may examine it, if Your Honor please?

The Court: So ordered. It may be marked appropriately.

(The photostatic copy of minutes of 7/1/34 was thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit I-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): With reference to whether or not you attended any second meeting in connection with the strike on that same day, July 1, 1934, I am going to hand you a photostatic [4529] reproduction of the San Francisco Chronicle of that day with a typed text of the article, and ask you if it refreshes your memory.

A. This still concerns July 1st?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell us what, if anything, you did during the balance of that day, Sunday, July the 1st?

A. Well, it seems that there was a meeting with employer representatives and representatives of the Government—that is, the Department of Labor—and I am sure with the National Longshoremen's Board, which had already been established by that day, and we may have had some conferences with the three gentlemen on that board.

Q. When did that meeting end, if you can tell us?

A. Oh, some time in the evening. That is the best I can do.

Q. And can you tell us now whether or not you went down to any prune orchard in Santa Clara Valley on that Sunday?

A. No, sir, I have never been in any prune orchard in Santa Clara Valley. I have driven through them lots of times.

Q. After that Sunday, July 1st, did the Thursday of the ensuing week come to be given any particular name?

A. The Thursday following the first of July?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir; that is the July 5th which has become known as [4530] Bloody Thursday on the waterfront, when two men were shot and killed by the police and hundreds of them were shot in the back by the police.

Q. And the following Sunday, which would have been July 8th, were you in San Francisco?

A. I certainly was.

Mr. MacInnis: We will ask, Your Honor, that the last document shown Mr. Schmidt likewise be marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered.

(Reproduction of Chronicle article of 7/1/34 was thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit J-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Do you have any memory as to whether or not the strike committe had any activities in connection with the death of the two men?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please, unless it has some reference to a particular date which may be in controversy.

Mr. MacInnis: That is what I am thinking about, Your Honor.

The Court: All right. Overruled.

Mr. MacInnis: I am speaking of Sunday, the 8th of July.

A. Well, that would have been the day on which the bodies of the two men were lying in state in the union headquarters. There were hundreds of people trying to get into the place to have a look at these two men, and they had to enter the place [4531] single file, walk up a long narrow stairs, and it is my recollection that this took all day, and I was around there constantly. I am pretty sure that I made arrangements for a friend of mine to speak a few words at the side of the coffins, and the same man later on also went with us to the cemetery and made a few remarks there.

Q. What was the name of that man?

A. The man's name is Alex Walther, W-a-l-t-h-e-r.

Q. I will hand you a document bearing date July 7, 1934, and I will ask you what it is, and I will ask you if it refreshes your memory in any respect.

A. Yes, I recognize the language of this press release. It points out that these two men were killed on Bloody Thursday; that their bodies will lie in state in the union headquarters on Sunday and on Monday; that one of them was a veteran of World War I, and that the other one was a member of the Cooks' Union and not a member of the Longshoremen's Union; and then it points to the—to the funeral parlors on 17th Street where the procession eventually took them.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. When was that funeral held? On Sunday or Monday?

A. That would have been held on Monday.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the preparation of the press release which is in your hand?

A. Undoubtedly. I probably wrote it.

Mr. MacInnis: We will ask that the document be received [4532] in evidence proper, Your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: Object to it, if Your Honor pleases. It could be used only for the purpose of refreshing the recollection of the witness; it couldn't be employed for the purpose of establishing the fact which is recited or the facts which are recited in the so-called press release.

The Court: It may be marked for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: I take it a photostat may be substituted?

The Court: Yes.

(Photostatic copy of press release 7/7/34 was thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit L-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, in addition to the matters that you have described as taking place on that day, did you attend a regular strike committee meeting on July 8, 1934?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I am sure I did.

Q. I will hand you a document which purports to be the minutes of that meeting and ask if it refreshes your memory. A. Yes, I recall this.

Q. Did you take part in that meeting yourself?

A. I certainly did.

Q. What part did you take?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please. The facts of what happened at this meeting I take it are not in controversy here, but the use of this document is restricted to a reading of it by the witness for the purpose of refreshing his [4533] recollection in order to determine whether he can say where he was at a particular time. Obviously what he did at this meeting is not important.

Mr. MacInnis: We understand that.

Mr. Donohue: And is sought to be introduced for another purpose.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Tell us, Mr. Schmidt, if you now have any memory as to what you did that day in reference to attendance at any meeting?

A. This meeting took place a couple or three days after the Bloody Thursday incidents, and I recall that I presented a motion to the strike committee.

Mr. Donohue: I object, if Your Honor please, to any motion he may have presented. The document is presented to him for the purpose of refreshing his recollection to determine whether or not he was at the meeting.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Court: Well, he does recall.

Mr. Donohue: I take it, if Your Honor please, he may not now state what resolutions were introduced at the meeting.

The Court: According to his present recollection as refreshed, he now claims that he did present a resolution.

Mr. Donohue: Period. I think the nature of the resolution or the text of the resolution are certainly not in controversy here.

The Court: That is true. That is true. [4534]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Just tell us what your present memory is, at the suggestion of His Honor, as refreshed by that document.

A. Well, I remember very clearly that I made a motion that to honor the memory of the men that were killed on July 5th, from then on we never work on July 5th any more, and that motion was unanimously adopted at that meeting and subsequently by the membership. [4534-A]

Q. Has that been followed ever since?

A. Except for the war years the longshoremen on the Pacific Coast do not work on July 5.

Mr. MacInnis: We ask your Honor that the photostat of that document be received and marked for identification.

The Court: The same order.

The Clerk: May it be marked, then, M-2 for identification.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

(Photostat marked Defendants' Exhibit M-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Referring to the last of the series of Sundays covered by this period of time, Sunday, July 15, which was the day before the calling of the general strike, I am going to hand you a document and I am going to ask you if it refreshes your memory as to what was done upon the waterfront in connection with the strike upon that day, Sunday, July 15, 1934.

A. Well, among other things, this communication was sent to the National Longshoremen's Board which had been set up by President Roosevelt.

Q. Do you have any independent memory concerning the events of July 15, 1934?

A. Yes, sir, I certainly have.

Q. And what is that?

A. The general strike took place the following day, and it just [4535] so happened that for some reason that I have forgotten, the streetcar system of San Francisco ceased to function a little bit too early, ahead of schedule, and the streetcars were all tied up on this particular Sunday. I recall that sometime in the middle of the day I think I crossed lower Market Street about one block from the Ferry Building, and I was walking with Ivan F. Cox, who was then secretary of our union, and we both looked up Market Street and noticed that the street was completely deserted in so far as streetcars were concerned, and I said to Ivan, or maybe Ivan said to me, "Look, four cars and no tracks." Maybe it was, "Four tracks and no cars."

Q. You had it backwards, yes. Do you remember whether or not you went down to any meeting in a prune orchard that Sunday?

A. Again, I didn't go to any prune orchard at any time.

Q. Going backwards again to the period in which you were up north, you said you came back upon Saturday, June 16, 1934. About how many days of your time were consumed in this Northwest trip?

A. I can't remember. It seems to me I was gone eight or nine days.

Q. So that in those eight or nine days you were outside of San Francisco but not down in Santa Clara County?

A. Absolutely. I traveled by train, and it seems to me it takes 24 hours to reach Portland, and I spent some time there, and I went to Seattle and I spent a day or two there; then I [4536] traveled back to Portland, and from Portland I took the train to San Francisco.

Q. And is it true that for the balance of the time in the months of June and July, 1934, you weren't outside the City of San Francisco?

A. That is correct, except that I may have gone to Oakland, because we had a joint strike committee there.

Q. Other than the time that may have been used in going to Oakland, you weren't away from this city? A. I was here every day.

Mr. MacInnis: That covers that subject, your Honor.

The Court: We will take the noon recess. This may be marked for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

The Clerk: May it be marked, if your Honor please, Defendants' O-2 for identification.

(The document was marked Defendants' Exhibit O-2 for identification.)

The Court: The originals are to remain for comparison purposes, Mr. MacInnis, the same order as made with respect to the minute book.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well.

The Court: You have additional matters with the witness?

Mr. MacInnis: Oh, yes.

The Court: We will take up, then, with this witness Monday, [4537] because this afternoon, as indicated to the jury, we intend to take the Court, jury and attaches of the court, as well as the press representatives, as I understand it, to the Permanente Hospital for the purpose of taking the testimony of the witness Mr. Christensen as indicated by Mr. Hallinan.

We will take the noon adjournment and resume here at two o'clock. At that time Mr. Mitchell, clerk of the court, will give you more specific instructions with reference to the transportation facilities.

We will take the noon adjournment. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [4538]

Friday, January 27, 1950, 2:00 P.M.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury: In accordance with the plans outlined to you earlier in the day as well as yesterday afternoon, you will be conducted in a body under the direction of Mr. Ed Mitchell, the Clerk of this Court, as well as representatives from the marshal's office to the Permanente Hospital in Oakland wherein in a suitable place we will undertake to take the testimony of Mr. Christensen, a witness then and there called on behalf of the defendants through Mr. Hallinan, attorney for Bridges, and Mr. MacInnis, attorney for the other co-defendants.

May I outline to you very briefly certain specific admonitions that I desire to give. You are not to separate under any conditions save and except through a suggestion made to Mr. Mitchell. You are not to converse with any member of the public under any conditions. You are not to read newspapers.

I suggest to you again the general admonition not to converse among yourselves on any subject of the trial or suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial, not to form an opinion until the matter is finally submitted to you.

By reason of the fact that we must leave the Court and have transportation provided by buses, members of the public may unwittingly perhaps mingle with ~~you~~ and if such occasions I ask you not to discuss with any member of the public any matter concerning [4539] this trial and to avoid any discussion at all, the theory being to conserve the jurors and alternates in every way possible to the end that no intrusion be made or entertained by them through any outside or external influences.

Now, I think it is quite clear to you in the light of my instructions. Have counsel any suggestions at all?

Mr. MacInnis: No.

The Court: Mr. Mitchell, you might indicate to the jurors the particular situation with respect to the buses. The buses are in the alley, are they?

The Clerk: Your Honor, I have instructed the jurors that they are to remain in line two abreast, and the marshal, Mr. Kennedy, and the marshals here will conduct them downstairs to the basement through the elevator, and they will go up the ramp. The bus is waiting there. And I have instructed counsel as to the further procedure.

The Court: When we arrive at the hospital, on account of the inclement weather, I suppose we will be able to get in all right?

The Clerk: Yes, Your Honor; there won't be any difficulty there.

The Court: All right. We will recess, then, temporarily until we arrive at the Permanente Hospital.

(Thereupon a recess was taken and court again reconvened at the Permanente Hospital, Broadway and MacArthur Boulevard, [4540] Oakland, California, where the following proceedings were had:)

The Court: Mr. Mitchell, are the jurors present?

The Clerk: All jurors are present, Your Honor. Would you like me to call the roll?

The Court: Call the roll.

Let the record show, Mr. Reporter, that this court is duly and regularly convened at the Permanente Hospital for the purpose of taking the testimony of Mr. Christensen on behalf of the defendants in this case.

May the record further show that the court attaches are present.

Mr. Mitchell, would you call the roll of the jurors, please?

(The Clerk called the roll.)

The Clerk: All present, Your Honor.

The Court: The four alternate jurors?

The Clerk: All present.

The Court: So stipulated?

Mr. Hallinan: So stipulated.

Mr. Donohue: Yes.

The Court: And let the record show that the defendants are present.

Mr. Hallinan: So stipulated.

Mr. Donohue: So stipulated.

The Court: You may proceed, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: I suppose I had better talk from back here. [4541]

The Court: Mr. Christensen, are you able to hear Mr. Hallinan?

Mr. Hallinan: I want to stand so the jurors will hear him.

The Clerk: Could you hear all that was said?

Mr. Christensen: Yes.

The Court: Gentlemen of the press: May we have as much quiet as possible under all the circumstances? Mr. Hallinan has to address these questions to the witness.

Mr. Hallinan: Your name is William Henriksen, is that right, Mr. Henriksen?

Mr. Christensen: Christensen.

The Clerk: May I swear him?

Mr. Hallinan: Excuse me.

WILLIAM HENRIK CHRISTENSEN

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Please state your full name to the Court and jury.

A. William Henrik Christensen.

The Clerk: How do you spell the middle name?

A. H-e-n-r-i-k.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Mr. Christensen, where do you live?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. 839 Curtis Street, Albany.

Q. In Oakland? [4542] A. Albany.

Q. And what is your occupation?

A. I am a stevedore foreman.

Q. How long have you been a stevedore?

A. Been a stevedore ever since about '23—1923.

Q. And have you worked in San Francisco?

A. I worked all the way around the Bay.

Q. Are you a member of the ILWU?

A. ILWU, Local 10, yes.

Q. How long have you been a member of that organization?

A. Ever since the organization has been formed.

Q. Were you a member of the ILA which preceded it? A. ILA, yes, 38-79.

Q. Have you a family, Mr. Christensen?

A. Wife and daughter.

Q. Do you know Harry Bridges? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Ever since I came to this country.

Q. What country are you from?

A. Denmark.

Q. And when did you come here?

A. 1923.

Q. Are you a naturalized citizen?

A. Yes, sir. [4543]

Q. Do you know Henry Schmidt also?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you remember an occasion in which you, Harry Bridges, Henry Schmidt and some other gentleman went to Stockton; California, to deliver a talk there before the Stockton local of the ILA?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I have a paper here, the Stockton Record, for Saturday, June 27, 1936. You have seen this before, have you, Mr. Christensen?

A. Yes, I have seen it in your office.

Q. That is 150 Golden Gate Avenue, the Office of the ILWU, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. Then I showed you at that time also, did I not, the Voice of the Federation for July 9, 1936, with an item showing the meeting in Stockton and the persons who spoke there and the date on which that meeting was held? Do you remember that?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. I want to show you these two documents now.

(Documents handed to witness.)

A. Yes.

Q. The article is at the bottom of the paper and enlarged here. Here is the date, June 27, 1936. This is the article and here is the enlargement of it. Now, if you will look at that [4544] date and then glance at the article. A. Yes.

Q. Now, refreshing your recollection from the two documents that were shown you, can you tell on what day and date it was that you, Mr. Schmidt, Mr. Bridges and the other men went to Stockton for that meeting?

A. We were up there Saturday afternoon.

Q. And what date? A. On the 27th.

Q. June 27, 1936, is that correct?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in whose automobile did you go there?

A. In mine.

Q. Who drove? A. I did.

Q. And when approximately did you leave San Francisco?

A. Oh, 3:00 or 3:30 or something like that.

The Clerk: May I ask if all the jurors can hear?

Jurors: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Hallinan): Mr. Christensen, when were the arrangements made with you to drive to Stockton?

A. As I recollect, it was on Friday night before we went to the Labor Council—San Francisco Labor Council.

Q. And do you remember who it was that made the arrangement with you to drive to Stockton?

A. Henry [4546] Schmidt.

Q. Where were those arrangements made?

A. In the office of the ILA on Clay Street.

Q. Could you state whether or not Harry Bridges was present at that time?

A. He was in and out of the office all the time.

Q. Did you see him that day?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. After the arrangements were made, did you go to some labor meeting or some labor council meeting?

A. Yes, I went to the San Francisco Labor Council that Friday night.

Q. Did Harry Bridges go there?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. As I recollect, he did, yes. He hadn't missed any of the meetings at that time.

Q. Were you a delegate to the Labor Council?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you remember getting to Stockton that night—that is, Saturday afternoon or evening?

A. Yes, we got in there a little late, because I was looking for a barber shop, I wanted a shave, and I couldn't get in at that time.

Q. Did you attend the meeting at which Harry Bridges spoke? A. Yes.

Q. Did you speak yourself? [4546]

A. Well, I said a few words.

Q. Your name is contained in the Voice of the Federation account as having spoken there, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. After the meeting was over, did you go any place with Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, we went and had dinner with Mahaffey and Silk and some other members, I don't remember the names, up there.

Q. And did you go to any nightclub or anything of that kind?

A. Yes, we went up there and had a few drinks.

Q. About how long did you stay in the nightclub?

A. Well, I think we stayed until closing time; we left there after 2:00 o'clock.

Q. Where did you go when you left?

A. I went back home.

Q. Where were you living at the time?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. In Albany.

Q. You drove the car down to Albany?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, what happened when you got to Albany? [4547]

A. Well, there was some discussion in the car; they wanted to come back to town. I said, "Just as well come over and have breakfast."

So they came over to the house, and it was kind of early hours, and they rested up in the front room on the couch or chairs, whatever was there, until the Mrs. and the kid got up, and then we had breakfast.

Q. Did you afterwards drive them to San Francisco? A. Yes, I drove them to Frisco.

Q. About what time approximately did you get to San Francisco, would you say?

A. Well, along about eight, something like that.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that is all.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Christensen, do you remember signing a statement that had been prepared for your signature several weeks ago? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall the substance of that statement? A. I don't recall all of it, no.

Q. May I ask you to take a look at it, please (exhibiting document to witness). With particular reference to the first and second paragraphs, do you note that the word "few" has been scratched out and "one or two" inserted in its place?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. Yes. [4548]

Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which that change was made?

A. No, I don't recollect.

Q. What happened? What was said in consequence of which the word "few" was scratched and the words "one or two" inserted in place thereof?

A. As far as I recollect it, we talked it over during the first part of week, and the arrangement was made on Friday——

Q. Was it you——

The Court: Mr. Donohue, some of the jurors wish you to speak a little louder, if you will.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Was it your first recollection that the word should have been "few" and that you later considered it and thought it should have been either one or two instead of "few"?

A. It was the last two days before we went up.

Q. Do you recall in this statement that you said, or that the statement was prepared: "Sometime a few days before June 27, Henry Schmidt arranged for me to drive Harry Bridges from San Francisco to Stockton for a meeting which Bridges was to address on June 27, 1936"? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall that subsequently the word "few" was scratched out and it was changed to read "sometime one or two days before June 27"—do you recall that? [4549] A. Yes, I recall that.

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

Q. But it is your best recollection now that that arrangement was made on Friday night before the Saturday?

A. When we went to the Labor Council, yes.

Q. Do you recall that in the following paragraph you said, "I was at the union hall during the meeting on Saturday, June 27, 1936, where I saw Bridges and Schmidt, and we all left for Stockton in my car at about 2:00 or 2:30 p.m."? Do you recall saying that? A. That's right.

Q. But you did not put in this statement the fact, as you now state, that you saw Mr. Bridges at ILA headquarters Friday night?

A. I saw him Friday afternoon, yes.

Q. You are sure of that? A. Yes.

Q. You weren't asked that at the time you prepared this statement?

A. No, I wasn't asked that, but I recollect now when I saw him.

Q. Who prepared this statement, do you recall, Mr. Christensen?

A. Norman—I can't think of his last name.

Q. Norman Leonard; is that his name?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it brought to you in a completed form for your signature, [4550] or was it written in your presence?

A. It was written down in my presence.

Q. May I ask you, Mr. Christensen, if in 1942 you were on the subscribers' list of the People's World? A. I don't recollect that.

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

Q. You don't recollect that? A. No.

Q. Were you on the mailing list at Communist Party Headquarters of California in 1944?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Christensen, are you the same William Christensen whose name appears on page 56 of the report of the investigation of the House Un-American Activities Committee of the 7th Congress as one of the——

Mr. Hallinan: Just a minute. Object to that, if the Court please, no proper foundation laid, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Donohue: I think I have a right to ask him for the purpose of showing, if your Honor please——

Mr. Hallinan: Let him see the paper and ask him if he is the man that is mentioned, but that doesn't entitle him to introduce evidence of that kind.

Mr. Donohue: The name is underscored.

A. What are you speaking about, William Thompson?

Q. No, William Christensen. [4551]

A. To my way of reading, it says "William Thompson."

Q. It is on the other page.

A. It looks like my name down there, but——

Q. Were you then, as stated here, one of the members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union which had signed a petition for the purpose of freeing Earl Browder?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. I don't recollect.

Q. You don't recollect? A. No.

Q. Did you know Earl Browder?

A. I never seen him.

Q. Do you know who he is or was at the time?

A. I read it in the paper, yes.

Q. Mr. Christensen, are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?

A. No.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, if your Honor please.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Hallinan:

Q. Now, Mr. Christensen, as I understand it, you went to the office of the ILWU and made a statement as to driving Harry Bridges and Schmidt and the other gentlemen to Stockton, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Norman Leonard had a copy of what you said prepared [4552] and you signed it, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. But in the copy that he gave you it said, "Sometime a few days before June 27, 1936, Henry Schmidt arranged for me to drive him and Harry Bridges from San Francisco to Stockton for a meeting which Bridges was to address on June 27, 1936" and you had him change the statement "few days"— "Sometime a few days before" to "Sometime one or two days before," isn't that right?

(Testimony of William Henrik Christensen.)

A. That's right.

Q. So as Mr. Leonard had drawn the document it was in error, that it wasn't a few days before but only one or two days before June 27, 1936, that Henry Schmidt made the arrangement, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And you know—your mind is such that you now believe that it was Friday that the arrangement was made, is that correct?

A. Yes, the arrangement was made on Friday, since we had to attend the council that night.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. May I ask a question I overlooked, if your Honor please?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Christensen, what time during the year 1946 was it that you went to Russia? [4553]

A. I never went to Russia. I never went to Russia.

Q. You didn't go to Russia in the year 1946?

A. No.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, your Honor.

The Court: Have you completed the examination, gentlemen?

Mr. Hallinan: That is all.

The Court: First, on behalf of the Court, I desire to express our appreciation to the superintendent of this hospital for the accommodations provided.

Secondly, out of regard for several of the jurors who are resident in this particular vicinity, this Court will regularly adjourn at this time for the day, and will reconvene next Monday at ten o'clock at the United States Post Office Building, 7th and Mission Streets. We are now regularly adjourned.

The Clerk: May I say, if your Honor please, that those jurors who live on this side of the Bay that wish to leave from here are permitted to do so. The other jurors who live in San Francisco or on the other side of the Bay will return as they came here.

The Court: Is it stipulated, counsel, under the circumstances that this Court may adjourn at this time?

Mr. Hallinan: So stiplated.

The Court: Regularly?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Monday, January 30, 1950, at 10:00 a.m.) [4554]

Monday, January 30, 1950—10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial. Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury was brought into the courtroom.)

Mr. MacInnis: We would like to interrupt with two short witnesses, if we may, your Honor.

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: We will call Mr. Aubrey Lee.

AUBREY F. LEE

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Aubrey Ferrell Lee.

The Clerk: Will you spell the two first names.

The Witness: A-u-b-r-e-y F-e-r-r-e-l-l.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Lee, what is your address?

A. 774 Edgewood Road, San-Mateo.

Q. What is your business address?

A. 220 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business or profession?

A. I am a chartered life underwriter with the New England [4555] Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Q. The New England Life Insurance Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And that has been your profession for about how many years? A. Since May 18, 1938.

Q. Did you engage in any special college training to prepare you for that work?

A. I have taken special studies since I have been in the business to get my degree of chartered life underwriter.

(Testimony of Aubrey F. Lee.)

Q. You are a graduate of what university, Mr. Lee?

A. I went to Princeton University for four years, but I am not a graduate.

Q. You have been a resident in the area surrounding San Francisco for about what period of time?

A. I first came to San Francisco in November 1919 and I was there except during the time I was at college until 1925. I was away from San Francisco until October 1941, and I have been living in San Mateo since that time.

Q. Are you a man of family, Mr. Lee?

A. Yes, I am. I have a wife and two children.

Q. And when were you married, Mr. Lee?

A. I was married on June 27, 1936.

Q. June 27, 1936. And where was the marriage ceremony celebrated?

A. At the First Presbyterian Church in Stockton, California. [4556]

Q. And have you any recollection as to the time of day or night at which your wedding was celebrated?

A. The wedding was scheduled for nine o'clock that night, but actually started at 9:20.

Q. And the time of the wedding ceremony consumed about how many minutes or fractions of an hour?

A. Approximately a quarter of an hour.

Q. After your wedding ceremony was there a reception or party?

A. Yes, at my wife's home there was a reception for the wedding party and for a good many friends.

Q. Did you have ushers at your wedding?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you remember the names of any of those ushers? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Can you offer to us such names?

A. Certainly.

Q. As recall themselves to your mind?

A. Robert Hastings, Robert Sawyer, Kirk Clagstone, Louis Ross, Algerly Hammond, Howard Hammond, Andrew McCarthy, George Hammond and Holland Smith.

Q. Was it a formal wedding?

A. It was a formal wedding.

Q. In other words, the gentlemen in attendance wore swallowtail coats, white shirt fronts, and the like? A. They did, that is correct. [4557]

Q. I show you a certified copy of a marriage certificate, being a certified copy of the State of California Department of Health Statistics, showing that Aubrey Ferrell Lee and Mary Garvin Hammond were married at Stockton, California on June 27, 1936, and I will ask Mr. Mitchell to hand that to you. Are you the person designated upon that record? A. I am.

Q. And is that a true representation as to the time and the place of your marriage?

A. May I see it again?

(Document handed to witness.)

It is.

(Testimony of Aubrey F. Lee.)

Mr. MacInnis: We offer the document in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: No objection.

The Court: It may be marked.

(The copy of marriage certificate was marked Defendant's Exhibit P-2 in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): After the wedding party or reception at the home of the bride, Mr. Lee, where did the guests go, if you know?

A. I know what they told me when I returned from my wedding trip.

Q. In other words, you did not accompany the guests upon any later engagement that night. [4558]

A. No, sir.

Q. So that any recital of what they did would of course have to come from the lips of one of those persons present? A. It would.

Mr. MacInnis: I will state, in view of the smiles coming from these gentlemen, that one of the other persons is out in the anteroom.

Mr. Paisley: We are always smiling.

Mr. MacInnis: I can differentiate between snickers and smiles at the table.

Q. Mr. Lee, will you tell the Court and jury in what fashion your name came into this case or in what manner you were contacted?

A. Yes, sir. I was away on my wedding trip for approximately two weeks, and on my return there was considerable discussion with friends, with members of the wedding party who lived in Stockton, including my wife's brother, about what took place while we were away, and particularly what took place the night of the wedding.

Q. I think that probably under his Honor's ruling, naturally you will not be able to recite any hearsay conversations taking place out of your presence, but what I had in mind by the question is, in what manner did you come into this court, and who contacted you from the defense? How did you get in touch with the defense? [4559]

A. I was reading the paper about the trial with some interest, having read a comment by one of the Supreme Court justices on some previous trials, and so I followed this trial with interest, and I saw the date June 27 mentioned as an important date in this case, and in my mind I associated the date of my marriage with Harry Bridges because of certain events that I had long believed, ever since that date, took place on the evening of that marriage. And so, seeing the significance of the date to both the defendant and to the Government, I felt it was my duty to inform your firm of my belief of what transpired on that day. So I went up to the office without anyone having contacted me at all.

Q. What office is that, Mr. Lee?

A. Your office on Franklin Street, Hallinan and MacInnis on Franklin Street, and the secretary, the girl receptionist, greeted me and asked me what I wanted. I said I wanted to talk to somebody about the Bridges case. She said there was no one there, because Mr. Hallinan was handling the case and he was in court. And I asked when he would be back. She said, "He doesn't come in during the time he is in court, but he will get in touch with you by phone." I said I didn't care to have him do that, wasn't there someone else. And she said, "Well, Mr. MacInnis isn't here either." But finally she went out into the back room and came back and said, "You can talk to Mr. Cleary." So I went to Mr. Cleary and I said I had some evidence [4560] on the Bridges case that I would like to tell him about and have him assess as to its value, and if it was of importance, why, he could use it.

Q. Did you leave your card with Mr. Cleary at that time? A. I did.

Q. I hand a card to Mr. Mitchell, and I will ask you if that is your card which you left at the office on the occasion you have described. A. It is.

Q. Had anyone contacted you prior to that meeting? A. No, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: We offer this card in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: Object to it. It serves no purpose. The gentleman said he was there. The fact that he left his card doesn't add anything to it.

The Court: It may be marked.

(The card was marked Defendants' Exhibit Q-2 in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): After that did you receive a subpoena directing your attendance here?

A. Mr. Leipsic appeared on Saturday morning and requested my appearance and I agreed to come.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much.

Mr. Donohue: We have no questions, your Honor.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

We will call Mr. Clagstone. [4561]

KIRK CLAGSTONE

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury?

A. My name is Kirk Clagstone.

Q. Will you spell the last name?

A. C-l-a-g-s-t-o-n-e.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your residence address?

A. 1413 Bernal Avenue, Burlingame.

Q. What is your business address?

A. I work for Cahill Construction.

Q. Cahill Construction Company?

A. That's right.

Q. Is that a San Francisco firm?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Doing business in the San Francisco area?

A. It is.

Q. And at present are you engaged with that construction company? A. I am.

Q. On some particular job?

A. Yes, we are working now with the addition for Burgemeister's brewery.

(Testimony of Kirk Clagstone.)

Q. You are putting up an addition to their plant? [4562] A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Clagstone, do you know a man named Aubrey Lee? A. I know him very well.

Q. Do you remember the occasion of his wedding? A. I do.

Q. Did you have any part in that wedding ceremony? A. Yes, I was an usher.

Q. Was that a formal wedding?

A. It was a formal wedding.

Q. You wore what kind of clothes?

A. Well, it was full dress; we wore tails.

Q. And where did the wedding take place?

A. In Stockton.

Q. Was that a church wedding?

A. It was a church wedding.

Q. After the wedding was there a ceremony or reception of any kind?

A. There was a reception.

Q. Was that a home reception?

A. It was a home reception.

Q. And after the reception tell us whether or not you and any of the other ushers or persons connected with the wedding party went out for any further refreshment or social engagements?

A. We did.

Q. Where did you go? [4563]

A. We went to a nightclub called Mattioni's.

Q. Is that a Stockton nightclub? A. It is.

Q. Tell us, if you will, what if anything you remember about going to Mattioni's nightclub that night?

A. Well, when we—there was quite a group of us from the wedding party.

Q. About how many?

A. Well, I would say there was about at least 14 or 15 of us that went to Mattioni's and when we arrived there Harry Bridges with a group of his men were present.

Q. Pardon me. How did you know that it was Harry Bridges? A. I recognized him.

Q. Had you ever met him?

A. I had never met him personally, no.

Q. But you knew the man to be Harry Bridges?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did any incident take place in the course of the evening by which the presence of these other people recalled itself to your mind?

A. Yes, there was an incident. We were dressed in formal dress and one of the men from Mr. Bridges' party made some remark about the way we were dressed. Shortly after another man from Mr. Bridges' party came over and apologized for that remark. One of the fellows who was talking to him said, "After all, I [4564] borrowed my dress from an undertaker." So from then on it was smooth.

Q. Then did you and the other party have conversation with each other?

A. Several of us did, and we walked around, and so forth.

(Testimony of Kirk Clagstone.)

Q. I suppose you naturally kept no record as to the date of the marriage in your own mind?

A. No, I had forgotten it completely.

Q. But are you positive that this situation happened the night of the marriage of your friend Mr. Aubrey Lee? A. Very definitely.

Q. To refresh your memory, if I may, Mr. Clagstone, I am going to show you a photostatic copy of the society section of the Stockton Daily Evening Record for Monday, June 29th, and call your attention to the left hand columns and ask you if this refreshes your memory as to the time of the wedding. Does that piece of paper refresh your memory in any way? A. Yes, it does.

Q. And do you recall, based upon that section of the Stockton paper, that the wedding took place Saturday night, June 27, 1936? A. I do.

Mr. MacInnis: We offer the photostat of the Stockton Record into evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: Object to it, if your Honor [4565] please.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Donohue: It can only be used for the purpose of refreshing recollection.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I ask that it be marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered, for identification.

(The photostatic copy of the Stockton Record page 6/27/36 was thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit R-2 for identification.)

(Testimony of Kirk Clagstone.)

Mr. MacInnis: I have no further questions.

Mr. Donohue: Are you finished?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. [4566]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Clagstone, were you introduced to Mr. Bridges? A. You mean at the reception?

Q. Yes. A. No, I was not.

Q. Had you ever met him before?

A. Never met him before.

Mr. MacInnis: Mr. Donohue, in order to obviate bringing further witnesses, will you stipulate that Harry Bridges was in Stockton on the night of June 27th, 1936?

Mr. Donohue: Mr. MacInnis, that is a very clever question. If I was there and saw him, I would be glad to so stipulate. Since I was not there, I can not.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much, Mr. Clagstone.

HENRY SCHMIDT

recalled as a witness on behalf of the defendants; previously sworn.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Now, Mr. Schmidt, before we go further in the narrative that you were offering us, I would like to establish a little more definitely the date upon which you became a member of the ILA, the original union of the longshoremen. So I am going to pass you a document, of which I have some [4567] photostatic copies, a union record of dues payment, and I am going to ask you if by usage of this document, calling your attention to some of the writing on the upper portion, you can tell us what was the initiation date of yourself into the ILA.

A. I was initiated into that union on July 27th, 1933, in the Labor Temple at 16th and Capp Streets.

Mr. MacInnis: We ask that the photostatic copy be received for identification, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: No objection, if your Honor please.

The Court: So ordered.

(Union record of dues payment referred to was thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit S-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, in respect of the election of yourself and Harry Bridges to the Executive Committee or Strike Committee—I guess this was the Executive Committee of the original ILA—I am going to show you the original board minutes book of the ILA during the period of time prior to the 1934 strike. I am going to call your attention to a certain page which appears following the minutes of August 26, 1933. I will mark the page, Mr. Mitchell suggests, and I will show a photostat of that page to the prosecution. So merely to establish the approximate date of the time when you were actually functioning as a member of the Executive Committee of the ILA, I show you that page and I tell you that if you turn the page back [4568] you will see that it follows the minutes of August 26, 1933, and that the minutes following it are in chronological order as well. A. Yes, sir.

Q. I ask you if by usage of this document to refresh you memory you can tell us at what approximate time you became or were elected to the Executive Committee of the ILA.

A. In August of 1933.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. We ask that the photostatic copy of that page be marked for identification, your Honor.

The Court: So ordered. Have you examined those documents, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

(Minutes of August 26, 1933, were thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit T-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, to go a little further along the testimony in which we were engaged on Friday last when we adjourned at noon, having finished the recitals concerning the testimony of John Schomaker, I am going to ask you some questions concerning the next witness who took the stand for the prosecution, a man named Henry Schrimpf.

Now, in the first place, Mr. Schmidt, can you tell us what was the Labor Relations Committee of the employers and the longshore union?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. The Labor Relations Committee was a joint body. It is [4569] representative of the union—in this case the longshoremen's union in San Francisco —and the Waterfront Employers Association of San Francisco. That committee was established in accordance with certain paragraphs which appeared in the award that was handed down on October 12th, 1934.

Q. The award was handed down by what person or what body?

A. The body was known as the National Longshoremen's Board, and the persons thereon were Archbishop Hanna, a lawyer by the name of Cushing, O. K.——

Q. That is the late O. K. Cushing?

A. I think it was O. K. Cushing, and Edward F. McGrady, who was then the asistant secretary of Labor.

Q. Was the establishment of the Labor Relations Committee a matter of some importance so far as the previous demands of the strikers had been concerned?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if your Honor please. I think the significance or importance is immaterial. The function may be important.

Mr. MacInnis: I will rephrase the question, your Honor.

Q. Just tell us the circumstances under which the request for such a Labor Relations Committee was made?

A. As I understand it, or as I understood it at the time, it was a must that obliged the parties to the arbitration hearing to set up such a committee, and a few days after October 12th the union met somewhere in San Francisco and one of the orders of [4570] business that was transacted at that meeting was the election of union members to the Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Who was elected from the union to that Labor Relations Committee following the rendering of the original award of which you have spoken?

A. The award provided that there should be at least three men from each side. The local union decided to elect five.

Q. Do you remember what they were?

A. Yes, George Woolf, Charles Connors, Fred Knopff, I believe, Henry Schrimpf and Henry Schmidt.

Q. Pursuant to that election did the men whose names that you have offered us actually go into attendance at Labor Relations Committee meetings?

A. Well, it may have been the day following. In any case, a short time thereafter a group met with three representatives of the Employers' Association.

Q. And what was the purpose or function of the Labor Relations Committee at that time?

A. The No. 1 job was to establish a hiring system as provided for in the award, to locate some premises where we could set up a longshore dispatching hall, to reach some agreement with respect to working rules and dispatching rules, and through the years the job of the Labor Relations Committee has been to attempt to adjust the disputes that arise on the job.

Q. Is that Labor Relations Committee still in existence? [4571] A. It is.

Q. It was not, then, a temporary board or a temporary measure for replacement by some more permanent group?

A. No, sir, that committee has functioned through the years and is in existence today.

Mr. MacInnis: I will ask Mr. Mitchell if he can get us a document marked for identification on behalf of the employers, the original—I guess the Waterfront Employers Association books which were brought here the other day.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, I will show you a document entitled Defendants' D-2 in evidence and I will ask you to look at the face of the first page: Minutes of Meeting of Longshore Labor Relations Committee of San Francisco, October 16, 1934, these being phostatic copies of documents in the possession of the employers. I will ask you if by looking at that first page you can refresh your memory as to what persons were actually in attendance at that meeting on behalf of the longshore union.

A. The members present were Captain Fred Knopff, Henry Schrimpf, Henry Schmidt, George Woolf and Charles Connors and on behalf of the employers there was Frank Gregory, Jack Bryan and Captain W. J. Petersen. Mr. Bryan, incidentally, was the writer of the minutes, and I recall distinctly that all of us were very much astonished to see him there sitting on the employers' side of the table.

Q. Mr. Bryan? [4572] A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, apart from the official document which you have in your hand, do you have a personal memory of seeing Henry Schrimpf at that first meeting of the Labor Relations Committee?

A. Absolutely.

Q. So that when Mr. Schrimpf told the jury that he was never a member of the Labor Relations Committee and never attended any such meeting, he was, to say the least, in error?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please. That is purely argumentative.

The Court: It is argumentative. Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Schmidt, tell us, if you will, what circumstances, if any, attended the presence of Henry Schrimpf upon that Labor Relations Committee. Tell us whether he attended regularly and, if not, what occurred.

A. Well, it is my recollection that he came to the first meeting and I seem to remember that he came to the second meeting also. And by the way, the committee was meeting almost every day then. The committee was on the payroll of the union because we had no time to work on the waterfront. And it seems to me about the third or fourth meeting Henry Schrimpf did not attend any longer.

Q. Upon that point I will show you again the official records kept by the employers. I think I have the third, fourth and [4573] fifth meetings marked with yellow paper. I will ask you if you will open those pages and recall the dates to the Court and jury and tell us whether or not Henry Schrimpf began to absent himself from the meetings.

A. It seems that on October 23rd, according to the minutes, Mr. Schrimpf was absent; likewise on October 24th; and again on October 25th.

Q. Apart from the dates which are supplied you by the records, do you have any independent memory of the circumstance attending the absence of Henry Schrimpf on those occasions?.

A. Yes, we had a meeting with the employers one morning in October, and we recessed at lunch time. We were discussing some sort of problem—I do not recall what it was. We all had the desire to discuss it with Bridges, and we proceeded to return to union headquarters at 113 Stewart Street, and as we entered the place we ran into Bridges, and it is my clear recollection that Schrimpf and I started to talk to Bridges almost simultaneously and he indicated he was busy——

Q. Pardon me. Who do you mean by "he"?

A. Bridges. He indicated he was extremely busy and was about to do something else and he had no time. At that point Schrimpf got extremely angry—in fact, he blew his top, and after that he refused to function.

Q. When you say that he refused to function, you mean he indicated he would no longer attend or did he just disappear? [4574]

A. There were some words to that effect, and after that he failed to show up at the LRC meetings.

Q. Was there some salary or per diem that the members of that committee received?

A. Yes, the union membership voted to pay the members of the Labor Relations Committee the high sum of $35 per week, which happened to be the salary that the then officers were receiving.

Q. Do you remember whether or not there was any controversy or discussion as to whether Henry Schrimpf should receive his wages for sitting upon that committee despite the fact that he was absent?

A. No, I do not recall that, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. In other words, anything that may have taken place in that direction would have been outside your presence?

A. Well, later on there was some discussion between Bridges and Schrimpf so far as that salary was concerned.

Q. Do you know whether or not Henry Schrimpf ultimately resigned from that committee—I mean, formal action at the union meeting by which he recognized that he had been a member of that committee and asked to be permitted to resign?

A. Yes, but it seemed that this happened after the passage of several weeks, some sort of action in a membership meeting.

Q. I will show you on that point the general membership minutes of the union in that period that I have marked with a yellow slip of paper, the date upon which I wish to call your attention, [4575] and tell us if you will, looking at that document, whether your memory is refreshed as to whether Mr. Henry Schrimpf resigned from the Labor Relations Committee and if so, upon what date.

A. At the top of the page there is a sentence indicating that his resignation be accepted. The minutes are dated November 13th, and this is an action that was held over from the previous meeting.

Q. Those are the minutes of what body or organization?

A. These are the minutes of the ILA, 38-79, meeting on November 13th, 1934, in the Building Trades Temple on Guerrero Street in San Francisco.

Mr. MacInnis: We ask that a photostatic copy of the minutes of that meeting be received and marked for identification.

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. Donohue: No objection.

(Minutes of ILA 11/13/34 referred to were thereupon marked Defendants' Exhibit U-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Schmidt, what is your first memory of the man called Henry Schrimpf upon the waterfront? What was your first meeting with him, as you recall it, and what was the nature and extent of your acquaintanceship with him?

A. The best I can remember is that we got acquainted about the time the strike was supposed to start, that earlier date, March 22nd or 23rd. I believe he was a member of the strike committee. [4576]

Q. By March 23rd you mean March 23, 1934, do you? A. Yes, of course.

Q. What was the nature of that meeting? Were you thrown together in any intimate way so that you were in each other's company much, or was the acquaintanceship ever that great?

A. Well, I recall that on the evening of March 22nd or 23rd, whichever is the correct date, there was a rather late meeting of the strike committee, and the discussion had to do with President Roosevelt's request to pass upon the strike, and everybody was somewhat disgusted because we were all anxious to go on strike, and everybody was very vocal on the question, and I recall that Schrimpf did some talking there also, and I may have gotten acquainted with him prior to that date, but that is just too long ago, counsel. I can't remember.

Q. Did anything ever happen that caused ill feeling to arise between you and Henry Schrimpf?

A. Well, not at that point.

Q. When?

A. Well, after he resigned from the Labor Relations Committee I got rather impatient with him. I didn't think it was proper for him to resign.

Q. Did you have some conversation with him about it?

A. I think I probably told him that he should not get that impatient about those things just because Bridges didn't have time to talk to us at that moment; why, we may have an opportunity [4577] to talk with him later on. There was no reason for him to blow his top in the manner that he did.

Q. Tell us whether or not drinking had anything to do with this discussion or controversy between Henry Schrimpf and Harry Bridges?

Mr. Donohue: I might suggest, if your Honor please, that is a little bit leading.

Mr. MacInnis: It is—a little bit.

The Court: What is the purpose of going into that phase of the matter?

Mr. MacInnis: Merely to establish the nature of any controversy, if there was a controversy, between these men. In other words, we have no personal concern with what this man's habits were.

The Court: Mr. Schmidt can state if any controversies exist and the reasons as best he can recall, how and why they did exist, if you can state them. I do not know that any characterization as to his drinking might enter into it or might not. You may answer the question.

The Witness: I can certainly state after Schrimpf resigned from the Labor Relations Committee, my association with him became less and less, and I decided the less I saw of him the better it might be for both of us.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Was there ever any incident taking place between you and a man called Henry Schrimpf of involving physical [4578] violence of any kind?

A. There was so much coughing I would like to hear the latter part of your sentence.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. I said, was there ever any incident taking place between you and Henry Schrimpf involving physical violence?

A. Well, yes. Of course, Mr. Schrimpf was always going around threatening people, and he frequently punches somebody in the nose.

Q. I am speaking of one incident, or if there were more, involving you and Henry Schrimpf.

A. Well, that was much later. That was some years later when I had been elected president of the local union. Schrimpf came into the office one morning, or it may have been the afternoon, to make an inquiry about something. I can't recall what it was. I think it had something to do with the union funds or board of trustees' report, and he was standing in front of my desk and I was sitting behind the desk. And he made some sort of remark which caused me to get angry, and I jumped out of my chair and said, "Are you accusing me of being a crook?" And his answer to that question was a punch in the face, which I managed to dodge, and I got it on the shoulder.

Q. What happened thereafter?

A. Well, I got hold of Mr. Schrimpf and shoved him into the corner and held him there. A couple of longshoremen happened to be in the office and they stopped the fight, if it can be [4579] called that.

Q. After that did you have any relationships of a friendly status with Henry Schrimpf?

A. No.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. After that time did he appear to consider you his enemy? A. I would say so.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall we take the recess, your Honor?

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the morning recess. The same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions or form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4580]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Schmidt, you saw Henry Schrimpf, I suppose, throughout the following years after the strike?

A. Yes, I saw him all the time through the years.

Q. Was there ever an occasion when Henry Schrimpf ran for office in the union against a man called Bill Marlowe?

A. Yes, he ran against me for president and he ran against Marlowe for the office of vice president, and he ran against me a couple of times.

Q. On each of those occasions Mr. Schrimpf was defeated for office in the union, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. What if anything happened concerning the contest between Mr. Marlowe and Mr. Henry Schrimpf for union office?

Mr. Donohue: Isn't that purely a collateral matter, if your Honor please, which ought not to be the subject of inquiry?

Mr. MacInnis: No, I think, your Honor, the only things we are interested in are matters which concerned Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Bridges.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: If he was concerned in the election between Schrimpf and Marlowe I have no objection, but otherwise it would seem to me purely collateral.

Mr. MacInnis: I will reframe the question, your Honor.

Q. Who was backing Mr. Marlowe for candidacy in union office when he ran and defeated Henry Schrimpf? [4581]

A. As I recall it, Bridges was running for president at that time and he was backing Marlowe.

Q. And what year was that?

A. I think that would have been 1936.

Q. And what if anything happened—what conversation, if any, took place in your presence involving Henry Schrimpf following that election?

A. Schrimpf was also a candidate for the office of vice president, and he apparently heard that Bridges had decided to back Marlowe. He came storming into the office like a madman—incidentally, that has been his behavior through the years, and that is putting it very, very mildly—and he started to take Bridges to task for backing Marlowe. The conversation took place in the doorway, and after the exchange of some very heated words and a number of threats, Schrimpf went out on the sidewalk and there he sort of took a vow to the general effect that he would never rest until he got that so-and-so

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Bridges "and you too, Schmidt," he said in an aside.

Q. Did he say that in your presence?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Where was he standing and where were you standing when these remarks took place?

A. Right in front of No. 27 Clay Street in San Francisco. I was standing just inside the building.

Q. Where was Henry Schrimpf standing? [4582]

A. On the sidewalk directly in front of the door.

Q. How many others were there?

A. There were a number of longshoremen.

Q. When you say he took a vow there, what do you mean?

A. He sort of raised his fist as if he was looking for something to hit—maybe it was on the wall, and there wasn't any wall handy, or on a desk and there wasn't a desk handy.

Q. Did he utter the words that you have recited just now?

A. Substantially those words.

Q. To come back to the testimony of Henry Schrimpf in this case, did you ever in 1933 or 1934 or any other time hand Henry Schrimpf an application card to the Communist Party?

A. That never happened at any time. And it is understandable that Schrimpf would testify to that effect, because he is out to eliminate Bridges and a few other people, and he will do anything to accomplish that objective—anything at all.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Henry Schrimpf at the time he suggested or at any other time in which you told him to get wise to himself and join the Communist Party?

A. I made no such remark. It is useless to tell that fellow to get wise.

Q. Did you ever say that to him?

A. Of course not.

Q. Did you ever advise him that he should join the Communist Party? [4583]

A. I never advised him with regard to anything except I told him he shouldn't get off the Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Did you ever attend any Communist Party meeting with Henry Schrimpf? A. No.

Q. Did you ever attend any meeting with Henry Schrimpf dedicated to discussing Norma Perry and whether or not she should lose her job?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever tell Henry Schrimpf you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. Did I ever tell him?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Now, with reference to the next witness who took the stand, Stanley Hancock, did you ever see that man before in your life?

A. Never saw him before.

Q. Did you meet him at the American Federation of Labor convention in 1935 at San Diego?

A. Well, since I never saw him before, I didn't see him at the American Federation of Labor convention.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did you ever attend any meeting of any kind in his presence, Communist meeting or otherwise?

A. No meeting in his presence.

Q. To the best of your memory, were you ever at the Sumner [4584] Apartments in San Diego at the corner of 12th and B Streets?

A. I am sure that I wasn't at that place. There was one meeting, it was a caucus, that was held in the same building where the convention took place, and right now I can't recall what building that was. As I recall it, that was about the only meeting I went to other than the regular convention meeting. There was a world's fair going on in San Diego at that time, as I recall it. On one occasion a group of us jumped into an automobile and went to Tijuana, Mexico, and we found Schrimpf down there, too, drinking pretty heavily. I recall I went to the world's fair, and as I say, the only meeting that I went to other than the convention was that one caucus in the same building.

Q. Well, now, what kind of a caucus was that? Did that have anything to do with the Communist Party or a discussion of Communist Party ideas or aims?

A. It had to do with whatever business was going on in the convention, possibly the election of officers. I recall that the question as to whether the delegates should vote to reelect Paul Scharrenberg to the office of secretary was of great interest, and in all probability that was discussed in this gathering in that building.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Was it a gathering that you understood in any fashion had to do with the Communist Party?

A. Of course not. [4585]

Q. Now, coming to the next witness who testified against you in this case, the witness named Kermit Charles Krolek, do you know him?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. When did you meet him and what has been the extent of your acquaintanceship with that man?

A. My recollection is that he was in Portland during one of the numerous conventions that we always were going to, and the year might have been '37 or '38, and he was the man who found the dictophone or microphone in the wall of the room that Bridges occupied. A group of us met in the lobby of the Hotel Multnomah, and somebody said there was a microphone or some such instrument in Bridges' room. I can't recall who made the statement, but Krolek was in the group, and everybody knew that he was an expert radio man, and he volunteered to make a search of the room. We went to the room. Bridges came in. Schomaker was there. He put on a little bit of an act as we entered the room.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, as soon as we entered the room, for the benefit of the microphone, if such instrument were hidden in the walls, Schomaker said, "Well, Hank," addressing me, "do you have that sack of roubles from Moscow?"

Q. And what did you reply?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Oh, I suppose I said, "Yes, I have got it right here under [4586] my arm."

Q. Was there a microphone found in the wall at that time?

A. Yes, Krolek moved the furniture and he took the tips of his fingers and he went all over the wall, and eventually down near the baseboard he found a soft spot, and he ripped the wallpaper away, and just as he ripped the wallpaper away, the microphone was moving in away from us.

Q. Other than that incident which you have related did you go to any meetings with the man named Krolek? A. I can't recall any.

Q. And did you know whether or not Mr. Krolek was a member of the Communist Party in the years when you knew him?

A. Never gave it a thought; didn't know.

Q. Did he ever announce to you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. He did not.

Q. By the way, going back for a moment to the witness Schomaker, the first witness who testified against you, did you ever know whether or not Mr. Schomaker was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I didn't.

Q. Did he ever state that he was?

A. Not in so many words.

Q. Well, were you ever of the opinion that Schomaker was a member of the Communist [4587] Party?

A. Well, on one occasion when he and I met in the streets that was after the war; anyhow, it was after he came out of the service—he waved a copy of the People's World at me and made quite a number of complimentary remarks about the paper, and said that I ought to read the paper more frequently and get on the beam, he said.

Q. That is the only remark that he ever made directly about that matter linking him in your mind with the Communist Party?

A. That's right.

Q. Well, now, to be specific on the testimony of Kermit Charles Krolek, did you in May of 1936 go to an apartment in Long Beach and which he describes as being the Venetian Square Apartments, up a spiral staircase to the second door to the right of the landing? Did you ever go there with Mr. Krolek?

A. No, sir. The only spiral staircases that I can recall are some ancient castles over in Europe.

Q. Did you go to a meeting in any apartment at Long Beach at which Krolek was present along with a man named R. A. Pyle, a man named Pringle, a man named T. J. Van Erman, Harry Bridges, Harry Jackson and a woman named Hazel Wood?

A. Mr. MacInnis, what was the second name you mentioned?

Q. A man named Pringle.

A. I don't know any such man.

Q. Do you know the other persons whose names have been mentioned? [4588]

A. Pyle I know.

Q. Who is he?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. He was a member of the Radio Operators Union.

Q. And how about T. J. Van Erman?

A. It seems to me that fellow was around here about twelve years ago.

Q. And what was his job, if you know?

A. I think he was a radio man, too.

Q. How about the woman named Hazel Wood? Did you ever know her?

A. I knew a Virginia Woods that used to work for the ILWU.

Q. This is a woman who apparently had an apartment in Long Beach. Did you ever go to the apartment or room of any lady by that name in Long Beach? A. I did not.

Q. Well, what is your testimony, then, as to whether or not you attended the meeting mentioned by Krolek in Long Beach.

A. It is completely untrue. I might say that I have been in Long Beach so often, and the meetings that I went to had mostly to do with the Government job that I had during the war, and this little Government agency never met in anybody's room.

Q. What was the Government job that you had during the war which you now mention?

A. I was a member of the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board representing the ILWU on that agency. [4589]

Q. Now, Mr. Krolek also testified that he came up to San Francisco to 121 Haight Street, and he said he remained in the corridor while you, Harry Bridges and John Schomaker went into an office where was sitting a man named Schneidermann. Now, did that take place?

A. No, it did not. And I might add this also: that years after the incident in Portland where the microphone was found, years afterwards I met Krolek on the street here in San Francisco, and of course we immediately started to talk about the microphone incident. I asked him what he was doing, because I hadn't seen him around union affairs any more, and he told me that he had a job —I think he said he had a job with Governor Olson, but since I heard him testify here, I recall he said that he had a job with the brother of Governor Olson. And those are the two occasions that I saw the man, and I didn't see him any more until he walked in here one day.

Q. By "in here" you mean in court?

A. That's right.

Q. Did you ever go to any meeting in the Lennox Hotel or New Lennox Hotel in Portland with a man named Krolek?

A. He may have been there; I can't recall.

Q. By meetings, I mean in the language of the witness, Communist meetings.

A. Oh, no, no. I am talking about the Pacific Maritime Federation convention meetings or meetings of the ILWU. I recall [4590] there was an ILWU convention in Portland one time, and when it was finished it was followed immediately by the

Maritime Federation convention, and there were possibly 125 delegates at both affairs. [4590-A]

Q. In connection with the lady named Irene Harris, Irene Patty Harris, who testified here, you have already stated in response to the testimony of Schomaker that you never heard Harry Bridges make certain statements; did you ever go to a party at the home of a man named Jack Shaw at which Mrs. Harris was present?

A. I thought I explained that last week. I testified last week that I was in Jack Shaw's house on one occasion. It was a social affair and everybody was walking around with a drink in their hand. Everybody was talking at the same time, and I don't recall ever having seen Mrs. Harris at that place.

Q. Did you ever see her at any place where Harry Bridges made a speech?

A. I doubt it very much.

Q. Did you ever hear Harry Bridges at any private home, whether it be Jack Shaw's home or anywhere else, announce that he was a member of the Communist Party and urge a group of people to join that party?

A. I never heard him make such a speech at any place, apartment, open meetings or any other type of meetings.

Q. Calling your attention to the testimony of a man who came here as Lawrence Seton Ross, did you go with Harry Bridges to a place called the Sokol Hall at an occasion when the man named Ross was present, and did you there listen to a speech by Mr. Schneidermann? [4591]

A. I can only repeat what I said last week. I went to Sokol Hall one time years ago—I can't recall what year. It was a social affair. These people whom you mention were not there. I didn't see them.

Q. The occasion when you went to Sokol Hall was not a political meeting, as you explained?

A. It was a social affair there, with the Jugoslavs and other Slavonian people. They had an orchestra there. There was dancing, drinking and singing.

Q. Did you ever attend any meeting of any kind having to do with the Communist Party in company with a man named Lawrence Seton Ross?

A. No, sir.

Q. Going to the last witness who mentioned your name, a man named George Wilson, did you ever attend any Communist Party meeting with George Wilson?

A. No, sir, but hundreds of other kinds of meetings.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, George Wilson was the president of the CIO Council here in San Francisco. I was its vice president while he was president. I recall another time when I was president of the Council when he had the job of secretary of that Council. George Wilson, believe it or not, was executive secretary of the Bridges Defense Committee eight or nine years ago, and he made his headquarters in the building at 150 Golden Gate, where [4592] our office is, and through the years we met in the Council. The Council Executive Board would meet on a Friday night. The Council itself would meet the following Friday night, and since the ILWU had offices in the same building, why, we would see each other almost daily.

Q. George Wilson says this: He is asked one direct question: "Did you ever attend a Communist Party meeting at which the defendant Henry Schmidt was present?" and he said, "Yes." He does not tell us where or when. But carrying your memory over all the years, were you ever at any meetings along with Gorge Wilson which could have been denominated a Communist Party meeting?

A. I am pretty sure I have not. If he doesn't know, I couldn't know either.

Q. Tell me this: Did you have any knowledge as to whether George Wilson was a member of the Communist Party? A. Absolutely none.

Q. Do you believe that he was?

A. Well, I doubt it a little bit.

Q. You doubt that he ever was a member of the Communist Party? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any reason for doubting that?

A. Well, I never heard him make any remarks, that he carried the People's World around in his pocket or anything like that.

Q. And you have never been possessed of the opinion in your [4593] life that George Wilson was a member of the Communist Party?

A. That is right.

Q. Calling your attention to an incident taking place in the summer of 1936 concerning which many witnesses have testified here, do you remember going to Stockton with Harry Bridges on any occasion upon which he spoke in that city?

A. I was there.

Q. With whom did you go to Stockton and when?

A. That is a very peculiar incident, and with regard to some of the happenings on this trip my memory fails me. I know there was talk about the office about Bridges going to Stockton and my going to Stockton. Willie Christensen was quite bothersome about it, a couple of days before this particular Saturday, and I am satisfied that I rode to Stockton in Willie Christensen's car, but I can't remember the trip up. I remember the meeting in the Teamsters Hall. I recall that Bridges spoke for a long time. I thought he talked too long. And I clearly remembered the business in the night club.

Q. What do you mean by that, the business in the night club?

A. Well, I recall that we went to visit the night club after the meeting was finished, that we sat around there for quite a while, and drank. I recall that somebody passed the word to the master of ceremonies that Bridges was in the house, and as a result of that information having been passed, the spotlight was turned on Bridges—that I recall very clearly. I don't remember [4594] anything about the information that the witnesses supplied here this morning. I don't remember that. And I recall the ride back and our having breakfast in Willie Christensen's home. This would be on Sunday morning, very, very early.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Do you remember in what fashion you were taken back to your own home here in San Francisco?

A. I have a vague remembrance that I had my own car parked in a parking lot diagonally across the street from the Ferry, and when Willie took us to San Francisco I picked up my own car and proceeded home.

Q. You said a moment ago that in that week before you went to Stockton that Willie Christensen was being pesty about Bridges going up to Stockton. Did you talk to Willie Christensen all week about the prospective trip?

A. Yes. He apparently came in to see Bridges on a couple of occasions and I don't know whether he found him or not, and he would tell me about them, because he insisted that I also go. The reason being that in the Maritime Federation convention Bridges and I carried the proxy vote for the Stockton local. Therefore it was, well, almost obligatory on our part to go to that local and make a report having to do with the convention proceedings.

Q. When Willie Christensen came into the union office to solicit Bridges' attendance in Stockton, was Bridges around the office?

A. I think on one occasion when Christensen came in, he was, [4595] but I don't recollect that too clearly.

Q. When was the arrangement made, so far as you remember, for you and Harry Bridges to go up to Stockton in the car of Mr. Christensen?

A. I think we knew it a couple of days before we went.

Q. Had you discussed that with Bridges?

A. We had some discussion but I can't recall just exactly what was said.

Q. Was that discussion between you and Harry Bridges had here in San Francisco?

A. Oh, yes. Where else would we be talking?

Q. Well, Bridges was not in New York either on that Saturday or during the preceding week, was he?

A. He definitely was not in New York.

Q. To come to some of the later matters with which you are charged in this case, you appeared, as we are told by the documents now in evidence, as a witness for Harry Bridges when he applied for United States citizenship in the months of August and September, 1945, here in San Francisco, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Will you tell the Court and jury how and under what circumstances you were asked to be a witness in that proceeding?

A. Well, again I must explain that there are some things I can't remember. I recall that Bridges asked me to come along and be a witness. I agreed. We went to the City Hall. The [4596] proceedings took place—and I am now talking about the second hearing, for it goes by that name——

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. You mean the hearing in court?

A. Yes. And I heard Mr. Garner testify here and I heard him explain with regard to an examination that took place in August, as he testified, but I have absolutely no remembrance of that. All I can tell you is that with regard to the hearing in court, there was a gentleman handling the situation, and I guess it was Mr. Garner, but I don't remember. And I recall that he eventually turned to the Court and said, "Your Honor, the Government is satisfied," or maybe he said, "Your Honor, these witnesses are satisfactory to the Government." That I do remember. I can't recall if that was Mr. Garner or some other man.

Q. When Harry Bridges asked you to be a witness for him, did he tell you what was desired for you to say?

A. No, the conversation lasted about half a minute.

Q. What did he say, as best you remember?

A. He said, "How about coming along to the City Hall?"

Maybe he said, "It is going to happen tomorrow."

Maybe he said, "It is going to happen this morning."

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

I don't know. I said, "All right. What time is it?" And that is all there was to it.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, have you ever been a witness for other persons who sought citizenship before?

A. On a number of occasions I appeared as a witness for some [4597] longshoreman. As a matter of fact, I was a witness for my own father. I became a citizen of this country before my father did.

Q. When your father was naturalized you were his witness?

A. Yes, his two sons were his witnesses, my brother Gustav and I.

Q. Did you know from that experience generally what the scope of the examination would be in a naturalization hearing?

A. Yes. It is usually a proceedings that takes four or five minutes in so far as the witnesses are concerned.

Q. When Harry Bridges asked you if you would be a witness for him, did you have any discussion, agreement, understanding or colloquy about the subject matter at all?

A. No, the conversation was very short. Maybe I said, "Well, it is about time."

Q. Did you have any discussion or did he indicate to you or tell you or ask you in regard to anything that he would have wanted you to say?

A. Not a word.

Q. Did you ask him any questions about what you should say?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I am sure I did not need to ask him any questions. I have been here so often I almost know it by heart.

Q. Was there a man named Paul Schnurr who was a friend of Harry Bridges and was asked to come along as a second witness for him? [4598]

A. Yes, Paul Schnurr was then the secretary of the CIO Council of San Francisco.

Q. As I understand it, he is retired now, is that correct?

A. Yes, and he, as happens to be the case with myself, was foreign born. I recollect he told the gentlemen there in the City Hall that he had derivative citizenship. He couldn't prove it, and the man told him that being the case, he couldn't be [4599] used.

Q. Do you remember anything in connection with the first emergence of the name of Mr. J. R. Robertson as a witness for Harry Bridges?

A. At that point, when it became clear that Mr. Schnurr could not act as a witness, Bob Robertson jumped into the breach. He had walked over to the City Hall with the group.

Q. He had been with you over there?

A. Yes, I recall he went over there with us.

Q. And what conversation, if any, took place in your presence regarding the use of Robertson as a witness? A. Conversations with me?

Q. Or in your presence. Did you overhear any conversation between Bridges and Robertson, between Robertson and the immigration examiner, or any other person?

A. No. All I can recall is that when it became clear that Schnurr could not act as a witness, somebody ran to the door or somebody actually shouted, "Hey, Bob, come here," and it was briefly explained, and Bob Robertson stepped up to a high counter and he testified—I guess it was Mr. Garner—that he had been born in Texas, and a few minutes later he was a witness.

Q. That incident, of course, refers to the events taking place in the City Hall but not in the courtroom of Judge Foley? A. That is right.

Q. Did you later go back to court? [4600]

A. I can recall the judge sitting on the bench, and there was a man down there talking to him, and I guess that was Mr. Garner, and that is about all I can remember of those proceedings.

Q. Do you remember this: During the interim of time between the first visit that you had to the City Hall with Bridges and Robertson and Paul Schnurr and the time when you ultimately went to court, did you have any conversation, agreement or understanding with Harry Bridges as to what you were going to say?

A. With respect to his citizenship?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Did he ever ask you to be sure to say any particular thing? A. No.

Q. Did he ever ask you to be sure to conceal any particular thing? A. Absolutely not.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did he ever tell you to be sure not to say anything about the Communist Party?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever say to him that you would be sure not to say anything concerning the Communist Party? A. No.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall we take the recess? [4601]

The Court: Yes, we will take the noon recess and resume at two o'clock this afternoon. Remember the admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [4601-A]

Monday, January 30, 1950—2:00 P.M.

Mr. MacInnis: May we interrupt again, your Honor?

The Court: Mr. Schmidt.

Mr. MacInnis: May we interrupt the testimony again?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: May we call Mr. Daniel Del Carlo.

DANIEL F. DEL CARLO

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury, please.

The Witness: Daniel F. Del Carlo.

(Testimony of Daniel F. Del Carlo.)

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your residence address, Mr. Del Carlo? A. 1859 Vallejo.

Q. And have you been a resident of the City and County of San Francisco for some years past?

A. Since 1903, when I was born.

Q. You were born here and have lived here all your life? A. That's right.

Q. What is your business or profession?

A. I represent the San Francisco Building and Construction Trades Council of the American Federation of Labor. [4602]

Q. Have you held any post upon the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District?

A. I am a director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Q. Who appointed you to that post?

A. The Board of Supervisors.

Q. And previously have you been a member of any commission within the City and County of San Francisco?

A. I was a member of the Fair Rent Committee appointed by Mayor Rossi. I was a member of the Public Utilities Commission appointed by Mayor Lapham. I was a member of the Regional Manpower Commission appointed by Franklin D. Roosevelt. I was a member of the Selective Service Committee appointed by President Truman; a member—past president of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Q. Do you hold any position in the Democratic Party?

A. I am a member of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Q. Were you a delegate to the last national convention of the Democratic Party?

A. Yes, sir; I was a Truman delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Q. That is the convention which last year nominated President Truman?

A. That's right, in Philadelphia in 1948.

Q. Do you know Mr. Harry Bridges? [4603]

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And for what period of years have you known him?

A. I met Harry Bridges in about 1934.

Q. And you have known him ever since?

A. That's right.

A. And do you know Mr. Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. When did you meet him?

A. Approximately about the same—about the same time.

Q. And has your acquaintance with both of those men carried over the years which followed?

A. Yes, it has.

Q. You have seen them on and off on both——

A. I have on occasions, yes.

Q. You have seen them, I suppose, on political engagements as well as social engagements?

(Testimony of Daniel F. Del Carlo.)

A. That's right.

Q. And have you from time to time discussed the character of Harry Bridges and of Henry Schmidt with other members of this community?

A. Oh, I have heard it—I have heard their names mentioned many times both in political and fraternal and business groups.

Q. And from your own knowledge of these two men, Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt, and from such conversations as you may have heard concerning them from other persons in this community, are [4604] you in a position to know the reputation of each of those men in this community for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I think so, yes.

Q. What is the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, in my business I always call them as I see them, and on occasions—one paticular occasion, I had occasion to——

Mr. Donohue: I must object, if your Honor please. Specific instances are not admissible.

The Court: Yes; the witness may give his answer to the question as posed.

Mr. MacInnis: I think his Honor's observation is of course correct. Upon that question you must answer as to what the reputation of the man is.

A. Good.

Q. What is the reputation of Mr. Henry Schmidt in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Good.

Q. With reference to Harry Bridges, in addition to any political activities of a general nature or social matters had between you, has you acquaintanceship with him extended into trade union matters? A. Yes, it has.

(Testimony of Daniel F. Del Carlo.)

Q. Now, will you describe in what way you have had dealings with Harry Bridges in trade union matters. [4605]

A. On one occasion—I was at that time business representative of the Glaziers Local Union No. 718 of San Francisco, and I had organized the auto glass shops; and shortly thereafter, the United Auto Workers passed pamphlets out to what we call a raid of our union.

Mr. Donohue: Excuse me, Mr. Witness. I must object to this, if your Honor please. This certainly is not proper character testimony.

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, it merely goes as to the foundation for his period of acquaintanceship, which is part of the basis for the answer of the witness.

Mr. Donohue: He has already answered the question.

The Court: I think he answered the question, Mr. MacInnis. He may be cross-examined upon the basis of the answer given, but I sustain the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Very well. That is all, then.

The Court: Do you have any questions?

Mr. Donohue: Yes.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. De Carlo, when were you notified to come here first and testify?

A. At two o'clock today, or I would say one o'clock I was served with a subpoena.

Q. Prior to having been served with a subpoena had you discussed the fact of your having to come here and your testimony with [4606] any person or persons?

A. With Mr. MacInnis in the anteroom about ten minutes ago.

Q. And the service of the subpoena upon you at one o'clock was the first indication you had had that you might be called here to testify?

A. That's right.

Q. Can you tell us, Mr. De Carlo——

A. The name is Del Carlo.

Q. I am sorry; Mr. Del Carlo—any person or persons with whom you have discussed the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, I have discussed it—I have heard it discussed amongst hundreds of people, but I have discussed it at times with men such as the District Attorney of San Francisco, Pat Brown, with Harold Berliner, with whom I served on the Selective Service Board for five and a half years, and countless members of labor unions that I wouldn't be in a position by memory to remember their names.

Q. And you have heard Mr. Bridges' reputation discussed among hundreds of persons.

A. That's right.

Q. Have you ever heard anyone state that in his opinion Mr. Bridges was a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

(Testimony of Daniel F. Del Carlo.)

Q. You have never heard that said? [4607]

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Del Carlo, if evidence establishing beyond a reasonable doubt that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party was called to your attention, would you still say he had a good reputation for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Well, I said earlier that I call them as I see them; I do not judge my fellow men by the thinking of other people, only by what I think.

Q. Are you testifying as to your personal judgment that Mr. Bridges has a good reputation for truth, honesty and integrity, or are you taking the word of hundreds of people with whom you have discussed that subject?

A. Do I have to answer that?

Q. You may ask the Court.

The Court: Do you have any objection, Mr. Del Carlo? Have you any objection?

The Witness: It don't make sense to me.

Mr. Donohue: Would you read the question.

The Witness: I am called here and asked my opinion on the character of a man, and I have honestly given it.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask the question again in another form?

The Court: Yes, rephrase it.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): I am asking you, Are you stating your opinion or are you stating the consolidated opinion of hundreds [4608] of people with whom you have discussed Mr. Bridges' reputation?

(Testimony of Daniel F. Del Carlo.)

A. I would say the consolidated opinion of hundreds of people that I have discussed his reputation with, as well as my own.

Q. As well as your own opinion?

A. That's right.

Q. And your opinion would not have been changed by the fact that you were persuaded by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Bridges was and had been a member of the Communist Party? A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. May I ask you the question, Would it be changed? A. Oh, yes.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Del Carlo, among the persons whom you say you talked to about Harry Bridges was a Mr. Harold Berliner. Was he the Collector of Internal Revenue here in San Francisco in years past?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. And you mentioned our District Attorney, Mr. Pat Brown. Were you the campaign manager for Pat Brown last year?

A. I handled the labor end of his campaign.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

The Court: Mr. Del Carlo is excused. [4609]

Mr. MacInnis: We will call Mr. Gaynor, please.

AUGUSTIN F. GAYNOR

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Augustin F. Gaynor.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Gaynor, what is your residence address?

A. 2491 - 35th Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. How long have you lived in San Francisco?

A. 35 years.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Gaynor?

A. I was born in County Limerick, Ireland.

Q. You came to America at what age?

A. At the age of 12.

Q. And as you state, you have lived in San Francisco for the past 35 years, is that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. At the present time I am head clerk in the freight claim department of the Southern Pacific Company at 65 Market Street.

Q. You have been with the Southern Pacific Company how many years? [4610]

A. Over 30 years.

Q. Are you a member of any labor union in connection with your work with the Southern Pacific Company?

A. I am a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks?

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. And have you held offices in that union?

A. I have been president of my local, secretary of my local, business agent and Grand Lodge representative.

Q. Have you been a member of any other organization connected with the labor movement in San Francisco?

A. I was State chairman of Labor's Non-Partisan League, and I was the first temporary chairman of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists which was organized in San Francisco during the 1937 store strike.

Q. Do you know Harry Bridges?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. For how many years have you known him?

A. I met him first, I think it was in 1935.

Q. And have you known him steadily over the ensuing years? A. Yes, I have.

Q. What has been the extent of your relationship or acquaintanceship with Harry Bridges?

A. Well, as a member of the Railroad Clerks, I had quite a bit of dealings with him personally in regards to the rating of Railroad Brotherhoods by the United Railroad Workers.

Q. What was that incident, Mr. Gaynor? [4611]

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, to the incident.

The Court: Sustained. [4611-A]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Gaynor, in addition to knowing Harry Bridges over the years that you have described, have you also had occasion to overhear other persons speak concerning his reputation in this community? A. Yes, I have.

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. Have you known Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes.

Q. For how many years have you known him?

A. I would say I met him about two or three years after I first got acquainted with Mr. Bridges.

Q. And has your acquaintanceship with Henry Schmidt been continuous over that stream of years?

A. It has.

Q. In addition to knowing him, have you also from time to time heard other persons in this community discuss Henry Schmidt?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. From your own knowledge and acquaintanceship with each of those men, and based upon any conversations which you may have participated in or overheard with other people, are you in a position where you can say that you know what the reputation of each of those men may be in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. I would state from my own experience with Mr. Bridges that he has wholeheartedly cooperated with me in matters concerning our union, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, and the Railway [4612] Brotherhoods also; and also in that connection I have heard discussions about his character, integrity and ability.

In connection with Mr. Schmidt, I have had only occasional discussions with him about trade union matters, but I have heard his name very favorably mentioned by some people in the community.

Q. From all of those bases, what is the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity in this community?

A. I would say it is excellent.

Q. And what would be your answer to the same question in respect of Henry Schmidt?

A. The same answer.

Q. Mr. Gaynor, referring to another matter—and I make this remark merely for the guidance of the Court and jury with respect to the subject matter—a witness testified here with respect to a meeting he claimed he had with Harry Bridges and others in 1940 with respect to funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League. Upon that matter I want to ask this gentleman a few questions.

Mr. Gaynor, what was Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. Labor's Non-Partisan League was first organized in 1936 by President Berry of the Webb Pressman's Union, and later on, about 1938, Mr. John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers became national chairman and Mr. Eli Oliver, executive director of the League, came out here in about 1937 or 1938. I was personally acquainted with Mr. Oliver. He asked me if I would take over the organization of Labor's Non-Partisan League, which I did. [4613]

Q. And for what period of time did you take over the organization of Labor's Non-Partisan League here?

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

A. I stayed with Labor's Non-Partisan League from the latter part of 1937 on to about July of 1939.

Q. What was the purpose of Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. Labor's Non-Partisan League came into being originally for the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 and in 1937, when Mr. Oliver came out here, after we contacted him. The purpose was to get labor aroused for political action in the State of California to elect a liberal government here.

Q. Mr. Gaynor, do you have any knowledge as to when, if ever, certain funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League were sent on to California?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. When was that?

A. That was in about September of 1938.

Q. Who sent those funds out here and what was the ultimate disposition of those funds?

A. After the contact being made with Mr. John L. Lewis, the national chairman of Labor's Non-Partisan League, John L. Lewis sent $25,000 to Mr. George Creel.

Q. Who was he?

A. He at that time was one of the Democratic leaders in the State of California and had his offices at 200 Bush Street.

Q. What did Mr. Creel do with those funds when they reached [4614] him, if you know?

A. Mr. Creel phoned myself as chairman, Vernon Burke as secretary of Labor's Non-Partisan League, and Herb Resner, and asked us to meet in his office at 200 Bush Street, that he had received a check from Mr. Lewis, which Mr. Lewis had instructed him to contact the leaders of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Q. Did you have a conference then with Mr. Creel?

A. We did. We had a conference with Mr. Creel.

Q. In about what month of what year did that conference take place?

A. That conference took place in September of 1938, about September of 1938. It was after the primary election of 1938 in which Olson had been nominated for governor of California.

Q. What was done with the funds of Labor's Non-Partisan League as a result of that conference?

A. At the conference we discussed the dividing of the money between the northern part of California and the southern part of California. After much discussion it was agreed, because the bulk of the vote was in Southern California, the bulk of the money should go to Southern California. It was agreed there that we send $17,500 to Los Angeles—I think the treasurer at that time was Phil S. Gibson—and that $7500 would be kept in San Francisco, to be used for the campaign up here, and that was the final disposition made of that money.

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. Was the money used as you have [4615] indicated?

A. Yes, the money was used to pay campaign expenses.

Q. Would there have been in late 1940 in the language of one of the witnesses who testified here any funds in existence at all belonging to Labor's Non-Partisan League?

A. As far as I know, the only money we ever had was the $25,000 we got from John L. Lewis.

Q. Was that disbursed in the calendar year of 1938? A. It was all spent in 1938, yes.

Q. What happened to Labor's Non-Partisan League thereafter?

A. To the best of my knowledge, the League went out of existence and I say that for this reason, that in 1940 John F. Shelley named me as his alternate delegate to the 1940 Democratic convention, which convention nominated Roosevelt for the third term, and when we returned to San Francisco we discussed labor's participation in the campaign, but because there was no political group organized to carry on the campaign like Labor's Non-Partisan League in 1938, we organized a Labor's Committee for Roosevelt, of which we elected, I think, Sandy Watchman chairman, I was secretary, Germaine Bulcke was vice-chairman, and Jennie Matthes was treasurer, and we collected the funds then for the 1940 campaign.

Q. In 1940, as you indicate, there were no funds in existence belonging to Labor's non-Partisan League for distribution to any source?

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

A. None that I know of. [4616]

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Would you say, Mr. Gaynor, that there was not in 1940 a deposit in the Bank of San Francisco in the name of Labor's Non-Partisan League with a balance?

A. No, I would not say there was not a deposit or balance. There might have been an amount left to keep the account open.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. When was this meeting that you had to divide this money?

A. You mean the $25,000?

Q. Yes.

A. That was in 1938 after the primary elections nominating Olson, Downey and Patterson for governor, lieutenant governor and senator from California.

Q. Who participated in the division of these funds?

A. George Creel was there, Vernon Burke, who was secretary of Labor's Non-Partisan League, Herb Resner, who was assistant secretary, I think, and myself as chairman.

Q. What did you say Mr. Resner's position was?

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

A. Well, I don't know. He was assistant secretary or something. He was something in the League. I don't know at that time what he was.

Q. As far as you can now tell us, he was assistant secretary?

A. He might have been that, yes. [4617]

Q. Is that your best recollection?

A. That is my best recollection, yes.

Q. Whom did he represent, if you know?

A. He was part of the Labor's Non-Partisan League. As to whether he was representing some union, I wouldn't answer without reviewing the records.

Q. Is he the Herb Resner who has been identified as a member of the bar, a practicing attorney here in San Francisco?

A. That is the man, yes.

Q. A law partner of Mr. Gladstein and Mr. George Anderson?

A. I don't know who his law partners are. I know he is an attorney.

Q. Mr. Gaynor, you say that you have heard Mr. Bridges' reputation favorably discussed by some people? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you heard it unfavorably discussed by some people?

A. Not in any discussions in which I participated, no, not in any discussion I participated in.

Q. You would not have heard it if you had not participated, would you, sir?

A. No, that is correct.

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. Can you tell us any person or the names of some persons with whom you have discussed the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity and who said it was excellent?

A. Yes. [4618]

Q. Would you name them for us, please?

A. Well, I will name the time and the person. In 1938 when we were discussing the political campaign, after the primaries now, I was discussing the campaign with the county chairman of the Democratic Party, Mr. Malone, and he stated that his participation was all right, and that he was willing to go along with——

Q. Was Mr. Malone simply discussing Mr. Bridges' participation in the campaign or was he discussing Mr. Bridges' reputation for telling the truth?

A. We were discussing the people that were going to participate in the direction of the campaign, and as to whether they were reliable and those kind of people we could have in the campaign to conduct the campaign.

Q. By reliable, do you mean politically reliable or morally reliable?

A. No, I would say morally reliable.

Q. Was that the occasion for discussing the moral reliability of Mr. Bridges?

A. We discussed the reliability of everyone, because in the political campaign that was going to be tough, we wanted to be sure everyone was on our side.

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. Again moral and not political?

A. No, political.

Q. With whom else did you discuss the moral reputation of Mr. [4619] Bridges?

A. In the store strike of 1937, when I was invited to participate in the organization of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists, Father Paul of St. Boniface Church was at that time interested in the store strike, and he was also interested in the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists, and at that time we discussed various people in the labor movement in connection with the strike and also in connection with the Association of Catholic Trade Unions, and I know at that time that Father Paul stated to me—we were talking about the honesty and integrity of labor men in the labor movement—and at that time he stated that he considered an honest trade unionist was Harry Bridges.

Q. Father Paul said he considered Bridges an honest—

A. An honest and sincere trade unionist, that is correct.

Q. Anybody else?

A. At this time that is the only names I can remember.

Q. You have been in San Francisco for 35 years? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have been active in the labor movement? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Talked to lots of people in San Francisco?

A. That is correct.

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

Q. Have you ever heard anyone say that Harry Bridges was a Communist?

A. Well, I would say that I couldn't name anyone who said it. [4620]

Q. Did you ever hear it said by anyone?

A. Well, I couldn't—I can't say that I heard it said by anyone. I have seen it in the papers but I haven't heard it said by anyone.

Q. In all the people you heard talk in the past 35 years that you have been here you never heard anyone say Harry Bridges was a Communist?

A. I might say this: I have talked to some people who said, "I think he was a Communist." Nobody said he was, but they said, "I think."

Q. Could you tell us who that person may have been?

A. Well, I can name a lot of people who say they think, but they don't come out and say he is. It was rather loose talk, if I might say that.

Q. Have you heard few or many people say that they thought Harry Bridges was a Communist?

A. Just a few. I wouldn't say very many.

Q. A few is a relative term. What is your best judgment?

A. About a half dozen at the most.

Q. In 35 years? A. That is about right.

Q. Mr. Gaynor, if you had been presented with evidence which established to your mind beyond a moral certainty that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, would you still say he was a truthful and honest man of integrity? [4621]

(Testimony of Augustin F. Gaynor.)

A. May I have that again?

Mr. Donohue: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. If—I would answer it this way, that to me his political philosophy, I don't think, would make me change my belief of his honesty, sincerity and desire to do the right thing on the job he has.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you so much. No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Gaynor, I take it that no one has ever presented you with such evidence showing that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party or ever had been? A. No, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

The Court: The witness is excused. Thank you.

HENRY SCHMIDT

recalled on behalf of the defendants; previously sworn.

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Henry Schmidt, heretofore sworn.

(The last several questions and answers of Mr. Schmidt were read by the Reporter.)

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, either before you went to the City Hall on the first occasion to indicate that you would be a witness for Harry Bridges and to qualify by reason of your [4622] own citizenship, either before then or before the second occasion, when you actually went to court, did you have any conversation, agreement or understanding with Harry Bridges by which you were to say any particular thing concerning him? A. No, sir.

Q. What memory, if at all, do you have concerning any interview which may have taken place between you and the naturalization examiner identified here as Mr. Lloyd Garner?

A. Well, Mr. Garner called attention to an interview which I think he said took place August of that particular year, and if that is the first interview, I have no remembrance of it at all—nothing—but I do remember, as I told you this morning, some of the proceedings that occurred in the second hearing.

Q. Do you have any recollection at all of any man connected with the Naturalization Service asking you in advance of the court hearing whether or not you were a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any recollection of any man connected with the Naturalization Service asking you in advance of the immigration or naturalization hearing whether or not Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I don't recall it.

Q. If such questions had been asked you, do you think they would now be recalled to your [4623] mind?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I have been trying to remember some of these things ever since I heard Mr. Garner testify and I just can't.

Q. Calling your attention to the testimony of Mr. Garner concerning the oral conversation that he says he had with you, there is one part in which he says, concerning you, Mr. Henry Schmidt, "I asked him if he had ever been arrested and he said no." Now, do you have any recollection of that conversation?

A. Yes, but it is my recollection that that took place at the meeting we had with him, if that was Mr. Garner, in September of that year.

Q. What would your answer have been to that question?

A. With regard to having been arrested?

Q. Yes.

A. I would have told him I had been arrested once.

Q. And you would not under any circumstances have answered no?

A. I could not have, for the simple reason that I have only been arrested once, and it just so happened that it happened on my birthday, and you just don't forget those things.

Q. Was that an arrest in connection with the movement which caused the longshore union to leave the A. F. of L. and go into the CIO?

A. Yes, there was a small group of longshoremen who saw fit not to go along with the change to CIO. They separated themselves from the ILWU.

They set up headquarters at 113 Stewart Street, which had been our headquarters years ago, and they proclaimed [4624] that that was headquarters of the the ILA and they became known as the Lost Battalion. They had us in court about every other day. One of their members came to the office of the ILWU and kicked up some sort of fuss, and a few minutes later he was fighting out in the street with another ILWU union member whose name was Axel Anderson. The name of the other man was Edward Aschstatter. I think it is spelled A-s-c-h-s-t-a-t-t-e-r. I noted the fight going on. I ran across the street and asked some fellows to help me separate these two men. I laid hands on them, so did others. We separated them and that was the end of it. And later that day I was arrested. That is to say, no policeman came after me. Somebody called me from the Hall of Justice, in a voice identifying himself as the Police Department, and said, "Schmidt,—" I think he said "Johnny Engels wants to see you."

Q. Who is he?

A. I don't know what his title was. He may have been a police captain at that time.

Q. Is he Captain Johnny Engels of the Police Department?

A. I think so. So after a while I walked up to the Hall of Justice and surrendered. I was fingerprinted and I was bailed out almost immediately.

Q. And, I take it, the case was dismissed and you never had to appear? [4625]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Never had to appear and heard no more.

Q. If Mr. Garner had asked you that specific question, would you have given him the specific answer that you have given us here?

A. I would have answered his question in the affirmative, and I would have given this explanation if he had asked for it.

Q. Do you have any personal memory of leaving the ILWU offices on the day that you went to court with Harry Bridges? Do you remember who was with you, of what persons the group was composed or what was done? [4626]

A. The group included some seven or eight people as we left our offices, and by the time we got to the courthouse the number increased. I think some people were waiting there. I am pretty sure that Robertson walked along, and there was Miss Theodora Kreps.

Q. She was along, too?

A. She was along. I think Mr. Bridges' daughter was along, and I was there. I don't know if my daughter was there or not; I think she may have been.

Mr. MacInnis: May I have the Government's Exhibit No. 3, please.

Q. You do remember appearing in court before His Honor Judge Foley, do you not?

A. I remember appearing in court, but I don't remember that it was Judge Foley.

Q. Now, does the transcript, whose contents referring to your answers to questions put to you by

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Garner, correctly reflect what you said at that time and what you really thought? I will read them to you:

> "Q. The witnesses are both citizens of the United States?
>
> "Mr. Schmidt: Yes.
> "Q. You each have known the petitioner for the last five years or longer?
>
> "Mr. Schmidt: Yes.
> "Q. And you know him to be a resident of this County at [4627] this time?
>
> "Mr. Schmidt: Yes.
> "Q. Do you each vouch for his loyalty to the United States?
>
> "Mr. Schmidt: Yes.
> "Q. Do you recommend him as a person of good moral character?
>
> "Mr. Schmidt: Yes.
> "Q. Do you recommend him to this Court for citizenship?
> "Mr. Schmidt: I do.
> "Mr. Garner: These witnesses are satisfactory, your Honor."

Do you remember whether or not this transcript correctly reflects what you said in court?

A. I am satisfied that it does.

Q. And when you made the answers ascribed to you in that transcript, tell the Court and jury whether or not you really believed that Harry Bridges was a fit and proper person to receive citizenship in this country.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I certainly did.

Q. When you said that you would vouch for him as a citizen of this country—as a prospective citizen—did you really believe when you said that that he was a proper person to be given citizenship?

A. I did, without hesitation,

Q. When you made those answers did you really believe that [4628] Bridges was in truth devoted to the principles of our Constitution?

A. I did, certainly.

Q. When you made all of those answers did you have any intention of concealing any secret knowledge on your own part concerning any supposed membership by Bridges in the Communist Party?

A. There was nothing to conceal as far as I was concerned.

Q. Well, Mr. Schmidt, in this case you are charged with entering into a fraudulent conspiracy to deceive our Government and to evade the laws of the United States. Will you tell us, please,, what were your bases for making those answers as you gave them, and what were your reasons?

A. Well, No. 1: My very long association through the years with Harry Bridges in our trade union activity, which came to mean that this man is engaged in the same sort of activity which $ happen to be engaged in, which has as its objective to improve the standard of living of the workers, and I didn't think that that was a bad thing; and, secondly, I had read the decision of the Supreme Court, and I thought, well, as long as the highest tribunal in the United States of America has made a decision with respect to this case, the matter is now settled for all time; and I had no hesitation to recommend this man for citizenship.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Well, did you rely, in making the answers that you gave, upon all the matters which you have just now mentioned? [4629]

A. Yes; on the fact that I had read the decision and also because of my association with the man through the years.

Q. In other words, you relied upon two things: Your own knowledge and association with Harry Bridges over the years, and, secondly, your own reading of the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in the matter involving Bridges, is that correct?

A. Yes, and I thought that that was sufficient.

Mr. MacInnis: We now offer into evidence, if the Court please, what I believe to be the defendants' exhibit possibly first in order. May I see it?

We offer into evidence the document now marked for identification as the Defendants' Exhibit B, being the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States of America made at the October term of 1944 and entitled, "Harry Bridges, Petitioner, v. I. F. Wixon, as District Director Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice."

Mr. Donohue: We are back where we began, if your Honor please. It was objected to and it was marked for identification. Of course, we object to it now. I am sorry that the rules of evidence don't permit it to be introduced into evidence, but under the rulings which your Honor made when these matters were argued at length in the pre-trial stages by the firm of Gladstein, Andersen, Resner & Sawyer, and by the rulings which your Honor has made some months ago when we first [4630] began these proceedings, this document is patently objectionable, and for that reason and the reasons stated, I object to it.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, the special prosecutor——

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, your Honor. The special prosecutor obviously feels that we are trying to inveigh the previous rulings of your Honor.

The Court: There is no occasion to explain it.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me, Judge.

The Court: I have sustained the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: I have all of the cases on this point, and the law is unanimous that where a defendant is accused of fraud, he may place before the court and jury all of the reasons for the activity in which he is alleged to have been engaged.

The Court: I anticipated that. The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, this matter, if I may say, with all respect to your Honor, is not one in which I wish to incur your disrespect by persisting, but it is important enough to ask that we be allowed a few minutes for the presentation of authorities, and I would like very much to do that: I am sure that you would be willing to listen. When we have that request granted, I am prepared to submit the authorities to your Honor at once. [4631]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Court: You can submit them in writing. Do you have them in writing?

Mr. MacInnis: I have them in writing, but I would like to argue it orally as well.

The Court: I can read them over the night period. I am satisfied that my ruling will be the same. I am more or less familiar——

Mr. MacInnis: I am satisfied that all the cases, including the cases of our Supreme Court and Circuit Court of appeals, hold that it would be prejudicial error to refuse to admit this document into evidence. That is what the cases hold.

The Court: I am willing to rest on my ruling.

Mr. MacInnis: Despite your assertion, is your Honor going to refuse to allow me to present the matter?

The Court: I am willing to hear argument. I am willing to take your memorandum. If you desire to argue the matter now orally, I would be happy to hear it.

Mr. MacInnis: That is what I would like to do.

The Court: All right. We will take the recess, ladies and gentlemen of the jury.

Mr. Hallinan: Might we have a moment, if your Honor please?

The Court: Yes.

The jurors may recess. I will hear oral argument.

Mr. MacInnis: I have one question first by way of [4632] foundation.

May I pass this to the witness?

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Schmidt, having in your hand Defendants' Exhibit No. B for identification, being the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, will you tell us whether or not that is the document you read when you made that reference in your testimony?

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: Merely to identify it, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: You mean that particular document which he has in his hand now, or——

Mr. MacInnis: Or a facsimile of it.

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor please.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I read this document or another document which contains the same information.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Did you read the entire opinion of the Supreme Court?

A. I read it again in its entirety a few weeks ago, and as I was reading it I recalled that I read it several years ago.

Q. Did you read the majority opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in that matter? [4633] A. Yes.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. He said he read it entirely; he read it all.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, your Honor, I have this thought: In reference to the argument which your Honor says we may have in the absence of the jury, we have a witness coming at three, and if we might proceed until three——

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: We could then put the witness on the stand, and then we could have the discussion of the legal authorities, if that would be acceptable to you.

The Court: That is agreeable.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Schmidt, did you ever at any time become possessed of the notion that you had done something wrong in aiding Harry Bridges to obtain citizenship in this country?

A. It never occurred to me and I never gave the matter any more thought until one day in Honolulu last year some of my fellow workers told me that the Marshal was looking for me.

Q. And what information was then brought to you?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. What difference does it make what information was brought to him?

Mr. MacInnis: He is accused of fraud, your Honor. All of the matters involving his intention—— [4634]

Mr. Donohue: This is long after the fraud was committed, if your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, that an absence of any guilty knowledge either before, during or after the event would be proper evidence.

The Court: You might answer.

A. You mean I should explain how it came about?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. His Honor says you may answer.

A. Well, I was in Honolulu at the time, and on this particular day I recall very clearly that I was visiting with the superintendent of the Queens Hospital in Honolulu. There was a longshore strike on and there were articles appearing in the paper that there was a great shortage of medicinal supplies in that hospital. I went there to ask the superintendent if the reports were true and he indicated that there was a shortage, and I told him I would see what could be done to discharge medicinal supplies out of one of the strikebound vessels. And as I left the hospital a longshoreman came along in an automobile and he said, "You better come to the office, because there is a rumor around that you are to be arrested."

So I returned to our headquarters and called on our ILWU attorneys there, and then I heard about the indictment. I telephoned——

Q. What were you doing in Hawaii at that time?

A. I was there for about six months, beginning with May 2 or 3, [4635] and I was—I was attempting to give the strike committee ~~and the~~ membership of that union there a hand with the strike.

Q. At the time you were indicted you were engaged in the prosecution of the Hawaiian strike, is that correct?

A. That is right. I acted as advisor to the membership there and the strike committee.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Schmidt, following your own activities through the years, following those concerning which you have spoken, was there a time in the recent war at which you left the employ of the union and took up some other occupation?

A. Well, it didn't amount to my leaving the employ of the union, although that may be almost a correct statement. I began to work for the Pacific Coast Maritime Industrial Board, which was an agency established by Admiral Emory Land, who was the administrator of the War Shipping Administration. I received a telegram from that gentleman advising me—asking me if I would act, in the beginning, as an alternate member representing the union on that maritime board. I answered his wire in the affirmative. And then some time later I was appointed as a permanent member, due to the fact that another man by the name of James Corley had resigned as a permanent member; me being the alternate, I followed in his footsteps.

Q. What was the nature of your work with that board?

A. First I would have to explain what the job of the board was. [4636]

Q. Yes.

A. The board was an adjunct to the War Shipping Administration, and the order that created the board said in so many words that it should be the job of the board to attempt to expedite the movement of cargoes through the Pacific Coast ports, in the furtherance of the war effort. And in connection with that we tried to do the best we could under the circumstances.

Q. For what period of time did you serve as a member of the Pacific Coast Maritime Board?

A. I can't recall the year, but it was shortly after the war started that the assignment came down, and I served until the war ended,—several years.

Q. Do you have any recollection as to the date on which your appointment terminated?

A. Well, I think it was after V-E Day.

Q. I will show you, if I may, to refresh your memory, a copy of a letter signed by yourself addressed to Admiral Emory S. Land, and ask you if this refreshes your memory as to the circumstance of your leaving that board.

A. Yes, sir. This is a copy of a letter that I wrote to Admiral Land on advice of the chairman of the board, and that was Mr. Paul Eliel. He said to the members of the board that inasmuch as the war had ended, the board would wind up its affairs and the members thereof would be required to resign. And this is the letter that I then wrote to

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Admiral Land, and [4637] it is dated December 11, 1945.

Q. Is that a true office copy of the letter you sent to Admiral Land?

A. It appears to be such.

Q. And do you remember whether or not the original was actually mailed to Admiral Land?

A. Oh, yes.

Mr. MacInnis: We offer the letter into evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: I object to it, if your Honor please, except for the purpose of showing the day on which he left the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board; otherwise it is just self-serving, self-praise.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: I think, your Honor, that the unfortunate comment of the special prosecutor should be stricken from the record. It isn't a letter of self-praise at all; it is just a letter of resignation. If the contents are not to be before the jury, your Honor should instruct the jury to disregard the remark of the special prosecutor.

Mr. Donohue: I withdraw my objection to its introduction.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. He withdrew the objection.

The Court: The objection is withdrawn; it may be received.

(The letter was marked Defendants' Exhibit V-2 in evidence.) [4638]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Who is the man named Paul Eliel whom you mentioned a moment ago?

A. Mr. Eliel is a professor. I don't know just what his particular branch is. I recall he had connections with the Stanford University. He presently has offices down in the financial district, and, as I stated a while ago, he was the chairman of this five-man board, and he represented the Government. Mr. Cole Jackman and I represented the ILWU; Mr. Frank Foisie and Mr. Frank Gregory represented the Waterfront Employers of the Pacific Coast; and the job of the board was, as I stated a while ago, to expedite cargo movements specifically in the longshore branch, and that we attempted to do. And we were constantly traveling up and down the coast, had conferences with the several employers' associations in the coast ports and also contacted the unions in connection with this job, and I recall among other things that on one occasion we had a rather lengthy conference with the Russian Purchasing Commission in Portland, Oregon, and among those present I believe was an admiral of the Red fleet. I don't know whether that was a Communist meeting or not. I am satisfied that the admiral was a member of the Russian Communist Party. The reason that the Soviet Purchasing Commission was located in that port, I suppose, was because of the cargo movements that had to do with the transport of goods to the Pacific Coast ports of Russia which were handled through the Port of Portland. [4639]

Q. Was the man named Paul Eliel whom you mentioned the man who recommended you to Admiral Land for service upon the Pacific Coast Maritime Board?

A. I think both he and Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon did that.

Q. What was the approximate date when you went into service with the Pacific Coast Maritime Board?

A. Well, I think it was shortly after we entered the war. I recall that I was working on the waterfront and Cole Jackman coming down to the ship to contact me. We were working on a Dutch vessel and we were discharging bales of rubber. And as to the date, I can't name it; I think it was early in the year, February or March, it seems to me.

Q. Early in 1942? A. That could be it.

Q. Well, now, was there any occasion in the year 1942 in the month of August when it became necessary for Paul Eliel to write a letter referring to you and addressed to the United State Immigration and Naturalization Service at Washington?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if your Honor please. I don't know this man, but if he is going to testify by a letter, I object to it. If they want to bring this man in here and give us a chance to cross-examine him, I have no objection.

The Court: May I see the letter? [4640]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, your Honor. I might say that this letter, since it was received by the Naturalization and Immigration Service, might well be admitted into evidence as an admission against the Government in this case.

Mr. Donohue: In the light of that statement, if your Honor please, I withdraw my objection and ask him to read the letter to the jury.

The Court: Are you going to produce Mr. Eliel in court?

Mr. MacInnis: I hadn't thought of doing so.

Mr. Donohue: That is the usual way, if you want to introduce character witnesses, to produce a man and let us cross-examine him.

Mr. MacInnis: The special prosecutor has withdrawn his objection, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: I might just as well, because you are going to tell the jury what is in the letter. You might as well read it all in.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. This letter, with the kind permission of the special prosecutor, reads as follows:

Heading: "United States War Shipping Administration. Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board. 200 Bush Street, San Francisco, California, August 26, 1942.

"United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, Washington, D. C.

"Gentlemen:

"Please be advised that I have known Henry Schmidt for [4641] a number of years, and that during the last six months I have been in peculiarly close contact with him as chairman of this board of which Mr. Schmidt is a member.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.

"I can say without the slightest reservation that I have the highest respect for his integrity and ability, and have no reservation whatever as to his complete and unfaltering loyalty to the Government of the United States.

"Very truly yours,
"PAUL ELIEL,
"Chairman, Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board."

Q. Now, Mr. Schmidt, the man named Paul Eliel was a man who had some connection with the strike of 1934, was he not?

A. Yes, he was employed by the Industrial Association of San Francisco, but I can't recall in what capacity.

Q. What was the Industrial Association of San Francisco?

A. It was an organization of employers.

Q. So that the man who wrote the letter which I have just now read was a man who was a member of the employers' group in the 1934 strike?

A. That's right.

Mr. MacInnis: May we substitute a photostat for the original, your Honor, and offer it into evidence?

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: Marked Defendants' W-2.

(Copy of letter was marked Defendants' Exhibit W-2 in [4642] evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Schmidt, sometime after you left the Pacific Coast Martime Board, the war having been over as a practical matter, did you make any application for any post with any phase of the United Nations?

A. Yes. Shortly thereafter or about that time.

The Court: Could we interrupt the examination at this time? Is the witness available that you spoke of?

Mr. MacInnis: May I call him? Is Robert Kenny available?

The Court: Mr. Schmidt, do you mind stepping down?

The Witness: No.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you, Judge.

The Court: Then we will have the recess period immediately after this witness, or perhaps I think the jury would like to recess at this time.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions or form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Recess.) [4643]

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, the other witness will not be available until 10:00 in the morning, so I will finish with Mr. Schmidt.

Q. I think I was asking you this, Mr. Schmidt,

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.

when a recess was suggested: After you resigned from the Pacific Coast Maritime Board, did you make any application for any position or post with the United Nations Relief?

A. Yes, I attempted to secure employment with UNRRA; United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is the full and complete title.

Q. Did you actually receive your appointment with that body?

A. Well, after some negotiations, as I recall it, I called at two places, first at an office on the lower end of Sutter Street, and then later on I had a conference with a Dr. Friedlander in Berkeley, following that I was required to take a physical examination in the Government Building on Sansome Street. I passed that examination, and then some time thereafter I received—I think following that I filled out an application blank, and then some time thereafter I received a telegram from the UNRRA office in Washington advising me to report to their Washington office in 24 to 36 hours.

Q. Did you actually accept the post with that body?

A. No, I discussed the situation with Bridges and we talked about the job that I would probably get which had to do with the displaced persons in Europe. To make a long story short, he [4644] talked me out of it. He pointed out that I was holding an elective job with the union, that my term had not expired, and that I ought to stay with the union, and that I could do fairly good work here.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.

Q. And so he persuaded you to stay in San Francisco? A. That is right.

Q. What post or office, if any, do you hold now with the ILWU?

A. My title is international representative.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, what was the nature and extent of your formal education?

A. Well, Mr. MacInnis, it amounts to practically nothing. As I testified earlier, my father brought me to this country when I was a little older than 11, and I went to school in Germany for a little while. I went to school in The Netherlands for a little while. And that is all the schooling I have had.

Q. You never returned to school after you came to this continent?

A. After we arrived in Canada, I secured a job on a farm. The Canadian Immigration Service also operated an employment service for immigrants to be placed on farms, and on my twelfth birthday I arrived on a farm in Canada.

Q. Isn't it a fact, then, that you have been working ever since you were twelve years of age?

A. Yes, sir, I have worked with my hands for over a quarter of a century. [4645]

Q. And you did not continue any formal education after 1917 when you came here to San Francisco?

A. I have never seen the inside of a school building, either here or in Canada.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all. Your Honor, in view of the matter which Your Honor has consented to hear, I would suggest that we take the adjournment so far as the members of the jury are concerned now.

The Court: Have you finished with the witness?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: Mr. Donohue may take up the examination in the morning of this witness.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And then you will have a character witness in the morning, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the afternoon adjournment. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions or to form or express an opinion on the matter until it is submitted to you. You may now retire.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the courtroom and the following proceedings were had in the absence of the jury:)

Mr. MacInnis: Now, your Honor——

The Court: One moment, Mr. MacInnis. To the end that you [4646] may not think that my view on the matter was one born immediately upon your assertion to me of the principle you now espouse, I desire to tell you that in your instructions I read the Hyde case, the Miller case and the several other cases upon which you relied. It was for that reason I told you then and now reassert, I cannot see the theory upon which the Supreme Court decision would be admissible as forming a basis in connection with any matters, extraneous or otherwise, that these gentlemen may have relied upon.

Now, the Hyde case was a matter involving banking, president, vice president; the Miller case, and so forth, all upon conversations had with other people and circumstances upon which reliance might be placed. So we may start with that general understanding.

Mr. MacInnis: I would like to make this presentation, Judge, as frankly and as fully as possible.

The Court: I give you that merely so that you have a starting point.

Mr. Hallinan: I wonder if it would be all right if I left at this moment.

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. Donohue: I wonder if Mr. MacInnis has prepared a written memorandum, and if he has, if we might have a copy of it.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, I have a copy to give the prosecutor. As I say, I would not want your Honor to have the impression in [4647] advance that we are merely trying to evade some ruling previously made, although that may appear to be the case. It is not a matter that if one route does not succeed, try something else, because this route for the introduction into evidence of the Supreme Court report has been in our minds since the start of the case and has always existed, without dispute so far as I was concerned, upon the introduction of evidence.

Now, here is a situation that I fear has fallen upon us without any reflection on any person, and I can give your Honor one or two illustrations.

It is fundamental, and we would all agree, that a matter may be inadmissible in evidence totally from one perspective and yet it may be admissible from another, and the Court on many occasions has taken that position in this case. Matters were mentioned at the start of the case, and they appeared at the outset to be wholly extraneous, and indeed, since your Honor naturally had not studied all the ramifications of evidence which he had not yet seen, it would have been hard to see how your Honor could have, without complete disclosure, perceived the relevancy of certain things. Now, I have in mind this: At the start of the case, there was some mention made about the 1934 strike and its having to do with the matters of evidence in this case. Your Honor used these words, and I think very properly. Your Honor said:

> "I do not want to be prophetic, but at this time I want you [4648] gentlemen on both sides to understand that we are not trying a labor dispute here. We have certain issues in the case and I think we should follow those issues."

Now, obviously, your Honor could not have seen at that time the relevancy of the 1934 strike. That was during an opening statement being made by Mr. Hallinan. But then, with the first major prosecution witness, a man named John Schomaker and the man who followed him, Mr. Henry Schrimpt, it at once became apparent that there could be no discussion of many matters in connection with the charges involved, against defendant Bridges particularly, without some intrusions into the matter of the strike. Then there were many other matters that came up that were, and I think very properly at first the Court said, "I can not see how that matter is relevant to this case."

For instance, there was a charge of wire-tapping made in one of the opening statements and your Honor said, "I am trusting that no evidence in this case will be introduced based upon wire-tapping and hence I am going to instruct the jury to disregard that mention. It is not relevant to this case."

Then we proceeded a little further into the evidence and it developed out of the testimony of one witness that a detailed speech by Harry Bridges upon the issue of wire-tapping very properly came into evidence. Now, of course, your Honor could not have perceived that matter at the outset, and none of the counsel were prepared in their grasp of the case to disclose the [4649] route by which that particular matter might come into the record. Similarly, before the witness Schomaker left the stand there was developed out of the lips of that witness the story of some other wire-tapping up in Portland. So there are many instances which I suppose your Honor encounters in any bitterly contested trial where certain items of evidence coming before you unadorned, without any explanation, may seem to you as foreign to the particular case as any subject matter can be.

So it was with the matter at hand. Now, the matter at hand has become something that has evoked, to say the least, many discussions. I remember in the selection of the trial jury I mentioned the Supreme Court decision in this matter for the first time, and there was an objection, and everyone took the position that the Supreme Court decision was not a matter which could properly find its way into this case. There were some attempts made, first upon the cross-examination of the witness Garner, a route which we believed proper to a certain extent at the time, to bring the matter into the record, since the witness had evinced a certain familiarity with portions of the decision. Your Honor in his discretion ruled we could not cross-examine the witness on that point, and with that ruling we are not making any quarrel. But all the time, underlying every mention of the Supreme Court report, always there was the purpose that we now have in mind:

The two defendants, Schmidt and Robertson, who are charged [4650] with fraud, obviously had some time to take the stand and testify what they did, what they believed, what the truth was, what their opinions were, and what, if anything, underlay everything they said in this case. So, as I say, we always believed there was a legitimate and a proper route by which the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States might come before the Court and jury.

Now; this afternoon when I made the last offer of this same document into evidence, the special prosecutor made what was to me an interesting remark. He said: "I only wish that the law permitted such evidence to be introduced in this case." Well, of course, if he really felt that way the cases which your Honor has already reviewed would confer upon you at least a discretion. Your Honor apparently is of the opinion that those decisions are not mandatory upon you in this kind of endeavor, but the special prosecutor in this case takes the position in this case that he wishes that there was some state of the law by which this decision could come before the Court and jury.

Again, I think almost insensibly, almost all of us have allowed our minds to be surrounded by certain taboos in the matter of this Supreme Court decision. There were unfortunate incidents in this trial that I can recall very vividly, and those unfortunate incidents have left their marks upon the thinking of all of us. They have upon me. I think they have [4651] probably upon your Honor, and they may well have upon the prosecutor. So vivid was the original impression in this case that the defense was trying to bootleg into evidence some improper and extraneous matter, that I fear that it is difficult to abstract that original impression from the offer of evidence which we now make, and there are other matters which surround the whole undertaking. In this case the prosecutors, of course, so appointed by our Government—and we have the very strange situation of the Government of the United States, represented by these special prosecutors, zealously striving from the outset of this matter to keep out of evidence and away from the ears of the jury the recitals of our last court of resort. I am not speaking on this occasion from the perspective of the other matters which have been argued. Mr. Donohue said to you all of these things had been argued out before. I say to you that they have not. I say to you that there is not a line in the record, there is not a hint or a suggestion upon any of the other mentionings of this subject matter which has to do with the purpose of this offer. The original argument had before your Honor was on the matter of double jeopardy. Your Honor very properly ruled against that particular defense. I do not think it has anything to do with the particular case. The matter came up in a different shade of perspective upon the argument on the doctrine of res ajudicata. That, we thought, did have a relevancy from the phase of law alone, unconnected with the facts of the [4652] case, but now we come before you with this proposition.

The Court: Mr. Cleary argued that.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, your Honor. We come before you now. Forget everything that was offered before. Forget that we had some words over the intrusion of this document into evidence. Forget that possibly at one or two times an improper effort was made to exploit the contents of the document in this case, and we come to this: The defense is now being presented. Mr. Robertson and Mr. Schmidt are charged in an indictment in rather mysterious language saying in effect that at times and places to the grand jurors unknown and with persons to the grand jurors unknown, they entered into a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Now, that being the case, in everything that they offered you here by way of their own activities, their good faith is in issue, the motives which they may have possessed are in issue in the case, and I say this: Considering the document, which is a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, it is our law and I have in this case, and we come to this: The defense is now not found any case to the contrary, that where defendants are charged with fraud, and particularly with a fraudulent conspiracy, anything upon which they may rely which would show their good faith ought to come before the Court and jury, and that would be true regardless of whether we had here a document of such dignity as the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Under our law it would not matter if the document upon [4653] which they pretended to rely was a frivolous one or whether or not it contained true statements, because the issue would be that they have a reasonable reliance. Were there such things in that document upon which they might have reached a conclusion that they espoused?

Now, I will very briefly speak to you about a decision which I think I did not cite in the [4653-A] instructions.

This case is one which I think will be of interest to your Honor. It goes a little further upon the same facet or legal theory discussed in the other cases, and it is this: The 1916 decision of Buchanan v. United States as found in Volume 233 Fed. Rep. at page 257. In that case the defendants had been convicted of conspiring to injure or oppress or intimidate the citizens in the free exercise of any right or privilege secured by the laws of the United States, a rather all-embracive kind of statute under which they were charged. The conviction was reversed by our own Circuit Court of Appeals under the facts of the case.

The defendant Buchanan and people claiming title under him had gone upon the land held by a man named Scott and his wife. They entered this land by virtue of an unperfected homestead entry, and when they went in they tore down buildings and improvements and used the land as they wished. When the case came before the trial court certain matters were offered in evidence by the defendants which I will discuss in a moment, and they were excluded. On appeal, the court said this, in effect: that the question involved was, first, whether the intent to interfere with the exercise of the Scotts, husband and wife, of their homestead rights, was a malicious one, or whether the other people under Buchanan believed in good faith that Buchanan was indeed entitled to remove these improvements, and the court said this: [4654]

> "If the belief was entertained in good faith and the intent of Buchanan's helpers was to aid him in the assertion of his supposed title, they did not violate the act of Congress."

In other words, whether they were right or wrong, whether Buchanan in this case had any real title, if these people charged with him entertained and in good faith believed that he owned the land, then they could not be guilty of conspiracy to evade or violate the laws of the United States. So the court went further.

> "Whenever the belief of any person or the motive or intent of his act or conduct is material, he may testify directly what it was." Citing Wigmore on Evidence, Section 581. The case says, "He may also give the grounds of his belief or his motive or intent, including statements of third persons to him."

The trial court had refused to allow the statements of third persons made to the defendants in the case upon the ground that they were hearsay statements, they did not prove anything, they were not binding upon anybody. But the appellate court said this:

> "In the case at bar statements of third persons to the accused which were excluded were not offered as evidence of their truth, but as tending to show the state of mind they produced, and, therefore, they were not within the [4655] rule against hearsay evidence. It was immaterial whether the statements were true or false; the fact that they were made was material."

Now, obviously there would be no difference between an oral statement and a written document, although I will come to that matter with another decision in a moment. In this case it wouldn't matter whether the decision of the Supreme Court was binding upon you in your present endeavors or not. Your Honor has ruled that the decision of the Supreme Court is not binding in our present trial, and we have proceeded along that line. But it wouldn't matter if the decision of the Supreme Court contained facts which were untrue, because if the statements were made, why, the issue should be properly be put before the jury: What were the statements upon which these men relied? Was that a reasonable reliance? Because it would all go to proof of absence of any criminal intent.

Now, as to the matter of written documents as distinguished from the statements of third persons, I would cite to your Honor the decision of Harrison against the United States. That case came out of the Sixth Circuit, and it is found at 200 Fed. Reports at page 662. The defendants in that case were convicted of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, another kind of charge very similar to the charge brought against the defendants Robertson and Schmidt. The decision was reversed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. [4656]

In the case of the alleged fraudulent matter which they sent through the mails consisted of advertising circulars for an Easy Washer. I imagine that that was one of those inventions and washing machines that preceded the implements we have in homes today. So in any event, these men sent materials through the mail telling what this Easy Washer would do, and it developed that their statements were untrue; that the washer wouldn't do those things at all. Apparently people bought the machines, lost money, and so there was a prosecution and a conviction.

In reversing the conviction, the Circuit Court of Appeals said this:

> "If the highly laudatory statements in the advertising as to the capacity, performance and merits of the washer were made in the belief that they were true, that belief would be a complete defense however inaccurate the statements might turn out to be." [4657]

Now, if we stop there just a moment, if Henry Schmidt and Bob Robertson relied upon their own good intentions and made statements about Harry Bridges, it wouldn't matter at all what the ultimate fact would be in the case. In other words, this is a separate and distinct defense which those two defendants possess in this case. And the Court said this, to continue:

> "To support the claim that he believed what he said, his counsel offered to show that certain testimonial or commendatory letters received in the regular course of business had been shown to him and that those letters contained statements that machine did everything claimed for it."

In other words, this man who was charged with using the mails to defraud by developing or sending out information on this washing machine, had in his possession testimonial letters from other people, and he offered those in evidence as showing his own good faith. The trial court ruled that he couldn't produce or introduce those letters unless he put in all the letters that he received from all sources. So the appellate court said this:

> "This ruling rests on a misapprehension of the ground on which the letters were receivable. If they were in fact laid before respondent as genuine letters and if he believed them so to be and in that belief acted on them, these things bore on his intent; it was not necessary, first, to show that they were signed by the writers or mailed by the writers or that their recitations of fact were true. The [4658] primary question was whether or not Harrison saw those letters and believed them to be genuine correspondence and on them based his statements."

Now, similarly, where we offer on behalf of the defendant Henry Schmidt at this time the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States of America which he read and which he says formed part of his thinking in regard to Harry Bridges, he is entitled, not only to show his good faith, but he is entitled to have the benefit of any persuasive language contained in this decision. And upon that score I have another decision of which I will speak in a few moments to your Honor.

I think that the defendants Robertson and Schmidt would obviously, in the ordinary course of life, have had their thinking tempered by this document, since we all know it existed. Now, for example, if somebody says to me, "Is Judge Harris a member of the Communist Party?" Well, I don't know if you are or not. I don't think you are. I say, "I don't think he is; I don't have any proof."

If somebody asks you about me, I would trust that your statement would be somewhat the same. And so it is with everybody concerning everybody else in the ordinary walks of our lives. But not so concerning Harry Bridges, because if you were around, as these men were, and questioned in 1935 right after this decision was uttered by the Supreme Court and you were asked, "Do you know whether Harry Bridges is a member of the [4659] Communist Party" first you would have the background of your own acquaintance with the man and your own thinking, but also there would come into your mind:

"Why, I just read the other day the decision of the highest court in our land, and it says in effect the way I interpret it anyway, that he is not and never has been a Communist. The decision says he has never even been affiliated with the Communist Party in the legal meaning of that phrase."

Then you would say, based on those things, "I can tell you that I believe he is not a member of the Communist Party." And in that respect Harry Bridges would be in a singular position, abstracted from the position of any person you might conjure up as an example.

The other cases seem to follow the same kind of reasoning. In 1917, the decision of Sparks against the United States, which also came out of the Sixth Circuit, being reported in 241 U. S. 777, the case involved six persons who again were charged with conspiracy to use the mails to defraud. All of the convictions in that case were reversed because of the exclusion by the trial court of evidence showing innocent intent. The defendants in that case were officers of a bank which became insolvent. The alleged false matter sent through the mails consisted of semi-anual bank statements.

The Court: You have the memorandum for the Court. I shall read it over during the night period and save you reading it now. [4660]

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: As it is running late. It is now after 4:00. I will read it over during the evening period and save you reading it now.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. May I say one more thing, Judge?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: I just wanted to say this: I don't know if I can find the right words to approach you, but in considering this matter which is of great importance to us, forget about the disputes which arose in connection with this subject matter before. Now, forget, and I am sure you can, about matters and routes which you thought at the time to be improper. Whether we agree with you upon that way of thinking would not be important at all, but in looking at this don't consider it as just one more attempt to get something inflammatory into evidence, because while realistically we know the immense value of the persuasive language of our Supreme Court, we also know that in this particular attempt to introduce the document into evidence, we have nothing but a line of decisions which tell us that we can do so; and if your Honor feels that he is vested with any discretion in this matter, why, I think that that discretion should be resolved in favor of the defense.

We have had all kinds of instances in this case where opinion evidence has come into the record over the objection of one side or another. I am not saying this at the time in a complaining [4661] tone, but your Honor has resolved his discretion on several occasions to allow witnesses against these defendants to state their opinions. Now, you have a matter again offered to your discretion. The defendants testify that they had a certain belief; that they relied upon their own associations with Harry Bridges and their own knowledge of his life, and also that that reliance was culminated and supplemented by a further reliance upon a decision of our Supreme Court.

According to all the case law that I have been able to find, they are entitled not only to state their reasons, but they are entitled to have the persausiveness of such reasons, hearsay though they may be, presented to the jury. And I feel, and I do feel confident that if you will consider this problem abstracted from any bitternesses which have passed between us in the course of this trial—and I mean bitternesses in connection with any attempts to intrude matters into evidence—that you will resolve your discretion in favor of the defense.

The Court: Your observations in that connection are not entirely relevant to the discussion on the law. And I might say parenthetically, without any intention of intruding myself, that all matters of legal suasion have received dispassitonate, careful consideration. When I ruled on the matter of res judicata, I handed down a memorandum written opinion. You have considered that, have you, in the light of this discussion?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. [4662]

The Court: Mr. Donohue, have you anything to say?

Mr. Donohue: I, of course, if your Honor pleases, listened with interest to what Mr. MacInnis had to say. If there was anything to what he says from the point of view of law—which there isn't—he says this: At the outset, your Honor ruled certain matters not properly admissible and therefore should not be put before the jury. And then he recited three instances in which those very matters were in some measure brought to the attention of the jury by witnesses who were called for the United States, without telling your Honor, because he did not have to, because your Honor knows that all of those matters that were elicited in any measure or to any degree before the jury were elicited by the cross-examination of Mr. Hallinan or Mr. MacInnis. Now that is the question of fact. [4663]

Tuesday, January 31, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: The case of the United States of America vs. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

The Court: Do you have a witness to call?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, your Honor. May we call Robert Kenny?

ROBERT W. KENNY

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury, please?

A. Robert W. Kenny, K-e-n-n-y.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Kenny?

A. Lawyer.

Q. What is your residence address?

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

A. 415 North Rossmoor, Los Angeles.

Q. What is your business address?

A. 215 North Hope, Los Angeles.

Q. For how many years have you been a member of the bar? A. Since 1926.

Q. Additional to your practice in the profession of law, are you on the board of directors of any bank? A. Yes, I am. [4668]

Q. What bank is that?

A. The Citizens Bank in Los Angeles.

Q. And have you in the past held directorships in various corporations in Southern California?

A. Yes, on a brewery and in an oil company.

Q. Have you in years past held public office in the State of California? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Have you been a judge of the Superior Court of the State of California? A. Yes.

Q. During what years did you hold that office?

A. Between 1932 and 1939.

Q. After you left your post as superior judge, did you hold any other office in the State of California?

A. Yes, I was State Senator for four years after that.

Q. And after that, what public office did you hold?

A. And then I was Attorney General from 1943 to 1947.

Q. Your office as Attorney General was in the years 1943 to 1947, is that correct?

A. Correct.

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

Q. Now, do you know a man named Harry Bridges? A. Yes, I do.

Q. How long has your acquaintanceship with him extended?

A. From, I would say, around 1937 or '38 to the present time. [4669]

Q. And has your acquaintanceship with him been continuous from that date up to the present time? A. Yes.

Q. In addition to your own acquaintanceship with Harry Bridges, have you had occasion to hear his name discussed by other persons in this community or in the State of California?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now, from your own knowledge of the man and from such conversations of other persons which may have reached your ears, are you in a position to know what his reputation is at this time for truth, honesty and integrity? A. I believe I am.

Q. What is that reputation? A. Good.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. How often have you seen Mr. Bridges in the past five years?

A. Oh, twenty times, I would say.

Q. And who are some of the persons who have discussed with you Mr. Bridges' reputation for truth, honesty and integrity?

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

A. If I may answer it this way: I have been in discussions with persons in which Mr. Bridges' honesty and integrity was discussed. I don't know whether I did the talking or whether they did the talking, but it was a subject of discussion. [4670]

Q. Such persons as——

A. Well, Mr. Justice Rutledge of the United States Supreme Court.

Q. Now deceased?

A. Now deceased. Governor Olson of California; John Gunther, the writer; the various members of the State Senate when I was there; newspaper men and writers who came to California to write of our scene here in California.

Q. Are you, Mr. Kenny, expressing what other persons have said concerning the reputation of Mr. Bridges for truth, veracity and integrity, or are you giving us your personal opinion?

A. Expressing the sense of discussions that I had with other people on that particular trait.

Q. Mr. Kenny, were you correctly quoted in the People's World in the issue of Thursday, December 7, 1939, quote:

> "State Senator Robert W. Kenny said he was acting in the defense of thoroughgoing Americanism by associating himself with the counsel of William Schneidermann, state secretary of the Communist Party."

A. Yes; that counsel was Wendell Willkie, if you remember.

Q. You were associated with Mr. Willkie?

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

A. I was associated with Mr. Willkie and we won the lawsuit.

Q. As counsel for Mr. Schneidermann, you did not appear in the Supreme Court?

A. I admit I lost in the lower court and Mr. Willkie won in [4671] the Supreme Court.

Q. Are you correctly quoted in the San Francisco Chronicle of Monday, September 23, 1940, stating as follows:

> "Senator Robert W. Kenny, Los Angeles Democrat, waged a lone fight against the legislation to purge the Communist Party in California although he said he opposed any group seeking to overthrow the Government."

A. That is correct. I was—I opposed the bill on the grounds that it was unconstitutional and a year later the Supreme Court of this State unanimously agreed with me and held the bill unconstitutional.

Q. Mr. Kenny, were you a sponsor of the California Labor School and so listed in 1946 and 1947?

A. Well, Mrs. Kenny was—I know Mrs. Kenny made some donations to the California Labor School, and I might have been a sponsor. I rather think if she made the contributions I was the sponsor. [4672]

Q. You knew that the California Labor School was on the list of subversive organizations as listed by the Attorney General of the United States on the revised list of May 1st, 1949?

A. I don't know that. You mean—when I was Attorney General?

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

Q. Well, were you Attorney General in 1946 and '47? A. Yes, I was Attorney General.

Q. And were you one of the sponsors of the California Labor School at that time?

A. I was, yes.

Q. And were you one of the sponsors of the organization called American Youth for Democracy?

A. I don't know whether I was a sponsor. I have attended various things that were for youth groups and for democracy. I don't recall if I was a sponsor.

Q. Are you familiar with the fact that the American Youth for Democracy is also on the list of subversive organizations as prepared by the Attorney General of the United States?

A. No, I am not.

Q. Mr. Kenny, were you in 1945 a sponsor for the American Committee for Spanish Freedom, headed by Leo Gallagher as chairman?

A. Well, I don't know about who headed it or whether I was in that group, but I have been a supporter of Spanish freedom in one form or another for ever since 1937 and '38, around in there, at the time of the Civil War there.

Q. And did you know that the American Committee for Spanish [4673] Freedom was also on the list of subversive organizations as listed by the United States Attorney General?

A. No, I don't know anything about that list. Is that some court proceeding or something, Mr. Prosecutor?

Q. No, the list of the Attorney General of subversive organizations is the list which is prepared by him pursuant to provision of Part 3, Section 3 of the Executive Order of the President of the United States, No. 9835, which provides that the Department of Justice shall furnish the name of each foreign or domestic organization, association, movement or combination of persons which that Attorney General, after appropriate investigation and determination, designates as totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive, or as having adopted a policy of advocating or approving the commission of acts of force or violence, to deny others their rights under the Constitution of the United States or as seeking to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means.

Mr. Kenny, were you affiliated with or a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy?

A. I don't remember such, but I certainly am for peace and democracy. I don't know the league as such.

Q. I can identify the American League for Peace and Democracy as the successor to the American League against War and Fascism, and also the predecessor of the American Peace Mobilization. Does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not you [4674] belonged to that organization?

A. No, I think I was an active member of a group known as the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League, and as I recall it, the American League for Peace and Democracy was a national outgrowth of this Hollywood group.

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

Q. Were you, Mr. Kenny, listed as a sponsor for a dinner given by the Youth for Democracy, which is the successor to the Young Communists League, at Los Angeles on December 16, 1945, on the occasion of the second anniversary of that organization?

A. Yes, I remember that dinner. I was there with General Evans Carlsen of the Marine Corps.

Q. Now deceased?

A. Now deceased. And Frank Sinatra, now alive.

Q. Mr. Kenny, you appeared as counsel for the ten Hollywood writers who refused to disclose to a Congressional Committee whether or not they were members of the Communist Party?

A. Well, I can't adopt your characterization of that. I did appear for ten Hollywood writers. In fact, I have been attorney for the Screen Writers Guild. I appeared for ten writers who were not given an opportunity by a committee, which I maintain and which the Supreme Court has yet to pass on, were acting unconstitutionally.

Q. They were indicted for their failure to give testimony?

A. Yes, they were indicted, but eight of them have never been convicted and two were, and their cases are now before the United [4675] States Supreme Court.

Q. And the two convicted were the only two tried?

A. And in a federal Court, one of those writers

I obtained a verdict from a jury of $150,000 for damages.

Q. Has that been appealed, Mr. Kenny?

A. That is on appeal, too.

Q. And that hasn't been decided yet either?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Kenny, are you now appearing in this court as counsel for the attorney in fact of the manager of the now People's Republic of China, which controls the Bank of China in Pekin?

A. That's right, for Frederick Field, who—I am appearing—two factions of the Bank of China, and I am appearing for those who claim to be the depositors under the new faction.

Q. In other words, under the new Communistically controlled Bank of China, you appear as counsel for the designated attorney in fact for the manager?

A. Well, it is government controlled, two-thirds. 600,000 shares outstanding of fact, 400,000 are government held and 200,000 belong to private parties.

Q. And you are personal counsel for Mr. Hallinan in a proceeding now pending in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals? A. That's correct.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, your Honor. [4676]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is that proceeding, Mr. Kenny, in which you appear as counsel for Mr. Hallinan?

A. That is an appeal from a judgment of contempt.

Q. Had in this court?

A. Had in this court here, yes.

Q. And rendered in the present trial in which we are now engaged? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Kenny, in view of the multitude of questions put to you by the special prosecutor, let me ask you this: Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I have never been a member of the Communist Party. I have been accused of being a Republican on occasions. I am a Democrat.

Q. Well, now, in respect of these organizations to which reference was made by the special prosecutor who told you that the organizations were on the so-called subversive list of the Attorney General, did you know, Mr. Kenny, that practically every charitable or humanitarian organization, outside of the Community Chest and the March of Dimes, has been named at one time or another by the subversive activities list of the Attorney General?

Mr. Donohue: I not only object to the question, if your Honor please, but I object seriously on behalf of the Attorney General of the United States as to the imputation contained in [4677] the question that the Attorney General of the United States in the exercise of his high office would put charitable organizations on a subversive list.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, your Honor——

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

The Court: Objection is sustained.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, pardon me, Judge. We haven't objected to these questions although they were highly objectionable.

Mr. Donohue: Why didn't you?

Mr. MacInnis: These questions are much like the new rule of impeachment which the special prosecutor invented the other day when he said to a witness, "When in 1946 did you go to Soviet Russia?", knowing that there was no such evidence and knowing that the man had never been to Soviet Russia. Now, these questions are not impeaching of anything. The special prosecutor arises before us, he has a document which is hearsay so far as this record is concerned, and witnesses come here and are confronted with the question, "Are you the man mentioned in a certain report?" In one instance the Rev. Edward Peet of Mill Valley came here and we find that there is no such document as the one referred to by counsel in his question to that man.

Now, I have in my hand a volume published by the United States Government concerning the so-called subversive organizations. It is 144 pages long, there are about six to eight organizations listed on every page, and most of the organizations [4678] of most innocuous names. Almost anything with the word "American" in front of it is apparently subversive. American Friends of the Chinese People, American Friends of the Mexican People, American Friends of the Spanish People,

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)
American Friends of Czechoslovakia, American Federation for Political Unity, American-Croation Congress, American Council for Democratic Greece, American Council on Soviet Relations, American Committee for Jugoslav Relief, American Committee for Struggle Against War. Why, I could go on—it would take an hour to read these names. Yet every person who comes here in the perspective of this special prosecutor is to have his integrity impugned because some organization has run afoul of a general policy of the Attorney General, and because some man in the exercise of his own generosity has sent $10.00 for Jugoslav relief after he is shown a pamphlet of some starving children, or if he has sent $10.00 to some league to abolish war.

Now, that is the situation in which we find ourselves on these so-called impeaching questions. The questions are asked without protest, because we want the record to be complete. We don't want to be in the position of pretending to hide things, and we are not going to make the objections. But then, when we put a characterization on the question and bring out the fact about the so-called subversive activity lists, then we are criticized and an objection is made to your Honor. Why, this counsel well knows that the list of persons named by the [4679] Un-American Activities Committee would include Dean Acheson, the Secretary of State, would include the late Franklin Roosevelt himself, would include some of the greatest human beings who are citizens of our country; and yet it is apparently allowed as proper impeachment. Now, that is the whole purpose of the questions which I had in mind.

Mr. Donohue: If it please your Honor, I shall be glad to hand counsel a copy of the subversive organizations, the revised list of May 1, 1949, and if he doubts its authenticity, I will be glad to have it properly certified in Washington and forwarded to him.

Mr. MacInnis: It will probably contain some additions to this list. My copy, of course, was only published in December, 1948. I can well imagine that there are many other organizations added. But that is not a form of evidence and your Honor has repeatedly espoused the ruling that there can be no guilt by association in this court, and your Honor has repeatedly espoused the ruling that hearsay testimony may not be used to impugn any witness.

The Court: Any further questions of Mr. Kenny?

Mr. MacInnis: Let me see. Yes, I think so.

Q. Now, Mr. Kenny, in view of the colloquy which has ensued and the questions of the prosecutor and the attitude evidenced by the prosecutor, let me ask you this: Have you any interest in coming here other than to tell the truth? [4680]

A. No, I haven't.

Q. And have you told the truth in this matter to the best of your ability? A. Yes, I have.

Q. And did you believe when you placed your name either in membership or in sponsorship in any of the organizations which are now mentioned by the special prosecutor, that you were doing something disloyal to your country?

A. No, I didn't. I don't think so today. [4681]

Q. Have you done anything in any of the activities that have been brought out today and mentioned by the prosecutor which you feel in the slightest degree will reflect upon your integrity as an American citizen? A. No, I don't.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. May I ask you, Mr. Kenny, does the Western Worker of December 16, 1937, correctly state that you were scheduled to appear at a Mooney-Billings mass meeting in Los Angeles on the 17th of December, 1937?

A. Well, it could be. I made—when I was Superior Judge I made several speeches for Tom Mooney with his attorney, George Davis, and we spoke in San Pedro, I remember, and I remember once we spoke on Santa Monica Boulevard. I remember that because the streetcar kept going by and heckling me and I couldn't get my speech over very well. That is true; it is around that time.

Q. Does the People's World of November 28, 1938, recite the fact correctly when it states that you were a sponsor of the People's World, $60,000 sustaining drive?

A. No, that is not correct. That was brought out, and a great issue was made of that when I was running for Attorney General in 1942, and it simply was not so. I think they said that I had a meeting in my home or something like that, but that was the big issue in my campaign in '42, and I won by a margin of [4682] 400,000 votes.

Q. Mr. Kenny, does the People's World correctly state on January 25, 1945, that in a letter to President Roosevelt and Attorney General Biddle you asked that the deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges be immediately dismissed?

A. That is correct.

Q. On the 12th of October, 1946, as quoted in the San Francisco Chronicle, did you send a wire to Dave Jenkins, then head of the California Labor School, in this language: "Nothing in this so-called fact-finding committee can shake my faith in the integrity of the school"?

A. That is right. Dave Jenkins, I believe, was before some congressional committee, and he defied them in some way, and they threatened him with contempt. And he apparently was right, because he never was prosecuted for contempt.

Q. On the 1st day of May, 1947, in both the San Francisco Chronicle and the San Francisco Examiner a statement appeared that you had been named by Pravda as one of the Russian-American Friends. Were you so named by Pravda?

A. I don't think so. I never saw it. I am not a subscriber to Pravda.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

Further Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Do you read Russian, Mr. Kenny?

A. Not very well. I think I can read "vodka"; that is the [4683] only word I am familiar with.

Q. With reference to this California Labor School, which seems to interest the special prosecutor, did you know that one of the sponsors of the California Labor School, who was also listed as subversive because of that fact, was Mr. Frederick Koster of the National Association of Manufacturers, who was president of the Chamber of Commerce in San Francisco, and also president of the State Chamber of Commerce in another year?

A. Well, I didn't, I am sorry.

Q. Now, with reference to the letter that you signed addressed to the President concerning the previous Harry Bridges case, word of that letter was published in all of the daily papers, although the special prosecutor has chosen to read the item from the People's World; is that correct, according to your understanding?

A. I didn't think I was that important, that it was published at all. I know that I joined several hundred people in a telegram at that time, but I didn't know that I got particular attention.

Q. And what was your reason for signing the letter asking that the proceedings against Harry Bridges be dropped?

A. Well, I thought he had been pushed around

(Testimony of Robert W. Kenny.)

because he was an honest labor leader who wouldn't be bought out by anybody, who was incorruptible, and because he had not sold out his people at any time he was being pushed around, and I wanted to [4684] get that word to President Roosevelt.

Q. That was your thought in signing the letter asking that the proceedings be dropped?

A. That's right.

Q. The special prosecutor also asked you if you spoke at some Mooney-Billings luncheon headed by Mr. George Davis, Mooney's attorney. Do you know that Mr. George Davis is the same George Davis who was the Northern California manager for President Truman's campaign in the last election?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, in all of the matters which have been brought to your attention, and in many of the trials in which you have taken part as a defense counsel in recent years, have you attempted to be a champion of the oppressed?

A. Well, I think so. I have also pros cuted cases I thought I was trying to champion the oppressed.

Q. You handled the prosecutions, of course, in the name of the State of California during the four years in which you were the Attorney General of this State, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in any of those instances did you feel that you were doing anything that was a sign of disloyalty to the principles of our Constitution?

A. Well, no.

Q. The special prosecutor has offered a criticism in that you [4685] are the attorney for Vincent Hallinan?

Mr. Donohue: I didn't offer that in the spirit of criticism; I just asked him the question.

Mr. MacInnis: Why did you bring it up, then?

Q. Now, Mr. Kenny, that is an appeal from a judgment of contempt and sentence of six months imposed upon a member of our bar during the course of a trial, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. And you are appearing in that matter in the exercise of the freedom of advocacy on the part of this lawyer as well as all lawyers, is that correct?

A. Yes, that's right.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, your Honor.

The Court: You are excused.

The Witness: Thank you, Judge.

Mr. Hallinan: I would like to ask Mr. Kenny a question while he is here, if you don't mind, Mr. Kenny.

Q. Just one point: On your kindly and courageous offer to appear for me in the proceedings that have been instituted against me, in order to make the matter perfectly clear, for conduct alleged to have been contemptuous on my part in the first week of this trial I have been sentenced to six months' imprisonment and disbarment; that is your understanding, isn't that correct? [4686]

A. That is right.

Q. And that is the matter that you have come forward and have offered to appear and are now conducting the appeal in the Circuit Court of Appeals of this District, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Mr. Hallinan: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: I have no questions, your Honor.

The Court: Mr. Kenny, you are excused.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, you have Americanized your name, too, have you not? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't your name before you reached Canada Heinrich Schmidt?

A. Oh, yes, the name Henry was spelled differently in the old country.

Q. How old were you when you left Germany?

A. Well, I guess I was almost twelve.

Q. And you left Canada when?

A. I came to Minneapolis in 1915, so that would mean sixteen years of age.

Q. Canada was at war when you left there in 1915, was it not, or when you reached there in 1915?

A. I didn't reach there in 1915. [4687]

Q. When you left there, then?

A. Canada was at war, yes.

Q. And the United States wasn't at war when you came to the United States in 1915?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.

A. No, the United States didn't go to war until 1917, I believe.

Q. Were you in the military service during the first World War? A. In this country?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. During the last war you served with the Maritime Commission that you told us about yesterday? A. No, sir, that isn't the right name.

Q. What is the right name, Mr. Schmidt?

A. The right name is Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board.

Q. At the time you served with that board the United States was at war? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And at that time Soviet Russia was an ally of the United States, was it not?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Don't you know so, sir?

A. Well, I am trying to fix the date. I would say yes.

Q. You were interested in the war effort, you stated? A. Oh, yes. [4688]

Q. ——yesterday, in your employment with the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board?

A. Unquestionably.

Q. It wasn't an imperialistic war then, was it, sir? A. It wasn't an imperialistic war?

Q. Yes.

A. I wasn't interested in that phase at all.

Q. At any time did you call the second World War in Europe an imperialistic war?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Aren't you one of those who spoke on the subject that "The Yanks were not coming"?

A. I don't think so. I am pretty sure that I didn't speak anywhere on the subject that "The Yanks are not coming." As a matter of fact, I was opposed to that kind of thinking.

Q. You are sure you never spoke on the subject "The Yanks are not coming"?

A. Yes, very sure.

Q. Was this a full-time job you had with the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board, or were you also engaged otherwise in your labor activities?

A. The answer is both, but that requires some explaining. The message that we received from Admiral Land was to the effect that we were to be paid on a per diem for each day that we would serve on the board. And in the beginning we didn't serve each [4689] day, and on those days on which we did not serve on the board, we carried on our regular union duties as members of the Pacific Coast—as members of the ILWU Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Do you recall how much compensation you received in 1943 for your services on this board?

A. No, I don't recall the exact sum; I imagine it was around somewhere between $5,000 and $6,000.

Q. And do you recall what compensation you received in 1944?

A. Approximately the same sum, I think.

Q. Are you able to tell us what your income was during either or both of those years from your labor activities?

A. No, not from memory. I would have to go to our office and check. I would add this, though, that whenever we were on the payroll of the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board, we received no pay from the union, and vice versa.

Q. Directing your attention, Mr. Schmidt, for the moment to your testimony given here on Friday, January 27 of this year, let me ask you if you recall these questions and having made these answers:

> "Q. Did you ever know anybody by the name of Lawrence Seton Ross?
>
> "A. Oh, yes.
> "Q. When did you know him?
> "A. Well, I can't be quite sure, but I think he was a man [4690] who came to the strike committee or the publicity of the strike committee in 1934 and made us a proposition to give us a hand with the issuance of the daily bulletin, and his explanation was he was working on the Western Worker and—well, I don't know just exactly what he said, but eventually his proposition was accepted, and I think Ross came there with that proposition."

Do you recall that testimony, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Schmidt, on May 15, 1941, when you appeared as a witness before Judge Sears being asked the following questions by Mr. Gladstein and making the following responses:

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

"Q. Do you know Mr. Hanoff?

"A. No, I don't.

"Do you know a woman by the name of Betty Gannett? A. I don't know her.

"Q. Do you know a man named Lawrence Ross? A. No, sir.

"Q. Do you know a man named Sam Darcy?

"A. I have heard of him.

"Q. Have you ever met him?

"A. I don't think so."

Did you make those responses, sir, to those questions?

A. Well, I don't remember it clearly, but if that is the record I accept it, and that [4691] requires——

Q. Pardon? A. It is easily explained.

Q. Would you explain it for us, please.

A. Oh, certainly. When the man Ross walked in here the other day I said to myself, "I think that is the fellow that came to us with that proposition in 1934 during the strike," and since my memory told me that, I repeated what my memory told me.

Q. In other words, the sight of Lawrence Ross refreshed the recollection that was absent in 1941?

A. Well, why not?

Q. I am asking you, sir.

A. I didn't see Mr. Ross in 1941, you know.

Q. I understand that.

A. He didn't walk in here at that time.

Q. But it had refreshed your recollection and your recollection was not refreshed in 1941?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. For the simple reason that you didn't bring him in here in 1941.

Q. I wasn't here.

A. That's right. It was Mr. Delgurcio.

Q. Yes. Don't you know as a matter of fact that Lawrence Ross never came to San Francisco until long after this strike was over?

A. That is what he said here.

Q. You don't know that to be a fact? [4692]

A. No, I don't.

Q. When do you say it was that you first saw him? A. As I stated last week.

Q. When?

A. Well, I stated last week—I guess it was last week—that I thought that the fellow that came to us during the strike and conducted the publicity committee was the man Ross.

Q. Was it in the early days of the strike or was it in the later days of the strike?

A. It was shortly after the strike started. [4693]

Q. Well, what do you indicate by "shortly"?

A. Well, I would say one day would be very shortly. If he came here nine days later, that would still be shortly. If he came a couple of months later, I wouldn't call that shortly.

Q. Then it is your present testimony that you saw Lawrence Ross some time in the month of May of 1934?

A. I think I would fix it in that month. That is the best of my recollection and my memory.

Mr. Donohue: Mr. Mitchell, would you ask the witness to look at what has been marked U. S. in evidence No. 1 and draw his attention, if you will—I am sorry, U. S. in evidence No. 2, to line 22, and then invite his attention to the date on the back.

(Document exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Is that your name which apears on that page, Mr. Schmidt?

A. On line 22?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I don't see my name there at all. I see here the name of one J. R. Robertson. Perhaps you gave me the wrong paper.

Mr. Donohue: May I have it back, please?

(Document returned by the Clerk.)

Q. (Mr. Donohue): Look at line 23, please.

(Document returned to witness by the Clerk.)

A. Yes, my name appears to be typed in on line 23. [4694]

Q. Now, will you look on the back and see the date? A. June 23, 1945.

Mr. Donohue: May I have it back, please, now, Mr. Mitchell?

(Document returned to counsel.)

Q. (Mr. Donohue): Does your examination of this document refresh your recollection as to when it was that you first discussed with Mr. Bridges your sponsoring as a witness his application for citizenship?

A. You mean by reading my name and then June 23rd on the back?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Yes. A. Not at all.

Q. Then if it appears from this document that it is dated June 23, 1945, and that there appears a filing stamp on the back of the document which indicates that it was filed on the 23rd of June, 1945, will you state now your best recollection as to when it was that you first discussed with Harry Bridges the fact that you would be a witness for him on his petition for citizenship?

A. Well, I have no recollection of any discussion with him in so far as that date is concerned.

Q. Would you say that you discussed it with him prior to the time in June when he filed this application?

A. Well, that could be, but I don't know.

Q. You have no recollection on that matter at all? A. No.

Q. Well, will you tell us when it was, as far as you can now [4695] recall, that the defendant Bridges asked you to be of any assistance to him in the matter of his application for citizenship?

A. I can only try to make clear again what I said yesterday.

Q. I wish you would.

A. To the best of my recollection, it was on the day that we went to the City Hall.

Q. And you went to the City Hall on the 8th of August, 1945?

A. No, I think we went to the City Hall on the day he became a citizen, which, according to the statements that I have heard here, was in September of that year. I have no independent recollection of the month of the year when these things happened. When I mentioned September now and August, I am going by the documents.

Mr. Donohue: Will you, Mr. Mitchell, now hand Mr. Schmidt U. S. in evidence No. 2 and invite his attention to the printed name, the signature and the date?

(Document exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Is that your signature, Mr. Schmidt? A. Yes, it appears to be.

Q. And that signature was made by you on what date?

A. I see the date of August 1st here.

Q. You have seen a great many dated papers before. Can't you look at that and tell us when you signed it?

A. You mean you want me to read the whole thing? [4696]

Q. No, I want you to tell me from looking at that document when you signed it. You ~~did~~ sign it?

A. Oh, yes, I signed it.

Q. Well, tell me when.

A. Well, the date that is typed in there is August 1st.

Mr. Donohue: May I have the document back?

(Document returned by the Clerk.)

The Witness: I have no recollection if I signed it on August 1st.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): May I read you from this document:

> "The following witnesses, each being severally, duly and respectively sworn, depose and say:
> "My name is J. R. Robertson. My occupation is labor union official. I reside at 1815 Powell Street, San Francisco, California.
> "My name is Henry Schmidt. My occupation is union official, ILWU. I reside at 1156 Sanchez Street, San Francisco, California. I am a citizen of the United States of America. I have personally known and have been acquainted in the United States with Harry Renton Bridges, the petitioner named in the petition for naturalization, of which this affidavit is a part, since August 1st, 1940. To my personal knowledge, the petitioner has resided immediately preceding the date of the filing of this petition in the United States continuously since the date last mentioned [4697] and at San Francisco in the State of California continuously since August 1st, 1940, and I have personal knowledge that the petitioner is and during all such periods has been a person of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the United States; and in my opinion, the petitioner is in every way qualified to be admitted a citizen of the United States.
> "I do swear that the statements of fact I > have made in this affidavit of this petition for naturalization, subscribed by me, are true to the best of my knowledge and belief, so help me God."

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Signed: "HenrySchmidt," and then:

> "Subscribed and sworn to before me by the above-named petitioner and witnesses, in the respective forms of oath shown in said petition and affidavit, in the office of the Clerk of said Court at San Francisco, California, this 8th day of August anno domini 1945. I hereby certify that the certificate of arrival No. 22-56274 from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, showing the lawful entry for permanent residence of the petitioner above named, together with declaration of intention No. 103785 of such petitioner, has been by me filed with, attached to and made a part of this petition on this date. H. A. Van der Zee." [4698]

Scully, apparently, is the deputy clerk whose handwritten signature appears.

Q. Now, does that refresh your recollection?

A. No, sir, it does not. I don't remember all those words, and I do not recall that I signed that document on the date that you have mentioned. However, the document speaks for itself.

Q. You wouldn't question the fact that you did sign that document on the 8th day of August?

A. No, I don't think so. I am merely trying to point out to you, Mr. Donohue, that my memory fails me. And if you don't want to believe that, why, that is just very unfortunate.

The Court: We will take the morning recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you, not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Recess.) [4699]

Mr. MacInnis: May we interrupt again with a witness?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: Will the bailiff call Mr. Walther.

ALEXANDER F. WALTHER

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: Alexander F. Walther.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Walther?

A. Real estate and business opportunity broker.

Q. And where do you live?

A. 603 Flint Avenue, Redwood City.

Q. Did you live in the City and County of San Francisco for some period of years?

A. Yes, some twenty-nine and a half years.

Q. And were you ever employed as a longshoreman? A. I did.

Q. And what years did you work as a longshoreman, Mr. Walther? A. 1916 to 1919.

Q. Do you know a man named Henry Schmidt?

A. I do.

Q. And for how many years have you known him? A. Approximately thirty years. [4700]

Q. And in addition to your own knowledge of Henry Schmidt, have you heard his name mentioned and discussed by other persons in this community?

A. Yes, a great deal—a good many times.

Q. From your own acquaintance with Mr. Schmidt and from such things as other persons may have said, do you know what his reputation is in this community for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. As far as my personal experience, always infallible.

Q. You say "always infallible"? A. Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Mr. Donohue: I move to strike the statement, if your Honor please. The opinion previously stated, as he expressed it, is his personal opinion.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, if we are quibbling about words, I can rephrase the question.

Q. Mr. Walther, basing your answer upon your own acquaintanceship with Henry Schmidt plus those things which you have heard other persons say about him, tell us what is his reputation in this community for truth, honesty and integrity.

A. Very sound.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

(Testimony of Alexander F. Walther.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. What have you heard other people say of Henry Schmidt, Mr. Walther? [4701]

A. Always that he is a good, reliable person and a good representative of labor, because it is mostly with labor people I discussed Henry Schmidt.

Q. Did you ever hear discussed the question as to whether he was an honest or dishonest man?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear——

A. Yes, we always discussed the man, of his behavior and ability as representing organized labor.

Q. Did you ever hear anyone discuss the question of his truth?

A. Never doubted it. Never discussed it and never doubted it.

Q. I understand you don't doubt it, sir, but have you ever heard his truthfulness discussed by anybody? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever heard his integrity as a man discussed by anybody? A. Many times.

Q. Will you tell us with whom you have had discussion about the integrity of Mr. Schmidt.

A. Various members of the Longshoremen's Union, friends—mutual friends.

Q. When during the last thirty years—what is the most recent time in which you have discussed it with anyone?

A. About eight or ten months ago. [4702]

(Testimony of Alexander F. Walther.)

Q. Can you tell us with whom?

A. Yes. Carl Alvin.

Q. Just the two of you together, sir?

A. No, in a group of members of the Consumers Cooperative Society. Alf Borjeson.

Q. What was the occasion for discussing Mr. Schmidt's integrity at that time?

A. I will say as members of the Consumers Cooperative, of different promises he made for us—to me personally, and his behavior in the union for representing the organization members.

Q. Have you heard anybody in the past thirty years during which you have heard Mr. Henry Schmidt express an opinion that he was a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. On no occasion? A. No, on no occasion.

Mr. Donohue: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Walther, did you know Henry Schmidt in the year 1934? A. I did.

Q. Are you the man whom Henry Schmidt invited to deliver a eulogy over the bodies of two men who were killed during the 1934 strike?

A. I am. [4703]

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. That is all, sir.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, you have testified that you have frequently appeared as a witness for others who have sought naturalization; correct? A. Yes.

Q. Was it not the custom and was it not the fact that in each instance the person or persons for whom you so appeared asked your permission to use your name as one of the qualifying witnesses?

A. I believe that is the custom, that they first contact one in order to secure that permission.

Q. Well, did Mr. Bridges ask you for permission to use your name as one of his two sponsoring witnesses? A. I believe so.

Q. When? A. I can't recall the date.

Q. Do you recall the circumstance, where it was and what he said?

A. I can only repeat what I said yesterday: that on the particular day on which Harry Bridges was naturalized—and it may have been the day before—he simply said, "We are going to the City Hall. How about being my witness? How about [4704] coming along?" And in all probability at that point I asked him, "What time are we going?" and he gave me the answer, and then later on we found ourselves at the City Hall.

Q. You know that he was naturalized on the 17th of September, 1945?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Yes, that I do recall, because I was present there.

Q. Your first recollection of this entire incident begins on the 17th of September, 1945, when you were asked by Mr. Bridges to go down to the City Hall, or possibly on the day before, is that correct?

A. That is correct. I have no remembrance of the incidents that apparently happened in August.

Q. Now, you don't deny the fact that in the application for a certificate of arrival and preliminary form for petition for naturalization filed by Mr. Bridges on the 23rd of June, 1945, that your name appears on that application as the second qualifying witness?

A. No. But are you making the point that I signed that on June 23?

Q. I didn't ask you that, sir; I asked you if it isn't a fact that your name appears.

A. My name appears, yes.

Q. And it is now your statement that you do not recollect on any occasion prior to the 23rd day of June, 1945, when this application was filed by Mr. Bridges, any conversation with [4705] Mr. Bridges concerning the use of your name as one of the two qualifying witnesses?

A. Are you asking me prior to June 23 now, is it?

Q. Yes, prior to the day on which this document was filed.

A. Well, I don't follow you. The document states that I signed it on August 1. What has the June 23 business to do with it?

Q. No, document states that you signed it on August 1, Mr. Schmidt. A. Yes.

Q. I will come to that document in a minute. I am talking about this document which you have examined and in which you failed to find on line 22 but did find on line 23——

A. You told me to look on 22, you know.

Q. I quite understand, and I know it is difficult to read from line 22 to line 23 on this document.

A. Quite difficult.

Q. I ask you now, sir, if it is not a fact that your name appears on this document, which, by the document itself, was filed on the 23rd day of June, 1945?

A. My name appears on it, but I have no personal knowledge of ever having seen it at any time, let alone June 23.

Q. Then I ask you this question: Did you at any time before Mr. Bridges filed this document on the 23rd of June, 1945, have any discussion with the defendant Bridges about the use of your name as the second qualifying witness? [4706]

A. I have no recollection.

Q. Do you recall discussing with Mr. Paul Schnurr, whose name appears on this document filed the 23rd day of June, 1945, about Mr. Schnurr appearing as the No. 1 qualifying witness?

A. My memory tells me that we discussed that on or about the day that we went to the City Hall when Bridges was naturalized.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Now, you saw the document marked United States in evidence No. 2 on which your name appears? A. Is that the one I had a while ago?

Q. Yes. A. I saw my name there, yes.

Q. Do you remember signing your name on that document? A. Is this the August 1st one?

Q. No, it is the August 8th document, Mr. Schmidt.

A. The document that you showed me this morning, the date August 1 was typed in it, and when I said I saw my name yesterday, that is the one I have in mind. Now you are talking about August 8.

Q. I am talking about the same document.

A. I see.

Q. Do you not know from your own experience as a witness in matters of persons who have applied for naturalization that it is necessary for the witnesses to state that they have personally known the applicant for citizenship for a period of at least five years prior to the time the application is [4707] filed?

A. I believe it is common knowledge.

Q. Do you not know from your own experience as a witness in matters of this kind that that is the reason why the date August 1, 1940, appears, because August 1, 1940, was more than five years before August 8, 1945, the day on which you signed this application? A. That seems reasonable.

Q. Now, having seen this document, Mr.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Schmidt, and the document stating that you signed and swore to it on the 8th day of August, 1945, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not on or before the 8th day of August, 1945, you had any discussion whatsoever with Mr. Bridges about your appearing as a witness for him with respect to his petition for naturalization?

A. I repeat: I can't remember any. We may have had some, but I just don't remember it.

Q. Would you say now, sir, in the light of your recollection having been refreshed, at least with respect to the signing of this document, that you had no conversation with Mr. Bridges?

A. No, I wouldn't say that.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, directing your attention to Volume 5, page 596 of the typed record, the testimony of the witness Lloyd Garner taken on the Friday morning session, November 18, do you recall this question being asked of Mr. Garner and Mr. Garner making this response: "Question"—— [4708]

A. Excuse me; you mean his testimony here?

Q. Yes.

> "Q. Will you tell his Honor and the ladies and gentlemen of the jury just what you did, what was said by Mr. Schmidt on this occasion?
> "A. Mr. Schmidt appeared as a witness on behalf of the applicant, Mr. Bridges. I swore him in the usual manner to the tell the truth, all the statements to be made by him under oath.
> "Q. And when you say you swore him, do > you mean you swore the defendant Henry Schmidt?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

> "A. I swore the witness Henry Schmidt, the defendant here. Then I proceeded to inquire of him as to his qualifications as a witness."

And may I say to you, sir, that this incident refers to the time and place as the 8th day of August, 1945, in the office of Mr. Garner, in the naturalization section of the clerk's office in the City Hall. Do you recall Mr. Garner having made the responses as read to the questions as were asked of him here?

A. Yes, sir, I recall his testimony, and I tried to remember the incident. I couldn't and I still [4709] don't.

Q. And it is now your testimony that you have no recollection whatsoever of going to Mr. Garner's office on the 8th day of August and there being sworn?

A. No, my recollection tells me that all of these incidents took place in the month following, which apparently was September 17th.

Q. Then may I read further, and will you——

A. May I make this clear, that I have had the impression all the time that we went to the City Hall just once, and your impression indicates that we were there twice.

Q. Now, would you listen, please, to these questions and answers, all in the same day, of the same witness:

> "Q. What questions did you ask him (referring to you), sir, which would qualify him as a witness?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

"A. I asked him where he was born—first, his name and his address and his occupation.

"Q. And he made answer?

"A. He answered he was born in Germany. I asked him then whether he was a naturalized citizen. He said he was and he offered to me in proof of that a naturalization certificate issued in his own case through the United States District Court in San Francisco under date of July 11th, 1927, certificate No. 2588949, according to the record I made at that time."

Mr. Donohue: And may I ask you, Mr. Mitchell, to show the [4710] witness No. 2588949 on this paper, dated August 8th?

(Document exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue, continuing): Would you look at that number, 2588949, and may I ask you if the questions and answers read and the inspection of that document now refresh your recollection as to whether or not you were at the City Hall on the 8th of August, 1945, and made the responses to the questions as indicated?

A. No, sir, I do not recollect it.

Mr. Donohue: May I have the document back, Mr. Mitchell?

(Document returned.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Now, may I ask you, Mr. Schmidt, if the reading of this portion of Mr. Garner's testimony refreshes your recollection:

> "Mr. Garner: I then asked him (referring to you, sir) if he was acquainted with the applicant, Harry Bridges, and he said he was. I asked him how long he had known Mr. Bridges. He told me he had known him since about 1932 or 1933. I asked him then about how often he saw the applicant, Mr. Bridges. He stated that he saw him on an average of at least once a month or oftener. I asked him under what circumstances he usually saw the applicant, whether in business or socially, and he replied in business, that they were both officers or officials of the same union, the ILWU." [4711]

Does that refresh your recollection as to this conversation, sir? A. No, sir.

Q. Further:

> "I then asked him whether he was a Communist or a member of the Communist Party. He said that he was not.
> "Q. When you say you asked him, whether he was a member of the Communist Party, and he said that he was not, do you mean that you asked Mr. Schmidt if he, Mr. Schmidt, was a member of the Communist Party?
> "A. I was speaking about Mr. Schmidt, the witness. My questions were all directed to him as a witness. I asked him personally whether he was.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

"Q. His answer was what?

"A. No—the answer was in the negative, that he was not. I asked him whether the applicant was a member of the Communist Party and he answered negatively at that time.

"Q. By the applicant, you mean the defendant Harry Bridges?

"A. You mean the defendant Harry Bridges here. At that time there was no petition, he was merely an applicant to file a petition."

Does that refresh your recollection as to this incident in the City Hall on the 8th of August, 1945?

A. No, sir, not with respect to the 8th of August. All I can [4712] tell you, that I remember conversations with a man who had to do with Harry Bridges' naturalization, and I can't now say that that was Mr. Garner, but it is my recollection it took place on the day on which Bridges was naturalized, which as you say, was not August 8th.

Q. Which you know to be September 17, 1945?

A. Yes, I know that now, since I have been made acquainted with the date.

Q. Well, would you listen again, please:

"Q. Was there any further questioning of Mr. Schmidt as a qualifying witness?

"A. Yes, I asked him whether in his opinion the applicant, Mr. Bridges, was attached to the principles of the Constitution and qualified for citizenship and he said he believed so. He gave me the impression that that was his understand> ing. I asked him whether the applicant, Mr. Bridges, had been out of the United States during the period of his acquaintance. He said no, he did not know of any such. He gave me the impression he did not know of any absences."

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Does that refresh your recollection?

A. No; sorry.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, in the number of instances in which you have appeared as a qualifying witness for others who have sought naturalization, do you not know, as a matter of fact, that it was [4713] and is the practice for the qualifying witnesses to appear before a naturalization examiner on some occasion prior to the date on which he appears in court?

A. No, I don't recollect that. I had the impression all the time that you appeared just once. I recall that a man by the name of Joe Ring asked me to call up at this building one time, and I am pretty sure I only came once, so far as he was concerned, and didn't hear of him any more.

Q. Well, don't you know, sir, as a matter of fact, that the document which you examined, which bore the date of June 23, 1945, was not a petition for naturalization filed by Mr. Bridges but merely an application for a petition to file a petition for naturalization by Mr. Bridges?

A. Oh, I didn't pay much attention to those technical details.

Q. And don't you know as a matter of fact that no petition for naturalization could have been filed by Mr. Bridges until he and the qualifying witnesses went before the naturalization examiner, as you did, on the 8th of August, to satisfy the requirements of the statute, and that it was on that date that the petition for naturalization was filed?

A. No, sir, a person employed by the Naturalization Service might remember all those details, but I wouldn't even try.

Q. Well, now, you do remember something about the 8th of August, Mr. Schmidt, don't you?

A. No, sir, no. [4714]

Q. Well, you have stated heretofore, on yesterday, some of the things that happened on the 8th of August, have you not?

A. That is possible, but my memory tells me that those things took place on the 17th of September.

Q. You remember that Mr. Schnurr was there on the 8th of August, 1945, don't you, sir?

A. I remember Mr. Schnurr being in the City Hall on September 17th when he couldn't act as a witness.

Q. And you are sure that was on the 17th of September, not on the 8th of August?

A. I am pretty sure. If he had been there on the 8th of August, why didn't they discover on that date they couldn't use him?

Mr. Donohue: Would you hand what has been marked as Government's in evidence No. 2 and direct Mr. Schmidt's attention to the name and the information on that portion of the paper?

(Document exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Looking at the document in your hand, Mr. Schmidt, which is the document which was sworn to on the 8th day of August, 1945, you see the name J. R. Robertson?

A. Yes, it appears right above the name of Paul Schnurr, whose name has been stricken.

Q. Does that not refresh your recollection to the fact that it was on the 8th of August and not on the 17th of September that [4715] Mr. Schnurr's inability to qualify led to the substitution of the defendant J. R. Robertson in his stead?

A. Well, if that is so, what was Schnurr doing in the City Hall on September 17th?

Q. Is that your answer to the question, sir?

A. That is my answer to that question.

Q. Well, then, let me ask you the question again. Isn't it a fact that on the 8th day of August, 1945, that the name J. R. Robertson appears above the name Paul Schnurr which has been scratched out?

A. That is what I just said.

Q. But you have no recollection of that happening on the 8th day of August, 1945, do you?

A. That's right.

Q. And you have no recollection of having seen Paul Schnurr in the office of Mr. Garner on the 8th day of August, 1945, when this document was prepared, do you?

A. No recollection in so far as August 8th is concerned. I am sorry.

Q. Do you have any recollection of Mr.——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. Now, your Honor, I feel that there is a little difficulty in these questions in that the name of J. R. Robertson is now also on the June 23rd document. Now, this counsel has just informed Mr. Schmidt that it was on the 8th day of August that the name J. R. Robertson was placed [4716] on the document; on the June 23rd document the name Paul Schnurr is also crossed out and the name of J. R. Robertson inserted. Now, it obviously was done at some later date, because the application was probably filed on the date that it bears.

Mr. Donohue: The only difficulty with that, if your Honor pleases, is that Mr. J. R. Robertson signed and swore to this document on the 8th day of August, 1945, as we shall develop when Mr. J. R. Robertson offers himself as a witness.

In the meantime, would you hand that again to Mr. Schmidt and ask him to see the signature of Mr. J. R. Robertson?

(Exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

Q. Are you familiar with the signature of Mr. J. R. Robertson, Mr. Schmidt?

A. I was just going to say I am not too familiar with it, no.

Q. Then you wouldn't be able to tell us whether or not that was Mr. J. R. Robertson's signature?

A. Inserted there right over the name of Paul Schnurr?

Q. No, where it is signed by J. R. Robertson on the same line as you have signed Henry Schmidt.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. No, I am not sufficiently acquainted with his signature to identify that.

Q. Then you don't recall, as a matter of fact, that you and Mr. J. R. Robertson signed that and were sworn simultaneously by the officer who took the oath and on the 8th day of August, 1945? [4717]

A. On the 8th day of August, no.

Mr. Donohue: May I have the document back again, please?

(Document returned to counsel by the Clerk.)

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, I don't know precisely what that argument is leading to, but there is nothing in issue; Mr. Schmidt admits that he was examined by some man and that he later testified. He says he doesn't remember the date. Now, if some stipulation is invited, we would enter into the stipulation because this is a senseless undertaking, arguing that with the man over whether he remembers the date of August 8th. He says he doesn't remember it, but he does not deny that he signed the application or the petition or that he said he believed Bridges to be qualified for citizenship. Now we are quibbling about the date, and we will stipulate that whatever the date may be, Mr. Schmidt did in fact appear there.

Mr. Donohue: It is nice of Mr. MacInnis to offer to stipulate as to something concerning which his witness is unable or unwilling to remember. But I say to your Honor that I am not wasting the time of the Court. I have, in the classic language of my two distinguished adversaries, a point which I would like to be able to develop.

Mr. MacInnis: Oh, if he says that, I will make no offer for a stipulation and let him continue.

Mr. Donohue: Might this be a convenient time to recess, if your Honor please? [4718]

The Court: We will take the noon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion until the matter is finally submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [4718-A]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, are you familiar with the Voice of the Federation?

A. Yes, that used to be the official organ of the Maritime Federation.

Q. Was it in 1939?

A. Yes, I am pretty sure it was.

Mr. Donohue: Mr. Mitchell, would you hand this to the witness and call his attention to that headline which is marked with the red L.

Q. Would you read that headline, Mr. Schmidt.

A. "ILWU Leaders Blast OCF Action in Taking Sides in Imperialist War."

Q. May I ask you, sir, were you an ILWU leader in December of 1939?

A. I think I was an ILWU officer.

Q. Were you one of those who blasted the action of the group as so stated?

A. Well, right now, Mr. Donohue, I don't recall what "OCF" [4719] stands for.

Q. Would you read the text and perhaps it would refresh your recollection.

A. Oh, Oregon Commonwealth Federation. Are you asking me if I wrote this article?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. No, sir, I am asking you if you were one of the ILWU leaders who, in the language of that headline, blasted the OCF for taking sides in the imperialist war. A. I doubt it very much.

Mr. Donohue: May I have the book back?

Q. Would you read the paragraph which is set off by red crayon and tell us what you did in fact say on the date as the newspaper indicates.

A. Is this in the same issue?

Q. I think not. You will probably catch the date on the top.

A. The one I am reading from now is October 5, 1939. It reads, " 'We've got to get behind the program to keep America out of the war to be able to show the world that the Yanks aren't coming,' Schmidt said."

Q. Are you correctly quoted there?

A. I don't think so.

Mr. Donohue: Referring again to your testimony of this morning that you first met Lawrence Ross shortly after the strike of 1934, with your definition of the word "shortly" indicating that that would mean sometime during the month of [4720] May, 1934, at which time Mr. Lawrence Ross offered you the use of the Western Worker in the strike, I will ask the clerk to mark this as United States for identification next in order.

The Clerk: With your Honor's permission, may it be marked Government's 12 for identification.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

(Document marked U. S. Exhibit 12 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: I will ask the clerk to ask you first to look at the face——

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it?——

Mr. Donohue: Surely.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this is apparently an effort to establish by hearsay testimony something that the witness Ross did not establish himself. However, we make no objection. We are not going to follow that practice unless it is necessary.

The Clerk: Counsel asked that you look at the page that is marked (exhibiting document to witness).

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Donohue: May I have it back?

Q. Does this photostat of the fall term announcement of courses of the Los Angeles Workers School, September 24 to December 15, 1934, at 230 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, California, with the mark indicating that Ross would give a course on Wednesday nights on Leninism refresh your recollection on the question as to whether or not you saw Lawrence Ross in May of 1934 in [4721] San Francisco, at which time he asked or offered you the services of the Western Worker for the purpose of the strike.

A. What was the first date you mentioned, please?

Q. September. Fall term announcement, courses

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

of Los Angeles Workers School, September 24 to December 15, 1934?

A. No, that doesn't help me at all.

Mr. Donohue: Will you mark this, please, United States for identification next in number.

The Clerk: Marked Government's Exhibit 13 for identification.

(The document was marked Government's Exhibit 13 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: Would you ask the witness to look at the cover and then observe the date.

The Clerk: Counsel requests that you look at the cover and observe the date here (exhibiting document to witness).

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Donohue: May I have that back?

Q. Mr. Schmidt, does an examination of the record of the hearings investigation of the Un-American activities by the House of Representatives Sub-Committee in the city of Los Angeles on August 8, 1934, on which date Lawrence Ross gave testimony before this committee, refresh your recollection on the question as to whether or not you saw Lawrence Ross in San Francisco during the month of May, 1934, at which time he offered you the [4722] services of the Western Worker for the purpose of the strike?

A. I don't see how it could. If Lawrence Ross was in Los Angeles in August of 1934 he still could have been in San Francisco in May of 1984. [4722-A]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: Will your Honor indulge me for just a moment?

I ask the Clerk to mark this United States for identification next in order, a copy of the Western Worker under date of Thursday, October 11, 1934, and ask him to ask the witness to attempt to refresh his recollection by reading that portion which is marked off in red.

The Clerk: May it be marked——

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it, too?

Mr. Donohue: Sorry.

The Clerk: May it be marked Government's 14 for identification, your Honor?

> (Whereupon issue of Western Worker, Thursday, October 11, 1934, referred to, was marked United States Exhibit No. 14 for identification.)

> (After being examined by Mr. MacInnis, the document was handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

The Witness: What is the date of this paper?

Mr. Donohue: I am afraid I will have to—I think it is October 11, 1934.

The Witness: It is November 11.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. On this matter I take it you are asking him to read over this article to himself to see if it refreshes his memory?

Mr. Donohue: No. I am simply asking him to look at the article, to refer to the date of the newspaper, to see if it refreshes [4723] his recollection as to when he saw Lawrence Ross.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I am a little puzzled; since this was the counsel who made so many objections when the same paper, the Western Worker, was shown on cross-examination to Lawrence Ross who was the editor of that paper. Now he shows it to a man who had nothing to do with its presentation. But if it can refresh his memory, I certainly will not object to Mr. Schmidt reading the article to himself and telling us if it enlightens him on anything.

Mr. Donohue: I have no idea of asking him to read it to the jury, Mr. MacInnis.

The Witness: Well, the paper was presented on October 11th, apparently, in San Francisco. I haven't seen anything yet to indicate that this article on Lawrence Ross indicate that he was speaking, or at Los Angeles.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Don't you see that that article, Mr. Schmidt, identifies Lawrence Ross on the 11th of October, 1934, as the secretary of the Communist Party in Los Angeles and as the candi-ticle on Lawrence Ross indicates that he was speak-trict in Los Angeles?

Mr. MacInnis: Now, your Honor, the special prosecutor is doing precisely what he objected to our doing, except he is going much farther. He is asking this gentleman to be bound by some self-serving statement of another man in another paper as to his own whereabouts. [4724]

Mr. Donohue: Oh, I have other records, if your Honor please, that I think will cause him to waive his objection.

Mr. MacInnis: This man said he saw Ross during the strike of 1934, which was in the early spring and summer. Now, Ross' whereabouts in August, October or any other date would not be impeaching of that statement.

Mr. Donohue: This witness, if your Honor please not only said he saw Ross for the first time in May of 1934, when he offered the services of the Western Worker, but he also said in response to a question, "Isn't it a fact that Mr. Ross didn't come here until the late fall or winter of 1934?", he said, "That is what Ross said about it." I want to show now that that was a fact.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, if your Honor thinks that is material, we won't press the objection. We don't care what date that man came here, but if it is of interest, I won't object to it.

Mr. Donohue: Well, I do because if this witness said he was here in May, then he apparently saw the man when he wasn't here.

The Court: All right.

The Witness: Well, alongside his photograph there appears this language, "Lawrence Ross, secretary of the Communist Party in Los Angeles and communist candidate for Congressman, 14th District." Then in the first sentence it makes reference to October 1st to a conference. But I can find nothing here that [4725] indicates that he was not in San Francisco in May of 1934

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: I now ask the Clerk to mark as United States for identification next in order——

Mr. MacInnis: I would suggest that if there is some issue connected with whether or not Lawrence Ross was in San Francisco, that Lawrence Ross could be brought back to testify, and we recall his previous appearance very vividly—maybe he could tell us some more things. I think he would be the one to tell us, though; not some hearsay document.

Mr. Donohue: Of course, the obvious answer is that the process of this Court is open to Mr. MacInnis. If he wants Lawrence Ross back here for cross-examination, all he has to do is issue a subpoena and he will be here.

I ask the Clerk to mark as U. S. in identification, next in order, a copy of the Western Worker under dateline of San Francisco, California, July 2, 1934.

(Thereupon Western Worker, issue of July 2, 1934, referred to above, was marked United States Exhibit No. 15 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: Would you ask the witness to look at this periodical, as to the date, and call his attention to the encircled matter? (Displayed to the witness by the clerk.)

The Witness: July 2, 1934. And you are calling my attention to the words "Los Angeles Congressman, 14th District, Lawrence Ross"? [4726]

Mr. Donohue: Thank you.

I now ask to be marked for identification a certified copy——

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, if I may beg your pardon for just a moment?

Mr. Donohue: Certainly.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, here is now what has been done. A document is passed to Mr. Schmidt for the purpose of asking him a question, to see if it refreshes his memory; so that counsel hands him a paper and Mr. Schmidt reads the line aloud that he is shown, and then counsel asks no question at all. He merely has the document handed to the Clerk.

Mr. Donohue: Rather than ask individual——

Mr. MacInnis: It is an attempt, obviously, to get something into evidence by a hearsay route. Now, I haven't made a formal objection because I don't think the matter is important. But I am going to tell Mr. Schmidt that on these future occasions just look at the document to yourself, and then let the prosecutor ask you a question on it. But don't read the document and thus supply something in evidence which has no place in evidence.

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection to Mr. MacInnis thus advising his witness.

I ask the Clerk to mark as United States for identification next in order a certification by the Secretary of State for California of a declaration for candidacy for public office.

(Thereupon declaration of candidacy referred to above was [4727] marked United States Exhibit No. 16 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: Now, your Honor, I am a little puzzled by this document—unless it is a further effort by the special prosecutor to impeach the witness who gave his name as Lawrence Ross, because I see here that Ross swears that he had been a citizen of the United States—and this was 1939—for 31 years. I don't think he had been here that many years at that time. Now, if this is to impeach Ross further, I suppose it could be shown Mr. Schmidt. But otherwise, the utter unreliability of any statement that Lawrence Ross ever made about himself ought to be so apparent that these hearsay statements of Ross', whether in the Western Worker or in any other form, ought not to be shown to Mr. Schmidt as binding or impeaching evidence.

Mr. Donohue: Of course, if your Honor pleases, I shall not usurp the prerogative of the jury in determining the credibility of any witness. I am asking that this be shown to the witness only for the purpose of refreshing his recollection, in order to determine whether in truth and in fact he first saw Lawrence Ross in May of 1934.

The Court: For that purpose it may be shown to the witness.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. Well, your Honor, the point is, the document contains an assertion that we now know to be false because of the assertions of Ross on the stand here. I think the document bears that taint, since it is a sworn document by the man who then called himself Lawrence Ross. [4728]

Mr. Donohue: I touched it, if your Honor

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

pleases, and I don't feel a bit contaminated by the taint.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, you don't feel a bit contaminated by producing Ross here? I am not in the slightest bit surprised.

Mr. Donohue: No, I don't.

(Document exhibited to the witness by the Clerk.)

The Witness: Am I required to read out loud from this?

Mr. Donohue: Mr. MacInnis suggested that you not. Would you just look at it, please, and read it to yourself?

The Witness: Yes?

Mr. Donohue: May I have it back, please, Mr. Mitchell?

(Document returned to counsel by the Clerk.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr Schmidt, does the fact that Lawrence Ross announced himself by a declaration of candidacy filed with the Department of State——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me just a moment. Now the prosecutor is assuming something not in evidence, reading from a hearsay document. He may ask this gentleman if the document refreshes his memory, but he may not now attempt to bind Mr. Schmidt as though this were an impeaching document uttered by Mr. Schmidt.

Mr. Donohue: No, this comes out of the State of California.

Mr. MacInnis: Otherwise anything——

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: It is from the State Department.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. Well, we are not bound by some document upon which Lawrence Ross made another false statement to [4729] the State of California. That doesn't lend any sanctity to it.

Mr. Donohue: Are you testifying as a witness, Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: No, I am stating what is the fact.

Mr. Donohue: And it is a fact because you state it?

Mr. MacInnis: That is one good reason. Another is that Lawrence Ross confessed that he lied here about the time he became a citizen, and that appears to the contrary in the document which this man has in his hand, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, your Honor?

The Court: Proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, does the fact that on the 23rd of June, 1934, Lawrence Ross filed with the Secretary of State of the State of California a declaration of candidacy for Congress in the 14th District of California on the Communist Party refresh your recollection on the subject as to whether or not you first saw Lawrence Ross in San Francisco in May of 1934, at which time he offered you the services of the Western Worker? [4730]

Mr. MacInnis: Now, pardon me, your Honor. The prosecutor now asks a question in which he states as a fact something that is not in evidence. Now, we are not bound, as I said before, by any previous false statements of Lawrence Ross any more than we are bound by his present false statements. Now, the prosecutor has a hearsay document in his hand and attempts to ask this witness questions based upon it. It violates a most fundamental rule, your Honor, and I think a stop should be put to that kind of examination.

The Court: The avowed purpose of the examiner is to determine a date. For that purpose the document may be used, and solely for that purpose.

Does that refresh your recollection, sir?

The Witness: I would like to answer it this way: It doesn't refresh my memory in so far as Lawrence Ross is concerned and his running for public office, and I still say that based on my seeing him walking into this courtroom my memory tells me that he came to the strike committee with that proposition as I earlier testified.

Mr. Donohue: I ask the clerk to mark as United States for identification next in order a copy of the Western Worker under dateline San Francisco, Thursday, December 12, 1934.

The Clerk: Marked Government's Exhibit 17 for identification.

(Western Worker, December 12, 1934, was marked U. S. Exhibit [4731] 17 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: Would you ask the witness to examine the matter which is in the box on the front page.

The Witness: Yes, sir. What is the question?

Mr. Donohue: May I have it, please.

Q. Does the fact that the Western Worker on the dateline of San Francisco, Thursday, December 20, 1934, with the San Francisco byline December 17, which states that "World News and Weekly Marxist Review of Current Events is the title of a radio extension course to be broadcast every Wednesday night at 6:45 p.m. over Station KTAB beginning December 26 by the San Francisco Workers School. The course will be conducted by Lawrence Ross, co-editor of the Western Worker" refresh your recollection on the question as to whether or not you in fact saw Lawrence Ross in May of 1934 and that at that time he offered to you the services of the Western Worker in the strike of 1934?

Mr. MacInnis: The objection, your Honor, on this occasion is that the question is unintelligible; that it refers to two entirely unconnected dates; that the man is asked to say whether or not a statement concerning Ross' whereabouts in December, 1934, refreshes his memory as to whether or not he saw him in May. Now, I suggest there is no connection, your Honor, and that for some purpose that I can't perceive, because I don't know the meaning of the article in reference to this case, the prosecutor is trying to read it into evidence. I can't object [4732] strenuously, because I can't see that it has any bearing on the case at all, but the question is unintelligible.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): In the light of these matters, Mr. Schmidt, which have been handed you, and only for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, do you now say that you first met Lawrence Ross in May of 1934 and that he then offered you the services of the Western Worker?

A. Yes, it is my recollection that that was the man.

Q. And that that was the time?

A. Somewhere in May of 1934. The last article you showed me had something to do with December, 1934. The strike was all over with for several months.

Q. You recall I asked you this morning whether it was not a fact that Lawrence Ross did not come to San Francisco until after the strike was over?

A. Yes, I think you asked me that.

Q. I think you have testified heretofore that you didn't know or that you had never met Sam Darcy; am I correct?

A. Yes, I think I was asked that question.

Q. Did you ever meet Sam Darcy?

A. No. I may have seen him some place. I think I said I saw him at some meetings.

Q. Do you recall when?

A. I recall one meeting many years ago at Dreamland Auditorium [4733] where he made a talk.

Q. Did you see him at all during the 1934 strike?

A. Not that I can recollect. He didn't speak at any meetings in Dreamland Auditorium during that strike.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. You were a member of the strike committee, were you not?

A. Was I a member of the strike committee?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. At any time during the course of the strike when you held meetings did you see Mr. Darcy?

A. At the strike committee?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Mr. Darcy was quite active in the strike, was he not? A. So I have heard.

Q. You didn't observe any activity on his part?

A. In relation to our strike committee?

Q. In relation to your strike. A. No, sir.

Q. You knew what position he occupied during the 1934 strike, did you not?

A. I think I learned that afterwards.

Q. What did you learn?

A. That he was an official of the Communist Party.

Q. Wasn't the Communist Party in the forefront of the strike? [4734]

A. So I have heard Mr. Schrimpf testify, but I thought that we were sort of running the strike.

Q. And of course you deny that the Communist Party had anything to do with the strike?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. May I read you briefly from an editorial——

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it?

Mr. Donohue: Surely.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, under what rule of law would the cross-examiner be permitted to read from some editorial as he suggests? I see nothing in here suggesting that Henry Schmidt wrote the editorial.

Mr. Donohue: No suggestion that he did.

Mr. MacInnis: Then I see no reason that he should be allowed to read from it. I will ask your Honor to look at the document and see if it has anything to do with any possible cross-examination.

Mr. Donohue: I ask your Honor to examine it in the light of the last question and answer put to the witness.

(Document handed to Court.)

Mr. Donohue: I might say to your Honor that that offer to ask the witness that question is predicated upon the examination by way of cross-examination of the defendant Schomaker and the defendant Schrimpf, for the obvious purpose on the part of the defense of showing that the purposes of the Communist Party [4735] and the purposes of the labor union in the strike were the same, and for that reason, and in the light of the answer of the witness, the fact that while, as he said, Henry Schrimpf claims the Communist Party ran the strike, I disagree with him. I think I have the right to ask him if he agrees or disagrees with the expression noted in the editorial.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, your Honor, the situation would be not unlike the production of some letter alleged to be written by a man in the position of Sam Dracy. In other words, suppose the prosecutor had a letter from Sam Darcy saying, "I ran the 1934 strike. I directed everything that went on." Now, would he able to introduce that into evidence? Of course not.

Mr. Donohue: On cross-examination, yes. This is cross-examination. I have heard you say that many times: "This is cross-examination."

Mr. MacInnis: Yes. I have not attempted to cross-examine any witness by an editorial written by somebody else. Suppose there were such a thing in existence, this man must be tried upon evidence, not upon the hearsay statement of some third person whose name is not even attached to the article. Suppose some unknown were to say that Sam Darcy ran the whole strike. Is he now to be bound by that kind of statement and the defense tainted by that kind of thing? Sam Darcy has been under subpoena by the special prosecutor during all of this case, at least so far as his statements to the newspapers are concerned, [4736] and he has not been produced, but we are brought here instead——

Mr. Donohue: Do you want his address?

Mr. MacInnis: We are brought here an editorial by some unknown person and that is supposed to reflect upon the credibility of Mr. Schmidt. Now, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and it is not proper cross-examination. It is an attempt to intrude hearsay into the record. If the writer of the editorial is in existence and if the matter is otherwise material, he might be brought here. But how can an editorial be read to Mr. Schmidt——

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor has the slightest doubt about it, I will withdraw the question. I will withdraw the question.

Mr. Hallinan: I would like to get Mr. Darcy's address. He says he has it in his pocket.

Mr. Donohue: Ask Mr. Gladstein; he has been in touch with him.

Mr. Hallinan: You just said you had it.

Mr. MacInnis: I thought you said you were carrying his address in your pocket.

Mr. Donohue: I will supply Mr. Darcy's address——

Mr. MacInnis: Give it to me.

Mr. Donohue: I don't carry it in my pocket.

Mr. MacInnis: You said you did. We are going to take the prosecutor up on that. In the first place, if he is allowed——[4737]

Mr. Donohue: At the recess time I shall be glad to supply the address of Mr. Darcy if they don't want to ask Mr. Gladstein.

Mr. MacInnis: I ask that the gratuitous remark be struck from the record and the jury instructed to disregard the special prosecutor, your Honor.

Mr. Donohue: Disregard me or what I said?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, both.

Mr. Donohue: That is what I thought you meant.

The Court: We will take it up at recess.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, do you have any recollection now of being asked by Mr.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Garner in his office in the clerk's office in the City Hall on the 8th day of August, 1945, the question, "Are you a member of the Communist Party?" and your replying, "No"?

A. If the question was put to me on August 8, I am sorry, I have no recollection; but since you have the documents there, I am not going to argue with you. I am satisfied that I was there on August 8. And I would like to add this: about two or two and a half years ago Bridges and I were having lunch in a small restaurant on Montgomery Street or somewhere near the foot of Columbus Avenue; we were sitting at a booth, and a gentleman came in and he sat down at the lunch counter. Bridges waved at this gentleman and said, "Hello, Judge," and the gentleman waved back. I said to Bridges, "Who was that?"

He said, "That was Judge Foley." [4738]

And I said, "Who is Judge Foley?"

And he answered very impatiently, "Don't you remember? He is the man that was sitting on the bench when I was made a citizen."

I didn't remember that, and if you were to bring Judge Foley into the court today I wouldn't recognize him. [4738-A]

Q. Mr. Schmidt, you didn't consider your sponsorship of the petition for naturalization of Mr. Bridges lightly, did you, sir?

A. ~~Oh~~; no, not at all.

Q. You knew that the granting of citizenship to

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Bridges was a matter of considerable importance to Mr. Bridges?

A. Oh, yes, I can subscribe to that statement.

Q. And as a close personal friend and associate of Mr. Bridges, it was likewise a matter of some importance to you, right? A. I suppose so.

Q. Now, do you now remember that at some time during the proceeding Paul Schnurr, who had accompanied you to the City Hall, came out of the room and Mr. J. R. Robertson went into the room from which Paul Schnurr had left?

A. Yes, but it is my impression that that took place on September 17th.

Q. Well, I am sure you do not want to impeach the record that shows that it occurred on August 8th?

A. Well, it may have happened on August 8th, but I don't recall it in that manner.

Q. Well, whenever it happened or wherever it happened, where were you when you first recall seeing the defendant Robertson?

A. That I can't remember. I recall that we walked over to the City Hall, but if you are asking me where he was in relationship to my position during those interviews——?

Q. Yes. [4739]

A. There was a group of people milling around. I can't place it.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Gladstein saying anything to Mr. Robertson on the day this incident occurred?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I recall that he made some remarks to the judge.

Q. No, I am not talking about courtroom, Mr. Schmidt; I am talking about the occasion when you and Mr. Robertson signed this document which was sworn to by you before a deputy clerk of the court and by Mr. Robertson, on the 8th day of August, 1945.

A. And you are asking me if Gladstein was there and said something?

Q. Yes.

A. I have no recollection of seeing Gladstein on that day.

Q. You don't recall in the substantial language of Mr. Garner that Mr. Gladstein came to the door and called Mr. Robertson to go into the room, you then being in that room? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, now, the first recollection that you have, apparently, of these transactions was a recollection of what happened in the courtroom, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you do remember being in the courtroom?

A. Oh, later on we went into the judge's chambers, I believe.

Q. Well, when did you go to the judge's chamber?

A. Well, I can't recollect that. [4740]

Q. Was it on the same day that Mr. Bridges was naturalized?

A. Oh, yes, I think that was so.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And was it before or after his naturalization?

A. That I don't recollect.

Q. Well, can you remember who went to the judge's chambers? Might that refresh your recollection as to when it occurred with reference to whether it was before or after the naturalization?

A. Oh, I went there, of course, and Bridges was there, naturally. I think his daughter was there and I guess Robertson would have been there, too.

Q. Was that the time and place at which certain photographs were taken which you perhaps may recall?

A. Yes, I have seen some photographs of that happening.

Q. And it is your best recollection that they were taken in the judge's chambers and after Mr. Bridges had received his citizenship?

A. Yes, that is the best I can do with it.

Q. Now, you do remember being in the courtroom with Mr. Bridges?

A. Yes, I picture him in the witness chair, I believe.

Q. And do you recall that prior to the time that Mr. Bridges took the witness chair that you and Mr. Robertson were sworn and that you answered certain questions?

A. This will be on September 17th?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Yes, I think I recall that. [4741]

Q. And what do you recall as having happened after you and Mr. Robertson had been examined on the 17th in court, and I think you said yesterday you heard the immigration official say the witnesses were satisfactory? What is your recollection of what occurred after that?

A. I think then the judge went through the proceedings of naturalizing Bridges. But it doesn't stand out too clearly. The thing that stands out very clearly is the remark made by the examiner and I am satisfied that it was Mr. Garner. And he stated, as I have previously testified, that "The Government is satisfied" or "The witnesses are satisfactory."

Q. Now, do you recall that after Mr. Garner had examined you and stated to the Court that "The witnesses are satisfactory, your Honor," that Mr. Bridges then took the stand and was asked a series of questions by Mr. Garner?

A. I think that would naturally follow, that he would take the stand after myself.

Q. And do you remember that at that time while Mr. Bridges was being questioned by Mr. Garner, and in Judge Foley's court, that Mr. Garner asked him this question:

> "Do you now or have you ever belonged to the Communist Party of the United States?," to which Mr. Bridges made the reply: "I have not, and do not."

A. I don't recall those words coming out of Mr. Garner's mouth but I am satisfied that he asked those questions. [4742]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Were you there when, after his questions had been completed, Mr. Bridges was asked by the Court to make a statement, and that Mr. Bridges did make a brief statement?

A. Yes, I think he made a short speech. Yes, he was invited by the judge to say something.

Q. And your recollection is that in fact he did say something?

A. I am pretty sure he did, yes.

Q. And what happened then?

A. I think that was the end of the ceremony.

Q. And was Mr. Bridges then sworn in as a witness—I should say as a citizen?

A. Well, I thought we were all past that.

Q. No. Well, did you see Mr. Bridges when he took the oath as a citizen?

A. Oh, yes, I must have been there, yes.

Q. And was that before or after Mr. Bridges had made the statement or the short speech as you have termed it?

A. Well, I think that he made the statement after the ceremonies were all finished with.

Q. These events all occurred in the courtroom?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And then subsequently, I take it, you went to the judge's chambers where there were certain photographs, some of which were reproduced in the press?

A. Some pictures may have been taken in the courtroom right [4743] after the proceedings, but there were some pictures taken in the judge's chambers.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Now, do you recall Mr. Robertson being in the courtroom?

A. Yes, I can visualize him sitting on the witness chair.

Q. And to your best recollection, did he, too, remain with you until the ceremony had been completed?

A. Oh, I am sure he did. I recall a photograph where he is standing alongside of Bridges or standing alongside of myself.

Q. Then your best present recollection is that both you and Mr. Robertson remained in the courtroom until the proceedings had been concluded and Mr. Bridges had taken the oath as a citizen of the United States?

A. Oh, I am satisfied that he did. There was no reason for us to leave.

Mr. Donohue: Shall we take the recess at this period, your Honor?

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Whereupon the jury left the courtroom, and the following proceedings were had outside the presence of the jury:)

The Court: You have a matter to take up at the recess?

Mr. MacInnis: There was some matter referred to in the last few minutes that your Honor said we would take up, but it [4744] has skipped my mind. What was the matter? It kind of jumped out of my mind in the last——

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Court: Well, if you haven't any recollection of that event——

Mr. MacInnis: Do you remember that event?

The Court: Yes, that was the matter of the address.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, no, that was something else. The address of Sam Darcy was one thing, but what was the other?

The Court: That seemed paramount in your mind at the moment.

Mr. MacInnis: No, there was something else, though, your Honor, that your Honor said we would take up at the recess. Some objection that I made.

The Court: No, you asked Mr. Donohue for the whereabouts of Mr. Darcy.

Mr. MacInnis: That is another matter, but there was some matter that I recall your Honor saying we would take up at the recess. But it doesn't come back to my mind.

Mr. Hallinan: I think that was it.

Mr. MacInnis: I can't think of it now, Judge, anyway.

The Court: All right, we will recess.

(Recess.) [4745]

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, with reference to your statement concerning the alleged statement of yours in the Voice of the Federation that we should stay out of the war and that the Yanks were not coming, I understood you to say that you don't think you made that statement?

A. I have absolutely no recollection of having made it.

Q. This was in 1939.

A. This was the paper you showed me which had an article——

Q. Yes, in 1939.

A. ——regarding the Oregon Commonwealth Federation?

Q. No, it was under a byline of the CIO convention which was to be held in San Francisco later that year in which you are purported to have said that our effort should be to keep America out of the war and the Yanks weren't coming. Do you recall that quotation, or shall I show it to you?

A. If you don't mind, I would like to look at it again. I think we were talking about the OCF, which, as I recall, means Oregon Commonwealth Federation.

(Document exhibited to witness.)

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you are quoted here in the Voice of the Federation of Thursday, October 5, 1939, as having said, "We've got to get behind a program for getting America out of the war to be able to show the world that the Yanks aren't coming, Schmidt said." And is it your present recollection that you did not make that [4746] statement?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Yes, I would rather say that I didn't make it.

Q. Well, the Voice of the Federation was a publication of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific?

A. That's right.

Q. And the ILWU was a member of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific?

A. It was one of the component organizations.

Q. Did you hold any office in the ILWU in 1939?

A. It seems to me that was the year that I was not president of the Local 10 in San Francisco.

Q. It is your present recollection that you did not hold any position in the ILWU in 1939?

A. Well, I can go over it chonologically, if you don't mind.

Q. Not at all.

A. I was elected president, as I recall, in the fall of '36. I held the office until the fall of '37, twelve months. I was reelected. That gave me another twelve months. That brings us into the fall of '38, and then the constitution of the local provides that you cannot serve three consecutive terms. Therefore I was out of that office from the fall of '38 until the fall of '39, and I recollect that I was again a candidate, was elected, served twelve months, was again a candidate, and was reelected and served another twelve months. So there was a period there in the latter part of '38 and a substantial portion of [4747] '39 when I wasn't in that office.

Q. Did you make any complaint to the publisher or editor of the Voice of the Federation for having quoted you as having made a statement which you now say you didn't then make?

A. If you can tell me who the editor was at the time, I might recollect it, but just like that, I can't recall.

Q. Could you tell by looking at the paper who the editor was?

A. Oh, I imagine his name is in there. (Document handed to witness). Well, there was an editorial executive board; I notice my own name there as being a member of that executive board.

Q. Do you now recall, Mr. Schmidt, whether you took any step or steps to——

A. Protest, you mean?

Q. ——protest the statement which you now say you didn't make?

A. No, I have no recollection. I don't recall having read the paragraph that you called my attention to.

Q. Did I understand you to say this morning that you were not then in 1939 in favor with those who took the view that the Yanks should not and were not coming?

A. No, I didn't subscribe to that theory at all.

Q. You knew that Bridges did, do you not?

A. Well, he and I are often at variance on some matters.

Q. Is it your now testimony that on this matter you and Mr. Bridges were at variance? [4748]

A. "Were," you say?

Q. You were at variance on this matter?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. You were at variance? A. Yes.

Q. And despite the quoted article in the Voice of the Federation, you were at variance?

A. Yes, of course.

Q. Do you know whether or not in October of 1939, the date of this publication, that at that time Russia and Germany were in a peace pact?

A. Whether or not they were already in a peace pact?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I haven't the date fixed in my mind at all.

Q. You don't recall when it was that the pact was broken by the attack on Russia by Germany?

A. It seems to me that that was some time later.

Q. Some time later. And if the invasion of Russia by Germany took place in June of 1941, would that knowledge refresh your recollection as to whether or not in 1939 Russia and Germany were at peace under a non-aggression treaty?

A. Yes, I recall the situation. I recall the situation, but I am not clear on the dates.

Q. What is your present position with the ILWU, Mr. Schmidt?

A. Well, as I stated previously, the title is International [4749] Representative.

Q. Is that an elective or appointive position?

A. That happens to be an appointive position.

Q. And the appointment was made by whom?

A. Well, it came about in a peculiar manner that requires some explanation.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Would you mind telling us?

A. Not at all. I was asked to go to Hawaii on May 2 or 3 of last year, because a strike had developed there on the last day of April. It was my assignment to look after that strike, the strike of longshoremen. At that time I held the elective position of Coast Labor Relations Committee member. That term was about to expire. In fact, it did expire several weeks or perhaps a month or two after my arrival in Hawaii, and my successor filled my place here in the San Francisco office. At that point I received a letter from Vice President J. R. Robertson, pointing out that after consultation with the other international officers they had appointed me international representative, and along with it he also pointed out that my salary would be cut somewhat.

Q. What was the last elective office you held in the ILWU?

A. The Coast Labor Relations Committee.

Q. Were you recently a candidate for election in Local 110 of the ILWU?

A. Yes, sir, I was a candidate for president, and I was [4750] defeated.

Q. Is the ILWU affiliated with the CIO?

A. It is.

Q. Has any step or steps been taken by the national office of the CIO to cancel the charter of the ILWU?

A. There have been such threats, but no steps that I know of. I understand that charges have been preferred which will make it necessary for some of the international officers to appear somewhere, I suppose in Washington, for a trial.

Q. And was the nature of that charge or those charges a domination of the ILWU by Communists?

A. I believe the charges—I haven't heard these charges made; I wasn't at that convention back East, but I have read about them, and I——

Q. Is that your version of it?

A. My version would be that the union is charged with following the "line."

Q. Now, you have been a member of that union for a great many years? A. Since 1933.

Q. Do you know any members of the Communist Party who are members of that union?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that they are few or many?

A. Would I say what? [4751]

Q. That they are few or many?

A. Oh, I would say they are few.

Q. By the way, at the time when you met Lawrence Ross, did you then know that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I didn't. I didn't ask him when he came into the headquarters at the time. I suppose I took it for granted that he would be, because he started to talk about the Western Worker.

Q. And what did you understand the Western Worker to be?

A. I think he made it clear that it was the organ of the Communist Party. I think it was a weekly paper at that time.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And if Lawrence Ross offered you the services of the Western Worker, a Communist paper, as you describe it, for the purposes of the strike, did you accept it?

A. Oh, I didn't personally.

Q. Well, did he come to see you about it?

A. Yes. I recollect a conversation with this man. I can't recall just what was said. I am pretty sure that we took the proposition and discussed it in the strike committee, and later that day or maybe the following morning. I can't recall what was said there and then. All I can recollect is that the job was done later on. They helped us in getting out this sheet.

Q. Then there isn't any doubt in your mind but that the Communist Party helped you in the '34 strike, is there?

A. In so far as this publication is concerned, yes.

Q. Do you recall the witness Henry Schrimpf testifying that all [4752] of the decisions made in the '34 strike were made by Sam Darcy as head of the Communist Party, that they were good decisions, and that even as he sat on the witness stand, he said he wouldn't have changed one of them; do you recall that?

A. Well, if Henry Schrimpf was satisfied with them, I can't argue with him.

Q. Well, do you disagree with his statement that the decisions were made with respect to the conduct of the strike by Sam Darcy, speaking for the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. That the decisions were made by Sam Darcy?

Q. Yes.

A. I think that is ridiculous. I am just wondering what we were doing on the strike committee. We were making motions, we were discussing propositions, we sometimes opposed motions as members of the strike committee. When motions were adopted, we carried them through to the best of our ability.

Q. And do you remember the witness John Schomaker stating that all the decisions in the '34 strike were made at the instance and upon the advice of Sam Darcy?

A. I recall his testimony, yes.

Q. And you disagree with that statement also?

A. That the decisions were made by this man Darcy?

Q. Yes. A. I certainly do.

Q. And as far as you are able to state, the only help that the [4753] Communist Party gave in the '34 strike was by offering the use of its publication, the Western Worker?

A. That is correct, and it was accepted by the strike committee. And later on, I don't know how much later on, that practice had discontinued. How that came about, I can't recall.

Q. Referring to the incident which you described shortly ago, in which some two and a half years ago you had Judge Foley pointed out to you and you didn't recall him, would that kind of memory perhaps answer the question as to why you don't recognize Stanley Hancock?

A. Will you give me that again?

Q. You testified shortly ago that two and a half years ago——

A. About two and a half years ago.

Q. Which was not much more than two years after the naturalization proceedings before Judge Foley, you saw Judge Foley in a public place, he was pointed out to you by Mr. Bridges, and you failed to recognize him. Do you recall that?

A. I pointed out that these gentlemen waved at each other. They were about 12 or 14 feet from one another, and then I asked Bridges, "Who's that?" and he said, "That is Judge Foley." And I said "Who is he?" Then he said impatiently, "Why, that is the man that made me a citizen. Don't you remember?" So I looked and I said, "Oh."

Q. Well, in your experience thus far, Mr. Schmidt, have you found your memory giving you trouble? [4754]

A. Not too badly. I recall there was an incident took place here at three o'clock when several people couldn't remember something that happened, an hour ago.

Q. And you could? A. Pardon me?

Q. And you could? A. No, I couldn't.

Q. You are sure that it isn't your memory and not a matter of fact that you never saw Stanley

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Hancock before you saw him seated in the witness chair in this courtroom?

A. No, I am pretty sure that I have never seen Stanley Hancock before.

Q. Can you give any explanation or reason why Stanley Hancock should identify you as one who sat with him at a meeting of Communists if such were not the fact?

A. Why, yes. These fellows have become professional stoolpigeons, and they will lend themselves to this kind of program, apparently without much hesitation or none at all.

Q. Did you hear Stanley Hancock from that witness chair say that on the day he received the subpoena and left from Erie, Pennsylvania, to come here to testify, he handed in his resignation to the newspaper for which he worked?

A. Yes, I believe he said that.

Q. What reason do you have for believing that Stanley Hancock is a stool pigeon? [4755]

A. Well, he sat here.

Q. You mean the fact that he testified against you and Mr. Bridges ipso facto classifies him as a stool pigeon?

A. In my humble opinion, yes.

Q. May I ask you if you know the following persons. You have said already that you know Mr. William Schneidermann?

A. Yes, I testified that he was at a public meeting at Dreamland Auditorium, and on another occasion he spoke to a membership meeting of the

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

San Francisco longshoremen, and I have since discovered that he debated a fairly important question and the other person who debated with him was Mr. Paul Smith, of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Q. They were not both on the same side of the debatable question, were they, sir?

A. I fear not.

Q. Are your fears for Mr. Smith or Mr. Schneidermann?

A. Well, I wasn't much worried. They debated one of two questions, either the Russo-Finnish war or the Nazi-Russian pact, one of those two.

Q. Do you know that Mr. Schneidermann is today the district organizer for the Communist Party of this district?

A. Well, it has been repeatedly so stated in these proceedings.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Walter Lambert?

A. I have met him somewhere, but I can't recall where.

Q. Do you know whether or not Walter Lambert is a member of [4756] the Communist Party?

A. No, sir.

Q. Would you believe it if I told you that Mr. Bridges had said publicly and under oath that Walter Lambert was a member of the Communist Party? Would you then believe that Walter Lambert was a member of the Communist Party?

A. If you told me Bridges had so testified?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, I think so.

(Testimony of ~~Henry~~ Schmidt.)

Q. And if Mr. Bridges had so testified, would you believe that Mr. Bridges knew that Walter Lambert was a member of the Communist Party?

A. That is the same question, isn't it?

Q. No, no. The first question was, Would you believe that Mr. Bridges so testified only if I told you, and I appreciate your saying that you would.

A. Well, will you tell me again?

Q. The second question is, Would the fact that Mr. Bridges had so testified under oath persuade you that Mr. Lambert was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, that Mr. Bridges so testified? [4757]

Q. Yes. Well, I suppose that makes Lambert a Communist? A. I don't know.

Q. Didn't you know him to be the trade union director for the Communist Party for the State of California?

A. I have heard it so stated in these proceedings.

Q. And you have never met him?

A. Lambert?

Q. Yes.

A. I told you that I had met him, but I can't recall where.

Q. Can't recall any of the circumstances under which you met him? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever know a man by the name of Harry Jackson? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Harry Jackson to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. 'Well, he was generally known on the waterfront back in '34 as the organizer of the Marine Workers Industrial Union, and that organization was labeled with the red brush, and I sort of took it for granted that Harry Jackson was a member.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. You have already testified that you knew that Sam Darcy was a member of the Communist Party?

A. That was common knowledge.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Alex Noral? [4758] A. Alex what?

Q. Noral, N-o-r-a-l.

A. No, I don't recall that name.

Q. Did you ever know a man by the name of Walter Stack? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you know Walter Stack to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, sir. He has often so stated.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of David Saunders?

A. Is that the man that goes by the nickname of "Butch"?

Q. I am sorry, I never had the pleasure of meeting him. I wouldn't know. Do you know a "Butch" Saunders that you think might be named Dave?

A. That could be.

Q. Did the "Butch"—perhaps Dave—Saunders whom you know, to your knowledge, belong to the Communist Party?

A. I don't know. The last time I saw Butch Saunders I was standing on the dock and a ship was just pulling away and he stuck his head out of the porthole and greeted me. He said, "We are off for Shanghai," or some place.

Q. Did you ever know a man by the name of Archie Brown? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you know him to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. Everybody knows it. He is a member Local 10, ILWU, and he has frequently stated that he is a member of the Communist [4759] Party.

Q. He is one of the members of the ILWU whom you know to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, he says so. I believe he is telling the facts. Saw him yesterday.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of George Maurer, M-a-u-r-e-r? A. M-a-u——

Q. M-a-u-r-e-r.

A. No, that name I don't know.

Q. Did you know Ida Rothstein?

A. How do you spell all that?

Q. Ida, I-d-a Rothstein, R-o-t-h-s-t-e-i-n.

A. No.

Q. I think you said the other day you did not know Elaine Black? A. I didn't say that.

Q. I am sorry. Did you know or do you know Elaine Black?

A. Yes, sir, and I saw her husband over at the Permanente Hospital the other day when we were there. He is an American-born Japanese who fought in the American army and was refused employment after he got back from the war. He is a well known Communist, incidentally.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And did you know Elaine Black to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. I take it for granted she is.

Q. I think I mistook her name for Hazel Woods. I think you [4760] were asked about Hazel Woods yesterday; do you recall?

A. About being asked yesterday?

Q. Yes, about Hazel Woods.

A. And my answer was that I didn't know the lady, that I knew somebody by the name of Virginia Woods.

Q. Didn't you know that Hazel Woods was the wife of Walter Lambert?

A. I never saw Hazel Woods, not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you know a woman by the name of Louise Todd?

A. I have heard that name in San Francisco, but I can't place it.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Pettus Perry? A. What was that again, please?

Q. Pettus, P-e-t-t-u-s, Perry, P-e-r-r-y.

A. No.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Rudy Lambert? A. Brother of Walter Lambert?

Q. Yes.

A. I have heard that name in San Francisco, but I haven't had the pleasure.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Do you know whether or not he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Since I don't know, I wouldn't know.

Q. Did you know Betty Gannett?

A. No, sir. [4761]

Q. You did know John Schomaker?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And did you know him to be a member of the Communist Party? A. No.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Bridges has stated that John Schomaker was known to him to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, apparently Bridges knows more about these things than I do.

Q. You testified the other day about some incident when John Schomaker shook a People's World at you and made some remark. Do you recall now what it was that you said?

A. You are quoting me substantially correctly.

Q. Do you recall when that took place?

A. Well, I think I explained that the other day. It was after Schomaker came out of the service; he had been in the Seabees in Honolulu, I believe. He frequently wrote me from there, commented on what a nice job I was doing, but he was very critical of Bridges in his letters and that stood out when he came back. It was during a convention here in the ILWU building at 150 Golden Gate Avenue, and it was during the noon recess that I met him, down in the financial district. The reason that I was down there is because our offices were then at 644 Montgomery Street. And during the lunch hour we ran into each other and we had a very brief conversation about the convention proceedings. He made some fairly bitter remarks about Bridges, pointed out [4762] that he was on the beam and that the reason he was on the beam was because he read this paper, People's World.

Q. And do you know the People's World to be a Communist publication?

A. Oh, I take it for granted that it is.

Q. And was the fact that John Schomaker had the People's World with him what led you to the conclusion that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, he was so emphatic about it. He said, "Brother, I've got a program, and you read this paper and you will get on the beam."

Q. And that was probably 1945 or 1946, after the war?

A. Well, I would like an opportunity to check when that convention took place, and then I could better fix it.

Q. Well, it was after the war?

A. Well, he was no longer wearing the uniform, so I guess it was after the war.

Q. You were a witness in Mr. Bridges' deportation proceedings, were you not?

A. You mean nine or ten years ago?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, yes.

Q. And didn't you know that at that proceeding

Mr. Bridges had testified that John Schomaker was a member of the Communist Party? [4763]

A. No, sir, I didn't sit here every day in those days, and I haven't read every word of that stack of books that was lying on that table for so long.

Mr. Donohue: Might we take our recess at this time, if your Honor please?

The Court: All right.

We will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial. You are not to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Wednesday, February 1, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4764]

Wednesday, February 1, 1950, 10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. MacInnis: May we interrupt with another witness, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Will the bailiff please call Father Paul Meinecke.

FATHER PAUL MEINECKE

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury.

The Witness: My name is Father Paul Meinecke.

The Clerk: Will you spell the last name.

The Witness: M-e-i-n-e-c-k-e.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Father Meinecke, you are a duly ordained priest in the Roman Catholic Church?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you have been a priest and duly ordained and acting as such for about how many years? A. Almost twenty years a priest.

Q. Where are you stationed now, Father Meinecke?

A. I have my own parish in Eureka, [4765] Nevada.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. And who is your superior?

A. His Excellency Bishop Thomas K. Gorman, Bishop of Reno.

Q. His office and his cathedral is in Reno, Nevada, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Previous to the last few years were you in San Francisco?

A. I was stationed here as an assistant in a parish for about ten years.

Q. What parish was that, Father Meinecke?

A. That was St. Boniface Church, right here in the neighborhood.

Q. And what were the ten years approximately in which you served as assistant in St. Boniface Church?

A. I would say about from 1936-37 to the following ten years.

Q. Now, while you were at St. Boniface Church you were known as Father Paul in the monastery at St. Boniface, is that correct?

A. That is correct. In a religious order it is more or less the custom that you are addressed by your first name rather than your last name.

Q. And as I understand it, after that time you received a papal dispensation to be transferred to do missionary work in Nevada?

A. That is right, with the full approval of my superiors.

Q. And what is the nature of the missionary work in which you are now engaged in addition to your duties as the head of a [4766] parish?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. Well, like I told you before, I have my own parish there in Eureka, but there are not too many priests in Nevada. We are called on to do a lot of extra work, and I not only take care of Eureka, I take care of Austin, that is about 70 miles east of the town of Eureka and the next town. I also take care of the parish of McGill, Ruth, Caliente and Pioche, a distance of about 500 miles.

Q. Those towns are denominated as missions in the course of your work, is that correct?

A. Not exactly. They are real parishes. If there were enough priests working in Nevada we would have an ordained pastor in every one of those parishes.

Q. But what I mean is, you travel from one place to another?

A. That is right. I cover all my parishes at least once a month.

Q. While you were in San Francisco, Father Meinecke, did you at any time become interested in the labor movement in San Francisco?

A. Yes, I was very much interested in it, as many other priests are, too.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the forming of the association of Catholic Trade Unions in San Francisco?

A. Well, Mr. MacInnis, some people forget things, but it has always been one of my very happy memories that I conceived the [4767] idea of organizing that association and bringing it here to San Francisco, that is, the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists, which I believe is still in existence.

Q. What was the purpose of that organization, Father Meinecke?

Mr. Donohue: Excuse me, Father. I am afraid I must object, if your Honor please. I assume that the witness was brought here as a character witness, and while interesting, this matter is not pertinent.

Mr. MacInnis: This is preliminary, your Honor, merely to show his relationship to one of the defendants.

The Court: I will overrule the objection.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What was the purpose, Father Meinecke, of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists?

A. Oh, it is an instrument to—by which you can train and teach union people their duties and obligations toward the union, make them better acquainted with the principles of trade unionism. It isn't an organization that is opposed or separate from a trade union, it is a supplement; it is a place where we give them training, and it has its source in the Catholic Church. It was organized specifically at the wishes of Holy Father Pope Pius XI, who wanted such an organization.

Q. Now, Father Meinecke, in the course of your activities in connection with the labor movement, did you come to meet a man named Harry Bridges?

A. I did. Among many other labor leaders, I met Harry Bridges. [4768]

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. When approximately did you first meet Harry Bridges?

A. Well, I couldn't say definitely. I couldn't give you the day or the hour or the place, but I would say that we were fairly good friends by about 1937-1938.

Q. What were the circumstances, if you can remember, of your early meeting with him?

A. Well, due to my work, I had to make it my business to get to know those people, especially to know the leaders in the unions. And as I said before, I couldn't put my finger on the precise day, but I say by about '38 we were fairly good friends, because I was trying to rehearse my memory just when I met the gentleman. But the earliest outstanding thing in my memory is I can remember Mr. Bridges coming over to our church one day and asking me if I could recommend a Catholic school for his daughter, and I believe that is the first time that I met his daughter. And if my memory doesn't fail me, I believe that I approached the authorities of St. Brigid's school here in San Francisco, and his daughter was placed there to his satisfaction. But I know that definitely at that time we were good friends, because he looked me up specifically for that purpose. [4769]

Q. In other words, from time to time Mr. Bridges visited you and I suppose you visited him, is that correct?

A. That is correct, and we met as a group.

Q. When you say, "We met as a group," do you have reference to any particular persons?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. Other members of the trade union movement, people—even priests like myself who realize that is part of our work, something we should be interested in.

Q. Mr. Bridges, I take it, consulted you upon religious problems as well as upon problems connected only with the labor movement, is that correct?

A. That is correct. That is correct because he was a Catholic, although he was not a member of our parish, and certainly those things came up.

Q. Did your acquaintanceship or friendship with Harry Bridges remain constant during all of the years you were here in San Francisco?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you from time to time discuss Harry Bridges with other persons in this community and did you hear his name mentioned by other persons?

A. He was a very frequent topic of conversation.

Q. When I suggest that he may have been a topic of conversation, I have reference to his reputation in this community for truth, honesty and integrity. Did you hear those qualities discussed [4770] by people in this community?

A. Well, not directly as you put it, but we all were aware of the gossip and all the rumors and, if you wish, newspaper talk about him, unfavorable opinions that people had of him, and so we who knew him thoroughly could not help but express our own opinions about those things.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. Father Meinecke, based upon your own acquaintanceship with Harry Bridges and based also upon such words or utterances of other people which have come to your ears, are you in a position to tell us what the reputation of Harry Bridges is for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. I give you my personal opinion. I would say it is of the best. In all of his associations with me personally as a priest, he not only was truthful, honest and an upright man, he was more.

Q. Thank you very much.

A. As a priest—I beg your pardon—as a priest, you know, I do not say that I am as smart as most people, but you should give each priest a little credit for shrewdness, a little judgment of character, and you know that I would not associate myself publicly and be known here in the city by many thousands of people as a very good friend of Harry Bridges if I had the slightest doubt about his character. See?

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you. [4771]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Did I understand you to say, Father, that Mr. Bridges is a Catholic or was a Catholic?

A. Is a Catholic.

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact that Mr. Bridges has married a second time with a first wife surviving? A. Many Catholics do that.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Bridges was married by a Catholic priest and in the Catholic church?

A. I am not aware that he was, but I can tell you that if the circumstances are as you say his second marriage could not have been performed by a priest unless the first one was investigated by his bishop and declared to be invalid. Then he may marry again and a priest may perform the ceremony.

Q. If he were not married a second time by a priest, would you say that he was still a Roman Catholic?

A. That is one thing you cannot erase.

Q. What is the one thing you cannot erase?

A. When a man is baptized a Catholic, he is a Catholic forever, whether he works at it, whether he is faithful to his religious obligations constantly, or if he drops them for a while. If he wants to come back, he does not have to be baptized a Catholic again. He is always a Catholic, and while there is life there is hope.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether Harry Bridges is [4772] what you understand by the term a practicing Catholic?

A. No, I would not consider Harry Bridges a practical Catholic.

Q. During the time that you knew Harry Bridges did you know him to attend regularly the obligations of the Catholic church, to attend mass on Sundays and holy days of obligation?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. Mr. Donohue, that was part of my business, and our association to work towards that end.

Q. Did he answer just as I do towards many people who are not as practical as they ought to be? Did Mr. Bridges?

A. He did not belong to our parish. Neither did he live in our neighborhood. Therefore I could not give you—I wouldn't know.

Q. In your close personal friendship for Harry Bridges over a good many years and in the very numerous instances when you discussed, as you said to Mr. MacInnis, religious matters with him, did you discuss with him the salvation of his own soul?

A. As I said before, that was a big piece of our association and that subject came up many times.

Q. Are you not in a position to tell us whether or not during the years that you knew Harry Bridges he was a practicing Catholic and participating in the sacraments of the Catholic church?

A. My talks with him were not as successful as I wish they might have been, but I said before, while there is life there is [4773] hope.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Father, what you are saying is Harry Bridges was a Catholic, and there is still hope that he might again become a Catholic?

A. He can't become a Catholic again. He could become a practical Catholic but he is a Catholic. I know that he comes from a Catholic family.

Q. Isn't that the reason for your stating that he is a Catholic because he came from a Catholic family?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. Would you rephrase that, please?

Q. Isn't that the reason that you now state that Harry Bridges is a Catholic because you know he came from a Catholic family?

A. No, I know he is a Catholic on his own. Whether his mother and father were or were not would have no bearing on it. My own father and mother are not Catholics, but I am.

Q. You also know he is not a practical Catholic, do you not, Father? A. I know that.

Q. In the organization of the Catholic trade union movement, did you come in contact at all or have any experience with the fact that the trade union movement in this area as well as in other areas had been infiltrated by the Communist Party?

A. All the more reason for us to get interested in it.

Q. Would you answer the question, Father: Did you find that to be a fact? [4774]

A. Just like in any other organization like a trade union, you will find all sorts of people.

Q. Would you still answer the question, Father: Did you find any infiltration by the Communist Party in the trade union movement in this area?

A. Yes.

Q. And as a priest of the Catholic church, did that cause you any concern?

A. It certainly did. It made me more interested in the trade union movement and aware of our obligations to get to help those people.

Q. Help what people?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. People who were in the unions, show them that we priests have an interest in their problems.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Harry Bridges the question of the infiltration of the Communist Party into the trade union movement?

A. Not that I specifically remember. It may have come up, but it slips my memory now as a subject of conversation.

Q. Among the many rumors and bits of gossip that you stated you heard about Harry Bridges, were any of those bits of information with respect to the question as to whether or not Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Look, Mr. Donohue——

Q. Could you answer the question, [4775] Father?

A. I made it my business to investigate that very thing.

Q. Tell us the result of your investigation, Father.

A. I will. Over the period of years I knew the man and I have discussed many, many things with him over periods of hours, I made it my business as a priest to find out what kind of ideas were in his head, what sort of philosophy he was dominated by, his own principles. And give me credit enough for being enough of a judge of human character and human nature that I could plant discussions on him. I could put in questions so that even though he did not give me a direct answer, I could read between the lines.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Now, this is not once. This is over a period of years, because I was aware of all the rumors about the man and the gossip. People would ask me, they would say, "Father, you know Harry Bridges. What do you think?"

And I will tell you what I always told them: "I know the man. I know his ideas. There is a great distinction, although some people are not aware of it, between militant trade unionism and Communism. There is a great difference." And I would say that Harry Bridges is, was during those years that I knew him, a militant trade unionist and a great leader, because when he comes up for election in his union, he could get dumped but they always revoted him in. He got reelected.

But going back to that question——.

Q. Will you answer it? [4776]

A. I know it is important, but from all my conversation with him, all the times we discussed the subject, I always went home with the idea, "They are all wrong. Harry is no Communist. Harry is not a radical. He is a militant trade unionist, but he is not a Communist." I can recognize Communism.

Q. Can you tell a Communist when you see him, Father?

A. I certainly—not by seeing him, no, but give me the man and let me talk with him, not for an hour, but over a long period of time, to meet him again under different circumstances, and I can point out a Communist to you. It is ideas in their head which will come out in their conversation and if he were a Communist——

Q. Father——

A. I beg your pardon—if he were a Communist, he would have slipped at least once or twice and said something that would convince me the man is a Communist. But he never slipped. He never defended the thing. He never gave out with any ideas that would lead me to believe that he is a Communist. And I tell you that very sincerely. Mr. Donohue, as a Catholic priest, if I had the slightest notion that Harry Bridges was a Communist, I would not be here. If I had any suspicion whatsoever that he was, I would not be sitting here as his friend.

Q. Now, will you answer my question?

A. Will you rephrase it? Pardon me for being so windy. [4777]

Q. I asked you, Father, whether or not among the items of gossip and rumor which you stated to Mr. MacInnis came to your attention about Harry Bridges, was there any part of that concerned with the fact that he was a member of the Communist Party?

Mr. MacInnis: That is a different question altogether, Your Honor.

The Witness: That is rather involved.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Let me put it a little simpler to you, Father: Did you ever hear anyone say that Harry Bridges was a Communist?

A. Loads of people say that, victims of gossip, people who repeat things they do not know about, and they just repeat and repeat. Surely, I have heard people say that Harry Bridges was a Communist.

Q. And you say loads of that character?

A. Yes, lots of people said that.

Q. How many people have you heard say he was a man of honesty, veracity and integrity?

A. You do not say that thing about a person.

Q. Let me ask you, did you ever hear anyone say he was a man of honesty, veracity and integrity?

A. That is not fair.

Q. Will you answer the question, Father?

A. You are involving me in something that can be twisted against [4778] a man, something I do not intend to do.

Q. Do you understand, Father, that you are here to testify not as to your personal opinion as to Harry Bridges but as to his reputation in the community for truth, veracity, honesty and integrity?

A. By the very fact, Mr. Donohue, that no one among the people who knew him impugned his veracity or spoke against his uprightness, then I will answer your question and say, certainly, people said good things about him on that score. By the fact that they did not attack those qualities in his character, they did not impugn him.

Q. I ask you again the direct question, Father: Did you ever hear anyone say in your presence that Harry Bridges was a man of honesty, integrity, truth and veracity?

A. As you put it, like the lines out of a play, of course not. Who is going out of his way to make a statement like that? My bishop has probably never heard anyone say those things about me just that way.

Q. Then it is a fact, Father, you never heard anyone say that Harry Bridges was a man of truth, honesty, veracity and integrity, correct?

A. In those very words I have to say yes, but that is not a fair question. No one said that about me either. Those qualities are assumed until someone attacks them.

Q. And your testimony is based upon that assumption except for [4779] your own personal experience?

A. Maybe I am dumb. Will you do that over again, please?

Q. Is your testimony based upon that assumption of negative testimony except for your personal experience with the defendant Harry Bridges?

A. No, there is lots of positive in it, too.

Q. Would you tell us the positive that you heard from some other person other than yourself?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. You are asking me to remember conversations that go back five, ten, fifteen years. What man can do that?

Q. I am asking you only, Father, if you are able to tell me if any person or persons ever discussed with you the reputation of Harry Bridges and said he was a man of truth, honesty, veracity and integrity?

A. If you boil those three things down, those three qualities, boil them down to one element, then I would say that we who knew him always came to the conclusion that he had those qualities.

Q. Father, are you naive enough to believe that a member of the Communist Party would tell you that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Some did. I knew Communists who boasted about it.

Q. Are you naive enough to believe that Harry Bridges, who has denied his association and membership in the Communist Party on every possible occasion, would tell you if he were a member of the Communist Party? [4780]

A. If he told me he were not and yet he were a Communist, out of all of our associations I would have found out about it. And you would say, "Why?" By reading between the lines.

Q. Father, you are a priest and not a psychiatrist, are you not?

A. Every priest is a fairly good [4780-A] psychiatrist.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, at this time I move to strike the testimony of the witness on the ground that he has testified only as to his personal opinion of the defendant Harry Bridges, which negatives the possibility that his testimony may stand as to the reputation of the defendant Harry Bridges because, despite what may be, the rule in People v. Adams, which I think Mr. MacInnis cited one day——

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Court: 1902.

Mr. Donohue: ——the rule in the Federal Court is well established that a general reputation for good character is a factor which a jury is entitled to consider among other bits of evidence in arriving at a determination of the guilt or innocence of an accused—a general reputation for good character. A man's character, as I understand all of the decisions, is what in fact he is. His reputation is the estimation of that man's character in the community in which he lives or works.

I most respectfully, therefore, say to your Honor that this witness has voiced nothing other than a personal opinion and has in fact negatived by his own testimony any possibility that the opinion which he is citing here is a statement of the reputation of Mr. Bridges, but is positive in that it is his own personal opinion. And for that reason I most respectfully urge your Honor to strike his testimony from the record. And if there be any doubt as to the accuracy of my statement, I shall be glad to submit a memorandum to your [4781] Honor.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Mr. MacInnis: Now, the only striking thing about the remarks of the special prosecutor is that they are not so, because this witness, prodded by the special prosecutor, said that he had not only negative evidence of the character of Harry Bridges but positive evidence. He said that the precise words "truth, honesty and integrity" were not used in that stilted language, but many people who discussed the matter with him came to the same conclusion as himself. And that is the only test that the law imposes, that the opinion given by a witness be a composite of his own knowledge and acquaintance with the person involved plus such discussions as may have come to his ears from members of the community in which he lived. Now, he said that, your Honor; he has said it three or four times, and because he has expressed a personal opinion due to the cross-examination, his testimony becomes stronger, not weaker, for that reason, and there is no possible ground upon which this testimony should be stricken.

I will invite your Honor to ask the witness if the answer he gives is not a composite of his own knowledge of the man plus what other people in the community have said.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, you are counsel for several of the defendants. You may ask him that if you are so advised.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: It is not the province of a court to examine the witness. You ask the questions, if you like. [4782]

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, I will be glad to do that.

Q. Father Meinecke, tell us if it is not a fact that the opinion that you give concerning the good reputation of Harry Bridges for the qualities of truth, honesty and integrity is based upon two things: First, your own knowledge and acquaintanceship wth him, and, secondly, such things as you have heard said by other persons in this community.

Mr. Donohue: I object to the question, if your Honor pleases.

A. You are absolutely correct.

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute, Father. I object to the question, if your Honor please, because the law is certain that it is not the individual's opinion which is admissible before a jury as a matter of reputation; it is the general reputation in the community of the particular defendant for the particular virtue which Mr. MacInnis ascribed.

The Court: The so-called trait involved. That is a correct statement of the general principle, no question about it.

Mr. MacInnis: That is right.

The Witness: May I say this: What you gentlemen were arguing about, my personal opinion——

Mr. Paisley: No volunteer statements.

The Witness: It is largely dictated by—what do you call that other thing?—public opinion or the opinion of others, their estimation of the man. These people who knew him maybe [4783] better than I did dictated largely my own opinion, and my own experiences confirmed that opinion. I did not learn this thing as though I were living in a little watertight compartment. I dealt with other people whose ideas about Harry Bridges I listened to, people who knew him, people whose opinion I could trust, people whom I knew knew what they were talking about. To name names—of course, I do not wish to involve others, but I remember on many occasions, he was then Senator John Francis Shelley; he was a very good friend of ours. I knew that he knew Bridges and he was a very good friend of mine. Those people always did some wonderful things for me. I never forget what they did for me back in 1940 when I needed a friend.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What was 1940?

A. But these people——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis asked you a question.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): What was 1940, Father?

A. Now, I suppose that is a personal thing. 1940——

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute, please, Father. I think, if your Honor please, that a question should be asked of the witness to develop the only fact or factor which is admissible as a matter of law, and that the good Father should not be permitted to make generous voluntary statements which are not admissible as a matter of law.

Mr. MacInnis: Judge, I didn't invite the cross-examination. [4784]

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Mr. Donohue: This is a court of law and not——

Mr. MacInnis: The special prosecutor may not quell the statements of a witness because he is displeased with them. And he chose to cross-examine the witness and open various avenues——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, proceed with the question, if you have one.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): You said that persons such as Mr. Shelley and Mr. Bridges performed some service for you in 1940. What was that?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please, What difference does it make what the service was?

The Court: Is this a matter of personal concern, Father?

The Witness: No, it shows——.

The Court: Would you answer the question.

The Witness (continuing): ——the attitude of those men towards me.

The Court: It was a matter of personal concern to you, was it not? Whatever services were performed were of a personal nature?

The Witness: Involving all the members of their unions, yes.

Mr. MacInnis: I think it would be a proper subject, your Honor.

The Court: I will sustain the objection. [4785]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Father Meinecke, the special prosecutor chose to ask you some questions about the personal life of Harry Bridges, the fact that he has remarried. Let me ask you this: Has he consulted you as to any steps which he might take in order to validate his second marriage in the eyes of the Catholic Church?

A. Years ago when I was an assistant here as a priest here in San Francisco he did approach me on that very subject.

Q. Now, as a Catholic priest engaged in the work which you have followed, as you say, for twenty years, you are not a friend of Communism, I take it? A. By no means.

Q. The special prosecutor asked you if you had found any infiltration of Communists into unions in San Francisco, and I take it from your answer that you actually conducted an investigation to that end, is that correct?

A. I made it my business to be well aware of that situation, and how many there were and what they were doing, and who they are and their tactics and their program. I made it my business to know all those things. As many another has expressed this, we want to know what the opposition is doing, so we try to be alert on the subject so that we do not go off half cocked and make gratuitous statements about Communism. We tried to get the facts.

Q. Let me ask you this: If you were not convinced from all of [4786] the bases which you have outlined that Harry Bridges was not and could not have been a Communist, would you have given the testimony that you have offered to the Court and jury?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute. Just a minute. I object to the question. It doesn't make any difference whether he is convinced or not convinced.

The Court: The witness has already testified on that subject.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Father, are there trade unions up in Eureka, Nevada, where you are now stationed?

A. Unfortunately, the present policy of Washington is that no mining is to be done in Western United States. Our mines are closed. There are no jobs. My poor little parishes are suffering. So where there are no mines operating, there are no workers, there are no unions.

Q. I was wondering whether there was any reason, after your ten years' experience with the trade union movement, for your being assigned to an area in which there is no trade union movement at all.

A. A very interesting question. No connection whatsoever, and I forgive you for the slur.

Q. I didn't ask for forgiveness, and I meant no slur. I asked you a question. You understand that this is a court of law. [4787]

A. Yes, sir. My superiors always gave me loyal backing and approval and urged me to take an interest in the trade union movement and in the problems and knowing these people and being helpful to them. My superiors approved of that fully and gave me full encouragement.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. And it was your superiors who moved you to Eureka, Nevada?

A. No, I requested it. The records show that.

Q. Father, did you ever hear in the years that you knew Harry Bridges, Harry Bridges ever make a public utterance in opposition to the Communist Party? A. That, like your other question——

Q. Did you or did you not, Father?

A. You see, I say "No," then you draw a conclusion from that. There was no occasion for it.

Q. Father, you are not a lawyer as well as a psychiatrist, are you? Are you, Father?

Mr. MacInnis: I would suggest, your Honor, that——

A. No.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): At the present time?

A. No, Mr. Donohue.

Mr. MacInnis: If you won't do anything, I will. I won't stand for questions like that.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, there is no impropriety——

Mr. MacInnis: If you won't interfere here——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, there is no impropriety in the [4788] question addressed to Father Meinecke by Mr. Donohue. Very many priests have graduated from law, distinguished themselves as lawyers. I have in mind Father Raymond Feeley.

Mr. MacInnis: I know of him.

The Court: A distinguished priest.

Mr. MacInnis: He is the only one I have ever heard of.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Court: I have in mind others. But it may well be that Father Meinecke pursued a professional career before he espoused the priesthood. That applies likewise to Christian Brothers and the priests.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't think that you think that, Judge.

The Court: It is perfectly proper.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't think that the prosecutor meant it in that light.

The Court: How the prosecutor meant it is probably for the jury and probably for the Court. Whatever inference you may draw, of course you may draw. The question was perfectly proper.

Mr. Donohue, proceed.

Mr. MacInnis: I suggest the prosecutor meant to draw an entirely improper inference from the question.

The Court: That may be your opinion. You are entitled to harbor it.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Would you answer the question, Father, as to whether or not during the many years that you knew and [4780] were a close friend of Harry Bridges you ever heard him publicly utter a single word of criticism against the Communist Party?

A. I didn't hear it with my own ears, but I remember one day when—probably a public fact; if the Court will pardon me I will quote the statement. May I be forgiven for quoting it directly?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

I remember being told, "See see, Harry Bridges is not a Communist."

I said, "What convinced you?"

He said, "Because he told"—I don't know who the name was at the time; he was the head of the Communist Party around in these parts—he said, "Harry Bridges told him to go to hell." And among ourselves we know you can't do that in a disciplined organization of the Communist Party.

Q. Now, in the many years that you knew Harry Bridges, Father, you were pretty close to him?

A. Right.

Q. You followed his public career, right?

A. Right.

Q. Is that the only incident that you can tell us in which Harry Bridges in the countless thousands of public speeches and public utterances, has ever uttered a single word critical of the Communist Party?

A. Because in his speeches at unions that I attended where I listened to him, he was being positive; he had his mind on [4790] his business; he was not taking in extraneous subjects; he was talking about the business at issue—the cause of the strike or the problem before the men.

Q. In his countless thousands of public utterances over the years you have known him, Father, did you ever hear him utter a single word critical of the Soviet Government?

A. If I had more time to refresh my memory I might be able to dig up some. Tonight I will probably think of five answers to that question, but right now nothing is fresh in my memory.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. In your attempt to eradicate Communism from the trade union movement in this area, if you made such an attempt, what part did Harry Bridges play in the effort?

A. He always gave me his good will. If he were for it, he would have discouraged me, he would have thrown cold water on my efforts.

Q. Did you ever hear him make a speech in your behalf before a labor union or before the public of this area in which he urged his audience to eliminate Communists from the union?

A. They were not as great a problem as some people think in those days. The fact that we knew who they were and how they operated—men like Mr. Bridges could nullify their efforts.

Q. Did you ever hear Mr. Bridges make a statement to his union urging his union to expel the Communists from his union?

A. I don't think that is possible. If you knew how unions operate, you would know that is not possible. If you were an [4791] employer and had 15 people working for you in a shop and his agent came in and organized them, got them into a union, say you had two Communists working for you among those 15 workers. They are blanketed into the union. The blame is upon the employer for hiring two Communists. What is the union going to do? It wants to make union people there out of your place who are hiring the Communists.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. Father, it may be a difficult task, but it isn't impossible——

A. What would you do as an employer?

Q. Each will share his part of the blame.

A. What would you do as an employer?

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you very much. Shall we take the recess?

The Court: One question, Father Meinecke.

Q. Did you receive a subpoena to attend this court?

A. That is the reason I am here, your Honor. A subpoena was served on me over in Eureka, Nevada, and I consulted with people who are my superiors what I should do about it, and they told me, "Obey."

Q. Did you arrive here today, Father, this morning? A. I came in yesterday.

Q. Have you had any discussions before taking your place on the witness stand with any persons?

A. Yes, I spoke to Mr. MacInnis. [4792]

Q. At his offices?

A. Not at his office; at his home.

Q. At his home. When did you meet at his home, Father? A. Last evening.

Q. Did you have dinner there at his home?

A. That is correct, your Excellency — your Honor——

The Court: Thank you very much.

The Witness: I thought you were my Bishop.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Court: You are rather complimentary. After you spent the evening there and enjoyed the social activities, then you had a discussion concerning the testimony tht might be given in this case?

A. That is right. I asked that my memory be refreshed; I very rarely see a newspaper.

Q. May I ask you, Father, to what extent did you ask Mr. MacInnis to refresh your memory or recollection?

A. To tell me how the case has been going up to the present time——

Q. He no doubt told you the case was going all right for the defendants, did he?

Mr. MacInnis: I thank your Honor for his thoughtfulness.

The Witness: His general tone was optimistic.

The Court: Just a moment.

The Witness: His general tone was optimistic.

The Court: Now, to what other extent did your memory [4793] become refreshed by your conversation with Mr. MacInnis?

A. I was trying—I knew that questions would be asked me and I wanted to try to be direct and factual and to the point and not hedge. So the first thing we had to agree on was what year I first got to know Harry Bridges, and then——

Q. Do you have difficulty, Father, with your memory or recollection under ordinary conditions?

A. In Nevada there are no clocks and no calendars. We don't know one day from another, and it is easy for one to become careless about pegging dates, although I wasn't that way when I was here in San Francisco.

Q. In San Francisco, Father, you were perfectly conversant and well oriented, weren't you, with respect to dates and the like? A. That's right.

Q. Since you went to Nevada your orientation has become poor, has it?

A. No; the years have sort of run together. I say a couple of years ago, and then I remember back, it was 15 years ago.

Q. Have you been recently subjected to medical treatment, Father?

Mr. Hallinan: If the Court please, I am going to object to these questions.

Mr. MacInnis: Let me in.

Mr. Hallinan: I want to enter a legal objection. Your [4794] Honor has seen the Manning Johnsons, the Courches, and Rosses and everybody get on that stand and we asked whether they were insane or not. I object to your Honor's question. I object to that last question and assign that a misconduct, and I ask that the jury be instructed to ignore the implication of the question.

The Court: There is no occasion for any admonition to the jury. Mr. MacInnis invited it.

Mr. MacInnis: I never heard of such a question.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis invited me to ask the question.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor refused to do that and I asked a question.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Court: I have the greatest respect for men of the cloth, as we all have.

Mr. MacInnis: You are demonstrating it.

The Court: There is no impropriety in my questioning.

Mr. MacInnis: I say there is.

The Court: He asserted his present memory is not good. I asked him whether or not his recollection was good while he was here years ago. He said yes, it was good years ago. I don't see any reason for the criticism.

Mr. MacInnis: When one of the prosecution witnesses was on the stand we asked him if he had received medical treatment, and now you ask a priest who comes here and gives testimony the same question. [4795]

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen——

Mr. MacInnis: I think you should cite yourself for misconduct.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen——

Mr. MacInnis: I have never heard anything like that. You ought to be ashamed of yourself.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, could I ask your Honor to recess at this time and ask the Father to remain until after the recess period?

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I say to you at this stage of the case that the questions that I asked were asked in perfect propriety. Any question I addressed to the priest was born as a result of the examination conducted on direct and cross-examination. Mr. MacInnis invited me to query the priest. At that juncture I refrained from interrogating him.

I say to you that the respect I have for the priest or any priest or any man of the cloth, be he Catholic, Protestant or any other faith or denomination, is not to be reflected upon by anything I asked this man. A witness coming into a court of law, ladies and gentlemen, subjects himself or herself to cross-examination, and when a person responds to direct questions, that person in the course of events is to be and should be subjected to cross-examination. I believe that the questions presented by Mr. Donohue to this priest were dignified [4796] and proper. I think that the questions I asked the priest were dignified and proper.

Now we will take a recess.

Mr. Hallinan: May I make a motion before you do? I move for a mistrial upon the misconduct of the Court in the type of questions addressed to this priest as tending to reflect—the jury could arrive at some conclusion that it was a reflection upon the credibility of Father Paul.

The Court: The motion——

Mr. Hallinan: And we move for a mistrial upon the ground that your Honor's questions were improper and tend to prejudice these defendants by causing some shadow and some reflection to be cast upon a witness who has merely obeyed a subpoena to come in to give his opinion.

The Court: The motion is denied. In fact, I developed the situation that the witness was subpoenaed. It was my first question, Mr. Hallinan.

The motion for a mistrial is denied.

We will take the recess.

Father, do you mind remaining for a few minutes?

The Witness: No, certainly not.

The Court: You may come into my chambers if you wish, or make yourself perfectly at home.

The Witness: Thank you.

The Court: Be careful going down the [4797] stairs.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the courtroom.)

The Court: Do you have some matters, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: No, your Honor. I simply asked your Honor to ask the Father to remain a few minutes. You have already done that.

The Court: Father Meinecke, would you mind remaining a few minutes?

The Witness: I beg your pardon?

The Court: May I ask you to remain for a few minutes?

The Witness: Certainly.

The Court: We will take the recess.

(Recess.) [4798]

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, at this time I would ask Your Honor to ask Father Meinecke if he may not remain over until tomorrow morning.

Mr. MacInnis: What is the purpose? If there is some legitimate purpose, we have no objection and we couldn't have, but if the counsel will state the purpose, as we so often have been required to do——

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I appreciate your comment. If Mr. Donohue is prepared to disclose the purpose——

Mr. Donohue: Yes, Your Honor. I wish to read the transcript of the Father's testimony before further cross-examination is had.

Mr. MacInnis: We have no legal objection. If he can do that by 2:00 o'clock today, it would be better. I assume that it would be within Your Honor's discretion to ask Father Meinecke to remain, and we will not object to it if you think it is proper.

The Court: Thank you. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I have one brief statement to make to you in the light of a possible misconception on the part of the Court, at least on the part of counsel and the Court addressing questions to witnesses. I have not had an opportunity to examine the transcript. There was considerable discussion at or about the time that I addressed several questions to the father. I said to you then, and I repeat now, that the questions that I addressed to Father [4799] Meinecke were, I believe, pursuant to the inquiry at hand. Only in passing I think the first question I asked him was whether or not he was subpoenaed. That was overlooked. I think in fairness to Father Meinecke it was a question that should have been asked, showing his purpose in coming here.

As I indicated to you at the outset of this case, and as I repeat constantly, and as I will have occasion to tell you at the conclusion of this case, the question of the credibility of witnesses, their reasons or motives in testifying, all and singular, the factual issues remain with you and are for you in their ultimate determination. I have no province—ordinarily not, I say—in the determination of the factual background or consideration of this case. Any conversations I have had with counsel on either side, prosecution or defense, or any colloquy that we may have had, may not be regarded by you as reflecting the Court's view upon this matter at all, nor as reflecting upon either Mr. Schmidt now on the stand, Mr. Robertson or Mr. Bridges. Any discussions with counsel in your presence or out of your presence, if they have been brought to your attention, are not to prejudice you in any manner concerning the guilt or innocence of these men on trial. It is my sworn duty, and it is your sworn duty, to provide the defendants on trial with a fair and impartial trial. Likewise under our oath it is our sworn duty to accord the prosecution, the Government of the United States, a fair trial. [4800]

Latterly, in my examination of Father Meinecke some mention was made by counsel concerning the asserted impropriety of a question on my part to the father. I might say to you that that was not born of any desire on my part, nor was it designed to inquire into Father Meinecke's mental processes.

Nor was it to reflect upon his integrity. The question was born and conceived out of a desire on my part to accord fairness to the witness, for the reason that mention was made during the course of this testimony that he left San Francisco for Nevada; an inference might be drawn from that departure that it had something to do with activities in trade unionism and the like. The father on the witness stand volunteered that he asked to be transferred. I merely wanted to inquire, ladies and gentlemen, a very simple question, not born of curiosity on my part, but born of a desire to provide you with all the facts surrounding the father, and it was to the end that I might inquire as to his health. Very many people have to leave large metropolitan areas to go to less burdensome parishes and that was the reason underlying my question.

Now, you may proceed, counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: Before I proceed, I want the record to show an objection to those portions of your last remarks which are offered in explanation of the questions posed to the witness, Father Paul Meinecke, upon the ground that your remarks are self-serving, gratuitous, and have the total effect of adding injury [4801] to injury. I think we obviously have no position in this case to offer in argument in rebuttal of Your Honor's remark, but I suggest that the explanatory remarks are at least partially as improper as the ones originally made, and I want to object to those remarks remaining in the record.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed the stand.

Cross-Examination (Continued)

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, when you gave us your address I think you said 559 Eleventh Avenue?

A. That is right.

Q. I take it that that is your residence address?

A. Correct.

Q. How long have you lived there?

A. Only since the first of January.

Q. What was your residence address in San Francisco prior to that time?

A. I lived at 722-25th Avenue for approximately 13 months, but during that 13 months' period I was in Hawaii for six months, but I kept the little apartment.

Q. Prior to 722-23rd Avenue, where did you live in San Francisco?

A. I lived for one year in Marin County in the house of Mr. Robertson. During that period he was in Hawaii most of the time. [4802]

Q. And in San Francisco at what other address or addresses have you lived?

A. At 1156 Sanchez Street for about 12 years. Prior to that at 218 Madison Street.

Q. I am sorry—was that Addison?

A. Madison—oh, 8 or 9, perhaps 10 years at that residence. I lived at 2795 Clay Street a long time ago, about the end of the first World War and that

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Of your own personal knowledge, Mr. Schmidt, was any meeting of any unit of the Communist Party ever held any place where you may have lived at the time?

A. You mean in my places?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. For a moment, Mr. Schmidt, going back to the first time you met Lawrence Ross, do you recall that heretofore—first, let me ask you this: He was not alone?

A. Yes, it is my recollection that he was.

Q. Isn't it a fact that he came as one of a committee at the time you first saw him?

A. No, that is not my remembrance.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Bridges has heretofore testified that he, too, met Lawrence Ross and for the same purpose as stated by you, and at the same time, during the 1934 strike, and that Elmer Hanoff was with him? [4803]

A. I don't recall Mr. Bridges testifying to that.

Q. Well, if he did so testify, will you say that his recollection is not as is yours, that Mr. Ross came alone?

A. I can only give you what I recollect.

Q. And your recollection is that Mr. Ross came alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have heretofore denied that you ever met the man identified as Elmer, sometimes called Pop Hanoff? A. Yes, sir, I do not know him.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, was there any significance in your mind to the fact that during the period of time the witness Henry Schrimpf testified that he was a member of the Communist Party, and also a member of either the ILA or its successor, the ILWA, that he was frequently elected to office in either one or both of those organizations, and that subsequent to his withdrawal from the Communist Party he was consistently defeated for office?

A. I did not quite follow you—that he was elected to what?

Q. Is there any significance in your mind to the fact, as testified to by Mr. Henry Schrimpf, that during the time he stated he was a member of the Communist Party, he was elected to several offices in either the ILA or its successor, the ILWA, but that after his withdrawal from the Communist Party he was consistently defeated every time he became a candidate for office.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. What is that ILWA? [4804]

Mr. Donohue: I am sorry, Mr. MacInnis, to confuse you—the ILWU.

A. I don't know if I understand your question correctly, and I don't recollect what Schrimpf said on the witness stand with respect to his membership in the Communist Party. Maybe for that reason I am not quite clear. But I recall that he was elected to a number of positions in both unions, the ILA and its successor, the ILWU, for quite a number of years. I recall him going to conventions for many, many years.

Q. Then you do not think that either his membership in or his withdrawal from the Communist Party in any way affected his ability to successfully candidate for office in the ILWU?

A. Oh, I see what you mean now. No, I wouldn't attach any importance to that.

Q. I take it, you do not believe that your election to office has in any event been persuaded or influenced by the fact of your own membership in the Communist Party?

A. Well, in the first place I do not belong, and I attach no importance to it. We do not run for office in our union on the basis of having membership in a political organization. I suppose we have developed some sort of reputation among the men of our union, and if they see fit to vote for us, we are elected, as was the case here a couple of months ago. Some of the men didn't see fit to vote for me and I didn't receive enough votes and I was defeated. [4805]

Q. Mr. Schmidt, has it not been the practice over the years prior to an election in your union for the Communist Party fraction in that unit to meet and to agree upon a slate of candidates for office?

A. I was not a participant. It may have been the practice but I didn't know about it.

Q. Do you recall stating that at the 1934 American Federation of Labor convention held in San Diego—by the way, you did attend that meeting?

A. Oh, yes, I was there.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Can you tell me who the delegates were from Local 38-79 to that convention?

A. That would be rather difficult, but I will try.

Q. Let me ask you, was Mr. Bridges a delegate?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Was Mr. Schomaker a delegate?

A. I believe so.

Q. Was Henry Schrimpf a delegate?

A. Yes, I am pretty sure he was, because I recollect seeing him in Tia Juana.

Q. Was John Larson a delegate?

A. Yes, now that you mention it, he was a delegate, and we rode to Tia Juana in his automobile.

Q. And you also, I take it, were a delegate?

A. Yes. [4806]

Q. Do you recall whether you and Henry Schrimpf and Mr. Bridges and a man named Carl Tillman—do you know Carl Tillman?

A. Yes, I remember him as a member of the SUP and a very vocal fellow.

Q. Did you people all go together to this convention? A. You mean from San Francisco?

Q. Yes. Do you recall whether you traveled together?

A. No, I didn't travel with Tillman. We went down on the railroad.

Q. Did you see Mr. Schneidermann at all in San Diego during the period of that convention?

A. No, sir.

Q. Would you know his signature if I showed it to you?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Would I know Bill Schneidermann's signature?

Q. Yes, Bill Schneidermann's signature.

A. Not at all.

Q. You testified that during or immediately prior to this 1935 convention at San Diego that you did not attend a fraction meeting of the Communist Party as testified heretofore by Stanley Hancock at the apartment?

A. Are you saying that now that was my testimony?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, and I repeat it.

Q. You do say that you attended a caucus possibly regarding election of officers. Do you have any clear recollection of [4807] that caucus?

A. Well, not clear recollection.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. My best recollection is it was held in the same building where the convention was.

Q. Who was present?

A. I don't recall whether that was held in a hotel or whether it was held in the San Diego Labor Building. There may have been 55 or 60 people in the room, but as to who was present, I am sorry, I can't tell you.

Q. You are sure that this caucus you are talking about was not the fraction meeting of the Communist Party for the same stated purpose as Stanley Hancock testified to?

A. It was supposed to have been held in an apartment?

Q. Yes. A. I am sure of that.

Q. Do you think Harry Bridges was at this caucus?

A. The caucus in the Labor Building?

Q. Wherever it may have been held.

A. I am pretty sure he was there.

Q. Do you think that John Schomaker was at that caucus?

A. He may have been. At this point I am not exactly sure if Schomaker was a delegate to that convention. If you have any union records there——

Q. Do you know John Schomaker's signature? [4808] A. Yes, I think so.

Mr. Donohue: Would you hand the witness what I shall ask you to mark United States for identification next in order?

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it, please?

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Will you call the witness' attention to it?

A. Yes, that seems to be his signature.

Q. Then would that refresh your recollection, Mr. Schmidt, as to the fact that John Schomaker registered at the same hotel at the same time as you, that he was at the 1935 convention in San Diego?

A. Yes, the name that you have there is J. D. Schomaker, and I am satisfied that that was the man who identified himself here as John Henry Schomaker.

Q. You heard him say that he was known in the

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Communist Party sometimes as John Delaney?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you ever hear him called John Delaney?

A. I have heard other people call him John Delaney on the waterfront some time after he appeared there.

Q. From your familiarity with his signature, would you say that you ever saw him sign John D. or J. D. Schomaker?

A. I don't recollect John ever signing his name in my presence.

Q. In any event you are satisfied now that he was at this convention in San Diego? [4809]

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Mr. Donohue: May this be the proper time to take a recess?

(The document referred to was marked United States Exhibit No. 18 for identification.)

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the noon adjournment and resume at 2:00 o'clock. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to suffer any person to converse with you on any subject of the trial nor to form or express an opinion until the matter is submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to 2:00 o'clock p.m.) [4810]

Wednesday, February 1, 1950—2:00 P.M.

Mr. MacInnis: We have another short witness. I assume we may call him without objection.

Call Mr. Sawyer, please.

ROBERT SAWYER

called for the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury?

The Witness: My name is Robert Sawyer.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your residence address, Mr. Sawyer?

A. It is 1758 The Alameda, San Jose.

Q. What is your business or profession?

A. I am a retailer.

Q. And what is the name or nature of the enterprise you conduct?

A. It is the Home and Patio Shop, and we sell largely decorative home accessories.

Q. And for how long have you been engaged in that particular business?

A. Since March 15, 1947.

Q. And prior to that date what was the general nature of your [4811] occupation?

A. I was in the Army.

Q. And before that?

A. I was with the Stockton Savings and Loan Bank in Stockton.

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

Q. Are you a graduate of some local college or university? A. Yes.

Q. What school is that? A. Stanford.

Q. Now, you say that you worked in Stockton, California. Was that your home town?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you lived in Stockton about how many years?

A. From approximately 1934 until I went in the Army in 1942.

Q. Did you ever have occasion to attend a wedding between Mr. Aubrey Lee and a Miss Hammond of Stockton, California? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know those people or one of them prior to the time of the wedding?

A. I knew them both.

Q. And were you invited to attend that wedding in any particular function?

A. I was an usher.

Q. Do you remember whether or not that was a formal wedding? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Can you remember independently the year of that wedding? [4812] A. No, I can't.

Q. Now, if I showed you a copy of the Stockton Record bearing date Monday, June 29, 1936, having reference to the wedding as having occurred on the previous Saturday discussed at length in the columns, would it refresh your memory? I will have Mr. Mitchell hand that to you.

A. I would say if this is a photostatic copy of the Monday, June 29, 1936, issue of the Stockton

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

Record, that the wedding must have occurred the previous Saturday.

Q. Did you actually attend the wedding as an usher? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you attend any wedding reception after the celebration of the wedding?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after that wedding celebration did you and any other members of the wedding party go anyplace? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that, if you recall?

A. We went to a little party for the wedding party at a night club called Mattioni's.

Q. That is a Stockton night club?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any memory as to what approximate time in the night your group came to that place called Mattioni's?

A. I think it would have been rather late in the evening. I [4813] don't know exactly, but it must have been—I think it would have been after 11 o'clock; sometime between 11 and 12, maybe.

Q. About how many persons were in your group?

A. I don't know exactly. We had a—I think it would be safe to say there were eight to twelve; something like that; maybe more.

Q. Were the persons in your group still wearing formal attire? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember how the evening was spent so far as activities were concerned at this night club, that is, what you did while you were there?

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

A. Well, we had a very nice table at which we sat. We had something to eat, I don't recall what, and we chatted about the wedding and about things in general, and I recall we danced a little.

Q. There was dancing also? A. Yes.

Q. Tell me this: Was there any other group of persons several in number sitting at a nearby table whom you can now recall as a group?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of that group, if you recall?

A. Well, my impression was that it was a group of working men as against, you might say, white-collar men, that were having a little party of their own. [4814]

Q. Did any incident take place which brought the two groups into contact with each other?

A. There was an incident that brought me together with the group in some respects.

Q. What was that, sir?

A. The incident was the fact that during the first part of the evening we were at the party we were chided a little bit because we looked somewhat like waiters.

Q. You mean because of the tails?

A. Because we had our tails; and at a later—sometime during the evening before I left Mattioni's, one of the men that was in the group—the party next to us—came up to me and spoke to me concerning the remarks that these other gentlemen in his party was supposed to have made.

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

Q. What was the substance of that conversation, if you recall it, Mr. Sawyer?

A. This gentleman said—I don't recall his exact words now, but he said in substance, "I wish to apologize for my boys."

Q. Now, I know it is fourteen years ago, but do you have any recollection as to the name of the man who came over to your table?

A. I haven't any clear recollection.

Q. Do you have any impression that might guide you?

A. I think it was Mr. Mahaffey.

Q. Was the name Mahaffey known to you while you were a citizen [4815] of Stockton?

A. Yes.

Q. And in what character or fashion did you know him?

A. Well, I knew him as—through articles about him in the paper at various times, because he was active in union work in Stockton.

Q. Was he a well known labor leader in Stockton in 1936, as you recall?

A. Well, I would say relatively speaking, yes; his name would have been mentioned as much or more as any other labor leader up there.

Q. In other words, that impression of his name has remained in your mind over the years?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, tell me this: Do you have any recollection, whether clear or indistinct, concerning the presence of a man named Harry Bridges at that group?

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

A. I have an impression that Mr. Bridges was connected with the party that was next to us. Whether he was there while I was there or was there before I got there, or came there after I left, I don't know.

Q. Is that an impression that you have carried throughout the years? [4816] A. Yes.

Q. And of course you have probably not had many occasions to discuss this incident over the past years, have you?

A. Not recently. [4816-A]

Q. Well, let me ask you this, Mr. Sawyer: Did you leave San Jose on some business engagement of your own last week? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did that take you to some other city?

A. Los Angeles.

Q. About how long were you in Los Angeles?

A. About ten days.

Q. And some time during your absence from San Jose did a member of the Immigration Service come to your premises in San Jose and leave a message for you to call?

A. When I got back there was a note on my calendar.

Q. When did you get back?

A. On Wednesday night—last Wednesday night.

Q. That would be a week ago today?

A. That's right.

Q. You came back from Los Angeles a week ago today, which is Wednesday, February 1st. And what message, if any, did you find?

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

A. There was a note there saying the U. S.—I forget whether it said U. S. Immigration Service, or just call a certain number, so I did call a number.

Q. Did you talk to a person?

A. I talked to a Mr.—I believe his name was Mr. McGowan.

Q. What conversation did you have with him?

A. He asked me if I recalled the night of June 27, 1936. I think I said not offhand. He asked me if I remembered the [4817] Hammond wedding; and I said yes. He asked me further if I went to a nightclub after the wedding, and I said yes. And he asked me if I recalled having seen Harry Bridges there. And at that point I hesitated; I didn't know; it was a long, long time ago, and I said, "Well, I would have to stop and think," and then we discussed—I said the most clear recollection I have is of the incident with respect to the tails. That sticks in my mind. It was somewhat humorous.

He said, "Well, do you know who spoke to you when you—in connection with that incident?" And my first response to him, I think, was, "Well, it might have been Harry Bridges," and we just talked in general about trying to recall what actually happened up there that night. And he asked me at one point if Mr.—if that was Harry Bridges, did he introduce himself to me or was I introduced to him. And I am not quite sure now whether I told him that I might have been introduced to him or that he might have said he was Harry Bridges. But the upshot of the conversation after we talked back and forth was that I didn't—that I didn't know for sure whether he was there or not. That was about the end of the conversation.

Q. And since the time the Immigration Service has not called you or contacted you in any other way? A. No.

Q. Now, at the time you had the message to call the Immigration Department and followed through with that suggestion, had [4818] any person connected with the defense of this case talked to you?

A. No.

Q. Had any friend of yours present at the wedding talked to you concerning it? A. No.

Q. Now, since that time have you learned that Mr. Aubrey Lee did become a witness in this trial?

A. Yes.

Q. And after that time the defense did contact you? A. That is correct.

Q. But before Mr. Aubrey Lee became a witness in this case, the Immigration Service had already contacted you?

A. Well, a man purporting himself to represent the Service talked to me.

Q. Yes.

A. I didn't actually check to find out who it was.

Q. You called him collect, though, to San Francisco, is that correct? A. I called a number.

Q. It was a Yukon number? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

(Testimony of Robert Sawyer.)

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. I take it, Mr. Sawyer, that the information [4819] you gave the gentleman from the Immigration Service was substantially as you have testified here today as to your recollection of what happened that night?

A. Yes, I think it should—I think I should state that when he called me that I wasn't—I was less certain and I didn't talk—than I was later when I had more time to think about it. I think perhaps I gave him a more definite impression that I had talked to Mr. Bridges.

Q. And what is your impression today?

A. My impression today is that I don't know for sure who I talked to. I believe it was Mr. Mahaffey because I can visualize him approaching me. I knew him by sight, now that I have had a chance to really think it out. I was more or less talking over an incident 14 years back on the spur of the moment when I first talked to the Government. I also feel that if it had been Mr. Bridges who spoke to me that I would have had a very clear impression of him. [4820]

Q. And you do not have that impression today?

A. No.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. And when you talked to this man from the Immigration Department on the telephone, you told him that you had an impression that you may have talked to Harry Bridges that night?

A. That is right.

Q. And the impression concerning the presence of Harry Bridges at that nightclub is one that you carried for the past many years since the occasion?

A. That is correct.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: We have no further questions, Your Honor.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed the stand:

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, having examined the hotel record for the hotel in San Diego in 1935, has it refreshed your recollection to the point—that is, with respect to the persons who registered from San Francisco—has that refreshed your recollection to the point that you are able to tell us with whom you may have gone to San Diego from San Francisco to that convention? [4821]

A. No, sir, I didn't recall until you showed me the hotel register what the name of the hotel was.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

I looked at my own name and the name of Schomaker and you mentioned the name of Tillman: I found that. Other than that, I didn't read the document. My memory tells me we went down by railroad, and after all, a railroad car is a pretty large thing. I can't recall who all was in the car.

Q. And you can not now recall whether Mr. Schomaker accompanied you or went in your company to San Diego?

A. No, sir. I remember some things about the convention that I could recall. I do not know whether they are important or not.

Q. Can you recall whether Henry Schrimpf went down with you?

A. When you say with me, just what do you mean?

Q. In your immediate company. Did you arrange to go together, leave San Francisco together, to arrive in San Diego together, and register at a hotel together?

A. We may have traveled in the same railroad car, but I recollect no arrangements to do that. It may well be, Mr. Donohue, that the secretary of the union bought the railroad tickets. If we had a sleeper, he would make those arrangements and we would wind up in a Pullman or a tourist car.

Q. You can not tell us whether Mr. Bridges was in your company as you went to San Diego?

A. I don't recollect Bridges traveling with us at all. [4822]

Q. Can you tell us whether or not John Larson went with you?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. John Larson probably drove down because, as I told you this morning, he drove us to Tia Juana to San Diego one late afternoon, and if he had his car with him, he would not be traveling on the railroad.

Q. You did not observe John Larson's name on the hotel register?

A. No, I didn't catch that.

Q. Don't you know, as a matter of fact, he was staying at the Sumner Apartments in San Diego?

A. I didn't have the slightest idea.

Q. When you went to Tia Juana with Mr. Larson, where did he pick you up?

A. I don't know.

Q. Who went to Tia Juana?

A. I think there were two others in that car, and I can't recall who they were. I think Schrimpf must have traveled in another vehicle. The thing that stands out in my mind, so far as that short trip is concerned, is this, that John turned on the radio in his car and we heard a rebroadcast of a conversation that was being put on the air from Geneva, Switzerland, and the discussion had to do with the sessions of the United—of the League of Nations going on there, and this being the year of 1935, I was amazed at this mechanical wonder where I could ride in an automobile in the state of California and hear a voice that was going on the air in Geneva, Switzerland. [4823]

Q. You did note on the hotel register that there were four names from San Francisco registered at the same time, namely, Mr. Schomaker, Mr. Schmidt, Mr. Schrimpf, Mr. Bridges, a Carl Tillman, with whom you said you didn't travel—five names registered at the same time at the hotel in San Diego.

A. I didn't notice that when you gave me the paper.

Q. Will you hand it to the witness, please? I will show you a photostat.

A. Yes, we have Schomaker, Schmidt, Schrimpf, Bridges, Tillman and so on.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection about the fact that Mr. Larson did not go to the hotel where you were staying?

A. Well, I don't know just how you mean that. Do you want me to be positive that he wasn't there, because he showed me the document—or do you want me to remember?

Q. I want you to tell us what you know about it, Mr. Schmidt.

A. I have no remembrance whether Larson was there or whether he was not there.

Q. The inspection of a document does not stimulate your recollection at that point?

A. No, sir, I am sorry.

Q. You had no difficulty recollecting an incident that you say occurred in Stockton, California, on the 27th of January, 1936, having refreshed your recollection by looking at a newspaper.

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. It is your recollection that is [4824] in error. The month is June.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: Thank you for setting me straight.

Q. Substitute June for January.

A. Well, that is one of those things I can't explain. Sometimes one remembers, sometimes one does not.

Q. You knew that Mr. Larson was a delegate to the convention?

A. I am satisfied that he was.

Q. And that some time during the convention you did ride in his automobile down to Tia Juana?

A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you did know, then, as a matter of fact that he was staying at the Sumner Apartment?

A. No, sir, I do not know that at all.

Q. At no time when you rode down to Tia Juana with him in his automobile did you ask him why he was not staying at the hotel with the rest of the delegates? A. No, sir.

Q. And he never told you? A. No, sir.

Q. I should say he never told you where he was staying?

A. That is what you asked me.

Q. What was the purpose of this caucus that you attended during the San Diego convention?

A. Well, I have a recollection that as soon as the convention started there were the usual introductory remarks, there were [4825] some speeches, there must have been an invocation, and then several gentlemen started to make speeches which were very complimentary to Paul Scharrenberg. And then later that day, or maybe the following day, or maybe it was the third day, there was a gathering which addressed itself to the selection of a nominee for the office that Paul Scharrenberg then held, and the discussion had to do with that subject matter.

Q. You stated, I recall, on direct examination that the caucus possibly was held regarding the election of officers. Is that the point you are making now?

A. Scharrenberg was an officer of the Federation.

Q. What office did he hold?

A. Secretary, I believe.

Q. Why the caucus on the selection?

A. That is the custom.

Q. Who would be eligible or who did, in fact, attend this caucus? Excuse me. May I withdraw that question?

Didn't the election take place on the floor of the convention by all the delegates?

A. Yes, but everyone knows, and it is one of the things I learned there, because that was about the first convention I had come to, that before such nominees' names are mentioned on the floor, there are usually groups that meet in the same building for the purpose of discussing this, and it developed quite clearly on the floor of the convention that some people were [4826] anxious to have Paul Scharrenberg reelected, and there were others that were anxious to have someone else reelected, and the group that I am talking about, of course, were opposed to Paul Scharrenberg.

Q. Do you see any parallel between the type of caucus which you are now discussing and the type of fraction meeting which Mr. Hancock testified met at the Sumner Apartments to determine the slate of candidates for office at this 1935 convention?

A. I wouldn't know about these fraction meetings because I just don't know.

Q. I think I asked you just before lunch if it was not a fact that with respect to all of the union elections in which you have participated, if it is not a fact that prior to the election meetings of Communist members of that union at which you were present were held for the purpose of assuring the election of persons who were favorable or friendly, if not members of the Communist Party?

A. They may do that, but not to my knowledge, and I was not present, so I can't give you an accurate description.

Q. From your long experience in the ILA and the ILWU, and as one who has at times been elected and at times been defeated for office, have you ever seen any evidence that such Communist Party fraction meetings have been held prior to union elections? A. You mean was I present?

Q. No, have you ever seen any evidence of it at the union meeting [4827] at which the election was held?

A. I would say no to that. As a matter of fact, while we were in convention in San Diego, since you mentioned that sometimes I have run and been elected and sometimes I have run and been defeated, I was at that time a candidate for the secretaryship of the local union here in San Francisco, and if my memory serves me correctly, I learned that I was defeated by Ivan Cox for the secretaryship of the local union while I was still in San Diego.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Do you have a pretty definite recollection of some of the matters that were discussed at this 1935 convention?

A. Oh, I can remember some things. Well, I don't remember whether this was at this convention or another one, but I suppose I might as well tell you about it. There was some sort of proposal looking toward amending the Constitution, and whatever it was, it developed into a terrific wrangle on the floor. Somebody proposed the proposed amendment to the Constitution should be referred to a referendum vote of the entire membership in the State of California, and another man who was opposed to that procedure said, "We haven't got time to submit those things to a referendum." And then he made a statement something like this: "Whenever you are involved in a strike and the cops are coming out to beat you up, you haven't got time to take a referendum." And I think that remark must have made quite an impression on the assembly. As I recall it, the [4828] proposed constitutional amendment was adopted in convention.

I recall also there were also nominations for the vice presidency, and I guess the constitution of the State Federation of Labor provides that there shall be several vice presidents and a man got up and nominated Bridges, and he called him the father of the labor movement on the Pacific Coast. And I thought that was a little bit on the ridiculous side.

Q. He was too young in 1935 to have been the father of the labor movement?

A. You mean Bridges?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, after all, there were a number of other gentlemen there who had been in the labor movement for quite a few years. I think Mr. Mike Casey was there, and so was his son. I recall also when we left there we got into a railroad car and a man by the name of Jimmy Hopkins sat down right behind me. He was a delegate from the Teamsters Union, as I recall it. I don't think he was active in the union at that time. I recall him later on being the superintendent of the Ferry Building. As he sat down, he said, "Well, that was a hell of a convention, Henry, not enough entertainment." And I believe Dan Murphy, who is now the sheriff of this county, was also in the car. He had been a delegate from his union; whatever union he represented I can't recollect.

Q. You did not think it was a very fruitful convention then, [4829] Mr. Schmidt?

A. I wasn't giving that much thought. Apparently it was Mr. Hopkins' idea that it was not very fruitful.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Deviating for just a minute and talking again about the elections, isn't it a fact that your defeat for reelection recently in your own local was brought about by the so-called right wing anti-Communist faction which opposed you in that election?

A. Well, that is the way the newspapers labeled it.

Q. Perhaps you are more familiar with it than the newspapers. Is that your version of it, sir?

A. No, it would not be. Our union is composed of two factions. I suppose one might say that. Through the years there have been the pro-Bridges forces and the anti-Bridges forces.

Q. And you would label the right wing forces the anti-Bridges forces?

A. That is the best name I can think of.

Q. But you would not name the pro-Bridges forces the pro-Communist forces?

A. Hardly.

Q. Have you ever discussed the question of the Communist infiltration in your local with any of the national officials of the CIO to which your organization has been affiliated?

A. No, sir. Apparently I am not an important enough figure in the labor movement. I can't even get near those gentlemen. [4830] They live in large buildings and offices in Washington, D. C., and I don't get there very often.

Q. Has Mr. Bridges discussed the matter with you?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Oh, we talk about it sometimes but not in the sense that you have just put it to me.

Q. May I read to you, sir, a proposition—and I am reading from the proceedings of the 1936 annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor held at San Diego, California, September 16th to 20th, 1935.

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it?

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, the counsel proposing to read part of a resolution—I have not read all the text—the same counsel who objected to the defense reading prosecution witnesses' resolutions prepared by themselves. Now, if this is a resolution prepared by Mr. Schmidt, I would have no objection. Obviously I couldn't have. And if you will make that statement, then I can be prepared to act. Is this a resolution propos' by Mr. Schmidt?

Mr. Donohue: No, Mr. MacInnis, it is not. It is a resolution, Mr. MacInnis, that was proposed and was adopted on the floor of the convention.

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. MacInnis: The objection, of course, is that this is an attempt to intrude hearsay testimony in the record. If [4831] there are people who said these things, they should be brought here.

Mr. Donohue: You did not bring Governor Olson here. You read his speech.

Mr. MacInnis: The defense many times attempted to read resolutions to the authors who took the stand here, and the defense was balked by objections of the prosecution. I do not know what the matter is, but I do not see how it can be binding on the defendant Schmidt, and I object to it on that basis.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, Your Honor?

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. MacInnis: May we have a ruling?

Mr. Donohue: The Court already ruled.

The Court: I said you may proceed. That implies the objection was overruled. In the very nature of things, with respect to your observation, Mr. MacInnis, concerning prior resolutions, I might add, again parenthetically, not only did I allow cross-examination to go in that concerned itself with a resolution, but I allowed the full speech of Mr. Bridges to go into the record.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes, but the witness Crouch said he had prepared the resolution himself.

Mr. Donohue: I am afraid inadvertently Mr. MacInnis caused me to lose my place.

Mr. MacInnis: I will find it for you. I remember. [4832]

Mr. Donohue: You remember. Thank you. Thank you very much.

"Chairman Buzzel." I hope I do not massacre his name. "Chairman Buzzel submitted the following report and these proceedings were had on the third legislative day, Wednesday, September 18, the morning session. 'Proposition No. 1 presented by Robert L. Ennes, Federated Trades Council, Sacramento. The committee recommends that the second

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

resolve be amended as follows: that it would be highly desirable——" [4833]

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me. Might I have the number of that in the document, because we intend then to read all the remainder of the document. What is that that you are reading from?

Mr. Donohue: I am reading from the proceedings of the 36th annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor.

Mr. Hallinan: What date, please?

Mr. Donohue: Held at San Diego, California, September 16 to 20, 1935.

Mr. Hallinan: We will then put in the entire proceedings.

Mr. Donohue: "That it would be highly desirable if Central Labor Councils of the State of California would declare that they are the judge of their own membership and refuse to seat delegates elect of proven membership from the Communist Party or active supporters of that Party in its program, and to expel already seated delegates of the same qualifications, and that the delegate-elect from this Federation to the American Federation of Labor conventions be instructed to seek the approval of the American Federation of Labor for such action by Central Labor Councils.

"The following delegates voted against the adoption of Resolution 1 as submitted by the committee."

And I now for the purpose of identification ask your Honor to mark this document as United States Exhibit next in [4834] order and ask Mr.

Mitchell if he will be good enough to ask the witness to look at it.

Mr. MacInnis: We have the same document in evidence already.

Mr. Donohue: You do not mind if I put this in also?

Mr. MacInnis: The same document was offered before, but an objection was made to balk us when we attempted to intrude the same kind of matter.

The Witness: Are you asking me to find my name here somewhere? [4835]

Q. Yes, it is underscored in red, I think, on the bottom part of the right-hand page. A. Yes.

Mr. Donohue: May I have it back?

Q. Do you now recall, sir, that Harry Bridges, John D. Schomaker, Henry Schrimpf, Henry Schmidt and John Larson, who you have heretofore testified were delegates to this convention, voted against the committee recommendation which I have just read?

A. I have no recollection of it, but I am satisfied that the record is correct.

Q. I understood you to say, Mr. Schmidt, that you did not attend a meeting at the Venetian Square Apartments in Long Beach, the meeting as you recall was testified to by Mr. Krolek. Do you recall Mr. Krolek's testimony on the question of the meeting at the Venetian Square Apartments?

A. The spiral staircase and all that sort of thing?

Q. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I recall his words; not all of them, of course.

Q. You did know Mr. Krolek and you did know him back in 1936?

A. Yes, in Portland, I believe.

Q. What was the convention which was held in Long Beach in May of 1936, can you recall?

A. No, sir, I can't. There wasn't any CIO in those days. [4836]

Q. Could it have been the Maritime Federation of the Pacific?

A. The Maritime Federation of the Pacific, as I recall, met in San Pedro.

Q. How far is it from San Pedro to Long Beach?

A. Oh, it is about half an hour's ride on the red cars.

Q. Did you attend the Maritime Federation of the Pacific convention at San Pedro in 1936?

A. Yes. I think that must have been that long siege we had down there when we had an ILA convention that [illegible] for several weeks, and it was followed by the MFP convention which also lasted for several weeks, and I was away from home I think about six weeks.

Q. Your recollection is that you attended both of those conventions?

A. Yes, I was a delegate to both.

Q. Do you recall having seen Kermit Krolek during either or both of those conventions in 1936?

A. No, sir, I have no recollection of seeing Krolek at those sessions.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did you see a man named A. T. Pringle at either of those conventions?

A. That man I don't know.

Q. Did you see Harry Bridges at either of those conventions?

A. Oh, yes, I am sure he was there.

Q. Did you see a man named Harry Jackson? [4837] A. No.

Q. Do you know Harry Jackson?

A. Yes, I see him quite frequently here in recent years. He is a delegate to the CIO Council here in San Francisco from ILWU Local No. 6.

Q. You don't recall whether you saw him at either of these conventions in 1936?

A. No, sir.

Q. I think you have already said you didn't know Hazel Wood, the wife of Walter Lambert?

A. No, I don't know that lady.

Q. You do know Walter Lambert?

A. I have met him a couple of times, but as I told you a while ago, or a couple of days ago, I can't recall where.

Q. Did you see Walter Lambert at either of the convention sessions in 1936 in San Pedro?

A. No; my memory tells me that I had a casual meeting with that man here in San Francisco somewhere.

Q. You know Roy Pyle? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you see him at either of these conventions?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. It seems to me that Roy Pyle came into the picture rather late and he may have been around in those years and he may not have. If you have a record showing him at the convention, I am satisfied he was there. [4838]

Q. Do you know a man named T. J. Van Erman?

A. Yes, but he has been out of this territory for 12 or 13 years, I believe.

Q. Did you see him at either of these conventions in 1936? A. I think he was there.

Q. Do you know a man named Mervyn Rathborne? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you see him at either of the conventions in 1936?

A. The Maritime Federation, yes, that could be; and if he was there, then maybe—probably Roy Pyle was there also, because they were from the same union.

Q. Now, Mr. Krolek said that in May of 1936 and at the Venetian Square Apartments at Long Beach, California, a Communist Party fraction meeting attended by himself, A. T. Pringle, H. R. Bridges, Henry Schmidt, Harry Jackson, Hazel Wood, Mervyn Rathborne, Walter Lambert, Roy Pyle and T. J. Van Erman was held. Is it your testimony now, sir, that you weren't at that meeting?

A. That's right. And you mentioned the names of at least two people that I don't know, so I couldn't have been there.

Q. Now, you also heard Mr. Krolek testify about an incident which occurred at 121 Haight Street, correct? Do you recall it?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. In June of 1936, which would make it at a time subsequent to the convention at San [4839] Pedro.

A. There arises a question, Mr. Donohue. I recall that those two sessions lasted a long, long time, and I don't know——

Q. You recall that Mr. Bridges has heretofore testified that he got into San Francisco after those two conventions not later than the 20th of June, 1936; do you recall that?

A. Bridges hasn't testified here yet.

Q. I said "heretofore"; I didn't say "here," sir.

A. You mean years ago?

Q. Yes, years ago.

A. I don't recall his testimony years ago.

Mr. MacInnis: I am wondering now if there is some rule by which this defendant can be cross-examined upon what the prosecutor says Mr. Bridges testified to years ago.

Mr. Donohue: I only asked him if he remembered it, if your Honor please. I haven't said Mr. Bridges said it.

Mr. MacInnis: It is a new rule of evidence.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Is it your present testimony that you weren't in San Francisco at any time during the month of June, 1936?

A. No, I wouldn't say that. After all, we did go to Stockton on June 27.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And if Mr. Krolek states that in June of 1937 he saw Mr. John Schomaker, Mr. Harry Bridges and Mr. Henry Schmidt walk into the office of William Schneidermann while he, Mr. Pringle and Mr. Pyle stood in the corridor, that incident, I take it, [4840] you said did not happen?

A. Well, I think he dreamed it up.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I think what's-his-name—Krolek probably dreamed it up.

Q. You think he dreamed it up. Do you think Mr. Krolek was also dreaming when he testified that he attended Communist Party meetings at which you were present at the Lennox Hotel in Portland during the 1937 convention in Portland?

A. Well, as I told you last week, I have no recollection of Krolek being anywhere in Portland except on the occasion when he discovered the microphone in Bridges' room.

Q. You didn't believe Mr. Krolek was dreaming when he discovered the microphone in Bridges' room, did you?

A. After all, I saw that with my own eyes.

Q. Can you ascribe any reason for Mr. Krolek's testifying falsely about you, Mr. Schmidt?

A. Yes, sir; that becomes very clear to me as time goes on.

Q. Would you explain that to us?

A. There is a movement on to smash the unions in this country, specifically our own. Apparently we are considered to be the weak link in the chain, and the powers that be are coming down upon our good little union, and these fellows will lend themselves to this purpose.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And you think Mr. Krolek is aligned with some power that is in order to destroy your [4841] union?

A. That is what I subscribe to, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Krolek never made any vow that he would get either you or Mr. Bridges as you say Henry Schrimpf did, did he, sir?

A. I didn't notice him do it, no, sir.

Q. You have called Henry Schrimpf a stool pigeon? Would you call Kermit Charles Krolek also a stool pigeon?

A. He is also in the same class.

Q. Is it a fact, then, that you classify as a stool pigeon anyone who testifies against you and/or Bridges?

A. It all depends what the issue is.

Q. Is it a fact that you classify or characterize as a stool pigeon anyone who testifies that either you or Mr. Bridges are or have been members of the Communist Party?

A. Well, if we have done something wrong and a man comes along and testifies against us, I think that is perfectly all right. But inasmuch as I cannot see where we have done anything wrong, and these people come along and testify with the intent and purpose to cut our throat, there must be something wrong with those people.

Q. When you say you have done no wrong, do you mean that it isn't wrong to be a member of the Communist Party, or that it is wrong to be charged with being a member if you are not?

A. I don't know as I understand your question. I understand it isn't a crime to belong to that Party.

Q. You do so understand that it is not a crime to belong to [4842] the Communist Party?

A. It is my impression that it is not illegal—let me put it that way.

Q. Has that always been your impression, Mr. Schmidt, that it is not illegal to belong to the Communist Party?

A. I don't recollect any time that the organization was declared illegal.

Mr. Donohue: Might we take a recess at this time, if your Honor please?

The Court: We will take the afternoon recess, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions nor to form an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, you say you do not think it is illegal to belong to the Communist Party? A. That's right.

Q. Have you made any study of the doctrine of the Communist Party?

A. Not very deeply.

Q. Have you penetrated the subject deeply enough to agree with the statement of some of the Government produced by the witnesses?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: "Government produced by the witnesses"—what kind of a question is that? [4843]

Mr. Donohue: I apologize for my poor grammar. I will reframe the question, with your Honor's permission.

Mr. MacInnis: You should.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, has your penetration into the subject matter of Communism been sufficiently deep to give you an opinion on the statement of witnesses who have been here produced who have said that the Communist Party in the United States is wholly dominated and controlled by the Soviet government of Russia?

A. I wouldn't believe these witnesses that you put on here under any circumstances.

Q. I know that you wouldn't Mr. Schmidt, and I didn't ask you that question. I asked you if your study into Communism was sufficient to permit you to give an expression of opinion as to their statement that the Communist Party in the United States is completely under the domination and control of the Soviet government of Russia?

A. I thought your first question was, Did I hear the witnesses talk with respect to that matter and if I had formed an opinion as a result of making that explanation.

Q. Do you now——

A. And I repeat that I haven't studied the subject too deeply, and I recall to you my statement of several days ago that I am a man of but little education, and I apologize for my almost complete illiteracy. [4844]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Mr. Schmidt, have you made sufficient study into the subject of Communism to know whether or not it is not a practice of the Communist Party to conceal the membership of its members?

A. I don't know about that.

Q. Can I gather, Mr. Schmidt, from the statements you make that the Communist Party is not in your judgment illegal, that you are in sympathy with the tenets of the Communist Party?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me just a minute. The prosecution is misstating the evidence. The evidence adduced from the lips of this witness which he now paraphrases is that he knows of no illegality concerning membership in the Communist Party. Now the prosecutor offers that as his opinion. That is an entirely different thing. He doesn't espouse that. He does not say that is his opinion. He says there is apparently no law against being a Communist, which is an entirely different thing.

Mr. Donohue: I will be glad to reframe the question, if your Honor please.

Q. In the light of your statement that you know of no law which makes membership in the Communist Party illegal, do you now state on the witness stand that you are in favor and advocate the tenets of the Communist Party?

A. I wouldn't say that.

Q. Do you?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. No. I would like to add this: that I am not going to get [4845] up on the rooftops and shout to the world that I am opposed to everything that they stand for, because if I were to do that I wouldn't know what I was talking about.

Q. Well, you have had your opportunity, have you not, Mr. Schmidt, in the various discussions that have taken place within your own union to express your agreement or disagreement with the principles of the Communist Party?

A. You mean in large membership meetings?

Q. Large or small.

A. Well, I must say that there has been but little opportunity for that.

Q. On any occasion that you can now recall, can you tell us when and where and what you have said publicly in criticism of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Would you tell us?

A. Well, I have made, perhaps not public utterances—my opposition to the Russians invading Finland. I was critical when the Nazi-Russian pact came along; and I recall that when the local sheet here began to beat the drums respecting the Second Front, that I thought that was, well, let me say premature.

Q. Now, are these expressions of personal opinion on your part, or are they matters which you have publicly stated and discussed? [4846]

A. Oh, I have stated these matters to persons.

Q. Can you tell us to whom? A. Oh, no.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. You do know John Schomaker, of course?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And you heard John Schomaker discuss an incident that occurred at the home of a man named Jack Shaw, did you not?

A. Well, it seems to me there was testimony from him and from the lady Harris and maybe somebody else, too.

Q. Now, were the incidents which were testified to by John Schomaker with respect to the meeting at the home of Jack Shaw true or false?

A. Well, you better tell me what he testified to. I can't recall now just what he said.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. John Schomaker testified that at a meeting at the house of Jack Shaw on Pine Street—and by the way, you do know Jack Shaw, do you not? A. Oh, yes.

Q. ——in the fall of 1938, referring to Volume 9, pages 1034 to 1040 of the record, among the people present were Jack Shaw, William Malin, Emma Waugemann, Charles Waugemann, Henry Schmidt, William Schneidermann, Walter Lambert, Mrs. Malin and Mr. Bridges—— A. Mrs. Bridges?

Q. Mr. Bridges; that a statement was made by Mr. Bridges that [4847] he was a Communist and solicited others in the audience to join the Communist Party.

A. No, sir. I can tell you again I was at that residence on one occasion, and it was a social affair; the house was packed with people, and everybody seemed to be carrying a drink in their hands, and everybody was talking at the same time.

Q. Was John Schomaker there?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was Mrs. Harris there?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, would you say that John Schomaker is a stool pigeon?

A. Well, now, after all, he was here, he testified; considering the amount of money that these people have received for testifying, these weaklings will probably stoop to anything.

Q. Then you would just say John Schomaker was a weakling? A. Yes.

Q. Not a stool pigeon?

A. Well, if you like, I will add the other term also.

Q. It isn't a matter of my preference, Mr. Schmidt. I am trying to get your mental attitude toward John Schomaker.

A. You have it, sir.

Q. Is Mrs. Irene Harris a stool pigeon?

A. Well, that poor little lady, I am afraid, didn't know what she was doing.

Q. You think she is perhaps mentally incompetent? [4848]

A. Well, I wouldn't make such uncomplimentary remarks about the lady.

Q. You heard, Mr. Schmidt, a witness named Walter Buck testify in this proceeding?

A. Yes.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: Mr. Mitchell, would you hand the witness a copy of the official transcript and ask him if he can refresh his recollection as to the date upon which Mr. Walter Buck testified.

(Document handed to witness.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It appears, does it not, that Mr. Buck testified on Wednesday, the 25th of January?

A. A few days ago, yes. [4849]

Mr. Donohue: Will you hand him Volume 41, please, sir, calling his attention to the name Oscar W. Pearson and ask him if he can determine——

(Document handed to witness.)

A. Yes.

Q. You know Mr. Buck? A. Slightly.

Q. You know Mr. Pearson better, perhaps?

A. Yes.

Q. You know Mr. Pearson to be, as he stated, president of the Pacific Maritime Association?

A. Yes. I knew him when he held another job in Los Angeles harbor, and I also knew him when he was in the service of the military forces, the United States Army Water Division. If I am not mistaken, Mr. Pearson was a longshoreman one time.

Q. Would you explain to us, Mr. Schmidt, what the Coast Labor Relations Committee is and who are its components, if you know?

A. At the moment?

Q. Yes.

A. The Coast Labor Relations Committee is an agency set up as a result of certain provisions of the Coastwise Longshore contract. It consists of five members, two representing the employers' association—that would be the Pacific Maritime Association—and two members representing the union. Bridges is also a member representing the union, but he doesn't function on it [4850] very frequently. Its members are Bodine, representing the union, and Mr. Thomas is the other union member, who is my successor, incidentally; and Mr. Henry Clark is the employer representative, and right now I can't recall who the other employer representative is. The fifth member would be the Coastwise arbitrator, Mr. Sam Kagel. Do you want me to tell what this agency is, what its duties are?

Q. Yes, if you would.

A. Well, the ~~contract was~~ recently revised, but in the main the duties of the committee are the same. The committee is obliged to attempt to administer the contract on a coastwise basis. It is obliged to interpret or attempt to interpret certain provisions of the contract in case a dispute should arise. The committee also handles arbitrations whenever a dispute arises that can not be settled without the arbitrator, and when such disputes take place, the employer representatives prepare their case and present it to the arbitrator, and the union members function in like capacity. And there might be hearings that would take sometimes a day, sometimes a few hours. If the issue is of great importance, why, such an arbitration hearing might take a week.

Q. Do you recall when Mr. Buck was there that I asked him the question whether or not it was in the exercise of a sound business practice for him to come and testify as to the good character of certain of these defendants? [4851]

A. Yes, I recall you posing that question.

Q. And do you recall that I asked the same question of Mr. Pearson? A. I think so.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Schmidt, that the Pacific Coast longshore agreement, the Pacific Coast steam schooner agreement, and the welfare plan have not yet been finally signed by the respective parties to that agreement?

A. That is a question that you had better address to Bridges and members of the Coast Committee, because I——

Q. How well do you know Mr. Bodine?

A. Oh, very well.

Mr. Donohue: Will you hand this letter to the witness and ask him if he can identify the signature of Mr. Bodine?

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it first?

Mr. Donohue: If he identifies the signature.

Mr. MacInnis: In the first place, I think that if there is some contrary inference to be elicited, it should be done not through a hearsay document but through testimony. Whether he knows the signature of the man or not wouldn't make any letter admissible, unless it is admissible by some other route. That is why I would like to see it.

The Court: Show it to counsel.

(Document exhibited to Mr. MacInnis.)

Mr. MacInnis: It is a hearsay document written by one man [4852] not a party to this case to another man not a party to this case.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask the preliminary question: Do you recognize the signature?

A. I do.

Mr. Donohue: In order, if Your Honor please, that I might not in any way prejudice the matter, I ask Your Honor for permission in absence of the jury, to make an offer of proof.

The Court: I have no objection. You may do so at the recess period.

Mr. Donohue: Well, it would be appropriate now if I might. It won't take but a few minutes, I should think; then we may have this matter concluded.

Mr. MacInnis: If it is a very brief one, we might go into chambers.

The Court: It would take how long?

Mr. Donohue: Five minutes.

The Court: The jury may retire. We have had a rather lengthy day. Perhaps they can take five minutes.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will discuss the matter in court. You may retire with the same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the courtroom and the following proceedings were had outside of the presence of the jury:) [4853]

The Court: Is it stipulated that the jurors are absent?

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, I expect to show—and the foundation was laid by the cross-examination of the representatives of the Pacific Maritime Federation who came here—that as a matter of fact that on the dates upon which Mr. Buck and Mr. Pearson testified that there was at that time pending the ratification——

The Court: What was the last word?

Mr. Donohue: The ratification of certain agreements which had heretofore been agreed upon, I assume by committees that were to be subsequently ratified by the organizations concerned before a formal signing of the agreement would take place. I therefore offer to show to Your Honor that these witnesses were procured to come here and testify as to the good character of these defendants under the pressure one might well expect to exist between the Pacific Maritime Association and the particular unions involved when the agreement had not at that time been executed, and I therefore, if Your Honor pleases, by this witness who said he knows the signature of H. J. Bodine of the Coast Labor Relations Committee, a man who has, as he stated himself, at one time served as a member of that committee, who knows the addressee of the letter, Mr. O. W. Pearson, president of the Pacific Maritime Association, that by letter dated January 26, 1950, the day following the testimony of Mr. Buck [4854] and the same day on which Mr. Pearson gave his testimony, that Mr. Bodine wrote a letter for the Coast Labor Relations Committee to Mr. Pearson, concluding by saying: "We would appreciate a meeting of the parties at your earliest convenience for the purpose of formally signing the respective Coastwise agreement, reference being made to the above."

Therefore, if Your Honor please, I think it is wholly proper to ask this witness, who knows Mr. Bodine and who has identified his signature, whether in the light of this letter it is not a fact that these signatures were not, or the fact that the signaures would be appended to this agreement was not made known to Mr. Pearson and Mr. Buck until after they testified in this court and I then, I think, if Your Honor please, have a perfect right to argue to the jury that it is apparent that these people came here under pressure, fearing lest if they failed to testify this agreement would not be consummated, and that is my offer of proof.

Mr. Hallinan: That is charging perjury in a peculiar way against one of the biggest capitalists in San Francisco. Counsel makes the mistake of proving everybody according to the estimates he has formed of men such as Manning Johnson, Paul Crouch and Lawrence Ross. To suggest that Mr.

Buck, a man with 90 million dollars, has come in here to testify falsely so that the union will sign a document is to show a misapprehension of human nature, a complete misjudgment of character [4855] of decent people by Mr. Donohue.

Mr. Donohue has dealt too much with the Maragons, the Davis Phil Kastels and the Frank Costellos, and I think this offer, Your Honor, is an insult to decent people who come in here and testify. If he attempts to argue that, let the jury appraise it, but to have it put in as a piece of evidence is something entirely different. [4856]

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, so I may be clear in my mind, would the fact that Mr. Buck has $90,000,000 tend to affect his credibility?

Mr. Hallinan: I think it would make a price, if perjury could be purchased of Mr. Buck, it would be at such a price that the ILWU could scarcely afford to pay it.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, may I hear from you?

Mr. MacInnis: If we take for a moment and pretend that the prosecutor is serious in making this claim, the inquiring judge must, of course, try to follow his trend of thought. Here is what he says. Pearson and Buck testified as character witnesses for Harry Bridges. They did not testify as character witnesses for Henry Schmidt. Henry Schmdit says he knows nothing about the contractual negotiations. So he says by hearsay letter from a man named Bodine to Mr. Pearson or vice versa, whichever it is, showing the date of a contract, that he should now be permitted to cross-examine Henry Schmidt, who knows nothing about it, and thus raising the inference. If it were not utterly hearsay evidence, we would be blocked by the further lack of logic, for there is no connection between the witness Henry Schmidt and the witnesses Buck and Pearson. But the prosecutor pays the Court a great, and I think peculiar compliment in asking the Court to permit evidence of that kind against citizens who come here to give testimony, asking the Court to entertain the inference that [4857] perjury was committed by these people under some economic threat. In other words, he is not rude, as we are. He does not come out and yell, "Liar and perjurer" as we do to Manning Johnson, Paul Crouch, Lawrence Ross, John Schomaker and all the rest. He has a different kind of subtlety, although it is the subtlety of an elephant in the last analysis.

The Court: The subtlety of what?

Mr. MacInnis: Of an elephant. He says to the Court this: "I want to show Henry Schmidt, who knows nothing about these negotiations, a letter from a man named Boldine or Bodine to Mr. Pearson bearing the date of the contract so that I can impeach Mr. Schmidt or Mr. Pearson." Now, I can't follow that. But the deeper inference is the macabre thing in the offer of proof that is made here. The deeper inference, couched in the polite words, "We want to raise the inference or we want to show that these men came here under compulsion"—the deeper inference is this: [4858]

Pearson, the head, the president of the Maritime Association, lied under oath; Walter Buck, owner of the controlling interest in the Matson Navigation Company, lied under oath and he wants to prove it in that devious and circuitous fashion. We do not want to close the doors to the raising of any inference. We do not want to leave anything unexplained. But in a relatively short time the defendant, Harry Bridges will take the stand. Harry Bridges is chairman, at least pro forma, of the Labor Relations Committee. Harry Bridges may be cross-examined. He is familiar with that matter. Henry Schmidt is not.

The Court: What harm would be incurred in asking Mr. Schmidt if he is familiar?

Mr. MacInnis: He has already said he is not. If we are to sit here merely to find if the matter is harmful or not, I had not understood that was our purpose, but Henry Schmidt has already said he knows nothing about the negotiating matters. Now he wants to make an oblique charge of perjury by bringing a letter here. Now, I didn't understand it. It is ridiculous in the first place to say that those men would come here with that kind of motivation, because they would come back again and say the same thing after the contract is signed. I suppose he would raise a different inference then, but he can't raise it in this fashion and I think it is a terrible suggestion to make to the Court that such an inference is a proper one to be [4859] thrust upon a witness in the guise of a letter.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, I didn't have any idea that such a storm was going to be created out of a request that I should make in a legal offer of proof. It seems a bit strained. Mr. Hallinan, who in his opening statement, attacked with great bitterness shipowners who were a part of that immense conspiracy of 125 people——

Mr. Hallinan: If the Court please, I am sorry, I have to corret that. I said originally the shipowners did try to have Mr. Bridges put out of the country, but the shipowners were now desirous of retaining him here. I said that specifically in the opening statement.

Mr. Donohue: And it is equally amazing, if Your Honor please, that these lawyers who have charged poor working men with perjury are so quick to rise to the defense of so-called upper class.

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me. We haven't charged any working man with perjury. We have charged hired professional witnesses such as Manning Johnson, Lawrence Ross, Paul Crouch. Poor working men? $2,000 Crouch took away from the United States Government, he and his wife, to stand by here a month to give the perjury he gave. $10,000 they have paid out to one of the other poor working men for the time that they had him here. Poor working men, forsooth! The poor working men are being well paid in this kind of occupation. If that is being a poor [4860] working man, being a stool pigeon, a professional perjurer has risen to a new dignity, if the Court please. The wages are getting good. Who are the poor working men that we have accused of being perjurers?

Mr. Donohue: Do you have any objection to my making a statement to the Court?

Mr. Hallinan: I have an objection to your misstating what we have said.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, I ask your Honor at this time to grant us permission to call Mr. Pearson and I shall ask Mr. Pearson to identify the letter that was sent to him.

Mr. MacInnis: To that we have no objection.

The Court: Do you have any objection?

Mr. MacInnis: None at all.

The Court: You may recall Mr. Pearson. You may recall Mr. Buck, if you please. You may recall any other witnesses. The same latitude applies to the defense. It seems to me, gentlemen, after hearing the discussion generally, that the surrounding circumstances with respect to the agreement or potential agreements or the tentative agreements may be gone into, not with respect to any alleged perjurious statements, but with regard to motive, underlying reason, overhanging necessity and all the other myriad details that go into bringing a witness into court. [4861]

Mr. MacInnis: We agree thoroughly with that.

The Court: I think Mr. Donohue is entitled to go into the letters, the day to day working operations on the waterfront, what the operations were and so forth.

Mr. MacInnis: The only objection is not to going into those details but going into them with a man who knows nothing about them.

The Court: That may well be true. Recall the jury.

(Thereupon the jury returned to the courtroom, and in their presence the following occurred:)

The Court: All of the jurors have returned? Are all the jurors here?

The Clerk: Yes, Your Honor.

The Court: You may proceed.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed the stand.

Cross-Examination
(Resumed)

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. You were not on the waterfront before you were elected to office in the ILA, were you, Mr. Schmidt?

A. What office do you have reference to?

Q. Any office.

A. It was quite a number of years. I was elected to the executive board of the ILA in 1933 and I had been around then for quite a number of years.

Q. When did you begin to devote your full time to the business [4862] of the union?

A. That would be in the fall of 1936, I think is the right year, when I was first elected president of the local union.

Q. Then since the fall of 1936 you have not actually worked as a longshoreman?

A. Oh, yes.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. When? [4862-A]

Q. How much of the last 14 years since 1936 would you say was devoted by you to work for the union and how much time to working yourself on the waterfront or otherwise?

A. Oh, the major part of the time has been union work. I worked on the waterfront after my fourth term as president expired, and I know I was working on the waterfront in the early days when the war started. I recall I was working on the waterfront one Christmas day. The war was already on. I recall everybody ran up on deck to see the steamer Coolidge come back into port, the steamer President Coolidge. [4863]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Did you write articles at any time for the Western Worker? A. No, sir.

Q. I am sorry; the Waterfront Worker?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Who controlled the Waterfront Worker, do you know?

A. Well, according to some testimony that I have heard, it was the Communist Party, and then there was the group in the Albion Hall later on, I believe, sort of controlled it. But so far as my writings were concerned, that was early in the game, while I was working at the Admiral Line docks.

Q. Do you know who was in control or who did control the Waterfront Worker at the time when you were writing articles for it?

A. At that time I didn't have the slightest idea where it came from or who had anything to do with it.

Q. You met Mr. Bridges in 1933?

A. Yes, it must have been 1933. I have no recollection of knowing him in 1932.

Q. In 1934 both you and Mr. Bridges were first elected to office in the ILA?

A. No, I told you a while ago that we were elected to the executive board of the ILA in 1933.

Q. 1933, in July?

A. Well, I don't know what month it was.

Q. Isn't it a fact that your rise from a waterfront worker to [4864] the many offices you have had in the ILWU is attributed to the support which you have obtained from the Communist Party?

A. I hardly think so.

Q. Do you have any certain knowledge on the subject?

A. Well, I do not know what you mean by "certain knowledge" now.

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact whether the Communist Party has helped you attain some or all of the offices which you have held from time to time in the union?

A. I may say I have seen no evidence of them opposing me, and if that be a crime, then maybe I am guilty.

Q. If they did support you, and I assume from what you have stated that they did, did they oppose you as one who was friendly to the Communist Party or did they aid you as a member of the Communist Party?

A. They didn't aid me as a member.

Q. When did you first meet George Wilson?

A. That I can't recall.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I recollect that he was the executive secretary of the Bridges Defense Committee, the second case, I guess. I am thinking of the hearing before Inspector Sears.

Q. Would that be 1941?

A. That would be the correct year, and he may have been an officer of the CIO Council before that. I guess he was. [4865]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Do you recall testifying in your direct testimony that at one time George Wilson was president of the San Francisco CIO Council?

A. Oh, yes, I know he was that.

Q. Do you remember when that was?

A. No, off the cuff I can't tell you.

Q. Do you remember testifying that at one time when George Wilson was secretary of the CIO Council you were the president of the Council?

A. Yes, I have a recollection that he was secretary. I can picture him there taking the minutes at the meetings of the Council and I was in the chair.

Q. When were you president of the CIO Council?

A. You will have to give me an opportunity to go to their office and check the records. You see, there was a period there when I was president of the San Francisco local and I was president of the CIO Council at the same time. The official job as president of the CIO Council didn't really amount to much, because all the president had to do was come to the meetings on Friday night and chair the meetings. The secretary ran the affairs of the Council. It was a job without pay, too, incidentally.

Q. Can you tell us whether George Wilson was secretary of the Bridges Defense Committee before or after the time when you were president of the San Francisco CIO Council? [4866]

A. No, sir, I do not know, and I can't understand why you expect me to remember those things.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. It was not too many years ago, was it, Mr. Schmidt? A. Eight or nine years ago?

Q. Pardon? A. Eight or nine years ago?

Q. Yes.

A. Lots of water has run under the bridge.

Q. You have a pretty good memory or recollection about some incidents that happened on a day or two before the date in June of 1936 when you say you drove to Stockton, California?

A. I can't help it. Some things come to mind and some do not.

Q. You knew George Wilson pretty well, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You said you attended hundreds of meetings with him?

A. Yes, there must have been at least a hundred.

Q. Did I understand you correctly to say that you did not know that George Wilson was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I didn't have the slightest idea.

Q. You heard him state here under oath that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I heard him and I thought it was a pitiful performance.

Q. You did not believe him? A. Hardly.

Q. Can you suggest any reason why George Wilson under oath in this community in which he was as well known as apparently he was should testify under oath that for a number of years he had been a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, apparently you people have got something on him that made him perform here as he did.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Is that the only explanation that you can offer, Mr. Schmidt?

A. Yes, I think that is a good explanation.

Q. You have known George Wilson much longer than I have, [4867] haven't you?

A. I do not know how well you knew him.

Q. I met him when I came to San Francisco, when he came into this courtroom or a few days before.

A. I can tell you what my impression were when he was sitting here and I was sitting down there.

Q. You knew him for a great many years, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know anything wrong that George Wilson ever did?

A. I don't understand the first part of your sentence.

Q. You knew him for a great many years, George Wilson? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know of anything wrong that Mr. George Wilson has done, do you?

A. No, I can't think of anything.

Q. Now, you heard George Wilson say that he knew you were a member of the Communist Party, did you not?

A. I don't think he said it in those words. He seemed very uncertain, too.

Mr. MacInnis: I will give you the page of the testimony, if that is what you are looking for.

Mr. Donohue: I think I have it. Thank you. Page 4010:

"Q. With respect to the defendant Henry Schmidt, did you ever attend a meeting of the Communist Party at which Mr. Schmidt was present? [4868] A. I did.

"Q. And would you say that you attended one or more than one? A. More than one."

A. That is what he said, but he didn't say where or when.

Q. Did you ask your counsel to cross-examine him and ask him where or when?

A. Did I ask my counsel?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. You know that your counsel didn't ask him where or when, do you not?

A. I believe that is correct.

Q. Do you think George Wilson is a stool pigeon?

A. As I stated before, you people must have something on him, because when he sat here—I would like to give you my impression, if you don't mind.

Q. I would be very interested to hear it. Perhaps the jury might, too.

A. That man was talking to us when he sat here. It made a deep impression on my mind and I won't forget it soon.

Q. That man was what?

Mr. MacInnis: Please let him finish his answer. He is giving his answer and every time he stops for a split second you interrupt. He said he wanted to tell you. You said you [4869] would be happy to hear.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Donohue: I would.

Mr. MacInnis: Would you continue, please, Mr. Schmidt?

The Witness: As far as I can recollect, he was the first witness who identified the three defendants by using only their first names. He said, "Yes, there is Harry in the gray suit. Yes, there is Henry sitting next to him. And there is Bob sitting next to Henry." And it was my impression that that man was talking to us three at that moment and he was in effect saying, "Look, fellows, I can't help it. I don't like to do this but they have got something on me, and that is the reason I am doing it." I don't mind telling you it demoralized me for the rest of the day and I don't get easily demoralized.

Q. You do not think it was a very pleasant task for Mr. George Wilson under oath to testify that he had been a member of the Communist Party and to point out three old comrades in the Communist Party, do you?

A. I think it was the other thing he was thinking of, that he was testifying about something he didn't know, and he became very deeply moved, and I recall that a recess had to be declared so that he might gain his composure again.

Q. Did you ask your counsel to ask Mr. Wilson if anyone had anything on him or he had been in any way threatened or persuaded to give the testimony that he did? [4870]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I recall there was some discussions out in the hall. I don't exactly recall what was said. Apparently the lawyers decided not to ask him any more questions, and they are running this little show, not I.

Q. Did you tell your counsel it was your opinion that George Wilson was talking to you and not talking about you?

A. I told them that later in the day.

Q. And did you also tell them that your impression was that George Wilson acted like a man whom someone had something on and forced to do something he didn't want to do?

A. I think I made that remark somewhere along the line, yes.

Q. And the many years that you knew George Wilson, you knew he was a man who told the truth?

A. I always took it for granted that he did, yes.

Q. And the only explanation that you can give for his testimony here under oath is that he acted like a man——

A. Under compulsion, as he stated to one of the newspaper reporters out in the hall.

Q. He stated what?

A. He stated to one of the newspaper reporters when he was asked, "Are you doing this under compulsion, George?" He said, "Yes, absolutely, and it will all come out once I get back on the stand."

Q. He was back on the stand. Did you ask your counsel to ask him what compulsion there had been?

Wasn't a subpoena issued [4871] by this Court against George Wilson?

A. Let me put it this way: If I had been handling my own affair, I would have interrogated him on that point.

Mr. Donohue: May we adjourn at this time, if your Honor please?

The Court: Yes, we will adjourn at this time until tomorrow morning at the same hour, 10:00 o'clock.

The same admonition, ladies and gentlemen, not to discuss the case under any conditions or to form or express an opinion thereon until it is submitted to you.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Thursday, February 2, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4872]

Thursday, February 2, 1950—10:00 A.M.

The Clerk: The United States of America v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. MacInnis: Call Father Paul Meinecke again, please.

I understood that the special prosecutor wanted to investigate Father Meinecke and thus had him held over until today. So if there are some questions, he is now available.

Mr. Donohue: The special prosecutor made no such statement, that he wanted to investigate Father Meinecke. He said he would like to read the transcript of testimony and ask him some more questions.

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Father Paul Meinecke, heretofore sworn.

FATHER PAUL MEINECKE

recalled.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Father, during the period that you were here in San Francisco you were a member of the Franciscan Order of the Catholic Church?

A. You are absolutely correct, sir.

Q. Are you still a member of that order, Father?

A. No, sir.

Q. And at the time, Father, when you left San Francisco after ten years in the Franciscan Order here, in which, as you stated, [4873] you devoted much of your time to the problems of labor, was the decision to leave San Francisco fully voluntary on your part?

A. It is true there seems to be an apparent contradiction there between what I said yesterday and what you are bringing out now. If you will pardon me a moment, you see, every priest takes a vow of obedience, and must be like a soldier ready to go and come for any assignment. I had been working, as you say, here in San Francisco about ten years in the same parish in those activities you refer to, and my superior saw fit to use my services in another parish in Spokane, Washington. But during the years that I was working here in San Francisco, maybe for five or six years, I had the good fortune to be appointed as the chaplain of the San Francisco recreation camp in the high Sierras. There I discovered that I had a great yen for the wide open places, for mountains and valleys where there aren't too many people; and when I was up in Spokane, corresponding with some other priests who had volunteered for the Nevada missions, I likewise conceived the idea, and through proper channels, through my superiors and through the Bishop and finally with the approval of the Holy Father himself, I was allowed to volunteer for the Nevada mission where I am now engaged in priestly work.

Q. And that, Father, was while you were in Spokane, not while you were here in San Francisco?

A. That is correct. [4874]

Q. Was your leaving San Francisco and going to Spokane under orders of your order, or was it a voluntary request on your part?

A. At that time it was—it falls into the first category; it was obeying an order, as every one of us priests must do.

Q. Father, yesterday when you said that Harry Bridges was not a member of "our parish," referring to St. Boniface, you didn't to give the impression that he was to your knowledge a member of any other Catholic parish of this city or diocese?

A. He would automatically be a member of the parish within whose confines or parish limits that he lived.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether he is an active member of any Catholic church in the City of San Francisco?

A. To the best of my knowledge, I would not be able to answer that question in the affirmative.

Q. When you talked with Mr. Bridges, Father, about the possibility of his coming back into the Church as a practical Catholic, when was that, approximately? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. When was it? A. On many occasions.

Q. When was the——

A. That was a great part of the motive of my association with Mr. Bridges; I had that hope.

Q. Did he talk with you on that subject on many occasions? [4875] A. That is correct.

Q. What is your best recollection, Father, as to when the last occasion when you discussed that subject with him occurred?

A. I could not say that exactly, but I would say that out of three—out of three times that we would meet, on at leeast one of them I would bring the subject up and I would tell Mr. Bridges how much it would—oh, it would redound to his influence. I thought it would be a great help to him to be a practical Catholic and also a great labor leader; that his influence would be all the greater.

Q. Do you recall with respect to his personal circumstance at the time when you last talked with him whether he was then married to the same wife with perhaps whom you may have talked yourself at one time or another?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. Yes, I knew her and I spoke to her, and at that time he was married to her.

Q. Have you talked with him at all or has he discussed with you at all the subject of the possibility of becoming again a practical Catholic, if he ever was one?

A. I think I had him right on the edge a couple of times ready to push him over.

Q. Was that, Father, before he had taken a second wife after having divorced the first?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is there some rule in the Catholic Church whereby one [4876] becomes excommunicated for having married a second time with a living spouse by the first marriage?

A. No, the penalty is not excommunication.

Q. Is there a penalty of excommunication for a Catholic who fails to carry out his Easter duty?

A. Not any more.

Q. Then you still consider Harry Bridges a Catholic?

A. Yes. Once baptised, as I said, sir, he will always be a Catholic. He can never erase that fact. A person may wander a bit, may forget about religion, fail to practice it for many years of their lives, as many people do, but when they return to the Church the only thing they have to do, they go to confession, say, "Father, I have been away for twenty years; I want to get myself lined up again," and the priest merely hears his confession, gives him absolution, and the man is in good standing with the Church again. [4877]

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. You were here, Father, form 1938 through 1947? A. Approximately.

Q. And I take it that during the period of your activity with the Association of Catholic Trade Unions that you sought to warn the members of your organization of the dangers of infiltration in the labor movement of members of the Communist Party, did you not?

A. That is one of the very purposes of the organization, to make the members aware of that.

Q. In consequence of that type of instruction, Father, I take it that you yourself familiarized yourself in some measure or in some degree with the principles of the Communist Party?

A. I believe I made more than an ordinarily thorough study of the subject. If you will pardon me for going back a few years, I believe as early as 1934 you would have seen me in Union Square in New York or on the Common in Boston on a soapbox talking and arguing with Communists. In fact, I would interject myself into the arguments of some other soapbox orators and heckle them until such time that the Communist or worker or all sorts of Communists and Socialists would finally in extreme exasperation say,—well, they would use a little rough language. If I may be pardoned, they would usually say, "If you know so damn much about it, why don't you come up here?", and I was waiting for such an opportunity, and I used those opportunities.

Meanwhile, at home I studied and I discussed

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Communism in a [4878] practical way with Communists and with Socialists and every variety of radical, so that I would not only have that book knowledge, but likewise I would see how it was interpreted by the man in the street who posed or thought he was a Communist. And when I came west, I did not have the opportunities that I had on the East Coast, but I began to familiarize myself with the scene of Communism as it worked in San Francisco, tried to meet the man who was a Communist, the men who were Communists, talk to them, read about them, and of course at the same time I was working with my own group. Especially I was working with a group of young people who were called the Young Christian Workers. One of the main purposes of that organization was to combat Communism positively. We did not fight Communism in the negative; in other words, always preaching against it. We tried to teach the positive principles of the good trade unionism. We figured we would be wasting our time if we were always walloping Communism. We had a program, a very positive program of our own, which we wished to sell and which we devoted most of our time to, being positive, not negative.

Q. Then I take it, Father, that because of your familiarity with the Communist doctrine, that you carefully examined the manifestations of the Communist Party by way of their propaganda in the United States during the period of time in which you were here in San Francisco?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. You are absolutely right. I watched it like a hawk. [4879]

Q. Taking you back, then, Father, to August of 1939, at the time when Russia and the Nazis signed their famous peace pact and became allies and then proceeded to divide Poland between them, each taking substantially a half, do you recall that at or about that time the Communist Party propaganda in the United States was one which called the war in Europe an "imperialistic" war and one which opposed any aid on the part of the United States to either England or France, to aid them in their fight against Hitlerism? Do you recall that that was the Communist Party line in 1939?

A. Yes, that is when the Communist Party did one of their seasonal flip-flops, and we all had a good laugh at them.

Q. And do you recall that at or about the same time it was the propaganda line of the Communist Party in the United States to oppose the lend-lease bill, to oppose the draft act, and to propagandize that now famous statement, "The Yanks are not coming"?

A. That was part of their program at that time, as far as I remember now.

Q. Now, was the fact that at the same time Harry Bridges urged and argued the same propositions as were argued by the Communist Party at all significant to you in forming your estimation of the character of Harry Bridges or his membership or non-membership in the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me just a minute. Now, that question [4880] assumes facts not in evidence. The facts as stated by the special prosecutor are not true in the first instance. Harry Bridges did not advocate those policies, and the question put to this witness is an unfair one, telling him in advance that these things are true and then asking him to give an opinion.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the question and ask another one, if your Honor please.

Q. Do you know, as a good friend of Harry Bridges and one who, as you say, was familiar with this Communist line in the United States at that time, whether or not Harry Bridges advocated the same principles we have just discussed?

A. I beg your pardon? I hope I did not misunderstand you. Did you mean to say that Harry Bridges was familiar with all those things?

Q. I am asking you now, Father, if you do not know—— A. Or am I familiar?

Q. I beg your pardon. May I ask you, Father, as a matter of fact, do you know whether or not during this same period of time Harry Bridges also advocated or opposed, let me say, lend-lease, opposed the draft act, was in favor of the principle that the "Yanks are not coming," and designated the then war between the allies in Europe and Hitler as an imperialistic war?

A. Well, that is a pretty big bundle, but I would say definitely I do not know whether he was for or against those things, [4881] because to the best of my recollection now, I do not recall having a conversation with him on any one of those subjects.

Q. Is this during the period of time, Father, when you were forming your estimation by reading between the lines as to whether or not Harry Bridges was a Communist? A. That's right.

Q. But you did not ask him his views on these matters which at that time seemed to have assumed a great proportion in this country?

A. I think I can truthfully say that I had my mind pretty well formed about Harry Bridges' stand on Communism before those events came up.

Q. That is, before 1939?

A. But what he may have done during this time, I could not say now. Maybe through your ability to investigate those things, you could tell me. But I do not know.

Q. Then let me ask you, Father, if you were assured, as a matter of fact, or if you knew as a matter of fact, during that period of time that Harry Bridges did advocate those things which were also advocated by the Communist Party, would your opinion as to his membership or non-membership in the Communist Party be subject to review?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. We in this case are not prepared to accept the assurances of the special prosecutor as to this fact or any other fact, and hence we object to the question as [4882] stating facts not in evidence.

Mr. Donohue: I haven't made any assurance. I asked him if he were assured.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Court: This is cross-examination; I will allow it.

A. If I were assured, you know what I would do?

Q. I am interested, Father.

A. I would go look up Harry and find his motivation and say, "Why?", because there are many other people in the country whom we know were not and are not Communists but who followed various points of that program as you outlined it. Some very outstanding men, but not Communists.

Q. Father, do you recall that there came a time in 1941 when the peace pact between Nazi Germany and the Soviet government was interrupted by an attack in June 1941, by Hitler upon Russia?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall from your familiarity with the doctrine and operation of the Communist Party that the Communist Party in the United States immediately then changed the term from an "imperialistic" war to a "people's war"?

A. That's right; they did another flip-flop.

Q. Now, do you know whether or not at the same time and simultaneously therewith Harry Bridges did a flip-flop, as you have termed it?

A. Hmm. Another one of those subjects we did not discuss. [4883]

Q. Father——

A. You see, look, please—if I may say this?

Q. Surely.

A. In our association I told you before that we were positive. We wasted little time on these other issues. If I went to see Harry Bridges, it was about something, a problem in trade unionism or something that came up in my group and I needed a little help, or it was something about a job for someone, or it was something about a certain member of his union who may have got into a little scrape with the union officials and appealed to me, and would I present the facts to Mr. Bridges, you see.

Q. Yes. Father, as a matter of fact, were you lulled into a false sense of security on Mr. Bridges' relationship with the Communist Party by the mere fact that he talked to you at some time or another about the possibilities of his returning to the fold as a practical Catholic? A. No, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, he never did anything about returning to the fold as a practical Catholic, did he, Father?

A. Yes, he took some very important steps.

Q. You don't mean that his second marriage was a very important step in that direction, do you, Father. A. I did not say that.

Q. Then what steps do you have in mind, Father?

A. By his close association with me, if I may say so, by his [4884] continuation of that friendship and that helpful attitude toward me, that deferential and respectful way of treating a priest, I saw that we were making progress.

Q. Don't you know, Father, that many persons who are not of our faith are very deferential to Catholic priests and to all men of the clergy?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. I think that if their motivation is not unworthy——

Mr. Hallinan: I think this discussion, your Honor, of theological and ecclesiastical matters ought to stop, and I do say, after an experience in the court yesterday, that persons of a non-Catholic faith seem to have more respect for certain priests, at least, than some members of the Catholic faith. But it seems to me that this inquiry into Mr. Bridges' ecclesiastical beliefs is going a little bit too far. If counsel is just trying to show off what he professes to know about it, why, he can do it in some other form; but doesn't it seem to you that we have about enough inquiry into whether Mr. Bridges goes to confession or does not, and what his activities are in that behalf?

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, your Honor?

The Court: I might say, in response, Mr. Hallinan, that I believe the cross-examination now is within proper bounds.

Mr. Hallinan: I concede, but in the meantime I want to make the objection, your Honor. I want to point out that little suggestion, backing up counsel's statement about non-Catholics [4885] frequently having more respect for the priest than Catholics show.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Father——

A. Yes, sir?

Q. Do you recall that immediately after the conclusion of the last World War that the Communist Party in the United States began to demand the immediate withdrawal of American troops from China and Korea, so as not to deter the so-called "valiant" Chinese Reds from taking over all of China?

A. I remember reading that fact, reported in the newspapers.

Q. Do you know, Father, from your close contact with Harry Bridges whether he too advocated the immediate withdrawal of American troops from China?

A. You see, that would be another one of those subjects that we wouldn't discuss unless I made a deliberate point to do it. And right now I have to tell you that I do not remember asking Harry, "How do you stand on that?"

Q. And do you remember, Father, that when the Marshall plan was developed in this country, and for the purposes with which we are all familiar, that that too was bitterly opposed by the Communist Party in the United States?

A. I remember reading about that in the paper, too.

Q. And do you remember, Father, whether, or do you know whether or not as a matter of fact Harry Bridges also at the same time opposed the Marshall Plan? [4886] A. I do not know that.

Q. Is it a fact, Father, that before these incidents just inquired about which began in 1939, that you had closed your mind on the subject as to whether or not Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, I had already used what we might call a reasonable, more than reasonable amount of judgment, perspicacity, investigation, to arrive at a conclusion, and a man like Mr. Bridges does not certainly change his principles. Due to the aforesaid investigation, I have told you about, I had already come to the conclusion that the man was, well, if I may describe him, he seemed to be affected with a virus; he has a bug in him. That bug is militant trade unionism. I do not think that the man will ever rest until everyone, white collar workers, and all the workers, are in a good union. He has dedicated his life to that ambition. That is his work, that is his ideal. And I discovered that in the earlier years of our association. Perhaps it appears here that I am going a little out of the way to put in a word for him, but I must tell the truth. When you served that subpoena on me and I was told to come here; I thought I would just be able to say yes or no and go home. I live almost a thousand miles from here, over mountains and ice and snow. I was not prepared to—I did not expect this. But you have goaded me into saying these things, and so pardon me if I speak with a little bit too much earnestness or, as someone said, loquaciously. [4887]

Q. You understand, Father, that I didn't issue a subpoena for your appearance here.

A. No, but the officer of the law did, and here I am.

Q. You understand that you were subpoenaed by the defendants? A. That is correct.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. As a witness as to the character of Harry Bridges?

A. I beg your pardon for saying "you."

Q. With respect to that subject, Father, when did you first discuss with anyone the fact that you were coming here to testify as to the character of Mr. Bridges.

A. When did I first discuss it with someone? Last Wednesday or Thursday in Eureka, Nevada, with some of my parishioners.

Q. At that time, Father, had you been asked by someone if you would come here?

A. Just a moment. Correction. I was warned over the telephone. I was warned over the telephone by Mr. MacInnis.

Q. And when you say you were warned, you mean——

A. Then I discussed it with some of my parishioners.

Q. When you say you were warned, you mean you were alerted for the trip here to San Francisco for the purpose of giving your testimony?

A. Yes, as far as I remember it, I was alerted that I would be served a subpoena.

Q. When had you been in San Francisco last, Father, before you came here a day or two ago? [4888]

A. A month or two ago.

Q. Did you discuss this subject matter with anyone at that time?

A. In a general sort of way, yes, but not involving me personally.

Q. With whom did you discuss it in a general sort of way? A. Mr. MacInnis.

Q. Have you discussed it with Mr. Bridges?

A. Mr. Bridges was there on one occasion, likewise Mr. Hallinan.

Q. Father, you were in San Francisco in July of 1940, were you, sir? A. I believe I was.

Q. And at that time you were active in the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists?

A. July?

Q. July of 1940.

A. No; I am sorry; I wasn't in San Francisco. I was at Camp Mather. I know that for sure. I was out of San Francisco in 1940, I was away from San Francisco from Memorial Day until about two days after Labor Day, when I returned. I know that exactly, and I think that if you—I have got a very good witness to prove that I wasn't in San Francisco at that time.

Q. Father, did you ever have called to your attention an article by Richard Lamb on the general subject of Catholic Unionists organized to drive out the racketeers, which appeared [4889] in the San Francisco edition of the San Francisco News on Friday, July 19, 1940?

A. I am not aware of the article or not familiar with it.

Q. Are you familiar with the Monitor, the official organ of the archdiocese of San Francisco?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

A. That's right.

Mr. Donohue: I will ask the clerk to mark this United States for identification next in order and ask him to direct the attention of the witness to a published letter from Harry Bridges to the Rev. Father Charles Owen Rice, and the reply thereto, and ask him——

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it first?

The Clerk: May it be marked Government's Exhibit 19 for identification, your Honor?

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: Government's 19 for identification.

(Newspaper marked U. S. Exhibit 19 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, this is a letter which might well be shown to Harry Bridges as a witness because it contains a letter by Bridges and a reply apparently by Father Rice, but so far as this witness would be concerned, I think it would be purely hearsay.

Mr. Donohue: Only this, if your Honor pleases: If the witness has never seen the letter and the reply, obviously I could ask him no questions [4890] about it.

The Court: You might ask him if he has seen it.

Mr. Donohue: If he has, then I think I am entitled to ask him whether it affected his judgment of Mr. Bridges.

The Court: Do you understand?

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Witness: Certainly. I will read it. I will be glad——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. The question is, Did he ever read it before?

Mr. Donohue: Yes.

Mr. MacInnis: Not to read it now.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, surely; had he never seen or read the article before?

A. Finished. May I hold it for a moment?

Q. Had you ever read the letter before?

A. I do not remember. When was this again?

Mr. Donohue: Then I may not question the Father if he hasn't read it.

A. '48, August. I wasn't in San Francisco.

Q. I understand, Father, and that article or those letters were not heretofore called to your attention?

A. No, but right here, if I may, if you will pardon me, right in the article Father Rice says none of these things alone would make you a Communist.

Q. I quite understand.

A. I know of Father Rice; I know of his wonderful activities for labor. I think if Father Rice were not a Pittsburgh [4891] priest but rather working here on the West Coast closer to our picture and the man under discussion—you would say that is just my opinion——

Q. Perhaps I wouldn't, Father.

A. To get to know a man you have to be close to him, to know his motivation in making a decision. It isn't easy to—oh, the greatest temptation is to make a snap judgment, and because the Communists say that a thing is red and Harry says that a thing is red, therefore he is a Communist.

Q. Father, do you draw your estimation of men's characters by what they say or by what they do? A. Both, and between the lines.

Q. Isn't there something in the Good Book that says that "Not by faith alone"?

A. Yes, but I don't see the implication.

Q. "Faith without good works is dead"?

A. Right.

Q. You are not in any way or would not in any way be persuaded in your estimation of the character of Harry Bridges by an analysis of the question as to whether or not he did follow the same doctrine as the Communist Party followed from 1939 to the present day?

A. As I answered before, I said that many another man occasionally, or almost all the time, was following what the Communists advocate, and yet we know they were not Communists [4892] themselves.

Q. That fact wouldn't create even a suspicion in your mind, Father?

A. I told you the other day if I had a reasonable suspicion that Bridges was or is a member of the Communist Party—I am with you—I wouldn't be here; I wouldn't lend aid and assistance to an enemy of our country or the principles of our country.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. You believe——

Mr. Hallinan: Let him finish, please.

The Witness: That we are all working for.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Then tell me——

Mr. Hallinan: He interrupts at every word. He tries to stop and arrest the witness.

Mr. Donohue: That is not so.

Mr. Hallinan: When he had Johnson and Crouch and Ross on there, every question that was asked—if you asked the man's middle initial, he was allowed to argue and speak upon his principles and his beliefs, and every question that is asked of Father Paul and every answer he gives, Mr. Donohue now interrupts. We ask that the witness be permitted the courtesy of finishing his answers.

The Court: Father, do you feel any degree of discourtesy in connection with your examination?

A. No, this is all somewhat——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me: I don't think it is proper for [4893] the Court to ask that of the witness.

The Court: I wanted the Father to be perfectly comfortable.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't think he has been allowed that, if the Court please, and I don't think it is for the witness to be allowed to point that out.

The Court: That rests in my discretion.

Mr. MacInnis: I think the counsel in the case——

The Court: A lot of other things rest in my discretion.

Mr. MacInnis: I appreciate that.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Have you finished, Father? A. What were we talking about?

Q. I am not too sure, Father, by reason of the interruption.

A. I was merely trying to help you. You see, you bring back so many things. You throw a whole big load at me and I give you an answer, then you cut it up into little pieces and you throw each little piece at me, and the way you word things—I don't want you, because you are a very clever gentleman and well trained in what you are doing, to tie me into a knot.

Q. It isn't my purpose——

A. And I am using my limited intelligence to try to be truthful and honest and straightforward and tell you, as you made me swear, tell you the whole truth.

Q. We are concerned only with the truth, Father. May I ask you, Father, if you are familiar with the Labor Leader, the [4894] national organ of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists?

A. I used to—may I just see the masthead? Yes, I used to be a regular subscriber.

Mr. Donohue: I am going to ask the clerk to mark this as United States for identification next in order.

The Clerk: May it be marked Government's Exhibit 20 for identification.

> (Newspaper marked U. S. Exhibit 20 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: I shall ask the Clerk, Father, to hand you the issue of July 1, 1940, and ask him to direct your attention to a statement therein and ask you to read it and make no comment, please, until I ask you another question. A. I have read it.

Q. Had you read that article prior to this morning, Father, with particular reference to that section which I think is marked off in red crayon?

A. July 1, 1940, I was up in the mountains as chaplain of Camp Mather.

Q. Does your best judgment——

A. No doubt my mail piled up here at the church, and when I came home I would look them all over hurriedly. You can imagine how many were stacked up; I was away for more than three months.

Q. Then the likelihood—

A. This isn't too good a period, because Memorial Day, 1940, I [4895] just had been released from the hospital where I spent almost a year ill in the hospital. The circumstances were such that I did very little reading.

Q. Then you have no recollection, Father, of having read specifically that article?

A. You are absolutely right.

Mr. Donohue: Let me have it back, Mr. Mitchell.

Q. At any time, Father during the period that you were at St. Boniface did you ever discuss the reputation of Harry Bridges with your co-religionists at St. Boniface?

A. Not only there, but in other places, too, with many priests. Any priest who was labor-minded and interested in these things, he was bound to come up as a subject of conversation.

Q. Can you tell us the name, Father, of any of the fathers who stated to you that Mr. Bridges' reputation for truth, honesty and integrity was good?

A. You did that to me yesterday. People do not speak in such stilted language or in an utterance of that sort. They are either—they are either for the man or they are against him. If they are themselves upright people, men of good judgment and they are for him, you know that their judgment is based on something more than just the color of his hair or the curl; it is based on fundamental qualities of the man's character. And I do not think that from now to the end of my life I am ever going to have anyone come up to me and say, "You [4896] know, Father, that Joe Brown is a man of truthfulness, honesty and integrity." Put all those qualities together and get the essence of them as they appear in a man's demeanor and his behavior and his attitudes and his actions and his talking and the way he treats other people, then you know indirectly that he is a man of truthfulness and honesty and integrity. And that is the way I explained yesterday, and I repeat now, that is how I arrive at that conclusion which I gave you under oath.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions.

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Now, Father Meinecke, the prosecutor put to you these words: "Faith without good works," and he suggested that you should look to the works of Harry Bridges. Do you find any good works on his behalf in analyzing his character here?

A. Mr. MacInnis, the history of Harry Bridges is already written here, it is part of the warp and woof of San Francisco, and while I do not give him credit for doing all the things that some of the newspapers give him credit for, I do give him credit for many of the gains and advantages that have been made by the working people of this city, not only in his own trade unions but in others which were on the occasion involved in a strike and he and his leaders and his members helped. I remember specifically when the little girls that sell ribbon behind the counters in our stores here in town—I believe [4897] they call them retail clerks—they were out on the street for a while. The white-collar workers had been underpaid at that particular time; everyone admitted it, although we all deprecated the strike, but I know that Harry Bridges and all his men were in there helping the kids get a decent wage, teaching them that if they all stick together and join their union and work from within the union they will be able to get somewhere.

I know we have discussed many times efforts to try to organize other groups in San Francisco of white-collar workers; they are usually the last to join a union, because they fail to see the value of it. If I had the time and the opportunity I could sit down and draw you a long list of good things—good works, if you wish—that Harry Bridges has done for San Francisco. I do not say thereby that I approve of all of his policies. I am not a member of his union; I am not a member of the executive board or the officials of the union. I had no voice in those things, but I always presumed that if honest and upright labor people, after considering all the other methods of getting justice, if they call a strike, they have good reasons to do so, and if I were in their position I might do the same thing—although I do not like strikes because of that one feature: They hurt the common welfare, they hurt the public. But sometimes working men can't get justice in any other way except by being on a strike. [4898]

Q. The special prosecutor asked you some other questions to probe into the ways you really did consult with Harry Bridges from time to time on these matters.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, I am going to ask that there be marked for identification a letter which I have already shown the prosecutor, then I am going to show it to you and ask you if it is actually a letter that you sent to him. It is out of Mr. Bridges' files.

Mr. Donohue: I have to object to it, if your Honor please. I take it the witness has been produced as a character witness. This is merely his self-serving declaration, a personal letter which the Father wrote to Mr. Bridges, obviously has no evidentiary value. He can ask the question——

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

The Witness: When did I write that [4899] letter?

Mr. MacInnis: Many questions have been asked probing into whether or not these things took place. Now, if the inference of recent fabrication is at all present, why, this letter, which is a self-serving declaration from Father Meinecke to Harry Bridges in 1943, in his own handwriting, would be some evidence of the truth of what he says here. Now, that is the purpose of the question.

The Court: Do you have any objection to that letter, Mr. Donohue?

Mr. Donohue: Well, it is a self-serving declaration, if Your Honor please, but I have no objection to it.

The Court: I have not read it, but it may be received.

The Clerk: The exhibit is marked Defendant's X-2 for identification.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe it is in evidence.

The Clerk: In evidence, X-2.

(Whereupon letter, Meinecke to Harry Bridges, was received in evidence and marked Defendant's Exhibit X-2.)

Mr. MacInnis: May it be shown to Father Meinecke?

(Document handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

The Witness: Yes, I have read it.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Is that your handwirting? A. Yes.

Q. Would you give it to Mr. Mitchell, please?

(Document returned to counsel by the [4900] Clerk.)

Mr. MacInnis: Reading from the exhibit just now introduced, "Young Christian Workers, 135 Golden Gate Avenue."

Q. I take it that is the St. Boniface Church school address, is it?

A. No, that was the address of the Youth organization that I was taking care of.

Mr. MacInnis: "December 8, 1943.

"Dear Harry:

"I was reading over the proceedings of the sixth constitutional convention of the CIO (November 1st, 1943), and I see that on page 4 one of your speakers said, 'Labor alone is a mighty power. Religion alone is a strong force. But in order to definitely assure the winning of the peace, no greater combination is more formidable than a union of organized labor and established religion.'

"That is just what I told you Sunday night. Your influence and power for the good of the workers would double if you would go back to your religion. What about your big boss of the CIO,

(Testimony of Father Paul Meinecke.)

Phil Murray? Is not he a good Catholic and a good labor man? You could be the same, and knock all the stuffed shirts off their pins. They would never be able to touch you. You would have too many real backers who would fight for you.

"I am sending you the Crowned Heights comment, a Catholic labor paper, to show what some of the priests are doing [4901] for labor.

"Yours in Christ, our leader,
"FATHER PAUL."

Q. Is that the letter you sent Harry Bridges on the date mentioned? A. That's right.

Q. Now, the special prosecutor asked you some other questions about national and international events. Are you of the opinion that every other American citizen who opposed our entry into the war before Pearl Harbor was a Communist?

A. No, no. Many, many great patriotic leaders of this country opposed that move and after the war was all over, some good people still doubted its wisdom.

Q. Two more short subjects mentioned yesterday. Is there anything wrong with your memory, Father Meinecke?

A. No, Mr. MacInnis. I suppose I am liable to err and quote from a fallacious memory at times, but I believe my memory is as good as average and on some things I would like to say I am sharper than the average. I can name for you every parishioner in my parish, I know every person in my town by name, and by face. How many do you know in San Francisco? I know all my people in my parish over in Eureka.

Q. Let me ask you this. Some inquiry was made about the state of your health. Are you suffering from any physical disability?

A. You might call it that. I once had an amputation and lost [4902] my left leg. But it doesn't affect my memory.

Q. When did you lose your left leg?

A. 194—1939. The day that Hitler went into Poland, I went in the hospital, and about 20 days later they amputated my leg.

Q. Was there any circumstance connected with the loss of your leg that has to do with your point of view in these matters?

A. Well, I supose I have to answer, I would say this: Anybody that goes through a little suffering becomes more sensible and a little bit more keenly attuned to the needs of other people. You become a little bit less selfish. You get, having suffered a bit yourself, you are more inclined to consider the feelings and susceptibilities and sensibilities of other people. If you mean that that was my motivation for becoming interested in the working, in the trade unionism and in helping people to better their wages and hours and conditions, I suppose it contributed to it.

Q. No. I mean, was there some incident in connection with your recovery from the ailment in connection with the amputation of your leg? Were there some blood transfusions?

A. Oh, yes. Well, that was because of the people in Chicago that I was able to help. They were also militant trade unionists.

Q. Who helped you?

A. And in their papers.

Q. Who helped you in the first instance, when you were in the [4903] hospital here?

A. The first person to come to my rescue?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, I believe that was Mr. Redfern. He is a—well, I believe he is a Master Mason. I used to kid him quite a bit about that—"Masonic blood saves life of Catholic priest."

Q. And he donated that?

A. And that is why he told me afterwards when this Jewish boy of Chicago appealed for a donation, Mr. Redfern was the first to suggest that I pass on some of that Masonic blood to the Jewish boy in Chicago.

Q. In other words, when you were in the hospital with your leg amputated, a Master Mason donated blood to you and you in turn donated blood to save the life of a Jewish boy in Chicago, is that correct? A. That is about it.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Recross-Examination

By M Donohue:

Q. Father, isn't it a fact that while all the persons who opposed the entry of the United States into the war were not Communists, that all Communists did oppose the entry of the United States into the war? A. I don't know.

Mr. Donohue: Thank you, Father. No further questions.

The Witness: I would have to know all the Communists. [4904]

Mr. MacInnis: No further questions.

The Witness: May I go home?

The Court: Yes, you may be excused.

We will take the morning recess, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. The same admonition to you, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form or express an opinion until it is submitted to you.

(Recess.)

Mr. MacInnis: May we interrupt with another witness? Call Mr. Bailey, please.

The Clerk: Call Mr. Bailey.

STANLEY BAILEY

called on behalf of the defendants; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your name to the Court and jury, please?

A. Stanley Bailey, S-t-a-n-l-e-y B-a-i-l-e-y.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Bailey, what is your address?

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

A. Portola, California, Plumas County.

Q. And what is your occupation or profession?

A. I am editor and publisher of the Portola Reporter.

Q. And for how long in the past have you had that particular profession?

A. It will be three years the first of [4905] March.

Q. What had you done previously, Mr. Bailey?

A. I was reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle, and during that period that I was employed with the Chronicle I was on leave of absence as assistant director of the State Department of Industrial Relations and acting director and assistant director of the War Manpower Commission.

Q. What was the latter post?

A. With the War Manpower Commission.

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Assistant director, in San Francisco, for Northern California.

Q. And what function did that particular post have?

A. Handling the various problems of manpower during the war—labor stabilization.

Q. I see. Now, in the city of Portola, in your county, are you a member of any public body or organization?

A. I am a member of the Plumas County Chamber of Commerce.

Q. Do you hold office in that body?

A. I am the president.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Q. I see. Now, Mr. Bailey, have you known a man named Harry Bridges? A. I have.

Q. And have you known a man named Henry Schmidt? A. I have.

Q. Can you tell us, respectively, when you met those two men? [4906]

A. I met Harry Bridges in the spring of 1934, shortly after the start of the 1934 waterfront strike.

Q. And have you known him consistently ever since? A. Well, periodically.

Q. I see. In other words, your acquaintanceship has continued through the years, although, of course, you haven't seen him every week or anything like that? A. Yes.

Q. How about Mr. Schmidt? When did you meet him?

A. I think it was about 1936 when I first became acquainted with Mr. Schmidt. I may have seen him before but I don't recall.

Q. And has your acquaintance with Mr. Schmidt continued over the years until the present time?

A. It has.

Q. Now, in addition to your own acquaintanceship with the other two men, have you heard their reputations in the community for truth, honesty and integrity in general discussed? A. I have.

Q. From the basis of your own acquaintanceship plus such utterances of other persons as may have come to your ears, are you in a position to tell us what is the reputation of Harry Bridges for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. I consider it good.

Q. And if I asked you the same questions upon the same bases [4907] in respect of the reputation of Henry Schmidt for truth, honesty and integrity, what would your answer be?

A. I consider it good.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Bailey, when you were director of the War Manpower Commission, did you know a man by the name of Lewis Michener?

A. I may have met Mr. Michener. I first remember hearing his name when he was with the Department of Industrial Relations. He was in Southern California, I believe.

Q. Yes. Did he serve with the War Manpower Commission?

A. He held a position in Southern California for a time. I am not sure about that. You see, California was divided into two states, Northern California and Southern California, for administrative purposes.

Q. And did you know a man named Mervyn Rathborne? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he serve with the War Manpower Commission?

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

A. He was a member of Management-Labor Committee.

Q. Well, is that a part of the War Manpower Commission?

A. It was a volunteer committee of management and labor set up to assist the War Manpower Commission.

Q. Did you know at the time that Mervyn Rathborne was serving with the War Manpower Commission that he was a member of the [4908] Communist Party? A. I did not.

Q. When you knew Mr. Michener in connection with the same organization, did you know that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. I didn't say that I knew Mr. Michener in connection with the organization; I am sorry.

Q. Oh, I am sorry. When were you asked to come here and testify, Mr. Bailey?

A. I can't recall specifically the date. I received my subpoena over the weekend.

Q. Had you discussed your testimony with any person or persons before you received your subpoena?

A. I had been asked if it would be possible for me to come down and I replied it would be if I were subpoenaed.

Q. And when were you asked?

A. Some day before I received the subpoena; some time in the last week, it would be.

Q. And by whom? A. By Mr. Schmidt.

Q. Were you asked by telephone? A. Yes.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Q. And have you discussed in general the nature of the questions that would be asked of you with anyone?

A. I talked to Mr. Hallinan, I think, for about two minutes in [4909] the corridor.

Q. Today? A. This morning, yes.

Q. Now, how long were you with the San Francisco Chronicle? A. Approximately 15 years.

Q. And you have been——

A. Except for the time I was on leave of absence.

Q. Now, during the period when you were here and knew Harry Bridges, did you ever hear his reputation discussed by other persons?

A. Yes, I have heard him discussed many times.

Q. Would you have any recollection of who may have been party to the discussion?

A. Well, after three years it is difficult to remember names or I mean, specific instances, but I have discussed him; I know I have discussed him with Mr. Kagel, and Mr.——

Q. Mr. Who, sir? A. Kagel.

Q. Who is he?

A. Sam Kagel. He was director of the War Manpower Commission.

Q. Did you think of any other person or persons? A. Not right offhand, no.

Q. And can you recall the reason for the discussion of Mr. Bridges' reputation?

A. Well, anybody—that is, any reporter—has discussed Mr. [4910] Bridges.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Q. At any time during the years when you were here and were acquainted with Mr. Bridges, did you hear anyone say that in his opinion he thought he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Yes, many times.

Q. Did those remarks enter into your general estimation of the good character or good reputation of Mr. Bridges?

A. Well, naturally, when you hear such remarks, you consider them. I have heard the same thing said about a great many other people, that they are Communists.

Q. And in estimating their general reputation, would you also consider those remarks in coming to some conclusion? A. Why, yes.

Q. Would you say you heard these remarks on few or on many occasions?

A. Concerning Mr. Bridges?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, numerous occasions.

Q. If you had formed an opinion that the remarks that Harry Bridges was a member of the Communist Party were true, would that have affected your estimation of his general reputation?

A. May I have the question repeated, please?

Mr. Donohue: Would you read the question for the witness, please?

(Record read.) [4911]

A. In other words, if I thought he was a Communist, would that——?

Q. Yes. A. Why, yes.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Q. Would you think that membership in the Communist Party would affect one's general reputation for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. It would depend upon the circumstances.

Q. You do not think that the mere fact that one belonged to the Communist Party would in any way affect his reputation for truth, honesty and integrity?

A. Again I say it would depend upon the circumstances.

Q. What circumstances do you have in mind, sir?

A. Well, I feel that a person has a right to belong to a political party if it is a party, to belong to a political party of their own choice.

Q. And do you consider the Communist Party is a political party?

A. Well, I am not an expert on the Communist Party, nor am I an expert on Sovietism.

Q. I understand. But what is your now view of the Communist Party as being a political organization.

A. Well, I think that there are people who operated in the Communist Party for political purposes purely.

Q. You think that those persons you have in mind are members of [4912] the Communist Party, but who devote their efforts soley to political ends?

A. I have no particular person in mind when I say that.

Q. But do you have in mind——

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

A. Because I know only one or two people who are Communists, or who have said they were Communists.

Q. Are you at all familiar with the principles of the Communist Party?

A. Only very vaguely.

Q. And are you at all informed on the philosophy of the Communist Party?

A. Only very vaguely.

Q. And are you informed as to the purposes of the Communist Party of the United States and within the United States?

A. Only very vaguely, from general reading.

Q. Would you say that you are not sufficiently familiar to determine whether or not the Communist Party is something other than or more than a mere political organization?

A. I am not sufficiently familiar, no.

Q. Did you know Mr. Schmidt during about the same time that you knew Mr. Bridges?

A. I knew Mr. Bridges prior to my acquaintanceship with Mr. Schmidt.

Q. And have you heard the general reputation of Mr. Schmidt for truth, honesty and integrity discussed by others? [4913] A. I have.

Q. Are you able to recall any specific instance in which Mr. Schmidt's general reputation for truth, honesty and integrity was the subject matter of discussion? A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Did you ever hear it said that Mr. Schmidt was a member of the Communist Party?

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

A. I think I have, yes.

Q. And would your answers with respect to the effect which such information might have on your estimation of Mr. Schmidt's general reputation be the same as you have already made with respect to Mr. Bridges? A. It would.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness.

Mr. MacInnis: No questions. Thank you. [4914]

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed.

Cross-Examination (Continued)

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, yesterday we were talking about the testimony of a witness, George Wilson. Did you know at some time between the return of the indictment and the date of this trial that George Wilson had testified before the grand jury?

A. When you say the return of the indictment, would you fix the date?

Q. You were in Hawaii, I take it?

A. I take it.

Q. Sometime early in May. May 25, I am told.

A. As I recall it, that was the day I surrendered to the Marshal there. And did I know what, did you ask me?

Q. At any time between that date and the date of this trial, and prior to his appearance on the witness stand, did you know that George Wilson had testified in these matters before the grand jury?

A. I don't think I had that information. As a matter of fact, I was so busy in Hawaii that I gave the matter very little thought.

Q. When did you return from Hawaii?

A. The 2nd or 3rd of November.

Q. At any time between the 2nd or 3rd of November and the day on which Mr. Wilson appeared here as a witness did you learn [4915] that Mr. Wilson had testified before the grand jury?

A. I suppose I did learn that, yes, but I have no clear recollection as to who made the statement or where I got the information.

Q. At any time after you learned that Mr. Wilson had appeared before the grand jury and before his appearance here as a witness, did you ever discuss with Mr. Wilson the reasons for his testifying here? A. Well, I haven't seen him.

Q. Then you hadn't discussed that fact with him? A. How could I?

Q. I didn't know, sir; I asked you.

A. Well, apparently you are trying to find out if I saw the fellow.

Q. Correct. And you didn't?

A. No, I didn't see him.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Bridges talk with George Wilson at some time or times subsequent to the return of the indictment and prior to George Wilson's appearance on the stand as a witness?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I have no knowledge of that. That is a question that you will have to ask Bridges.

Q. Mr. Bridges at no time discussed with you whether or not he had talked with George Wilson prior to his testimony?

A. Not that I can recall. [4916]

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Schmidt, saying—referring to Volume 42, between pages 4522 and 4536 in this proceeding—that at some time prior to the 16th of June of 1934 you left the Bay Area and went to Portland and Seattle and were there for some eight or nine days?

A. Yes, I think I made that statement.

Q. And do you recall testifying in a prior hearing, referring to Volume 24, page 4093——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. May we see the selection before the witness is confronted with it? If he is to be asked concerning some prior testimony given in some prior hearing, I think we should see the document and have it identified.

Mr. Donohue: I haven't it here, your Honor. I will bring it here after the noon recess.

I ask the clerk to mark a copy of the Western Worker dated September 2, 1937, as United States for identification next in order and ask him to exhibit it to the witness, calling his attention to the portion which is marked in red.

Mr. MacInnis: May I see it, please?

The Clerk: Marked Government's 21 for identification.

(Western Worker, 9/2/37 was marked U. S. Exhibit 21 for identification.)

The Witness: May I look at the date?

Mr. Donohue: Surely. (Document handed to witness.)

Q. Mr. Schmidt, having looked at a copy of the Western Worker [4917] dated September 2, 1937, at the article which is captioned "Union Leaders to Speak at Labor Rally Planned by San Francisco ICL" under the San Francisco dateline, "Prominent trade unionists will be featured"——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. As I understand it, the article was not written by Mr. Schmidt. He may be asked if the material refreshes his memory, but the special prosecutor now launches into a reading of the article. That has not been the custom of the court under the rulings of the court heretofore. I think that you may put the question to the witness but not read the article.

Mr. Donohue: I can't put the question, if your Honor please, unless I read this brief article, which I do not contend was written by Mr. Schmidt, but which is a news account of an activity of Mr. Schmidt's, and I want to ask him if it is correct as to his activity, and I think I have a right to do it.

Mr. MacInnis: I have been stopped on forty occasions by the prosecutor for attempting to read an article to a witness in the form of a question. That has been denounced as improper conduct. Now I suggest that the prosecutor must fall under the same inhibition as the rule he espoused himself. I have no objection at all, and could not have, to a proper question as to whether or not Henry Schmidt remembers some incident or whether or not his memory is refreshed; but to read the article before we find out if the event ever took place would obviously [4918] be a false method of proceeding.

Mr. Donohue: I do not know of anyone, if your Honor please, who was privileged to exercise wider latitude on cross-examination than Mr. MacInnis. I don't ask the Court to permit me to go that far, but I do think I am quite within the rules of evidence to ask this witness by reading a statement made in the press whether he in fact did what the press said he did. He may then make any comment he wishes to.

Mr. MacInnis: The curious thing, your Honor, is that this situation has been the subject of criticism by the prosecutor; that by attempting—by pretending to refresh a witness' memory that we are actually trying to intrude matters from the press into evidence, and they have risen, they have objected, they have said that you can't get newspapers into evidence. Now he says it is perfectly proper for him to do it. I think in order to be consistent, that he can't pursue that line of reasoning.

Mr. Donohue: I think, if your Honor please, that the record on the clerk's desk which shows the defense has gone several times through the alphabet in offering papers from which they have liberally read and quoted and exhibited, and the meager few exhibits the United States has offered, is a complete answer to the suggestion of Mr. MacInnis. All I am asking to do is something which he has already done on many occasions. [4919]

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Court: This has to do with an event, has it?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And solely an event?

Mr. Donohue: Solely an event.

The Court: There is no subject matter couched therein that might have any reflection one way or the other?

Mr. Donohue: No, your Honor.

The Court: You may ask it.

The Witness: May I have the date of the paper again?

Mr. Donohue: This is September 2, Thursday.

Mr. Hallinan: Pardon me. Might I be heard a little on this, too, your Honor? We had here in a matter of events several witnesses, some of them people who are utterly neutral, who came in and volunteered their testimony here on the matter of Mr. Bridges' presence in the longshore union meeting in Stockton——

The Court: Mr. Hallinan——

Mr. Hallinan: On June 27.

The Court: Show the newspaper to the witness, Mr. Donohue, and ask him the question if it refreshes his recollection concerning the event.

Mr. Donohue: It has already been exhibited to him.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Hallinan: If he says it doesn't refresh his recollection, they can't come in now and say, "I am reading something out of a newspaper; does that refresh your recollection?" [4920]

The Court: Have you any independent recollection before the reading of that newspaper article?

A. Yes, and also because Mr. Donohue referred to some testimony that I gave at an earlier hearing. I think that is the matter that Mr. Delgurcio and I discussed at length nine or ten years ago.

Mr. Donohue: If he has a recollection of it, if your Honor please, certainly I should be permitted to read it.

Mr. Hallinan: Then before you have read it, if he has a recollection, there is no need of refreshing it.

The Court: You might ask him the identity of the newspaper.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the question, if your Honor please, if there is any question.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, did you at a labor rally sponsored by the Young Communists League on September 8 at Franklin Hall, 1859 Franklin Street, speak as president of Longshoremen's Local 38-79?

A. No, I did not, and I have never been in that hall and I don't know where it is. And if I am not entirely mistaken, I made that explanation to Mr. Delgurcio nine or ten years ago, and I told him then that I recollected placards appearing on the waterfront advertising that such a meeting was to take place; that my name appeared on those placards; that I knew nothing about it; that my permission had not been asked as to [4921] whether I was willing to speak. And I told him as a matter of fact I did not speak there.

I recall also that a man by the name of Joe Casey, an official of the Teamsters' Union, took me to task because he had seen the placards on the waterfront. And I am pretty sure I told Mr. Delgurcio that I told Joe Casey that he needn't worry because I wasn't going to speak there, and I did not speak.

Q. Did you make any effort or take any steps to counteract the wrong impression that was given by the placards around the waterfront that you were in fact going to speak at this rally?

A. I believe so. You might help me out a little.

Q. Be glad to any time.

A. Does the name Archie Brown appear in the little article?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I——

Q. As one of the speakers.

A. I recollect a conversation with him, and I think it possibly took place after the meeting date was past, and I took him to task for advertising my name and not contacting me about it.

Q. You knew Archie Brown to be a member of the Communist Party?

A. I still know it. I just talked to him out here a little while ago. Most peculiar things happen in this corridor. Archie Brown, a Communist, comes and speaks to me. Two minutes [4922] later a corporation lawyer from Hawaii comes over and speaks to me.

Q. Each had occasion to come into contact with you, Mr. Schmidt?

A. Well, they both shook my hand and wished me good luck.

Q. You knew that the Western Worker was a Communist publication? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you talk to Archie Brown and chide him for your name appearing in this Communist paper before or after the date you are stated as having made the speech?

A. Oh, I couldn't recollect that.

Q. Again, may I ask you did you write a letter to the editor of the Western Worker and complain that you had wrongfully been stated to be a speaker at a Young Communists League rally?

A. I couldn't remember. I would have to check the files.

Mr. Donohue: Shall we take the adjournment at this time?

The Court: Yes. We will resume at two o'clock this afternoon. The same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [4923]

Afternoon Session — 2:00 P. M.

HENRY SCHMIDT

recalled.

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is Henry Schmidt, heretofore sworn.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, in reference to the last questions put to Mr. Schmidt, he has here a document, and he would like to add an explanation to his answer. So I suggest that he may do so.

Mr. Donohue: Before that is done, if your Honor please, I am advised that Stanley Bailey is in the hall. May I ask that he be recalled for further cross-examination.

The Court: Mr. Stanley Bailey?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, sir.

The Court: There is no objection, I assume. All right, you may recall him.

STANLEY BAILEY

recalled.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Bailey, did you hold any office with the American Newspaper Guild in 1938?

A. In 1938?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I couldn't answer that. I have held minor offices. [4924]

Q. Do you recall whether you were vice president in 1938? A. I could not.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Q. Mr. Bailey, were you the chairman of a class on Current Labor Management and Government Relations held at the California Labor School in 1945? A. The chairman of a class?

Q. The chairman of a class on Current Labor Management and Government Relations at the California Labor School, as reported in the People's World of March 24, 1945.

A. Not that I recall. I have attended—I attended during the war, I attended one conference at the California Labor School, and I have never run a class there.

Q. Mr. Bailey, did you participate in the American-Russian Institute Forum Series on "What's on Your Mind About Russia?" as reported in the People's World of April 30, 1946?

A. I did——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me just a moment; these repetitive statements about "as reported in the People's World" of a certain date—I assume that there are many matters that are reported in all papers, including the People's World, but that there is some special significance attached to those words—if this witness wrote the article or if he had anything to do with the People's World, I suppose that could be mentioned, but I imagine that that paper reports many things that are reported in all of the current dailies. And I suggest that the [4925] innuendo be no part of the question, unless the document be shown to the witness and to the opposing counsel. I suggest, your Honor, that the question is incompetennt, irrelevant and immaterial; it contains a statement by the special prosecutor that certain materials are printed in a certain paper. To make that paper proper evidence, we would have to have a foundation, we would have to have the document displayed to the witness.

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

The Court; The objection is overruled.

A. What was the date, and the question?

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Did you participate in the American-Russian Institute Forum Series on "What's On Your Mind About Russia?" as reported in the People's World of April 30, 1946?

Mr. MacInnis: I assign the repeated use of the same words as misconduct on the part of the special prosecutor uttered for the sole purpose of influencing the audience, the jury, and all persons present into thinking that this man on the stand had something to do with the People's World.

Mr. Donohue: It is obvious, if your Honor please, that I couldn't possibly infer that this man had anything to do with the People's World. I asked him only if, as reported in the People's World as of that date, he participated in the American-Russian Institute Forum series on "What's On Your Mind About Russia?"

A. I did act as impartial arbitrator at a discussion of the [4926] American—sponsored, I believe, by the American-Russian Institute. As I say, I was an impartial arbitrator.

Q. Now, Mr. Bailey, did you participate in a forum held on June 25, 1946 on "Labor in the

(Testimony of Stanley Bailey.)

Soviet Union" which forum was under the auspices of the American-Russian Institute and the Russian War Relief, as reported in the Labor Herald of June 21, 1946? A. I think that is the——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. I assign the asking of the question in the same language as misconduct, and I ask the Court to instruct the jury to disregard any innuendo contained in the question.

The Court: The objection is overruled. The motion is denied.

A. I think that is the meeting which I recalled in answer to your first question. I acted as impartial arbiter at one meeting sponsored by the American-Russian Institute.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness. [4927]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Bailey, in view of the questions just now put to you, have you ever been a member of the Communist Party? A. I have not.

Q. Do you feel that by acting as an arbitrator in any discussion involving the word "Russia" you were doing something disloyal to the United States? A. I do not.

Q. Do you feel that you did anything that should subject you to any criticism here?

A. I do not.

Q. Did you ever write any articles for the People's World or have any affiliation with that paper?

A. I have not.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

The Court: Mr. Bailey is excused.

HENRY SCHMIDT

resumed the stand.

Cross-Examination

The Court: Mr. Schmidt has a statement he desires to make?

The Witness: With regard to the matter that was discussed just before lunch, I recall it had to do with a meeting in Franklin Hall, and I believe the special prosecutor is charging [4928] me with being present there.

Mr. Donohue: No, I asked you if you were there as reported in a press notice which I think I called to your attention.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, it is the same thing because the only reason for asking the question would be to carry the notion that he was in fact there, because the special prosecutor knew in advance that Mr. Schmidt had already denied ever being present on that occasion.

Mr. Donohue: I wanted to see if he still denied it, Mr.—

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, he has a statement to make that I think may interest you also.

Mr. Donohue: I will be interested to hear it.

The Witness: I have checked the minutes of the meetings of our union, and the minutes of September 8, 1937 call attention to the fact that there was a general membership meeting in Eagles Hall here in San Francisco that started at the hour of 8:20 in the evening and adjourned at the hour of 11:20 in the evening. It was rather a wild meeting and the subject matter that was discussed was a publication which has already been mentioned in these proceedings, namely, the San Francisco Longshoreman. And I have the minutes here in my hand, along with the minutes of many other meetings.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): And in consequence of having refreshed your recollection of the minutes of a meeting held in 1937, was it? [4929]

A. That's right.

Q. You are now able to say that you did not make the address as stated in the publication exhibited to you this morning?

A. Oh, as a matter of fact I knew that before I saw the minutes, but just as a matter of interest, we went to the office and checked the minutes.

Q. And the minutes show that you attended a meeting on that night?

A. Yes, the first sentence says, "Meeting called to order at 8:20 p.m. by President Henry Schmidt."

Q. Mr. Schmidt, deviating for just a minute, did you know that John Larson who accompanied you to the 1935 A. F. of L. convention in San Diego was a member of the Communist Party?

A. No, sir.

Q. You did not know at that time that as a matter of fact John Larson had openly stated that he was a member of the Communist Party?

A. Well, John Larson, Mr. Donohue—perhaps you don't know him—is somewhat of a clown. He will make statements that he really shouldn't make. I recall now that on one occasion when he was business agent of the local union while I was president, he was sitting at the window one morning collecting dues, and its seems at the membership meeting at the evening before there had been some discussion with regard to this "ism" that we are always talking about, and I noticed that John, about every time [4930] a man stepped up to the window to pay his dues, he would say to him, very confidentially, "Hey, don't you want to join the Communist Party?" And I overheard this a couple of times and I said eventually, "Now, John, this is about enough of this clowning. Stop it." And "Some of these fellows will take you seriously."

Q. You don't think John Larson intended that he be taken seriously, I take it?

A. It is pretty difficult to take John Larson seriously at times.

Q. Even with respect to his membership in the Communist Party?

A. Well, I don't know that he is a member. Perhaps you know.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, were you a member of the, or president of the, trade union committee for Leo Gallagher in his candidacy for election as Secretary of State for the State of California?

A. Will you give me the name of the body again, the convention?

Q. In the year 1938 were you president, or as president of the longshore union, a member of, the Trade Union Committee for Leo Gallagher in his candidacy for election as Secretary of State for the State of California?

A. I don't recall. It may have happened. I don't know.

Mr. Donohue: Would you ask the witness to look at what I shall ask you to mark as U. S. for identification next in order?

(Document examined by Mr. McInnis.)

The Clerk: May it be marked Government's 22 for identification. [4931]

(Newspaper dated October 6, 1938, referred to above, was thereupon marked United States Exhibit No. 22 for identification.)

Mr. Donohue: And would you ask him to look at that portion which is marked in red? (Handed to witness by the Clerk.)

The Witness: May I look at the date?

Mr. Donohue: Surely. I think you will find it October 6, 1938.

A. Yes. Well, I don't know. I don't think so.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

There is mention had here, names of men, a man by the name of Harold Fewtherer. I don't remember ever meeting such a person. He is named as campaign manager. Then there is a man by the name of Sid McClintick, vice president of the Laborers' Union. That man I don't know. And there is the name of Sam Jaye, of Local 110. I don't recall anything like that, any name like that, belonging to our outfit. It may have happened but I can certainly say this: If this body met any place on 320 Market Street, I am pretty sure I was not present at any of their meetings.

Q. Do you know now and did you know then that Leo Gallagher was a candidate for the office of Secretary of State of California on the Communist Party ticket?

A. Oh, everybody in the state knows that, Mr. Donohue. I am sure that I read it in the papers in 1938.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, in 1942 were you, as then president of the CIO Council, appointed as the official sponsor for the Joint Anti-Fascist [4932] Refugee Committee?

A. That may have happened.

Q. Do you know Oleta O'Connor Yates, Mr. Schmidt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1943 were you a member of the campaign committee of the San Francisco County Communist Party to elect her as City Supervisor?

A. No, that I was not.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. And did you know, Mr. Schmidt, that the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, with respect to which you said a moment ago you may have been appointed on the committee as asked in the question, was on the list of subversive organizations dated May 1st, 1949, issued by the Attorney General of the United States?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. There is a quick innuendo in that question that I don't know that we can take as an established fact. The special prosecutor refers to an organization, and he says, "which, as you know, was on the subversive list." Now, that assumes a fact not before us in evidence: there is no evidence as to what Mr. Schmidt knows about any of these organizations and I think that that matter must be elicited by testimony. And again, it must not be by the gratuitous statement of he special prosecutor. So we object to that question and ask that the foundation be laid.

Mr. Donohue: Certainly, if Your Honor pleases, if he knows [4933] that the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee was on the list of subversive organizations as listed by the Attorney General of the United States, he can say, "Yes." If he doesn't know, he can say "No."

Mr. MacInnis: That isn't what he asked.

The Court: Ask him if he does know.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Do you know, Mr. Schmidt, whether or not the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee is on the list of subversive organizations as listed by the Attorney General of the United States?

A. I do not know it of my own knowledge, but I suppose it is. On the other hand, I suppose some pro-Fascist organizations wouldn't be on the list.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, on September 3rd, 1940, did you speak at a rally——

A. What date, please?

Q. 1940. Did you speak at a rally at the University of California under the auspices of the Campus Committee against Conscription?

A. Yes, I recall making a few remarks there at what they call Sather Gate, if that was the year. I have no clear recollection that that is the year. But I recall on one occasion I held forth there on a soap box. [4934]

Q. On May 3, 1941, Mr. Schmidt, did you make a speech on Pier 42 in protest against plans to convoy American ships?

A. Did I make a speech to convoy American ships? What was the date?

Q. In protest against convoying American ships on May 13, 1941.

A. No, sir, nothing like that. I made speeches on the waterfront in advocating that scrap iron not be shipped to Japan.

Q. I am talking about an incident, perhaps you may recall, in which Dave Jenkins also made a speech at the same time, Walter Stack and Frank Hendrix and yourself?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. No, sir, I don't recall that. What was that date again?

Q. May 13, 1941.

A. It must have been my unlucky day, May 13. I don't recall it.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Schmidt, testifying that John Schomaker was not one of the original Albion Hall group but came considerably later?

A. Do I recall that I so testified?

Q. Yes.

A. I think so, and that is my memory.

Mr. Donohue: Would you mark as United States for identification next in order a copy of the ILWU Dispatcher dated June 4, 1943.

The Clerk: Marked Government's 23 for identification.

(Copy of ILWU Dispatcher, 6/4/43 marked U. S. Exhibit 23 [4935] for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: The way to prove a fact, as I understand it, is by the testimony of a witness. Now, I object to this hearsay document being shown this witness, who did not write the article, and the contents of it have been intruded into the record. It is purely hearsay, not binding upon the defendant Henry Schmidt, and certainly not proper impeaching material.

Mr. Donohue: At the moment, if your Honor please, I haven't even shown it to the witness.

Would you ask the witness to look at the portion of this document which is marked in red and ask him to read it.

(Document exhibited to witness.)

Mr. MacInnis: I take it you mean to read it to himself?

Mr. Donohue: Of course, yes. A. Yes.

Q. Having read an article in the ILWU Dispatcher under date of June 4, 1943, and thus perhaps having refreshed your recollection——

Mr. MacInnis: No; let him state whether or not the article refreshes his memory. I think that the special prosecutor now may not tell the witness that the article has refreshed his memory; he must ask him that.

Mr. Donohue: Do you even object to the form as well as the substance of every question I ask?

Mr. MacInnis: I think I do, yes.

Mr. Donohue: Would you repeat the question as far as it [4936] had gone, and I will finish it. And don't answer it until the Court has an opportunity to rule on Mr. MacInnis' objection, please.

(Question read as far as framed.)

Q. (Continuing): ——are you now able to state that John Schomaker was one of the original Albion Hall group?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. The same objection, and we cite the special prosecutor for misconduct for attempting to read into evidence the hearsay article contrary to the facts, contrary to the original record of John Schomaker, which is already received into evidence, summarizing the contents of the article solely to couch the question so that it will appear in the record in this case. The only question that can be asked is whether or not extraneous material refreshes the witness' recollection. If he says it does not, I take it the inquiry is closed; but the special prosecutor, wishing to get the material into evidence, summarizes the article in question, and we object to it, we cite it as misconduct.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

A. I am sorry. After all that talking by both counsel, I have now not in mind the very carefully framed question, and so if you don't mind, will you repeat it?

Mr. Donohue: Would you be good enough to read it for him, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read.) [4937]

A. No, sir, and the passage that you called to my attention doesn't say that. I think it says that he was one of the early comers, or something like that.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Didn't you read it where it said he was one of the original Albion Hall group?

Mr. MacInnis: Again we cite the reading of the article as misconduct—an attempt to prove something by hearsay which the witness produced by the prosecution has denied.

Now, the other day this prosecutor very carefully read to the Court and jury the testimony of John Schomaker saying that he came to the waterfront in November, 1933. Now he wishes to read an article from which a different inference can be drawn, a hearsay article, and get this pretended testimony into the record. We cite the doing so as misconduct.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, I wouldn't have mentioned the article except that the witness misquoted it, and I think I then have a right to ask him if the article didn't state as I read it and not as he had misquoted it. And if there is any question about what it says——

The Court: Mr. Schmidt, do you have any further answer to make?

The Witness: No, sir, I can't help counsel.

Mr. Donohue: Was the last question which I asked the witness answered?

(The reporter read the last remark of the witness.) [4938]

Mr. Donohue: Just before Mr. MacInnis made his most recent objection I think I had asked a question of the witness with respect to what this magazine said.

(Last question read.)

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, we object to the repetition of the same question, trying to get into evidence out of a piece of paper something that living witnesses cannot testify to; hearsay; doing it in the face of a repeated objection. We cite it as misconduct again on the part of the special prosecutor. He can't put John Schomaker on the stand, establish that he went into the waterfront movement in November, 1933, and then because of another purpose bring some piece of paper to pretend that he came there earlier. That is the whole point of this.

Mr. Donohue: May I have an answer to the question, if your Honor pleases?

The Witness: I am sorry. I don't know where we are now.

The Court: If I may suggest it, to avoid objection I may suggest to ask the question of the witness whether or not Mr. John Schomaker was one of the original Albion Hall boys, and thus avoid objection.

Mr. Donohue: I may say to your Honor, as I said a moment ago, I wouldn't have read a line from this article except that the witness had misquoted it.

The Court: The direct question might be presented to the witness. [4939]

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the original question and ask the witness:

Q. Is it not a fact that John Schomaker was one of the original Albion Hall group?

A. No, sir. I can't testify to that. I can't even recall if I came to the first meeting, the second meeting or the third meeting, but I would mention this to you, so far as Equality Hall is concerned, I have been going to that place for years—for several years, prior to the organization of that so-called Albion Hall group. I knew of the place before the other fellows knew anything about it. I belonged to an organization there that is still in existence, which, if it is important, is the workmen's sick and death benefit fund, a fraternal organization that pays sick and death benefits, and the branch has its San Francisco headquarters in that building. It has been there for 45 years, I think.

Q. In 1943, Mr. Schmidt, were you an officer in the ILWU?

A. Oh, I am pretty sure I held some sort of an office; Coast Labor Relations Committee, I suppose, if it is '43.

Q. And the ILWU Dispatcher is the official publication of the ILWU, is it not?

A. That's right, and frequently makes mistakes.

Q. In 1943 did you note any mistake in this article and call it to the attention of anyone who may have been responsible for the publication of the Dispatcher? [4940]

A. I do not recollect, and I don't know what you are talking about.

Mr. MacInnis: He hasn't seen the article yet. You have forgotten——

Mr. Donohue: Oh, no, it is the same article we talked about just a few minutes ago.

A. No, I don't recollect camping on Morris Watson's desk and telling him he made a mistake.

Q. It wasn't apparent in 1943 that the article, the truth or falsity of that article, might become important, was it?

A. You mean the statement that the article contains that Schomaker was one of the original members of the group?

Q. Yes.

A. The chances are, Mr. Donohue, that I didn't even read it.

Q. Are you able to say now whether you did or did not read it?

A. I have no recollection if I read it or if I didn't read it.

Q. Are you a subscriber to the Daily People's World?

A. I have been. Presently I am not.

Q. Have you served at any time on the board of directors of that publication? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Schmidt, do you know a man in Seattle, Washington, by the name of Chester Burt Harman?

A. What is the name, please?

Q. Chester Burt — B-u-r-t — Harman — H-a-r-m-a-n. [4941] A. No.

Q. Did you attend the Maritime Federation convention in Seattle in 1935?

A. Would that be the organizational meeting, the very first one? Yes, I think that is the year in which it took place. Yes, I was there.

Q. During the time that you were in Seattle in attendance at that convention did you meet a man named Chester Burt Harman?

A. How do you spell that last name again?

Q. H-a-r-m-a-n.

A. No, sir, I don't know anybody by that name, and the word—the first name "Chester" is completely strange to me.

Q. At any time during the period of the convention in Seattle in 1935 do you recall attending a meeting at which Mr. Bridges, Mr. Harry Jackson, a man by the name of Sparks, Henry Schrimpf, Bob Dumbroff, Earl King, Mr. Van Erman, Walter Stack, Roy Pyle, Henry Pilcher and Chester Burt Harman were together?

A. May I have the second name again, please?

Q. A man by the name of Sparks—S-p-a-r-k-s.

A. Sparks, I don't know.

Mr. MacInnis: What is his first name, tell us that?

Mr. Donohue: I am sorry, I don't know, Mr. MacInnis.

A. Sparks I don't know, Harman I don't know, and I am pretty sure I wasn't at such a meeting. But the other fellows, to the best of my recollection, were delegates from their respective [4942] trade unions, and that would be all maritime unions.

Q. Would you say, Mr. Schmidt, that you did not attend a meeting which was a meeting of members of the Communist Party and restricted to members of the Communist Party at which the persons whose names I have just read to you were also present?

A. Well, I don't know anything about it, Mr. Donohue.

Q. Do you recall where you stayed in Seattle at that convention in 1935?

A. Yes, I think so. I think that is about the second time I came to Seattle. I think it was at either the Richmond or Richland Hotel.

Q. And during the period of your stay in Seattle at that time is it your testimony that you attended no meetings of the Communist Party in Seattle? A. Oh, of course.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions of the witness.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Schmidt, to go swiftly, if we may, over some of these matters upon which you have been interrogated by the special prosecutor, let me ask you these questions. In regard to the naturalization proceedings of Harry Bridges, you say that you have no independent memory of the date August 8 of 1945, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. Although you make no point over the fact that you were [4943] present, if the record so shows? A. That is right.

Q. You merely don't remember that particular day, is that correct?

A. If I remembered it, I would tell you about it.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. You do remember, though, distinctly the 17th of September, the day you went to court with Harry Bridges? A. Would you repeat that?

Q. You do remember distinctly the day in September upon which you went to court with Harry Bridges?

A. I remember certain phases of the happenings of that day.

Q. At any time, whether it was back in June when Harry Bridges filed his application before you had to sign any papers, whether it was in August when you signed a petition, or before the hearing in September, did you have any conversation, agreement or understanding with Harry Bridges by which you were to say something that was not true or by which you were to conceal some fact which you knew to exist?

A. We had only one agreement, that I would be his witness. And that was one of the most casual conversations that I ever heard two men make.

Q. Now, to come to the second phase of the questions put to you by the special prosecutor, he quoted the testimony of two witnesses, Schomaker and Schrimpf, and asked you to regard certain items of that testimony and asked you if it was not true, [4944] as they claimed, that the Communist Party had dominated, controlled and won the 1934 strike. Do you remember him asking you that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do your also remember, Mr. Schmidt, the Government witness Crouch upon the stand inferring that it was the Communist Party which ordered the United States into war in 1941?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I have a recollection that he made substantially that sort of statement.

Q. In 1939, regardless of what your attitude may have been upon the phrase, "The Yanks are not coming," did you consider any American who was against war and who advised his fellow citizens to stay out of war, was a traitor?

A. Of course not. I don't see anything wrong with being against war.

Q. Did you know that in 1940, the following year, Franklin Roosevelt ran for President upon that very platform of keeping America out of war?

A. That is right, and I voted for him.

Q. You didn't think he was disloyal to the country by having that platform, did you?

A. Well, hardly.

Q. Although Mr. Donohue reads to you a summary of a paper which you are supposed to have made in 1939 saying you were against war, you don't think you were disloyal to the country if you did [4945] make that statement, do you?

A. No, I do not, but I have no recollection of making the statements. Besides, I don't think it is important. [4945-A]

Q. Well, were the members of the Communist Party the only persons against war in 1939?

A. Oh, I am sure they were not.

Q. Coming to another group of questions which were put to you in great seriousness by the special prosecutor; you were asked about Lawrence Ross and whether or not you were certain that Lawrence Ross who appeared here was actually a man who did come to the strike committee during the 1934 strike. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. You had answered that you recalled that Ross did come before the strike committee in that year, in 1934; do you remember that?

A. Yes, I said that I was——

Q. And the special prosecutor then showed you some papers.

Mr. MacInnis: Now may I have those?

Q. (Continuing) While Mr. Mitchell is finding them, I think I probably recall most of them. He showed you a photostat of a prospectus of some labor school in Los Angeles with the same name of a course, and the name "Ross" upon it. Now, I suppose you don't know whether that Ross is Lawrence Ross, Charlie Ross or any particular Ross. Was your memory refreshed at all by that document?

A. Well, at the time that I looked at it, I think it had something to do with Ross being in attendance at a school in Los Angeles. [4946]

Q. It just says "Ross," saying that from September 24th to December 15, 1934, there was a course by a man named Ross on Wednesdays in Los Angeles. Now, does that document cause you to feel that Lawrence Ross did not come to San Francisco and appear before the strike committee?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Hardly. And I so stated when Mr. Donohue showed it to me.

Q. Now he showed you a volume of public hearings of the Un-American Activities Committee held in 1934 on August 8th of that year, when the man called Lawrence Ross testified. Now, does that refresh your memory and cause you to feel that Lawrence Ross was not in San Francisco during that strike?

A. I don't know what difference that would make, by showing me a document that he was in Los Angeles or Washington, D. C. It does not prove to me he could not have been in San Francisco on that date.

Q. It is still your memory he did come before the strike committee?

A. As well as any human being can remember after the passage of 15—no, 16 years, it is.

Q. Now, again, the special prosecutor showed you a copy of the Western Worker for October 11th with an article by Lawrence Ross and asked you whether that refreshed your memory as to whether he was in San Francisco during the strike and you replied it did not. Again, he showed you the issue of July 2nd of the same paper, the Western Worker, and asked you if that refreshed [4947] your memory. He showed you——

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor pleases, are these questions? I haven't heard any response from the witness. Maybe Mr. MacInnis better change places with him.

Mr. MacInnis: It is preliminary to establishing a point. If you want, I can stop and have him answer this fully, but this is just a review of what has been said.

Q. (Continuing): And finally the special prosecutor showed you a date in December of 1934 with a reference to the name "Lawrence Ross," and asked you if that refreshed your memory. You replied it did not? A. That's right.

Q. Now, you still say, do you, that Lawrence Ross did appear before the strike committee?

A. That is what my memory tells me.

Q. Now, were the services of the Western Worker, that particular paper, offered to the strike committee during the 1934 strike?

A. My recollection is that this man spoke to myself and another man. As to whether or not it was offered to the strike committee while that body was assembled, I have no memory.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, so that the special prosecutor will now perceive one of the points that we are approaching, I will hand him a copy, a photostatic copy of the document which I will now show to the witness, being a photostatic copy of the minutes [4948] of the strike committee for May 9, 1934. (Handing document to counsel.)

Q. And I will ask you to look at these minutes at the place I have marked in red, and tell us whether or not your recollection is refreshed as to the approximate date of that occurrence. (Document handed to witness by the Clerk.)

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Are you calling my attention to a sentence, and may I read it, or is that——

Q. Well, I ask you whether or not your memory is now refreshed.

A. No, sir, I am sorry, Mr. MacInnis. I don't remember this incident, but I suppose it happened since it is in the minutes. My recollection of that particular meeting is that we discussed all sorts of preparations for the strike because we were then in it, and we were reviewing preparations and so forth.

Q. Well, does the reading of the piece of paper, the official minutes of the strike committee, confirm your memory that the representatives of the Western Worker did come to the strike committee and offer the support of the paper?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that, if Your Honor pleases, unless he wants to read exactly what that document says. Then I would have no objection.

The Court: May I have that read? Would you read that, please?

Mr. MacInnis: I think he says he has no objection.

Mr. Donohue: If he reads the exact language of the document, [4949] I have no objection.

Mr. MacInnis: Fine. Read the sentence.

Mr. Donohue: Even though I think I should call the Court's attention to the fact that he is doing exactly what he objected to my doing a moment ago.

Mr. MacInnis: That is quite true.

Mr. Donohue: But I have no objection if he reads the document exactly as the document was written.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Witness: Under the heading of "Reports of Committees," there appears this sentence, "Representative of Western Worker spoke and offered the full support of their paper."

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): And what is the date?

A. The date of the meeting is May 9th.

Mr. MacInnis: All right. Now we offer a photostatic copy of those minutes for identification, Your Honor.

The Court: So ordered.

(Whereupon excerpts from minutes 5/9/34 were marked Defendants' Exhibit Y-2 for identification.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, Mr. Donohue showed you various copies of the Western Worker, apparently offering those portions which had to do with the name of Lawrence Ross on particular dates.

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Mr. Donohue, will you tell us this: Have you any other copies of the Western Worker for that period which would have shown Lawrence Ross here? [4950]

Mr. Donohue: Mr. MacInnis, I am not on the witness stand. I will get you any copy of the Western Worker you want if you can't get it for yourself. Happy to get it.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I just want to establish that. Did you attempt, as best you could, to bring here any copy of the Western Worker which would show Lawrence Ross in San Francisco?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, I did, and I offered it in evidence, the first copy I could find that showed he was here in December, 1934.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all I wanted to find out, because now I will show you the Western Worker on the very date that we are talking about.

Mr. Donohue: I will be very happy to see it.

Mr. MacInnis: Lawrence Ross in San Francisco.

Mr. Donohue: Very happy to see it.

Mr. MacInnis: I take it that you made every human effort?

Mr. Donohue: I made no effort at all. I merely presented what they handed me.

Mr. MacInnis: What was that? Would you read what Mr. Donohue said?

The Reporter: I didn't hear it.

Mr. MacInnis: He said, "I present what they hand me." He said, "I make no effort whatsoever."

Mr. MacInnis: Now, Mr. Donohue, so that you will be advised, I will hand you a photostatic copy of the organ in which you [4951] made this search for the name of Lawrence Ross, the Western Worker of April 23rd, 1934, and I will mark a place where it is shown where Lawrence Ross was to be in San Francisco on May 6th. And if I may, Your Honor, I will ask that the witness look at the original article and see if that confirms the same memory.

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection to the introduction in evidence, if Your Honor please.

The Court: It may be received.

Mr. MacInnis: That may be received as our exhibit next?

The Court: Mr. Donohue, you have no objection?

Mr. Donohue: I have no objection to it being introduced in evidence.

The Court: It may be marked in evidence.

The Clerk: The photostatic copy?

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. MacInnis: Thank you.

> (Whereupon photostatic copy of issue of Western Worker of April 23, 1934 was marked Defendants' Exhibit Z-2 and received in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): So that, Mr. Schmidt, to supplement the search that the special prosecutor made in the Western Worker for Lawrence Ross, to see if there was any mention of his being in San Francisco at that time, I will read from this photostatic copy, the paragraph marked. The whole article is in evidence.

"Delegates will assemble at 121 Haight Street Sunday [4952] morning for the convention, and that evening a great mass meeting will be held at California Hall, at which the main speakers will be Sam Darcy, district organizer of the Communist Party, Pettus Perry, Louise Todd and Lawrence Ross."

That is Defendants' next.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. Halinan: What date is that?

Mr. MacInnis: He was to be in San Francisco on May 6th for a speech and the records of the strike committee already show that the Western Worker was offered to the strikers three days later on May 9th.

Mr. Donohue: May I ask Mr. MacInnis now, in return for the question asked me, and since he has brought a bound volume of the Western Worker here, if he will produce the first record of the Western Worker which shows that Lawrence Ross was the co-editor or editor of the Western Worker? duction in evidence, if your Honor please.

Mr. MacInnis: Certainly, I will be glad to produce anything. I will be glad to look through the bound volume and find that. We certainly don't want to be in the position of concealing any evidence if we have it.

Q. Now, you were asked yesterday by the special prosecutor about your attendance at the 1935 convention of the State Federation of Labor, and, I think, at San Diego, and he asked you how you voted on a certain resolution.

Mr. MacInnis: Might I have that document? It is in [4953] evidence twice, and I think it is over here. Thank you.

Q. (Continuing): Now a portion referred to by the special prosecutor had to do with a motion to bar the Communist Party, I think, from the floor of the convention. The special prosecutor read off the fact that it appears that those voting against the motion were Harry Bridges, John D. Schomaker, Henry Schmidt, Henry Schrimpf and John Larson. Now, I will ask you to look at page 87 of the same document, and I will ask you whether or not there were 50 or 60 people voting against that particular measure, and not just the few names read out to you by the special prosecutor.

(Document handed to the witness by the Clerk.)

A. Would that be Resolution No. 1?

Q. I have some of those names marked in red. You will find it on that part of the page.

A. Yes, I see it. Oh, there are any number of names here in very small print. Some of them go over to the next page. The paragraph winds up by stating that "These delegates who voted in the negative on this resolution represented 16,328 votes."

Q. That is all with it. May I have the volume back, please?

(Returned to counsel by the Clerk.)

Q. ~~Now, would you~~—Strike that, please.

Now, without reading the names of all these delegates.—I am sorry I said 50 or 60 because there appear to be many more than that—I will ask you this: Culling out of the list [4954] some names, I will ask you if these people were well known conservative labor leaders and not even Communist affiliates, sympathizers or anything else: George Kidwell. Do you know him?

A. Yes, he is what is usually called an old line A. F. of L. labor official. I recall him as being a member of the General Strike Committee in 1934.

Q. And Clarence J. Walsh?

A. No, I can't place him.

Q. E. F. Dillon?

A. Ed Dillon of the Machinists Union? Yes.

Q. And was he a known conservative trade unionist?

A. He is generally so recognized.

Q. And those names appear along with many others upon this vote which you were criticized for participating in?

Mr. Donohue: Oh, I object to that inference. I didn't criticize him; I asked him a question.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Now, do you remember the witness Stanley Hancock who testified here?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that witness testifying that he, as a Communist Party representative, was interested in the passage of a resolution involving the Vigilantes? Do you remember that?

A. I remember it vaguely.

Q. Well, now, who was Edward Vandeleur? [4955]

A. Mr. Edward Vandeleur, in those days, was the secretary—no, he was the president of the San Francisco Labor Council.

Q. Now, was he——

A. And I think that he was a delegate to the San Diego convention, either representing that Council or possibly the Streetcar men, because he was a member of the Streetcar men's union.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Was he a conservative labor leader?

A. I would say so.

Q. You mean he was really a conservative?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, I will hand you the same document and call your attention to page 104 and ask you if you can look at the top of that page and refresh your memory as to who actually presented the Resolution No. 87, which was the subject of the Vigilantes.

A. You say 87?

Q. Yes.

A. It appears that Proposition No. 87 was presented by Harry Bridges of the International Longshoremen's Association, San Francisco.

Q. And reading a few lines down, what person submitted an amendment to that resolution which also carried?

A. It reads, "President Vandeleur submitted the following amendment:"

Q. And what was the amendment? Would you read that? [4956]

A. "This convention here and now calls upon the Governor and the Attorney General and their fellow officials to stop these outrages committed upon their fortunate fellow humans, and we await their answer. If it does not come and if they fail to observe this solemn oath to uphold the Constitution, then we propose to do it for them and to that end we go into this fight with all our strength, whether it means recall of weak-backed politicians or any other method of defense that is within our means. This is the last word. Either these outrageous Vigilantes and others of their ilk shall be stopped in their unlawful pursuits or organized and unorganized labor will stop them. The amendment by President Vandeleur was adopted, report of the committee was adopted as amended."

Q. Now, was President Vandeleur, who sanctioned and made that amendment, ever accused of being a member of the Communist Party?

A. On the contrary.

Mr. MacInnis: May I have Exhibit No. 3 of the Government, please?

Q. While Mr. Mitchell is getting that, I want to ask you this: You said that at one point in your work as a salaried official of the union, you went to work with the Lafollette Committee, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. What is the Lafollette Committee?

A. I believe its official name was "A Senate Committee on [4957] Education in Labor." Now I may not be quoting it correctly.

Q. But it was the committee headed by Senator Robert Lafollette of the United States Senate?

A. That's right. And it gets its name from his name.

Q. And what was the nature of the work which you undertook with that committee?

A. Well, as I recall it, staff members of the committee or their investigators came to the Coast to investigate the activities of the Associated Farmers and the Waterfront Employers Association. And this gentleman who came to me, I am trying to think of his name—Ralph Winstad—he introduced himself as the staff member and showed his credentials and indicated that he was assigned to starting an investigation, and he wanted to know some things with regard to our union. And I called to his attention several attempts that had been made to disrupt the proceedings of our union, the things that we have, through the years, called "plots" to destroy our Union. And I talked to him for hours and I explained many things, and then on one occasion he said, "Well, what we need to do here in order to get to the bottom of all this is to find the former secretary of the local union, Ivan F. Cox." And "Do you know where he is?," and "Where can we find him?" And then, "Can't we prevail upon you to help?"

Well, I said, "I am working on the waterfront and if I leave that job, I won't be making any money." He said, "Can't you [4958] prevail on the international officers to put you on the payroll and we will try to find this fellow?" So I contacted Mr. Mahaffey, who was then the vice president of the Coast Union. He in turn talked to Mat Meehan, the secretary, and they put me ~~on the~~ payroll, and then we started to search for Mr. Ivan F. Cox, which took a little time. We remembered, or rather I remembered, that Mr. Cox was rather a religious man. He belonged to an organization known as the Foursquare Gospel, and he was an ordained minister. So, in order to find a lead from which we could start, I suggested to Mr. Winstad that perhaps we ought to find a Foursquare Gospel mission in San Francisco and start from there. We did that. He found a mission somewhere here in Mission Street. From there we started out on an automobile tour to Sacramento. We visited a mission there, they directed us to Oroville. There we found some people that belonged to Mr. Cox's Foursquare Gospel, and they told us that they thought he was around in Eureka somewhere.

Q. Well, Mr. Schmidt, without going into all the evolutions concerning the finding of Mr. Cox, did you participate in the investigation?

A. Yes, we eventually found him. We took him to a hotel in Eureka, and we sat down there with him for several days and the information just poured out of him and he made it perfectly clear that he had been duped, that he had been in collaboration with several people who are known to as professional union [4959] busters, and that in fact, his successor, who was then the secretary-treasurer of our union, who was unfortunately reelected here recently, was a labor spy and was working with people who make it their business to disrupt trade unions.

Q. Now, were those findings actually made by the Lafollette Committee of the Senate of the United States?

A. No, I am sorry to report that the committee didn't finish its job. I talked to Winstad on the phone here not so very long ago, and he said all of the papers are buried in a cellar of the Senate Office Building in Washington, D. C.

Mr. MacInnis: I can finish with Mr. Schmidt if you like, or we can take the recess; whatever Your Honor feels necessary.

The Court: We might take the recess.

Mr. MacInnis: All right.

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the afternoon recess, and the same admonition to you, not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form nor express an opinion until it is submitted.

(Recess.) [4960]

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Schmidt, in the work you undertook with the committee of Senator Lafollette, who were the persons named as those attempting to destroy the labor unions?

A. Well, the people that Ivan Cox mentioned specifically were Harper Knowles——

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. This now is hearsay twice removed. I thought he was going to say something he knew himself. Now he wants this witness to testify as to a list, which list was given to him by the person named Ivan Cox, which is hearsay.

Mr. MacInnis: That is not the point of the question, nor is it the point of the witness' testimony.

The Witness: I heard Harper Knowles testify.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Where did you hear Harper Knowles testify?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. In the first—I think it was the first Bridges hearing on Angel Island before Dean Landis.

Q. You heard him testify then?

A. Yes, and he testified that he was giving orders to George Arms, the secretary-treasurer of our local union.

Q. Was Harper Knowles found to be false in his testimony by the Trial Examiner?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Schmidt, among the other matters brought to your attention by the special prosecutor was the [4961] issue of whether or not you, as a member of the Longshore Union, endorsed a lady named Oleta O'Connor Yates for supervisor in 1943. Do you recall that?

A. I recall the question, yes.

Q. This afternoon. Now, in the year, 1943, as well as in the other years, did the longshore membership itself vote the slate of candidates for public office who were to be endorsed?

A. That is the way the thing works, Mr. MacInnis. Candidates for public office will come to our meeting, and they will speak their piece. Sometimes they send a representative, and very often a meeting night is set aside for that purpose, and then if the membership sees fit, why, they may endorse some or they may not endorse others.

Q. Now, in 1943 the longshore union did endorse Oleta O'Connor Yates for supervisor, is that correct? A. I think that is right.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Now, I am going to show you a paper called the Longshoreman's Bulletin of October 26, 1943, and I will ask you if by looking at it you can tell us the list of candidates for public office which the longshore union then endorsed.

Do you want to see a copy? (Handing copy to Mr. Donohue). A. Yes.

Q. Can you by looking at that document refresh your memory as to the list of candidates for public office endorsed by the longshore union in 1943 in addition to Oleta O'Connor Yates? [4962]

A. Well, their names all appear in large print.

Q. Can you tell us who they are?

A. I read here the name of George R. Reilly, candidate for mayor; Edmund G. "Pat" Brown for district attorney; Peter Maloney, sheriff; Oleta O'Connor Yates, supervisor; Fred Meyer, supervisor; Bart Bacigalupi, supervisor; Dewey Mead, supervisor; John J. Sullivan, supervisor; Francis McCarthy, supervisor; Twain Michelson, Municipal Court No. 4; George B. Harris, Municipal Court No. 1; Clarence W. Morris, Municipal Court No. 3, and Frank W. Dunne, Municipal Court No. 2.

Q. And did you support all of those candidates at that time?

A. That's right. The last line in that bulletin reads: "Take this to the polls."

Q. Now, one other matter that was suggested by the special prosecutor is this: Mr. Schmidt, as to the length of time in which you were a salaried official of the ILWU as opposed to being a man working on the waterfront with your hands, tell the Court and jury what your salary is with the ILWU.

A. Well, the salary has varied through the years, Mr. MacInnis.

Q. I mean right now.

A. Right now I am drawing $90 or $95 a week, plus $20 for expenses.

Mr. MacInnis: May a photostatic copy of the document be received for identification?

Mr. Donohue: No objection, your Honor. [4963]

The Court: So ordered.

The Clerk: May it be marked Defendants' Exhibit A-3 for identification.

(Document marked Defendants' Exhibit A-3 for identification.)

Mr. MacInnis: No further questions.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Did you know that Oleta O'Connor Yates was a member of the Communist Party and a Communist functionary?

A. That has been known here for years, Mr. Donohue.

Q. She was not elected, I take it?

A. Pardon?

Q. She was not elected, I take it?

A. No, I don't think so.

Mr. Donohue: May I have a copy of the Western Worker?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Q. Now, Mr. MacInnis asked to read a portion of the Western Worker of San Francisco under date of April 23, 1934, with reference to the fact that Lawrence Ross was in San Francisco on that night; correct? A. What was the date, please?

Q. April 23, 1934.

A. Yes, I heard that read.

Q. Now, you didn't testify that it was on April 23 that you first saw Lawrence Ross when he came to you to talk to you about [4964] the cooperation of the Western Worker, did you?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. I object to this as, I hope, not a deliberate misstatement of the evidence, but at least an inadvertent one. The issue of the Western Worker bears the date now mentioned, but the date in question in connection with Lawrence Ross was May 6. If you will look just a little more sharply, you will see the May 6 date, Mr. Donohue.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, surely.

Mr. MacInnis: Three days before the May 9 date in the minutes of the strike committee.

Mr. Donohue: I haven't come to that yet, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: You asked him if he ever said that Lawrence Ross came on that April date.

Mr. Donohue: That is correct.

Mr. MacInnis: He never said that.

Mr. Donohue: I asked him that question. He can deny it if it isn't true.

A. No, I never said I saw him April 23.

Q. When did you say you saw him?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. I think I have said all the time that he came to the strike committee or subcommittee of the strike committee on May 9, or maybe the following day.

Q. Didn't you tell us, Mr. Schmidt, that you saw Mr. Lwrence Ross shortly after the strike began in 1934?

A. Yes, sir. We went all over that. You asked me what [4965] "shortly" means, and I explained.

Q. Didn't you say that one day would be too shortly, but ten days would not be out of the way?

A. Something like that; that's right.

Q. You said that it was sometime within ten days after the strike began in May of 1934, is that correct?

A. I am pretty sure it wasn't ten days after.

Q. Now, you know, do you not, sir, that in this issue of April 23, 1934, that the story from which you read the quotation—and I will reread the quotation so that Mr. MacInnis need not complain about it—is a story under a San Francisco April 16 dateline, which is a call to all labor and fraternal organizations to elect delegates for the California State nominating convention of the Communist Party—you saw that in here?

A. You mean when it was shown to me?

Q. Yes. A. I didn't read it.

Q. Well, you did read that delegates to the convention I have just indicated, the California State nominating convention of the Communist Party—and reading from the point where Mr. MacInnis has outlined in red:

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

"Delegates will assemble at 121 Haight Street, Sunday morning, May 6, for the convention, and that evening a great mass meeting will be held at California Hall, at [4966] which the main speakers will be Sam Darcy, District Organizer of the Communist Party, Pettis Perry, Louise Todd and Lawrence Ross."

Correct?

A. Yes, I recall that being read out loud.

Q. Now, does that refresh your recollection—an article in the Western Worker of April 23 indicating that Lawrence Ross will speak at the Communist Party convention at Communist Party hedquarters on May 6——

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me.

Mr. Donohue: ——on the question whether or not you saw Lawrence Ross in the early days of the strike and that he then talked to you about the use of the Western Worker for the purposes of the strike; is that correct?

A. Oh, no, no, I still stick to my memory that a man came to see me after the strike commenced and talked to me in the daytime in the strike headquarters in a large room adjoining the strike headquarters proper..

Mr. Donohue: Mr. Mitchell, may I have the copy of the Western Worker which was exhibited the other day under date of December, 1934.

The Clerk: December 20, 1934?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, sir.

Q. In the meantime, Mr. Schmidt, when you saw this document, which is the report of the proceedings of the 36th annual [4967] convention of the State Federation of Labor, 1935, did you observe that one of those who joined you and Mr. Bridges and Henry Schrimpf and John Schomaker and John Larson in voting against Proposition 1 purposed to evict Communists from the American Federation of Labor movement, that Walter H. Mahaffey also voted with you on the subject?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. Is it your question, did I notice that while I read it?

Q. Yes, did you notice that?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. May I ask you to look at the point where it is checked and see if this refreshes your recollection about the fact that Mr. Mahaffey——

Mr. MacInnis: I will say the name is there.

A. I see Mr. Mahaffey's name, yes.

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Thank you. And while Mr. MacInnis called your attention to the fact that Proposition 1 was defeated, nonetheless those delegates defeating represented 16,328 votes——

A. The other was 55,000 and something.

Q. Those present who voted for Resolution 1 represented some 55,113 votes, is that not a fact?

A. Yes, sir, that is correct, but in a convention like that one may vote as one pleases according to your lights.

Mr. Donohue: Would you ask Mr. Schmidt to look at United [4968] States for identification No. 17 and refer to that article in the box on the front —on the other side, on the top left side in the box.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

A. You mean the workers' school business?

Q. Yes.

A. It seems to me I have seen that before.

Q. Yes, you remember I showed it to you the other day. A. Yes.

Q. What is the date of that copy of the Western Worker? A. December 20.

Q. 1934? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see any copy of the Western Worker earlier than December 20, 1934, which contained any statement showing that Lawrence Ross was the co-editor of the Western Worker?

A. The only answer to that question is: I don't know.

Q. That does contain a reference to the fact that he was co-editor, the issue of December 20, 1934?

A. In the article in the box?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, that is what it says.

Mr. Donohue: May I have the publication back? That document which you identified for Mr. MacInnis shortly ago, the mimeographed paper, Mr. Mitchell, to which no objection wase made to its introduction in evidence—the strike [4969] committee, I think it was——

Mr. MacInnis: I will be glad to accept that offer. The special prosecutor says he has no objection to the strike committee meeting minutes being introduced.

Mr. Donohue: I said I had no objection providing he read it, as I assume he did, exactly as it appears.

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

Mr. MacInnis: May it now be received in evidence?

Mr. Donohue: No objection, if your Honor please.

The Court: So ordered.

Mr. MacInnis: That is in evidence?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, no objection.

Q. Now, these minutes of the strike committee meeting of May 8, 1934, from which you read that a representative of the Western Worker spoke and offered the full support of their paper—there is no reference in these minutes to the fact that that representative was Lawrence Ross, was there?

A. I didn't see it, no.

Q. And when you stated that you talked to Lawrence Ross about using the facilities of the Western Worker for the purposes of the strike, you said you talked with him alone, did you not?

A. No, I said that another man was with me, and my memory tells me that that was Ralph Melin.

Q. Then what reason was there for Lawrence Ross to talk to you and Ralph Melin on the subject of the use of the Western Worker for the purposes of the strike if a representative of the [4970] Western Worker came to a meeting of the strike committee and offered the full support of their paper?

Mr. MacInnis: Pardon me. That is unintelligible. How would he know what reason a man had? How could he pass upon the mental process of the other person?

(Testimony of Henry Schmidt.)

The Court: Well, it is argumentative.

Mr. Donohue: I will withdraw the question if counsel objects to it, if your Honor please.

The Clerk: If your Honor please, for the sake of the record, may I understand this is now in evidence?

The Court: Yes, sir.

The Clerk: Defendants' Y-2 in evidence.

(Defendants' Exhibit Y-2 for identification was received in evidence.)

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Mr. Schmidt, is it your practice to designate any member of a union who takes or makes any effort to remove Communist members from his union as labor spy?

A. Oh, no, sir.

Q. And is it your practice to designate any former member of the Communist Party who testifies against another member of the Communist Party as a stool pigeon? A. Well, that is my belief.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions. [4971]

Further Redirect Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. And, Mr. Schmidt, what designation do you have for people who come into court and swear that innocent men belong to the Communist Party when in truth and in fact they do not?

A. They are pretty low human beings, I would say.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

The Court: We have reached about the adjournment. I have several orders that remain open, and rules to make, so we may devote the balance of the time. The jury may be excused until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

Ladies and gentlemen, we will take the adjournment until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. May I admonish you not to discuss the case under any conditions, nor to form an opinion thereon until it is finally submitted to you. You are not to converse with any person on any subject of the trial. You may now retire.

> (Thereupon the jury retired from the courtroom and the following proceedings were had in the absence of the jury:)

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, at this time I would ask Your Honor to recall the witness Robert Kenny in consequence of information we have received which we could not have known about at the time he testified because it was with respect to an incident which has occurred subsequent thereto and which [4972] we believe is important on the question of the interest of the witness Kenny in this prosecution. And for that reason we respectfully ask Your Honor to recall the witness Robert Kenny for further cross-examination.

Mr. MacInnis: We have no objection. I don't know if Mr. Kenny is in San Francisco. I understand that he probably would be released from the court and he would probably return without process, in any event.

The Court: I am sure he would. Is the matter of that trial on, Mr. Mitchell, in court here now?

The Clerk: It is not, Your Honor. As far as I know, that has been completed.

The Court: Well, is it necessary to make an order?

Mr. Donohue: I would think not. I am sure if you asked Mr. MacInnis to ask him to come back, he will come.

The Court: I am sure he will respond to any call you make.

Mr. Donohue: Surely, Your Honor.

The Court: There was an offer made with respect to the opinion of the Court in Bridges v. Wixon. The Court had already ruled upon the more recent offer and the direct examination of the witness Schmidt. Thereafter Mr. MacInnis asked if the Court would undertake the reading and digesting of a memorandum, and I have had an opportunity to read the same. In addition, I have considered the several cases, particularly the decision of Harrison v. United States in 200 Fed. 662, at 674, and [4973] all and singular the subject matter of the memorandum. I find nothing contained herein, nor in the Harrison case that would persuade me to change my rule heretofore made.

In passing, I might note for the record that the memorandum opinion which I handed down at the time Mr. Cleary argued the matter on the question of res adjudicata appears recorded in 87 Fed. Sup.

at page 14, and I make particular reference to the subject matter at page 15, wherein I believe I disposed of the situation then at hand and likewise presently confronting the Court with respect to the more recent offer.

Accordingly, being so advised, I sustain the objection interposed by the prosecution to the offer of the Supreme Court decision in evidence, more recently adverted to, as I say, during the examination of Mr. Schmidt.

There was one other item with respect to the matter of order, and that is, I did not rule upon—at least I can't recall having ruled upon—the motion to strike the testimony of Father Paul Meinecke. Mr. Donohue, you make such a motion?

Mr. Donohue: Yes, on the ground, if Your Honor please, that a reading of his testimony would indicate that the father was giving an opinion of his own with respect to the character of the defendant Bridges, and my understanding of the law is that only his general reputation in the community in which he lives or works is admissible in evidence and that the father negatived the possibility that the opinion which he voiced was [4974] his general reputation rather than it was his own opinion. On that basis I ask Your Honor to move to [4974-A] strike.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis?

Mr. MacInnis: Well, I am rather surprised that ~~the matter has thus~~ come up again. I thought that the Court had ruled on it.

The Court: No, I had not.

Mr. MacInnis: And in our favor.

The Court: I examined the record last night and it appears I have not ruled, nor have I ruled today on it.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now it would appear to me recalling very vividly as I do the testimony of Father Paul Meinecke, that his words on direct examination met the same standards set by the Court and by our courts of last resort for the testimony of any character witness. Now, he said that he was basing his answer upon his own acquaintanceship with the individual involved, Mr. Harry Bridges, and upon such remarks and statements of other persons in the community as had come to his ears, and that it was a composite of— I can't quote his exact words, but what he believed to be the reputation in the community.

Now, thereafter he was subjected to lengthy cross examination, and in the course of that cross examination he made many statements which, of course, had nothing to do with general reputation but which involved, in the words of the prosecutor, personal opinion. However, we didn't invite that cross examination; the prosecutor did, and the prosecutor undertook to argue with the particular witness as to what were the bases for [4975] his personal opinion. And the whole examination departed from the concept of general reputation in the community of a particular witness. Now, the cross examiner having thus departed from the ordinary scope of the direct examination, can hardly now rise before us and say, "This defendant doesn't meet the standard required by law." I can't think of any possible disability that that testimony would contain.

Mr. Donohue: Your Honor, may I ask you at this time, in reading the testimony of the father last night—I read also the testimony of a number of other character witnesses. May I ask Your Honor at this time to withhold any ruling on the testimony of the father in order that we may, perhaps, make a broader motion at a subsequent time which may include the testimony of other witnesses. We would like to be heard at that time on it.

The Court: Well, I should like the motions to be made timely, to the end that we keep a current record. It is difficult to have these matters become embedded in the record, so to speak, and then at some later time or at a later hour make a motion to strike.

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor pleases, would your Honor hold your ruling on this matter? We shall come to a conclusion on other matters not later than Monday.

The Court: Do you have in mind any specific items that I might have in mind? [4976]

Mr. Donohue: Not at the minute, if your Honor please. I don't recall the names. I recall the testimony without being able to ascribe it to persons.

Mr. Hallinan: It seems to me, if the Court please, if I might be heard in that, that the purpose is, by including some other minor matter, to make the motion to strike Father Meinecke's testimony seem a little less infamous. I think we ought to have a rule on that one item alone.

The Court: Well, I am prepared to rule on the matter.

Mr. Hallinan: Well, we ask that your Honor rule on it, now.

The Court: I am prepared to rule on the matter. I will deny the motion to strike. I read the testimony last evening, and I feel that, probably as Mr. MacInnis pointed out, that there was an attempt on his part to have a composite; at least, that was the father's testimony.

And I might say, Mr. MacInnis, that in reading the transcript, I concluded that the proper administration of justice and maintenance of respect due the courts require me to certify that yesterday you committed conduct in the actual presence of this Court constituting contempt.

Mr. MacInnis: Before your Honor finds——

Mr. Hallinan: Might I represent Mr. MacInnis in this before you say anything further?

The Court: And I say for the record, that the Court, in [4977] the proper exercise of its function, propounded a relative and pertinent question to the witness, Father Paul Meinecke, whereupon Mr. MacInnis addressed the Court as follows:

> "I think you should cite yourself for misconduct. I have never heard anything like that. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

That appears at transcript page 4796. I say to you, Mr. MacInnis——

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, might I be heard on that before——

The Court: I say to you, Mr. MacInnis, that this Court will file a certificate and an order pursuant to Rule 42 of the Rules of Criminal Procedure.

Mr. Hallinan: Your Honor, may I be heard?

The Court: One moment, Mr. Hallinan.

Mr. Hallinan: I have never heard such a—Why can't I be heard in the matter?

The Court: And making such order and fixing such punishment will be deferred. I will defer the punishment to later, to a later date in the trial.

Mr. Hallinan: Very well.

The Court: We will now stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to tomorrow, Friday, February 3, 1950, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.) [4978]

Friday, February 3, 1950, 10:00 A. M.

The Clerk: United States v. Harry Renton Bridges, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, on trial.

Mr. MacInnis: Call Mr. Robertson.

JAMES R. ROBERTSON

was called on his own behalf; sworn.

The Clerk: Will you state your full name to the Court and jury?

A. James R. Robertson.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. What is your residence address, Mr. Robertson?

A. 343 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley.

Q. What is your business address?

A. 150 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. What is your occupation or profession at that address?

A. I am an official of a labor organization.

Q. And that is what?

A. The International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union, referred to as the ILWU.

Q. What office do you hold with the ILWU?

A. I am its first vice president and director of organization.

Q. What does the term "director of organization" imply so [4979] far as your own functions are concerned?

A. It means that in that capacity I am responsible for all the organizational activities of the international union.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Robertson?

A. I was born in Texas, in Wood County.

Q. And when did you come to California?

A. I came to California in 1930, I believe.

Q. And you have been a resident of California ever since, is that correct?

A. Yes, only for those periods of time when I was assigned to organizational work outside of the State of California, and that has been considerable in the past few years.

Q. You mean when you traveled on ILWU business? A. Yes.

Q. And I suppose in those periods of time you kept your regular residence in and around San Francisco or at least in the State of California?

A. Yes, I have always felt that I was a resident of California, although the nature of my work is such that I have spent considerable period of time in other states, and naturally you establish residence there, and if you are there for, say, over a year and you want to participate in the activities that happened to go on in that area, you follow out the usual procedure to do that.

Q. When did you first come to live in and around San Francisco? [4980]

A. In about 1932, I believe, the early part of 1932.

Q. At that time what was your occupation?

A. Counsel, those were lean years. I had no steady employment. The first steady job I got in this state was working for a grocery warehouse, the Public Food Warehouse.

Q. Is that Public Foods warehouse here in San Francisco?

A. It is Public Food warehouse that was in San Francisco. That firm is now out of business.

Q. What is the nature of the work you first understook with Public Food warehouse?

A. Oh, for many months I was engaged in helping the Teamsters who serve all of the retail stores, and to use the vernacular of the warehousemen, I was a lumper. I was a helper working odd jobs, let's say, an hour here, an hour there. I kept that up for several months, and finally I worked into a steady job, in what we would refer to as the dry warehouse department of that operation.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. What does that mean, Mr. Robertson, the dry warehouse department?

A. That means where all of the packaged goods and dry commodities are warehoused and processed and/or prepared for distribution to their retail outlets.

Q. At that time, Mr. Robertson, had you taken any part in the labor movement?

A. No. I have been a worker all my life. Now, I don't know [4981] what you mean by that. I had taken no part in any organized activity, if that is what you mean.

Q. When did you first take any part in organized labor activity? A. In early 1934.

Q. What was the occasion that brought you then into the labor movement?

A. Well, it was during the 1934 waterfront strike, and as a result of that strike, particularly here in San Francisco, all of the people working in or near the waterfront, and it so happened that our warehouse was established and located near the waterfront, we all became concerned and interested, and we started thinking about organization, and step by step we began to consider the stages we would go through in forming an organization of our own. That is, shall I say, the first of the organization that I am proud to be a member of, which is known today as Local 6.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. By Local 6 I suppose you mean the warehousemen's office of the ILWU?

A. The Warehouse Division, yes. All of my activities in the ILWU have been primarily concerned with the Warehouse Division.

Q. Did you yourself have any personal part in the organizing of the warehousemen?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. I am speaking now of the days of the 1934 waterfront strike and the general strike that followed it. [4982]

A. I did not participate to any great degree in the '34 strike other than as an individual along with others who found themselves working in the warehousing industry, such as myself, and lent what individual aid we could. For example, longshoremen would drop by our place occasionally. They would tell us what was going on—and they didn't have to tell us they needed food—and we would to the best of our ability take up collections and pass it on to them and help them out in that manner, and go out when we had spare time and help them by doing a little picket duty, and help them in that phase of the work.

Q. Did you ultimately play some role upon any committee during the 1934 strike?

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

A. No, not in the 1934 strike. I was functioning primarily in the warehouse union which is now known as Local 6. You see, I have never been directly engaged in waterfront activities. My activities have been concerned entirely with the Warehouse Division, and beginning in early 1934—I think it was May—we started to build our local organization. When I say "we" I say those of us who felt the need or the desire to band ourselves together and follow in the footsteps of the longshoremen and the waterfront workers, and that we did, and in my small but unimportant way I played a small role in those early days in working with others in developing this organization. [4983]

Q. When did you first meet Harry Bridges?

A. I would have to think because the name Harry Bridges has been constantly before me for so long it is hard to remember exactly. But we knew that Harry Bridges was engaged in these waterfront activities from the first moment that I became interested in organization, and as our union began to develop and grow, as we advanced, when I can say we actually had a small local, then I became a little better acquainted with Harry Bridges, the individual, but not having met him personally. And I think that I can say that the first time I remember having met him in a rather formal sense was in 1937, when our local union, in conjunction with the Pacific Coast Division of the ILA, decided to develop and expand warehouse organization on a coastwise basis, and there it was necessary to consult with others, to solicit their aid, their help and whatever support we could from them, although they recognized the need for developing this phase of our work as an auxiliary to the waterfront organization.

Q. Before you formally met Harry Bridges had you seen him or heard him speak at any public or semi-public gatherings?

A. No, I don't think I did.

Q. After the 1934 strike did you continue at your job with the Public Food warehouse in San Francisco?

A. Yes, I continued on that job until sometime in 1935. I [4984] was discharged there for union activities. I think I should spend a moment and explain that during this period—and I refer now to 1934 and '35—there developed in this country a real feeling among the workers for organization. And I say that based on how it happened to be and how it happened to those people who were around me, because of action of our Government in setting up facilities which made it legally possible for workers to organize. And I can well recall the enthusiasm that was shown. And of course we all of us became a little more bold and a little more active, and I guess I wasn't excluded from that group, and in 1935 I was discharged from my job at the public food warehouse. At that time I held the position of full case order clerk. That is a guy that goes around and pulls all of the full cases off of the orders in the—that go out to the retail stores. And we had, I think, some 140 or 150 retail outlets that we were servicing at that time, and my job was to jerk the full cases off orders servicing all those stores.

Q. After you thus lost your job, what occupation did you follow for the remainder of that year, 1935, and for the following year, 1936?

A. Oh, I worked around the various warehouses through the office of the union, and I worked longshore on a permit that the longshore local would grant to other locals directly affiliated to it in placing those who were unemployed in the union. [4985]

Q. So you did temporary work, then, both as a longshoreman and as a warehouseman for the balance of the year 1935?

A. Yes, it was very temporary, very casual work.

Q. When did there come a change in your type of employment?

A. Well, by this time our local had grown to the extent that we had elected officers—the usual routine in a local of this kind. We had the president, the secretary, the treasurer, the board of—the executive board, and all of the various small committees that function in a local of that type. And I was elected to the executive board, I believe, in 1936, and I had functioned on one of the local committees all along during the period when I first went into the local organization. And during 1936 I became the business agent for the local.

Q. Now, what was the function of that particular job?

A. Oh, its functions were many. You service your membership. You carry on an organizational campaign, and you meet with employers and you do the many—the thousand and one jobs that size was faced with during that period—numerous jobs. And I would say, primarily because of the very nature of things at that time, I concentrated on organizing, because we recognized that unless we extended our organization, we were not going to be secure in the individual houses we had organized.

I well recall when we would negotiate with an employer, let us say in the grocery industry or in a public warehouse—and in those days we didn't have each of the industries [4986] completely organized; we would have a house here and a house there in this industry group; maybe one house in this industry group.

Maybe I had better explain what I mean by industry groupings. That is, starting directly with the waterfront, that is to say, the Marine Terminals, they are the groups of individual warehouses that come more directly in line with the longshoremen—marine terminal warehouses; they are the warehousemen that work in the marine terminals. Then we have what we call our public warehouses. They are the warehouses that handle public warehousing operations, that handle all of the manufacturers that ship in from other places and all of the jobbers, et cetera; they handle public shipments in here, and they are stored in those public warehouses. Then we have what we call captive warehouses, which are certain warehouses operated by chain operations, some of them national and some of them local. And all those captive warehouse operations, of course they are so diversified that they cut across the whole industrial life of the City of San Francisco, where we furnish commodities which are shipped to the consumer every day, to the entire population of the city.

That is why I would say we would have one house organized in a public warehouse—maybe one or two or three; we would have a house in the grocery, and maybe one in drug. So we would have to meet and negotiate a contract with those employers [4987] and we would sit down with them and start our discussions. And the thing that impressed me most is that these employers would invariably say, "Well, we have read your demands, and we would be more than glad to grant them, but you must consider the competitive angle of this situation, and we cannot grant these demands until you have organized other operators in this particular industrial group." And they themselves encouraged organization, and that is what we did: We went out and we organized, and in carrying on our organizational activities, it is at this point that I began to discover that on the one hand when we were negotiating with a single employer he would insist on our organizing, and when we would go out to organize, we would find the forces of law and order put out to stop us and deter us in every way possible.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. In 1936 did this work which you have now described center itself around San Francisco?

A. Definitely so. Definitely so.

Q. When, if ever, did your activities go beyond the City of San Francisco in the same kind of work?

A. Oh, in early 1937, I believe—very early in 1937, I was sent in to the Northwest.

Q. Was that by virtue of some appointment from the union?

A. Yes; that is because when we had to sit down with other locals in this area that comprised what was then known as the Pacific Coast Division of the ILA and we sat down and we [4988] discussed the value of extending the warehouse organization—warehouse in its broad sense—up and down the coast, because by the end of 1936 and the beginning of '37 we had been successful in establishing a substantial organization in the warehousing field generally in San Francisco—then we recognized the need—and this is peculiar—based again on the employers' remarks to us in negotiations. Once we had organized an industry, it didn't revolve around the felling of one employer in one house in one kind of industry, they began to say, "Why don't you get all of the industries in the locality organized? Why place us at a disadvantage?" So we followed that process, and it is because of these reasons among many, many others we discussed the advisability of moving up and down the coast, but because of the activities carried on in San Francisco to a certain degree, warehouse organization had started up and down the coast.

Now, that sounds a little lengthy, but I am sure it is well that I go into this, because I want everyone concerned to know the background of the struggle that has gone on. I want them to know what we have been faced with. I want them to know what we have been up against. I want them to know how we have had to struggle to develop the organization we have today. And I think once they know, some of these fears they might have in their minds will be dispelled. That is why I want to spend some time and go into this, because I am both humble and proud [4989] of the work I have done in these last few years. I am humble because I am a product of this movement that we call the labor movement. I am humble because this is the only chance I have ever had to work and develop something that is going to help me—I say that selfishly—but at the same time help my fellow man. And I am proud because of the record of our organization as established. And I ask that all here bear with me and let me tell my story. I have been here now for several weeks, and this is the first opportunity I have had, and I want to go into detail and let you know why it became necessary to begin to develop and expand the warehouse division of our union. And it is at this point that I went into the Northwest, into Seattle and into Portland, and began there to develop these processes that were taking place in San Francisco, and with some degree of success. We won a few and we lost a few. We didn't win them all, but organization began to develop and grow, and we encountered there the same opposition that I had encountered earlier here in our efforts to organize these workers into our union. [4990]

Q. After your work in the Northwest, as you have described it, were you sent to any other part of our community or state, or did you go outside the State of California?

A. Yes, 1937. I spent the early part of that year in the Northwest. I came back to San Francisco for a short period of time and then I was assigned to the Southern California area, and we started to develop there, our organizational program as I have described, both for the Bay Area and for the Northwest, and I continued in those activities for the rest of 1937 and up until 1938.

Q. What was the title of the post that you held in Southern California?

A. I was, as far as our own union is concerned, I was an organizer, and I was also given the title of regional director, I believe, of Southern California for National CIO. I held that title for a very short time.

Q. After your work in Southern California where next did you go?

A. In the late spring of 1938, and after our convention of that year had decided to broaden our organizational activities on a national basis, I was assigned to the Gulf area, and I proceeded to New Orleans and we started developing our campaign of organization there.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. In one of his questions to the previous witness, the special prosecutor attempted to draw the inference that you had gone down to New Orleans to rid some other union. Will you explain [4991] that?

A. Yes. Evidently the special prosecutor for the prosecution does not understand organization in the labor movement. We went there because the workers of the South, having watched from afar the development of a movement on the West Coast directly related to the waterfront, having watched that development, they themselves asked that some of us come there and see what we could do in developing this type of organization in the South. And I haven't gone into detail when I say this type of organization, and it is perhaps well that I pause for a moment and do that, because when I say this type of organization, let me again say, humbly and very proudly, the leftwing type of organization—and let me explain what that means: Leftwing means rank and file democracy. Leftwing means that the membership of an organization controls its activities. Leftwing, of course, is a relative term. And I apply this to the labor movement. There emerged in '34, '35 and '36 this rank and file movement that people other than myself have referred to as leftwing, and in its simple form it means control of the organization by the membership, where the membership itself has democracy, where it has freedom of action, where it has control at all times of the activities of the organization. And the officers serving that rank and file are only their servants. Now, that is what I mean when I say they recognized a development on the West Coast.

Now, as a result of developing this type of organization there accrued to the workers involved something I believe to be [4992] the greatest gain a group of workers have ever had, and that is some control of their security, some control of the method in which employment is handled. On the waterfront they call that today the hiring hall. Before we had a hiring hall they called it the shapeup. In the warehousing industry, again to use the vernacular of warehousemen, we call it spec—speculation—where a large group of workers will center around a particular warehouse in the morning and spec for a job. All of these things have been eliminated and the union itself now sees to it that workers are dispatched to jobs when they are available, dispatched in order and without discrimination, and each of us gets an equal chance and an equal share of the work.

Now, these are the most important gains in my opinion that have been made, because all of the other issues, all of the other pork chop issues, if I may be so bold, fall into our laps. What do I mean by pork chop issues? I mean the amount of money that you take home at the end of the week and all the other things that go with the money situation involved. But I think the greatest gain we have made is the security of the individual, security for himself and for his family, and the union has done this to us. That is how I feel about it, and these workers themselves have recognized this. They asked us to come into the South. They ask us, "Come assist us."

And we recognized something else, that as long as we had the West Coast organized as it was on the waterfront, and with [4993] the offshore workers that were working closely with us, we had not attained our maximum of economic security unless we were able to organize other workers in the same field in other sections of the country.

So let's say for selfish reasons, in addition to going to the assistance of other workers—for selfish reasons we wanted to go into the South to extend our organization, and it is on this basis that we went there. Several of us were assigned. I was assigned generally to the warehousing division of that operation. But the major drive was on the river front of New Orleans, and we conducted an intensive campaign—an intensive campaign—for many, many months.

Q. So far as your own efforts were concerned, will you tell us what you did and what took place?

A. Well, when you go into a situation of that kind in the role of an organizer, his first duty is to get acquainted with the people involved, sit down with them and discuss their problems, find out what the situation is, and then we have—and pointing out at all times that we, coming from the outside, can do nothing unless they are willing to themselves take part in the activities—developing an understanding of what we had done here, but also making them understand what they would have to do there. These are the initial steps you take, and they were all eager. But they began to tell us what they were confronted with, and it is at this point that I began to understand what the shapeup [4994] really means. That term has been used here and frequently, but it is during my experiences in the Gulf that I really learned the real meaning of the shapeup.

Q. What is that meaning?

A. That is where a group of workers will have to assemble at a given point at a certain hour in the morning—and down there it is as early as 5:00 in the morning—and maybe a ship won't be ready to work or maybe cars won't be ready to be unloaded until 8:00, 8:30, 9:00, 10:00 or 11:00 o'clock. But they have to shapeup that early in the morning. They have to stand around and they pick out leadermen. Now, a leaderman is an individual who might be responsible for three, four, five or six workers. That is the term that they refer to there. And let's say if there is a group of cars on a spur track to be unloaded, the supervisor, the person acting in a supervisorial capacity, will call out these leadermen and he will have a bunch of paddles in his pocket. He will throw these paddles out ten or fifteen feet and he will let all these people dive in and fight for them and the leaderman that gets the paddle is the leaderman that works for that day with his gang. Amazing! I couldn't understand it. Inhuman! But further than that, to be a leaderman and to participate in this type of activity, this person is responsible for seeing to it that everyone working with and under him gets his hair cut at a certain barbershop, buys his groceries at a certain grocery store, five per cent of his money [4995] is kicked back, he brings a jug of wine or a chicken if he raises poultry or something like that occasionally as payoff. These were the things that were going on under the shapeup, and it is this type—it is this type of operation that those people were tired of, and it was repelling to me.

These are the things that we found. But there were other things. The moment we began to develop our activities there we immediately ran afoul of the law. They were not interested evidently in seeing us come in and help those workers organize, help them develop a program such as we had developed, because at every turn the workers were intimidated, and intimidated in devious ways, through the employer, through threats, through the forces of law and order, if any action would be taken to offset the employers' threats, and as our program began to gain momentum, as we began to organize and bring in countless hundreds of workers into our movement, and as we were approaching that period of time where an election would be held—and in this process we were working with many groups—and I refer specifically now to the workers on the riverfront and the workers driving the rigs, the teamsters, the skinner we call them—and we were organizing these groups. And the teamsters, because of the vicious intimidation that was going on at that time, were forced to take strike action, and it is here at this point that the real terror started. Every day for at least three weeks our union offices were raided by the police [4996] department every day. Anywhere from two, three, four to eighty people who happened to be in our hall would be arrested and taken down and jailed, and with vicious intimidation and terror—vicious intimidation and terror—vicious! And I know of what I speak. I was there. I was there. I went through those experiences. I went through with those experiences with the people there.

Q. How about yourself? Were you involved in any of the episodes of which you speak?

A. Yes, I was involved.

Q. And what was that?

A. Well, it seems that during this period the forces of law and order were anxious to get rid of the leadership, shall I say, and by leadership I refer to those of us who were sent in there and those local people who had emerged as leaders within the movement we were developing there, and our leaders were constantly being picked up and arrested and held on any charge, and particularly were they concerned with arresting us on a Friday. And it took me quite some little time to figure out why, but they have some peculiar laws down there. If you are arrested on Friday, you can't be bailed out unless you get permission from some judge there. They all go out of town over the weekend and we found it impossible to find a judge in town who would let us out. So that is a technique they would use to hold us in jail over the weekend. I am very familiar with that. [4997]

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

At one point—and this is a matter of record, by the way—at one point the police department of the City of New Orleans had made the public announcement through its then acting superintendent of detectives, a Mr. Ryer, I believe, that he was going to drive the Communist CIO out of the City of New Orleans. And it was at this period that they started a roundup, and they picked me up that afternoon. I can't recall the day of the week. I can't recall at the moment the date. I know I was picked up. I was picked up early in the afternoon and I was taken down to a downtown precinct station. There I was photographed, fingerprinted, and then I walked up a little stairway onto a platform, and I couldn't see people, but I heard people talking, and I knew they were looking at me. And then I walked down, and as I got down into the narrow hallway, it was lined with policemen, both plainclothesmen and others. And they stopped me there. And they started working me over. It wasn't pleasant. It isn't pleasant to discuss. But they stopped me there and they really started working me over. They didn't give much reason. Stopping me, a person on this side would hit me on the head, and naturally I would duck, and a person on this side would hit me here and I would duck, and I would grab myself and as I would go down they would hit me over the head, and they kept that up for several minutes. Then they took me out of that station. They took me out from that. I guess that was just a warmup because they put me in a car and they took me somewhere [4998] else to an outlying precinct and they threw me in that precinct. They threw me in a cell in that precinct. It was a small affair. It had a wooden board, I guess, as a bunk 14 or 16 inches wide, and it had toilet facilities in the other end that hadn't been cleaned for 40 years. They threw me in there. And you lose account of time. You lose completely the count of time in these situations, but I know later I was taken out of this cell and I was taken into the main office of the precinct. And there they started questioning me: "What are you doing here, Robertson? You are a pretty smart guy. Why don't you get out of town? You know you can't win. There's 1500 of us here. We got orders from up above to get rid of you guys and we're going to get rid of you. Why don't you get out?"

I didn't answer. I stood there. And they started working me over again. Yes, they started working me over again, and it isn't pleasant. They kept backing me up to a table like that one the prosecutors are sitting at. But it had a thick top. You know, you don't forget these things. And when they had me back against that table, there were policemen all around me and policemen on this side —one person asked me a question and I started to answer, and a policeman on this side said, "Oh, he will get smart with a cop, huh?" He clipped me in the chin and I ducked, and when I ducked the person on this side clipped me, and as I catch myself the guy standing in the middle hits me over the head and down I go. And they pick me up again, and [4999] they keep that up, and they keep backing me, backing me, backing me over that table, and finally I collapsed. And they picked me up and they drug me back and threw me in the cell. And a few hours later they brought me in again and they held me up and they worked me over again. And they threw me back in the cell.

I wanted some water. They didn't give me any. I took my shirt, tore strips off my shirt, and I let it fall down into the facilities that they had there, and I would suck that to get a little water because I was in great pain. And three times that night they took me into that room and they beat me up.

Mr. Donohue: If Your Honor please, I realize the defendant is entitled to make a full and complete explanation of every item of his defense. I think I have been quite patient for the past hour. I think it is about time that the defendant was asked to testify concerning the allegation in this indictment which is the allegation that he aided and abetted and conspired with Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt that Bridges would obtain his naturalization by perjury. We have gone back to New Orleans, to the Pacific Northwest, and I think it is about time that we got down to San Francisco and the allegations in the indictment. I respectfully urge Your Honor to require counsel for this witness, this defendant, to confine his examination to the charges contained in this indictment.

Mr. MacInnis: Your Honor, when the worst of professional [5000] perjurers sat in the witness chair, he was allowed to explain, to make excursions to Soviet Russia, to make invocations to Beelzebub, to give any explanation that his heart desired.

Now, the issue is not as simple as the prosecutor tells you in the objection which he just made. At the start of this case one of the other prosecutors made an opening statement, and he said this about Mr. Robertson. He said, "We will show you Mr. Robertson is a Communist, that Mr. Bridges is a Communist, that Mr. Schmidt is a Communist, and that each knew the other was a Communist."

Now, is he to be confined to a denial of that statement? Is he to be permitted to say only, "No, it is not true that I am or that I ever have been a Communist"? No. The sum total of his life will show whether or not he is a Communist. We have seen that demonstrated on many occasions by the special prosecutor so far as his perspective is concerned. When Henry Schmidt was on the stand yesterday, he went into the life of Henry Schmidt: "Did you do this? Did you do that at a certain time? Did you know that the Communist Party at the time you said those things stood for certain things?" The man's life in the labor movement will show whether or not a man who is an organizer for the ILWU is a Communist or not. He has a very short portion of this recital left.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, the incidents related by Mr. Robertson with respect to police activities, as I see it, would [5001] not immediately tend to prove or disprove any issue in the case, but I shall not foreclose Mr. Robertson from completing his narrative.

The Witness: Thank you, sir; thank you.

The Court: You may proceed.

The Witness: Early in the morning—you don't have to ask me where I was—you don't forget these things—early in the morning they came into the cell and they picked me up again, and I was scared to death, because they told me they were going to kill me, and I was scared. Believe me, I was scared. I didn't know what they were going to do. But they drugged me out—and I mean that, because I couldn't hardly walk. I had to limp. They took me by the office and they took me up to a police car and they drove me over to where they had picked me up, where we had established our headquarters, our union offices. They took me into the place. They got my belongings, made me carry them out to my car, threw me in my car, made me drive, two sitting alongside me in the front seat and three in the back and started escorting me out of town. And they told me again, "Robertson, you are a smart guy. We've got our orders from up above. We have our orders from the industrial association of this city to get rid of you guys and we are going to get rid of you if we have to wipe you out. Now we are going to take you across the Mississippi River and we are going to turn you loose, and you keep going, Robertson, until you get out of [5002] Louisiana, because if you stop at any point in this state, when the sheriffs of these outlying parishes get hold of you, they will really show you how to work you over."

And they drove me out of town and they left me and told me to keep going. And I drove several miles—I don't know how far—until I came to a filling station and I stopped. And I asked that I be allowed to use the phone, and I went in and used the phone. I went in because the guy there helped me, and he was curious to know what had happened. And I didn't tell him. I just said, "May I use your phone?" And he let me us it. And I got in touch with our counsel, a Mr. Dowling in New Orleans, an attorney there. I told him where I was and what had happened, and he said, "Well, we have been looking for you now for a long time because there is no record—there is no police record of your having been arrested, and we will be out to get you as soon as we can." And eventually they did come out and they did get me and they took me into town, and I was hospitalized.

Q. Did you receive any permanent injury from that transaction?

A. Yes, I received a fractured spine. [5003]

Q. And you said a few moments ago that you were referred to as one of the Communist CIO. Was that a phrase or name that was applied to all ILWU workers?

A. That was applied to everyone at that time. I well remember John Brophy. He was the director of organization for the national CIO, a devout Catholic, and during this period of intense terror, he came down there, and the State Legislature passed a resolution condemning his presence, saying he was there fresh from Moscow, and the State legislators there said he should be thrown in the Mississippi River—Mr. John Brophy and all connected with him. Oh, I have been branded a Communist for so many years—so many years—so many years—so many years—but a lot of other people have, too.

Mr. MacInnis: May we take the recess?

The Court: We will take the morning recess, ladies and gentlemen. The same admonition not to discuss the case under any conditions nor form an opinion thereon.

(Recess.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): Mr. Robertson, in view of the very last remarks that you made at the time of the recess, I want to interrupt with these questions: Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party? A. I have not.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. Did you ever join the Communist Party?

A. I have not. [5004]

Q. Did you ever make any application to join the Communist Party? A. I have not.

Q. Did you ever pay dues to the Communist Party? A. I have not.

Q. Was the statement made at the outset of this case by one of the prosecutors that not only were you a Communist but that you knew Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt were also Communists a true statement or a false statement?

A. False statement.

Q. Now, to return to the narrative of the years of your activities with the ILWU, which you carried up to the point of your own injury in New Orleans, let me ask you this: Did the union attempt any action at law in order to put a stop to activity of that sort?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. Obviously we couldn't be bound by an action which may have occurred in the City of New Orleans.

The Court: Yes, I think so, Mr. MacInnis. The retaliation that may have been taken by his union on his behalf would not tend to affect any issue in this case.

Mr. MacInnis: I don't pretend to state that the union retaliated. The union was in no position to retaliate.

The Court: Well, or any action that the union might have taken in that matter. I will sustain the objection. [5005]

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. (By Mr. MacInnis): How long did you remain in New Orleans?

A. I remained there until the summer of 1939, I believe. I returned to the coast for our own convention—when I say "our own," I mean the ILWU convention of that year—and I returned again to the Gulf, to New Orleans, and I remained there for several months.

Q. And did you bring to any point of termination the work of organizing in that region?

A. Yes. We mobilized our forces as best we could, turned our organizational work over to local people, and I returned to the West Coast, to San Francisco.

Q. In other words, there was a time when the reign of terror stopped?

Mr. Donohue: I object to that question, if your Honor please. I think there is no justification for the suggestion in the question of a reign of terror, and I object to the question.

Mr. MacInnis: I will rephrase it.

Q. The activities of the industrialists of New Orleans, which you have narrated, did those activities come to a stop?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. There is no evidence that the activities that were suggested as having taken place by the New Orleans police department were the activities of the New Orleans industrialists.

Mr. MacInnis: He says they were. [5006]

Mr. Donohue: That doesn't make it so.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Mr. MacInnis: It makes it so so far as I am concerned.

Q. Did the activities concerning which you have given us the narrative stop or did they continue?

Mr. Donohue: I object, if your Honor please. If he wants to ask this witness whether he was assaulted or arrested again, of course I would have no objection; but to ask him whether certain activities which he has narrated as having been personal with himself continued, I think, is an improper question.

✓ The Court: Well, Mr. Robertson, you may continue. I assume that this narrative as to New Orleans will be concluded shortly, Mr. MacInnis.

Mr. MacInnis: I believe so.

A. I would say the industrialists of the South, which would include the industrialists of the New Orleans area, were not as far advanced as industrialists in other sections of the nation, and, based on my personal knowledge, their activities against unions did not cease. And that was demonstrated when the union itself went into court trying to secure injunction proceedings to stop some of the activities that were going on. The injunction was not granted. Federal Judge Borah—by the way, now deceased—heard that case. He did not grant court injunction, but did he say that if that type of activity carried on at that time by the police department of New Orleans continued, he would issue an injunction. And I would say in [5007] that respect it eased up a little bit. I was never arrested again in New Orleans, but sitting in the office of an employer in 1939—I was called there early one morning because the workers on the job had some dispute that they wanted to settle, and they called me in—we were sitting in the office of the employer, and suddenly four policemen appeared on the scene in the office, and they asked the employer, "Do you want us to get rid of these so-and-sos?" The employer said, "No." And they said, "Well, if you do, just let us know; we know how to handle them." He said, "No, everything is all right." And everything was all right for the simple reason that the workers on the job were standing by outside awaiting a settlement of the dispute at hand. When the police department left, we did settle the dispute to the satisfaction of both parties, and that incident was closed.

Q. Where did your work with the ILWU take you after you left New Orleans in 1939?

A. I returned to the West Coast in 1939 and worked with our various local organizations up and down the coast for a period of time, and then I was assigned to start organizational work in the Midwest and East, and I went East in early 1940, I believe, and I continued my organizational activities in various sections of the nation from 1940, from that point until I believe the summer of 1944. I concentrated primarily in the City of Chicago, Cleveland, the Twin Cities—that is, [5008] Minneapolis and St. Paul—Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Maryland; to a limited extent St. Louis, Missouri;

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Freeport, Illinois. These are all that come to mind at the moment—with major concentration in two industrial areas, being Chicago and Cleveland.

Q. Speaking of those areas in which there was major concentration so far as your work was concerned, what was the nature of that work and what happened there?

A. Well, the nature of my work then, as it is now, is organizational—is of an organizational nature. And spending a moment on detail—and I do so because I think it is important—when you move into an area where an organization has no established locals, you have to spend a lot of time in the preliminary work such as surveying the industrial section, finding out what plants would be best to concentrate on, and then go through the detailed procedure of working in and around those plants, using the techniques of an organizer in getting acquainted with individuals, finding out how they feel toward organization, developing an acquaintanceship, finding out how others feel, and by this laborious process begin to sow the seeds of establishing organization in a given unit or plant. These are the details, and all of my time has been spent in that direction for these many years.

And I might say in passing that the nature of my work is such that I have met with many people, primarily those people [5009] who are working in plants or organizations that we want to organize, and in selecting a force in each locality to help carry on this work, it is left up to my best judgment, and we—I did the best I could to pick out people that I thought would carry on our activities.

Now, I labor this point to make it known that in my day-to-day activities over a period of years I have had countless, numerous meetings, not one, not two, but meeting all day and far into the night, with diversified types or groups, depending entirely on the plant or the group of plants we were concerned with organizing. And this is important to know, because, for example, working in the Cleveland area, we were concerning ourselves with organizing the particular plant, Patterson Leach. That was a structural steel warehouse. They had been in the AFL special skill workers for some forty years. And these workers came to us—and I hope this clarifies the question of rating—they came to us and told us that they were interested in organization; they were particularly interested in the type of organization where the rank and file would have some say in their local activities. And I remember I spent considerable time with that group, first of all explaining that there is no magic power from the outside coming in and help them and do the job that they would have to do; that this group of workers would have to recognize that if they wanted to belong to the type of the union that would give them the democracy [5010] they were seeking, they would have to proceed and carry 99 per cent of the load. They said they were willing to do that and wanted immediately to sign up in our union; and I felt it would be wise policy to refuse them, telling them, "Get your group in the plant organized, get every individual worker into discussions, and let them know what you are trying to do, and let them know that if you want to change affiliation from that group to ours, what it means," and that they themselves would have to carry the brunt on this thing. And I recall we were three or four months in this process. There were some 160 workers in this plant, and we had 159 of them signed up and ready to make the move.

May I interrupt, counsel, by saying I am going into all of this detail on the one incident because it will cover many, and to give you the details of one will be the details of all, let us say, varying of course by degree, depending on the circumstances.

But this group of workers had proven not by what they had said but by their actions that they were ready to develop the type of organization that we have been developing—left-wing, rank and file control—that is what it means—and they made the move. They became members of our union. And suddenly there developed a situation as far as fury is concerned comparable to New Orleans, because this group of workers working on the job one day—and I can't mention the specific day of the [5011] week or I can't mention the specific day of the month, but it was in the early '40s—they were on the job working; they had made the move, the transition move to get into the ILWU. There was something peculiar going on that morning, though, because for the first time in the experience of the workers on that job mounted policemen were circulating an area of eight or ten square blocks around that particular warehouse, and at noon, during the noon hour, suddenly some 300 people descended on that plant, and policemen, both mounted and foot, were around. And these men were from the AFL, and they started in on this group of 160 workers, and they beat them mercilessly. Twenty-eight of them were hospitalized, three of them were on the verge of death because of the beating that they took during that period. The policemen were there; they saw what was going on. Not one of the 300 people that descended on that plant was arrested. Not one. Not one arrest was made. Not one. [5012]

This employer had secured support from the A. F. of L. to the extent that they were willing to close down other structural steel warehouses and bring workers in to take the jobs of the workers who had organized into our union if it became necessary to break the organization of this group. I cite this detail in passing because it is typical of many others. And let me say when I tell you of my experiences with the forces of law and order as they deal with the police departments, don't think I am giving blanket condemnation of the forces of the law and order. I am telling you of my experiences in these particular situations where these forces were used, and I can only relate them as I live them and as I know them. And as a sidelight, when a group of workers were on strike, I have yet to see one instance where a policeman will arrest an employer for violation of some law during that strike. I have yet to see that. But I want to say again emphatically I am not, in a blanket sort of way, condemning our forces of law and order. I am saying this, that the industrialists of this nation—and I say a large percentage of them—have down through the years learned that organization is here, organization of working people is here, and it is better to go along and deal with them rather than carry on this type of activity.

And I wanted to spend a moment in explanation there because I well recall, as I recite this incident, earlier experiences, the experiences that happened when I was growing up in the labor [5013] movement here in San Francisco. We had a picketing ordinance on the books here, and that picketing ordinance was used by the forces of law and order to carry on certain activities against the labor movement when we were trying to develop organization, and I well recall that the entire labor movement in this city rose up in arms, and with their united strength of labor they were successful in nullifying that ordinance.

Now, to continue with the Patterson Leatch story in Cleveland——

Mr. Donohue: May I ask, if Your Honor please, what possible bearing the Patterson Leatch story in Cleveland could have on the issues before this Court?

Mr. MacInnis: I think, Your Honor, we are at the last phase of the years that bring us up to the matters at hand. It is a very short portion.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

The Court: You may proceed.

The Witness: Thank you, sir. There developed in the city of Cleveland, because of the organization activities of the CIO, of which we were a part, a certain type of struggle, and this Patterson Leatch is one of the incidents that resulted from this struggle. And I can well recall that the CIO Council of the City of Cleveland—now, that is a City Council which represents all the local organizations affiliated to the various CIO national unions in a given area—had audience with the mayor, Mayor Lautsche, and discussed this problem and told him of the [5014] seriousness of the thing, and what would ensue if some steps were not taken. Steps were taken by the city of Cleveland to eliminate this type of struggle, but it was after the incident I have related. But to continue as to my personal involvement, during this period of intensive organizational activity, we had concluded a meeting in the CIO Building which was downtown one evening and I started home. This was after the Patterson Leatch incident. I had started home, and I will never forget the night for two reasons: first, it was raining cats and dogs. It was really raining. And secondly, because of an incident which occurred when I reached my home there. I drove up the driveway into the garage, and as I got out of my car and left the garage, I started to make a dash for the house. Two men suddenly jumped out and they conked me over the head with a long piece of pipe. I did the only thing I guess a human being will do. I jumped straight in the air and I let out a war whoop like a wild Indian. I guess it frightened them because they ran away. But Robertson had received a head wound.

I finally got into my house because people living in that building came down and helped me up, and finally the police arrived. I told them my story. They took me over to the hospital. They patched up my head. Later they brought me out a whole raft of pictures asking me to identify someone who might have committed this assault, when I couldn't even see them because it was dark and because it was raining. [5015]

This little incident is again an illustration of the type of struggle that went on and what we were up against when we were trying to develop the organization of the ILWU. I tell of my own experiences because they are closer to me, but there were others. There were workers involved that took far more punishment than I did in these situations, believe me, because they were the ones that suffered the full brunt of the attack. And carrying on our organizational activities during that period, they were broad and extensive. They extended into the East Coast and Gulf, and being the director of our national organizing drive, we had many people at that time working for us. And you might have heard of a person named Panto. I believe that name has been mentioned. He among others was helping us extend organization to the Atlantic seaboard and into the Gulf, and just as Carey in New Orleans, they disappeared. Cary was murdered. These people disappeared. We never found out what happened to them, didn't know what happened. They were helping in developing this organizational program I speak of, and this is typical of the type of activity I have carried on down through the years. I am an organizer; that is the nature of my work. I have met countless numbers of times with countless numbers of people. At all times I have to do that, morning, noon and night. Wherever workers are available I meet with them, regardless of who they might happen to be, and if they are working in a plant or in an industry that we [5016] are interested in organizing, we organize them, and we do not look down their throat to see what color their tonsils are or what church they go to or what other beliefs they have. All we want to know is that they are a worker on a job, that they are interested in organization, and that they will help to establish an organized movement of workers.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. What was the termination of your work in Cleveland and Chicago?

A. We have established locals in those areas you speak of now. I returned to the West Coast, as I say, in the summer of 1944 and my headquarters have been here ever since. But the nature of my work is such that I have to make tours of the nation. Sometimes I have to go to the Territory of Hawaii and occasionally I have to go up into Canada. That is the nature of my work, and directing our organization activities. The two phases: first, the organizing of the unorganized, and second, the servicing of our newly organized groups, and generally speaking, that is the nature of my work as it was and as it is today.

Q. Coming to the one incident in the record of evidence in this case in which your name is mentioned, a man named George Wilson, without telling us the time or the place or the persons present, said that he had attended a Communist meeting with you. Is that true or false? A. False. [5017]

Q. Did you ever attend any Communist Party meeting with a man named George Wilson?

A. I have never attended any Communist Party meetings with anyone.

Q. Did you know the man called George Wilson?

A. I knew George Wilson—not well. George Wilson came into the labor movement during that period of years I was away from the West Coast, and I have met him intermittently when I would have occasion to come in to San Francisco or when I would be attending a national convention of the CIO—and I have had the extreme good fortune of being a delegate to all the national CIO conventions with the exception of the 1939 convention held in San Francisco—and I would meet him rather casually, and it is in this manner that I have known George Wilson.

Q. Does any incident come to your mind which might serve as a motive for the testimony in which George Wilson gave your name?

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

A. Well, I am an organizer. I work hard. I am called a slave-driver by those who work with me, and knowing that George Wilson was head of our Bridges Defense Committee for many years, I have been critical of George Wilson because of his lack of activity in his position as head of the committee in not helping us develop and extend the support in this particular case. And I have been critical of George Wilson. I have been very critical. I think he is lazy. I think he is one of those types of persons in the labor movement that like the title that goes [5018] with the job and all the glory that might ensue but does not like to do the work, and that I can't tolerate.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the removal of George Wilson as head of the Bridges Defense Committee when he left?

A. No, I had nothing to do directly with the removal of George Wilson. I think in 1945, after the Supreme Court decision came down, the Bridges Defense Committee was disbanded and that automatically eliminated the job of secretary of the Bridges Defense Committee. That is the best I can remember.

Q. But you had been openly critical of him for a period of time?

A. I have been critical of George for a long time.

Mr. MacInnis: Shall we take the noon recess?

The Court: Yes, we will take the noon recess, ladies and gentlemen, and resume at two o'clock this afternoon. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 2:00 p.m. this date.) [5019]

Afternoon Session, Friday, February 3, 1950

The Clerk: The witness on the stand is James R. Robertson, heretofore sworn.

JAMES R. ROBERTSON

resumed.

Direct Examination

By Mr. MacInnis:

Q. Mr. Robertson, after you came back to San Francisco, as you testified, in the year 1944, did your work ever carry you to the Territory of Hawaii?

A. Yes, I believe I made my first trip to the Territory in 1946. We had been conducting an intensive organizational campaign on in the Territory for the past two and a half years, I believe, and my services were required there in my capacity as director of organizational activities.

Q. And you were there about how long?

A. Oh, at that time I think I was there for a couple of months.

Q. And did you do about the same kind of work in Hawaii as you did in the Gulf region and in the Cleveland and Chicago territory?

A. Yes. That nature of my work is such that I have to visit all of our various units. And we had many at that time in the Territory. We had just concluded a successful organizing campaign in three of the basic industrial groups there. And I [5020] refer primarily to the waterfront group—that would include the longshoremen and the auxiliary groups that work with them. That would include the workers in the sugar industry, and the workers in the pineapple industry. And I refer now both to workers in the mill and in the field in regards to sugar, and in the cannery and in the field in regards to pineapple. And it was my duty, of course, as an organizer, to visit all of our various units throughout the Territory, and we had established organizations on the six principal islands, I believe, in the Territory.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. Now, in any of the matters that you have told us about, were your efforts inspired or directed by the Communist Party?

A. Not at all. My efforts were inspired and directed by the program of our organization, and particularly that phase of our organization's program which dealt with organizing the unorganized workers.

Q. Now, in 1934 at the time of the strike or at the time preceding the strike, what were the wages current in the warehouse where you worked?

A. I was getting 37½ cents an hour.

Q. What is the wage prevailing for that job today?

A. The basic wage in the warehouse industry today, as a result of the last contract, is $1.47½. We have rates above that, but that is the basic wage which is paid in the warehousing industry now throughout the San Francisco Bay area. [5021]

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. Immediately preceding the time when you went down to the Gulf States and engaged in the organization work that you have told us about, what was the basic wage in that territory?

A. The basic wage of the warehousemen and those workers that would be directly connected with that phase of work ranged anywhere from 18 to a tops of 25 cents an hour. And that is for each hour worked. You remember in those days—well, that applied to San Francisco as well as New Orleans in those days—you were paid for the number of hours you worked per day. For example, if a group of workers would show up to unload a string of boxcars on a siding somewhere first they might have to wait around until nine o'clock in the morning until the cars are spotted and then they are ready to go to work, and they would unload them, say, in three hours; they would get paid for that three hours' work. And if there was a break, if it took a few more hours to get another string in for them, they would have to stand by and they would not be paid for those hours in between, and if they happened to get eight hours additional that day, then they would only be paid for the hours they worked. And of course at that time premium pay, commonly referred to as overtime—or more specifiically as it applies to our union, time and a half—was unknown in those days. I can recall in my own case; I was in the grocery industry, and I was getting 37½ cents an hour just for those hours I worked, and on many occasions we will have to go to work early in the morning. [5022] That is when the fresh produce is assembled and loaded onto the trucks for delivery to the retail outlets, and I would work several hours usually in the morning, and maybe they would tell me to stand by and there will be an hour's work later in the day, and naturally I would stand by to get paid, and stand by for the work, but I would only be paid for the hours actually worked. And finally when I developed to the point that I had, let us say, a steady job in the dry warehouse that I referred to earlier, I would work steadily; I would work eight hours, and if I had occasion, I would work overtime. If I would work beyond the eight hours, we wouldn't get premium pay or time and a half, we would get straight time regardless of the number of hours worked. And I know of countless numbers of instances where workers would get 60 or 70 or 80 hours a week at the straight time rate of pay.

Q. So that there were other improvements additional to any hourly wage rate increase?

A. Counsel, that is the purpose of the trade union.

Q. Yes.

A. To—primarily, the purpose of a trade union is to concern itself with bettering the wages, the hours of work and the general working conditions. And as a result of developing a simple program of that kind, we have been able to secure for our membership such things as vacation with pay. That varies, but all of our people get at least one week and a majority of [5023] them two weeks' vacation each year, depending on their length of service in a plant. We all have sick leave. We all have job security. And I think that is the most basic thing that we have gained in our movement, is job security, because that means that the individual is secure in his job; it means that the employer cannot discharge a person because he might not like the way he parts his hair or he might have some other little grievance against him, or as is the case in many institutions in the past in my experience, he might have a relative of his that he would want to put on the job, and he would bring him down, and he would indiscriminately let someone who was working on the job go and place his friend. These are little examples of conditions before and conditions after. All of this has been eliminated, of course, and it has been eliminated in the sense that should a grievance develop, over any of these procedural things that I have raised, we have machinery within our union contract calling for a committee within the plant to meet with a committee of the employers and there they sit down and they work out a solution to those problems, but not at the expense of the individual employee. And I might say that today there is a feeling of mutual respect each for the other. And by that I mean a feeling of mutual respect: The employer respects our organization, and we respect the employer. And when a condition such as that exists, it is [5024] easy to work out all of your differences, because my experiences as a worker and my experiences as an official of a labor organization have proven to me beyond any question of a doubt that working people are not unreasonable people; that they can settle their differences with their employer or employers if they have the proper type of machinery set up to do it, where they are not always constantly involved in struggle on the part of the workers to get this type of recognition. So I would sum up by saying the greatest gains we have made—and I speak in this broad sense now, but I refer particularly to the organization I am a member of, the ILWU—the greatest gains we have made down through the years: One is recognition, that is, the right of our union to live, where employers are not always attacking us; they have recognized the right of our union to live, and from that basic right comes all of the other things I have talked about, and primarily in my mind the most important is security—security of the individual on the job, knowing that his job rights are protected, and that if this individual is guilty of something, we have a trial, if I may call it that—trial in the sense that the union has machinery set up where we meet with the employer and we reason it out; if we find the individual guilty, he is meted out a sentence, if that is the proper way of expressing it. He is penalized if we find him guilty. But it isn't done indiscriminately. The union has as much voice in determining this issue as the employer. And that is the important thing. [5025]

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

And finally, this has resulted in a feeling of security, a feeling that working people have the human dignity that they are entitled to. And, oh, how that was needed in the Territory, in my experiences there in the few years since I have been going over there. Now they have self-respect. They can hold their heads up and they can live like human beings. And they have gotten away from those terrible days that they lived in the past. And I have had any number of individuals, particularly in the Territory, come to me and tell me the conditions that they had to live under there. And you talk about low wages. When I made my first tour of the Islands——

Mr. Donohue: If your Honor please, I do not think that anything that may have had something to do with the conditions in the Territory of Hawaii is at all pertinent to the question of whether or not this defendant on the 17th day of September, 1945, conspired with Harry Bridges and Henry Schmidt to violate the naturalization laws. While I appreciate he is a very voluble speaker, I think at the same time there should be a limit set within which Mr. Robertson may be permitted to express his experiences. I think we ought to come down to the issue in this case.

Mr. MacInnis: Of course, if the only thing that the special prosecutor understands from what has been said is that Mr. Robertson is a voluble speaker,

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)
I could not undertake to educate him. But the special prosecutor concludes that every [5026] activity of these men has been a Communist activity. I think that we ought to put before the Court and jury the sum total of everything that they have done, to point out to the Court and jury the difference between militant trade unionism on the one hand, and what is alleged to be Communism on the other. I just have one or two short questions on the same subject, your Honor.

The Witness: May I continue, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: The situation in the Territory of Hawaii, that is a volume in itself, but to deal with the two or three points I was making, when I made my first tour of the Islands I found workers getting 18 cents an hour, workers who had been pinned down to plantations, pinned down because of the war situation, and they were not allowed to leave those plantations.

Now, bear in mind these people were of Japanese ancestry. They were from the Philippine Islands. They were from the West Indies. They were from China. They were from all over the world, a conglomeration, and believe you me, it is just that. But they happen to be the working force that we found in the Islands. And the conditions under which they worked, the wages they received, their being tied down to the job, all of this combined made them recognize the need for drawing themselves together and trying to better themselves just a little, and they did just that. When I mentioned they were getting 18 [5027] cents, 20, 25 cents an hour, these were top wages. I think the top wage in the Territory in the sugar industry—and I speak of field workers, the guy that cuts that stalk of cane, sends it in to the mill, and it comes to us in the form of sugar—that guy was getting the tops of 31 cents an hour, and he was pinned to that job. He couldn't leave that job and go into the metropolitan area, and it is confined primarily to the city of Honolulu. He had to stay there. Yet countless thousands of workers were brought into that Territory and they were paid the prevailing wage rates established on the mainland by the various crafts, and that was much, much greater, much, much greater than the wage rates these workers received.

Now, that deals with the wage question. But something else that amazed me. I would go into a plantation, a sugar plantation. You would have your mill and you would have all of the surrounding area where the sugar cane is grown, and you would have your center of activity around the mill, and you would have your various types of workers. You would have your Americans of Japanese origin, you would have your Americans originating from the Philippine Islands, and you would have Americans originating from the south of Europe. And I mention this in detail because not only was the wage structure controlled, but their very existence was controlled. These people lived in various sections of the community in their plantation, narrow as it might be, based on what their nationality happened to be. The [5028] Americans of Filipino extraction were given the worst jobs. They did the manual, dirty labor. The Americans of Japanese extraction were given the jobs on the next rung of the ladder, let's say the semi-skilled work, both in the mill and in the field, and the Americans from the south of Europe were given the highest skilled jobs, and they were drawn for the second, third and fourth level of supervisory positions.

But this is the control the employers had, not only of the economy of the Territory as it applied to the working people, but their social existence as well.

And we preached a simple doctrine, call it whatever you may: "Let's all get together. Let's sit down and review what our problem happens to be." Then all of us working together, we can eliminate all of the various forms of discrimination that has been going on, both economic and as far as their social life is concerned.

I must confess to you that we did that. Today we have 25,000 workers organized in the Territory of Hawaii. Their basic wage rate in the basic production groups happens to be 80 cents an hour. Of course, that is not as much as I hope it is in the future, but it is a substantial, a substantial increase from what they were getting, three, four and five short years ago. Now, call this what you may. To me it is ILWU gospel. It is ILWU building a labor movement, and that is all I know, and that is what

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

I believe in, and that is what I am [5029] proud of.

Q. There is just one matter left unfinished. You said when you went down into the Gulf territory that the workers of whom you spoke were getting 18½ to 20 cents an hour. A. Yes.

Q. What do they get now?

A. The base rate in the cotton compress industry, I believe, is a dollar an hour. I would use that figure. I might be off a cent or two one way or the other, because it varies. There are so many qualifications there. I would say the base rate is one dollar an hour.

Q. At the time that you were indicted, Mr. Robertson, were you engaged in the prosecution of any strike? A. Oh, yes.

Q. What strike was that?

A. The international, through the machinery of our organization, and in discussions with the local officers and the membership of Local 6, had worked out a program which called for assigning me as one of the international officers to work with Local 6 in developing a program of mobilizing the membership to secure the demands that were then being discussed and had been presented to the employers, dealing with a contract opening in the contract that existed between Local 6, which is the warehouse local of the ILWU in San Francisco, and its environs, and the employers as represented through the employers' association. [5030] I was assigned by the international as one of the international officers to devote not my full time but a majority of my time to working with Local 6 in devolping a program of carrying us through this pre-negotiation, negotiation period to secure our contract.

Q. What salary do you make now, Mr. Robertson?

A. I make $125 per week, and I am allowed, I think it is, $20 a week expenses.

Q. That expense account is a fixed amount?

A. That is fixed by each of our conventions.

Q. It cannot be increased?

A. It cannot be increased at any time other than a national ILWU convention. The salary of the officers of our union—and we only have four titled officers—it is always fixed at convention, and convention means every two years now—we used to hold them once a year. Every two years we call together delegates from all our various locals throughout the nation, and there we work out a policy and a program to guide and direct us for the ensuing period, and among many, many other things, questions such as what are we going to pay the officers comes up, and fortunately they gave us a ten dollar a week raise at the last convention.

Q. To proceed to the matters involving your appearance as a witness in the citizenship application of Harry Bridges, after you met Harry Bridges, at a time which you say was probably in [5031] 1937, how well did you get to know him?

A. Oh, I know Harry as well as anyone can know a person when you work with him, not day to day, on the basis of personal contact, but when you work with him as closely as I have worked with Harry down through the years since I became a national officer. I became a national officer of the ILWU in 1939, I believe. That is when we reorganized our structure and it was at that time that I was elected first vice president of the international and also head of the organizational activities, and I have held that position ever since. And the nature of my work brings me in contact with Harry sometimes every day in the week, and as I have told you, when I am away on trips I do not see him for some periods of time, but I know him probably as well as any human being can know another under the set of circumstances.

Q. On one day in August, 1945, did you go over to the City Hall at a time when Harry Bridges was filing a petition for citizenship? A. Yes.

Q. What was the circumstance under which you happened to go along with the others on that day?

A. I was on my vacation at the time and I drifted into the office. I was going to the courthouse that day. Whether I went to the office or not—because I knew—Now I can't fix the dates. I can only tell you this story as it develops in my [5032] mind, and based on everything that has come out here, I am sure it is the 8th of August that Harry went down to the courthouse and we all went down. I was among them. I was standing around like everybody else, and there were many, many people there—in fact, people in the building up on the second floor, down in the basement—they all came up. I guess they all knew what was going on. So there were crowds around, and I was standing in the room. And for the life of me I couldn't at this moment tell you just where the room was or any details such as that, but I was there.

Suddenly, and I do not know what was happening inside because I wasn't there—suddenly Dick Gladstein stuck his head out of the door and he looked over at the crowd and he saw me and he said, "Come on, Robertson. You will be a witness for Bridges," or words to that effect. And of course, I was proud of standing up for Bridges and being a character witness for him. I had no idea that this was going to happen, because some time before I had talked to Harry—I think we met at the Bridges Defense Committee office. You see, we were at 604 Montgomery at that time, and our general offices were upstairs, and we had the Defense Committee office in a room downstairs, and I went in there one morning and Harry was in there. This was weeks before the August period and Harry was there, and a general conversation—Harry was there, others were there. Frankly, I can't remember the others that were there. I know [5033] Harry was there and I was there and a few others, and this question of who was going to be a witness or who was going to be Harry's character witnesses came up, and someone said, "Well, in view of the Supreme Court decision it would be easy to get anyone you would want to be a witness."

And Harry, I can remember very emphatically—

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Harry said, "No, I want two people from the labor movement to represent me. As far as I am concerned, it could be Paul Schnurr." Paul Schnurr, you know, at that time was president of the CIO City Council and Paul, of course—Paul Schnurr has a long record of labor activities. He has been in the labor movement long before I ever knew anything about it, and he has a wonderful record. Harry indicated that that was one of the persons he wanted, and then he said, "And Henry Schmidt." Henry happened to be secretary of the council, and in that position with Paul they represented not only the ILWU, but they represented all of the CIO unions that happened to be affiliated to the Council at that time. And he indicated very strongly that he wanted two people from the labor movement to represent him. They were going to be his character witnesses. So I took it for granted it is going to be Henry and it is going to be Paul. They are going to be his character witnesses.

Q. At any time previous to the moment when you found yourself summoned into the room at the City Hall, had anybody on behalf of Bridges or any other person asked you to do anything in respect [5034] to Bridges' application for citizenship?

A. No. As I told you, the only conversation I had with Harry on this subject matter dealt with the story I have just told. No one has ever asked me anything in that regard.

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement with any person prior to that August date as to what was to be said or as to what was not to be said?

A. Oh, certainly not, no discussion even.

Q. When you went into the room of the immigration examiner on that morning in August of 1945, what took place?

A. Well, I was called in and, I guess, I sat down. I don't recall all the details. And I was presented as one of those who was going to be a charac witness for Mr. Bridges, and I was asked the routine questions: my name, my place of origin, am I a citizen of the United States. "How long have you known Mr. Bridges?" And I told how long I had known him. I think I said ten years or so. I don't recall exactly what answer I gave. And "Is he a man of good moral character?" I said, "Yes, he is." "And is he a man you would recommend for citizenship?" And I said, "I most certainly would." That is the gist of what happened there.

Q. After that time did you make any arrangement or were you told by Harry Bridges or by any other person that you would be expected to accompany him to a session of the Superior Court? [5035]

A. Well, knowing that I had been a witness in the earlier proceedings, it followed in my mind when it is finalized, I am going to have to appear with him. Now, I can't recall receiving any letter or anything like that. I just knew that the 17th of September had been set as the date and I knew I was going to be there. That is the best I can remember on that.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. In other words, some time between August 8th and September 17 information came to you that September 17th was going to be the day?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, at any time between those two dates did Harry Bridges or any other person tell you what to say at the hearing? A. Oh, definitely not.

Q. At any time between those two dates did Harry Bridges or any other person tell you what not to say? A. Oh, definitely not.

Q. Did you have any agreement or understanding with Bridges or with any other person about what you should say or what you should not say?

A. I had no discussion with anyone on this matter, no discussion at all.

Q. When you appeared before the Superior Court in the person of His Honor Judge Foley on September 17, 1945, does this transcript already read to the Court and jury reflect what was said by you in answer to questions. And I will read [5036] them again:

"Q. The witnesses are both citizens of the United States?

"Mr. Robertson Yes.

"Q. You each have known the petitioner for the last five years or longer?

"Mr. Robertson: Yes.

"Q. And you know him to be a resident of this county at this time?

"Mr. Robertson: Yes.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

"Q. Do you each vouch for his loyalty to the United States?

"Mr. Robertson: Yes.

"Q. Do you recommend him as a person of good moral character?

"Mr. Robertson: Yes.

"Q. Do you recommend him to this court for citizenship?

"Mr. Robertson: I do.

"Mr. Garner: These witnesses are satisfactory, your Honor."

Is that your memory of what took place at that juncture?

A. Yes, but if I recall correctly, I think there is a point where they said they could be excused, because I know I walked out from wherever we were, the room we were in—I walked out of the room and went down the hallway for something. That I recall, leaving the immediate vicinity of where I was at that [5037] time and walking down the hallway.

Q. When you made those answers in response to to the questions of the immigration representative, did you truly believe that Harry Bridges was a person qualified and fit to become a citizen of the United States?

A. Without any question whatever.

Q. Do you still believe the same thing?

A. Yes.

Q. When you made those answers to those questions, did you believe that Harry Bridges was in truth devoted to the principles of our Constitution?

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have the same belief today?

A. Yes.

Q. What were your reasons, Mr. Robertson, and what were the bases for the answers which you gave and the position that you took in being a sponsoring witness for Harry Bridges at that time?

A. Well, I lived with the guy. I knew him. I knew what he stood for. I had been guided more or less by the things he had fought for and stood for. I admired him. And he helped to build this movement of ours and made one of the greatest contributions that could have been made, in my opinion. I respect him highly as well as just liking him as a person. I think he has made a real contribution to the labor movement. I know [5038] him and I know what that guy has been through in the last 15 years. I know how he stood up and fought when others might have turned and run, and foremost—foremost in all these battles that have ensued over the years is the fact that he has fought for the type of union that we have had. Now, these are some of the basic reasons that I feel that Harry Bridges is entitled to be a citizen of this country and he is just as good a citizen as you will ever find.

Q. Did you base the answers that you gave at that time and the position that you took as a sponsoring witness for Harry Bridges in his citizenship proceeding entirely upon your own observations of him or did you base them upon any other matters as well?

A. Counsel, one does not live in a vacuum. One sees what goes on around him, and down through the years I have heard the question of Harry Bridges raised. [5039]

Beginning away back in 1938 when I attended the first CIO convention, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, down through the years, the question of Harry Bridges has been raised at gatherings such as these, and the labor movement—the labor movement as represented in those official bodies have always given support to Harry Bridges. And I have talked to many individuals, countless individuals within the labor movement and without on this case down through the years, and they all see this case directed to destroying the militant union movement and using Harry Bridges as the figure to shoot at to do it, and in so doing thinking—thinking they can destroy the movement. Now, that is one facet of my thinking; having met with people in the labor movement, I have read various materials on this subject matter. There have been countless pamphlets out; there have been countless statements made. I recall now the Lafollette Committee report. The Lafollette Committee, I think, is a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Labor and Education, and I read a report——

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute, please, Mr. Robertson. I think if we are going back as far back as the Lafollette Committee report, if your Honor please, we will never finish. I think this defendant is entitled to make as broad and as complete a statement as he wishes of what he has himself done or what he has said. But to permit hearsay testimony by this witness of the investigation or conclusion of the Lafollette [5040] Senate Committee or any other committee is certainly not pertinent, not relevant to the issue, and I object to it.

Mr. MacInnis: A few minutes ago the special prosecutor asked us when we would come to the question of whether or not the defendant Robertson conspired with the other defendants to evade the laws of the United States. He is charged with engaging in a fraudulent conspiracy. His intentions, his motives, the good faith of what he did, his reasons, the soundness of them, the honesty of them, are all in issue in this case. He is entitled to tell the Court and jury what his reasons were for making the answers he made and for taking the position that he took. Now, that is exactly what he is doing, and in stating to the Court and jury what the bases for his answers were, for what he thought about Harry Bridges, for what he says he knows about Harry Bridges.

The Court: As I recall, yesterday reference was made to this same committee in the testimony of Mr. Schmidt.

Mr. MacInnis: Yes.

The Court: The question was presented to Mr. Schmidt, and my recollection further is that we did not launch into the internal operations of the Lafollette Committee. I think Mr. Schmidt made some reference to it.

Mr. Donohue: Yes, because Mr. Schmidt said he was engaged by the committee to do a particular act, and we made no objection to it. [5041]

The Court: I will have to sustain the objection, counsel.

Mr. MacInnis: To what?

The Court: I sustained the objection.

Mr. MacInnis: To what?

The Court: To the question presented with respect to the operations of the Lafollette Committee.

Mr. MacInnis: There wasn't any question asked about that.

The Court: I understood you were launching into that phase.

Mr. MacInnis: What question does your Honor have in mind?

Mr. Donohue: The witness discussed in answer to the last question asked of him by Mr. MacInnis what had been the attitude of the Lafollette Committee.

The Court: Would you read the last question?

The Reporter: I haven't the last question, but the last part of the answer was, "I recall now the Lafollette Committee report. The Lafollette Committee, I think, is a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Labor and Education, and I read a report"——

The Court: All right.

Mr. MacInnis: You see, in explanation of what has taken place now, the objection of the prosecutor isn't really an objection to the question, because the question was just the blanket question, "What were your reasons for stating what you did?" But what he says now is that Mr. Robertson may not [5042] utter the words "Lafollette Committee report"; that if he says, "I depended upon that" he objects to it, he can't say that, says the prosecutor. Now, I say——

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

The Court: Would you reframe the question?

Mr. MacInnis: I say that the question was entirely consistent——

The Court: Would you mind reframing the question. Perhaps I can rule on it then.

Q. (By Mr. McInnis): Mr. Robertson, tell the Court and jury what the bases were, in addition to your own observations and knowledge of Harry Bridges, for the answers you gave concerning him at the citizenship hearing.

A. Well, as I started to say, discussions with others, actions taken by organizations, studying of the transcript of the various trials, particularly the Landis trial and the Sears trial, and all of the stages from the Sears trial up to the Supreme Court decision—all of these things had a bearing in making up my decision on this matter. And I have read them: I have read the statement of Philip Murray, how he dealt with this situation. I have read the statement of others connected with the CIO, and particularly with reference to how we can use this type of an instrument to move in on the labor movement and how we must come to the assistance of individuals who are being persecuted in this manner. Of course, I read the Lafollette Committee report. That report was several [5043] years in being—in investigating and being developed, and it came out in 1943. And years after many of these things has happened, that report brought out very clearly why the employers and why other forces were interested in pressing the case against Harry Bridges; the vicious attacks in the newspapers against him; the vicious methods used to undermine our union from forces within, using all of the various devices that employers had at their command in those days. This was all brought out in this report, and surely that had some bearing. Why? Because I had lived those experiences here in San Francisco in the early years and I had some personal knowledge of what was going on. And finally, a decision of the U. S. Supreme Court came out. I studied that decision. I studied the majority decision and I studied the concurring decision, and I made up my mind then and there that President Bridges was not, had never been, and was never affiliated with the Communist Party; and the Supreme Court of the United States is something that I think speaks with authority.

Q. I will hand you, if I may, Defendants' Exhibit B for identification, which is the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the matter involving Harry Bridges, and I will ask you to tell us whether or not this is the decision you say you read, or a copy of it.

A. Mr. Justice Douglas—yes, yes, yes. Yes, it sure means that to me, and this last paragraph sure spells it out very, [5044] very clearly.

Mr. Donohue: Just a minute, Mr. Robertson. I object, if your Honor please, to the witness reading from any portion of the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States. Of course, Mr. MacInnis, knowing that this document has been ruled out consistently, now apparently feels that he can get it in by having this witness say that his decision to testify as a witness for Harry Bridges came to him because he had read the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. I say, if your Honor please, that this decision is purely hearsay as far as this witness is concerned; even if it were not hearsay, and even if the only reason why he appeared as a witness for Harry Bridges was a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, that wouldn't justify it being read, nor would that justify him standing as he did for Harry Bridges in the face of the allegations in this indictment.

Mr. MacInnis: Well, now, the special prosecutor, if I may say so, offers the astounding statement—astounding statement—that accepting as true the statement of Mr. Robertson that he relied upon this decision and its contents, accepting that as true, he still would not have been justified in relying upon the Supreme Court of the United States. I don't know what to say.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I ruled on the matter late yesterday afternoon in association with the testimony of Mr. [5045] Schmidt.

Mr. MacInnis: I appreciate that.

The Court: I again rule. You are now making your reoffer of the document. You have reoffered the matter for the record, and I again sustain the objection for the reasons therein assigned.

Mr. MacInnis: No further questions.

Pardon me. We again offer the document into evidence as Defendants' Exhibit B in evidence.

The Court: And the objection is sustained as heretofore interposed.

Mr. MacInnis: That is all.

Mr. Donohue: Shall we take the recess at this time, your Honor?

The Court: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, we will take the afternoon recess. The same admonition to you not to discuss the case under any conditions.

(Recess.) [5046]

(The following proceedings were had in chambers out of the presence of the jury:)

The Clerk: I wish to call to your attention the fact that there has just been filed in the office of the Clerk a motion by Mr. MacInnis, which I might ask Mr. Donohue to read. He is more familiar with legal phraseology than I am.

Mr. Donohue: The pleading caption is "Motion," bearing the following language:

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

"Certificate of counsel.

"I, James Martin MacInnis, hereby certify that the attached affidavit, the same being in support of a motion to disqualify United States Judge George B. Harris upon the matters and things therein stated, is filed in good faith.

"Dated February 3rd, 1950.

"/s/ JAMES MARTIN MacINNIS."

Mr. Hallinan: That has nothing to do with this case; that has only to do with the contempt proceeding. Why is the prosecution interested in it?

Mr. Donohue: Attached to which there is a document captioned "Affidavit and Statement of Disqualification of United States Judge George B. Harris."

"James Martin MacInnis, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

"I am an attorney at law practicing in all the courts [5047] of the State of California and in the District Courts of the United States and I am an attorney for certain defendants in the above-captioned cause. Because of matters and things arising in the course of said trial and discussions and controversies between affiant and Hon. George B. Harris, Judge of said Court, and because of affiant's position as such attorney for said defendants, there has grown up between affiant and said Judge a great ill will and hostility; that said Judge has manifested and shown said ill will and hostility on numerous occasions throughout said trial by his conduct and demeanor toward affiant and his statements addressed to him and said Judge has many times in the court in the presence of numerous persons publicly insulted affiant and criticized and threatened him and has displayed toward affiant a growing hostility and ill will.

"By reason of the foregoing and certain other matters occurring before the inception of said trial, the said Judge bears toward affiant a strong feeling of malice, hostility and ill will and also bears toward affiant personal hatred, prejudice and bias."

Signed, "James Martin MacInnis," and subscribed and sworn to on this 3rd day of February, 1950.

Mr. Hallinan: I don't see how that concerns you at all. Why are you taking a part in that? What are you taking an [5048] interest in it for? If Mr. MacInnis doesn't want to have the remainder of the contempt proceeding tried by Judge Harris, why is that any of your business?

Mr. Donohue: There wasn't anything in that, Mr. Hallinan, that says it only related to the contempt proceeding.

Mr. Hallinan: Of course it has nothing to do with this case at all.

Mr. Donohue: It bears the number of this case.

The Court: Perhaps unwittingly, Mr. Donohue, I think I suggested that it be read.

Mr. Hallinan: It has nothing to do with the trial at all.

The Court: No reflection on either——

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Mr. Hallinan: It has only to do with the contempt proceeding.

The Court: Mr. MacInnis, I stand on the record in this trial and my conduct in the trial toward you. I regard the affidavit as insufficient as a matter of law.

I referred to a number of cases earlier in the transcript during the time that Mr. Hallinan's matter came on, and I now reaffirm the doctrine of those cases in connection with this affidavit. I therefore deny the motion.

Mr. Hallinan: Has the document been filed?

The Court: Yes, it appears to be filed.

Mr. Hallinan: So he put it in the record, Judge; that is the proper thing to do. [5049]

The Court: Mr. Hallinan, I say to you, and I say to you, Mr. MacInnis, that whatever document you may require in the record, that is your privilege.

Mr. Hallinan: It is too bad that caption misled anyone into thinking that it had to do with this case, because it hasn't.

The Court: There is no reflection on Mr. Donohue, because I think when the matter was called to my attention——

The Clerk: I may take the blame, if your Honor please. I wish to apoligize.

Mr. Hallinan: Then nobody has to take any blame, because you have been doing enough without having to take the blame——

The Clerk: I felt that the terminology of it was such that perhaps it had a bearing here upon this trial.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Mr. Hallinan: I probably didn't specify closely enough that it was in the contempt matter. That was an oversight.

The Court: All right. It has been filed. Let us proceed.

The Clerk: Thank you for coming in, gentlemen.

Mr. Hallinan: Not at all.

(The following proceedings were had in the courtroom in the presence of the jury:) [5050]

Mr. Donohue: May I proceed, your Honor?

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Donohue:

Q. Mr. Robertson, directing your attention back to the time when you appeared in Judge Foley's court as a witness for the defendant Bridges would you have said then and do you say now that a member of the Communist Party is a person who is devoted to our form of government and devoted to the principles of our Constitution?

A. Will you ask the question again, pelase?

Q. On the 17th of September, 1945, the day on which you appeared as a witness in the naturalization proceedings of the defendant Harry Bridges, were you of the opinion then that a member of the Communist Party was a person devoted to our form of government and devoted to the principles of the American Constitution?

do

A. I have no knowledge of the program or principles of the Communist Party, Mr. Special Prosecutor, and not knowing what their principles or program happen to be, I can't answer that question.

Q. Mr. Robertson, you told us a few minutes ago that before you determined that Mr. Bridges was a man devoted to our form of government and who had adhered to the principles of our Constitution in answer to questions that were asked you in Judge Foley's court that you had read a number of pamphlets and that you had read a number of opinions and talked to a number of people, did you do all that in the few minutes intervening between the time [5051] that Mr. Gladstein notified you to come in and add your signature of endorsement to Mr. Bridges.

A. Mr. Special Prosecutor, the answer to that question is obvious: No one would have time to read the volumes of material dealing with this subject matter in that instant in which I was called from a room to appear as a witness for Mr. Bridges.

Q. Mr. Robertson, was it necessary for you in order to assure yourself that Mr. Bridges was such a person to whom citizenship might well be granted to refer to and to study all of the documents and pamphlets that you have recited?

A. No, let me qualify that, Mr. Donohue. All of these documents and all of these pamphlets that you referred to is only part of the things that helped me to make up my mind about Harry Bridges, just a part of it. I would say this: When I read the United States Supreme Court decision, and my interpretation of that decision removed in my mind all legal doubt that there might be that this gentleman was associated with or had ever been a member of the Communist Party.

Q. Was that why you were willing to take a chance and appear as a witness for him, Mr. Robertson?

A. Not at all, not at all.

Q. You are sure of that?

A. I am positive of that, Mr. Donohue.

Q. Now, during the time that you were busy in New Orleans, Cleveland, Chicago, Washington, D. C. and other places, in your [5052] capacity as an organizer for the ILWU, were you at the same time doing any organizational work for the Communist Party?

A. I have never in my life been associated with a member of or have done any work with the Communist Party, Mr. Special Prosecutor.

Q. Were you advised by Mr. MacInnis to refer to me repeatedly as "Mr. Special Prosecutor," Mr. Robertson?

A. May I answer that, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: Mr. Special Prosecutor——

Q. (By Mr. Donohue): Yes, Mr. Robertson.

A. ——in this courtroom or in an alley, man to man, you or no one else can intimidate or tell me what I am going to say.

Q. Have you seen any indication that anyone is trying to intimidate you in this courtroom?

A. I think the way you are developing these questions is enough to do that, and I am very familiar with the techniques that are used.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. Do you object to the questions that I am asking you? A. Not at all, not at all.

Q. Then what is the objection to the technique I am implying in asking these questions?

A. What is the purpose?

Q. To develop the truth, Mr. Robertson.

A. Rest assured, rest assured, Mr. Special Prosecutor, you [5053] will get the truth.

Q. Where were you born, Mr. Robertson?

A. Born in Texas.

Q. I heard you say that this morning. Would you mind telling me over and above the county the name of the town in which you were born?

A. Alba, Texas. It is a small mining area, or it was at the time of my birth.

Q. And you were born there when?

A. July 15, 1905.

Q. What was your father's name, please?

A. Milton Robertson, Milton D.

Q. And your mother's name?

A. Kate Robertson.

Q. Where did you obtain your preliminary schooling?

A. In the grade schools in that area.

Q. And your high schooling?

A. I haven't had any high school training. I didn't complete grade school.

Q. When did you leave Texas?

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

A. My family left Texas in 1916, to the best of my remembrance.

Q. And you lived with them?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you go?

A. They migrated to the Tri-State Mining District, Oklahoma, [5054] Missouri and Kansas. They located in that section of Missouri.

Q. How long did you remain there, Mr. Robertson?

A. Oh, I remained there until 1919, I think.

Q. Do you remember when you went there?

A. The exact date I can't tell you that. I can give you approximate dates.

Q. If you left there in 1919, approximately when was it that you went there?

A. I would say 1916, and I can't give you the day of the week, the month or the year.

Q. When you left there in 1919, where did you go?

A. Oh, I was a youngster at that time and I left home and I started out on my own.

Q. And where did you go?

A. And I think my first experiences after leaving home was working in the harvest, in the wheat section of the nation.

Q. Do you recall what state?

A. I think it started in Kansas. When you are working in the harvest, it seems it develops in the southern section of the nation and goes on up to the northern country, and if I remember correctly, I followed it that year.

(Testimony of James R. Robertson.)

Q. How long did you continue in that kind of occupation?

A. Oh, I followed it all season that season.
